Architect Says Building Is Arranged Very Compactly and Economically.

Members of the board of education and Supt. H. W. Holmes have beenworking with Architect J. N. Churchill in arranging suitable plans for the proposed new school building at Cass

After working over several plans, the architect has finally sketched one that meets the needs of the district and provides ample room to take care of the several grades and high school. Mr. Churchill says the building is ar- BUREAU CAUTIONS TILLERS AS ranged as compactly and economically as any he has ever designed in his many years of work in this particular line. An enlarged photograph of the business places next week. The members of the board of education and Supt. Holmes will be glad to furnish any information to voters, and if in doubt about anything regarding the proposition, you are invited to consult the school authorities regarding it. The bonding proposition, it is expected, will be voted upon early in Feb-

In the case of many parents, about all they can give their children is a good education. This calls for a suitable building and adequate equipment. The highest development of the schools of this community in the years ahead is largely conditioned by the attitude of the parents and patrons in the coming election, and the Chronicle hopes and anticipates that the voters of the district will not cramp and hinder the future development that is within the range of possibility of the youth of today.

Tractor School Well Attended

About 400 farmers of the community attended the second annual tractor school at the store of E. Paul & Son, local implement dealers, on Tuesday. The farmers watched with interest the assembling of a 10-20 tractor by experts while a lecture was given by B. E. Gleason of the International Harvester Co. These proceedings occupied about an hour and a half before lunch was served.

In the afternoon, a comedy picture was shown which seemed to meet with the approval of those present, and was followed by a two-reel picture entitled, "A Trip Through Tractor Factory," which thoroughly explained the manufacture, testing and assembling of the tractor from the time the moulds are poured until it is loaded by the big electric crane on cars and ready for shipment.

An interesting talk on community work was next given by Walter Rix, -Adv. 1

The influence of the modern kitchenette apartment is conspicuous in the house building of the present day. Space-saving appliances and arrangements are being used everywhere, and even in the larger homes we find the breakfast nook and numerous built-in features, for space saving is not the only quality which recommends these features. They also make for comfort, convenience and labor-saving.

But the most conspicuous development from the kitchenette apartment is the bungalowette, a tiny bungalow with the floor plan arrangement, in althe kitchenette apartment. In these C. L. Sub-Floor Should Dry;

Use Damp-Proof Paper Laying a hardwood floor is not a difficult job for a good workman, but there are a few kinks about it that it would be well for the prospective builder to know.

Unlike most of the soft woods, oak is best laid on a subfloor. In new houses it would be wise to let this subfloor dry for some time before laying the oak. In any event, have your contractor use damp-proof paper between the subfloor and the oak floor-

To Clean Shellacked

or Varnished Surfaces

Varnished and shellacked surfaces should ordinarily be dusted clean with a soft brush or cloth and polished with an oiled mop or soft cloth moistened with a few drops of light lubricating oil, lemon oil or furniture polish. The ness later gets into the flooring. This oil or polish should be well rubbed in and any surplus removed with a soft loth. In general, varnished and shellacked surfaces should not be touched with water. However, if badly soiled hey may be wiped with a cloth wrung out of warm, slightly soapy water, wiped dry at once, and then polished with off. The appearance of badly worn, varnished woodwork may be improved by rubbing it with a good grade of floor wax.

Waxed surfaces may be cleaned with a soft, dry duster, or in the case of floors a soft brush or a mop free from oil. The film of dirt and wax which darkens the surface may be removed with a cloth wrung out of arm, soapy water, or, better, with ne moistened with turpentine.

It is the only way to make rich heavy meal. But when for some sure that every member of the family good reason the other courses and dishes of a meal have been less satisfyincome, that all necessary expenses ing than usual, a good plain hot dessert can be met, and that a fair portion such as cottage pudding may be a will be saved for future needs. Such very acceptable conclusion to a dinner. Perhaps smaller than ordinary a budget is comparatively easy to portions have been served-or one has make and far easier to live up to used up a number of leftovers-or there may have been unexpected company, necessitating a change in menu. Whatever the reason for choosing it. cottage pudding is appetizing and filling, and is one of the easiest desserts one can have, for it can be put in the oven about the time the first part of the meal is served, and will be ready to take out in about half or three-quarters of an hour,_depending on the kind of pan in which it is cooked. It is therefore a good "last-minute" and emergency dessert, served either plain or varied in many ways. The recipe below is given by the teaspoonfuls baking powder. 2-8 cupful sugar.

United States Department of Agricul-

Cottage Pudding. 1 cupful milk. 2 1-3 cupfuls sifted soft wheat flour. ¼ to 1-3 cupful fat.

½ teaspoonful salt.
½ teaspoonful flavoring.

Mix and sift together the dry ingredients. The eggs are beaten slightly and added to the other liquid ingredients, which are then stirred gradually into the dry. The melted fat is added last to the batter, rather than mixed with the liquids. Bake in a fairly hot oven (about 390 degrees Fahrenheit) if muffin pans are used to make individual servings; or at a more moderate temperature (about 365 degrees Fahrenheit) in a thin loaf.

Cottage pudding is usually served not with a sauce, which may be hot or cold. It may be hard sauce, whipped ream, chocolate sauce, a canned or stewed fruit sauce, or one of the slighty thickened hot sauces such as lemon, orange, raisin, or vanilla, which sometimes have egg or cornstarch as the thickening agent. Small amounts of canned fruit may be utilized to advantage in such a sauce, as, for example, some leftover canned pineapple or peaches.

A cupful of nut meats, seeded raisins, sultanas, dried currants, or dates may be added to plain cottage pudding batter to make a more elaborate dessert. Except for the sultanas and currants any of these should be chopped into convenient pieces and lightly floured. They are added when the batter is mixed. A chopping bowl is more satisfactory for preparing the nuts or fruits than a meat grinder. Chopped dried figs, either just as they come, or stewed and drained of all iquid, may be added if liked or plain pudding. Canned blueberries (also fresh blueberries and blackber ries in season) and canned cherries are

VIRGINIA WOMAN MAKES INEXPENSIVE SINK

Homemade Sink, Drain Board and Tea Wagon.

Like many farm women, the one whose sink is illustrated was without running water in her kitchen, and without any convenient arrangement for disposing of waste water. Dish-prohibitive. Inspired by suggestions from the extension agent from the Virginia Polytechnic institute and the United States Department of Agriculture, this woman, who is a widow with three small children, living in Albemarle county, Va., solved her problem by cementing an old dishpan to a drain pipe, as cent rubber stopper when dishes were being washed. The result from this and other inexpensive changes which she made was so successful that she won the county prize for the greatest improvement in her kitchen at the lowest cost. She has a narrow work shelf near this improvised sink, on which to put the clean dishes, and a wheel tray made of an old washstand, by means of which she brings the soiled dishes to the sink. As the bucket indicates, she still has to get her water from a pump in the yard, but she does not have to carry any waste water, and will doubtless achieve a simple system for having running water as shown in the picture. A hole was made soon as she can afford the additional in the bottom of the dispan to fit the expense.

Hand-Clapping Has Become Sign of Approval

Every emotion that rouses us has to be worked off by some corresponding bodily effect, as a sort of safety valve

Just as a cat purrs and a dog wags its tail, so we humans have to cry or laugh or clench our fists, according to the different emotions to be expressed.

When the emotion of pleasure is experienced by a whole crowd at once, we have a further desire—to communicate our own sensations to our neighbors, as well as to the speaker, actor or other person who has pleased us. And the only way we can communicate our feeling is by making a

There are only three ways in which we can easily do this: By shouting, by stamping our feet, or by clapping

The first method is very often used, but generally out-of-doors. The stamping of feet needs not only boots but a hard surface to stamp on, and since the ancients, from whom we inherit our method of applause-which word means a "clapping at"—did not wear boots and, therefore, could not stamp audibly, hand-clapping became adopted as the recognized fashion of expressing pleasure.

Why Flowers Can Be

Used as Barometers Most people know that seaweed, which becomes moist and clammy when rain is coming, makes an excellent barometer. Flowers are sensitive to weather conditions and those in a position to observe them can generally tell something of the coming day. So true a prophet is the scarlet pimpernel that it has been called "the poor man's weather glass."

Crocuses, dandelions, anemones and wood sorrel close their flowers on the approach of rain. Fir cones open and close as the weather is fine or wet. In some parts of the continent, especially in Germany and Switzerland, where many quaint customs survive, they have a frog weather glass, which consists of a green frog in a bottle half filled with water. From the neck of the bottle, and just touching the water, runs a flight of steps. If the frog remains under water, near the bottom or actually at the bottom of the bottle the weather will be fine, but when he comes up and sits on the steps it is certain to be dull, cold and wet .-

All There Was Left

For easy acceptance of things a trifle unusual it is hard to beat the small boy looking at the bust of his late grandfather—the bust mounted on a little circular stand. Having asked his mother if his grandpa was very wise and good, he added: "And was that all there was of grandpapa?" New York Evening Post.

Capes Shown for Mid-Season Wear

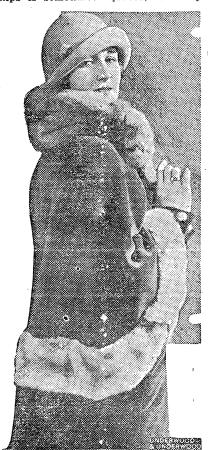

Winsome Garments in All Lengths—Also Adorn New Frocks.

The mid-season map of fashion is given over to capes, short shoulder capes, shawl capes, all-enveloping capes and tweed capes, notes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. The cape-back frocks and the short capes on coats that fall just below the waistline hardly could be called new. These have been worn pretty much since last summer, but the little shawl cape that is cut in circular fashion falling just below the waistline in the back and sloping to the fastening at the neckline is the smartest of them all. It has a fur collar, is bordered in fur oftentimes. The cape back is added to the jumper frock. The cape is the piece de resistance of the Palm Beach ward-

The mid-season expression of the cape is long circular capes of wool to be worn above frocks of silk, close at the shoulder and rippling out at the hem. The capelet idea is popular, too. On a frock of the finest black lace posed over pink crepe is a tiny shoulder cape so shaped that it escapes being called a bertha because it caps the shoulders. The circular shoulder cape your mother wore in the '90s may come again. The cape sleeves in coats have been worn since early fall. While these may not be called distinctly new they are very becoming to the tall figure, but spell certain death to any smart effect on the small woman, particularly if she is inclined to stoutness. The jumper cannot be displaced in these mid-season fashions. More vestee effects are shown than ever before. Smart cuffs are added, the band at the hips is sometimes quilted, a very pretty effect it is, too. The one-piece dresses have the most engaging little tricks.

For instance, there is the bolero in many lengths. Now it is long, down to the hips, or very short, two or three inches below the armhole, or smarter still is the bolero that is long in the back and curves from that point right up to the one-button fastening at the chin, revealing a great expanse of blouse of contrasting shade. The lace bolero is one of the distinctly new features of evening dress. It is an artistic expression that keeps to the jumper idea in the softest of materials.

New Leather Garters

Like Miniature Belts

Since stays and the rigging which attaches to them have become a negligible quantity in the wardrobe, the round garter is in style. The new metallic ribbons, frosty and glittering silver and gold on pretty shades of silk, are much used, gathered and rosetted. Ostrich feather motifs, handpainted madallions, artificial flowers and lace, are popular. Now a decided novelty is out in garters made of leather in the form of little straps with buckles, like miniature belts. They are swagger trifles, much liked by women who go in for sports clothes and are particularly appropriate with the new sports stockings. The latter grow more extreme as the season of winter sports advances.

Something Different Again

Rabbit of the northern plains gains protection from its enemies because its fur blends inconspicuously into its surroundings. It is extremely appropriate, therefore, that the new invisibles worn beneath the sheer silk hosiery of the present style, should be made of rabbit's wool, and these invisibles are warm.

Proud Plaits

To the expert plaiting iron, nothing is impossible. Plain fabrics are so treated with plaits nowadays as to make them appear striped or checked. The very fine checked or plaited patterns which are obtained by apposition of round and flat folds, have never been achieved before this season.

IMPROVEMENT MADE IN MILK MACHINES

The present-day milking machines are such an improvement over the oldtime machines that they may now be considered beyond the experimental stage. When first put on the market, they naturally had a number of serious imperfections. These have been almost entirely overcome by the inventive ingenuity of man, so that today it may safely be said that the most modern of them are a success.

The two chief stumbling blocks were keeping the machine clean and avoiding injury to the udder of the cow. It is true that in the hands of a careless operator they are still subject to criticism along these lines, but it is the fault of the operator, and not of the machine. It will no doubt always require more intelligence and judgment to operate them than is gen- things jingle until a late hour with erally displayed by a large percentage of our hand-milkers.

It would be difficult to foretell what the future has in store for the dairyman with the milking machine to do his milking. Nevertheless, the most difficult problem, that of hired help, should be at least partially solved. If there is any one drawback to dairy farming, it is this one of keeping competent and reliable help. All other irksome farm operations seem to have been benefited by mechanical invention, but milking, the most despised of them all, seems either to have been neglected, or to have been the more difficult to solve. Men hate the monotony and regularity of hand-milking. Perhaps mechanical milking should prove more popular, as the amount of time and physical exertion is greatly decreased. Already a great many have been installed in some of our best dairies, and their success there is being watched with much interest by farmer dairymen.-H. E. Dvorachek, Colorado Agricultural Col-

Little Extra Grain Will

Give Increased Returns

A little thought to the feeding of fall-freshened cows will be well repaid in increased returns. Too many cows freshen in poor condition and cannot be expected to yield a good return. To begin with, a dry period of least six weeks is essential to enable the cow to build a reserve. How the cow is fed during this interval will largely determine her production after she freshens. A little extra grain at this time means dividends later. Freshening in good flesh the cow starts her lactation at a big advantage.

Production can be held up with economy by supplementing pasture with ground barley, equal parts ground oats and corn chop. This grain should be fed at the rate of one to five pounds of milk as long as the pasture is good. Don't expect the milk flow to increase materially, but it will hold up over a much longer period of time when prices are good, and therefore more than pay for the grain consumed.

Cost of Wintering Young Heifer Varies Greatly

The feed required in raising as well as the cost of this and other items of expense will vary considerably with different localities. In winter there is no better ration than legume hay, silage and sufficient grain to keep them thrifty and growing vigorously, without becoming too fat. The ration should supply plenty of protein and hence unless a liberal amount of good clover or alfalfa hay is fed, a grain allowance in this element should be supplied. Heifers over ten months of age, especially of the larger breeds, may make satisfactory gains on silage and legume hay alone if of good quality. Results of tests conducted at experiment stations give yearling heifers as requiring from 700 to 800 pounds of hay along with skim milk and other feeds necessary to keep the animals in a growing thrifty condition. In regard to the cost of wintering the heifers this will vary according to the conditions in the neighborhood, such as quantity and costs of feeds and other factors.

DOUBLE GREEN STAMPS ALL DAY WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 3RD

Notice to the Public

During the past five years, we have endeavored to give all of our customers service, quality and courtesy, but in the future we aim to show the public a better and fuller appreciation of the patronage which we have received. And as we expect to give our patrons every attention possible, we are willing to run this risk: To any customer who calls at our service station for Gasoline or other products and does not receive a warm "Thank You" from our attendant, the same customer will receive his goods free, and the same will be paid for by the person who supplies the customer.

We also instruct our help to always try and give clean bills or coins when making change with a customer; neither do we allow any profane language or smoking before customers. We intend to practice the Golden Rule and always maintain a high standard toward the general public.

We do not operate our service station on Sunday, but we are glad to accommodate our patrons at any time, night or day, Sundays included. We need you and you need us, so let us continue to co-operate with one another as we have in the past and try and help each other financially as well as spiritually.

With best wishes for the future success of all, Yours truly, we are

Long Earrings Still

Popular Paris Fashion From time to time the latest news from Paris dooms the earring, the feeling being that it adds years to one's appearance. But the fashion persists. Many attractive styles are offered by the shops that deal in accessories and ornaments. It is no longer surprising to see earrings that touch or almost touch the shoulder. Some are genuine antiques of oriental ancestry, others are extreme examples of modern art. One extravaganza that is rather picturesque is made of enormous hoops, set with pearls, depending from a short pearl chain. Quite different but equally striking are drops consisting of four very large baroque pearls, two white and two gray, joined with small imitation emeralds. Squares of rock crystal, delicately chased, are hung upon wee chains from small cut crystal studs at the ear and tassels of seed pearls are attached by slender links to jeweled rings.

Chain of Oblong Links

Forms Dainty Bracelet The daintiest novelty among the new bracelets is a chain of very fine oblong links in different sizes in gold, or gold and platinum alternating. The clasp is a plain plate of gold on which the initials or monogram is engraved. Some are heavier and the medallion is set with jewels. An entertaining trinket from Paris is the "French puzzle ring." It is composed of three separate slender links, in green, white and yellow gold, ingeniously arranged to form one ring or to be deciphered into three.

FOUND PROFITABLE

Experiments have shown beyond a reasonable doubt that it does not pay to milk a cow continuously right up to the day of her freshening. Almost any good cow can give milk right up to the day her calf is born but it is a better and more profitable practice. to dry her up several weeks before this. This rest that the cow gets before her calf comes enables her to produce much more milk after freshening and puts her in a good strong condition to withstand the strain of a heavy milking period without so much danger of sickness and weakening of her constitutional vigor. Continuous milking up to freshening time undoubtedly tends to reduce a cow's productive life. Generally it pays to dry up a cew from six to ten weeks before her calf is expected to be born.

Some heavy producing cows are not easy to dry up. But it is always possible to dry a cow up within a period of from two to three weeks by cutting down on the amount of grain or meal feed and green feed and by milking her less frequently and by failing to remove all the milk from her udder. Do this gradually and get the milkings farther and farther apart until she is giving only a quart or two of milk daily.

With the drinking cups right at their heads all the time they are in the barn, cows drink much more than they would if they were regularly watered, or had to go to a tank to drink. You would be surprised to see how often they take a sip at the drinking cup. Taking just a little sip that way every now and then, they drink much more in the course of a day then they would otherwise. Another thing, with the tank up near the ceiling, the warmest part of the barn, the water stays at a comfortable temperature in the winter which is another inducement for the cows to drink

The subject of success leads naturally into a discussion of the practical financial side: how to increase one's income, family and personal budgets, economy, and thrift. We learn that a bad saving element of the home is the chief reason why many families are bankrupt today. By careful investigation, it has been found that the ideal division of the expense account of the average family is as follows: 30% for food, 20% for household expenses, 10% for running expenses such as heat, light, laundry, and new furniture, 15% for clothes, and 25% for the higher life,—education, recreation, church, charity, etc.

Sliakespeare Up-to-Date Tells Motorists' Terrible Toll

S HAKESPEARE'S seven ages of mankind made no reference to the number who were cut off in their prime by automobiles. If he had, suggests the Stewart-Warner Safety Council, it might have run something like this parody on his famous lines: At first the infant, Killed by a truck while in his nurse's arms, And then the careless schoolboy with his marbles, Playing in the streets after his lessons Are over. And then the lover, Absent-minded, walking with a box of candy Under his arm, to see his loved one, Is struck by a taxi and hurtled to the ground. Next comes the gay young blood Out for his evening's entertainment, whom Sixty miles an hour lands forty years too soon Upon a slab in some unfriendly morgue. And then the banker, full of worldly pride and honors, Jay-wałks across the street between two mighty deals of finance, And wakes to find Saint Peter quizzing him. Next, the family man, with years upon him, Confused and jostled in the crowd, Missteps, and dies amid thanksgiving That his last premium was paid up. And last, hoary age, tottering and feeble, Perhaps with crutch, or eye too dimmed with time, An easy victim for some selfish motorist, Sans care, sans thought, sans skill, sans everything-but speed. The chart above shows what proportion of all accidents happening to each age group are automobile accidents. The toll is highest for the very young and very old. This situation is explained partly by the heedlessness of the oung and the infirmity of old age. Moreover, these two groups are least nvolved in industrial accidents which makes their automobile casualties constitute a larger part of their total accidents.
