> SPEECH IN INDEPENDENCE HALL, PHILADELPHIA February, 22, 1861

R. CUYLER: I am filled with deep emotion at finding myself standing in this place, where were collected together the wisdom, the patriotism, the devotion to principle, from which sprang the institutions under which we live.

You have kindly suggested to me that in my hands is the task of restoring peace to our distracted country. I can say in return, sir, that all the political sentiments I entertain have been drawn, so far as I have been able to draw them, from the sentiments which originated in and were given to the world from this hall. I have never had a feeling, politically, that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence.

I have often pondered over the dangers which were incurred by the men who assembled here and framed and adopted that Declaration, I have pondered over the toils that were endured by the officers and soldiers of the army who achieved that inde-

I have often inquired of myself what great principle or idea it was that kept this Confederacy so long together. It was not the mere matter of separation of the colonies from the motherland, but that sentiment in the Declaration of Independence which gave liberty not alone to the people of this country, but hope to all the world, for all future time.

It was that which gave promise that in due time the weights would be lifted from the shoulders of all men, and that all should have an equal chance. This is the sentiment embodied in the Declaration of Inde-

Now, my friends, can this country be saved on that basis? If it can, I will consider myself one of the happiest men in the world if I can help to save it. If it cannot be saved upon that principle, it will be truly awful. But if this country cannot be saved without giving up that principle, I was about to say I would rather be assassinated on this spot than surrender it.

Now, in view of the present aspect of affairs, there is no need of bloodshed and war. There is no necessity for it, I am not in favor of such a course; and I may say in advance that there will be no bloodshed unless it is forced upon the government. The government will not use force, unless force is used against it.

My friends, this is wholly an unprepared speech. I did not expect to be called on to say a word when I came here. I supposed I was merely to do something toward raising a flag. I may, therefore, have said something indiscreet. (Cries of "No, no.") But I have said nothing but what I am willing to live by, and, if it be the pleasure of the mighty God to die by.

The high school annual is well under vay, all plans being nearly complete. The staff as follows, has been organized and working for several months with untiring enthusiasm: Business manager, Grant Pinney; assistant, Nila Burt; editor-in-chief, Bernice Wager; assistants, Wilma Striffler and Lilah Spurgeon; athletic editor, Oak-Phetteplace; assistant, Velma Warner; literary editor, Alice Ferguson; assistant, Carrie Brown; society editor, Marian Wallace; photo editor, Annabel McRae; joke editor, Elynore F. Bigelow; advertising manager, Kenneth Higgins; assistant, Wallace Zinnecker; art editor, Donald Seed; assistant, Kenneth McKenzie. The first half of the book is to be sent to the Canton Engraving and Electrotype Company, Canton, Ohio, on Feb. 15. The art editors are having an exceptionally easy time this year as the number of engravings has been reduced by the use of a number of colored plates. In all the book will contain about 100 pages. The number of photos and snap shots this year greatly exceeds the amount ever published before. Another great attraction is the complete classified list of all the alumni of the high school, giving their present address. This will probably prove very interesting to most of the townspeople. The Chronicle does the printing, the annual going to press in the middle of May. The value of an annual to the school cannot be measured for it is really a wonderful summary of the happiest years of life.

Lansing, Mich. grind of the 1923 session, both senators and representatives are working daily in commttee as well as in the regular daily meetings of their assemblies. It is the committee stage important and not only are members thought to the measures already intheir views are being sought on bills still to be brought forward.

It is noticeable that most of the big tax, insurance and administrative ideas which caused the bulk of the advance talk about what this legislature might do, are not yet before the lawmakers in the form of bills. The committees are starting in, however, on the tangible measures laid before them and their deliberations in connection with these are likely to bring out further measures.

The first two public hearings of the session have been called by commitcenter of attention in taxation affairs. houses joined in setting the date for alter the corporation tax law by removing the limit of $10,000 on big corporations' tax payments. The highordered a joint hearing on the progasoline. This hearing was asked for by the Detroit Automobile club.

State administrative officials still are endeavoring to plan some way in which all, or most of, the state taxes may be raised by specific levies such as the corporation tax, so that it will not be necessary to have a state tax on real property. Or if this goal is not entirely attained it is their wish to greatly reduce the present direct property tax. In this endeavor they are seeking advice from men on whom they can feel reliance.

Chief among these is Dr. David Friday, head of the Michigan Agricultural College, and former economist professor at the U. of M. It was Dr. Friday, two years ago, who had much to do with the establishing of the corporation tax and the state officials want him to undertake a survey to determine the state's needs at present and ways and means of gathering in funds to meet these needs.

Regulation of passenger motor buses which run from town to town in that the veto power gave Governor various parts of Michigan is sought in a bill introduced by Rep. William O. Lee, of Port Huron. The bill aims to place such vehicles under the supervision of the publis utilities commission and would require them to make quarterly statements of gross earnings, paying a license fee of 5 per cent of these earnings on vehicles with pneumatic tires and 7 per cent on those with hard tires. Marriage and divorce bills drawn up by Judges Gillespie and Covert, of Pontiac, after consultation with other in such capacity. The present salary circuit judges, have been introduced by Oakland county members in both houses. The divorce bill would make it more difficult to obtain a divorce in Michigan and would require that an interlocutory decree first would issue, remaining in force a year before a final decree. The marriage bill is a form of eugenics legislation, requiring that both parties submit certificates from registered physicians that they have not communicable diseases or physical or mental bars to marriage before a marriage license may be issued to them.

Recompensing of owners of tubercular cattle ordered killed by the state, is before the house committee on agriculture in two bills, one offered for the state department or agriculture by Rep. Kirby and the other brought in by Rep. Holland. The department bill asks for more money with which to pay for destroyed cattle, the appropriation of two years ago not having been sufficient to meet the needs that arose. The Holland bill seeks to compel the naming of a committee of three to appraise the value of condemned cattle; to kill them in the county in which they are condemned and to recompense the the animals.

Rep. Lennon has introduced a bill to require the suspension of further issuance of state road bonds at this time, so as to afford the taxpayers a "breathing spell" until it can catch up on some of the bonds now out.

Bills looking to reapportionment have been introduced both in the senate and the house by Wayne members who are desirous of having some definite plan in the committees on which work may be started. Rep. Vincent Dacey, of Detroit, introduced the house bill and declares that he has carefully guarded in it against running counter to the "moiety clause" on which the 1913 act was wrecked. Sena-Swinging into the real legislative tor Arthur E. Wood, of Detroit, introduced the senate bill.

The house bill would give Wayne 24 seats in coming legislatures, an increase of ten over the present number. Railroad rates applying to interurban roads will meet with a sudden change in many inseances if an amending bill offered by Senator Glaspie is adopted by the legislature. The amendment is suggested for the act which was passed two years ago, basing interurban rates on earnings per mile, and which is known as the Glaspie act, having been introduced by the Oakland county senator while he was a member of the house. > Rep. Pitkin has introduced his expected bill calling for the death penalty for murder in Michigan. The bill would establish the electric chair method of punishing murderers, but would leave it optional with the sentencing judge whether the penalty would be death or life imprisonment. Another labor measure treasury, but that now the effort is was introduced by Rep. McDonald being made to make this emergency which aims at various amendments to the workmen's compensation bill.

> Rep. Howell, of Saginaw, has introduced a bill to make the lieutenant governor of the state a member of the state administrative board and to pay him a salary of $5,000 a year is the same as that of a member of the legislature, $800 for the regular biennial session.

The house has before it a resolution by Rep. Palmer, of Detroit, to memorialize congress to suspend further federal aid to state road building. Palmer contends that Michigan gives the government $3 in taxes for every $1 it gets for federal road aid.

House members decided to let congress do its own thinking about the proposal of government control of coal mines, voting down Rep. Miles' resolution asking the legisuature to memorialize congress in favor of such government control.
