

TUSCOLA STUDENTS WIN FIRST HONORS

MAURICE DAILEY TAKES FIRST PLACE IN ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Ruth Brainerd of Vassar Is Chosen of Judges for Honors in Declamations.

The oratorical and declamatory contests of the second sub-district, which includes Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties, were held at the Cass City high school Friday afternoon, March 27. Twelve students representing the schools of Vassar, Bad Axe, Gagetown, Crosswell, Sandusky and Cass City competed for honors.

Roy Phillips, a graduate of the Cass City high school of 1906 but now superintendent of the Crosswell schools, presided very ably. He explained the system and divisions for the contests and also humorously referred to his high school days.

The oratorical contest was first on the afternoon's program. Maurice Dailey, representing Cass City, won first place with high honors. Orations are judged as to delivery, thought and composition and Mr. Dailey received four firsts out of a possible six places, which is considered an exceedingly high mark for a student to obtain.

The title of his discourse was "The Modern Pace." Other contestants and the rating given them by the judges were as follows:

Second place—Frances Moore, Crosswell, on "Crime Prevention."
Third place—Mary Katherine Slate, Sandusky, on "America's Needs."
Fourth place—Robert Braylock, Vassar, on "Constitutional Government."
Fifth place—Mary C. Brewster, Bad Axe, on "The Superiority of Christianity in World History."

Sixth place—Georgia Munro, Gagetown, on "The Constitution."
Cass City was also honored during the declamatory contest, being awarded second place. Its representative was Ethel Wager, who gave "Intervention in Cuba" by Thurston. Ethel's schoolmates and other friends are very proud of her for this splendid achievement, being so young in years.

The result of this contest which was judged for delivery only was as follows:
First place—Ruth Brainerd of Vassar, with "Intervention in Cuba" by Thurston.
Second place—Ethel Wager of Cass City with "Intervention in Cuba" by Thurston.

Third place—Helen Bauslaugh of Crosswell, with "Children of the Gloom" by Clement Thomas.
Fourth place—Aileen Ziehm of Gagetown with "Intervention in Cuba" by Thurston.

Fifth place—Kathryn Utley of Sandusky with "The Duties of the Republic" by Judge Story.
Sixth place—Lenore Burns of Bad Axe with "Message to Garcia" by Elbert Hubbard.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Horatio Gotts

Mrs. Horatio Gotts died very suddenly at her home in Elkland township early Sunday morning at the age of 44 years. She had been in Cass City Saturday night and returned to her home three miles northeast of town at a late hour. Shortly before two o'clock, she was taken ill and passed away within a half hour.

Fannie McIntosh was born Oct. 3, 1880, at Dresden, Ontario. She came to Huron county, Michigan, with her parents in 1894 and was united in marriage with Horatio Gotts in Grant township on Jan. 1, 1902. They made their home in Lake township for 12 years, in Hume township for 3 years, and came to Elkland township in 1916 where they have since resided. Four children were born to them, one preceding the mother in death.

Funeral services were held at the residence Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Wm. Grice of Crosswell, a pastor of the L. D. S. church to which faith Mrs. Gotts was an adherent.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Gotts leaves three children, Hannah and Clayton at home and Thomas of Detroit; six brothers, Wm. McIntosh of Chatham, Ont., Fred McIntosh of Saskatchewan, Chas. McIntosh of Flint, Marcus McIntosh of Thayer, Kansas, Roy McIntosh of Greenleaf township and Merritt McIntosh of Detroit; and three sisters, Mrs. Abbie Moran of Detroit, Mrs. Etta Duffield of Detroit and Mrs. Harmon Endersbee of Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Moulton and children, Maxine and William, of Caro visited at the home of Mrs. Mary J. Gemmill Sunday.

WILLIAMS-WARD NUPTIALS.

A very pretty wedding took place in Detroit at the Whitefield M. E. church on Saturday, March 28, when Anna Thelma, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Williams of Greenleaf township, and Wm. Henry Ward, son of John R. Ward, of Ewart, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. A. Yeoman at two o'clock.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Thomas of Detroit. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white althym crepe with a corsage bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid wore a beautiful dress of peach taffeta trimmed with white Spanish over-lace. The groom wore a becoming suit of blue worsted.

Immediately after the ceremony the party proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McKee, where a bounteous repast was served to 12 guests at 6:30.

On Monday, the young couple motored to the bride's home, where a chicken dinner was served to 18 guests at eight o'clock.

Wednesday, they left for Ewart to spend their honeymoon at the groom's home. They will be at home to their many friends at the home of Arden Williams after April 10.

Large Number Hear Mrs. Hunter

A large number of ladies attended the "open meeting" of the Woman's Study club held at the pretty and spacious home of Mrs. Edward Pinner Tuesday evening. Guests included local organizations of women and clubs from neighboring towns.

Following the business session of the local club, Mrs. I. D. McCoy opened the program with a beautiful piano solo thus contributing a great amount of pleasure to the evening's entertainment. She kindly responded to an encore.

Mrs. A. J. Knapp, first vice president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, then presented Mrs. George G. Hunter of St. Johns, president of the same organization, as the speaker. Mrs. Knapp's introduction was very clever and given in her usual pleasant way.

Mrs. Hunter gave a wonderfully inspiring address urging the ladies to work for better citizenship, better homes and better individuals. She has a very pleasing personality and is intensely interested in the task allotted to her.

Mrs. J. E. Wurm of Sebawaing, chairman of club extension work in the east central district, Mrs. Kellogg, president of the Sebawaing Woman's club, and Mrs. Geo. A. Jeffrey, president of the Kingston Woman's club were called upon and responded briefly.

At the close of the meeting the program committee served light refreshments.

Both Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Knapp were presented with corsage bouquets.

Only One Bidder for D., B. C. & W.

A. Russell Mills of Chicago, representing some of the largest creditors, was the only person to submit a bid for the property of the Detroit, Bay City & Western railroad, at the public sale of the property Saturday morning at Bay City.

A dozen or more bidders, chiefly representatives of wrecking concerns, were present but got into a row among themselves over whether bids were to be open or sealed and finally all refused to bid.

Mr. Mills' bid was $200,000, the minimum price fixed by the court in the order of sale, and it is subject to confirmation by the court April 6. Several of the other bidders intimated that they would submit their bids to the court prior to the date set for confirmation of the sale.

Coming Auctions

Jas. A. Whale has decided to leave Cass City for Colorado Springs, Colorado, and will sell his household goods at auction tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, 2 blocks north of the Presbyterian church. R. N. McCullough is the auctioneer. Mr. Whale and family expect to leave Tuesday for Colorado Springs where he will be associated in business with his son, Charles.

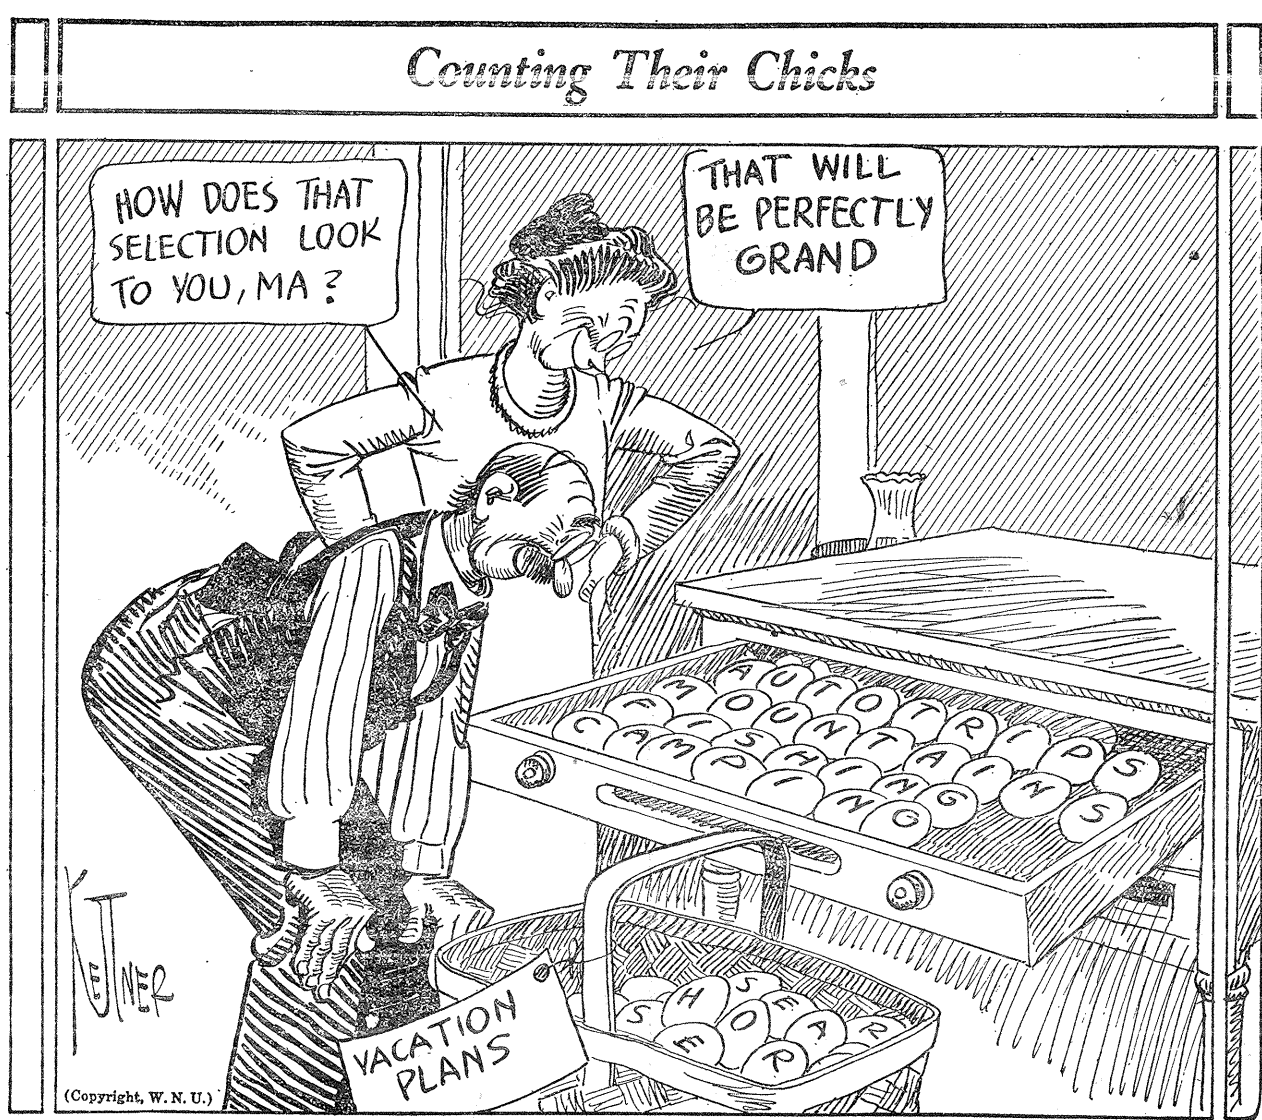

Owing to ill health, Ross Bears will sell his entire herd of high grade Holstein cattle at auction 1/2 mile east and 2 miles south of Gagetown on Tuesday, April 7, with R. N. McCullough conducting the sale.

The Harry T. Crandell herd of choice thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle will be sold at the James Brackenbury feed barn at Cass City on Wednesday, April 8. R. N. McCullough is the auctioneer.

On Wednesday, Apr. 8, Ray Toohy will sell live stock and nearly new farm machinery at auction 2 miles west of Gagetown. L. S. McElldowney is the auctioneer.

The four sales mentioned above are advertised in detail on page 6.

W. W. Auslander, having sold his mercantile business at Shabbona, will

Brooker's Trials Spectacular Feature

(From Detroit Free Press).

A noteworthy set of records for future contestants to shoot at was the by-product of the Michigan-Cornell in-door track meet at Ann Arbor Saturday night in which the Wolverines marched away with a victory, scoring 64 5-6 points to Cornell's 30 1-6.

The records top the list for the Yost Field House, the meet being the first intercollegiate competition at Ann Arbor.

Sprinters will have to do better than world's record time to erase the name of DeHart Hubbard from the title-holders' chart. The fleet Michigan star raced over 60 yards in 6 1-5 seconds, tying the existing world in-door mark.

Captain Brooker vaulting over the bar at 13 feet 1 1/4 inches was the other outstanding performer of the meet. The mark is only a fraction of an inch from the world's indoor record held by Dean Brownell, Illinois vaulter.

Brooker's trials for a world's record were among the most spectacular of the events at the dual meet. The Michigan champion twice was over the bar at 13 feet 1 1/4 inches, brushing it off both times on his arch. His mark of 13 feet 1 1/4 inch made in the competition, however, is not apt to be displaced for some time.

The performance of Hicks in the mile run also will be a goal for the future competitors. Hicks covered the distance in 4 minutes 26 9-10 seconds. This is five seconds faster than Arnold, of Ohio state, ran to place first in the conference meet this year.

Cornell's mile relay team, eight seconds faster than the Chicago team that took the Big Ten title this season, also hung up a note-worthy record. The time, 3 minutes and 28 2-10 seconds, is expected to last a few seasons in the Field House chart.

County Eradication of TB of Cattle

Each supervisor of Tuscola county will endeavor to get the sentiment of the voters of his township at the "town meeting" next Monday, April 6, on the question of county eradication of tuberculosis of cattle.

The cost to the county of this work is based on the number of cattle at the rate of 25 cents per head and would amount to approximately $10,000 per year in Tuscola county. This sum would have to be raised for at least two years and possibly for three years. Based on valuation this would mean a tax of 30 cents for each $1,000 valuation.

Should Tuscola decide now to have the work done it would probably be at least two years before work could be started as 23 counties are on the waiting list. If favorable action is not taken at this time it will mean just that much longer delay because other counties are being placed on the waiting list. It is estimated that approximately 2 1/2 per cent of the cattle of Tuscola county are tubercular. This is comparatively a small percentage as the infection is as high as 60 per cent in some sections of other states.

If testing is done under the county plan both State and Federal indemnity is paid. Only state indemnity is paid under any other plan. State indemnity amounts to 50 per cent of the appraised value but appraisals are limited to $60 for a grade animal and $120 for a purebred animal. The Federal government pays one-third of the difference between what is received for the carcass and the appraisal. For example: Suppose a grade reactor was appraised at $60 and the carcass brought $12. The state indemnity would be $30. The Federal indemnity would be one-third of $48 (the difference between $60 and $12) or $16. The owner would receive $44.

Union Services of Passion Week

Local churches have arranged for a series of union services for Passion Week.

The first service will be held at the Baptist church next Sunday evening. The following evening service will also be held in that church.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the M. E. church.

On Thursday and Friday evenings and on Friday afternoon from two to three o'clock at the Presbyterian church.

On Sunday evening, Apr. 12, at the Evangelical church.

According to previous custom, business places will be asked to close on Good Friday from 12:00 m. to 3:00 p. m.

McDowell Writes from Gold Mining Camp

(From Detroit Free Press).

A. P. McDowell, a former Cass City publisher, writes from Stewart, British Columbia:

"I wonder if your readers would be interested in a few lines from this mining camp, in Canada, but so near the edge that it is only an easy before-breakfast walk into Alaska? I am here to relieve a printer who thought that after six years here, he was entitled to a holiday. My home is still in Victoria, but if you think anything contained herein is of sufficient interest you are quite welcome to use what you choose.

"As to weather, upon arrival here on February 19, I found something like three feet of snow on the level and am told that it is the lightest snowfall they have had for five years. The temperature for a few mornings has been about eight to fifteen above zero, but a good deal of the time it has been either raining or snowing, but sufficiently warm that the snow has diminished quite rapidly and it is doubtful if there is now more than a foot and a half. It does not follow, however, that there will be no more snow, as sometimes heavy snowfalls come late in March.

"The location of Stewart is at the head of the Portland Canal, a wide deep arm of the Pacific ocean, running northeasterly from near Prince Rupert, the location of which you will know, about one hundred miles into the heart of the mountains, and providing access for deep sea vessels thus far, which is quite necessary if the mineral wealth hereabouts is to be utilized.

"I understand that as far back as 1899 mining claims were recorded in this district, but development has been rather slow. There was something of a boom about 1910, but development was naturally retarded when the war came on, and even now there is only one mine in the district that can be considered a big shipper of ore. That one is the Premier, about fifteen miles from this town, where some 300 men are now employed and some 4,500 tons of ore are shipped each week. The ore is conveyed to the storage sheds at the water front by means of an aerial tram a distance of 11 1/2 miles, the carriers with about 200 pounds each of ore passing in at intervals of two or three minutes. Boys' Books.

"His Dog" by Albert Payson Terhune—The true dog story that every boy loves.

"Lochinvar Luck" by Albert Payson Terhune—More stories of Bobby the Collie told in Terhune's fascinating way and based on real facts about his own dogs.

"Dogs and Men" by Ansell—In which the men come out the worse for the comparison.

Girls' Books.

"Babs at College" by Alice R. Colver—"Babs at Home" by Alice R. Colver—Two more books in the interesting Babs series.

"Glenlock Girls Club" by Grace Remick and "Glenlock Girls at Camp West" by Grace Remick—Two last books of the Glenlock Series and the most enjoyable books for children in primary grades.

"The Colonial Twins of Virginia" by Perkins—The most recent book by Miss Perkins which gives the little folks a splendid idea of American colonial life—a most charming book for children of this age.

Here is a list of twelve new books which are of interest to our readers of all ages. The committee is glad to know of your desires in regard to new books and urge you to avail yourself of an opportunity to keep informed on the latest fiction. The "World's Work" is also available to subscribers. One dollar a year gets a membership card and you may take one fiction and one classic each week. Special short term memberships are given to school pupils. Start a regular course of reading next Wednesday. The library is in the Schenck & Wood building, next to Miss DeWitt's office and is open from three o'clock until five every Wednesday.

NOT SENT TO LEAVENWORTH.

In a recent issue of the Chronicle, an article was published regarding the sentencing of Peter Bulla, an Austin township farmer, to Leavenworth for a year when he was found guilty in Federal district court at Detroit on a charge of violation of the prohibition law. It appears that the item regarding Leavenworth was an error.

No Federal prisoners are admitted there with sentences which do not exceed one year. Bulla is serving time at the Detroit House of Correction, being admitted there on March 16. Under the terms of his sentence, if his fine is paid and he merits the allowance of the good time of five days per month, he should be discharged from that institution on Jan. 15, 1926.

Recent Additions to Study Club Library

It is the plan of the library committee to add a few of the best recent books each month and the following list are the new books added since Jan. 1st:

"Madame Clare" by Susan Ertz—A novel of majestic serenity, splendid character sketches and a fine comparison of the old and new standards of society. In every way it is a delightful book.

"The Little French Girl"—One of the finest studies of English and French life and character. The little French girl is sent to England in quest of a suitable marriage that her

STANDARD GRADING OF BEANS LIKELY

The department of agriculture announces that a hearing will be held in Lansing, April 24 and 25 on the proposal to adopt standards and a system of inspection for beans. This proposal is being bitterly opposed by the Michigan Bean Jobbers' Assn., which recently sent representatives to Washington to protest it. Some of the bean growers of the state have sent letters to the department favoring the proposed grading.

Tales of Thumb Tersely Told

Marlette sold 300 season tickets for their lyceum course this season.

A movement is on foot in Decker-ville to revive the Decker-ville fair.

Albert Rhody, Capac postmaster, has resigned to accept a position with the Standard Oil Company. Candidates for postmastership are backward in coming forward.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Wurm moved from Pigeon to Sebawaing last week where they will make their home in the future. Mr. Wurm is now devoting his attention to the Ford business in Sebawaing which he purchased some time ago. Mr. and Mrs. Wurm during the many years they resided in Pigeon always took an active interest in the social affairs of the town.

The Michigan Electric Power Co. has made an offer of $7,500 for the equipment of the Pigeon electric plant. The offer has been accepted by the village council subject to confirmation by the voters of the village at a special election when the proposition to grant the Michigan Electric Power Co. a 30-year franchise will also be decided.

Four children, the eldest five years old, were rescued from the blazing home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bates, Jr., 3 1/2 miles west of Vassar Wednesday when fire swept the structure in the absence of their parents. The house valued at $5,000 and its contents are a total loss, only partly covered by insurance. Neighbors rescued the children and salvaged the piano.

S. S. CLASS VISITS ANN ARBOR

SEE JAMES BROOKER, FELLOW
TOWNSMAN, WIN POLE VAULT EVENT.

M. B. Auten Is Host to Dozen Boys
Who See Sights of the University City.

Twelve members of the class of M. B. Auten of the Presbyterian Sunday School were guests of their instructor at the annual dual meet of the Michigan and Cornell universities which was held in Ann Arbor Saturday. While all events proved interesting to the Cass City boys, the pole vault contest proved doubly attractive to them because James Brooker, a Cass City young man, was a participant and the winner.

Mr. Brooker, who is captain of the University of Michigan team, and conceded to be the winner of the pole vaulting event, found stiff competition in Bontecou of Cornell. Both men vaulted until they had the bar at 13 feet 1/4 inch. Brooker all but made this height on his first time, the bar dropping when he scarcely touched. He made the height on his third attempt. Bontecou failed to get up on his third. This distance is within 1/4 inch of the world's indoor record. Michigan swamped Cornell at Saturday's meet, the final score being 64 5-6 to 30 1-6.

While in Ann Arbor the Sunday School class visited the Lawyers' club building, the Waterman gymnasium, the new U. of M. hospital, the University power plant, the Hill auditorium, the Michigan Union, the museum and University library, and the fraternity of which James Brooker is a member.

Supper was served to the company at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Agar, former Cass City residents.

Members of the class who made the trip were Maurice Dailey, Richard Schenck, Kenneth Striffler, Leo Hutchinson, Stuart Wilsey, Elmer Flint, George Cole, Harland Bond, Donald McLachlan, Clark Knapp, Garrison Moore and John Benkelman, all of whom are either senior or junior high school students. Mr. Auten, Walter Mann and I. D. McCoy drove the three cars to the University city.

State Highway Commissioner—Republican, Frank F. Rogers; Democratic, Henry McCarthy; Prohibition, George B. Stickle; Worker's Party, Hugo Burman.

Pioneer Editors of the Thumb

J. A. Menzies, publisher of the Yale Expositor, has rounded out his 43rd year in service with the newspaper of that city. He has seen the town, first known as Brockway Center, grow from a place of 300 to a city of 2,000 souls and has witnessed many changes in its business activities.

"Although a newspaper may not receive many words of encouragement," says Mr. Menzies, "or many pats on the back, as one might put it, during the years of its existence, still we realize that it is a thing just taken for granted, like a school or a church and the community would be lost without it."

The Unionville Crescent celebrated the completion of its 33rd year last week. While the Crescent is not the oldest business enterprise of Unionville, its editor, Harry F. Walker, is the oldest business representative of the village, having been in active business in Unionville longer than any of its present business men.

Bamboo's Short Life

Most species of bamboo live for from four to thirty years, bear a single crop of seeds at the end of that time, and then die back to the roots.

OBITUARY.

George W. Rose died at his home at Argyle, Mich., March 21. The deceased was born at Redmonelle, Ont., June 20, 1843, and was united in marriage to Martha Buchner of Delhi, Ont., June 17, 1874. In 1881 Mr. and Mrs. Rose moved from Delhi, Ontario, to their farm near Argyle, Mich., where they resided until Mr. Rose's death.

To this union were born nine children, two preceding the father in death.

Funeral services were conducted from the M. E. church at Argyle. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Willerton, assisted by Rev. J. B. Sluyter. Interment was made in Elkland cemetery.

Mr. Rose leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, four sons, Edd of Argyle, Evans of Caro and Howard and Harry of Detroit, three daughters, Mrs. J. Pratt of Pt. Huron, and Mrs. H. McBurney and Mrs. G. E. Gekeler of Cass City and two brothers, P. E. Rose of Chicago and C. Rose of Ontario.

COUNTY ERADICATION OF TB OF CATTLE

Concluded from first page.

Accompanying this article is a map which shows the present status of county eradication of tuberculosis of cattle.

A few facts concerning this work are:

The boards of supervisors of 49 counties in Michigan have appropriated funds to co-operate in this work, and an intensive campaign covering the state as rapidly as possible is the cheapest way to control and eradicate this disease.

Tuberculosis of animals is communicable to human beings.

The annual loss to the farmers of the United States because of tuberculosis is between 40 and 50 million dollars.

Milk from tuberculosis cows (unless pasteurized) is dangerous.

A large per cent of the hogs of Michigan have tuberculosis which is contracted from cows and chickens.

From 10 to 20 per cent of the poultry flocks in Tuscola county are infected with T. B.

Twenty-seven per cent of the cattle of Michigan were tested last year with only a 2.2 per cent reaction.

Twenty-nine per cent of all the cattle tested in an eastern state were found to be infected.

Cattle cannot be shipped into any county where the testing work is in progress unless they are tested before being shipped.

The test becomes compulsory if the work is started on a county wide plan. Seventy trainloads of 40 cars each of hogs and cattle are condemned for tuberculosis at five of the largest packing centers every year.

A large per cent of tuberculous children contracted the disease from milk of tuberculous cows.

The tuberculous cow is the greatest source of danger to healthy cattle, and inasmuch as it can not be determined just when that animal becomes a "spreader" of the germs, unless daily microscopic tests are made of the discharges from the body, and the milk is also examined microscopically, it is unsafe to keep it with healthy cattle.

No cattle from outside sources should be introduced into a healthy herd until they have been tuberculin tested and found free from the disease. Unquestionably more healthy cattle acquire tuberculosis by coming into contact with affected animals than in any other way.

An effort is being made just now to make our divorce laws more stringent. They may be weak in some cases, but "Woe to the law that binds an angel to an ox."

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Patch of Detroit came up Saturday and went home Sunday and reported the roads good.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Connell, who have been in Detroit for past two years or more, have returned to their farm on Sec. 34, Novesta.

The street lights give general satisfaction as far as we can learn.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Silverthorn and daughter of Caro called at the Ben Gage and Geo. Spencer homes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Webster spent Thursday of last week at Oxford visiting her daughter, who accompanied them home and remained until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Gage and daughter, Bernice, spent Sunday at the Elisha Randall home.

George Halley, son of John Halley, who lived on sec. 10, Kingston, many years ago, is dead at Camp Custer hospital. George was in the World War and never regained his health after his return. Funeral arrangements not yet made.

Our dogs have gained in flesh since the restraining law was in force. Roderick Kennedy won't be home 'till last part of April.

Long ago when a man did work on Sunday and was flagged for his conduct he answered in a half joking way, "The better the day, the better the deed." It would seem that Germany has taken us in earnest, for they hold Presidential election on Sunday. We hope 'tis a safeguard against error.

Our new barber will take possession of the house last day of March. The new razor stropper comes from Columbusville, well recommended.

It is necessary to offend a man at times because he is ignorant of our laws. Not long since we flagged a high toner, who was ranting and swearing at our officials because our laws were not enforced. Asked if he did not know there was a law against swearing, he said, "No, there is no such law," and he bet a horse. Now how many there are who violate our laws of state every day and don't know it.

Time this appears in print, we gaze into new faces of barber and garage man.

Funeral of William Courliss of Caro was held here on the 25th. Remains were buried in Novesta cemetery. Deceased was a G. A. R. man and about 78 years old. He leaves his widow and a brother, Clark Courliss, of Sec. 34, Novesta.

A. J. Surprenant, who has been our garage man for two years past, left Saturday to the regret of all. He takes with him the good wishes of both Jew and Gentile. His children are at Cass City, and by taking a position with G. A. Tindale, he will be more with them.

Elisha Allen is spending this week in Deford.

Mrs. Frank McCracken of Highland Park came here past week to attend the funeral of her uncle, Wm. Courliss, and call on friends.

There must be a boy before the man and the boy must pass through the "fool age." So with the village before the city. When a village is just large enough that half of her people have no business of their own and are determined to attend to some other man's business, then like the boy, the town is in its "fool age." If it passes the ordeal and lives, it will prosper but it is liable to get overloaded with gossip germs and become stunted. Every small town needs a common-sense tonic to keep it healthy.

A father and son banquet will be served at the Deford M. E. church in the near future with Dr. Littlejohn as the speaker of the evening.

R. D. Lewis has recovered from eye trouble to be able to deal out cinnamon and spices again.

Lloyd Osburn leaves the barber shop after a steady work of one and one-half years.

The roller skating amusement seems to have great attraction for youngsters at present.

Mrs. Alice Curtis is growing young on surprises. She has had two good ones in past three weeks. Last one came on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Case of Detroit, son-in-law and daughter, Bert Curtis, her son of Oxford, and her daughter, Florence, of Flint, all filed in without warning. Had eatables and a birthday cake for the lady with 70 candles. Mrs. Bert Curtis' 32nd birthday came on same date and Bert had a cake for her also. That made 102 candles all burning at same time at Mrs. Curtis' home Sunday evening. Bert carried the two cakes and frames and 102 candles on his lap from Oxford without breaking a candle. Didn't he do well when you consider the size of the little fellow?

CARO CHICKS

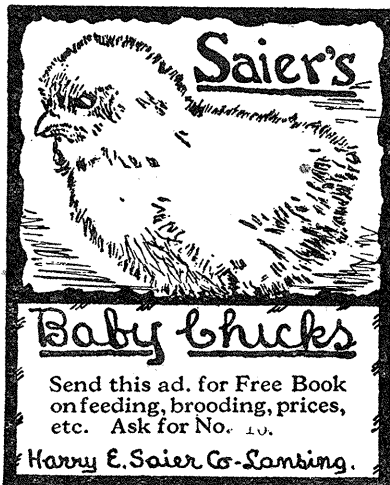

CONSTITUTIONALLY STRONG. ABLE TO PRODUCE. REPRESENTATIVE TYPE. OUTSTANDING UNIFORMITY.

This is made possible thru the careful selection and mating we practice. The proofs of the merits of our chicks are in the way they are sold again to many last year's customers. Don't be fooled buying chicks from picked up eggs from unknown ancestry. Just one or two more eggs laid in winter will pay the difference between our chicks and the cheapest that you can buy. We can tell you exactly the quality of the stock we hatch and you would be surprised to know you can find this kind of stock so close to home. We do not want you to feel that you are under any obligations when you visit the Hatchery and inquire as to our stock and your requirements. We take pleasure in giving this information. Our references as to our reliability are the very best. We should receive your order now, even though it is for a very late delivery, as we can then assure you of filling your order. Miss Bernice Miller returned to Detroit Saturday after spending the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Geo. Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Larrue and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chafer of Midland were guests at the R. C. Rogers home Sunday.

Mrs. R. H. Orr and son, Bobby, of Pigeon visited at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Striffler, on Wednesday.

The W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. G. A. Striffler this (Friday) afternoon. The annual election of officers will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Holmes and daughter, Doris, returned Sunday to their home here. Mr. Holmes spent the past week interviewing instructors for the local school next year.

Herbert and Lorne Gallagher of Shelburne, Ontario, returned to their homes Sunday, after having spent the past week at the J. J. Gallagher home.

Dr. and Mrs. Madigan of Saginaw visited Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Burke. Mrs. Madigan will be remembered here as Miss Gertrude Schooley.

Mrs. C. M. Pulford, who was called here last week by the illness of her mother, Mrs. James Tennant, returned to her home in Detroit Thursday morning.

Richard Lutze and Leslie Townsend, who spent the winter months in Florida, returned to Cass City last week. They report a very pleasant time in the Southland.

Mrs. G. A. Tindale and daughters, Dorothy and Harriett, left Thursday for Detroit where they spent several days. Miss Leone Lee, who was the guest of Miss Dorothy Tindale this week, returned with them to her home in Detroit.

Mrs. Mary Hildie of Kingston has been very ill at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Steve Tescho, but at this writing is on the gain. L. A. Hildie of Cleveland, Ohio, and H. C. Hildie of Ashland, Ohio, were called here last week, by the illness of their mother, Mrs. Hildie.

Mrs. M. M. Schwieger suffered a hemorrhage of the brain Wednesday evening. Her condition was reported as favorable Thursday morning. Her neighbor, Mrs. Wallace Withey, suffered a similar ailment several days ago and her condition is said to be very serious.

A fire alarm was turned in Wednesday noon when the roof on the Harvey Krug residence on South Seeger St. caught fire. The fire department put out the flames in short order, the damage being confined to the roof on the south side of the house. Auto drivers are requested to keep from driving over the hose, parking their cars near a hydrant or otherwise hindering the fire department in its work. On Wednesday, two lengths of fire hose had to be discarded because of damage inflicted when cars were driven over them.

One of the annual events of the high school year is scheduled when the sophomore class issues an edict decreeing that the members of the freshman class shall conform to certain specified rules for one day. If the freshmen observe all of the rules, the sophomore class is host at a banquet. Such was the case this year, and the banquet was held Friday evening in the church parlors of the M. E. church. After the banquet, a program was given under the direction of Stuart Wilsey as toastmaster. Leo Hutchinson extended a welcome, Charles McKenzie, of the freshman class, responding. Raymond Wood was called upon for remarks. Miss Palm, instructor in the English department of the high school, closed the program with a speech.

A full house greeted the Darktown Minstrels at the opera house on Wednesday evening and the Adams-Seeger Post of the American Legion appreciates the generous patronage of citizens of this community. The talent was furnished by members of the Pigeon Community club, who for the past four years have appeared before several audiences of Thumb towns in productions of this character. The troupe this season is larger than ever before and is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bates of Pigeon. The cast is made up entirely of Pigeon business men and includes Loren Bates, Vern Geiger, H. O. Paul, Wm. Schluchter, R. H. Leslie, G. L. Street, Leo Bliss, C. B. Cady, O. Hamilton, Geo. Hortman, Wm. Schumacher, Jacob Schumacher, Walter McLean, J. G. Buerker and Vaughan Garrison.

The Thousand Islands

This is the name given to a collection of small islands in the expansion of the St. Lawrence river from the eastern end of Lake Ontario for about forty miles. They are located partly in New York state and partly in Canada. It is estimated that there are from 1,500 to 1,800 islands in the group. Handsome summer residences have been erected on many of the islands.—Kansas City Star.

Began Great Literary Age

With the publication, in 1570, of "The Shepherd's Calendar," a pastoral poem in twelve parts, by Edmund Spenser, who later wrote "The Faerie Queene," the Elizabethan age of English literature may be said to begin.

Republican Candidates on State Ticket, Election Monday, April 6

It is very apparent that Michigan Republicans believe that public servants at all times deserve to be rewarded for their faithful performance of duty, the entire state ticket at the April election being present incumbents of their respective positions. Supreme Court Justices John S. McDonald and George M. Clark are present members of that bench; then William L. Clements and James O. Murfin have each for a number of years been active on the Board of Regents having charge of the U. of M., while L. Whitney Watkins has served two terms and Mrs. Dora H. Stockman one on the State Board of Agriculture, the governing body of the M. A. C. Frank F. Rogers, State Highway Commissioner, has held that office more than a dozen years and was connected with the same department since its creation in the present form. Thomas E. Johnson has been connected with the school work of Michigan since 1890 and was appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction to fill vacancy by Governor Sleeper. Frank Cody, who is superintendent of the public schools in Detroit, has been a member of the State Board of Education for the past twelve years and is now the Republican party nominee for a third term.

McDOWELL WRITES FROM GOLD-MINING CAMP

loading onto the boats the ore passes over endless belts at the rate of 200 tons an hour and the boats now in use carry 4,500 tons each.

"The Riverside mine, on the Alaska side, is now employing more than 40 men and shipments of ore have started, 300 tons going out last week. Several other mines in the district are being rapidly brought to the producing stage, and it is generally conceded by those who have studied the question that this is now the most important mining camp on the continent.

"The ore generally contains gold, silver, zinc, lead, iron and copper, while it is expected that other valuable minerals will be found. Samples recently brought in are thought to contain tungsten, but a definite analysis is not yet available.

"The short summer season has been partially responsible for the tardy development of the district, but as the mines are brought forward to the producing stage arrangements can and will be made for all-year operation and shipping. In sending you this letter there is no thought of inducing anyone to come here, but merely to give you a little definite information from one who is on the ground. The impression has gone out to some localities that everything available here of value is already staked and recorded. That is only partially true, as there are still possibilities here for prospectors who know something of the actual work necessary and have a knowledge of minerals they are looking for, but the valuable claims held now and which may be secured later may have to await a general development of the area, before the product may be shipped profitably. The ore varies much in value. I understand that some of it being shipped runs as low as $12 a ton, while other will run as high as $300, while again small veins are found running up even to $3,000 a ton, but that would be exceptional.

"You may have heard something of the reported gold strike in the Dease Lake district. That district lies northeast of here, probably 200 miles, but writers have mostly advocated the route leading from Wrangell, Alaska, as boats run from there a considerable distance up the Stikine River. However, some are likely to go overland from here, in fact, two "mushers" started yesterday with a dog team and supplies. If they are able to get across the two or three glaciers on the route, it is thought they will make the trip in about two weeks and news of their arrival there will be awaited with interest. The nearest point from which such a report can come is Telegraph Creek, a station on the government telegraph line running to the Yukon.

"Kind remembrances to all old-time friends."

OBITUARY.

Thelma Margrete Hutchinson, daughter of Ezra and Etta Hutchinson, was born near Gagetown Oct. 4, 1924, and departed this life to be with Jesus March 25, 1925. The child was a patient little sufferer unto the end, and will be sadly missed in the home where she was dearly loved. She was a victim of bowel trouble and other ailments, peritonitis setting in. She leaves to mourn their loss, a loving father and mother one brother, two little sisters and other relatives. Funeral services were held at Sunshine church on March 27, Rev. Bostwick officiating and interment made in Elmwood cemetery.

DAIRY FACTS

HOW TO BUILD MILK WELL REFRIGERATOR

While time is slack on the farm, dig a pit for a refrigerator in the springy spot where water has never yet failed. Scoop it out as deep as your conscience will allow, stone or cement it up, leaving steps if possible whereby one may descend to a reasonable depth if water is low. In any case, when the well is completed, manufacture a ladder as long as the water in the well is deep, and attach to this a rope by which it may be lowered. It sometimes comes in handy unexpectedly.

Next in importance is the curb built over it, with a door with a lock to it. Besides this door have a trapcover, also with lock, to fit over the well inside the curb. These locks are a double precaution to keep out children and thieves.

Inside the curb arrange a pulley, by which the water may be lowered and withdrawn. Let the water be a set of square shelves, somewhat smaller than the well's diameter, held in conjunction by slats attached to the four corners, but all four sides of the shelves left open to the cool influence of the underground refrigerator, or enclosed to prevent articles from being tipped off the shelves into the water, by wire netting.

This well is not used to draw water from, and if articles in the water are in water-tight receptacles, like glass jars or butter crocks, they may be lowered even under water. A leg of mutton, a fowl, or a beef shank, does better, and keeps better, if hung in the air, rather than laid upon a shelf, so a separate rope may be kept for such articles, which may be lowered separately until almost touching the water. Many farms have already such a spring or well, needing only a little work to be fitted with apparatus for a refrigerator welcome to next summer's housewife. This is a job for fall, while the woodwork may be attended to in the workshop this winter.

A can of milk, a bottle of cream, may be lowered under water and kept sweet when everything above ground sours and the ice is short.

Amount of Concentrates to Feed Producing Cows

A common rule for feeding grain or concentrate mixtures is to give the cows producing a milk relatively rich in butterfat, one pound of the feed for every three pounds of milk produced. To cows producing milk testing low in butterfat, the ratio should be one pound of the grain for every four pounds of milk produced. Where one knows the approximate amount of butterfat produced by a cow each week, it is safer to feed as many pounds of grain daily as the cow produces pounds of butterfat during the week.

A few exceptions should be observed to the above rules. Just before freshening, grain should be fed sparingly for a few days. Also, when the cows have reached a full flow of milk and fall to respond to additional feed, it is wise to reduce the amount to the point where the production of milk can be maintained.

Low Temperature Makes

Any Cream Whip Easier

Low temperatures and a high percentage of fat are the chief factors which contribute to the successful whipping of cream, say New York experiment station dairy specialists. Holding cream at low temperatures for several hours will improve the whipping quality of the product, even if the cream is not particularly rich in fat.

Cream containing 30 per cent fat and cooled to 40 or 50 degrees and held for 24 hours is in prime condition for whipping, it is said. Thinner cream will whip well if held at a low temperature sufficiently long. Pasteurization seems to reduce the whipping quality of cream, but cooling and aging will overcome this effect to a large extent.

Dairying Hints

Calves need regular feeding if they are to make regular gains.

Keep the young calves in a well-lighted, clean stall continuously until at least one month old.

Test your milk cows. You may be feeding some fine-looking cows that are not making good at the pail.

It is unlawful to add water to milk after the milk is in the can, but there is no law against supplying clean fresh water to a cow and so increase the quantity of milk she produces.

Clean utensils are essential. Never use rusty pails and scald the utensils after each milking.

Many good milk cows spend the night shivering in the cold after giving a bountiful supply of nice warm milk for the family table.

The average dairy cow of the United States produces 3,412 pounds of milk every year. In Holland the average cow gives 7,585 pounds. In Switzerland she brings 6,950. And in Denmark the yield is 5,666 pounds.

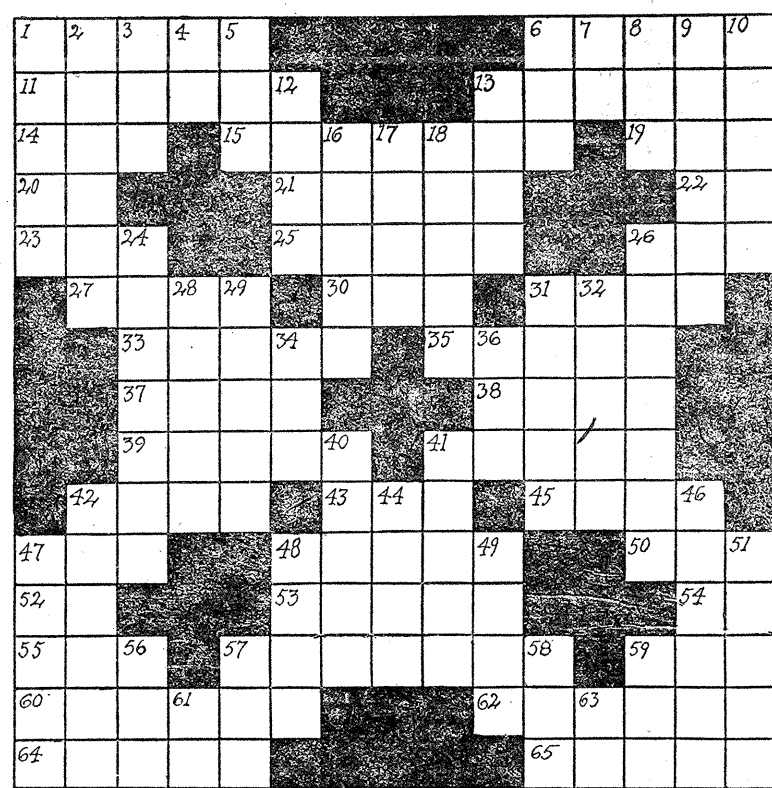

Marathon Run Legendary

The marathon race in the Olympic games has its origin in a famous Greek legend that after the battle of Marathon a messenger ran from Marathon to Athens with the news of the victory. However, there is no historical basis for this. It is merely a legend.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE NO. 67.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill all the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

A Shock

A bishop was paying a visit to a certain parish and decided to stay on for the afternoon in order to address the children of the Sunday school. He had noticed many large bills about, referring to "the Bishop's Visitation" and accordingly began his talk by asking the assembled children the meaning of the word "visitation." "Please, sir," replied a young urchin, "it's a plague sent by God."

Rats in an Organ

The famous organ in the Trocadero in Paris, said to be worth $125,000, is in danger. This magnificent instrument, the third finest in France, is suffering from old age. Five men could blow it at one time, but today it takes ten men to provide the necessary power. Many of the pipes are out of use because rats nest in them.

A TEST OF YEARS

Is the Experience of This Cass City Resident.

Are you miserable with an aching back? Feel tired, nervous and run down? Do you have daily headaches, dizzy spells and annoying urinary disorders? Then why not take the advice of a Cass City resident who suffered as you do and found lasting relief by using Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys? Here is a Cass City case that the years haven't changed. Why not profit by it? Mrs. E. Gale, 3rd St., says: "I was bothered with backache and my kidneys were out of order. I found quick relief by using Doan's Pills." Over three years later, Mrs. Gale said: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Pills since I recommended them and I believe my cure is permanent." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Gale had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. 2.

Way to Water Plants

For winter plants a good general rule to follow is to watch the soil at the top of the pot. When it is thoroughly dried out, water the plant, says a botanical magazine. When watering, saturate the entire mass of soil. Do not just wet the top and trust to luck that the soil in the bottom will get wet enough. One can usually be assured that the entire mass of soil is soaked when water runs out of the bottom of the pot.

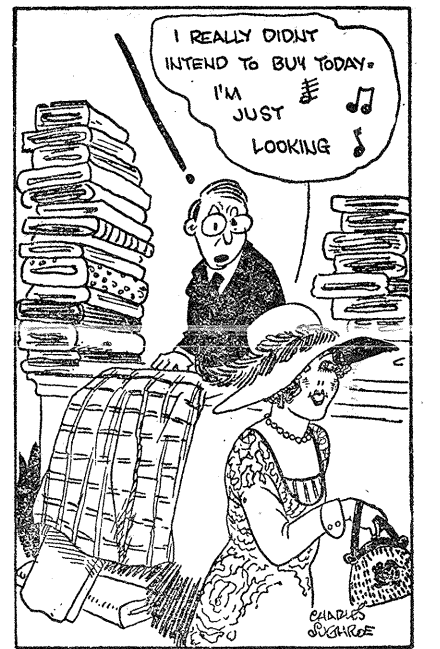

Eclipse Stopped Battle

We find frequent references in history to eclipses of the sun and the moon. So we recall the story of Joshua, who ordered the sun to stand still when dusk was approaching and his battle was not yet won. Our explanation of this "dusk" is a total eclipse of the sun. On May 28, 585 B. C., a fight between the Persians and the Medes was suddenly brought to an end by the fear created when the sun suddenly disappeared behind the moon.

Chapter XII

In town Dirk lived in a large front room and above on the third floor of a handsome old-fashioned three-story-and-basement house. He used the front room as a living room, the alcove as a bedroom. He and Selma had furnished it together, disarding all of the room's original belongings except the bed, a table, and one fat comfortable old armchair whose brocade surface hinted a past grandeur. When he had got his books ranged in open shelves along one wall, soft-shaded lamps on table and desk, the place looked more than livable; lived in. During the process of furnishing Selma got into the way of coming into town for a day or two to prowling the auction rooms and the second-hand stores. She had a genius for this sort of thing; hated the spick-and-span varnish and veneer of the new furniture to be got in the regular way.

She enjoyed these rare trips into town; made a holiday of them. Dirk would take her to the theater and she would sit entranced. Strangely enough, considering the lack of what the world calls romance and adventure in her life, she did not like the motion pictures. "All the difference in the world," she would say, "between the movies and the thrill I get out of a play at the theater. My, yes! Like fooling with paper dolls when you could be playing with a real live baby."

The day was marvelously mild for March in Chicago. Spring, usually so coy in this region, had flung herself at them head first. As the massive revolving door of Dirk's office building fanned him into the street he saw Paula in her long low sporting roadster at the curb. She was dressed in black. All feminine fashionable and middle-class Chicago was dressed in black. All feminine fashionable and middle-class America was dressed in black. Two years of war had robbed Paris of its husbands, brothers, sons. All Paris walked in black. America, untouched, gayly borrowed the smart habiliments of mourning and now Michigan boulevard and Fifth avenue walked demurely in the gloom of crepe and chiffon; black hats, black gloves, black slippers. Only black was "good" this year.

Paula smiled up at him, patted the leather seat beside her with one hand that was absurdly thick-fingered in its fur-lined glove.

"It's cold driving. Button up tight. Where'll we stop for your bag?"

He climbed into the seat beside her. Her manipulation of the wheel was witchcraft. The roadster slid in and out of traffic like a fluid thing, an enamel stream, silent as a swift current in a river. When his house was reached, "I'm coming up," she said. "I suppose you haven't any tea?"

"Gosh, no! What do you think I am! A young man in an English novel!"

"Now, don't be provincial and Chicagoish, Dirk." They climbed the three flights of stairs. She looked about. Her glance was not disapproving. "This isn't so bad. Who did it? She did! Very nice. But of course you ought to have your own smart little apartment, with a Jap to do you up. To do that for you, for example."

"Yes," grimly. He was packing his bag—not throwing clothes into it, but folding them deftly, neatly, as the son of a wise mother packs. "My salary'd just about keep him in white linen house-coats."

"I'm going to send you some things for your room, Dirk."

"For God's sake don't!"

"Why not?"

"Two kinds of women in the world. I learned that at college. Those who send men things for their rooms and those that don't."

"You're very rude."

"You asked me. There! I'm all set." He snapped the lock of his bag. "I'm sorry I can't give you anything. I haven't a thing. Not even a glass of wine and a—what is it they say in books?—oh, yeh—a biscuit."

In the roadster again Paula maintained a fierce and steady speed for the remainder of the drive.

"We call the place Stormwood," Paula told him. "And nobody outside the dear family knows how fitting that is. Don't scowl. I'm not going to tell you my marital woes. And don't you say I asked for it. . . . How's the job?"

"Rotten."

"You don't like it? The work?"

"I like it well enough, only—well, you see we leave the university architectural course thinking we're all going to be Stanford Whites or Cass Gilberts, tossing off a Woolworth building and making ourselves famous overnight. I've spent all yesterday and today planning a drygoods box that's going up on the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Ashland, west."

"And ten years from now?"

"Ten years from now maybe they'll let me do the plans for the drygoods box all alone."

"Why don't you drop it?"

He was startled. "Drop it! How do you mean?"

"Chuck it. Do something that will bring you quick results. This isn't an age of waiting. Suppose, twenty years from now, you do plan a grand Gothic office building to grace this new and glorified Michigan boulevard they're always shouting about! You'll be a middle-aged man living in a middle-class house in a middle-class suburb with a middle-class wife."

"Maybe"—slightly nettled.

They turned in at the gates of Stormwood. A final turn of the drive. An avenue of trees. A house, massive, pillared, porticoed. The door opened as they drew up at the entrance. A maid in cap and apron stood in the doorway. A man appeared at the side of the car, coming seemingly from nowhere, greeted Paula civilly and drove the car off. The glow of an open fire in the hall welcomed them. "He'll bring up your bag," said Paula. "How're the babies, Anna? Has Mr. Storm got here?"

"He telephoned, Mrs. Storm. He says he won't be out till late—maybe ten or after. Anyway, you're not to wait dinner."

Paula, from being the limp, expert, fearless driver of the high-powered roadster was now suddenly very much the mistress of the house, quietly observing, giving an order with a lift of the eyebrow or a nod of the head. Would Dirk like to go to his room at once? Dinner at seven-thirty. He needn't dress. Just as he liked. Everything was very informal here. They roughed it. (Dirk had counted thirteen servants by noon next day and hadn't been near the kitchen.)

He decided to bathe and change into dinner clothes and was glad of this when he found Paula in black chiffon before the fire in the great beamed room she had called the library. Dirk thought she looked very beautiful in that diaphanous stuff, with the pearls. Her heart-shaped face, with its large eyes that slanted a little at the corners; her long slim throat; her dark hair piled high and away from her little ears. He decided not to mention it.

Dirk told himself that Paula had known her husband would not be home until ten and had deliberately planned a tete-a-tete meal. He would not, therefore, confess himself a little nettled when Paula said, "I've asked the Emerys in for dinner; and we'll have a game of bridge afterward. Phil Emery, you know, the Third. He used to have it on his visiting card, like royalty."

The Emerys were drygoods; had been drygoods for sixty years; were accounted Chicago aristocracy; preferred England; rode to hounds in pink coats along Chicago's prim and startled suburban prairies. They had a vast estate on the lake near Stormwood. They arrived a trifle late. Dirk had seen pictures of old Phillip Emery ("Phillip the First," he thought, with an inward grin) and decided, looking at the rather anemic third edition, that the stock was running a little thin. The dinner was delicious but surprisingly simple; little more than Selma would have given him, Dirk thought, had he come home to the farm this week-end. The talk was desultory and rather dull. And this chap had millions, Dirk said to himself. Millions. No scratching in an architect's office for this lad.

At bridge after dinner Phillip the Third proved to be sufficiently the son of his father to win from Dirk more money than he could conveniently afford to lose.

Theodore Storm came in at ten and stood watching them. When the guests had left the three sat before the fire. "Something to drink?" Storm asked Dirk. Dirk refused but Storm mixed a stiff highball for himself, and then another. The whisky brought no flush to his large white impassive face. He talked almost not at all. Dirk, naturally silent, was loquacious by comparison. But while there was nothing heavy, untrivial about Dirk's silence, this man's was oppressive, irritating. His paunch, his large white hands, his great white face gave the effect of bleached bloodless bulk. "I don't see how she stands him," Dirk thought. Husband and wife seemed to be on terms of polite friendliness. Storm excused himself and took himself off with a word about being tired, and seeing them in the morning.

After he had gone: "He likes you," said Paula.

"Important," said Dirk, "if true."

"But it is important. He can help you a lot."

"Help me how? I don't want—"

"But I do. I want you to be successful. I want you to be. You can be. You've got it written all over you. In the way you stand, and talk, and don't talk. In the way you look at people. In something in the way you carry yourself. It's what they call force, I suppose. Anyway, you've got it."

"Has your husband got it?"

"Theodore! No! That is—"

"There you are. I've got the force, but he's got the money."

"You can have both." She was leaning forward. Her eyes were bright, enormous. Her hands—those thin dark hot hands—were twisted in her lap. He looked at her quietly. Suddenly there were tears in her eyes. "Don't look at me that way, Dirk." She huddled back in her chair, limp. She looked a little haggard and older, somehow. "My marriage is a mess, of course. You can see that."

"You knew it would be, didn't you?"

"No. Yes. Oh, I don't know. Anyway, what's the difference, now? I'm not trying to be what they call an influence in your life. I'm just fond of you—you know that—and I want you to be great and successful. It's maternal, I suppose."

"I should think two babies would satisfy that urge."

"Oh, I can't get excited about two pink healthy lumps of babies. I love them and all that, but all they need is to have a bottle stuffed into their mouths at proper intervals and to be bathed, and dressed and aired and slept. It's a mechanical routine and about as exciting as a treadmill."

"Just what do you want me to do, Paula?"

She was eager again, vitally concerned in him. "It's all so ridiculous. All these men whose incomes are thirty—forty—sixty—a hundred thousand a year usually haven't any qualities, really, that the five-thousand-a-year man hasn't. Somebody has to get the fifty-thousand-dollar salaries—some advertising man, or bond salesman or—why, look at Phil Emery! He probably couldn't sell a yard of pink ribbon to a schoolgirl if he had to. Look at Theodore! He just sits and blinks and says nothing. But when the time comes he doubles up his fat white fist and mumbles, 'Ten million,' or 'Fifteen million,' and that settles it."

Dirk laughed to hide his own little mounting sensation of excitement. "It isn't quite as simple as that, I imagine. There's more to it than meets the eye."

"There isn't! I tell you I know the whole crowd of them. I've been brought up with this moneyed pack all my life, haven't I? Pork packers and wheat grabbers and peddlers of gas and electric light and dry goods. Grandfather's the only one of the crowd that I respect. He has stayed the same. They can't fool him. He knows he just happened to go into wholesale beef and pork when wholesale beef and pork was a new game in Chicago. Now look at him!"

"Still, you will admit there's something in knowing when," he argued.

Paula stood up. "If you don't know I'll tell you. Now is when. I've got Grandfather and Dad and Theodore to work with. You can go on being an architect if you want to. It's a fine enough profession. But unless you're a genius where'll it get you? Go in with them, and Dirk, in five years—"

"What!" They were both standing, facing each other, she tense, eager; he relaxed but stimulated.

"Try it and see what, will you? Will you, Dirk?"

"I don't know, Paula. I should say, my mother wouldn't think much of it."

"What does she know! Oh, I don't mean that she isn't a fine, wonderful person. She is. I love her. But success! She thinks success is another acre of asparagus or cabbage; or a new stove in the kitchen now that they've brought gas out as far as High Prairie."

He had a feeling that she possessed him; that her hot eager hands held him though they stood apart and eyed each other almost hostilely.

As he undressed that night he thought, "Now what's her game? What's she up to? Be careful, Dirk, old boy."

As he lay in the soft bed with the satin coverlet over him he thought, "Now what's her little game?"

He awoke at eight, enormously hungry. He wondered, uneasily, just how he was going to get his breakfast. She had said his breakfast would be brought him in his room. He stretched luxuriously, sprang up, turned on his bath water, bathed. When he emerged in dressing gown and slippers his breakfast tray had been brought him mysteriously and its contents lay appetizingly on a little portable table. There were flocks of small covered dishes and a charming individual coffee service. A little note from Paula: "Would you like to take walk at about half-past nine? Stroll down to the stables. I want to show you my new horse."

The distance from the house to the stables was actually quite a brisk little walk in itself. Paula, in riding clothes, was waiting for him.

She greeted him. "I've been out two hours. Had my ride. You ride, don't you?"

"I used to ride the old nags, bare-back, on the farm."

"You'll have to learn. Then I'll have some one to ride with me. Theodore never rides. He never takes any sort of exercise. Sits in that great fat car of his."

They went into the coach house, a great airy white-washed place with glittering harness and spurs and bridles like jewels in glass cases. It gave Dirk a little hopeless feeling. He had never before seen anything like it.

Paula laughed up at him, her dark face upturned to his.

Something had annoyed him, she saw. Would he wait while she changed to walking things? Or perhaps he'd rather drive in the roadster. They walked up to the house together. He wished that she would not consult his wishes so anxiously. It made him sulky, impatient.

She put a hand on his arm. "Dirk, are you annoyed at me for what I said last night?"

"No."

"What did you think when you went to your room last night? Tell me. What did you think?"

"I thought: 'She's bored with her husband and she's trying to vamp me. I'll have to be careful.'"

Paula laughed delightedly. "That's nice and frank. . . . What else?"

"I thought my coat didn't fit very well and I wished I could afford to have Peel make my next one."

"You can," said Paula.

Ersine United Presbyterian—April first is an important date with us. It is the beginning of a new church year. Let us start right and make it one of the best in our history. If the bad roads and severe weather have kept you from the House of God, these are past and all things are favorable now. So let us make the start next Sabbath. Attend some church. We invite you to ours. Our services are as follows: Preaching at 10:30 a. m. followed by the Sabbath school. Y. P. C. U. at 8 p. m. followed by sermon. F. T. KYLE, Pastor. MARTIN BLACK, Supt.

Nazarene—Greenleaf Sunday services, 11:00 a. m. at John Guisbert's.

Cass City—Sunday school, 2:00 p. m., preaching at 3:00. Subject, "Hindrances to Spiritual Progress" continued.

Young People's meeting at 7:00—evangelistic message at 8:00.

Spiritual progress comes through spiritual intelligence and wise direction of the same.

All are welcome!

C. E. AND L. LING, Pastors.

Nazarene—The three-day convention in the Nazarene Hall was well attended and proved a great spiritual feast to all who attended. All of the Protestant churches of the city were represented during the convention. Baskets filled with eatables were brought and we enjoyed dinner and supper together in the storeroom beneath the hall. We are glad to say we have outgrown our quarters and are seeking for better and larger ones. Though this was not a financial enterprise, the condition of our finances are good. God is with us in power.

Friday, the missionary societies of the Holiness churches of the Thumb had charge. Readings, recitation and singing followed by discussion made up the program. Our district superintendent placed much stress upon home mission work. The many thousands of unsaved and unsanctified native inhabitants, together with the constant incoming from other lands and the carrying of the full gospel to other lands, needed a strong home base of men and women with fully consecrated hearts to co-operate with God and each other to bring success to the work and glory to God.

Saturday was Young People's day and to have looked into their happy faces and heard the papers they had prepared on the different subjects relative to a life of Holiness in God's sight you would understand the secret of holding the young people of this day. They told why boys and girls could not go to questionable places and stay right in the sight of God. It was because Jesus did not and would not do these things and if He is our example, we must do as He did. They have nothing to do with tobacco in any form and are careful of their associates, for birds of a feather will flock together. Many of our young people have consecrated themselves to God's service and will go to foreign fields or work at home, wherever God calls. Truly we believe if Christ be lifted up from the earth, He will draw all men unto Him, the young as well as old. He is able to satisfy our every need of soul and body if served in the beauty of holiness.

There is joy unspeakable and full of glory in the service of our King. Our hearts go out in love to the unsaved or unsanctified who are not enjoying full salvation. All are welcome at any and all of our services.

Glad News

Maid—Good news, sir. Little Tommy as at last burst his drum.—From Le tire, Paris.

Cass City Schools

The Cass City negative debating team will journey to Crosswell next week to meet the Crosswell affirmative debating team. The students would be very pleased to have as many as possible of the Cass City people attend and thus support the team.

On Monday night, the seniors held a brief class meeting and chose their play which will be presented at the opera house at a later date. They have chosen "Adam and Eva" which has been put on successfully by many high schools.

Last Saturday morning the A. B. C. girls took a short hike, taking their breakfast with them. They hiked to Orr's woods, and watched the process of making maple syrup.

The basket ball team had group and individual pictures taken last week. The base ball men are beginning their regular workout this week. The prospects for the high school team look encouraging.

Music—The students in the music department are practicing diligently on their operetta which is to be presented at the opera house on Apr. 24. The high school orchestra met for the regular practice Monday evening.

Agriculture—The students of the agriculture department are busy testing corn, and are ready to receive more samples to be tested. The students much prefer the bushel samples of corn, as a more accurate test can be made.

Domestic Science—The advance class in sewing is now taking up the tailored shirt waist models.

Commercial—The typewriting students are typing the standard business form letters. The students are improving on speed in writing. Mr. Holmes is back at his job of teaching commercial arithmetic, after a week spent in interviewing teachers for the year 1925-1926.

Kindergarten—This week we are constructing wagons from cardboard, boxes, and milk bottle tops. Springs is far on the way, so we are talking about the signs of spring and drawing tulips.

First Grade—Blanche Chapman has moved to Detroit, and we are very sorry to lose her. We have read nine books this year, and are now ready to begin the tenth.

Second Grade—We won the attendance banner for the month of March. This makes the third time that we have won it this year. This week we are learning all about how to write letters.

Third Grade—We have started our window boxes. The children have brought plants for it, and we enjoy very much watching them grow. In Art, we are drawing tulips and daffodils.

Fifth Grade—We are studying the story "Bucaroo." We are reviewing South America in geography, and we are trying to remember all of the new words that we have learned to spell this year, in our spelling review.

NOVESTA.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Parrish and three children, Steven, Minnie and Wanetta, returned from California last week where they have been enjoying the warmer climate for the winter and are now nicely located on the old Seed homestead. Mr. Parrish will labor for Elmer Seed. They were entertained at the farm home of O. E. Niles for over a week while they were deciding what business to enter.
