ACTIVITIES OF COMMENCEMENT WEEK ARE MANY AND DE-LIGHTFUL OCCASIONS.

"The glow of youth in every life is the light of God that lighteth every one coming into the world," said Rev. I. W. Cargo at the baccalaureate service of the Class of '24 of Cass City high school at the M. E. church Sunday evening. "This glow may be nourished into a flame, or it may be put July 11. out with heaps of rubbish. and Stripes mean to you and to me to be brought home to us with particular emphasis.

In the feverish haste of this modern life we are all apt to accept with easy complacency the many unusual benefits that accrue to us as units of the most enlightened and the greatest nation in the world, of which the flag is the ever present symbol.

While other nations are tottering and falling, while anarchy, unrest and despair are gripping the hearts and minds of the citizens of less fortunate countries, we of this grand United States are blessed beyond measure with glorious freedom and untold and unlimited advantages and opportunities.

To be a real American, each one of us must fully understand and appreciate his Government and his Flag.

It is impossible for us to assume these duties of citizenship unless we ourselves are permeated with the splendid traditions of the noble Flag that is ours. The honor and integrity of the United States are in the hands of its citizens, and, recognizing this unassailable fact, let this Flag Day in the year of grace, 1924, mark for each a reconsecration to the highest motives of service to our great country. Then nothing can ever dim the glory of this proud flag of ours nor can it prevent our upward march to the attainment of the highest aspirations in national life and unity.

THE BONUS IS YOURS—KEEP IT!

The men who are to receive a cash bonus under the measure recently passed by congress will soon find that 'experts" are on their trail who will claim to know all about how to get the money and get it quickly. The proper way to treat such fellows is to tell them, rather forcefully, to go to blazes. "Expert" advice at so much per advice will not be necessary. The rest of our advice is for those who will not receive the cash bonus but the insurance policy. Experts will besiege you on this point as well. Pay no attention to them. If you get snarled up, it will be a lot better to go to the office of the veterans' bureau, brush aside the fellows hanging around the door and go to the desk and settle the matter yourself. That way you won't have to give any percentage to anybody. The "expert" is not interested in what you get. He be interested only in what he gets: Beware of him!

You can also write your congressman, who will help you untangle any snarls that may develop.

All beneficiaries should beware of the fellow who has discovered some way to make forty per cent on your money. Look out for the fellow who is trying to sell you what he calls gilt-edged stock. He is playing you for a sucker. If you must invest your money, go to a reputable banker and get his advice. His advice usually is better than that even of a friend, who may, after all, know as little about it as you do yourself. If your payment completed it has been announced takes the form of an insurance policy, think it over for a long time before you decide to part with it. And especially be wary of the fellow who claims to know all about doubling it

Ö, 19*2*3, by Laura Miller "MANY A MICKLE MAKES A MUCKLE"

If Old-Lady Fortune ever provided you with an automobile headed 'way south on the Dixie highway, you dis covered a clean white-and-green town which set you to wondering who had a hand in making Orlando, Fla., un-

Well, one of the makers, who yet insists that her part is only a minor one, is named Julia Chapman. It's the spirit she's put into her two jobs rather than the size of her bank account that you find yourself interested in. For she sells tickets in the railroad station and insurance and loans on those white Orlando houses. Those sound like unexciting occupations to carry on in the home town, don't they? Unlikely to bring success or fame or even contentment?

Miss Chapman developed the habit of doing the little things to the best of her ability. As just one result, the card of her insurance company now carries in the upper right-hand corner, "Julia K. Chapman, Sec. and Treas."

Orlando, a village when little Julia Chapman, twelve years old, was orphaned, as a winter resort now attracts thousands of tourists. Miss Chapman sees in her ticket office work not a monotonous, hateful job, but a chance to help all who enter the office; an opportunity to take especial care of the great number of the white haired who come hunting sunshine to warm old bones or to cure deep-seated old-age diseases.

She must have made a pleasant memory in the minds of many of the 10,000 who annually pass her window. For she has discovered that all over the United States have spread stories of the efficiency of her office.

The war crystallized this reputa tion. Uncle Sam, through the railroad administration, beckoned a lean finger at Julia Chapman and said, "I need A ticket sellers' school for young women was established at Atlanta. Miss Chapman trained the girls to help win the war by selling railroad tickets—not just any way, but Julia Chapman's way.

Whatever success and recognition have come, she feels, are based on the fact that "I have made good in the town I've lived in since I was nine vears old. A young woman in a Florida town has great advantages she could not find in a strange city. Here she can grow and expand as the town

Combination Corn Crib and Feeding Floor Is Efficient

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer ends by double sliding doors. There are four cribs, two on each side of the questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor. Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Hogs and corn are a logical farm combination. Generally the prices of the two farm products are such that a opening between each piece of lumber farmer gets a higher price for his corn for air and ventilation. At the same by marketing it "on the hoof." When time the rain and snow is kept out. this is done storage space for the grain is necessary so that the corn as the building and slightly less in will be available for daily feeding.

To handle this work efficiently there has been devised and put into general the ground and held in place by stakes. use on many corn-belt farms a combination corn crib and feeding floor, such as is shown in the accompanying flustration. The corn is stored in the building, usually located in the hog lot or immediately adjoining it. At or three parts of sand is about the right located in the hog lot or immediately adjoining it. Garden Near Kitchen Is Saver of Many Steps

"Much has been said, and much has been written regarding the saving of steps in the kitchen, but very little has been done about the saving of steps in the garden," says J. H. Burdett of National Garden bureau. "This is a point you should remember in planning for your vegetable garden.

"For the sake of the family cook, who will have to gather the early vegetables, such as radishes, onions, lettuce and early spinach, in the rain or heat, a good deal of the time, such a bed of vegetables should be as close to the kitchen door as is consistent with the appearance and layout of the garden. Following the same line of reasoning, the vegetables most commonly used, as well as the early spring vegetables, should be planted near the kitchen door.

"Asparagus" and rhubarb, etc., being permanent, should be placed where they will least interfere with the other plants and general efficiency. They cannot be planted with other vegetables, and for this reason should be at one side of the garden, and most distant from the house. The tall vegetables, such as corn, pole beans and tomatoes will make it difficult to gather the other vegetables if placed in the middle of the garden. They should be placed at the side or in the back, and will be valuable in forming a background."

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

GOING TO CHURCH

WAS brought up to go to church. Sometimes we drove three and a half miles from our house to the village; sometimes if the horses were tired or over-worked we walked. The weather made little difference; if it was cold we bundled up : if it rained we crouched under huge cotton umbrellas.

Our shoes were all shined on Satur- ty. day night, our Sunday clothes carefully laid out, our bodies made fit and proper for the Sunday service. There was never any discussion as to whether we should or should not go to church. Going to church was like going to school; it was a foregone conmost habits of youth, it still persists and the reward is worth while.

Wagner did not go to church last Sunday though it has been his custom to do so regularly at home. He is, in fact, a member of the church and looked upon somewhat as a leader in religious matters in his home community. He explained the omission was too busy. The unfamiliar and exacting duties of a new life had taken his time and required his attention.

He had in fact, however, been out rather late on Friday night at a party; Saturday afternoon he had gone riding with some friends who had a car in town, and Saturday night he had been at a smoker and later had attended the second show at the Park. It was late when he got to bed and late when he awakened in the morning. After he got up, he sat around half dressed until dinner was ready.

His real reason for not going to church was not that he was busy but that he was a little lazy and just-a little afraid, not knowing the boys in the house, that it might not be the popular thing to do. He waited for someone to make the start or the suggestion and no one did. He did not have quite the courage to admit that will, perhaps, not go to church next

Church is a good habit. It turns one's mind away from the daily routine, it calls his attention to higher ideals, it emphasizes his duty to God. It strengthens his character and wards off temptation, and offers an opportunity for service. It is a habit learned early or seldom learned at all

YOUNG CALVES LIKE

GRAIN GROUND FINE

The kind and amount of grain fed a young calf has much to do with its vigor and growth. Most calves will get interested in the grain box when two or three weeks old. Grain is a cheaper feed than whole milk so the calf should be encouraged to eat it at an early age.

About the time the change is made from whole milk to skim milk, some grain should be placed before the calf. If grain is left in the feed box all the time, it is likely to become their best to keep it so by giving it homes. stale. Calves will begin to eat small quantities of hay about the time they take an interest in the grain. For calves eight to ten weeks old, red clover or mixed hay is recommended in preference to alfalfa hay, due to the latter often causing intestinal trouble. Legume hays are very palatable and contain a large amount of protein and mineral matter which are necessary for growing animals.

Good quality corn silage may be fed when the calf is three months old or older. Only the finer parts of fresh silage should be fed. Do not allow it to lie around in the manger until Cows kept in box stalls produce more milk and slightly more butterfat than those kept in stanchions, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, but the slight increase in product does not balance the added regardless of expense, as in testing cows for records.

The farmer ought not to object to a request for a credit statement from his banker when negotiatdifficult to prepare when the farmer keeps records. The farmer who does not keep records is not doing business in a business-like way and is not entitled to the same consideration as the man who does.

For instance, loans to farmers for the purchase of well selected highgrade livestock constitute one of the most effective ways of financing the farmer and helping him to make a financial success of his business. In making these loans, the banker can well inquire as to whether the farmer has adequate housing facilities and plenty of the right kind of feeds before the investment is made.

If the banker is to encourage farmers in investments of this kind, he should have a hand in protecting these smallpox situation at the investments. It is to the advantage cluding fire and lightning, and if need justified in making an investment in dairy cows that have not been care-

The underlying principles of a profitable loan or investment need to be carefully considered by all parties interested. Two heads are better than one, and when two or more men get together in sympathetic contact, determined to weigh the various possibilities of success and failure, and then act upon their united judgment, then the farmer is well financed.

TELLS BANKERS TO ADVERTISE

There is no greater medium of education in our daily life than the newspaper, and, of all mediums offered for newspapers reach the innermost circles of our population in the most widespread manner, Motley H. Flint, Los Angeles banker, told the conference of the Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association, held there recently.

"Advertising, one of man's modern selling forces, has found a fixed place in the banking field," Mr. Flint said. This, too, in the face of dire predictions of many old-time bankers, who once ridiculed the idea that advertising could be applied to the selling of a service so intangible as that offered by banking institutions. The time was that a bank was satisfied with pubishing its statement of condition. That day has been relegated to the

"There has been a gratifying response on the part of the public in this new appeal. From it has grown a better understanding by our people of banks and their functions. Where a bank account formerly was the exception it is now the rule. Surely this can be attributed principally to the fact that bankers have come out of their shells and, through advertising, have induced people generally to come into their institutions and learn more about the beneficial services banks have to offer. This can be shown in no better way than by the marvelous growth in savings accounts.

"Astounding sums are being invested annually in bank and financial advertising. I say 'invested' advisedly. It is not merely being spent; it is invested. It is invested for various reasons, and not the least of these is for the purpose of keeping the name of our banks before the people, accom panied by a bit of bank education."
