FUNERAL OF MRS. AUTEN JULY 2

TALENTED WIFE OF LOCAL BANKER DIES UNEXPECTEDLY IN PASADENA.

Mrs. Auten Ranked Always as a Woman of Culture and Refinement.

The Cass City community was greatly shocked and saddened when news came last Thursday of the unexpected death of Mrs. I. B. Auten at Pasadena, California. Her death occurred Wednesday, June 22.

Funeral services will be held at the Auten home in Cass City tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Auten left their home in Cass City the middle of January for Pasadena, to spend the winter months. About six weeks later, Mrs. Auten was taken very seriously ill and in March she suffered the amputation of a foot. Her condition was very serious for several weeks but reports received the fore part of June were encouraging.

In a letter to her friends which was published in the Chronicle of June 10, Mrs. Auten told of the hard and difficult struggle back to health and spoke rather hopefully of the prospects of recovery. Mr. Auten also was greatly encouraged at the time as she was gaining in strength. She became greatly discouraged the first of last week over the long and tedious battle for health and the end came soon after.

Elizabeth H. Libby was born in Richmond, Maine, on April 9, 1854. She attended the public schools at Richmond, afterwards entering the preparatory school at Kent's Hill, Maine. Later she studied in Paris for three years. Miss Libby taught in preparatory schools and was teaching French in Springfield, Mass., at the time of her marriage to Mr. Auten. The marriage occurred in Mrs. Auten's native town of Richmond in 1884. They came directly to Caro where Mr. Auten was employed as cashier of John F. Seeley's bank. In 1894, when Mr. Auten became a partner in the Cass City Bank of Auten, Seeley & Blair, of which he later became sole owner, the family moved to Cass City.

Mrs. Auten leaves her husband and two children, Mrs. C. W. McKenzie of Kalamazoo and Meredith B. Auten of Cass City, one brother, Frederick Libby of Philadelphia, and two sisters, Mrs. Frances Spooner of Exeter, New Hampshire, and Miss Alice Libby of Oxford, Ohio. The last named is now travelling in Italy.

Among her friends and acquaintances, Mrs. Auten ranked always as a woman of culture and refinement. In movements having for their purpose the betterment of the community life, she was a prominent worker and her education both as a student and traveller made her an efficient leader in the societies with which she was affiliated. In the Woman's Study Club, Mrs. Auten's talent and ability made her instructions and lectures especially valuable and members of that society will never forget the pleasure and benefit they received through her willingness to serve.

Mrs. Auten was a prominent member of the Christian Science society at Cass City.

Zeb Hunter will furnish added attraction with his banjo.

METCALF FAMILY REUNION TUESDAY

SIXTY MEMBERS FROM FAR AND NEAR AT THE D. W. TURNER HOME.

Pioneer Residents Related Reminiscences of Wilderness Experiences in This Section.

At the spacious home of D. W. Turner on South Seeger street, Cass City, 60 members of the Metcalf family gathered, on Tuesday, for their annual reunion. A dozen cars, some showing results of long travel and some newly polished for the occasion, carried the members to participate in this, the second event of the kind to be held. A pot luck dinner was served cafeteria style after which a short program was given by members of the family.

Four boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Metcalf, residents of Cass City when the surrounding country was a wilderness, were present. Two boys and one girl found it impossible to return. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Metcalf of Ellington and the following members of their family: Mrs. R. O. Milner and four children of Colling, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Denoyelles and son of Colling, Mrs. A. C. Flower and two sons of Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Metcalf and son of Ellington, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Metcalf and two children of Boyne City.

Turner, four children and two grandchildren of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Metcalf and child of Ellington, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Metcalf of Deford, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Metcalf and four children of Fairgrove, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Turner and two children of Ellington.

The other members of the family present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Metcalf of Webberville, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Metcalf and three children of Webberville.

At the close of the program the president of the association called upon the four heads of the four branches of the family present for some reminiscences of the early days and secured some interesting stories of ox teams, corduroy roads and wilderness experiences. The same officers were re-elected: President, Wesley Metcalf, Deford; secretary, A. A. Metcalf, Boyne City.

The reunion will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Denoyelles at Colling in August next year.

DAIRYMEN WAR ON FILLED MILK PRODUCT

Attacking the filled condensed milk industry as a menace to the dairymen of the nation and declaring that a fraud is often perpetrated when the product is sold to the public as milk, the Michigan Allied Dairy Association on June 15 adopted a resolution favoring legislation to prevent the manufacture and sale of filled milk. The product is a compound of skim milk and cocoanut oil. Last year South Sea island cocoanut oil used in filled milk manufacture pushed 7,000,000 pounds of American butterfat off the American market, the resolution charged.

The dairy association appointed a committee headed by James Nicol, president of the state farm bureau, to seek lower dairy transportation rates. Saginaw was selected for the second annual convention and dairy show, next February.

JUNE WEDDING AT DETROIT PRETTY EVENT

Miss Katherine Quaine Becomes Bride of Patrick H. Hennessy.

A pretty wedding of interest to many Cass City people was solemnized Wednesday, June 22, at eight o'clock, in Holy Rosary church at Detroit when Miss Katherine L. Quaine, 1260 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, was given in marriage to Patrick H. Hennessy, son of Thos. Hennessy of Cass City. Rev. Fr. Dwan performed the ceremony.

The bride was very charmingly attired in a gown of white georgette crepe over white taffeta. She wore a veil of tulle surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Marie Quaine, sister of the bride, wearing a gown of pink georgette crepe and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, acted as bridesmaid. Edward F. Hennessy attended his brother as best man.

After the ceremony a breakfast was served to about 40 guests. The decorations in the dining room were carried out in pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy left Wednesday night for a short trip through the east and will be home to their friends after July 1, 1921, at 6420 Lincoln Ave., Detroit.

Thos. Hennessy, Dan Hennessy, Miss Julia Hennessy and Thos. Hennessy, jr., were present at the wedding.

TUSCOLA'S BIRTH RATE WAS HIGH IN MAY

General Death Rate During That Month Was 16.1 Per 1,000 Population.

Tuscola county, outside of Caro, reported 59 births and 42 deaths during May, according to compilations of the division of vital statistics of the state department of health.

This number of births corresponds to a birth rate of 22.6 per 1,000 population; the deaths to a general death rate of 16.1 per 1,000 population; and the four deaths of children under one year of age to an infant mortality rate of 67 per 1,000 living births.

One stillbirth was reported. Stillbirths evidence lack of prenatal care and instruction and are preventable in 50 per cent of the cases, officials say. Special compilation of stillbirths, counting as neither births nor deaths, is made in vital statistics.

The goal every community should seek, declare authorities, is a general death rate as low as 10.0 per 1,000 population, a birth rate at least two and one-half times as high as this general death rate, and an infant mortality rate as low as 50 or 60 per 1,000 living births.

AND THIS APPLIES TO EVERY TOWN.

If you are a kicker and see the shadow of failure in everything that is proposed to keep the town, for heaven's sake go down into some secluded canyon and kick your own shadow on the clay banks, and thus give men and women who are working to build up the town a chance. One long faced hollow eyed whining kicker can do more to keep away business and capital from a beautiful little town like Deckerville than all droughts, short crops, chinch bugs, cyclones and blizzards combined. Quit knocking the town and its business industries or kick yourself out of it.—Deckerville Recorder.

Wednesday afternoon, Caro defeated Cass City on local grounds in a strongly contested game. Both moundsmen pitched a steady game, but Caro gave their twirler better support both in the in-field and outfield.

The visitors scored two men in the third inning, one in the sixth and in the ninth, through lack of teamwork and by errors on the part of local players, three more runs were chalked down.

Cass City tallied one run in the third, fourth and ninth periods. Woodhull led all hitters with a three-bagger. Champion and Beckton are credited with two-base hits.

The program opened with selections by the orchestra of the Parochial school. Rev. Wilson of the M. P. church gave the invocation. Elsie Munro, president of the class, introduced the speaker, Ray K. Immel, of the University of Michigan, who gave the Commencement address on the subject, "Eldorado." Mr. Immel advised the class to seek a greater Eldorado than they could actually attain, and in concluding quoted Robert Louis Stevenson, "to travel hopefully is better than to arrive." His address abounded in timely suggestions of advice to all present. Mr. Geo. Munro, member of the board of education, in well chosen words presented the class with their diplomas. The festivities of the week closed in a fitting manner, that of the gathering of the Alumni at a banquet held in the M. E. church Friday evening. About 40 guests were present. ### Obituary—Jerome B. Russell.

Jerome B., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Russell was born at Attica, Michigan, Nov. 17, 1850. He died at his late home in Grant township, Huron county, Michigan, June 26, 1921, having attained the age of 70 years, seven months and nine days.

He grew to manhood at the place of his birth and on May 22, 1881, he was married to Mrs. Catherine T. Hiner, who died nine years later. To this union three children were born, all of whom survive; Mrs. Cora Russell Day of Grant, Mrs. Floyd Russell Morris of Canada and Roy Russell of Grant.

Mr. Russell came from Attica, at the death of his first wife, to live in Grant in 1890. The following year he was married to Mrs. Lydia Hartsell Smith, who had a young family of four children, and though Mr. Russell had no children by this marriage, he was as kind and dear to his step-children as an own father could have been. These step-children were William Smith who died Nov. 10, 1911, Hattie Smith Dalmadge of Mayville, Henry Smith of Grant and Elizabeth Smith, who died in her eighteenth year on Christmas morning 1906.

Mr. Russell followed the pursuit of agriculture all of his days and was an industrious laborer. He possessed an even and friendly nature. He will be well-spoken-of by all who knew him. He had a rugged constitution and possessed great endurance. In his younger days he was alert and active.

He and Mrs. Russell were baptized and admitted to membership in the Methodist Episcopal church at Grant on September 1, 1901 by the Rev. H. F. Smith, pastor. He was a member of this church until his death possessing a sturdy Christian character. He was faithful and regular in his attendance at the public services even in declining health.

Last Wednesday morning while at his barn milking he sustained a stroke of paralysis and though all that medical skill and tender care could do was done he gradually sunk until the end came last Sunday morning at two o'clock when his soul found the wings, for which Israel's sweet singer longed, and flew away to be at rest.

The last Sabbath preceding his death he was in this church at the regular service and came to this altar with a notice for his pastor to read and the following Sabbath he was in the congregation of Heaven before the Great White Throne.

Funeral services were held in the Grant Methodist Episcopal church June 28, his pastor, the Rev. Clifton W. Scott, officiating and interment was made in Grant cemetery.

The friends from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Russell and family, George Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith and son, all of Attica, Mich.

It Will Grow.

Democracy can never be extended by force, as you would fling a net over a flock of birds; but give it a chance and it will grow, as a tree grows by sending down its roots into the heart of humanity and lifting its top toward the light and spreading its arms wider and wider until all the persecuted flocks of heaven find refuge beneath its protecting shade.—Henry Van Dyke.

Auditorium to Close.

D. R. Brown, manager of the Auditorium, has decided to close the building to all public gatherings on account of his inability to give it his personal supervision. This action has been brought about by the conduct of certain citizens who have heretofore apparently taken delight in breaking up the furniture, smashing the electric light bulbs and committing other depredations, which have necessitated unnecessary expense for maintenance, as well as a large amount of inconvenience and annoyance.—Deckerville Recorder.

Auto Turns Turtle.

While driving at too high a speed just north of St. Mary's church, Parisville, the auto driven by Peter Palach, turned turtle. Palach came out luckily, but his machine had a front and a rear wheel and a windshield ready for the rubbish pile.

Tuition Same as Last Year.

The board of education of Sandusky has decided to leave the tuition for non-resident students for the ensuing year at $50, the same amount as it has benn for the last year.

On Ladder at 93 Years.

Orrin Avery, who lives on Harrington Ave., may not be the oldest man in the state, yet he is about as lively a citizen as 93-year-olds usually are. He is painting his house and was to be seen up on a ladder painting the gable ends of the building on Thursday morning.—Croswell Jeff.

Speaking of Nerve.

For downright gall and nerve, the parties who appropriated the bulbs from the peonie beds at the village park have anything skinned we have heard of in a long time. The Women's Club purchased these bulbs, shrubs and trees for the park several years ago at a large expense and to them is due the credit for transforming the village grounds from a junk pile into its present condition. Besides, members of the club have denied themselves the privilege of taking these bulbs for their own use until such time as there was a sufficient quantity to supply every member of the club. This little piece of nerve puts the perpetrator in the same class with the parties who appropriate the cemetery flowers for their own use.—Deckerville Recorder.

Fisherman's Luck.

It was "some" fish which was caught at John Southgate's fishery Saturday night, June 11. It was an 108-pound sturgeon, and was four feet and nine inches long. It was taken to Sebewaing and shipped to New York City where it brought $124.01 on the market. It dressed 54 pounds of meat which sold at 62 cents per pound. It contained 26 3-4 pounds of eggs, which sold for $3.50 per pound. Mr. Southgate has caught larger sturgeon, but received the highest price for this fish of any he had ever sold.—Unionville Crescent.

Paving Underway.

Contractor Sam Murry has started work on the one and a half miles of concrete paving to be put through Pigeon. The beginning was made on the south end and for a time this part of the road will be closed.

Honor Judge Beach.

Circuit Judge Watson Beach has been in Caro this week closing some odds and ends of business on the calendar for the May term in the expectation that Judge Williams of Lapeer will assume the bench at the September term. Advantage was taken of the presence of the genial judge to make him the guest of honor at a banquet at Hotel Montague Wednesday evening. Nearly every member of the bar of Tuscola rounty was present, also Wilber Beach and Paul Woodworth of Bad Axe, together with more than fifty citizens of Caro who were glad of an opportunity to express in a formal manner their appreciation of the high character and judicial standing of one who for thirty-five years has been so intimately associated with the welfare of Tuscola county people.—Caro Advertiser.

Falling Tree Breaks Back.

Earl Goodwin, 26 years old, a former Delaware boy now working a farm one-half mile west of Richmondville in Forester township, had his back broken by a falling tree last Monday while engaged with his hired man in getting out timbers for the Bightenbach bridge on the Huron Shore Pike. The tree they were cutting down was a forked one separating a few feet from the base. One of the prongs had been partly cut off and they were engaged on the other to fell it first. When it gave way the other started to fall too. Mr. Goodwin tried to escape but was hit on the back some way. When he was picked up he was clear of the tree. He was assisted to his feet but he said his legs were numb. Dr. Jeffrey of Deckerville was called and stated that his back was broken. With Dr. Jones of Bay City an operation was performed in hopes of saving the young man's life. The fifth dorsal vertebrae had been driven inward severing the spinal cord. This injury is probably fatal and the young man has only a few days to live.—Minden Herald.

Cover Road with Straw.

The state highway department has hired Josiah Colter to cover certain stretches of sand on the Shore Pike in Forester township with straw and to repeat the operation at intervals during the summer in order to make it passable for traffic. This will furnish a splendid opportunity for the farmers along the Pike to get rid of their old straw stacks at a remunerative price and at the same time assisting in a public service. Residents along the road are becoming very impatient at the delay in constructing this road. While it is true that it was almost impossible to find contractors to do this work, there are hundreds of men who would be glad to take the contract for graveling short stretches of it at this time at a figure far below what other contracts have been let for on this road.—Deckerville Recorder.

For Antiquarians to Solve.

"I-TOLD-YOU-SO."

The boy and the girl adventurers wandered along. They had been told that they were going to meet a curious young lady named I-Told-You-So.

They had also been told that if they wanted to be liked they'd better not try to copy her, for she wasn't well liked. She had a queer disposition.

"Perhaps she is at home washing her hair," said the boy. He had always thought it was so absurd to make such a fuss over the washing of one's hair anyway.

"Perhaps," said the girl. "Still, we were told we would see her. It's strange we haven't already."

"I've been hiding," said a voice, and jumping down from the lowest branch of a tree they saw a young lady. She looked quite attractive, but as though she was very fond of herself. They could see that quite plainly by her manner.

"Who are you?" asked the boy, though he was quite sure he knew her name.

"My name," said the young lady, "is I-Told-You-So."

"It's an unusual name," said the girl, for the young lady looked at her as though she should say something.

"I told you so," said the young lady of the same name.

"You didn't tell me anything of the kind," laughed the boy.

"And you didn't tell me anything of the sort," said the girl, smiling, for she thought of the young lady's name, and she saw that the young lady certainly liked her own name to use it in conversation like that.

"Knew You'd Say That."

"Why were you hiding?" asked the girl.

"I knew you'd say that," said the lady, cocking her head on one side and dancing around in a rather silly, conceited way, as though to say:

"I'm so smart, I'm so smart. What care I what others think, for I'm so smart."

At least this was what the girl felt sure she was thinking to herself.

"Why did you say you told us something when we've never met you before?" asked the boy.

"I said to myself," answered I-Told-You-So, "that boy or that girl will say my name is unusual, and you did. So!"

"But you didn't tell us that," persisted the boy.

"I told it to myself, and now I can tell myself I'm right," said the young lady.

"Do you talk to yourself much like that?" asked the girl.

"Oh, yes," said the young lady. "And I knew you'd ask why I was hiding. That's why I didn't say anything. I waited to see if I couldn't say 'I told you so.' It's about the same as though I had told you so when I told myself so."

"My, but you're fond of your name," said the boy, not wishing to argue.

"Won't you tell us what you do with yourself all the time?" asked the girl. She wanted to hear of her curious ways which Master Thoughtfulness had mentioned.

"Well," said I-Told-You-So, "when things don't go the way I've said they would, I hide. I keep perfectly quiet. I never come around and say that I was wrong. Dear me, no. I never do that.

"But just as soon as something turns out the way I said it would, I come around and I say, 'I told you so!'

"Oh, I have a very good time, always hiding when I've made a mistake, and always appearing when I haven't. That's the way I do.

"They don't like me much around here, and I really like myself better than anyone likes me. But that makes no difference.

"I'm happy so long as I can say 'I told you so.' That is my joy in life."

"Strange," said the boy.

"Very curious," said the girl.

"Well, it doesn't seem curious to me," said the young lady. "I'm not beautiful, nor am I ugly. I'm neither one thing or another. I'm a good deal of a nuisance, but I don't like to change my ways."

There was a report rife last week that a well known couple had spent a night in a local garage, being locked in when the establishment was locked up for the night. Every effort was made to keep the matter quiet but the gossips got busy, as they always do and the matter has leaked out and to remove suspicion from all our young people we will make the scandal public. It was Lizzie Ford and one of the Dodge Brothers.

COZY HOME FOR SMALL FAMILY

Stucco Bungalow Has Charm and Appeal All Its Own.

MAKES A PLEASING PICTURE

Home Like This Would End the Worries Over Landlords, Rents and Leases—Plenty of Light and Ventilation.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Uppermost in the thoughts of most families today is the question of home—where they are going to live—how much it will cost—and will they be able to pay. Thousands are practically facing eviction upon the expiration of their present leases in May. Their rents have been raised to a point where they can no longer pay and live, so they must move. Consequently they are in a nerve-racking dilemma. The possibility of their getting a new flat at a reasonable rate is very slim and they are confronted with a situation that demands considerable thought and worry. Many of them are turning to a sure source of relief, buying a home. In a home of their own their worries over rents, landlords, leases, etc., cease. They become independent citizens of a community; not wandering nomads and tent dwellers. And this can be done at less monthly outlay than if they attempted to rent an apartment.

Never was there a time when homes were needed as badly as they are at the present. With thousands marrying each year, the number of new homes being erected to house them is sadly inadequate. It is estimated there are a million homes short in the United States. That is why every family should seriously consider the possibility of getting a home of its own. For the family of moderate means the bungalow affords an excellent shelter. It is small, comparatively inexpensive, and delightfully cozy and comfortable. Moreover it is distinctively individual in design.

Such a home is the charming bungalow shown here with floor plans. Low rambling design, it forms a very pleasing picture with its immaculate white stucco exterior and seclusive front porch recessed under an extension of the roof. It gives an impression of bigness, but really is not as large as it looks at a glance, as the dimensions show. This bungalow home is 36 feet wide and 39 feet long on the longest side which includes the wing containing the rear bedroom.

The windows are unique and ample, insuring plenty of light and ventilation in all parts of the home. Two triple windows provide light for the dining room, a large cheerful room on the right front, 16 feet 6 inches by 13 feet. The porch is a few steps above the walk and very attractively surrounded by broad stucco balustrades and protected by an arch of the same material. The front door opens directly into the living room, the largest room in the home, being 17 feet 6 inches by 13 feet. The living and dining rooms are connected by a wide-open doorway. Leading from the living room is a narrow hall which gives access to the two bedrooms and equipped with space-saving garment carriers which eliminate much of the waste entailed by old-fashioned clothes closets. Each bedroom has splendid ventilation facilities and window space. The rear bedroom has windows on two sides. Moreover in being separated from the living rooms as they are, the people who wish to sleep are not disturbed by the noise from other parts of the house.

Directly to the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, modeled along the very latest ideas of home building in that it is small, compact but complete in all details. The large awkward kitchen has no place in the modern home. They only mean extra work for the housewife because of their size. A small pantry is built off one corner of the kitchen. A modern bathroom completes the floor plan arrangement.

It is obvious that an attractive home like this will appeal to many families who are planning on building a home of their own, not only because of its picturesque appearance and charming interior arrangement, but because of its reasonableness in cost. It is free from any feeling of crowding, and a wonderful place for children. What most homeseekers need is the stimulus to make their ambitions a reality, and certainly a home like this will do much toward bringing this result about.

REAL "PRINCE OF DENMARK"

Hamlet Not Altogether a Creation of the Brain of the Greatest of English Writers.

Hamlet, the hero of Shakespeare's most famous tragedy, is a personage who appears in history, yet is half mythological, but has been transformed by the genius of the English poet into one of the most dominating figures of literature. It is allowed that Shakespeare's Hamlet was suggested by the Hamlet, or Amleth, of Saxo Grammaticus. The latter's "History of Denmark" had been published in Paris in 1514. Francois de Belleforest included the tale of Hamleth in his "Tragic Histories" (1570), an English translation of which appeared in 1608. Shakespeare's drama was written earlier than this last date and must have derived its plot either from De Belleforest's work or a translation executed before the end of the Sixteenth century, unless the poet, who, it is known, was a great reader of histories, took the incident direct from Saxo Grammaticus.

According to the Danish historian, Hamleth was prince of Jutland; his father, the king of Jutland, had been murdered by his own brother, Fengo, who took the throne and queen of the dead man. Hamleth feigned madness to save his own life. He stabbed one of Fengo's courtiers, sent to spy upon him, and for this purpose concealed himself under a truss of straw. He reproached his mother with her shameful second marriage to such effect that she promised to help him in avenging his father by putting Fengo to death—a promise which she kept. These are the very incidents Shakespeare has selected for his play, sometimes emphasizing the points of the narrative, sometimes softening them or changing them in harmony with his own vivid conception of dramatic requirements. Shakespeare's "Hamlet" was first played in 1600 or 1601, and first printed in 1603.

President Eliot Was Oarsman.

The Varsity club at Harvard university is made up of athletes who have won their letter in competition. At a recent luncheon of the club the names of all the graduates present, in the order of their classes, were read, and first upon the list was the name of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, '53.

President Eliot was a noted Harvard oarsman in his day, and he told the club youngsters present of how the Harvard color was chosen by a six-oared crew in which he rowed while he was in college. Harvard "crimson" at one time degenerated to magenta, according to color historians at Cambridge, but deep research has developed that the true shade is arterial red.

Letters of Recommendation.

"Billy" Williams, United States commissioner of internal revenue, says a lawyer told him once that "a letter of recommendation does not evidence a man's ability, but merely signifies the amiability of the writer." That is about as solid a truth as one will see in a day's work. Every ready letter writer will agree to that. Many letters tell the truth about the man for whom they are written, but they rarely tell the whole truth. If there are unpleasant facts about the bearer of the letter, the writer has been discreetly and courteously silent in respect to them. It is not his business to argue and analyze. It is his job to give a friend a life.—The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

Wealthy Indians.

A great many Indians are very wealthy and own a great deal of both real and personal property. A large number of them are fully enfranchised citizens of the United States. The commissioner of Indian affairs says that every effort is made to induce the Indian settlers on the reservations to improve themselves and make use of the opportunity America offers them to become citizens.

Ambergris.

For many hundreds of years ambergris has been employed in sacerdotal rites of the church, and with fragrant gums it was formerly burned in the apartments of royality. To some extent it was used as a medicine and as a flavoring for certain dishes. Nowadays ambergris is utilized almost exclusively in the manufacture of perfumes and the preparation of fine scents being first converted into a tincture by dissolution in alcohol.

The Savior in Profane History.

Among the historical references to Jesus Christ which are undisputed is that made by Tacitus, the Roman historian, who on speaking of the Christians said, "The originator of that name had been executed in the reign of Tiberius by order of the administrator, Pontius Pilate." This may be found in the Annals of Terevat. Reference to Christ is also made in the "Antiquities of Josephus," a Jewish historian, who was contemporary with Christ, but this passage is declared by some to be a forgery.

I am the Country Weekly.

I am the friend of the family, the bringer of tidings from other friends; I speak to the home in the evening light of summer's vine-clad porch or the glow of winter's lamp.

I help to make this evening hour; I record the great and the small, the varied acts of the days and weeks that go to make up life.

I am for and of the home; I follow those who leave humble beginnings; whether they go to greatness or to the gutter, I take to them the thrill of old days, with wholesome messages.

I speak the language of the common man; my words are fitted to his understanding. My congregation is larger than that of any church in my town; my readers are more than those in the school. Young and old alike find in me stimulation, instruction, entertainment, inspiration, solace, comfort. I am the chronicle of birth, and love and death—in three great facts of man's existence.

I bring together buyer and seller, to the benefit of both; I am part of the market-place of the world. Into the home I carry word of the goods which feed and clothe, and shelter, and which minister to comfort, ease, health and happiness.

I am the word of the week, the history of the year, the record of my community in the archives of state and nation.

I am the exponent of the lives of my readers.

I am the Country Weekly.

It may make you marvel and maybe say, "Pshaw!" They tell us a youth done his day's work at Owosso, dropped No. 1 juice in his flyer, came over to Deford, took in the dance, back home for breakfast, and poor old pa thinks his boy is never out nights. Old lads, let me tell you, our young stuff are going some.

The first dance at sand block building was a success. Eighty-one tickets sold, $8.10 paid on the war tax. (Now you can tell cost of tickets). Shook the foot till small hours and went home avering to meet again evening of July 2.

A piano has been installed in the Hotel Daugherty as a gift of the landlord's granddaughter, Fern Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pierce and daughter of Pontiac visited Deford friends here this week.

Elmer and Henry Hilderbrandt of Yale were callers here from Friday to Monday.

Elmer Bruce wheeled down to Brown City last Saturday. He took Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bentley to said point to see their daughter and her husband, John Ross, who has been in poor health many years. Mr. R. is very poorly at present. The granddaughter came back here to spend a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bentley.

They were discussing the merits of Paris green and the arsenic of lead as bug destroyers thiswise: The old gent told the boy, "I tell you they both are the bestest and both are the worstest."

How Kisses Came.

Of course it doesn't really matter who invented kissing—but the legend of the Grecian shepherdess who found an opal on one of the hills near Athens and, wishing to give it to a young shepherd whose hands were occupied, let him take it from her lips with his own, is one of many stories which give Greece the honor of the very first kiss.

Beards in History.

Pliny, we are informed, "observes that Scipio Africanus was the man who introduced the fashion of the daily shave, "and the Russians wore beards until Czar Peter enjoined them all to shave, but he was obliged to keep on foot a number of officers to cut off, by violence, the beards of such as would not otherwise part with them."

New Note in Nation's Celebration

Today there is a new note struck on the Fourth of July. The old victories of the Revolution recede into the dimmest past; and poets who have written, as did that patriotic son of New Jersey, Doctor Thomas Dunn English, of how

There flows Assanpink; yonder Monmouth's plain
Spreads green before us, fertile with its slain;
There Trenton rises, where our fortune first
Turned to the flood when at its ebb the worst;
There Princeton, too, whose college folk may see
Where startled Britons took their first degree;
There is the Tory blockhouse on the ridge,
There Paulus Hook, Red Bank and Quinton's Bridge;

or, like Bryant, have sung how

The British soldier trembles
When Marion's name is told, will be the bards of ancient American history—a history ever to be cherished but no longer to fill the foreground in the national annals. Even Gettysburg and Chickamauga recede, and the bloody shirt, buried deeper than ever plummet sounded, seem forever incapable of another languid flap. New triumphs and new ideals fill the minds of the people who have, in part at least, realized the aspiration of the patriot who declared:

Our banner still defiance flings
To sceptered power and may not rest until
All peoples and all lands alike are free
From threat of princes and their brood of tyranny.

None the less, many of the old exhortations still ring true. To the end of time Americans can repeat the words uttered by Daniel Webster, not many months before his death, when the republic completed its seventy-fifth year and the great orator entered on his seventieth:

"This anniversary animates and gladdens and unites all American hearts. On other days of the year we may be party men, indulging in controversies more or less important to the public good; we may have likes and dislikes, and we may maintain our political differences often with warm and sometimes with angry feelings. But today we are Americans all in all, nothing but Americans. * * * Every man's heart swells within him—every man's port and bearing become somewhat more proud and lofty as he remembers that seventy-five years have rolled away and that the great inheritance of liberty is still his—his undiminished and unimpaired, his in all its original glory. His to enjoy, his to protect, and his to transmit to future generations."

With Webster's rival orator, from his own state, Edward Everett, they can apostrophize the flag:

"All hail to our glorious ensign! Courage to the heart and strength to the hand, to which in all time it shall be intrusted! May it ever wave in honor, in unsullied glory and patriotic hope on the dome of the capitol, on the country's stronghold, on the entented plain, on the wave-rocked topmast! Wherever on the earth's surface the eye of the American shall behold it, may he have reason to bless it! On whatever spot it is planted, there may freedom have a foothold, humanity a brave champion and religion an altar! Though stained with blood in a righteous cause, may it never in any cause be stained with shame!

"Alike when its gorgeous folds shall wanton in lazy holiday triumphs on the summer breeze and its tattered fragments be dimly seen through the clouds of war may it be the joy and pride of the American heart! First raised in the cause of right and liberty, in that cause alone may it forever spread out its streaming blazonry to the battle and the storm! Having been borne victoriously across the continent and on every sea, may virtue and freedom and peace forever follow where it leads the way!"

With Henry Ward Beecher at a later date, they can stand beside the graves of their dead and take comfort from the truths that an enlarged vision brings within their grasp:

"Oh, tell me not that they are dead—that generous, that airy army of invisible heroes. They hover as a cloud of witnesses above this nation. Are they dead that yet speak louder than we can speak, and a more universal language? Are they dead that yet act? Are they dead that yet move upon society and inspire the people with nobler motives and more heroic patriotism? Ye that mourn, let gladness mingle with your tears. He was your son, but now he is the nation's. He made your household bright; now his example inspires a thousand households. Dear to his brothers and sisters, he is now brother to every generous youth in the land. Before, he was narrowed, appropriated, shut up to you. Now he is augmented, set free and given to all. Before, he was yours; he is ours. He has died from the family that he might live to the nation. Not one name shall be forgotten or neglected; and it shall by and by be confessed of our modern heroes as it is of an ancient hero, that he did more for his country by his death than by his whole life."

And they can proudly prophecy with the eloquent Henry Armitt Brown, whose death at thirty-four was so great a loss to the Philadelphia bar of a generation ago, in words which he used in a centennial oration commemorative of the assembling of the first Continental congress in Carpenter's hall:

"The American Union has endured a hundred years! Here on the threshold of the future the voice of humanity shall not plead to us in vain. There shall be darkness in the days to come—danger for our courage, temptation for our virtue, doubt for our faith, suffering for our fortitude. A thousand shall fall before us, and tens of thousands at our right hand. The years shall pass beneath our feet and century follow century in quick succession. The generations of men shall come and go; the greatness of yesterday shall be forgotten today, and the glories of this noon shall vanish before tomorrow's sun; yet America shall not perish but endure while the spirit of our fathers animates their sons."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE Declaration of Independence! The interest which in that paper has survived the occasion upon which it was issued, the interest which is of every age and every clime, the interest which quickens with the lapse of years, spreads as it grows old, and brightens as it recedes, is in the principles which it proclaims. It was the first solemn declaration by a nation of the only legitimate foundation of civil government. It was the corner-stone of a new fabric, destined to cover the surface of the globe. It demolished at a stroke the lawfulness of all governments founded upon conquest. It swept away all the rubbish of accumulated centuries of servitude. It announced in practical form to the world the transcendent truth of the inalienable sovereignty of the people. It proved that the social compact was no figment of the imagination, but a real, solid, and sacred bond of the social union.—John Quincy Adams.

Famous in History.

Built in 1748, the State house in Boston was the pride of the city long before the Revolution. It was, when constructed, a fine edifice, with an imposing front, and surmounted with a gilded dome. Much of its original appearance has been preserved, and it is today a Mecca for the tourist who visits the sacred shrines connected with the birth of liberty in the United States of America.

POLITE CATS.

"Me-ow, me-ow, me-ow," said the cat named Miss Silver Cat.

"Me-ow, me-ow, me-ow," said the cat named Miss Red Shaded Cat.

"Me-ow, me-ow, me-ow," said the cat named Mr. Red Cat.

"Me-ow, me-ow, me-ow," said the cat named Mr. Cream Cat.

There were one hundred and three cats at the cat show and they were at the finest cat show of the season.

They were being judged and the ones who won the prizes would be highly honored, for it was going to be hard, the judges said, to pick out the most beautiful cats among all these beautiful ones.

They were all sitting on lovely cushions and they were all combed and smoothed and looking very fine and handsome and bristling.

They were mostly very large and had most beautiful fur. Indeed, it was a very fine show and it was a great honor to each cat to be there, for only fine cats could be shown at such a fine show. Cats which weren't so fine would have felt quite queer to be among such beauties.

And none of the cats but the beautiful ones were there.

"There are cats who are not in the least fussy," said Miss Silver.

"What do you mean by that, me-ow, me-ow; what do you mean by that?" asked Miss Red Shaded Cat.

"Just what I say," snarled Miss Silver.

"But you must tell us the sorts of cats you mean when you say there are some who are not in the least fussy," said Mr. Red Cat.

"Yes, you must tell us that, me-ow, me-ow," said Mr. Cream Cat.

"I mean," said Miss Silver, "that there are some cats who don't care so much for beauty if they are only petted and spoilt and are kept warm and snug.

"Then there are other cats who go looking into garbage pails. Dear me, that isn't the least polite. Now, we have been called polite cats and beautiful cats. We are fussy. We are the sort of cats which deserves to be called such fine things."

"That's so," said Miss Red Shaded Cat.

"Me-ow, I agree with her," said Mr. Red Cat.

"Listen, friends," said Mr. Cream, "I have something to say. It's something quite horrible. No one is listening, is there?"

The cats looked this way and that.

"No one seems to be listening," said Miss Red Shaded Cat.

"The other cats are almost all sleeping," said Mr. Red Cat.

"Well," said Mr. Cream Cat, "of course I am of a lovely cream color and I like cream, too! That's interesting. But suppose a child were fond of milk she wouldn't be named Milk. She would be named Lucy or something like that.

"And suppose a child had brown hair; she wouldn't be called Brownie."

"I thought you had something to tell us which was quite horrible," said Miss Silver.

"So I have," said Mr. Cream Cat. "I was going to say that sometimes, secretly, I wish just a little bit I could have one whole day and night for adventures. I'd like to forget just for that length of time that I was a fine, aristocratic, stylish, beautiful, polite cat."

"What would you like to do? What sorts of adventures would you like to have?" asked the other cats.

"I'd like to go hunting in garbage pails and work for my living. I'd like the fun of it. It must be great fun. I do believe even snobbish Miss Silver might like it for a change."

"Yes, I would," said Miss Silver, "me-ow, I would. But still I couldn't do such a thing, for I am a polite and beautiful cat, a spoilt and lovely cat, and I couldn't go garbage pail hunting and earn my living—no, not even for twenty-four hours. It wouldn't do."

"Alas," said Mr. Cream Cat. "We must be polite cats for the rest of our lives, but still it is best after all, as I mightn't do well earning my living, and I mightn't always have cream!"

Rejuvenating With X-Ray.

Prof. Steinach of Vienna claims to have discovered a way of rejuvenating elderly persons without the transplantation of glands. It is based upon repeated applications of X-rays to certain parts of the body. Other scientists have found that such applications tend to cause the glands to atrophy; hence they are skeptical.

Presbyterian—Which is best for America? A Sunday of ball games and movies, or one of rest and worship—happy, but quiet, thoughtful and reverent. The strength of the Pilgrims was their faith in God. They came here church members. They were poor and many soon died, but their impact on civilization was tremendous. Some may laugh at their laws, but we all admire the character they gave their descendants and the heritage they gave to this country. Will as much be said of us a century hence?

For the sake of those who are "weak in the faith" we should not forsake the "assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is."

"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy."

Wm. W. Edwards, Pastor.
