In keeping with this program the following creed by William Tyler Page, adopted by the United States congress in 1918, should be memorized by every child in the country. "I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

Cass City school is expecting to lay particular stress on the outlined subjects in all the grades and high school classes. Supt. H. W. Homes is also giving the townspeople an opportunity to co-operate in this all-important work.

Every person who wishes to be patriotic will attend the special session of school, called "School Night" and held Tuesday evening. Everyone should call off all previous engagements and give a few hours to the future citizens of America. School will be called at 7:00 o'clock and the regular ular afternoon classes will be conducted.

AVOCA LOSES GARAGE AND AUTOS IN FIRE

Avoca suffered a fire loss Saturday morning when the concrete garage of Fred Oatman burned with ten automobiles stored in the building. The loss is estimated at $7,000, of which $5,000 was lost by customers who had cars stored in the garage. No insurance was carried on the property. The cause of the fire is unknown.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF CORN SHREDDER

Plan Extension of Lines to Meet Central Power Company in Thumb District.

The last issue of The Detroit Manufacturer and Financial Record notes from an interview with Mr. Marshall, vice president of the Edison Co., these remarks concerning electrical developments in the Thumb district:

"It is reported that the Detroit Edison Company contemplates the extension of service over the entire Thumb district of Michigan, north of Port Huron and to include the counties of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola. This will involve an extension of the company's transmission lines northward from Port Huron to the Sanilac county line where it will be linked with the Central Power Company plant at Bad Axe, selling power to the latter company has developed at the Marysville plant and supplementing the service of the Central company. The two companies will continue to operate separately, it is understood.

"The Central Power Company, at Bad Axe, besides generating power, and lighting current, recently added a central heating plant to its facilities, serving the business center of Bad Axe with heat.

"The Central Power Company's electric line to Caseville is nearly completed and it was expected that the power would be turned on this week. The company plans to give 24-hour service over the Port Austin line. Another line is under construction to Bay Port.

"Stockholders of the Detroit Edison Company last week authorized an issue of $15,000,000 of convertible debenture bonds to take care of contemplated expansion during the coming year."

STATE APPLE-POTATO SHOW TO OPEN DEC. 5

Educational Program to Feature Big Conference at Grand Rapids.

A Michigan Apple and Potato show will be held in Grand Rapids from December 5 to 8, with growers from all over the state gathered to discuss problems of their industry.

The show is to be put on by the Michigan Potato Producers Association, the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange, and the State Horticultural Society, under the auspices of the West Michigan Fair Association and the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce. Educational exhibits of apples and tubers, along with a strong program of addresses by leading authorities of the country, will feature the meeting.

Extension specialists from the Michigan Agricultural College are working out details of the meetings and exhibits.

Headliners among the speakers on the special potato growers program include: Dr. Wm. Stewart, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; Dean R. S. Shaw, of the M. A. C. agricultural division; Dr. E. L. Nixon, of Pennsylvania State College; and C. W. Waid, market fruit and vegetable man with the Ohio State Farm Bureau.

Valuable discussion and consideration of important problems in both the production and marketing fields will be taken up at the conference, according to J. W. Weston, potato specialist at the Michigan Agricultural College.

He escaped with no more injuries than a few bruises about the face.

ARIATION IN TEST OF CREAM.

Dairymen often raise the question as to why their cream test varies and sometimes unjustly accuse the person who did the testing.

It is well known to users of cream separators that a slight adjustment of the cream screw will make a decided difference in the richness of the cream separated. Various experiment stations have also determined other factors which cause variations. These factors are: Speed of the separator; richness of the milk separated; rate at which milk flows into the machine; depth of milk in the supply tank; temperature at which milk is separated; and the amount of skim-milk or water used to flush the bowl.

If proper precautions are used to control these factors there will probably not be a great variation in the test. All persons who publicly test cream in Michigan are licensed by the state and inspectors visit them at various times in order to be sure that the test is accurately applied.

There may be a slight variation in tests taken from the same sample but this variation should not exceed one point.

Testers are usually honest and efficient in testing and while they may make mistakes they are usually very glad to have mistakes called to their attention and willing to adjust them if possible to do so. If a dishonest "tester" is located and the state department notified, his license will, in most cases, be taken from him.

RECORDS ALONE SHOW TRUE FARM PROFITS

The Man Who Has Not "Kept Books" Cannot Be Sure of Financial Standing.

That the farmer who has not kept definite records of his farm operations and transactions cannot be sure whether or not he is making a profit under the present uncertain economic conditions, is the statement of F. T. Riddell, farm management specialist at the Michigan Agricultural College.

A large number of Michigan farmers claim that they have lost money this year because of the low price scale on agricultural products, according to Riddell. This, he admits, may be true. The question immediately arises, however, as to how the farmer knows this definitely in the absence of records or positive proofs.

"Even a small bank account at the end of the year does not prove that the farmer lost money," says Mr. Riddell, "for he may have more produce and livestock on hand than he had at the beginning of the year. Again, he may have purchased more equipment or cleared more land, thus increasing his expenses. If these factors were not taken into consideration they would make it appear that the farmer was operating his farm at a loss.

"Properly kept farm records will bring out the facts on these questions, and also show up many other interesting and valuable phases which are now hidden. This is a very good time to start keeping such records, their importance never having been more apparent."

VISIT THE SCHOOLS NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

Classes Usually Heard in Afternoon Session Will Recite at Night. You're Invited.

Parents who claim they are too busy to visit school during the day will have an opportunity to inspect them one night next week and see what pupils are doing in regular school work.

Next Tuesday, school closes for the day at noon for pupils in the high school and junior high. A night school opens at 7:00 p. m. when all the classes usually heard in the afternoon session will recite at night.

Supt. Holmes is very anxious that a large number of parents and others interested in the school will take advantage of this opportunity to visit the school. There is altogether too great a lack of interest on the part of many in the community to see what is being accomplished in the local schools today. When teachers and pupils will go to the trouble of holding their session at night in order to make it convenient for their friends to attend, they should be rewarded by a large number of visitors.

UNIONVILLE MAN LOSES EYE.

Wallace Louis of near Unionville lost the sight of an eye in a peculiar accident Friday morning. He was doing the morning chores and was in the hay mow when he happened to turn his head and in doing so came in contact with a sharp stick which was nailed to a beam and which was used as part of a ladder. The stick pierced the eye ball. He was taken to Ann Arbor for treatment.

The radio fans of Cass City have looked at each other from between the ear pieces of their head sets with glances full of meaning as they complacently "listened in" to such announcements as this: "This is W. L. A. G., Minneapolis, Minn." "You are listening to W. H. Z., the Sweeney Automobile School, Kansas City" or "This is 2 X I, General Electric Company, last week when a voice from Dallas, Texas, came sounding clearly thru the air dropping down on Cass City.

The little two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edwards, of Applegate, while playing with a broom, was struck in the eye with the handle. The eye was injured and the child was taken to a hospital in Detroit where it was found necessary to remove the eye.

Richville citizens expect to have electric lights installed in their homes soon, arrangements having been made to secure current from the Village of Reese. On a recent Sunday, 25 people visited the county jail at Sandusky, and among this number only one had a friend confined there, the rest were merely curiosity seekers. Sheriff McGuiness states, that the jail is not a public place for people to come on Sunday merely for curiosity's sake, and that hereafter people who have no particular business at the jail will not be permitted to inspect it on Sundays.

The Civic Club has been organized at Caro by club women of that village. Active members of the new club say that they believe there are many things in the life of the community than can be handled much better by the women folks than can be done by the men. Another is the plan to help in the educational part of the community life.

When there is a seige of sickness in a locality there's always a "deal" of a time. Care of the sick don't hold the well ones in bounds. They use all surplus strength finding fault with the doctor. The doctor is generally a good fellow and does all he can for his patients but we often expect too much of him. The best guesser is the most successful doctor and he cures his patient if it doesn't happen to be their last sickness.

Mrs. George Rohrbach, W. Houghton St., Cass City, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a severe backache and put my kidneys in good shape. My back was sore and lame and ached continually. It felt as though there were a ton of lead pressing down on it. Sleep was impossible and added to that I was bothered with my kidneys acting too frequently. My ankles swelled so I couldn't wear high shoes at all and I felt tired and drowsy. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me good results so I continued taking them. After a short time I was cured of the backache and I felt better in every way."

“How Fresh It Is!”

It is a pleasure to go to your cake-box when you have baked with ROYAL Baking Powder because it is in the nature of a pure Cream of Tartar Baking Powder to keep baked foods fresh.

This means a real economy and is just one of a hundred reasons why careful housekeepers insist upon Royal Baking Powder. Some others are:

WILLYS-OVERLAND, INC. WANTS to establish a sales and service agency in this community

WILLYS-OVERLAND, INC., is the only manufacturer that produces two of the eight most popular cars in the world—the Overland—the Willys-Knight.

COMPARISON with other cars in the same price class as to materials, construction, riding qualities and economy of operation is but further evidence of the reason why there is such a demand for Overland and Willys-Knight cars.

75% of all automobiles sold today are of but three different makes! Overland is one of them. 90% of all automobiles sold today are of eight different makes! The Willys-Knight is another of them.

WILLYS-OVERLAND, Inc., is the only manufacturer which, in the Overland and Willys-Knight, produces two out of the eight most popular cars in the world.

WE invite comparison with other cars in the same price classes as to materials, construction, riding qualities and economy of operation.

INVESTIGATE the used car market and you will discover that used Overlands of present design move at good prices and Willys-Knight cars are rare among used car stocks.

UNLESS you are familiar with the splendid performance records of the present-day Overland and Willys-Knight, you cannot fully appreciate the reason for the public preference for these two cars.

AND at their new prices, they offer sales possibilities greater than ever before in their history.

She said she had started for a grocery when a woman whom she had known slightly drove along with two men and asked her if she wanted to ride.

A number of Linden people given pheasant eggs for hatching this spring, report excellent results. When the birds were old enough to care for themselves, they were set at liberty in the woods. Coras Crandall, local game warden, recently received three crates, each containing 16 nearly matured pheasants. These were scattered about through the county in localities favorable to the birds.

Because of the competition of motor buses, the Michigan United Railway Co., at a conference with a Lansing city council committee and Chamber of Commerce representatives decided to reduce the fare between Lansing, Holt and Mason. The new rate, effective immediately, is 20 cents for a round trip to Holt and 40 cents for a round trip to Mason. Each is a cut of nearly 50 per cent.

Navigation on the Great Lakes officially closes December 2, but the date means little to ships of the Michigan Transit company, plying between Chicago and northern Michigan points, which will run as long as they can find cargoes, Captain George Johnson of Traverse City general manager, announced. This practically assures that Traverse City will be served until the bay freezes over.

A timber deal involving 2,000 acres of hardwood lands in Ontonagon County for a consideration of $140,000 has just been closed by John Flanagan, of Iron Mountain. Experts have estimated the tract will yield 20,000,000 feet of logs, besides other products. The land was bought from the Norton Lumber Co., of Ontonagon and the P. C. Fuller Co., of Grand Rapids and Ontonagon.

Mrs. Minnie Gerow, of Cheboygan, widow of Dr. Arthur M. Gerow, was found dead on the floor of her bathroom. Death, it is believed, occurred when she was making ready to retire. Since the death of her husband she had lived alone, her only child, Allen Gerow, being a resident of Detroit. She had planned to spend the winter in Detroit with her son.

Blinded by a shot-gun charge received accidentally in the face, John Boer, Muskegon Heights, and a companion wandered about in the woods near there for several hours before they found their way back to the city. Twenty shots lodged in the youth's forehead and cheeks, but failed to injure the eyeballs, physicians say.

PROGRAM OF MORE CONCERTED CO-OPERATION

Between Federal Officials and Local Enforcement Agencies Is Planned for the Coming Year.

A program of more concerted cooperation between federal officials and local enforcement agencies is planned for the coming year, Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes advises Director Davis of Michigan.

Section II of the enforcement act divide the responsibility between the government and the states. Practically all of the states have enacted legislation to this end and the various state agencies report increasing evidence of cooperation.

Commissioner Haynes says that every state, county and city has the initial responsibility of cleaning up its own conditions through locally selected officials, before the federal machinery should be expected to take charge. Hence, the necessity of close cooperation between the states and federal agencies.

Director Davis is greatly pleased with the progress that has been made in enforcement in this state, and is most optimistic in regards to the future, in view of the spirit of cooperation, in evidence practically everywhere. More and more is the public becoming convinced that the success of enforcement lies as much with the people themselves as with the officers who are designated to enforce the law. In spite of obstacles and many complications, prohibition is showing itself as a means of pronounced public betterment, of improved living conditions, and healthier happier human beings. There is evidence everywhere of marked progress in the way of enforcement.

This is not the time to be impatient, nor discouraged, for the friends of the law are truly in action, as shown by reports which Commissioner Haynes has received from the various states, justifying the optimism which entertains.

Referring to the cry that prohibition is a "failure," Commissioner Haynes says that in his judgment, one of the most remarkable successes ever attained in the enforcement of a new and drastic law has been recorded in the present status of enforcement of the national prohibition act.

Beasley's Christmas Party

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

III.

I do not know why it should have astonished me to find that Miss Apperthwaite was a teacher of mathematics except that (to my inexperienced eye) she didn't look it. She looked more like Charlotte Corday!

I had the pleasure of seeing her opposite me at lunch the next day (when Mr. Dowden kept me occupied with Spencerville politics, obviously from fear that I would break out again), but no stroll in the yard with her rewarded me afterward, as I dimly hoped, for she disappeared before I left the table, and I did not see her again for a fortnight. On week-days she did not return to the house for lunch, my only meal at Mrs. Apperthwaite's (I dined at a restaurant near the Despatch office), and she was out of town for a little visit, her mother informed us, over the following Saturday and Sunday. She was not altogether out of my thoughts, however—indeed, she almost divided them with the Honorable David Beasley.

A better view which I was afforded of this gentleman did not lessen my interest in him; increased it rather; it also served to make the extraordinary diodes of which he had been the virtuoso and I the audience more than ever profoundly inexplicable. My glimpse of him in the lighted doorway had given me the vaguest impression of his appearance, but one afternoon—a few days after my interview with Miss Apperthwaite—I was starting for the office and met him full-face-on as he was turning in at his gate. I took as careful notice of him as I could without conspicuously glaring.

There was something remarkably "taking," as we say, about this man—something easy and genial and quizzical and careless. He was the kind of person you like to meet on the street whose cheerful passing sends you on feeling indefinitely a little gayer than you did. He was tall, thin—even gaunt, perhaps—and his face was long, rather pale, and shrewd and gentle; something in its oddity not unremindful of the late Sol Smith Russell. His hat was tilted back a little, the slightest bit to one side, and the sparse, brownish hair above his high forehead was going to be gray before long. He looked about forty.

The truth is, I had expected to see a cousin german to Don Quixote; I had thought to detect signs and gleams of wildness, however slight—something a little "off." One glance of that kindly and humorous eye told me such expectation had been nonsense. Odd he might have been—Gadzooks! he looked it—but "queer?" Never. The fact that Miss Apperthwaite could picture such a man as this "sitting and sitting and sitting" himself into any form of mania or madness whatever spoke loudly of her own imagination, indeed! The key to "Simpledoria" was to be sought under some other mat.

As I began to know some of my co-laborers on the Despatch, and to pick up acquaintances, here and there, about town, I sometimes made Mr. Beasley the subject of inquiry. Everybody knew him. "Oh, yes, I know Dave Beasley!" would come the reply, nearly always with a chuckling sort of laugh. I gathered that he had a name for "easy-going" which amounted to eccentricity. It was said that what the ward-healers and camp-followers got out of him in campaign times made the political managers cry. He was the first and readiest prey for every fraud and swindler that came to Wainwright, I heard, and yet, in spite of this and of his hatred of "speech-making" ("He's as silent as Grant!" said one informant), he had a large practice, and was one of the most successful lawyers in the state.

One story they told of him (or, as they were apt to put it, "on" him) was repeated so often that I saw it had become one of the town's traditions. One bitter evening in February, they related, he was approached upon the street by a ragged, whining and shivering old reprobate, notorious for the various ingenuities by which he had worn out the patience of the charity organizations. He asked Beasley for a dime. Beasley had no money in his pockets, but gave the man his overcoat, and spent six weeks in bed with a bad case of pneumonia as the direct result. His beneficiary sold the overcoat, and invested the proceeds in a five-days' spree, in the closing scenes of which a couple of brickbats were featured to high, spectacular effect. One he sent through a jeweler's show-window in an attempt to intimidate some wholly imaginary pursuers, the other he projected at a perfectly actual policeman who was endeavoring to soothe him. The victim of Beasley's charity and the officer were then borne to the hospital in company.

It was due in part to recollections of this legend and others of a similar character that people laughed when they said, "Oh, yes, I know Dave Beasley."

Altogether, I should say, Beasley was about the most popular man in Wainwright. I could discover nowhere anything, however, to shed the faintest light upon the mystery of Bill Hammersley and Simpledoria. It was not until the Sunday of Miss Apperthwaite's absence that the revelation came.

That afternoon I went to call upon the widow of a second-cousin of mine; she lived in a cottage not far from Mrs. Apperthwaite's, upon the same street. I found her sitting on a pleasant veranda, with boxes of flowering plants along the railing, though Indian summer was now close upon departure. She was rocking meditatively, and held a finger in a morocco volume, apparently of verse, though I suspected she had been better entertained in the observation of the people and vehicles decorously passing along the sunlit thoroughfare within her view.

We exchanged inevitable questions and news of mutual relatives; I had told her how I liked my work and what I thought of Wainwright, and she was congratulating me upon having found so pleasant a place to live as Mrs. Apperthwaite's, when she interrupted herself to smile and nod a cordial greeting to two gentlemen driving by. They waved their hats to her gayly, then leaned back comfortably against the cushions—and if ever two men were obviously and incontestably on the best of terms with each other, these two were. They were David Beasley and Mr. Dowden.

"I do wish," said my cousin, resuming her rocking—"I do wish dear David Beasley would get a new car of some kind; that old model of his is a disgrace! I suppose you haven't met him? Of course, living at Mrs. Apperthwaite's, you wouldn't be apt to."

"But what is he doing with Mr. Dowden?" I asked.
She lifted her eyebrows. "Why—taking him for a drive, I suppose."
"No. I mean—how do they happen to be together?"
"Why shouldn't they be? They're old friends—"

"They are!" And, in answer to her look of surprise, I explained that I had begun to speak of Beasley at Mrs. Apperthwaite's, and described the abruptness with which Dowden had changed the subject.

"I see," my cousin nodded, comprehendingly. "That's simple enough. George Dowden didn't want you to talk of Beasley there. I suppose it may have been a little embarrassing for everybody—especially if Ann Apperthwaite heard you."
"Ann? That's Miss Apperthwaite? Yes; I was speaking directly to her. Why shouldn't she have heard me? She talked of him herself a little later—and at some length, too."

"She did!" My cousin stopped rocking, and fixed me with her glittering eye. "Well, of all!"
"Is it so surprising?"

The lady gave her boat to the waves again. "Ann Apperthwaite thinks about him still!" she said, with something like vindictiveness. "I've always suspected it. She thought you were new to the place and didn't know anything about it all, or anybody to mention it to. That's it!"

"I'm still new to the place," I urged, "and still don't know anything about it all."

"They used to be engaged," was her succinct and emphatic answer. I found it but too illuminating. "Oh, oh!" I cried. "I was an innocent, wasn't I?"

"I'm glad she does think of him," said my cousin. "It serves her right. I only hope he won't find it out, because he's a poor, faithful creature; he'd jump at the chance to take her back—and she doesn't deserve him."
"How long has it been," I asked, "since they were engaged?"

"Oh, a good while—five or six years ago, I think—maybe more; time skips along. Ann Apperthwaite's no chicken, you know." (Such was the lady's expression.) "They got engaged just after she came home from college, and of all the idiotically romantic girls—"

"But she's a teacher," I interrupted, "of mathematics."

"Yes." She nodded wisely. "I always thought that explained it: the romance is a reaction from the algebra. I never knew a person connected with mathematics or astronomy or statistics, or any of those exact things, who didn't have a crazy streak in 'em somewhere. They've got to blow off steam and be foolish to make up for putting in so much of their time at hard sense. But don't you think that I dislike Ann Apperthwaite. She's always been one of my best friends; that's why I feel at liberty to abuse her—and I always will abuse her when I think how she treated poor David Beasley."

"How did she treat him?"
"Threw him over out of a clear sky one night, that's all. Just sent him home and broke his heart; that is, it would have been broken if he'd had any kind of disposition except the one the Lord blessed him with—just all optimism and cheerfulness and make-the-best-of-it-ness! He's never cared for anybody else, and I guess he never will."

"What did she do it for?"
"Nothing!" My cousin shot the indignant word from her lips. "Nothing in the wide world!"

"But there must have been—"
"Listen to me," she interrupted, "and tell me if you ever heard anything queerer in your life. They'd been engaged—Heaven knows how long—over two years; probably nearer three—and always she kept putting it off; wouldn't begin to get ready, wouldn't set a day for the wedding. Then Mr. Apperthwaite died, and left her and her mother stranded high and dry with nothing to live on. David had everything in the world to give her—and still she wouldn't! And then, one day, she came up here and told me she'd broken it off. Said she couldn't stand it to be engaged to David Beasley another minute!"

"But why?"
