The interest in dairying in the eastern part of Tuscola county is fast increasing. This is due to the fact that Detroit distributors have found Petitioners Seek Permission to it necessary to get more and more whole milk from this area. Farmers are wanting to supply this demand and the object in holding these Dairy-Legume meetings is to assist them in so doing.

Farmers will be asked to bring samples of their soil to the meetings to be tested to determine whether it be grown successfully.

Ideal Football Weather Brought a Large Crowd to the Game.

Cass City's green team added another victory to its credit Friday when it defeated Harbor Beach 10-6. The game was played in the ideal football weather and there was a large crowd at the game.

Cass City scored early. After receiving a kick off, a long pass and a couple of good runs brought the ball into the scoring territory. After two plays which failed to gain, Severance dropped back to the 25-yard line and place-kicked a goal. In the next quarter, he circled the left end for 60 Dugald Livingston yards and he received a perfect interference on this play. (Friday) afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be made in Novesta cemetery. Dugald Livingston was born in Rodney, Ontario, on Oct. 9, 1861, and came to Novesta in early manhood where he engaged in farming. Later, he went to Pontiac where he met and married Miss Sarah Ashby The greater part of their married life was spent in Novesta township. About seven years ago they left that community to reside in Pontiac where Mr. Livingston had accepted a position in the state hospital. Mrs. Livingston passed away two years later and a daughter, Hazel, also preceded her father in death. Mr. Livingston was a member of Cass City Lodge, I. O. O. F.

He leaves four children, Mrs. Frank Foster, Alex, Gerald and Miss Velma Livingston; one brother, John Livingston of Novesta; and one sister, Mrs. Jennie Horton of Detroit.

THE AVERAGE MAN.

A famous British author has sugment to "the average man," just as how vast the damage will be as a reseveral countries have built them to sult of it. make laws, but the average man puts when you leave a camp fire. them in position to do so. Millionaires own our railroads, but the money of the average man, paid in fares and for freight and express makes it possible for the railroads to operate. Learned men write books and talented artists act on the stage and screen. But the books would not be read and the actors would never be heard of if the average man didn't give them his approval. The general public, made up of average men, is after all the power that makes the world go round; the average man's money pays for railroads and autos and good roads and schools and churches—for practically everything the world can't get along without.

Take it here in Cass City and when everything is said and done "the average man" makes it a good place to live in. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon expect to But the man who really secured salvation, even in the old days, proved it by taking the rubber band off of his pocketbook and contributing for the benefit of others in need of it. We all agree that salvation is free, but the fact remains that money has to be paid out for coal to heat the church, for light to enable the congregation to read the hymn books, for the salary of the preacher. He must have a house to live in, food for his table and a certain amount of clothing for his family.

It is a difficult matter to impress on some people that, while salvation is free, it still takes money to keep a church going. It might not be necessary to give so many church suppers and bazaars and all those things if every fellow who attends would make it a rule to assess himself as liberally for salvation as he does for luxuries and amusements. It doesn't matter if salvation is free, the fellow who would starve a preacher and a church has none of it. And the quicker he finds that out the better off he will be, both in this world and the one ahead of him.

THE FIVE-DAY WEEK.

If there is anyone around here who thinks the U. S. is going in for about Vance and Cathryn MacTavish. /52 extra holidays every year just because Henry Ford has inaugurated a five-day week, he is doomed to disappointment. Ford has put all of his industries—auto factory, lumber mills, coal mines, steel plants—on a five-day week. None of his 100,000 employes will work on Saturday or Sunday, but he says they will make as much money as when they worked the full six-day week. But other industries do not appear to be making any move to follow suit. In fact, others argue it would disrupt the country to try to make it general. So outside of the Ford industries the fiveday week looks to be a long time off. It looks so far away, in fact, that we wouldn't advise any of our workers year. in this territory to start in planning what they are going to do with two days to loaf in out of every seven.

The telephone buzzed in Cathewe's

"Hello!" he called, rather grateful for the diversion.

"This is the city hospital. Mr. Mansfield wants to see you immediately. He instructed me to emphasize the importance of this interview."

"Tell him I shall be up as soon as I can get a taxi around."

At the hospital Mansfield greeted Brandon tersely and grunted an order. "In my coat at the foot of the bed is a long envelope. Open it."

One glance confirmed Cathew's suspicions. The envelope contained the complete history of the trial and conviction of Digby Hallowell. "Well?" he said calmly.

To build a great hospital, endowed, to which the poor from the ends of the world might come and find aid without cost. A great free dispensary where the unfortunate woman might also find succor and not be callously sent back to the gutter with her baby. The newspaper to doctor their minds and the hospitals to doctor their bodies. To rebuild their faith in humanity; to make American citizens out of them. Shall I put this envelope back in your coat?"

"No. She sat there in that chair all night, holding my hand. Toward morning she slept. I was in a good deal of pain. It was very still. I fell to thinking. Instead of counting sheep jumping over the fence, I looked myself over, from your point of view, from her point of view, if it should happen she learns the truth. I did not summon you to threaten you. Still, I had to test you. Your chin is still up, and that's the sign I needed. I don't want that envelope. Destroy the stuff. Make Bannister your home; build your free dispensary. What I really wanted was to have you take my hand."

who had the courage to attempt it. I'm no fool. I know men. I want to be the friend of a man who, in these hard, matter-of-fact days, has the courage to walk where angels fear to tread. A smile accompanies that, but it's not visible to you on account of these bandages. A curious idea thrust me into that shack last night. Oh, yes; I saw the poor little tikes, and was glad to save them. But that isn't it. I fought you because I was afraid of you. You were a menacing wedge between me and my daughter. On the day she learned the truth I might lose her. Nothing else matters now but her love. She is extremely imaginative. A deed like last night's would appeal to her. She would always have that moment to throw into the scales. She has opened all the doors of my mind and my heart; I can see and feel. Yesterday I would not have understood you; today I do. There's another secret in that envelope. You overlooked it. You are Cottar, the novelist. But I am offering my hand to the son of Digby Hallowell. Will you take it?"

The strength of the hand that closed over his caused a flash of stinging pain. The wince had puckered the

"You understand?"

"That makes our understanding perfect. Her beauty is the least of her. Do you remember you said that? You saw in a glance what it took me three years to find out. You and I are going to make Bannister a perfect city. But I must do my share in my own fashion. I simply can't have her know: at least until I have made substantial progress. You shall have your paper back, of course. I am growing tired. Just a little more. You could have come to me and demanded I fulfill my end of that mad bargain. You were honest, and you declined. Your whimsicality is on the surface; underneath you are unchangeable. So it occurs to me that if you gave up Betty it was not that you had ceased to care.

Am I right?" "Yes."

"As a man cares but once?"

"But once."

"Then-go and find her." "You mean that?"

"Why not? You are the son of Digby Hallowell, but she is the daughter of Dunleigh Mansfield. Between these two fathers where's the choice? I merely stayed within the law and your father played the game outside. I threw away all the glorious hours bothered with her. Find her, and when you find her tell her I sent you. And then-both of you-come back

"I do not know where she went, sir. It is probable that she is with Miss Maddox."

"May I use the telephone?" Reluctantly the butler ushered the enemy into the study and indicated the telephone.

The Maddox maid replied to the first call. No; Miss Mansfield had gone across to the Cathewes'. The second call was not answered, though he kept central busy for two or three minutes. Vaguely alarmed, he returned to the taxi. In the end he found himself in his own hallway, breathless with the Music. She had come to hear his mother play. This accounted for the unanswered telephone call.

CHAPTER XII

Love's Victory. He opened the door of the livingroom and stood on the threshold. Never before had he heard his mother play the "Fourth Ballade" with such fire and passion.

And the girl there, seated on the floor, her exquisite profile, against the dark wine of the rosewood, as beautifully defined as a cameo! Her eyes were closed in dreamy ecstasy.

Here, after what had taken last night! There could be only one meaning: that she knew everything. Maddox! She had sent for the doctor and in some manner had forced the truth from him. On top of this came the recollection of the cub reporter's confession of having sent Betty a complete series of clippings. She had confronted Maddox with them, and the old fellow had told her the truth. And somehow he must prevail upon her never to let her father know. Here!-because she knew also that he was the author of those letters! Hadn't she come from Nancy's? Out of that abysmal gloom of two hours gone, his miraculous sunshine!

The performer dropped her hands. The piano was still singing as she turned her head.

Betty opened her eyes, and slowly rose to her feet, numb with an inexplicable terror, not unlike that which childhood finds in dark rooms. What had happened? This: it was the first time she had ever seen the man who had written those wonderful lettersthe exquisite poems to the idyl of this hour. She had come boldly into his house in the pursuit of happiness. She saw now the immodesty of the act. The knowledge sent all the blood into her heart, then flung it into her cheeks-burgundy in an alabaster cup. Always he would think that she had sought him. The shame of it!

One tree will make a million matches,and one of the million matches can turn on its parent and destroy it, and a million more giants of the forest with it. A three-fold loss results:

(1) Property loss. (2) State expense for fighting fires, $366,193.33.

(3) An ideal vacation land denuded of its attractions; for timber fires take the beauty from the woodlands, and cause partial drying up of lakes and streams.

Care-vigilance!-on the part of every tourist and camper, both from Michigan and from without our state,—will stop this loss. Remember that northern forests burn easily. DOING WHAT WE LIKE for DON'T care for my work; it doesn't suit me. If I could only find something I liked and was inter ested in, I think I might get on," a shiftless student said to to me.

As he spoke I called to mind the figure of an old man I had seen the last time I passed through the country town where I spent my childhood. He was sitting on the station platform Gagetown were guests at the A. A. whittling and watching the train go Schmidt home Sunday. through. He was bent, unshaven, unkempt—the living picture of failure.

I saw him first when I was seven and he a strong young fellow of thirty. He was running the grain elevator then with good business prospects, but he didn't like it; it did not seem to suit him. He had talents. He sang in the church choir, he lead the village band, he presided at public meetings. He gave up the elevator shortly and opened a grocery store. He tried a news stand; he was postmaster, but Friday. he never put his best effort into any one of these activities, because he was not interested; he thought it was not what he was cut out for. He couldn't just get down to it.

He drifted from Presbyterian to Christian Science; his political favorites ranged from St. John and Grover Cleveland to Theodore Roosevelt. He stuck to no principle or profession, he got nowhere because he could not find anything that really held his interest. Men with half his talent and onefourth of his opportunity far outstripped him, and because he was never willing to do well the thing at hand, he found himself at seventy-five no further than the station platform.

I see men like him every day. They have opportunity to get training, but they are not satisfied, they are looking for some more interesting, more suitable, less exacting work. They hold back or shift about with the hope that they will discover some intellectual occupation that will thrill them so that they will go to it with constant enthusiasm and without personal effort. They fail because they can't get what they like, not realizing that it is possible to learn to like almost anything and obligatory to do our work whether we like it or not.

No man gets anywhere who waits until he is pleased before he does his work. The man who succeeds does more difficult, disagreeable, unpleasant, uninteresting things than does the average man. He doesn't whine and look about for something soft-he

Group Two Had Busy Day in Store

J. L. Cathcart's store was a busy place Saturday when Group Two of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid assumed management for the day. The proprietor had offered them a generous percentage of the day's sales. Appreciative of the offer, the "clerks" trimmed the show windows with appropriate decorations, one of them being unusually attractive with its display of autumn foliage. Lunches were sold during the day. When the store closed late Saturday night the tired clerks, composing Group Two, found that their day's earnings

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT By F. A. WALKER

ACTS OF KINDNESS

HELPING the weak over rough places, being patient with the dullards, encouraging the despondent, aiding the poor and needy, placing flowers by the bedside of the ill and smiling as you go down the path of life, are little acts of kindness which brighten the niche of world in which you live, and go a long way toward making happiness.

A kindly look understood often sets sad hearts to singing and praising. A few well-chosen and softly spoken words become luminous when the days are dark and dreary.

Each soul knows more than can be uttered; each craves sympathy and affection though outwardly it may show no sign of its hunger.

Smile upon a time-worn man or woman and see the joyous light flash in the sunken eyes and an answering smile quiver on the thin lips.

You have touched the right key and the music of love thrills each hapless being. The sweetness in the smile may last for many days, lighten sorrows and smooth cares long after you have forgotten the kindness that cost nothing to bestow, save the thought that prompted it.

And there is another side to this in the fact that you are preaching the gospel of friendship more touchingly and eloquently than the pulpit, getting closer to hearts and stirring deeper emotions.

A grain of friendship is often all that is needed to keep nations from war. The progeny of a grain of wheat feeds the whole world.

The basis of human happiness lies in little things, in little acts of kindness, whether spoken or understood. Such acts have a language of their own requiring no interpreter other than the glance of an eye or the curve of a lip.

the market places in quest of gold, unmindful of the starving thousands around us?

Let but the thought arise, who would not stop to do a little act of dover egg beater. Continue to beat kindness in the season of lilies when great organs throb and gladsome choirs burst into songs of praise which reverberate from pole to pole and wing their way to the sky?

As Told by Irvin S. Cobb

TIME FOR ALL THINGS

TT WAS an irate farmer of the old-I fashioned type who sat him down, pen in hand, and wrote an indignant letter to a concern which made a specialty of selling plumbing supplies on individual orders to rural patrons.

"I have got a kick to make"—thus the farmer wrote. "Early last spring your agent came through this district taking orders for your patent porcelain bathtub. Some of the neighbors give him their names and so nothing would do but that my wife and daughter should have one for our house and they kept after me until I give your man my name, too, and told him to send me one of his tubs.

"Well, that was in the early part of April. April passed and also May and no sign of that bathtub. So I wrote to you telling you to hurry on up and deliver me that there tub. Nothing was done and so June went by and July and then August.

"And now here, when it's the middle of September and the bathing season practically over for the year, you people are trying to make me take that dern tub."

WHAT TO EAT

-Shakespeare.

HE daily problem of thinking up something reasonable, seasonable and economical with a minimum of work is not an easy thing for the housewife who has everything to do.

Some find the breakfast a hard meal to plan with variety. As it should be a simple meal the food served should be reasonably digestible. Other women cloy bread mixer which has been developed in the department of milling industry at the Kansas State Agricultural college. C. O. Swanson and E. B. Working of that department assert that mechanical action on dough can be made to take the place of the usual fermentation previous to putting the bread in pans. With the aid of the depart ments of machine design and shop practice they have invented a bread mixer which they say breaks down the gluten in dough and modifies its texture to such an extent that it does not have to be "put to rise" before being placed in pans. Since the mixing takes only seven minutes and panary fermentation about forty minutes, the time saving is considerable. The bread made by such a process is said to be quite as good in quality as that baked in the ordinary way. Just what application of this process will be made in the baking industry is not yet determined. Further experiments along this line are being conducted at the agricultural college.

CROCODILE HELD AS MESSENGER OF GODS

What tribute was paid to these hideous monsters, thus exalted to godship! They were precious jewels around their thick necks and as bracelets on their short and stubby legs, and carried down into the mud and ooze of the lake bottom the finest specimens of the jeweler's art: enamels inlaid with gold and gems, delicately forged chains, so fine the eye could scarcely see the links, engraved rock-crystals, and charms and emblems of precious

Villain Leads Audience

In London a dramatic novelty has been introduced in the shape of a play wherein the villain stops just before performing some villainous deed. and asks the public "Shall I?" and then suits his action to the expression of the audience. As the majority of the audience decides the play proceeds, So I got to work right in the front halts in the action of the play prepared purposely to allow the audience to express its wishes as to how the plot shall proceed.

Social Distinction

Social distinction is, after all, a matter of opinion. Two colored women in a neighboring town were overheard discussing their family connections. One was from this city. "I have a cousin in Indianapolis, I'd like you to meet," said the other. "So," was the response. "Where does she live?" 'Why she resides at the 'Womman's Prison," said the first, with all the air of one reading a name from the Blue book.—Indianapolis News.

Man's Rubber Qualities

Dr. William Seifriz, professor of botany at the University of Pennsylvania, is appraising how much "rubber" there is in man's make-up, just as the engineers have tested the coefficient of the elasticity of steel and other elasticity structural materials. So far he has discovered that the blood cell, or corpuscle, stretches to only three times its original sizes before it breaks.

Single Track Concrete Roads Win Favor in Bay County

A few years ago farmers in the beet and dairy sections of Bay County were almost completely held up from hauling produce to market during the annual wet seasons. Gravel roads would not stand the heavy loads during these

In 1922 the first single track portland cement concrete road was laid in the County. A nine-foot section laid on the "farm to market" side, the other nine feet of roadway being surfaced with gravel. Farmers along that road were so enthusiastic over having a year around road to haul over that other sections demanded it.

Now Bay County has fourteen miles of single track portland cement concrete roads and is building more each year.

Business men in towns in these farm districts remark a more continuous year around trade since the adoption of con-

Hogarth an Ad Writer

Hogarth, the famous British artist and caricaturist, was at one time an advertisement writer. Before the days of newspapers the enterprising shop keepers used hand dodgers or tradesman's cards which bore the name of the shop keeper and carried wording or pictures to describe his business. A collection of these old tradesman's cards have been found to have been drawn by Hogarth.

That parasites, important as they counted on to destroy only a small percentage of the borers was brought interested in the borer invited to atout by the M. S. C. specialist. No other natural agency or "mysterious source" was seen as likely to control the pest.

"Our only hope lies in getting very busy and simply killing the pest by rapid advances of the European corn main strength," said Pettit. "Aside from the adoption of practices unfaon early cutting, low cutting, shredding or ensiling, or the cutting of stalks into sections a half inch or less in size, the control of the pest is going to be accomplished by the cleanup. It having been represented to me by the Commissioner of Agriculture that tuberculosis exists among the cattle of Tuscola County and that all the cattle of said county should be examined and tested for tuberculosis:

Now therefore, by virtue of the authority provided. I hereby declare that a quarantine exists on all the cattle in Tuscola County and against the importation into Tuscola County of cattle not found to be free from tuberculosis through the application of the tuberculin test, except steers which can be properly isolated or cattle for immediate slaughter, and that the area within the boundary lines of said county shall constitute the quarantine district and that all cattle therein be examined and tested, under the rules and regulations of the Commissioner of Agriculture, a copy of which is hereto attached. ALEX J. GROESBECK, Governor.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

A quarantine having been placed upon all the cattle of Tuscola

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN:

1. That an examination and test for tuberculosis of all the cattle in Tuscola County will be made by authorized inspectors, and except as hereinafter provided no cattle shall be imported into said county of Tuscola during the term of said quarantine.

2. Cattle may be imported into Tuscola County upon the express condition that the owner thereof, or the person lawfully in possession, shall submit to the Commissioner of Agriculture, a proper certificate indicating that such cattle are from a herd tested under Federal and State supervision and found free from tuberculosis, or have been subjected to an approved tuberculin test applied by an accredited veterinarian within sixty days prior thereto.

3. Cattle to be slaughtered within ten days, or steers intended for feeding or grazing purposes, may be imported into Tuscola County without test upon condition, however, that such cattle be kept separate and apart from other cattle until slaughtered or removed from the county. A conditional permit therefor shall be issued by the Commissioner of Agriculture.

4. These regulations are not intended to prevent the removal or exportation of cattle from said county during the term of this quarantine.

L. WHITNEY WATKINS, Commissioner of Agriculture.

Sec. 23. Any person violating, disregarding or evading any of the provisions of this act, or any of the rules, regulations, orders or directions of the Commissioner of Animal Industry (Commissioner of Agriculture) made pursuant hereto, shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor and by conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than six months or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. The doing of any act herein declared to be unlawful or herein forbidden shall be deemed to constitute a violation hereof.
