FARMERS' CLUBS FAVOR CO.-OWNED ABSTRACT SYSTEM

Only Resolution Presented at Federation Meeting Held Thursday.

Rev. Ray Willson Elected President; J. D. Tuckey, Vice Pres.; Mrs. R. L. Robinson, Sec.

Members of the Tuscola County Federation of Farmers' Clubs went on record as favoring a county-owned abstract system in the adoption of the only resolution reported by the resolutions committee at the 19th annual meeting of the federation held at the Odd Fellow Hall at Caro on March 3. The resolution read as follows:

"Whereas, all persons owning real estate, or expecting to, in Tuscola county, would be interested in an up-to-date abstract system, and

"Whereas, the present and only system is owned by Ealy & Co., now bankrupt, not caused however by insufficient charges made, and

"Whereas, all records and information contained in an abstract are obtained from county records, and

"Whereas, the State Legislature in 1923 passed a very satisfactory law for all counties in the state to own and operate an abstract system, provided the same be ratified by a 3-5 majority vote of the people of the county,

"Therefore, be it resolved, by the Farmers' Clubs of Tuscola county represented here, that we do favor the establishment of a county-owned abstract system, by either buying the present system, or having a new one written up, provided the cost does not exceed $15,000 on either proposition."

The minutes of the federation meeting as contained in the secretary's records read as follows:

The business meeting was called to order by Fred Janks at 11:30 a. m. The report of the secretary was read and accepted, an dthe officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, Rev. Ray Wilson, Ellington-Almer Club; vice pres., James Tuckey, Jolly Farmers' Club; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. L. Robinson; pianist, Mrs. E. R. Purdy, Hickory Farmers Club.

The meeting adjourned for dinner which was served by the Rebekahs, and immediately after dinner, the meeting was called to order by the president, with the opening song, "America," and the opening prayer by Rev. J. W. Greenwood of Akron.

The address of welcome was given by E. J. Riley, president of the Board of Commerce. The Hickory Farmers Club Quartet sang "Make Some Other Heart Rejoice," and "My Native Land." Mrs. Frank McCreedy read a splendid paper entitled "The Ideal

TUSCOLA CO. BOYS WON CHAMPIONSHIPS

Three Cass City Boys Won Honors in State Club Work.

Tuscola county boys won three championships, one second and one third in the state club work for 1926 as has just been announced by A. G. Ketnunen, state club leader. Since Tuscola county has only a limited number of boys and girls in club work these winnings are very creditable to the work which the young folks are doing along this line as well as the local leadership they have.

Harold McGrath of Cass City club which is led by Willis Campbell, agricultural teacher at this place, won state championship honors in the pig club work.

Milton Stewart, a member of the Caro Club led by Blar Woodman, teacher of agriculture in the high school, was state champion in the beef cow and calf club project.

Kenneth Parish of Fairgrove in the club led by Frances Ode won state championship honors in the dairy production project club work.

Claude Mitchell of Cass City club won second place in the dairy calf club work and James Milligan of the same club won third place in the baby beef project.

Livestock club work in Tuscola county is carried on by the teachers of agriculture in the various high schools in the county under the general leadership of the county agricultural agent. During the past three years they have made a very creditable showing. These championships and other placings are arrived at by each county picking their county champions whose records are sent in to the State Department and there all county champions compete for state championships. The winning of the State Championship gives the winner a scholarship at the Michigan State College awarded by the State Board of Agriculture. It is applied on a payment of fees for the Freshman year amounting to $50.00 and if the member attains certain scholastic standings the amount of $45.00 is credited during the sophomore year.

COWS RETURN AUSTIN FARMER NICE INCOME

Jos. Lapeer Has Derived Much Benefit as Member of Cow Testing Association.

Joseph Lapeer, a dairyman of Austin township, whose farm is located nine miles east of Cass City, has derived much benefit as a member of a cow testing assocation in that he has been able to determine which cows are returning him a profit and which ones have been just "boarding round" but not giving him a reasonable revenue. As a result of two years' experience in the association, he has eliminated the non-profit cows. His herd of high producers fed scientifically are rturning him an attractive revenue as the following figures indicate.

For milk sold during December from 13 cows, mostly grade Holsteins, he received the sum of $379.43. In January, from 16 cows, his milk revenue was $485.17. During these two months, two veal calves were sold for $37.17 and four day-old calves for $21.00. The returns from milk for the two months were $864.60 and from the six calves sold were $58.17, making the grand total for that period, $922.77.

Mr. Lapeer finds that he can gain about a can of milk a day by milking his heaviest producing cows three times a day after they freshen. This he has done the past two winter seasons for about a three months' period.

H. W. Holmes.

H. W. Holmes has been re-engaged as superintendent of the Cass City Public Schools for the coming year, by the board of education, at an increase in salary. Mr. Holmes is serving his sixth year as head of the local schools and is recognized as one of the outstanding educators in the Thumb district of Michigan.

FARMERS WAIT FOR CORN BORER DRIVE

Government to Make Fight Against Pest in Mich.--States Must Approve Action.

With millions of dollars ready to back up their fight against the European corn borer, Michigan farmers are waiting anxiously this week for the signal to start the big drive.

A tentative program for the use of the ten millions just made available by the federal government has already been prepared. Only the necessary action by the states to support the federal act is needed now to make it possible for the full machinery to be put in immediate operation.

A large percentage of the appropriation will be alloted to Michigan, according to word received from Washington. While some of the fund must go into organization and equipment to carry on the clean-up planned, literally hundreds of thousands of dollars will be used to pay Michigan farmers for the extra trouble in cleaning up fields in the corn borer area. The corn borer, by this strange twist, promises to be one of Michigan's real "money" crops this year.

Action by the states in the area affected (Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York) is expected daily. Once the five states are in line, the government will throw all its efforts into the great campaign. Educational work and demonstration will go along with the actual control measures. The U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Michigan Department of Agriculture, and the Michigan State College will all have a definite part in the corn borer organization for this state.

Cass City Schools

The program sponsored by the mathematics department of the high school was presented Wednesday morning. The entire high school group was given a part in the solving of mathematical puzzles and mazes for which time limits were stated. A debate was given on the question: Resolved, that the compass is more useful than the protractor in mending broken hearts. Those supporting the affirmative side were Frederick Brown and Roy Anthes. The negative speakers were Eva Just and Mabel Crandell. The most important number on the program was a tragedy in three acts and entitled "The Fatal Quest," with the following cast: King, Francis Elliott; Queen, Vera Mudge; Princess, Mildred Karr; Duke, Clarke Helwig. The Duke, very much in love with the princess, endeavors to prove himself worthy to the King who disapproves of his daughter's suitor. Finally in a burst of anger, the denied lover kills the King. Stricken with grief, the Queen commits suicide. Horrified at the consequences of his deed, the Duke drinks poison. The Princess, left alone, died of a broken heart.

The high school music class is studying grand opera and learning to interpret music technically as well as listening and appreciating the general effect. The class has learned some of the popular opera airs and find them more attractive than the popular song so much in vogue.

At the elimination try out for the oratorical and deciamatory contestants held last week, Virginia Day received first place with her declamation. Phyllis Lenzner was a very close second. In the oratorical contest, Ethel Wager and Vernita Knight tied for first place. A final decision will be determined this week.

THE CASFORD CONCERT CO.

The next entertainment to be brought here on the local Lyceum course will be given by the Casford Concert Company, a notable musical entertainment organization Tuesday evening, Mar. 15.

Trios of violin, piano and harp, duets of harp and violin, solos of harp, violin and voice, and a widely varied selection of readings, are features of this interesting program.

Primarily the members of this company are individual artists, although ensemble numbers are given due prominence in their programs.

Fern L. Casford, who heads the company, is well known to Lyceum audiences, having spent several years in Lyceum and Chautauqua giving complete programs alone. She is a reader and impersonator of worthwhile talent, and an able pianist.

Winifred Casford, a sister, is a violinist and soprano of unusual merit. She has studied under the direction of Carl Frederick Steckelburg and has been acclaimed one of his most gifted pupils.

The third member of the company is Byrne Smith, harpist. Miss Smith has studied extensively under the renowned harpist Salvi, undoubtedly one of the greatest artists of the day.

The type of program, the skill with which it is presented and the poise and personality of the members of the company, combine to make an evening of genuine enjoyment.—1 Advertisement.

WEIGHT AND GAS TAX LEVIES MAY BE READJUSTED

Permanent $5 Licenses and 4 Cent Gas Tax Favored at Hearing.

Senate Passes Corn Borer Bill 31-0 and Speeds it to Representatives.

As the 1927 session of the Legislature reaches the half-way mark there are indications that intense battles over some old issues will soon be making things very interesting. Automobile weight and gas tax bills, the taxation of foreign securities and re-apportionment of the members of the House of Representatives on the basis of citizenship, rather than the total population, are some of the big issues facing the lawmakers.

The first important step toward a new system of gas and auto license taxes was taken Thursday evening when a big public hearing was held before the Roads and Bridges Committee of the House. All the measures proposing changes in the state highway finance laws were debated pro and con until a late hour.

It was interesting to note that all of those who spoke were earnestly in favor of seeing Michigan's highway program continued without curtailment and were further agreed as to the justice of the gasoline tax as a measure of the amount of the contribution which each motorist should make toward highway construction and maintenance. Even the spokesmen for the truck and bus lines declared that they would not object to putting an increase on the gas tax.

Two witnesses presented the agricultural viewpoint. They were M. B. McPherson of Lowell and Floyd Walworth of Corunna who spoke on behalf of the Michigan State Farm Bureau. Mr. McPherson said that the Farm Bureau had been credited and cursed with being chiefly responsible for the enactment of the present gas tax law. He said that it was the aim of the organization to represent its members at all times and that the desires of the majority of the Farm Bureau members would be most nearly met by passage of the Town and Strauch bills with amendments lessening the rate on light trucks. These two bills, it might be explained, would provide for a 4c gas tax, permanent $5.00 license plates for passenger cars, an annual weight tax on trucks and busses and the return of two million dollars additional of highway funds back to the counties.

"The Farm Bureau will assist and do everything possible to see that the weight tax on light trucks is reduced to 30c per hundred pounds," declared Mr. McPherson. "Furthermore, large trucks and trailers over forty feet in total length should be taxed at least double the usual rate. They constitute a traffic menace to the public and the time has come when that evil must be corrected."

Mr. Walworth emphasized the points outlined by Mr. McPherson and declared that his organization

Vocational Notes.

Arlan Hartwick's good three year old Holstein heifer gave 64 lbs. of milk Tuesday. She is a calf drawn in the club of 1925 and is from the Gamble farm.

Watson Spaven's two club heifers are giving him a can of milk a day. His last calf to freshen stood second at the state fair in club work.

Ivan Hamilton and John Tuckey each report fine litters of 13 pigs each from their club gilts of last year. These were the only two Durocs in club work last year.

A fine Aberdeen steer and a Guernsey heifer were delivered to two of our boys Saturday. Jim Milligan, son of Robert Milligan, gets the Angus and James A. Milligan, son of Alex Milligan, gets the Guernsey heifer.

Audley Rawson, Herbert Maharg and Willis Campbell visited the Seredella farm at Oscoda in the interests of the Cass City Calf Club. Three typy calves were purchased for boys in the club.

John Ball, Mr. Stephen Dodge and Willis Campbell visited the Fordney Jersey farm over the week-end and purchased two fine Jerseys for this year's clubs. Both calves go to the Dodge farm to aid in building up a herd of Jerseys.

Kindergarten—One of the children brought a picture of St. Patrick to school for us to see. We are making Irish hats for St. Patrick's Day. We are talking about Holland, its funny windmills and dikes. We have a toy windmill which shows us how they work, and we have learned a windmill game. But best of all, we learned all about the little Holland boy who saved his country from the water. We call him the "little hero."

First Grade—The girls won in last week's spelling match, much to the boys' disgust. Monday we played off a tie in our number race. The boys carried off the honors with just one point. We are studying the robin—what it eats, how the nest is built, its habits in general.

Second Grade—The boys won again in our number contest last week. We are learning to write dollars and cents. For our language, we are preparing to dramatize the story, "Sleeping Beauty."

Fourth Grade—We are invited to the first grade Thursday afternoon and were entertained by them in a play, "The Old Woman and Her Pig." We are studying the New England states. We have had no tardy marks this months and only two and one-half days absences.

Fifth Grade—We have finished Whittier's poem, "School Days," and are learning "A Song" by James W. Riley. We welcomed the first robins this week. Our attendance record for this week has been perfect.

Sixth Grade—We have commenced the study of the different kinds of sentences, the first one being the declarative sentence. In geography we are comparing the North Atlantic Costal Plane, the new England-Canadian Maritime section, and the Newfoundland-Labrador section, as to surface, soil, industries, products, etc.

Poor Music

A very deaf old lady, walking along the street, saw an Italian turning a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it awhile, shook her head and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and, besides, it smells as if there were something burning inside."

SELECTING AND COOKING CHOPS

If Cut Too Thin They Are Liable to Dry Out.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Doesn't your family enjoy chops for a change? For dinner you can serve any kind of lamb chops—loin or rib, shoulder or leg—or the corresponding cuts of mutton, if it is sold in your markets; or the veal chops from rib or loin. Whether you broil or panbroil them, if the chops are selected from a good grade of meat and are cooked with care to retain their juiciness and tenderness, they will have a zestful flavor and characteristic quality unexcelled by any cut of meat. In buying chops it is well to have them cut to order; otherwise they may be cut so thin that they toughen and dry out in cooking. The butcher has to meet public demand and many of his customers want a large number of chops from any given weight rather than a few thick juicy ones. In cutting rib and T-bone chops, the width of the bone may well be the guide, cutting one chop to each rib or each section of the bone in the loin. For other cuts the thickness should be at least three-quarters of an inch.

Whichever kind of chops you choose, and no matter which method of cooking you use, plan to serve your dinner the moment the chops are done, so that they will be piping hot. Of course you will see that the dinner plates are hot, too. Any attempt to keep chops warm after they are done to a turn usually results in overcooking them or making them greasy.

Lamb and veal chops are usually preferred well done, but not dry. A "rare" mutton chop is often expected. Both lamb and mutton chops have so much surrounding fat that they are usually broiled or pan-broiled rather than fried. More or less superfluous fat and skin is, even then, trimmed from them before they are cooked. The chief point about any method of cooking chops is to sear the outside at once at a high temperature to prevent the juices from escaping. To broil chops in a gas oven, put them on the rack in the pan that slides under the flame and turn them several times. Many people think that a chop broiled over live coals or a wood fire has no equal. For this a greased wire broiler is used. Pan-broiling is done in a heavy iron skillet heated hissing hot. The chops are put in, turned as soon as the under surface is seared on the other side. Then turn them often, lifting them between two forks to avoid piercing the surface and losing the meat juice. They will be well done in 10 or 12 minutes. Serve promptly on a hot platter, with or without a tomato, onion, or brown sauce. Chops, like broiled steaks, should be seasoned when eaten rather than during the cooking because salt draws out the juices.

French chops are the rib chops which have had all superfluous skin and flank trimmed closely from the bone. The butcher usually does this. They are used for formal occasions with a little paper frill concealing the scraped bone which sometimes chars on cooking. For the ordinary family dinner, however, French chops are not an economical selection.

As veal chops have much less fat in proportion to lean meat than lamb chops, they are likely to dry out considerably before they are cooked through unless protected by a coating of egg and bread crumbs. Choice veal, however, is excellent prepared in this way. It is called breaded veal. You simply fry it in deep or shallow fat according to your preference. Sometimes veal is dry and tough so that it must be prepared by a method which will develop tenderness. For such veal, season, dip it in flour, and then cook it in shallow fat until a crust is formed on both sides. Then add hot water and simmer the meat slowly until tender. It will be surrounded by a rich brown gravy. This gives a much tastier meat dish than another method some housekeepers use in which they first parboil the veal and then dip it in egg and flour and brown it in fat.

A little more seasoning is usually liked with veal than with other chops. Before dipping in the egg and bread crumbs or in flour sprinkle each chop on both sides with a few drops of lemon, worcestershire sauce, and if you like, onion juice, as well as salt and pepper. A tomato sauce is often served with veal.

Mint or currant jelly goes especially well with lamb chops.

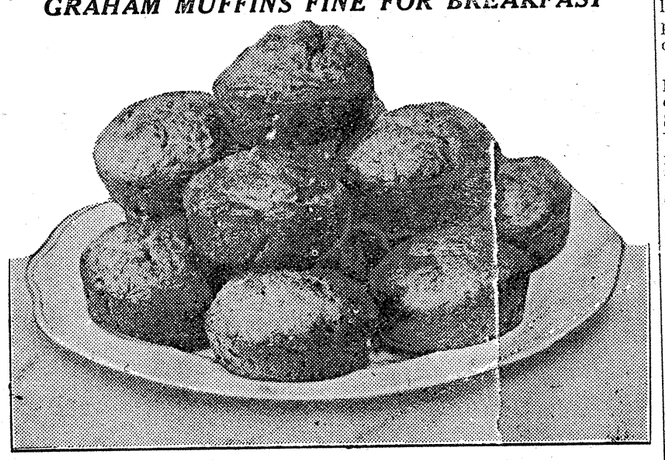
Cook Shredded Carrots in Milk for Children

This is an ideal way to prepare them for children because it is adding calcium to calcium for building teeth and bones. And we believe that you will find, too, that the grown-up members of the family who turned up their noses at carrots before will think that they have discovered a new vegetable when they taste them prepared in this way. For a family of five you will need about one quart of the shredded raw carrots. Use a coarse grater or vegetable slicer and you can prepare the carrots in a very few minutes. For this quantity of carrots you need about a pint of milk. Bring the milk to the boiling point, add the shredded carrots, and let them cook gently for from 15 to 20 minutes. Add about ½ teaspoonful of salt, 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, and serve with the milk around them. The natural bright color of the carrots seems to be made even brighter by the cooking in milk and the flavor is delicate and sweet. If the milk is allowed to boil up while the carrots are cooking it forms a scum and they are not so attractive.

There Are Various Ways of Cooking Sally Lunns

There are various kinds of Sally Lunns, some raised with yeast, some with baking powder. Here is a recipe for the yeast-raised kind. The ingredients are: 1½ cupfuls milk, 2 eggs, ½ cupful water (lukewarm), 1½ cakes yeast, 4 tablespoonfuls butter, 3 teaspoonfuls salt, 4 tablespoonfuls sugar, 4 cupfuls flour. Scald the milk, add the sugar, salt and butter and allow the mixture to cool. Soften the yeast in the water. When the milk is lukewarm add the yeast, the beaten egg and the flour. Pour the batter into a buttered pan, and allow it to rise to double its bulk. With this quantity of yeast it should rise and be ready for baking in 3 to 4 hours, but the exact time depends on a number of things and cannot be given definitely. Try to time it, though, so that your "Sally" will be hot for dinner. Before putting it into the oven, sprinkle the top with sugar and cinnamon and bake in a moderately hot oven.

GRAHAM MUFFINS FINE FOR BREAKFAST



Graham Muffins Are Always Acceptable for Breakfast.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here is a recipe for graham muffins which will answer for hot bread at breakfast and toasted muffins at dinner by making double the quantity given:

2 cupfuls milk
4 to 6 tbsp. melted fat
2 eggs
4 tsp. baking powder
3 cupfuls coarse graham flour or
3½ cupfuls fine graham flour measured without sifting
1 to 2 tblsp. sugar, if desired
1 tsp. salt

Mix the dry ingredients. Beat the eggs slightly and add to the milk. Stir the liquid mixture gradually into the dry and add the melted fat last. Bake in greased tins in hot oven, that is, 400 to 425 degrees F. You can use this recipe for wheat muffins made of soft-wheat or pastry flour by allowing 4 cupfuls of flour in place of the amount of graham flour given.

Budget Bills Confront Solons.

The Finance and Appropriations Committee of the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee of the House are just beginning to report out for general consideration the multitude of biennial appropriation bills. They had been faced with the extremely difficult task of meeting the actual financial needs of the state institutions without being so liberal as to make a considerable increase in the state general property tax for the next two years.

The first major appropriation to pass either branch of the Legislature was the bill fathered by Senator Norman B. Horton of Fruit Ridge providing $200,000 of state funds for each of the next two years to fight the European corn borer. This measure is being rushed through in order to meet the requirements of the Purnell bill recently signed by President Coolidge which makes ten million dollars of Federal aid available to the states, provided they pass approved regulatory measures and make adequate state appropriations. This measure has now gone to the House where prompt and favorable action is expected.

Senator Horton's bill to require hunters to obtain the written permission of the owner or occupant before trespassing on farm lands is still in the Senate Committee on Conservation. Senator Horton reports that the many letters being received by various Senators in favor of this bill are developing considerable support.

Would Regulate Broadcasting.

Supervision of the schedules for radio broadcasting from Michigan stations would be vested in the Michigan Public Utilities Commission under the terms of a bill proposed by Rep. Joseph C. Armstrong of Detroit. The purpose of this measure is to police the air so that interference from simultaneous broadcasting may be minimized.

The old issue of legislative reapportionment loomed up again when Rep. Joseph E. Warner of Ypsilanti proposed a constitutional amendment which would apportion the representatives on the basis of the number of citizens in the various counties, rather than on the total inhabitants as at present. Two years ago the Legislature made a reapportionment which considerably increased Wayne county's representation in both the Senate and the House. According to the constitution the next redistricting would be made in 1933.

Under the 1920 census Wayne county had 32.1 per cent of the total population of the state and 58.7 per cent of the alien population. In 1920 there were 395,677 aliens in Michigan. "Why should aliens be given representation in the Michigan Legislature?" Rep. Warner asks. "It is all wrong to base representation on swarms of people who never intend to become citizens."

A complete rewriting of the Michigan law relative to the control of apiaries and the suppression of diseases among bees has been proposed by Rep. Milton D. Bryant of Traverse City.

Would Tax Securities.

A five mill tax on the face value of all foreign bonds and other such evidences of indebtedness is provided in a bill introduced in the House by Rep. William J. Thomas of Grand Rapids. Similar measures have been before the Legislature during recent sessions and one year such a bill was passed but vetoed by Governor Groesbeck. This measure is intended to lessen the burden of the general property tax by reducing the amount of tax exempt securities.

Proposing to "take the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction out of politics," Senator Tom Read of Shelby and Rep. Joseph Warner of Ypsilanti have introduced identical measures which would provide that the head of the state's educational system would be appointed for a two-year term by the Board of Education instead of being elected at the polls.

Protection for farmers' live stock against bears and vicious dogs is being considered. A measure setting up requirements for the killing of dogs by legal process when complaints are registered by farms whose stock has been damaged, was introduced by Rep. John E. Gillett of Rapid City. Rep. Fred R. Ming of Cheboygan proposes that farmers would be reimbursed for damage done to their live stock by bears. The State Conservation Department would provide the money out of its game protection funds.

Would Aid Smaller Counties.

Identical bills proposing interesting amendments to the gas tax law which would materially benefit the counties with small valuations were introduced in the Senate by Sen. Albert J. Engel of Lake City and in the House by Rep. H. Earl McNitt of Cadillac. These measures would impose an additional cent gasoline tax. During the balance of this year the extra revenue would be used to pay the past due awards owed to the several counties. Beginning with 1928 this new revenue would be apportioned equally among the 83 counties in the state, provided that they submitted a program of proposed improvements satisfactory to the State Highway Department and complied with certain other regulations.

The sponsors of this proposal explain that their purpose is to assist the counties with their highway finance problems and that it has a considerable element of fairness because all counties have nearly the same total mileage of roads regardless of tax paying ability. It is pointed out that the smaller the assessed valuation of a county, the higher the road tax rate for highway purposes must be and the greater the need of state aid.

And as a result, all over America the Greater Oakland Six is establishing levels of owner satisfaction that have never been reached by any other car of comparable price!

Suppose you read about that Kentucky woman who is bringing suit against some guy for stealing 100 kisses. Seems to us it took her a long time to wake up to the fact she was being robbed.

If you are thinking of building a brooder house for your baby chicks this spring, let us show you the "Royal Brooder House."

Jim Smith tells us about somebody he knew who took a ride a short time ago on one of those sightseeing busses out in San Francisco. When they reached a big hill the man with the megaphone requested the passengers to hold their grips in their hands to lighten the load. Everybody did! Then as the grade got steeper, he asked them to stand up. And everybody did! What would you have done? So would we.

Bill White tells us this happened in one of our local stores. A lady asked to "see the thinnest thing you have in silk hose," and they brought out the cashier.

WHY

Postponement of Death Is Possibility

Is death a necessity for individual living beings? This is the question that H. Munro Fox asks and answers in his paper called "Is Death Inevitable?" in the Forum. Modern biological science has proved the very remarkable fact that the cells of our bodies die only because they are not in the right environment to go on living. Cells have been taken out of the bodies of living animals, and, in the laboratory, have been kept alive under conditions better than those which the animal's body had offered to them. For instance: Some living cells taken from the body of a chicken were kept alive in the laboratory in a liquid which had the same chemical makeup as the blood serum of the chick. The cells divided actively and increased in number. Whenever the cells became too crowded some were removed, and from time to time the liquid was renewed, for it became full of poisonous waste products thrown out by the growing cells. In this experiment the cells continued to grow and divide for 12 years (a considerably longer period than the maximum life of any fowl) without ever showing signs of diminished vigor. If we take from the chick some connective tissue (the living tissue which holds together all the muscles, nerves, etc.), and also a piece of kidney tissue and grow each tissue separately in a tube, the growth continues vigorous and undiminished for an indefinite time. But if both of these tissues are grown together in the same tube, although cell multiplication is at first vigorous, it soon falls off and finally ceases. After that the cells all die. Each type of cell in the presence of its neighborhood is mortal. Evidently each kind of cell gives off waste products which are poisonous for its neighbor. In short, the living organism is a mortal whole, made up of immortal parts. Only its eggs or spermatozoa have the chance of avoiding death.

Why Savings Banks Are of Use to Community

While deposits in savings banks in this country are increasing rapidly as the direct result of special thrift educational activities, it is a matter of interest that more and more of these saved dollars are going directly into community upbuilding.

Between January 1, 1919, and January 1, 1926, the savings banks of New York state increased their loans on real estate mortgages 112 per cent.

In Massachusetts during the period from 1915 to 1925 the mutual savings banks increased their mortgage loans in an amount equal to two-thirds of their increased deposits during the period.

In Connecticut the mutual savings banks have 49.5 per cent of their funds invested in mortgage security; in New Jersey, 45.8 per cent.

This money not only helps finance large building operations, but it is being made use of to help the individual home owner.—Thrift Magazine.

Why Variability in Time

The Naval Observatory says that the apparent daily motion of the sun not being perfectly uniform, it does not ordinarily cross a standard time meridian exactly at noon by the clock, and is therefore said to be slow or fast, as the case may be. The difference between clock and sun is greatest in the first part of November, when the sun is over 16 minutes ahead of the clock. The variability in the apparent motion of the sun is due to the equator of the earth not being in the plane of its orbit, and the orbit not being circular, but slightly elliptical.

Why Aviator Got Prize

Captain Campbell, who is a member of the Marine corps, was awarded the Schiff memorial trophy as the aviator compiling the greatest number of hours in the air during the fiscal year 1926 without serious accident. His total time was 839 hours 40 minutes. This is not only the record in the Navy and Marine corps, but also in the army. Officials of the National Aeronautical association say that his time establishes a world record.

How to Clean Fringe

Gilt fringe may be cleaned by brushing with the following composition: Shellac, 1½ ounces; dragon's blood, ½ dram; turmeric root, ½ dram. Digest with strong alcohol, decanting the ruby-red-colored tincture thus obtained. After coating with this composition, a warm flatiron is gently brushed over the objects so as to heat them only very slightly.

Why Ironwork Needs Paint

The importance of painting iron or steel—be it used in spanning a great river or in so insignificant a place as the furnace door—is unquestioned. Because metal conveniences and appliances rust is nothing against them, since, by the very quick and inexpensive process of applying paint that difficulty is removed.

Why Leaves of Tree Fall

Leaves fall in autumn because at that time a layer of brittle cells grows across the base of the leafstalk which cuts the leaf adrift. Wind and frost have no direct relation to leaf-fall.

Why Hair Turns Gray

Frequently hair turns gray as the result of worry. Most grayness in hair, however, is caused by disease.

Caro Won County B. B. Tournament

In a tournament at Caro last week, Cass City won two out of three games played.

The local team that went over to Caro was somewhat handicapped, although they played great ball during the latter part of the tournament.

Cass City lost to Gagetown Friday afternoon 21 to 14, but the next day they came back strong to win from Mayville in the morning, 26 to 16, and at night Akron was downed 22 to 34. In the last game the boys showed some real basket ball and it would have taken a real team to beat them.

The championship game was played between Vassar and Caro in which Caro completely outclassed Vassar and won easily 29 to 16.

At Bad Axe tournament Wednesday, Cass City lost to Caro in the closing minutes of play, after leading all the way through. The boys put up one of the best fights, if not the best of the year, and even in defeat they proved themselves to be a great team.

PIG DISEASES ARE WORSE IN SPRING

Lameness, unthriftiness, partial paralysis or rickets in pigs are very prevalent especially in the winter and early spring. It has been demonstrated that deficient rations will cause such ailments, which affect not only the bones but also other tissues of the body, especially nerve tissue. The addition of minerals only to the basal ration may not prevent the onset of rickets or related disorders. It is green growing grass and forage crops with their abundance of vitamins and minerals that are the natural practical carriers of these essential food constituents. Good substitutes for grass when pigs are most troubled with rickets are green leafy legume hays, preferably alfalfa hay to which pigs and sows should have access, or which after being chopped or ground may be to the extent of about 5 per cent in their feed mixture. Both vitamins and minerals in a ration are necessary for proper growth and health of pigs. Vitamins and minerals go hand in hand for proper growth of bones and other tissues, according to E. R. Frank, of the animal pathology division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

In some sections there seems to be a deficiency of iodine which is shown by the condition known as hairlessness in pigs. This condition may be prevented by putting one dram of potassium iodide in each 100 pounds of feed fed to sows during the gestation period.

It is well known that dairy cattle need minerals as part of their daily ration. These minerals are needed to develop the skeleton and for the proper functioning of the glands and organs of the animal body. The tremendous increase in milk production of the modern dairy cow has caused a greater mineral acquirement. On the other hand, dairy feeds are often grown on soils that have been depleted of the essential mineral elements and as a result there is deficiency in the crops grown on such soils. The two mineral elements most likely to be deficient in the ration are lime and phosphorus. These two minerals combined make up about 85 per cent of the bone. Lime also is necessary not only for bone building and milk production but also muscle development. When these two elements are not present in sufficient amounts it may result in weak bones and diseases of a rachitic nature. Minerals are also needed for proper reproduction. Considerable lime and phosphorus are found in the skeleton of the fetus.

The best use of minerals in the ration depends on the presence of a certain vitamin that aids in their utilization. This vitamin is found abundantly in cod liver oil, green feeds and well cured hay. Pasture usually furnishes a sufficient amount of the mineral retention factor. When pasture is not available this is furnished by well cured hay. Well cured alfalfa hay is the dairyman's best feed since it supplies lime and vitamins as well as good protein.

Distemper in Colts Has No Known Medical Cure

Distemper in colts, like measles in children, commonly has to be put up with some time during the young animal's life. Once the disease is manifest it cannot be cut short by any form of medicinal treatment. Therefore, the animal affected should be placed in such surroundings as will offer it the most comfort and the best opportunity to cope with the disease. A good, roomy, clean, airy stable is a decided aid to such animals and when the weather is mild they preferably may be kept out of doors. The abscesses forming under the jaw should not be meddled with until they are ripe. Then they should be freely opened. The escaping pus should be collected and burned, as its distribution in a stable only increases the infection chances of other horses.

Live Stock Hints

One reason for ewes sometimes failing to breed is too much flesh and too little exercise.

One of the handiest devices on the farm is a chute for loading hogs. It may be made stationary, as a part of a pen, or it may be mounted on a couple of old mower wheels.

Extra feed for ewes at breeding time (flushing) has increased the lamb yield 15 to 20 lambs to the 100 ewes above the usual yield, according to United States bureau of animal industry.

Hogs suffer more frequently from unbalanced, inefficient rations than does any other class of live stock.

Ohio specialists say that in 1840 the average sheep in that state sheared two pounds of wool—today seven and three-tenths pounds.

The horse perspires through all the pores of his body, the same as man. To a limited extent, cattle do the same, but with the hog, his escape valves are confined to the orifices upon the inside of his legs.

Where could You find a better Salesman?

"Thank goodness, it's you, Elsie, and not another agent!" Mrs. Pelton opened the door wide for her friend. "I've had three this forenoon," she continued with acid in her voice, "but I simply will not let them in!"

After a discussion of "these peddlers," Elsie asked, "By the way, did you get one of these announcements yesterday from Simmons & Blake? . . . Isn't that Jeffers hat the cutest thing?"

At least three points in this conversation should interest every merchant in our town.

FIRST: Your competition from city stores and factories today is right on our own streets—ringing the doorbells of your customers.

SECOND: Most people dislike that kind of selling. You must not imitate the "peddler."

THIRD: There is a businesslike way to meet this problem, and protect your trade. Simmons & Blake are using it!

Mail to every home where you want to sell goods, a printed salesman. Let him present your special offers. He will always get in, and be well received.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Long Filibuster in Senate Marks End of Sixty-Ninth Congress.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

NOT without considerable good work to its credit, the Sixty-ninth congress gave up the ghost on Friday. Considerable important legislation was left unfinished because of a filibuster in the senate which provided as fine an exemplification of the need of reforming the senate's rules as Vice President Dawes could wish.

Senator Reed of Missouri was determined to get a vote on his resolution continuing the life of his "slush fund" committee, and several test votes showed that he had a majority with him. But the old guard Republicans were equally determined to frustrate him, and, led by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, they carried on a filibuster which kept the senate in continuous session for 37 hours. Missouri Reed would not permit an adjournment, so the senators, or a quorum of them, dozed in their seats or read novels while colleagues talked interminably on various topics. For instance, Cameron of Arizona spent nearly three hours reading a huge manuscript concerning the copper-mining industry of his state, and Cole Blease read the entire constitution of South Carolina. Reed of Pennsylvania at one time demanded an investigation of elections in Southern states.

"Will you investigate?" demanded Reed of Pennsylvania, "if I bring you the affidavits of persons denied the privilege of voting?"

"No!" countered Reed of Missouri. "But if you can make out a prima facie case of any Southern senator being here illegally I will investigate. The trouble is that you don't want an investigation. That's why you are holding up the public business with this filibuster."

Time out was taken Wednesday afternoon and the bill to regulate prohibition enforcement was passed. In the early hours of Thursday there was an attempt to suspend the filibuster temporarily and dispose of the public building, alien property return and second deficiency appropriation bills. Every one consented except Blease, but he was stubborn and the filibuster was resumed. Shortly after midnight, Thursday, the deadlock was broken and the senate adjourned until 8:30 Friday morning. In the few remaining hours of the Sixty-ninth congress an attempt was made to pass the important second deficiency appropriation bill, but it failed.

Among the blocked business was the report of the Reed committee citing Samuel Insull and D. J. Schuyler of Chicago and T. W. Cunningham of Philadelphia for contempt. Reed said he would revive this at the beginning of the next session in December.

IN SEVERAL respects the navy fared well last week. On Monday the house by a vote of 243 to 111 approved of the elevation of turret guns on the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada. The bill appropriates $13,150,000 for modernization of those vessels, increases the cost limit of the new airplane carriers, Lexington and Saratoga, now building from $34,000,000 to $40,000,000 each and increases the cost limit of a fleet of submarines now in the course of construction from $5,300,000 to $6,300,000.

On Wednesday President Coolidge signed this measure, and also gave his approval to two other navy bills. One of these appropriates $318,000,000 for strengthening the navy, the principal feature being the construction of three new cruisers. The other bill authorizes an appropriation of $4,654,000 for improvements at the naval stations at Coco Solo, Canal Zone; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii; Sand Point, Wash., and San Diego, Calif.

While, of course, the cruiser bill centered about the three speedy fighting craft, the measure contains for the first time an adequate appropriation for naval aviation. Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, said that the $25,000,000 carried for aviation purposes will allow the navy to carry out virtually all the provisions of the first year program under the five-year naval air expansion bill.

IOWA has started the Lowden for President boom in real earnest. Republicans from every congressional district in the state met in Des Moines and unanimously indorsed the former governor of Illinois for the 1928 nomination, sending him a telegram urging him to enter the race. The meeting, in which were legislators, farmers, business men and labor leaders, selected Frank J. Lund of Webster City as manager of the movement and formulated plans for the immediate organization of "Lowden for President" clubs throughout the state. To date Mr. Lowden has made no comment on the veto of the farm relief bill and his chances for the Presidential nomination.

Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman for New York, is making a tour of the country and from California sends a prophecy that Republican victory next year is certain because of the excellent record made by the Coolidge administration. It was notable in the statement that Mr. Hilles did not predict that Mr. Coolidge would be the party's nominee. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who also has been traveling, said he did not hear much about Coolidge succeeding himself, but that there was much talk about Lowden and Dawes, and even of Beveridge, Governor Hammill of Iowa and Senator Capper of Kansas.

As for the Democrats, Doctor Butler thinks Gov. Al Smith is about their only choice. He found the Middle West especially interested in the picturesque New York executive. Senator Heflin evidently fears Smith may lead his party, and in the senate Wednesday he found a chance to continue his attacks on Smith and the Roman Catholic church generally. He took a slam at the British ambassador because he is a Catholic, and predicted a war between the United States and Mexico.

EDWARD L. DOHENY and his oil companies sustained a severe blow when the Supreme court of the United States affirmed the cancellation of oil land leases and contracts awarded Doheny by Albert B. Fall when the latter was secretary of the interior, holding the entire transaction was tainted with fraud. The unanimous opinion of the court not only finally revokes leases valued at untold millions on the famous Elk Hills naval oil reserves, but also recovers for the government approximately $11,000,000 paid Doheny's companies—the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company—for the erection of oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, under contracts which the court held illegal because unauthorized by congress.

Two million dollars of the $11,000,000 loss sustained by the two oil companies—control of which was lately acquired by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana—must be borne by Doheny personally.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, having signed the radio control bill, submitted to the senate the names of five men as members of the commission that is to untangle the radio situation. They are: Rear Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman; O. H. Caldwell of New York, Eugene O. Sykes of Mississippi, Harry A. Bellows of Minnesota and John F. Dillon of California. The President is credited with having ignored the recommendations of politicians and sought to choose radio experts.

TRAGEDY has marred the tour of the American "good will" aviators in Latin America. While the squadron was flying above Palomar field at Buenos Aires, Argentina, the planes Detroit and New York collided at an altitude of 500 feet and crashed. Capt. Clinton F. Woolsey and Lieut. John W. Benton of the Detroit were killed, the former being burned to death in the plane and the latter jumping without a parachute. Major Dargue, commander of the flight, and Lieutenant Whitehead parachuted safely to the ground. The Argentine government paid all due honor to the dead flyers and their bodies were started home on a navy ship. The planes San Francisco and St. Louis then continued the tour by way of Asuncion, Paraguay; and meanwhile the fifth machine, the San Antonio, delayed in Chile for repairs, was flying over the Andes to catch up with the squadron.

IF SHANGHAI is to be saved from capture by the Cantonese it must be done by the Shantung troops which Gen. Chang Chung-chang has been pouring into the city and on southward. Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, formerly in control, refuses to co-operate and his army has melted away, much of it joining the southern forces. The latter were moving rather slowly last week, leading to the theory that they might avoid Shanghai because of foreign complications. The foreign volunteer corps of the city, together with the British military units that have been landed held a great parade and demonstration of strength, and tried to induce American Consul Gauss to permit the American marines and naval forces to land and take part.

In Washington Acting Secretary of State Grew replied to a house resolution asking information by stating that the assembly of American military forces in China is for the purpose of protecting American lives and property and not the result of any international arrangement. That their services may be needed is indicated by the report of Dr. Max Gentry of Omaha, member of the Baptist mission in Szechwan province, who arrived in Shanghai on a refugee steamer. He said 93 American missionaries were marooned at Chungking, on the headwaters of the Yangtse, unable to obtain ship accommodations and apparently held there by the Chinese militarists as hostages.

AMERICA'S first complete aviation organization on expeditionary service was landed at Corinto, Nicaragua, and sent at once to Managua by rail. It is commanded by Maj. Ross E. Powell with nine pilots, and includes observation and bombing planes with trucks, field machine shop, photographic outfit and high-frequency radio sets, besides all necessary bombs and other ammunition. Three of the planes are rigged as ground attackers. Brig. Gen. Logan Feland with 1,600 marines aboard the transport Henderson was due to arrive Sunday. It was believed at the White House that the situation in Nicaragua was approaching stability.

GREAT BRITAIN'S reply to President Coolidge's naval limitation proposal is a polite but guarded acceptance, with insistence that ample allowance be made for England's special position requiring it to keep up a large destroyer and cruiser force in order to protect the food supplies along the far-flung communication lines.

It is understood Mr. Coolidge will now turn his efforts toward bringing a three-power agreement on further limitation with Great Britain and Japan, though the five-power plan is not entirely abadoned.

ABOUT fifty men were killed by a mine explosion near Cwm, Wales. Prime Minister Baldwin with his wife motored to the scene to express his sympathy and was bitterly assailed by the miners, who tried to rush his car. Another mine accident, in England, took 14 lives.

LORD ROSEBERY, former prime minister, insists that a commission be appointed to inquire into the alleged sale of honors during the Lloyd George regime. He charges that about ninety new peers of the realm have the taint of money on their titles, and that this accounts for at least part of Lloyd George's $12,500,000 political fund.

Replying to the charges, Mr. Lloyd George's spokesman said the Welshman welcomed a commission, declaring he did not give any honors except "for services of cash or kind. Every party is so deeply involved that we would not suffer in the least. The same charge would be made against every government, including Lord Rosebery's."

A PROUD MOTHER.

Mt. Dora (Fla.) Topic.

Mrs. E. G. Purdy of Caro, Mich., who has spent several winters in Mount Dora, is unusually happy to have with her, her four sons for a portion of the winter, C. T., L. C. and G. W., coming down Dec. 7, the eldest, J. L., arriving Feb. 1, to return Mar. 2 to resume the many activities in which he is engaged.

For the past week much interest and recreation has been manifested by these brothers. The oldest and youngest pitching quoits against the other two brothers.

It is indeed, an unusual occurrence for a family of four brothers, all from Michigan, to meet so far from home, and enjoy the pleasures afforded them at Mount Dora.

J. L. spent the winters of 1904 and 1913 here and commends the place for its many improvements since that time.

Home" suggesting the difference between a house and a home, and appropriately closing her article by reciting Edgar Guest's "Heap 'O Livin'." Mr. Sims, the popular county agent, gave a fitting address, remarking that he had spent a very enjoyable five years in our midst and felt that he was leaving one of the best counties in the state. He aptly suggested a good way of getting acquainted with his successor, Mr. Jewell, in having him out to Clubs, Granges, etc. At the close of his remarks, he fittingly introduced Prof. Reed of M. S. C., who gave the main address. His topic was "The Dairy Industry of Michigan as I See It." His introduction was thought-provoking to a marked degree, in that he attributed depressed farming conditions to the last war, pointing out a similarity of conditions in England after the War of 1812. He also pointed out that other industries had suffered reverses, and had not advertised it on front pages of papers, realizing how disastrous the psychological effect would be on their respective industries. In advocating an increased interest in dairying, he states that since 1920, the populaton of Michigan has increased by 826,000 and that most of this population has been added to the towns and cities. In the face of this increased market, there was a deficiency of 10,000,000 pounds of butter, suggesting the optimistic outlook for the industry. In the face of a probable dislike for milking, he suggested that he had worked his way through high school by milking six cows in six different barns. He went on to state, that in order to make a real success of the industry, there were two factors to be kept in mind. First, an efficient herd. Second, balanced rations. He urged joining a cow testing association, saying that the expenditure easily justified itself in increased profits.

After the song, "America, the Beautiful," had been sung, Herbert Leon Cope, the inimitable entertainer of national note, brought a message of mirth and good cheer, a message that was shot through with a fine Christian philosophy. The crowd rose to their feet in extending a vote of thanks. He paid a fine tribute to the Ellington-Almer Club of which he is a member. A mixed chorus from the Indianfields Club sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Sweeter as the Days Go By." Miss Blanche Hawley of Detroit recited a poem that dealt with the immigrant problem, written in the Italian dialect. The poem suggested that the immigrant problem would be greatly lessened, if the European could find his way to the open spaces of America rather than to the city where he received distorted opinions of United States. Her second number was "Waking the Young Ones," and her encore was a mirth-provoking selection entitled "Digesting the Newspaper."

Mrs. Wm. Cartwright read a paper entitled "Rewards" showing that we reaped the rewards of others' sowing. A duet was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Hill, to which they responded with an encore. The numbers were "When the Roses Bloom Again" and "Mother Dear." A readng by Charles Stewart entitled "The Story of One of the First Settlers" was one of the big items on the program, and drove home a worthy message. He represented the Wells-Dayton Club.

VIGILANTES HALT BANK ROBBERIES

Make Iowa Very Unpopular Place for Hold-Up Men to Operate.

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—If Dave and Broy Harding, who held up and robbed the bank at Modale, Iowa, and shot two men in doing so, hadn't have been new ones in the bank robbing business they might have remembered the slogan of the Iowa vigilantes: "If you rob a bank in Iowa, you get caught." And if the Harding brothers had known this, they might be free and at work today instead of in jail waiting an absolute certain trip to the Iowa penitentiary for life.

The bank robber who comes before an Iowa court has a hard time. Life imprisonment is the penalty for the man who holds up a bank in the daytime in Iowa and the courts inflict that maximum penalty without hesitation.

That penalty, together with the Iowa vigilantes and the pistols and rifles of the latter organization, have made bank robbing mighty unpopular in Iowa.

The Modale Bank Robbery.

Dave Harding, forty-four, a fisherman along the Missouri river, and his brother, Broy Harding, twenty-three, a blacksmith, entered the Modale bank about ten o'clock one morning, shot the cashier, grabbed $4,500, ran out the door and were met by bullets from eight or ten men who got wind of the holdup. The brothers escaped to their automobile, shot another man, and got away.

Half an hour later they crossed the Missouri river on the ice, were given a "lift" by a passing automobile and reached Omaha. But when they went to enter the boarding house in Omaha where they had prepared to "lay up" for awhile, they found four Omaha detectives, each with a riot gun and a lot of other weapons, waiting for them. That was some four or five hours after the holdup.

Everybody watches out when there has been a bank robbery in Iowa. The system of pursuit is all cut and dried. Practically every county has a vigilance committee. The members of the committee, and their telephone numbers, are right before every telephone operator in the small towns. And the operator who first gives notice of a bank robbery is paid $25 extra.

When a holdup has been perpetrated, these telephone operators not only call out the members of the local committees, but notify heads in adjoining counties, giving a description of the robbers wherever possible, the kind of automobile in which they are escaping and all other available information.

They give a "general" ring, calling all the farmers in the county and ask these farmers to keep a lookout and report any suspicious automobile parties. They notify sheriffs and marshals and within a few minutes the entire country is out after the robbers.

$1,000 Reward Offered.

Automatically a reward of $1,000 for the robbers, "dead or alive," goes into effect the moment an Iowa bank robbery takes place. This is all arranged and is a standing reward in the state.

The speed with which the Harding brothers were captured is but an example of the way that the Iowa vigilance committee works, although in his case the capture was made by the Omaha police. Information as to where they would be found was telephoned from Iowa, however.

About a year ago Pat Carrol, Kansas bank robber, and his gang held up a bank at Little Sioux, Iowa. With every point covered, the bandits were making a run for Kansas but they never got out of Iowa. The vigilantes got them. Pat Carroll is now serving a life sentence in prison.

The vigilantes were organized by the Iowa bankers and every member is a man of good character and of responsibility. They are sworn in as officers but do not take the field except when major crimes have been committed. They draw no salaries but are eligible to the $1,000 rewards for bank robbers and for other rewards offered for criminals.

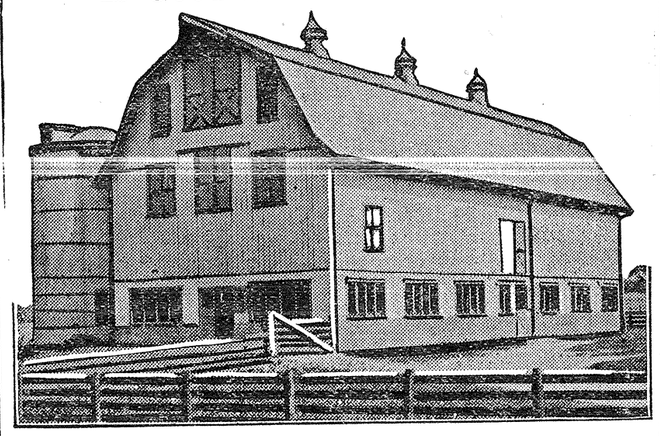
Dog Newspaper Is Published by Hindu

Baroda, India.—Having founded a city for dogs in which the canines are taught the errors of their carnivorous ways and are made to eat only vegetable food, Junial Sheth, an eccentric Hindu millionaire, now is bringing out a dog newspaper. The newspaper's policy is to eradicate the killing tendency in dogs.

The rations given the vegetarian canines were published for the first time in a recent issue. Puppies are given an especially tasty dish called shira, made from wheat flour, fried in butter, and then slowly cooked in milk—with a dash of sugar and salt. The older dogs are given tougher bread and leathery pancakes.

To make the village safe from rats and mice which might tempt the dogs, all the floors have been constructed with cement.

Good Dairy Barn, if Properly Built, Is Good Investment for the Farm



By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A modern dairy barn with its silo and yard demands fully as careful planning as the farmhouse and its attendant buildings. Just as the farmhouse must serve its occupants the whole year through, so does the dairy barn serve the herd day by day, for even in summer its care adds to the ever-present chores.

A dairy barn cannot be bought like so many yards of gingham or like the lumber for a fence. It must be carefully planned with the requirements of the herd in view, likewise for the cutting down of unnecessary labor. All the modern developments in sanitation, which mean so much to the farmer in the profitable production and sale of dairy products, must be considered and followed to the best of the builder's ability. Light is equally as important as cleanliness, and proper ventilation and drainage not only ease up the work but keep the herd in a condition which removes any particular worry over sickly or unhealthy cows.

Of course, stalls, mangers, gutters, alleys and pens are nowadays standardized units which can be installed in any barn, regardless of its style and size. But our object is the planning of a particular barn as a whole, like the one illustrated.

This one was carefully located with reference to the other buildings of the farm. It was placed a distance of 200 feet from the house, and in a direction which sheltered it from the direct blow of hot summer winds. This left the open yard running across the south and east angle, with the barn's long axis north and south. By this means sunlight was inveigled into the stalls as much as possible.

The ceiling height is 8½ feet, and the well-proportioned gambrel roof gives fine hay storage space above. The width of the main structure is 36 feet; the length, over all, is 94 feet, and two rows of stalls run lengthwise of the barn. As a general rule it will be found that the width of a dairy barn is best kept between 32 and 38 feet. This width makes the framing less an expense than it otherwise might be, and with a greater width the storage of hay becomes more unsatisfactory and the light is cut off from the inside to a great extent. Of course the objection to width does not apply to length. This latter dimension can be made to fit the herd requirements, and the barn even carried around in an L or U shape, to give a more sheltered yard.

Observe that the cows face a central feed alley, equipped with steel carrier tracks. This gives entrance by two doors, and lessens the danger of crowding in and out, there is better light for milking, the gutters get the sanitation value of sunlight, and the ventilating system does not present any particular problem in order to function satisfactorily. The litter alleys have steel carrier tracks which make this part of the chores something taken care of easily and with dispatch.

The stalls are 3 feet 6 inches wide; the length of stall platform from curb to gutter is 4 feet 8 inches. The mangers can be of metal, wood or concrete, and of a style, width and height which discourage bossy from snouting too much feed into the alley. The drinking troughs each serve two cows.

Adjoining are cow pen, bull pen and calf pens. The latter are necessary at calving time, and might serve with the cow pen as a hospital when cows are sick. Or, bossy may be segregated for the purpose of testing on milk and butter yield over a certain period. The floor is of concrete, with wood block or cork brick standing platform. Drains serve the bottom of each manger and gutter, leading out to a concrete manure receiving pit.

Light Wood Is Style Now in Home Building

In any decorative scheme don't forget to consider the color of the woodwork.

When the wood used for window and door trim is oak, cypress, maple or birch or any wood with a beautiful grain, a waterproof varnish will give luster and bring out the grain.

Woods vary in shade from light to dark brown or red. The color scheme of the room should be kept in similar tones or warm colors. Contrasting colors can then be used in some of the furnishings to give the room animation.

Light woodwork is very fashionable. And there are excellent varnish stains and enamels on the market that will give just the shade or tint in the woodwork that the color scheme of the room demands.

Varnish stains color the wood and let the grain show through. Enamels give a solid coat of color that is rich and satiny in its texture. The range of colors is wide, and manufacturers give explicit directions for securing any tint or shade desired. Of course, the most satisfactory finishes are absolutely waterproof and can be washed without injury to gloss or color.

Privacy Is Not Only Use for Window Shade

The possibilities that lie in the correct use of window shades should be considered.

Too often people look on them only as a means of obtaining privacy in the home. They do not realize that shades have another very important use. Shades play a big part in carrying out the interior and exterior decorative scheme of every room. In fact, shades often play such an important part as to be the keynote of the color scheme.

Imagine for a moment that the housewife has worked out a pleasing and novel color scheme in her windows with some unwarranted color that does not harmonize with the other decorations. The effect that she has tried so hard to produce is destroyed with one stroke.

What would have been a charming, delightful room, had shades of the correct color been used, is turned into an unattractive and depressing room. Yet too many people who are conscious of the result do not realize the cause.

This feature of the room—window shades—demands just as careful study as does the background or wall, the floor and the furniture. In fact, you might go further and say, with truth, that it is the most important of them all. There are today so many different colors and so carefully composed, that it is a very easy matter to visit a decorator's shop and find exactly what you want at a reasonable expense. An intelligent selection guided by an expert's hand will cause shades to blend with the drapes and furniture.

Porch Found Desirable Place to Build Closets

Closets on the back porch, or even built-in under the back porch, provide a safe and cool place in which to keep certain provisions or articles that are needed about the backyard.

You will find such closets so convenient you will wonder how you got along without them. The butcher and other delivery men can place their packages in the closet when you are not at home and the contents will be safe from dogs and cats.

Such closets can be placed on porches already built and can be located across the end, or against the wall of the house. Almost any good, serviceable color will be satisfactory for the exterior, but it should be in keeping with the house. You will probably want to enamel in white or ivory for the sake of cleanliness. If you desire to decorate the front or visible portions simply outline the door panels or other portions in a contrasting color or a lighter tint of the ground color.

DAIRY FACTS

START DAIRYING IN SPRING BEST

When the grass turns green in the spring, farmers usually think more about live stock and, as a rule, most beginners in dairying start their new business during the early spring months, and there is very little doubt that the appearance of grass is an incentive to this line of thought and action, concluded J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division at Clemson college.

A great majority of milk cows in the state freshen during the spring, which helps to produce interest in dairying at this season of the year, because when a surplus of milk is produced the farmer usually looks around for a market for this product. He soon realizes that with one to three cows he cannot expect any very great return, and therefore decides to add three or four more cows to his herd. In this way he grows into the dairy business, which is undoubtedly the very best policy. However, there are many reasons why it is best to have the dairy cows freshen in the fall, and for the same reason it is usually the best policy to start a new dairy business at that season of the year.

With the spring pastures there usually come certain noxious weeds, such as wild onions and bitter weed, which produce bad flavors and odors in the milk of cows which graze them. As yet no satisfactory method has been determined to eliminate these objectionable flavors from milk after it is drawn from the cow. The only way the farmer can control these flavors is to either destroy the weeds is the pasture or remove the cows from pastures infested with these weeds at least three hours before milking time. Sometimes green rye and oats pasture produce these bad flavors and odors in the milk. This can be controlled by the same procedure as outlined above.

Grain Mixtures Useful for Feeding the Calves

Bran and cracked corn make very good calf feed and whenever possible they should form the basis of the grain mixture. Ground oats are likewise good but, because they are usually high in price as compared with other farm grains, their use is not general.

Corn has a desirable effect on calves and to a certain extent replaces the butterfat removed from the milk. Many tests prove cracked more desirable than when finely ground. By the time a calf is two weeks old it will start nibbling grain if given a chance and at one month will eat half a pound a day. In case a mixture of feeds is desired there are several good ones.

1. Three parts cracked corn and one part wheat bran.
2. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran and one part ground oats.
3. Three parts cracked corn, one part wheat bran, one part ground oats and one part oilmeal.
4. Five parts cracked corn, one part ground oats and one part blood meal.

Feed grain dry in troughs immediately after the calves have finished drinking their milk. Calves three months old will eat about three pounds of grain a day.

Balance Ration of Cows to Need of Individual

Because feed prices are lower than last year and butterfat prices somewhat higher, many dairymen are feeding more grain and purchased feeds than a year ago. Dairy division men at University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., say that the grain ration gives best results when fed according to the individual milk production of the cow.

When a good grade of roughage is available—and the cows should have all they can clean up—one pound of grain to each three to four pounds of milk produced will be sufficent. In a ration without clover or alfalfa hay, goodly quantities of feed rich in protein, such as linseed meal, cottonseed meal or bran, must be added in order to balance the ration to the needs of the animal.

Some Dairy Calf Dangers

The dairy calf cannot run with its mother on the clean pasture; the beef calf can. The dairy calf must be weaned within a day or so after birth. When sucking its dam, the cow's udder and teats should best be kept clean so that the calf will not become infected with germs that might produce indigestion and diarrhea. Therefore, the cow and the calf should be kept in a clean place—away from filth, manure and infection.

Calves Without Milk

A dairy expert of the Missouri station says that dairy calves after they are three or four weeks old can be raised successfully without milk. He considers the lack of skimmed milk on many farms the chief obstacle in raising calves by hand, and finds that calf meals, as substitutes for milk, are being sold extensively. "They are fairly satisfactory but are rather high in price as compared to home mixed feed which will give equal and often superior results."

State News in Brief

Mt. Clemens—A $50,000 hospital for Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, is provided for in the new Army House bill which was introduced by Rep. Frank James of Michigan.

Saginaw—Robbers recently looted the Leventhal Hide & Fur store here of pelts and skins valued by the proprietors at $8,000. The loot included 3,300 muskrat pelts, 40 mink skins and three fox pelts.

Calumet—Jacob Piirala, 45 years old, a farmer residing at Mohawk near here, killed himself by placing a stick of dynamite under his arm and lighting the fuse. He leaves a widow and seven children.

Owosso—Fears of residents in the north part of Owosso that the "ape man," who terrorized Owosso residents for weeks a year ago by prowling around nights and in several instances trying to force entrance to homes where women and children were alone, had returned, were allayed when a policeman found the cause of the neighborhood's fears was a high school student serenading his sweetie with a saxophone.

Lansing—Gov. Fred W. Green plans to obtain the services of Allen B. Forsberg, professor of industrial relations at Michigan State College, in straightening out state finances. If the college will consent Green will have Forsberg check the work of accountants who have been working on state books for weeks. The professor also will study reports on the Chelsea cement plant, new Jackson prison and other enterprises.

Lansing—A virtual collection agency, to bring in hundreds of dollars due the state, is to be set up by W. W. Potter, attorney general. Potter told the state administrative board that evidently no effort had been made in the past to close the accounts. The files in his office are so badly mixed it is difficult to determine the exact amount due, but it runs over $1,000,000, he estimated. He was authorized to designate an assistant to clear up the accounts.

Lansing—The Michigan Public Utilities Commission failed for the second time to induce representatives of motor bus companies operating between Detroit and Toledo and Detroit and Chicago to discontinue their rate war. The representatives summoned to Lansing, refused again to arbitrate. The State commission has no jurisdiction over rates charged in interstate commerce and their efforts to induce an agreement have been unofficial and advisory.

Muskegon—The proposal to place all conservation officers in uniform is not being received very cordially by Muskegon officers, who stated: An officer brings no fear to the man who does not violate the law, but the man who does is constantly watching for an officer. Further than this the average warden wears out a pair of trousers in a few weeks if he has any brush country to cover. This would make it impossible to keep uniforms neat unless the State furnished the clothes.

Grand Rapids—Probate Judge Clark E. Higbee, one of the state's leading sociology students, has proposed the enactment of a law to provide that no divorced person shall be divorced again except for adultery. Such a law, the judge holds, would tend to improve the sanctity of the marriage relationship. He recalled one instance in which a mother, who had been married three times, had a daughter who was married seven times, another daughter married four times, and still another daughter married three times.

Lansing—A second deficiency appropriation bill reported by the House in Congress at Washington, authorizes the payment by the department of agriculture of $1,000 for architect's fees and inspection services in connection with the erection of a new building for the U. S. weather bureau at Lansing, at a cost not exceeding $38,000. The new building is to be erected in accordance with an agreement between the state and the federal government by which certain tracts of land were exchanged and the payment by the state of $25,000.

Lansing—A bill to discourage auto accessory thievery was one of a dozen measures approved by the House of Representatives in committee of the whole. The bill provides a 10-year prison term for a third offense; two years for a second offense, and a year and $100 for a first offense. A mothers' pension act declaring no mother eligible for pensions unless she has lived in the state two years and in the county one year, also was approved. A third measure approved requires the superintendent of public instruction to give a bond of $10,000

Ann Arbor—Excavation work for the new Michigan football stadium is more than 85 per cent completed and it is practically certain that the concrete construction can start April 1, as originally planned. The large drain which is to conduct the water away from the field is already finished. The bowl will be of solid concrete instead of part wood, as originally planned. Unless unforeseen difficulties arise, the stadium will be in readiness for the opening game on the Michigan football schedule next fall.

Precious Baby

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

Laughing eyes that look into
The secret chamber of my heart,
Lips as sweet and tender as a rose,
Cunning little hands that seem
To draw the veils of care apart
And all the happiness of love disclose.
Dimpled cheeks that beg a kiss,
And chubby feet with dimples too,
Dainty bundle of delight and cheer—
Precious one, I don't see where
God finds a darling babe like you,
But oh, how glad I am He sent you here!

—and No Place to Go!

We find ourselves, almost without realizing it, a nation on wheels.

We drive or ride in more than 22,000,000 motor vehicles.

We pack the paved highways coming in and out of town. We over-run even so-called remote regions. And we are pounding to pieces all but permanent roads.

This year probably 3,000,000 new cars will be on the road. Compared to this increase, the mileage of new permanent roads will be insignificant.

We don't want to be a nation on wheels, with no place to go.

The answer is, build more, and where necessary, wider concrete roads and streets —and start building them now.

Not in a long time have general conditions been so favorable for carrying on such public works as permanent highway building.

FAKE OIL PROMOTERS.

It is reported that after a temporary cessation of activities the oil stock swindlers are getting busy again. The mails are once more being flooded with alluring offers of opportunities to get rich quickly.

While it is perhaps futile to expect that warnings against these crooks will prevent suckers from taking "hook, line and sinker," it is a duty of all intelligent persons to do what they can to expose the crafty schemes of unscrupulous promoters.

As a financial authority recently wrote, those who invest in mail-order oil stock "haven't one chance in a million of getting a single cent of their hard-earned money back again."

There is only one safe course to pursue in buying oil stock, or any other kind of stock, as a rule, and that is to get the advice of your banker or some reputable institution capable of making an investigation of the proposition.

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

Michigan Happenings

Bees are expected to play an important role in the production of fruit in Michigan this year through co-operative arrangements between bee-keepers and fruit growers. Some fruit varities must be cross pollenated with others for which they have special affinities or else they do not bear. The Huron farms, near Ypsilanti, which had experienced poor yields, last year borrowed 20 colonies of bees. Where before the heaviest yield had been 18 ...els, last year was 1,000 bushels.

As he was about to climb back into his car with the luck emblem, he saw a pocketbook half buried in the mud in the highway. The purse contained $50 in bills.

In LOVING memory of our darling baby, Fern, who passed away Mar. 10, 1925:

Two long years have passed and gone
Yet it seems but yesterday
Since we laid our loved one down to rest
In the icy arms of clay.
We miss her, how we miss her,
As the days go fleeting by,
Prepare us Lord to meet her
In that beautiful home on high.
We have lost our darling baby girl,
She has bid us all adieu,
She has gone to live in Heaven,
And her form is lost to view.
Oh, that dear one, how we loved her
Oh, how hard to give her up!
But an angel came down for her
And removed her from our flock.
Through all pain at times she'd smile
A smile of Heavenly birth;
And when the angels called her home,
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps;
And the sunbeams love to linger,
Where our sainted baby sleeps.
Dear little hands, I miss them so!
All through the day wherever I go
All through the night how lonely it seems
For no little hands wake me out of my dreams.
I miss them all through the weary hours.
I miss them as others do sunshine and flowers,
Daytime or night time wherever I go
Dear little hands I miss them so.

Her loving parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Tesho and brother, Steven.
