Gentlemen: -

We are frank to tell you that your telegraphic replies are the slowest which come to Baltimore. Usually all the rest of the firms are about 3 and 4 hours ahead of you in responding to our wires.

You also mentioned to us sometime ago that you were going to open a Branch Office on the first of the month at Saginaw, Mich. We have heard nothing further from you regarding same. Please advise.

Yours very truly, BERNDT & CO.

Please understand that is not a fault of our local telegraph management, but is due to not having enough telegraph lines to result in good service and has been very detrimental to our business. Therefore we have moved our Jobbing Office to new headquarters in Saginaw.

The local elevator business will be conducted in the usual manner and we expect to stay with you for sometime to come and we earnestly solicit your cooperation.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Will Is Changed.

The two years that had passed since Tony Devon had entered the Pendlehaven home, the greater part of which she had spent in school, had brought about many changes. Paul Pendlehaven had taken his place among the world's workers, but this does not say that he did not still long for the child who had gone from his life eighteen years before.

Mrs. Curtis was no nearer giving Cousin John to Katherine as a father than she ever had been, and Ithaca had caught no sight of Reginald Brown since he had fled from it with the notion that he might follow Uriah Devon behind the prison bars. Philip had carried on his wonderful work, living in the joyous letters he received from Tony and spending his spare time in answering them.

One morning Tony came to Paul Pendlehaven, smiling and blushingly girlish, and he motioned her to a little stool at his feet.

"Darling," he began in a moved tone, "I sent for you because I've come to perhaps the most important decision of my whole life."

Tony glanced up at him wonderingly. He appeared solemnly sober and looked as if he hadn't slept.

"If it affects me, Cousin Paul, it can't be greater than the one you made over two years ago when you took poor little me into your home," she asserted.

His hand fell lovingly upon her curly head as though in benediction. They both lapsed into a long silence, the girl's dreamy eyes fixed | that !" on space, and the man gazing at her shining head.

"Tony," he ejaculated at length. There was something in his voice as he pronounced her name that dispelled her revery instantly.

"Yes," she breathed. "Yes, what is it?" Pendlehaven cleared his throat.

"I would never have believed that anyone could have wormed her way into my heart as you have," he told her. "How would-how would you like me for your father?"

Tony tried to speak but, seeing he had something else to add, waited expectantly.

"Once, as you know," went on the doctor, "I had a little girl of my own, but the years have been so long and so many since she was taken away, I feel I shan't have her again in this Sarah Curtis, and a gasp came from

The smile broadnaid Brown walked rapidly along the ened on her lips, and she sank back boulevard past the row of squatter with a happy sigh. She had to adshacks. He had received word that mit Cousin Paul looked very handsome, yes, even handsomer than Cousin John. What a fool she had been not to have caught him sooner.

"The woman you put at the head of your home will be most fortunate and happy, dear Paul," she murmured.

"I hope-so," returned Pendlehaven, and Doctor John pulled at the corners of his mouth to keep back a malicious grin

"I'm going to adopt Tony Devon-" Doctor Paul had only time enough to make this statement when Mrs. Curtis jumped to her feet.

"You couldn't do that!" she cried. "That would be wicked, Paul, absolutely wicked! Oh God, don't do Without heeding in the slightest his cousin's bitter ejaculation, Paul Pendlehaven picked up a box that lay at his elbow. With much ceremony he opened it and took out an exquisite pearl necklace.

"I do not need to remind any of you," he said, turning his eyes from his brother to his two white-faced cousins, "that these belonged to my dear wife. I have always considered them the property of her daughter too. That is the reason, Katherine, why I've always refused your request to wear them. But now I have a daughter." He turned smiling eyes upon Tonnibel. "Til get it for him if I have to sell my jewels and Kathie's too," promised the woman, her eyes sparkling in anticipation. "I'll go and tell her right away."

Meanwhile, all unconscious that Uriah Devon had been released from prison and was conspiring against her, Tonnibel Devon was entering heart and soul into the Salvation Army work with Philip. Each evening she went with him to headquarters where her fresh, young voice and her kindliness drew many a poor soul for comfort and courage.

One week after Reginald Curtis had confided his secret to his mother, and she had told it over again in whispers to Katherine, at an hour when the Pendlehaven brothers were absent, Uriah Devon came quietly to the house. Reggie met him and took him immediately to Mrs. Curtis' room. Uriah paused embarrassedly before fell from her limp fingers to the plate The mother saw her daughter's mental distress, however, and studied the young man's face, groaning to herself. He had grown so manly and handsome in the past two years, and he was the one person she desired for her sonin-law. He was rich, too, which only added to his attractiveness. "You might explain a little more, my boy," Doctor John spoke up in a deep voice. An embarrassed laugh fell from Philip's lips. "There isn't any secret about it,"

he answered. "I'm going abroad for the Salvation Army for a year, longer perhaps, and it would be too much to ask me to go all by myself."

Lines appeared between Doctor Paul's brows. At last the day had come when he must give up the girl who had taken a rare place among those he held dearest. He noticed with a quick sigh that Tony's eyes deepened softly, and her red lips were parted in a smile. "It'll hurry up our marriage a litle," Philip continued, "but-but-" The sound of a chair scraping back from the table broke off his state ment.

"Then we'll adjourn and talk it Office on Main St. opposite Com-mercial State Bank, Recently re-turned from Army. Chief of Surgery 15 months in U. S. A. Base Hospital, Morrison Va. over," remarked Doctor John. "You ask a mighty big thing, Phil, when you demand our little girl without Morrison, Va.

In the rage that overtook her, Mrs. Curtis wished the speaker dead at her feet.

"The house isn't mine, Cousin John," she said maliciously, "but, of course, I'll do what I can, although Katherine isn't at all well. I fear the child is going to be ill."

Doctor John found Katherine with her eyes dull and heavy, prescribed for her, and, before leaving the room, announced:

"Paul and I are going over to Syracuse tomorrow afternoon to make a few purchases, but we'll be back on the night train. Stay in bed, Kathie, until morning, and you'll be all right."

The moment he had disappeared, Katherine sprang up.

"Tomorrow they're going away! You heard, you heard, mother?" she cried. "Now then, where's Reggie?" "Darling," advised Mrs. Curtis, moved to tears by her daughter's distress, "I have a premonition! We'd better not interfere at all. Oh, child, if you could only get your mind off that boy! He isn't worthy of a love like yours. We've got a nice home-" "Nice home!" hurled back Katherine, wildly. "Nice home! Look what she's got! Just think of her and then of me! Oh. God. that such misery could be in the world! I'll never forgive you, mamma, if you don't keep your promise to me.'

"Don't say that, darling, don't," groaned Mrs. Curtis. "I'll see your brother, and who knows," she brightened and smiled through her tears; "who knows but what that horrid girl out at length, "I simply couldn't." "Not to please me, your father, Tonnibel?" demanded Paul, almost brusquely. "And me, your new uncle?" laughed

Doctor John. "Why, honey, little girl," he reached out and took Tonnibel's hand, "don't look as if you'd lost your last friend!"

Then Paul Pendlehaven drew Tonnibel Devon to his side, and, when he. had clasped the jewels around her neck, he lifted her face and kissed her.

"There, little daughter!" His voice choked with emotion, but he conquered his feelings and went on, "they're very lovely, very precious, Tony, doubly so because you're wearing them."

"Oh," she exulted, "how happy I am! . . . It isn't the pearls, though they're simply great, but it's that I have some real people." She turned a flushed and radiant face to each man. "Somebody that's my very own. My mother's dead, and my father-"

"Is in prim," snapped Mrs. Curtis, vindictively. "I'm wondering what he'll say to all this when he comes home."

"His opinion won't make any differ-ence to us," Paul Pendlehåven stated coolly. ""He has forfeited every right to any claim on Tony."

"Hideous!" exclaimed Mrs. Curtis, and "Well, I never," dropped from Katherine.

"And," went on Doctor Paul, relentlessly, for he knew the barbs that were being thrust into the souls of his two cousins. "I'm going to change my will in favor of my new daughter here-"

"And I mine in favor of our young Salvation Army captain who is going to marry my new niece," chuckled Doctor John. "I guess that's all we have to say, Paul."

In silence Katherine and Mrs. Curtis faded from the room, carrying with them bitter humiliation and nursing outraged feelings.

"It's all your fault, mamma," scolded Katherine, bursting into tears when they were in the seclusion of their own apartments. "You've whined and wept yourself right out of Cousin John's life, that's what you've done. God. how I hated that girl when I saw Caroline's pearls around her neck!"

"A lot of good that'll do you, Ry," sneered Reggie. "She wouldn't look at the likes of you and Edith. You aren't in her class any more."

"Ain't I so?" queried Devon, grouchily. "I reckon her hide ain't no tougher nor thicker'n it used to be. I'll thump h-ll out of 'er once or twice; I'll show 'er what class she's in."

"You'll have to catch her before you beat her, won't you, Ry?" Reggie inquired tauntingly. "How're you going to get your hands on her? Tell me that, will you?"

"Yep, Mr. Mealy-mouth, I will," thrust back Devon. "We got to steal 'er." He clenched his heavy fist and swung it menacingly and suggestively. "What's left of 'er when I'm done with 'er 'll marry you all right. That over, I'll tell 'er who she is, providin' you promise to halve up the stuff with me."

"I did promise you once, didn't I?" asked Reggie, sulkily. "Of course, I will, but what's the use of dreaming? The Pendlehavens're too much for us. Now that Paul's well, he and John are a big team, and they worship the ground that girl walks on. You're biting off more'n you can chew, Ry. You aren't any too strong, you know A prison record doesn't help any." Uriah grunted and followed a ring of smoke with his frowning eyes. "She's my girl," he said at length,

"and I'm goin' to have 'er." "I thought you said she wasn't," put in Reggie, suspiciously.

"Well, she don't know that, does she?" Devon retorted. "Nobody knows but you and Ede, besides me.'

"She's a beauty," sighed Reggie, his voice lowered to a growl. "I'd marry her if she didn't have a cent." "You don't need to make any such sacrifice, old horse," said Devon. "Your eyes will bung out of your head when you hear her name."

Reginald argued he should know who the girl was before he married her, but Uriah wouldn't give up his secret. Indeed, he unfolded to the prospective husband how he planned to capture Tonnibel, and sent Reggie away convinced, red hot to perform his part in the scheme. At last, he was to have the girl he wanted and money too.

The next morning Reggie approached his mother with an air of secrecy.

her, made a curt bow and twisted his cap between his fingers.

"31t down, Ry," invited Reggie. "Now tell my mother how you are going to carry this thing out." Uriah sat on the edge of a chair.

"I ain't goin' to do anything, or tell what I'm goin' to do, till I get the money." he said crisply. "I've got to have five thousand dollars first."

"Five thousand dollars, old lady," grinned Reggie, turning to his mother. "You'll have to cough up. Now, for God's sake, don't cry! Dig!" to get 'er away, and to keep 'er after I get 'er. She'd come streakin' back if I don't rope 'er up.'

"I'll get the money for you tomorrow," sighed Mrs. Curtis, wiping her eyes, "and you mustn't come here MacCauley too."

* Mrs. Curtis had been all eyes and ears for even the slightest happening in the Pendlehaven home, since she had almost stripped her jewel-box and Katherine's to get the money Tony's father demanded. Now she had it tucked away, ready to deliver it, but as the time went by and she had no chance to send for Uriah to Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. 2 come for his daughter, she began to give up hope that the house would ever be rid of the presence which was a constant thorn in her flesh. But it does seem that sooner or later Fate plays the lucky cards into the hands of the undeserving, and so it happened in the case of the conspirators against Tonnibel Devon. Like all things waited for, the opportunity came one day while the family was at dinner. Philip MacCauley entered in great excitement. "You look as if you had swallowed the sun, my dear lad," smiled Doctor Paul.

"I've got to go away," flushed the boy, laughing, "and I won't go alone." He gazed meaningly at Tonnibel. "Pardon my rushing in this way, but -but I want Tony to go with me." Mrs. Curtis flashed him a dark look. He rarely paid her, or her frowning daughter, any attention nowadays, so he did not notice that a pallor settled on Katherine's face, or that her fork will be gone by tomorrow night?" We Would Like to be Your Bank

We Are A Strong Bank

We are heavily capitalized. Our capital is $40,000. By law, the stockholders are responsible for another $40,000. With our deposits at $225,000, the capital and stockholders' responsibility equal 80-225ths or 35% of the deposits, which is considerably above the average and will compare favorably with any bank in Michigan.

Our assets are of a remarkably liquid nature. We have $200,000 loaned on notes. Of this amount, $165,000 become due between Oct. 15 and Jan. 1, which means that, were our deposits decreasing, we could very readily reduce our loans. Practically four-fifths of our total resources become due and must either be paid or renewed in a little over two months time.

While it is considered good banking and profitable to a bank to borrow from the larger city banks and reloan, we have considered this a good time to stand on our own feet and the words "Bills Payable" have yet to appear on the books of The Cass City State Bank.

We Aim to be a Bank of Service to Our Customers

We try to keep ourselves in position to loan our customers whatever money they may need. be it to buy cows or to finance temporarily a heavy buying of store goods and no real deserving borrower has had to look elsewhere in a long time.

We consider our first duty is to our community. During the past two years, there have been innumerable salesmen who could show us large profits by investing elsewhere, but our first dollar has yet to leave this community. With the exception of our Liberty Bonds, every dollar of the loans of The Cass City State Bank has been loaned in this immediate vicinity. When you deposit with us, you may rest assured that there will be no speculating with your money but your very deposit will probably be loaned to help your neighbor.

We do all of our ledger work on a Burroughs Posting Machine and mail the statements the first day of each month. This means considerable expense and long hours on the last day of the month, but it likewise means that the farmer, as well as the merchant, will receive his cancelled checks and a statement showing him how his bank balance stands without his leaving work or wasting time to come to town.

We have the best system we could purchase for keeping your Liberty Bonds. We have a special deposit book which we give you as a receipt. Your bonds are then insured and sent by registered mail to our correspondent bank in Detroit for safe-keeping. The Detroit bank clips the interest coupons and credits our account and we in turn credit you. There is no expense whatever on your part. This insures safety to your bonds and we invite you to bring them to us.

We have installed a Savings Department of which we are sure you will see the advantage. We furnish you with a Savings Book; you can add to your account or withdraw from it and not disturb the interest on the balance of the account. Every six months we compound the interest at 4% and add this interest to your account, whether you bring your book in or not. All we can say is that we do not see why we did not install the system sooner.

We have put a system of saving in our Public School. This is a lot of work for small deposits, but we believe that it is beneficial to this community to teach the children the principle of saving. We hope the parents will foster this spirit. Drill into your child the thought of thrift and saving and the future of the child will be much brighter for it.

The officers of the bank are grateful in having back of them the Board of Directors that they have. With the following personnel:-

I. B. AUTEN, President M. B. AUTEN, Vice President J. A. SANDHAM, Vice President G. A. TINDALE, Cashier J. H. STRIFFLER, Director B. F. BENKELMAN, Director E. W. JONES, Director A. J. KNAPP, Director

there are few problems that come up that cannot be dealt with in some manner.

We repeat; we would like to be your bank.

CARD OF THANKS-Words cannot express our appreciation to the friends who so kindly assisted us in life's greatest trial and for the many expressions of sympathy given at the time of our bereavement. We are deeply grateful to Mr. Campbell and pupils of the Junior for their expressions of regard, to the boys' choir who sang so sweetly at the service, to Rev. Wm. Richards and Rev. W. W. Edwards for their comforting words, and to McKay & McPhail for their untiring efforts and efficient ser-vice. Although so many kindly acts cannot remove the sad memories that linger around our vacant chair, they throw the pure light of an unselfish friendship into a darkened home and we are sustained and comforted by friends so noble, generous and devoted. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Henry. CARD OF THANKS-I thank you, dear old friends and neighbors, for the great pleasure you gave me by reviving old memories through your shower of post cards and letters. John W. Higgins. CARD OF THANKS-We are deeply grateful to the friends who gladdened the last days of our son, Orton, with the generous post card shower, to the American Legion for the beautiful flowers and to the Red Cross for the box of candy. American Actresses Win Popularity in Europe

Those persons who believe nothing but a pretty face is necessary to make you a popular movie star should read what film producers in England and France are up against in their search for young women who can make good in motion pictures, May Stranathan writes in the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

They claim there are just as many pretty girls in England and France as there are in America-though doubtless this is an exaggeration-but they admit their pretty girls do not screen as well as those of America. They frankly acknowledge the reason is lack of brains, These producers say brains are neces sary to success as a movie actress.

Rene Navarre, French actor and would-be film producer who aspires to make his film city at Nice the rival of the one at Los Angeles, after which it is modeled, says he has tried hundreds of beautiful French women and girls. but they have failed miserably before the camera because of lack of the quick intelligence necessary to catch the point of a pose. In despair, he says the only thing to do is to start an academy for the training of camerastars.

Miss Violet Hopkins, one of the few English girls who have made a success in motion pictures, attributes the success of the American girl to her ambition, thoroughness, her willingness to work hard and her study of types. not only of to-day, but in literature, including history and poetry.

So the American girl scores again.

CHEERFULNESS AS AN ASSET

Why Mirth Has Been Called "God'a Medicine" by Those Capable of Appreciating It.

Mirth has been called God's medicine. There are few persons who cannot testify to the saving value of a smile. There is a story told of a man who received a wire while on a business trip that his business had been wiped out by fire. The depression which followed this news threatened for a time his mental balance, and he even gave serious thought to taking his own life.

While in this dangerous mood he received a letter from his daughter, a girl of nine, which read: "Dear Daddy-I went down to see your store that was burned and it looked awfully pretty all covered with ice. Love and kisses from Helen.'

The man laughed and the day was saved. That glint of humor was like a ray of sunshine in a dark cell. The spirit of the man was released from the prison of his gloom.

Lincoln on the day that he read to his cabinet the emancipation proclamation opened that important meeting by reading from Artemus Ward. When rebuked by one of his serious-minded cabinet officers for having called them into an important session to hear such nonsense, Lincoln replied: "Why don't you laugh, gentlemen? If I couldn't laugh I would die.'

Emerson has said, "Nothing will. supply the want of sunshine for peaches, and to make knowledge valuable there must be cheerfulness."-Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Why Cattle Are "Mavericks."

Sam Maverick migrated from Maschusetts to Texas of the great West and entered upon the business of raising cattle. He purchased several herds and put them out to roam the range. Whether from ignorance or from implicit faith in the nonesty of the neighbors, it never occurred to Mr. Maverick that it might be wise to put his brand upon his stock. At round-up time, whenever a cow boy found an unbranded animal, he would cry: "There's a Maverick," And, generally being of the unregenerate type, he would use his own brand on his find. The name Maverick soon began to be generally applied and to acquire a distinct metaphorical meaning; and when men had opinions which were vague and undecided, they were declared by Westerners of the old days to hold "Maverick views."

environment. A street of homes of the same exterior design, same color and same material is one of the most depressing scenes that one can look at. Too often hope of profit has obscured a builder's vision to the effect this sameness of design will have in the future on that section of the city. It is inevitable that sooner or later it will degenerate into slums. Whereas, take a street of homes that are distinctive and different, they instill pride of ownership and last for generations.

That was the thought uppermost in the mind of the architect who designed this unique home of stucco and brick. It is quite exotic in appearance, the influence of Far East architecture bevery high, well lighted and ventilated attic or half story which can be made habitable quickly and reasonably. There is room for at least two more bedrooms in the attic.

For a cozy all-round comfortable home this attractive little bungalow is difficult to beat. It offers convenience for the housewife, comfort for the family and a pleasing picture to the passerby. There is nothing about it that will cost a whole lot of money, which is an important consideration nowadays, and it will look attractive in any neighborhood.

No firm, store, or individual who looks to the general buying public for patronage can imitate the hen and make any business progress.

There may have been a time when the buyer hunted out the store that sold the article he wanted-but that was in the dead past.

Today if you do not advertise the fact that you are in business to serve the public, the public will not know you. You must attract the buyer-the most patronage goes to the store that tells the people of its buying opportunities.

Plea for the Eagles.

Once there was a great reason for wanting to get rid of the bald-headed eagle in Alaska, as it was a bird that gave no end of trouble in many ways, but those days are past, the eagles are pretty well killed off and there should be a respite granted those that remain alive. After all, there is something noble in the bird, something that typifies the American character, for an old bald eagle squinting out of his eye doesn't seem to be afraid of anything that walks or flies .-- Exchange.

Why Knock on Wood.

Because there was at one time a general belief that trees and humanity were allied in close bonds of union, and that certain trees had healing qualities. It was customary for a person afflicted with disease to take a woolen string of three colors, and with his right hand tie his left loosely to the limb of a tree, then slip it out and hasten homeward without casting a glance back, the belief being that the disease was transferred to the tree by touching it. Thus from a tree it has become common practice to touch any article of wood to ward off misfortune.

Why Peanuts Are Good Food. More than 2,000.000 acres in this country were planted with peanuts last vear. The demand for them is increasing by leaps and bounds. They are one of the most nutritious foods known to man, one pound of them (shelled) containing nearly half a pound of fat and a quarter of a pound of protein, both high-grade and readily digestible. For running the body machine they are three times as efficient as an equal weight of beef and five times. as efficient as an equal weight of eggs.

Many raisers of beets complain they have worked all season, have nothing for their work. Inquirers at the delivery station demonstrate they speak truthfully. But the same is true with all farmers in this part of the world except where a fortunate tiller of the soil had a fair acreage and a good yield of potatoes. 'Tis a serious matter. We cannot look lightly on discouragement to producers. There is something sadly wrong in conditions when the intelligent old farmer says to his son, "Boy, don't think of farming; it won't pay." When such is the case the prosperity of a nation is in danger. It is not the great military machinery and large armies that have won the wars of long duration. It was plenty of bread to feed the men. Food, food-without which a nation dies.
