USE SELF-FEEDER TO REDUCE COSTS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Self-feeding of sows and their litters not only saves times needed for other farm operations, but also gives more satisfactory results, say animal husbandry experts of the United States Department of Agriculture. During tests carried on by the department both sows and pigs kept in the self-fed lots looked better and were more thrifty than those in the handfed lots.

When hogs of any age have constant access to self-feeders there is practically no danger of their overeating, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1504-F, "Self-feeding Versus Hand-Feeding Sows and Litters." This is of considerable importance in the case of sows which are suckling their litters. An additional advantage of the self-feeder system is the freedom from overcrowding at the feeders which is usual when hand feeding is practiced.

The general plan of feeding the on the sick list. self-fed lots was to supply certain feeds in the self-feeders which were constantly accessible both to the sows and their pigs. The sows and pigs in the hand-fed lots were given twice daily all they would readily eat of identically the same feeds as were contained in the self-feeders for the self-fed lots.

It is advisable to raise two litters a year from sows more than a year old on farms having sufficient equipment, thereby reducing the overhead expense per pig.

Details concerning the tests are given in the new publication, a copy of which may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Definite Plan Required

Dafoe, pion. opinion of J. L. Edmonds, chief in at Wilmot. horse husbandry at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. At the present time this matter is too frequently neglected, he says.

Good crop rations which involve the growing of a liberal acreage of legumes produce an abundance of excellent horse feed. When legume hays, such as clover, alfalfa and soy beans, are used for horse feeding, they can be fed more satisfactorily and economically if one-third to one-half of the roughage is made up of a carbo- the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Sweet clover pasture supplies both good and cheap feed. Some permanent blue grass pasture is necessary for horses; nothing else will stand as much tramping as a good blue grass sod. However, the sweet clover pasture supplies an abundance of feed when the blue grass is practically dormant during the hottest weather.

When market prices of coarse grains are as low as they were this year the stoke horse and mule motors for farm work. Their use for this purpose reduces power costs and tends to increase prices of these grains by helping to keep big surpluses off the

LIABILITIES

2. The Cass City State Bank had:

$538,414.60

In 1922 In 1926

(a) four active officers and seven directors. (b) deposits averaging $225,000.

(a) three active officers and five directors. (b) deposits averaging $450,000.

(c) salaries aggregating $6,160. (c) salaries aggregating $4,480. When a business doubles in volume and actually reduces its salary of this size run with so small an overhead. 3. The Cass City State Bank, as shown in its statement, has $40,000.00 in United States Bonds. These are the most liquid asset known today and, if sold on the present market, would yield the bank over overhead by $1,680.00, it necessarily puts itself in a much more lucrative position. We doubt very much if there is another State bank in Michigan

4. The Cass City State Bank carries no 'Other Real Estate" among its assets. While the bank owns two farms and one-half of the stock on one of these farms, these farms and stock have been charged off as a loss and will continue thus until sold at which time the proceeds therefrom will go to Undivided Profits. There are no so-called "frozen assets" in the statement 5. The Cass City State Bank carries its bank building, furniture, fixtures and supplies at $5,000. If you were starting a bank and desired a main corner location, a building equipped with steam heat, a vault equipped with Burglar Alarm system, Anakin locks and gas protection, safety-deposit boxes, adding machines (one cost $1,100), typewriters, steel files, fixtures and desks, stationery and supplies, how much do you think it would cost? Yet $5,000 of our assets cover all this.

6. The Cass City State Bank has a remarkably large reserve for the size of the bank:

Cash and due from banks $59,577.91

U. S. Bonds (worth more than cash) 40,000.00 When you consider that the bank has nearly $100,000 in reserve out of $450,000 deposits, you realize its unusually strong position.

7. The Cass City State Bank had in its published statement for Dec. 31, 1926 Capital, Surplus and Profits......$49,719.43 Dec. 31, 1925 Capital, Surplus and Profits...... 44,504.75

> An increase of 5,214.68

This means more than a ten per cent additional security to depositors without mentioning the farms which, though charged off, are really

8. The Cass City State Bank does not "anticipate" interest on its notes. This means we do not figure interest ahead on notes and consider the interest as profit on the day the loan is made; instead the interest is figured on the note when the note is paid and only then does it go to profit. If we desired (and it is considered legitimate banking) we could figure all interest ahead on the $182,000 of notes and add over $5,000 to our surplus and undivided profits.

9. The Cass City State Bank has no bills payable.

10. The Cass City State Bank had overdrafts of $9.32. Overdrafts are much frowned upon by the State Banking Department and these are kept at a minimum.

The foregoing is not put forth in any spirit of bragging or with any idea of superiority. We merely desire the public to know

(a) that we are in the best condition in the history of the bank, that the year 1926 was the best year we ever experienced, (c) and that our position is worthy of complete confidence.

POINTS MARKING PROFITABLE HENS

Characters that mark the best producing hens are most in evidence during the fall of the year.

Hens molting during July, August, or September, are poor layers as a rule. Early molters are slow molters, their production period being of only short duration. The late molter is a quick molter; she has a long period of production.

A hen to lay well must have a sound body. The first consideration, then, must be vigor and health.

Good layers of yellow-shanked breeds usually show well-faded beaks. legs, and toes at this time of year; while the poor layer will have the yellow beak and shanks.

The laying hen has good width of back and depth of body, and a large abdominal region. The skin is soft and pliable; the vent large and moist. The pelvic bones are spread well apart and are thin and pliable. There is usually three or four finger widths between the pelvic bones and the end of the keel bone. The hen that has stopped laying will show a collection of fat in the abdominal region. The skin will lack pliability and the pelvic bones will show but very little space between them.

When laying, or getting ready to lay, the comb and wattles are well develthe comb and wattles shrink and become covered with a white scale.

Hens of the heavier breeds that persist in broodiness should be culled. Mark the broody hen with a colored leg band every time she is found broody. Cull all those that become broody more than once. Always cull a broody hen of the lighter breeds.-O. C. Ufford, Assistant Professor in Animal Husbandry, Colorado Agricultural College.

Plenty of Green Feed for Hens Is Important

The importance of plenty of green feed for hens has long been known and appreciated, but the average farmer who keeps perhaps 100 hens has been slow to make much of an effort to provide anything like an adequate supply for his hens during the winter months. The poultry experts at Ohio state experiment station, realizing that a regular supply of green feed is difficult to obtain, at least for a great many

Alfalfa, red clover, and soy bean hays were tested out and all gave excellent results. Almost every farmer can easily provide some one of these feeds for his hens, and he will find it greatly to his advantage to do so. The hay should be cut green and well cured, and it will be palatable to the hens only if it retains its green color.

farmers, set out to find a substitute.

The hens will eat more of it if the hay is cut into short lengths, but they will eat a large amount of uncut hay. It has been customary on some farms and clover hays that accumulate on the barn floor, indicating that some people have appreciated the value of this feed for a long time.

Poultry Notes

Keep the ventilator at work so that the air will be fresh and pure.

Gather the eggs often and do not let freeze. Market at least once a week during the cold months.

Success in getting a good egg yield depends to a great extent upon the proper selection of the laying stock.

You simply cannot make a firstclass meat fowl out of a Leghorn any more than you can produce beef that will top the market from a dairy cow, Leghorns, as a rule, have to be sold to a cheap trade.

If any birds in the flock develop colds, put as much potassium permanganate as will remain on the surface of a dime into a gallon of water and keep this mixture in their drinking water for several days.

Have plenty of ventilation in the poultry houses and let as much sunlight in as is possible, but do not allow drafts to exist.

Put aside a few bales of fourthcutting alfalfa for the hens to pick at this winter. Do not bother to remove the wires as there will be less waste if bales remain tied.

Fortunately, feeds such as milk, mash, green food and minerals, that produce winter eggs, also help in producing good hatching eggs.

During the winter the hens will need a larger proportion of grain because some of it must be used for body

Sodium fluoride is safe to use on hens to kill lice and seems to be the most generally recommended of all the louse-killing materials.

Supposition

A Pennsylvania convict who sang popular songs in his cell was released. To make room, it is supposed, for the fellow who wrote the songs.

DAIRY LOSSES CUT BY MILK COOLING

A large proportion of the loss from sour milk, high bacteria counts, and low quality butter and cheese, might be avoided through prompt and thorough cooling of milk at the dairy barn, asserts the dairy department of the College of Agriculture, New Brunswick. All milk should be cooled to son, Leroy. 50 degrees F. or lower and should be kept at that temperature until delivered at the receiving plant.

In the matter of dairy temperatures one should never guess. A good thermometer will always pay for itself in a short time. One can of rejected milk will cost more than four or five good thermometers.

To cool milk to 50 degrees F. or below, ice is nearly always necessary. If ice cannot possibly be had, only the coldest water should be used. This means water direct from the well or spring unless a colder source is available. Running surface water or tank stored water is never very cold. If ice is not to be had, it is desirable to arrange the equipment so that spring water may run constantly through the milk storage tank, or so that all water pumped for farm stock passes first through the tank.

The cooling of morning's milk is the important problem just now. A surface cooler will save time and ice, oped and bright red. When not laying and will enable the farmer to cool it at the farm. Once the milk has been cooled to 50 degrees F. or below, if it is to be held, a cooling tank in the milk house becomes a necessity for final cooling and storage. Milk plant operators can advise farmers as to the best types of coolers, cooling tanks and milk houses to meet the requirements of their respective companies and boards of health.

Bloody Milk Caused by Ruptured Blood Vessel

When a cow gives bloody milk it is due to the rupture of a small blood vessel in one or more of the quarters. This condition usually leaves as soon as the cause is removed.

Immediately after freshening this condition is caused by the inflammation in the udder and leaves as soon as the inflammation leaves the udder. When it takes place later in the lactation it is usually caused by an injury of some kind to the udder. It may be due to lying on a cement floor or by bumps from calves or other cows in the herd. To effect a cure the cause must be removed. Watch the cow carefully to find how she injures the affected quarter and then remove the cause and you should have no further trouble with bloody milk.

Some Grain Is Essential

When Pasture Gets Short To keep up the milk flow of his herd the dairyman who has no sudan-grass to feed the leafy scatterings of alfelfa pasture must increase the grain feed when natural grass pasture gets short. Due to the exertion a cow may actually require more feed when on a sparse pasture than when shut in a dry lot. All cows giving over three gallons of milk daily should get a pound of grain for each five pounds of milk while on pasture. Cows nearly dry and not due to freshen within two months can economically go without grain at present. The chore of milking cows in fly time can be avoided by breeding in late December.

Dairying More Popular

Whenever one half finds dairying profitable, the other half fears that it may be overdone. Hence the warnings now being broadcast that dairying is up in the clouds and due to come down soon. But folks go right along paying their bills by means of a few good cows and hens just as they have for many years past. Quite the opposite, there are now many signs in dicating that dairying will have even more popularity before it has less.

******** Dairy Facts

***************** Green alfalfa has a very pronounced off-flavor in the milk if fed an hour or two before milking, but no effect after five hours.

There is no long waiting period with the dairy cow-she pays as she goes. The cream and the milk sold are usually paid for each week or each month.

Milk utensils should never be left in the sun until after they are carefully cleaned and dried. The use of cotton disk strainers will save time and labor and insure cleaner milk.

During hot weather watch the dairy calves and keep them growing. They are quite susceptible to changes in feed and weather. Better not turn them on pasture under four months of age, and see that they have plenty of good feed, fresh water, and shade.

There are certain fields on every farm which cannot be cultivated profitably. These lands may be sown in pasture grasses and a profit se cured from them through the dif-

By W. A. RADFORD Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give ADVICE FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide sun parlor. To the right of the re-experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Stucco makes an attractive farm home. Experience has taught builders how to apply this material to the exterior walls so that it is durable, will not crack, and by the use of color in the stucco pleasing shades are ob-

The farm home shown in the illustration is an excellent example of the use of stucco. While this is a square home, the overhang of the roof, the bay window on the second floor and the porch with its artistic roof give it an attractive exterior appear-

The house is 24 by 34 feet in dimensions, exclusive of the sun parlor. Inside there are seven rooms, besides the large entrance hall, the bathroom and the washroom. It will be seen by the floor plans that the arrangement of these rooms is such that the work of caring for the home can be done easily.

The entrance door leads into the

Pick Builder You Can

Depend on for House When you make a purchase on which you may have to depend for a lifetime's service, your thought is "how good" rather than "how cheap."

This is especially true when the best costs but little more than an inferior product. It is in the highest degree true of house wiring. You will never see the most important part—the part that is hidden behind the walls; you cannot inspect it before buying.

How, then, shall you choose? answer is, "On faith"-faith in the responsibility, experience, skill and good repute of the electrical contractor who is to install it—faith in his use of only the highest quality material.

Only when a contractor has demonstrated that he possesses these qualifications and that all his material is invariably of the best, has he earned the right to your confidence.

Annual Floor Treatment

When a varnished floor begins to show the effects of hard wear, once a year or oftener, if necessary, sandpaper it lightly and put on a new coat. The habit of doing this every spring in city and country houses and in office buildings preserves the fresh, elegant appearance of good floors.

and Partitions Essential One of the most useful safeguards against fire hazards in dwelling construction is the fire-stopping of walls, partitions and floors. Fire tends to spread upward. Hollow walls and partitions, hollow spaces back of furring on masonry walls, and even hollow floors offer inviting runways for the rapid communication of fire from cellar to attic and from side to side. The remedy lies in adequate fire-stopping which will make an all-lumber residence considerably safer against the spread of fire than masonry wall and lumber floor construction without fire

THE STORY

PROLOGUE.—While despondent over the enforced hiding of her flance, Jim Dallas, slayer in self defense of Homer Parkinson, member of an influential family, Sybil Saunders, popular actress, is engaged to play Viola in a charity performance of "Twelfth Night" on Gull island, on the Maine coast. In the company are Sybil's bosom friend, Anne Tracy, Anne's brother Joe, young wastrel, and Aleck Stokes, an actor infatuated with Sybil.

CHAPTER I.—After the play, which is a big hit, Wally Shine, official photographer, leass something of the jealousy existing the company.

CHAPTER II.—Hugh Bassett, director of the play, and Anne Tracy's flance, tells Joe he has heard he is spying on Sybil in an effort to learn the whereabouts of Jim Dallas and earn the reward offered by the Parkinson family. The boy denies it.

CHAPTER III.—Joe Tracy is arranging for a vacation trip. To Anne he betrave his enmity toward Sybil. Stokes tells Sybil he has news of Jim Dallas, and to secure privacy they arrange to meet in a small summer house.

CHAPTER IV.—The sound of a pistol shot startles the assembled company. Investigation shows a revolver has been taken from a desk in the library. Flora, Stokes' wife, bursts in with the announcement that Sybil has been shot and her body carried off by the tide

CHAPTER V.—Flora Stokes tells Bassett she saw Sybil shot but did not see her murderer. Bassett notifies the sheriff, Abel Williams. He arrives with Rawson, district attorney, and a man called Patrick. All the company is accounted for, with the exception of Joe Tracy, presumably on his trip. Flora gives her evidence, and the authorities arrange so that no one can Bassett was prepared for what he had to tell. During the long wait for the officers of the law his mind had been ranging over it, shaking bare from unnecessary detail the chain of events that had ended in murder. It was impossible to conceal the situation between Sybil and the Stokeses; he could not if he had wished it, and he did not wish it. A girl had been brutally done to death, a girl innocent of any evil intention, and his desire to bring her murderer to justice was as strong as either Williams' or Rawson's. And they could get the facts better from him than from the muddled stories of the others, their minds clouded by prejudice and hearsay. He hoped that what he said would be coldly unbiased, the naked truth as he knew it. That his revelations would involve a woman whom he liked and pitied would not induce him to withhold what ought to be known. Chivalry had no place in this great drama.

Sitting by the desk in the library he unveiled the situation, what he had heard, seen and knew. The men gave an unwinking attention, now and then stopping him to plant a question. The trend of Williams' thought's was soon revealed-he suspected Flora Stokes. When the matter was thrashed out he came to an open admission with the

Rawson, who was smoking, his long, loose-jointed frame slouched down in an armchair, took his cigar from his mouth:

"Of course the woman's the first person you'd think of. She had the necessary provocation and the state of mind. But the way she came in and told them-as Mr. Bassett describes it -doesn't look to me like a guilty per-

"You got to remember something about these people, Rawson-and it counts big-they're all actors."

Bassett spoke up quickly: "No, she wasn't acting. You'd have known that if you'd seen her. What she did was natural-a woman suffering from a fearful shock." "Couldn't an actor put that on?" "Yes, some could, but I'm certain she wasn't.'

honestly say that I noticed him much." "Oh, rubbish!" Williams made a rolling motion in the scoop of the big he was in love with her. He didn't want to kill her, he wanted to keep her alive."

"Men do kill the women they love, especially when they can't get her." "Yes, they do. I've known of such cases. But that's impulse. This was premeditated." The sheriff pointed at the revolver lying on the desk. "Some time to day somebody located that gun, took it for a purpose-not to shoot seagulls as you thought, Mr.

Rawson looked at the pistol: "Premeditation, all right. Was there anybody in the outfit who didn't know you'd opened that drawer and found the revolver gone?" Bassett considered: "Stokes didn't know. He came in after I'd shut the drawer. I didn't speak of it because just as I'd got through asking him if he'd seen anyone, we heard Mrs. Stokes' scream." "And she didn't, of course," commented Williams.

"While you were running round at the point the house was empty?" "I think Mrs. Stokes was here all the time. I never saw her outside."

"Any of the others come up?" "I'm not certain of all of them. know Shine did; I sent him back to phone over to Hayworth for the boats. And Stokes did, he came up for the electric torch when I was in here telephoning to you."

"Then neither of them knew the loss of the revolver had been discovered and they had plenty of opportunity to return it to the desk?"

Bassett nodded, and after a minute's cogitation Rawson went on: "Doesn't it seem odd to you that no one saw Miss Saunders when she came back to the house?" "No. They were all in their rooms, except Shine, who'was down at the Point, and Mrs. Stokes, who was reading on the balcony. I asked her particularly if she'd noticed Sybil pass and she said no, she'd been interested in her book and wouldn't have noticed anybody."

"I'd give a good deal to know what Miss Saunders did in that time. think it would let in some light."

"How so?" Rawson narrowed his eyes in contemplation of an unfolding line of thought:

"Well, what took her out again to the Point after she'd come in? She hadn't a good deal of time and she wanted to change her clothes before supper. It looks to me as if she met someone in the house, someone who wanted her to go down there with

"Mrs. Cornell says she was alone." "She might have started alone and gone to meet them."

"Then it couldn't have been Stokes," said Williams, "for Mr. Bassett says she wouldn't speak to him if she could help it."

"That's right," Bassett nodded in agreement. "She'd never have made a date with him. She shunned him like the plague. If you knew her you wouldn't see anything in that going out. She was restless and unhappy and the place here—the sea, the views—fascinated her. It was our last evening and it was like her not to want to miss any of it, slip out for a minute to enjoy the end of it." minute to enjoy the end of it."

Watch Elimination!

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Thousands have learned to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users give Doan's signed endorsement. Ask your neighbor!

Grundy county farmer, for instance, soon. who took up the poultry sanitation idea and thereby put a stop to the heavy losses which he had been taking as a result of tapeworms and other connection with the sanitation system, Barker yarded his old hens for the first time this past year and as a result the egg production of the flock was more uniform throughout the summer than it had been in previous years, due to the fact that the hens were uniformly fed. Under this plan they always had access to mash but were not allowed to overeat on grain. Barker has co-operated with the agritultural college in its poultry flock record project for three years.

In putting the poultry sanitation plan into practice on his farm, Barker had his flock tested for tuberculosis. It also was pronounced free of bacillary white diarrhea, one of the worst of the many chick diseases.
