Expensive Dairy Barns

Not Requisite for Milk Expensive dairy barns and equipment will probably make dairying more interesting, and increase somewhat the year's total production, but are not a requisite for success. Many great dairy cows have been developed and have produced wonderful records in barns that would not measure up to the standard so far as up-to-date dairy barns go.

Has Anyone Laughed At You By ETHEL R. Because-PEYSER You love to give advice? Advice, unless it's carelessly given, never really hurts. It does you good, because it makes you think of others. Thinking of others always helps the country! There is too little of it. If folks take your advice and it goes wrong it's only you who suffer-and they have you to blame it on! If the advice turns out well-you will probably never hear of it again! You should fret! Let them laugh, if you advise, do your best. SO

PLANTING PEPPERS

OLD-FASHIONED farmers in some sections of the country will assure you that if you want to have your pepper plants do well you should have them set out by a red-headed person. Same thing if you grow the plants from the seed-get a red-haired person to sow the seed. Some say a quick-tempered, irritable person, even if he is not red headed, will do as well. This is a clear case of sympathetic magic applied to agriculture and the application of sympathetic magic to agriculture is not only one of the oldest, if not the very oldest, phases of the mental development of primitive man, but is one which exists in the form of various superstitions all over the world today.

In some parts of Europe the peasants at planting time leap high in the air in the sown fields in order that the crops may grow high; in another a sower of wheat wears a golden ring in order that the grain may have a rich, golden color and a stone, wrapped in a white rag, is placed among the cabbages in order that they may "head up" white and hard; while in Sumatra the rice is sown by women with their hair hanging loose in order that the cereal may grow luxuriantly and have long stalks.

Instances of similar practices might be multiplied almost indefinitely. All are inheritances from the primitive; the persistence of primitive magic into the Twentieth century, subsisting side by side with colleges of agriculture. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This twelve million dollars, raised in taxes and paid directly by individuals who have an income of $4,000 or more, will be also paid, but indirectly, very largely by people whose low income protects them from paying it directly.

Guess this one. If Henry Ford has to pay a whopping big income tax will he collect it back from somebody else? He will. Who will he collect it from? We give you one guess on that. Another tax will be an additional tax. It will be that much more money to spend. If you endeavor to make industry pay all your taxes you will drive industry across the line into some other state, and that will leave that much more tax for you to pay. The gas tax, if enacted, will be paid by every man who drives a car. That gets home at once. The income tax will eventually get back to the ultimate consumer, more indirectly, but none the less sure.

We can safely leave it to the state to raise enough, without our voting an extra one.

This proposed tax wouldn't hit the writer directly, but we know we would find our share of it in every invoice of paper and ink, and every vo-
