ORANGES EQUALLY VALUABLE FOR OLDER CHILDREN AND GROWN-UPS

Orange Juice is Excellent for the Kiddies.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Orange juice supplies vitamins and valuable mineral matter necessary for proper growth and physical well being. Physicians now recommend it even for babies because it provides vitamin C, the vitamin in which milk is most likely to be lacking and without which scurvy and other disorders often occur. Oranges are equally valuable for older children and grown-ups, and the United States Department of Agriculture recommends their use at any meal. At breakfast it is usually convenient to serve either the whole fruit or the plain juice, but there are other simple ways of using them that give variety to the meals and do not involve long cooking such as might lessen the value of vitamin C.

Delicious Beverage.

For example, a delicious and nutritious beverage may be made by mixing two-thirds of a glass of juice with the white of one egg beaten to a froth. An orange gelatin dessert also is delicious and easy to make. Allow about 2 1/2 cups of orange juice, which is not heated. Soften one ounce (one-half box or one envelope) of gelatin in half a cup of cold water, mix with one cup of boiling water to dissolve the gelatin thoroughly and add two tablespoonfuls of sugar or more if the orange juice is unusually sour; when the mixture is cool add the juice of half a lemon and the orange juice. Strain into a mold, and set in a cold place to harden. If desired the jelly may be served with plain or whipped cream. Orange jelly made in this way but molded in an orange rind basket is an attractive delicacy to send an invalid. An orange snow may be made of the above mixture and the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Before the gelatin mixture begins to set, beat it gradually into the egg whites, then allow it to cool and set. The egg yolks can be used to make a custard sauce to serve with this dessert instead of cream.

Makes Pleasant Variety.

Oranges introduced into fruit cocktails, fruit salads, or fruit tarts, bring this food increasingly often on the table. A simple layer cake with filling and frosting made of confectioners' sugar and uncooked orange juice is another popular dish that uses a small quantity of the fresh juice. The mother who is anxious to have her family eat oranges as often as possible will think of additional ways in which orange juice can be included in the ordinary diet to give the meals a pleasant variety and a greater food value.

APPROPRIATE DRESS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

All Outer Clothing Should Be Selected From Standpoint of Their Suitability.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All outer clothing, men's and boys' suits and overcoats, women's and girls' suits and topcoats, should be selected from the standpoint of good materials and workmanship, their suitability to the wearer's needs and becomingness of line and color. Careful attention should be given not only to the quality of material but to the general workmanship, cut, fit, manner of finish of seams, pockets, belts and buttonholes—all of which count for service.

Simple one-piece dresses of wool for cold weather and of silk for summer are as suitable for the rural woman when she appears in public at market or meetings as for business women. The advantage of silk in summer is the saving in laundry work. The wearer may further preserve the fresh appearance of the dress throughout the summer by frequent changes of collars and cuffs, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests.

The same type of dress is appropriate also for the afternoon wear of the woman who is at home. For hard work she will probably prefer an inexpensive one that can be washed easily and frequently.

For use with the one-piece dress, a topcoat is necessary. The latter may often need to serve the purpose of everyday and dress wear, in which case it would be wiser to buy a raincoat for use in bad weather, to save wear and tear on the other coat. If one cannot afford both a heavy and a light-weight topcoat, it may be better to buy one of medium weight and depend upon an underjacket or a piece of fur for extra warmth. For general wear some women prefer a topcoat and one-piece dress to a suit. Suits, however, have a legitimate place in the woman's wardrobe, especially when combined with a waist of the same color. A good plan is to alternate the buying of the more expensive garments; for instance, not to buy a topcoat and a suit during the same season.

Blouses and separate waists for women are best made of washable materials, such as voile, batiste, handkerchief linen, crepe de chine, crepe georgette and washable silks, or madras and gingham for hard wear. The cotton materials require more frequent laundering than the crepes. Voile can be worn much longer without pressing than can any of the other cottons. Handkerchief linen is not very satisfactory because it crushes easily. For general wear, the tailored waists made of batiste, crepe de chine, wash silk or broadcloth are especially suitable; simple blouses of sheer materials are also suitable when careful attention is given to detachable linings or to undergarments.

LETTUCE SOUP IS EXCELLENT

Three Foods That Are Sometimes Wasted Can Be Made Into Most Nourishing Dish.

Skim milk, stale bread and the outer leaves of lettuce—three foods that are sometimes wasted—can be made into a nourishing soup. The skim milk is a little richer even than whole milk in protein and, if used undiluted or practically so, as it is in the following recipe, it makes valuable protein dishes. It contains all the lime, too, of the milk.

Lettuce Soup.

1 head lettuce, or 1 large slice stale the equivalent in bread the outer leaves Butter or other fat of lettuce if desired 1 small slice onion Salt and pepper 2 quarts skim milk

Put the lettuce and onion through the meat chopper with the bread to save the juice. Put into a double boiler with the skim milk and cook until the lettuce is soft. To avoid overcooking the milk soften the lettuce in a small amount of the milk and cook the remainder only enough to heat it and to make the soup smooth. Add fat, if desired, and the salt and pepper.

Other green vegetables such as string beans, spinach, asparagus or celery can be used instead of lettuce.

OMELET THAT IS DIFFERENT

Dish for Sunday Supper or Lunch That is Satisfying and is Quite Easily Prepared.

Sunday supper or lunch is a meal which must sometimes be expanded to admit unexpected company. A dish that is satisfying and easily made from materials usually kept on hand is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Peanut-Butter Omelet.

4 tablespoons milk 1 teaspoon salt 6 tablespoons peanut butter 4 eggs

Mix the peanut butter with the milk, add the well-beaten yolks of the eggs, and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Cook the omelet in the usual way, and serve it folded on a hot platter with a cream or tomato sauce.

Never allow grease to burn on the outside of the frying pan. Scour it thoroughly every time it is used.

Hang a curtain rod across a corner of the room you iron in. Place shirts and house dresses on hangers and hang them on the rod. When finished the rod can be taken off hooks and put away.

Add sugar to your apple sauce after it is removed from the stove and it will remain light in color. Sugar cooked with the sauce turns it brown.

DIFFERENT WAYS TO PREPARE VEGETABLES

Special Care Should Be Taken to Preserve Peculiar Characteristic of Each Dish.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Boiling vegetables, although so common and usual a method, is only one of a variety of ways in which they may be prepared for the table.

The method of cooking selected depends somewhat on the place of the vegetable in the menu. A fried vegetable, or one baked in combination with a protein-rich material may be in texture and flavor an excellent substitute for meat.

In general, vegetables should be cooked in small quantities of water to which salt has been added in the proportion of about one teaspoonful to a quart of water.

Some of the delicately flavored vegetables may be cooked by what has been called the "conservation" method. They are cooked slowly and gently in just enough water to prevent them from burning.

The water for cooking vegetables should be boiling when they are put into it. This helps to set the color of some kinds and shortens the time of cooking.

Starchy vegetables should be boiled gently in a covered kettle; green vegetables hold their attractive color better if cooked in an open vessel.

All boiled vegetables should be drained as soon as they are tender. Overcooking is one of the most common mistakes in preparing vegetables for the table.

WHY WETS VOTED FOR CRAMTON

Sent Him to Congress to Get Rid of Him at Home.

Probably there is no man in public life today of whom it can be so truly said that "he is a veteran stump speaker" as of Representative Louis C. Cramton of Michigan.

Representative Cramton is also a living (and successful) illustration of that old quip frequently sarcastically made about members of Congress to the effect that their constituents sent them to Washington because they feared they would do too much damage at home.

Full credit is given to the "big brother" scheme for his notable success in life. His older brother, now a successful business man and prominent figure in Montgomery, Ala., he says, is largely responsible for his career both by suggestion and material aid.

Back in the days not long following the Civil War, when he was about five years of age, Congressman Cramton had his first impressions of public speaking.

In preparing for the picnic the veterans had cut down some trees and they used one of the largest stumps as a platform from which to make their speeches.

Representative Cramton never made but one prepared speech in his life, and that he carefully memorized. It was his "oration" when graduating from high school.

"While I was serving in the Michigan state legislature in 1909 the wet and dry fight which culminated in the constitutional amendment was just started. It was beginning to be a state issue, several counties having gone dry under local option.

"After that I became a candidate for Congress, and mine was a wet district, and on account of my dry activities I was severely handicapped. There was one John Murdock who lived in Huron county, which was particularly wet and threatened to defeat my young ambition to help make the nation's laws.
