TROPHY CUP WON BY TANNER SCHOOL

Hannah and Marian Ballard Tie for First Place in Spelling Match.

The annual spelling contest for rural schools was held at the Cass City schools on Monday, April 18. The Girls' Glee Club of the Cass City high school opened the afternoon's program at 1:15 with two songs, "The Bells of St. Mary," and "Chit-Chat." Superintendent H. W. Holmes addressed the group, speaking on the na, Emerson Rose. value of the contest, explaining details of it, and on features of the new building.

This year a mental arithmetic contest was added to the work for the test was added to the work for the afternoon. In this, there were fifteen schools entered. Forty mental problems were used as the basis for this contest. At a given signal, the papers were turned and twenty minutes were allowed for the students to solve as many as possible of the problems. In this, as well as in the This Is Nine Cases Less than spelling contest, each school was permitted to enter three contestants, The individual winners were as follows: First, Aletha Morrish, 30 problems correct, Tanner School; second, Evelyn Simmons, 25 problems correct, Bingham School; third, Elizabeth Knight, 23 problems correct, Winton School. The Tanner school, Miss Ida Vogel, teacher, won first place with sixty points (number of problems worked correctly by contestants); Bingham school, Mrs. Rose B. Muntz, teacher, received second place with fifty-eight points; and the Wright school, Mrs. Ethel McConkey, teacher, was awarded third place with forty-three points.

Aletha Morrish received three dollars as first pize; Evelyn Simmons, two dollars, second prize; and Elizabeth Knight, one dollar, third prize. The Tanner school was awarded a beautiful water color picture framed in brown and gold, "The Torn Hat." The second prize won by the Bingham school was a picture in water colors and similarly framed, "Young Folks at Canal."

Twenty-four schools enrolled in the spelling contest. The words were pronounced by T. M. Clay, superintendent of schools at Vassar. Members of the high school faculty assisted in checking and collecting the papers and about thirty high school students aided in correcting them. Three contestants were permitted to enter from each school. Nine lists of fifteen words each were pronounced. These words were selected from a printed list previously sent to the ru-

Out of 405 words written by the following is the program: three contestants from the Tanner school, 404 were spelled correctly. To this school, of which Miss Ida Vogel 45-piece Band. is the teacher, was presented the trophy cup for winning first place. The cup was won by the Winton school last year and the Tanner school the year before. The first prize, to be retained permanently, was the picture, "Windmills of Holland," in water color and suitably framed. The Bingham school was awarded the second prize, the picture, "Home through the Woods." Its pupils spelled correctly 382 words out of the 405. The Winton school was third in the contest, spelling correctly 370 words.

The teachers and pupils of these rural schools are to be complimented upon the splendid degree of interest, the time and the effort which they gave to the contests. While it is possible to have only three places of honor, all deserve honorable mention for their fine work. Special mention is made of Wesley Charter from the Winton school who misspelled only three words out of the 405.

Following the contests, review questions preparatory to the county Gagetown Man seventh and eighth grade examinations were given out. For teachers who were not present, questions are still available and will be mailed upon request. The final reviews will be given at the Presbyterian church town Tuesday morning where he had May 5 and 6. Two Hundred Braved Storm on Tuesday Night to Hear Rev. Savage.

A combination of the lighting conveniences of two centuries-candles and automobile headlights—were necessary to furnish sufficient illumination for the April banquet of the Cass City Community club at the M. E. church Tuesday evening. About 40 minutes before the banquet hour, a heavy wind and rain storm worked havoc with the electric light wires and current was unavailable in several parts of town. The M. E. church was in one of the affected districts and this made it necessary to resort to candles and oil lamps. Automobiles were placed facing the church basement windows and headlights turned on to help brighten the interior. The South Seeger St. Citizen Died combination proved successful in the emergency.

Mr. Savage made a telling comparison of the commercial and home life and the standards of living between the peoples of the Mediterranean Sea countries and the residents of the United States. He pictured the present farming operations of Judea as the same as they were in the time of Abraham and David, told of the utter lack of sanitation in Palestine and the absence of a standard in the commercial activities in the region. The advance in civilization and the high standards of living of the American people, he said, were due to the influence of the Christian church as nothing has benefited mankind more than the church. The church, he said, was first in building educational institutions, first in erecting hospitals, first in providing asylums for the unfortunates and first in leading great reform movements. He made a plea for a better co-operation of all citizens in advancing the work and influence of the Christian church.

versation to the inhabitants of the small New England town. Time was when it was considered quite the fashionable thing to send one's daughter to Miss Marvin's School for Young Ladies; but that was some nine years ago when Miss Marvin's social position as the daughter of the lately deceased judge not only gave her influence in her own circle, but served as a sort of lure to those a trifle lower in the social scale. When the judge died, leaving his wife and daughter nothing after his debts were paid but the fine old house on the hill. Esther decided that the best thing she could do was to convert the big billiard room into a school room, and try to make a living for her mother and herself by utilizing her college education as a teacher. The change frail little mother, who two years later drifted on to a less material world leaving her daughter to face the problem alone. The school prospered, but aside from her loneliness, Esther had another problem to face. She was a staunch, courageous soul, and she did not waver. Before her father's death Esther had become engaged to Howard March. The alliance had been approved of by the judge for March was his old friend's nephew, and he believed he saw in the young man energy and strength of character sufficient for him to make an honorable career. Esther loved him as only such a deep, true nature can. They were to be married in about four months, when March told her of an expedition he had been asked to join to take up land for tea-growing off the coast of China. It meant a great opening for him, and Esther told him he must go. He urged an immediate marriage as he must sail in three weeks if he accepted. But her mother strongly opposed the hurried wedding. Judge Marvin had been dead only a few weeks, and she felt that ber daughter was now being torn from her. Esther assured her mother she would remain with her, but as she still kept the same attitude, March was for giving up the expedition, when Esther prevailed upon him to go. "We can wait, dear," she said. "It will only be about three months before you are back." "I hope it will not be longer," he answered, "but we can never set an exact time, and sometimes we may get away so far from a post office, you may not hear from me in weeks.'

"I shall always know you are thinking of me, and are coming back to me," she said.

Howard March did not return in three months, but she heard regularly with accounts of his travels, and always breathing a devotion which seemed to increase rather than lessen the letters ceased. The last one had and Mrs. Ralph Chaffee and children told of starting on a trip into a wild, unexplored country, and as the weeks concluded March was still beyond any means of communication. But when the weeks lengthened into months, and the months into years with never a word from him she knew not what to think. Those who had known him had settled it that either he had been captured or killed by savages. A few months after her last letter from March Esther opened her school for girls. Not only was it necessary to find some means of income but she felt she must have work to do that would leave her less time to be conscious of the dull ache for waiting. for even years did not change her faith. She always waited. There were twenty-three when March went away, and she was attractive in face, figure | been "chosen." He soon found it would and manner, having a kind of quick responsiveness that drew others to her, and made for her many friends. Her pupils liked her, and the school flourished. Her work absorbed her, finally her social circle narrowed,

Esther's persistent belief in the return of Howard March began to be In a small town where the closer contact with our neighbors, it would seem ought to breed a stronger love and tolerance it more often happens that criticism magnifies their peculiarities and exaggerates their faults. So it was that Esther's stubborn belief that March would return, in the face of all reasonable proof to the contrary grew in the minds of the townspeople from mania to insanity; and when an intimate friend told another intimate friend that Esther Marvin

"wireless" then it began to be whispered about in confidence that an insane asylum might not be a remote possibility.

Careful parents began to withdraw their daughters from the school. The attendance gradually dwindled till one day Esther with a kind of dull despair closed the schoolroom, and sat down to wonder what next she could do. for the little money which had of late been coming in was lessening fast. She could not understand why the school after years of prosperity had failed. Not for one instant did she dream of the real cause. Her faith in the return of the man she loved, and her belief that she would yet reach him with her own "wireless" was to her so true and convincing she could not quite understand why it should be utterly preposterous to others. True she spoke only to a few intimate friends of these things, but it leaked out and spread. For as the Mohammedan proverb has it: "Thy friend has a friend, and they friend's friend has a friend, therefore, tell not thy secret."

But what of Howard March? These are the facts, as they afterward came to the surface. The expedition met with failure to start the tea plantation. They were told of better opportunities in the southern Chinese territory, so they went there, secured some land, and started their project. Not understanding well the tea culture, again they failed, and all of the men but Howard March decided to return. He had picked up enough of the Chinese language to speak it quite well, and he wished to explore further. and to see something of India, for he had for years been interested in the study of occult things, and the dreamy atmosphere of the Orient had strengthened the desire. But stronger than this was the love of adventure. So passing from Calcutta he one day found himself in Darjeeling on the borders of the "Forbidden Land," Tibet, that strange country, whose mysterious, marvelous capital is ruled by the "Dalai Lama," vice-regent of Buddha on earth, upon whose coun-

March had been warned that it was not only foolish but fatal to try to penetrate much further into Tibet: but one day he fell in with two Englishmen who had been commissioned by the British government to survey as far as possible into the interior. Blake, the elder man. "You take your life in your hands."

"Well, I want to be in 'the great game," answered March. "I'll take the risk."

They started out disguised as Chinese merchants. Two of their prayer wheel covers concealed surveying instruments, which were taken out for use when the coast was clear: and hastily hidden when a native appeared. Meanwhile March industriously twirled his wheel, piously murmuring his devotions, so that no questions would be asked; for the Oriental will never interrupt the prayers of the

OBITUARY—MRS. M. H. QUICK | #

Believing the brief account of Mrs. M. H. Quick's life as published in the Chronicle of April 8 hardly does justice to a woman of such sterling qualities and Christian character, who has resided in this community over half a century, I will write a short historical sketch of her life, which I believe will be of interest to her many friends and neighbors.

Julia Ellen Smith was born in Aroostook Co., Maine, March 20, 345, being at her death 82 years, 17 days old. Her grandfather, John Smith, was born in Massachusetts of English descent and served in the war of 1812. Soon after the close of the Blackhawk War, her father, S. J. Smith, got the "Western fever" and decided to emigrate to the Great West prairie. On the first day of Juy, 1845, a company of fourteen families of sixty souls left their homes and started for the far west in covered wagons, drawn by horses or mules, as there were no railroads at that time. After traveling 102 days and experiencing innumerable hardships and privations they arrived on the banks of the Mississippi. Next year they settled at Paw Paw Grove in the western part of Illinois near the Mormon city of Wanvoo. This was about the time of the prophets Brigham Young and Joe Smith. In a few years, they emigrated to the state of Wisconsin, but in a short time decided to return to the state of Maine. This was in 1848 when a great number were rushing to California to dig gold. Taking a boat at Milwaukee bound for Buffalo after one day's fine sailing, a storm arose. The boat was completely disabled and drifted helplessly on the lake for five days, when t was picked up and towed to Mackinaw by a steamer. The passengers 100 in all were transferred to another and again started on the journey and in due time arrived in Cleveland where they recided to remain. They located in the town of Orange near Bedford and Solon and took up their residence on a farm about a mile from the Garfield home and attending the little country school that James A. Garfield (who later became the president of the United States) attended. It was there that she gave her heart to Jesus at the age of sixteen and united with the Church of Christ (Disciples), the church to which Garfield belonged and of which her father, Elder S. J. Smith, was pastor. After living in Ohio 19 years the family removed to Michigan. At a place called Birch Run, in Lapeer Co., she met and married Henry Quick on Feb. 20, 1870. Later they moved to Fairgrove, Tuscola Co. They came to Novesta just previous to the fire of '71 but the hardships of pioneer life proving too strenuous for a woman of frail constitution, they moved back to Fairgrove to be near her father. who was a physician and practiced medicine at that place

In 1875, they moved back to their nome in the wilderness on section 16, Novesta, where she has since resided until God called her home. Mrs. Quick was a refined and cultured woman. In early life, her health was poor and although the toil incident to pioneer life was a strain on her frail constitution, she bore it all and with patience. She did not strive for an exalted position but chose rather to serve and comfort others. She did not have worldly ambitions but laid up treasures in Heaven. She loved her home, her Lhasa, and are still alive, let us turn family and church. It has been said by those who knew her best that But Stirling, the younger man, and they never knew her to do a wrong March were for trying to go nearer, act or say an unkind word. Well Developed Pullets Necessary for Heavy Egg Production

BIG, well developed frames and plenty of reserve fat are necessary in order to carry pullets through without moulting. Michigan Growing Mash provides the protein for building body frames and tissues in growing chicks. Insure large, well developed, fat pullets at maturity by feeding a well balanced ration, furnishing all necessary types of protein. This growth and development is necessary for the pullets to maintain heavy egg production. Ask for a pamphlet of our poultry feeds containing valuable feeding suggestions.

BLACK AND WHITE MODES STRESS SLEEVELESS JACKET OR BLOUSE

O MORE remarkable success for millinery chic. It is one of the new the black-and-white vogue has ever been recorded in the pages of history than that now registering throughout the realm of fashion. The two "studies in black and white" as here illustrated are highly typical of and-white. Not only does it occupy the reigning mode.

We are in the midst of an era of sleeveless jackets, such as the one which achieves assured smartness for the costume shown here to the left. Full white sleeves for the underblouse and a plaited skirt of white crepe, the latter bordered with black satin to match the jacket, interpret style in every sense of the word.

The bloused styling of the blackand-white frock to the right is also outstanding this season. White is introduced in a full vestee and in a panel and borderings on the skirt. The hat which this stylishly clad young woman is wearing expresses utmost snug-fitting earlap types. For the younger set these tight molded-to-thehead shapes are quite the rage. It is not possible to overemphasize

the increasing importance of blackthe center of the stage at this moment, but fabrics and accessories for the coming months all bear a message

Among the prospects for summer are dresses which combine filmy black with white lace in their development. Lovely, too, are the new georgette prints showing a white background trellised over with huge black roses and other floral patternings. White shoes inlaid with black kid and vice versa will add a beauty note to the black-and-white ensemble.

THE important part that Milkmaker plays in Michigan dairying is probably best set forth in the claims made by hundreds of Michigan's leading dairymen who have used Milkmaker continuously for one or more years.

These dairymen tell us that they have secured the following results by the use of Milkmaker,

1. Cows have kept up in better flesh and better physical condition.

2. Cows have maintained a larger and more even flow of milk.

3. Calves better developed and stronger at

Buying a Better Herd

These men have realized that in buying and using Milkmaker they are assuring themselves of a better herd of cows two or three years hence.

In buying a bag of dairy feed you do not buy the feed for the feed itself, but for the ultimate results obtained. The results to be obtained are not necessarily determined by the price of the feed. The real value of the feed is determined by the per cent of digestible protein and digestible nutrients, both of which determine results.

RADIO PUT TO USE BY LEGION POSTS

Among the many big endeavors of the American Legion this year, the radio broadcasting programs by Legion posts and state departments, the latter provided for by mandate of the national convention held in Philadelphia, are proving to be a wonderful success. As nearly as possible, some state department of the Legion broadcasts each week. There are numerous Legion local posts that have weekly programs, and one post in Oklahoma City holds its weekly meetings by radio on account of the members being scattered over a large territory. Radio Post No. 404 of Dallas, Texas, recently installed its officers by radio.

A typical illustration of how the programs are received by the general public is the case of the Hudson county committee of New Jersey, which has been broadcasting from station WAAT (235 meters), Jersey City. The programs proved so popular in December that the committee arranged for an "American Legion hour" from 7 to 8 p. m. every Tuesday, and is now presenting them each week.

"We give each post in the country a chance to supply talent which is made up entirely of Legionnaires." James H. Clarke, county adjutant, reported to national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind. "We have post orchestras, singers, monologists, story tellers, comedians and a variety of other numbers. Many of the Legionnaires have had professional experience. We also include in our program short talks on the work of the Legion, making our programs both entertaining and educational."

Besides using the radio to inform the public of Legion work, the Leof continued favor for black-and-white gion is now employing it to educate Legionnaires how to talk French.

The lessons are broadcast from Station WRNY (the Hotel Roosevelt) from 7 to 7:15 p.m. each Wednesday. The wave length is 374 meters. The teacher is Mlle. Alice Blum, famous in the World war for teaching the troops an easy way of learning to talk enough French to answer practical purposes. The lessons are especially built for the second trip to

The wedding notes Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. of Hinkey Dinkey Parley Voo were followed with the Shakopee funeral Frank Stadler had the misfortune dirge. The "flower girls," two husky Legionnaires, tripped along behind the padre, strewing onion peel nosegays and carrying Danish red cabbage roses, cigarettes and matches. A big ring was carried on a mattress and when the padre asked if there were any objections to the "marriage," one Legionnaire insisted that the "bridegroom's" check for the ring had been returned marked "no funds."

Nominal Travel Charges

for Visitors to Europe The second A. E. F. of the Legion will offer the chance of a lifetime for veterans to visit Europe upon the nominal travel charge. American railroads have granted one-way fare for the round trip from the Legionnaire's home town to the port of embarkation. Steamship fares for Legionnaires Paris bound, range from $145.80 up. Through the co-operation of the battle monuments commission and the French government tours to all sectors of northern France and Belgium where American troops were billeted and engaged have been arranged. These tours, starting and ending in Paris, will cost from $5 to $16.50 and with one exception include a visit to one of the large American cemeteries abroad. Legionnaires will be saved more than $1,000,000 while globe trotting on the continent by the elimination of passport and passport vises.

The Red River Special Line includes tractors and separators for every threshing run. Whether you want a machine to thresh your own grain and that of a few neighbors, or whether you are in the market for a big custom threshing rig, the Red River Special Line exactly fills the bill—five sizes of separators, each one with full roller bearings Alemite-Zerk lubricated—the famous 4 Threshermen and all sheet metal parts of Armco Ingot Iron, the great rust resisting metal. The tractors are the N & S Lauson Built 16-32 and 20-40 Farm tractors, the 20-40 Thresherman's Special and the N & S 25-50. These Lauson built tractors, in every way, measure up to the high standard of quality set by the Red River Special Line. Roller and Ball bearings are used in every principal bearing point, in the wheels, transmission and motor. These tractors are built strong and sturdy, to stand up to their work in the belt or on the draw-bar, and to operate steadily and economically with a big surplus of power.

Like the Red River Special Line-they too, are long lived. See us for additional information.

Good General-Purpose Barn Is Valuable Addition to Any Farm

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

On many farms the dairy herd is not large enough to demand a separate barn; in that case a general purpose barn is used. In fact, on most small farms this is the most convenient and efficient type of building. It serves to house not only the dairy herd but | Foundation in Home the horses as well. In building this barn, however, it is important to install the right kind of equipment and use the best materials. Extra expense at the start will save money in the long run. Many farmers make the mistake of building a cheap structure without realizing that it will not last any length of time, and will be a continual source of trouble and expense as long as he has it on his farm. The farm barn should be carefully planned on paper before it is built and all possible angles considered carefully. Then when it is built it will be a source of pride and real satisfaction to the owner, and a wonderful asset in more ways than one. It will mean a great saving in labor, relief from drudgery, and increased production from the animals.

When the barn shown here was planned, all these things were taken into consideration. First, the actual construction was studied. It was decided that a frame structure on a substantial concrete foundation would make a very practical and attractive exterior. The roof is gambrel shaped, and large ventilators have been installed to draw off the foul air. Incidentally it is well to mention need of lightning protection. Ninety-nine per cent of the fires on the farm have been caused by lightning and the lightning rod has been found an effective preventive.

This building is built T-shaped, with the horse stalls in the cross wing and the cow stalls in the long section. These two sections are separated by a solid wall, an arangement required by health departments in some states. In the horse section there are two double stalls, two single stalls and two box stalls. Fresh-air intakes at regular intervals along the wall just above the stalls insure a continuous supply of fresh, invigorating air. The stall partitions are of the latest steel type and the floor is concrete. Just beyond the horse barn is a 16-foot silo connected with both wings of the barn by a carrier system.

The other part of the wing containing the horse stalls is divided into feed rooms where the feed is stored and prepared for all of the animals. This feed is loaded on to the feed carrier, which runs on a carrier track in the center aisle and carries without any trouble to the far corner of the barn.

There is room for 24 cows in the other section of the building. These stalls are arranged in two rows facing each other, with litter alleys in the rear of each row. As in the case of the main aisle in the center, these litter alleys are also equipped with carrier tracks and litter carriers which carry the manure and litter directly from the stalls to the manure pit. All stalls are divided by steel partitions and fitted with sanitary stanchions and drinking cups. These features are important and should not be overlooked by the farmer. A steady water supply, such as is furnished by individual drinking cups, helps to increase the milk supply and also eliminates the work of driving the cows to a trough.

66T DON'T mind telling you," confided young Jimmy Dawson to his friend Charley Underwood, as they smoked their post-lunch cigars in the Belmont grill, "that Lesbia Carroll is just about all the brains in our firm. That girl's a marvel!"

"She's an easy creature to look at, also," replied Charley. "I've known her for years."

"Righto!" Then Dawson frowned. "There's something worrying me. The little simpleton has entered this fool contest for the world's best-looking and speedlest typist, and I'm scared silly she'll win.'

"If she did," finished Charley, "she'd be snapped up by 'movie' men and the firm would lose its brains." "You've said it," returned his friend gloomily. "But worse even than that, the girl would be utterly spoiled." "Pardon my inquiry, but have youer—any personal interest in that mat ter?" asked Charley gently. "Certainly not!" retorted the other with apparent sincerity. "Pure altruism alone incites me. If I could think of some scheme by which she could be kept from entering the finals, I would not hesitate to save her from herself." "You'd stop at nothing?"

"Well, almost nothing!" "I've got it, then!" and Charley slapped his knee. "You say your sister is at her place on Long Island? Well, listen, here!"

An hour later, Lesbia Carroll looked up from her desk to see her employer striding towards her with an expression of determination on his face. Looking down into her blue eyes,

"Are you still set on being in that contest?" he demanded. Lesbia tossed her curly bobbed head 'Certainly," she said. "Why not?" Now young Jimmy had not been altogether sincere about his interest in Lesbia. In spite of himself, it was fast growing personal, but he would not recognize it if Lesbia persisted in advertising herself throughout the country. Therefore, he now hedged somewhat in his reply. "There are many reasons, Miss Carroll. You are bound to lose interest in your work with us And—and—oh, hang it—"

Lesbia flushed, "Please, Mr. Daw son. Please!"

"It's no use," he presently telephoned Charley. "She will go into the thing and with her looks and speed, she's bound to win. I'll get hold of my sister—lucky they used to be old friends in school-and we'll carry out that little plan. Means I've got to get in a substitute here, but it's worth the trouble. It's up to you to see that your arrival with Lesbia is quite too late for the final contest."

Now to do Jimmy's sister justice, she was not informed as to just why Lesbia was sent to her for a week-end visit other than that Jimmy thought she needed a rest. But because she had been asked to include Jimmy's old friend, Charley Underwood, in the house party, she suspected a love affair and managed to throw them into each other's company as much as pos

Therefore, upon that poor man fell the duty of playing Machiavelli at the same time that he was supposed to be enacting the role of an ardent Romeo. And it was probably not the first time that a well-meaning friend cursed his well-meaning friendship for precipitating him into unseen difficulties.

On the morning when the final contest was to be held, Jimmy Dawson's cruiser swung slowly up the East river. Her owner was pacing the dock at which she was to land, and now and then he glanced nervously at his watch, while a few yards away, a taxicab with its engine still running, quivered on the cobblestones. As the boat drew near, Jimmy went over to the top of the ladder which led down to the float and, as Lesbia started up, he reached down and grabbed her arm. "Hurry, Lesbia," he cried. "The contest was postponed until eleven, but we've only about fifteenno, thirteen minutes, in which to make it. Hurry!" But Lesbia seemed in no great haste, while Charley, now on the scene, was regarding Jimmy with an expression decidedly curious. "Hurry," said Jimmy. "Only twelve minutes!"

"But I'm not going to enter!" cried Lesbia. "I know that Charley, for some reason or other, doesn't want me to. Ever since we left your sister's, he has been inventing delays and imagining that one thing after another was wrong with the boat. We've stopped twenty times on the way!" Then she slipped an arm through Charley's. "Mr.-er-Dawson, Charley and I-" she paused.

"Sorry, old man," said Charley. "You see-we've gone and fallen in love and now she's won me, she doesn't seem to care about winning anything else!" Jimmy grabbed their hands. "Congratulations!" he said, and there was no doubting his sincerity. But later when the two men were alone, Charley could not refrain from just one question. "How come, Jimmy, you made such a right-about-face about Lesbia's going in for that affair?" Jimmy looked sheepish. "I-I sort of lost interest in what she did," he confessed. "And I didn't want it on my conscience that I'd stood in her way. I-I say. Charley, you ought to see the girl who's taking her place! Gloria, her name is—and, gosh, she's got brains, too!"

Colonial Home That Will Make Children Happy and Contented

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Rad-ford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, for reply.

"I am going to make home life so attractive on this farm that my boys won't care to go to the city for excitement and variety when they grow up to manhood," remarked the farmer in his talk to the contractor. "That is one reason why I am planning a modern home with every convenience known to the building art."

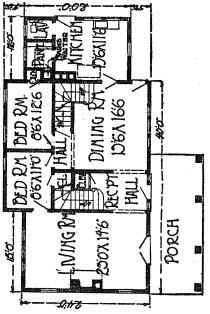

What he had in mind was a home like the one illustrated here with floor plans. He had learned the lesson from the experience of many of his neighbors and he was determined to profit by their mistakes. Alert and progressive, he had very soon recognized the vital fact that to keep the children on the farm contented—a happy home life and freedom from the drudgery which has so often driven the boys to the larger cities just when the father had planned to turn over the reins to them was essential. The first important step in his program was the farm home. This he decided was to be so attractive as to arouse the envy of city visitors. He could not have picked a prettier and more charming design than the colonial type shown in this picture. Always appealing, never failing in its popularity, although it is one of the oldest types of architectural styles in the country, it has a homelike atmosphere that cannot be excelled. Combined with its quaintness is the modern touch of the building science. There is something about this hospitable home that is most inviting. Perhaps it is the quaint green shutters on the windows, the open front porch set on a level with the ground, the low rambling appearance, the unusual chimneys.

This home is designed for a family with plenty of children. There will be no crowding, for there are ten rooms in all, six of which are bedrooms, and a large nursery for the smaller "kid-

The front door leads into a small reception hall. Another door opening from the porch leads into the large living room, so essential in the colonial type of home, and an ideal lounging and resting place for the family after the work of the day. This living room is 23 by 14 feet 6 inches, with a large open brick fireplace built in the side. It extends the full depth of the house, thus providing for excellent lighting from front and rear as well as the side on which the fireplace is located. At the far end a door leads to a small bedroom, 8 feet 6 inches by 11 feet, very convenient for the men who have to arise early.

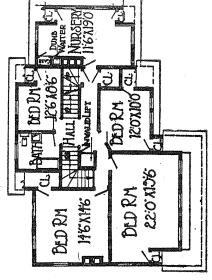

First Floor Plan.

The reception hall also opens into the dining room on the opposite side. This room is not quite as large as the living room, but is ample for the needs of the family. It opens at the far end into a hall which gives access to another small bedroom and to the stairs leading to the cellar, and to the floor above. At the right end, which forms a sort of wing to the main building, is the large kitchen which is necessary in farm homes where many must be fed. Off one corner is a waiter has been installed, which kitchen a very easy task and lightens ister in the wall or floor.

much of the work which falls on the shoulders of the housewife. Too many of these labor-saving conveniences cannot be installed in the farm home, because the amount of work to be done is always considerable.

Upstairs are the sleeping quarters. Here the floor plans call for four bedrooms of various sizes, a bathroom and a splendid nursery in the far wing over the kitchen. The dumbwaiter is extended to this room, so that in case of illness the prepared meals can be carried direct to the sick room. In addition to the dumbwaiter there is an invalid lift in the side hall.

All of the bedrooms have good lighting facilities, most of them having exposure on two sides. The corner bedrooms are large, 22 by 13 feet 6 inche and 14 feet 6 inches square, and can be used as a sewing room or library if the occasion demands.

It goes almost without saying that this is a most distinctive farm home and one that will insure a large amount of comfort and satisfaction to the farmer, his wife and especially his children. The girls and boys have a real home in which to entertain their friends. There is electric light, running water, modern lavatories and bathroom. A modern heating plant in the cellar keeps the home comfortable all year round. If more homes like this were built on American farms, and they can be, for they are not very expensive, there would be less worry over farm help and less hue and cry about keeping the children on the farm. Human nature is alike the world over, in that it craves comfort, convenience and attractive surroundings. That is the basis of all honest

Dead Black on Iron The question is often asked, how can I produce a dead black on iron-work? The answer is, the ironwork should first be primed with a suitable primer. for example, 100 pounds of red lead and 21/2 gallons linseed oil. If boiled oil is obtainable, the use of one-third hoiled and two-thirds raw oil is advised. If not, raw oil may be used. In this event a sufficient amount of | ታቅላቅ ተቀቅላቅ ተቀቅላል ተቀቅላቅ ተቀቅ dryer should be added. Second or body coat should next be applied after the primer has thoroughly dried. A suitable formula for this would be 100 pounds red lead, 12 ounces lampblack (ground in oil) and 2% gallons linseed oil.

After the body coat has thoroughly dried, add a coat of superfine lampblack thinned with turpentine to which a very small amount of varnish has been added to form a good bond. The result will be a flat black. If the black is to be used as gloss for exterior the addition of a suitable amount of exterior spar varnish would be advisable.

Feeding the Baby Chicks

NATURE provides sufficient food for the first three days, for the chick absorbs the yolk of the egg just before it is hatched. This food is rich in fats and carbohydrates. From the third day to the sixth week, Michigan Chick Starter assists nature by giving the chicks a similar feed that is easily seen, easily digested and nutritious. Michigan Chick Starter is rich in vitamine content, balanced with the necessary cereal and animal proteins to give the highest feeding efficiency. Michigan Chick Starter is not waste material from the mill. It is based on the latest scientific formula for baby chick feeding. Too Much "Acid?"

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills-a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

Luck in Christmas Plum

A feature of the Christmas eve supper in Sweden is a rice pudding, filled with raisins and containing a solitary plum, said to bring good fortune to whoever draws it in his portion.

HEN EGGS STAND HEAVY PRESSURE

That an ordinary hen's egg will stand heavy pressure was proved in an exhibit which the poultry department at the College of Agriculture at Ithaca displayed at the New York state fair. A 16-pound steel sledge hammer was arranged so that it came down on the egg once a minute, being raised and lowered automatically. The egg was placed on a scale which registered the pressure; extra weight was applied and the egg stood the weight of 23 pounds, or all that the scales would register. A special trial was made when still more weight was applied on the handle of the sledge, and it is estimated that the egg stood more than 50 pounds pressure before it broke.

The purpose of the demonstration was to show the pressure that an ordinary egg would stand, and to show why it was desirable to produce eggs with strong shells. Strong shelled eggs ship best, and evaporate least; this prolongs their freshness, and pleases the consumer, because a greater proportion of them reach the market in good condition.

"This is the first time such an arrangement has been used to demonstrate the strength of the shells of hen eggs," according to C. K. Powell, in charge of the exhibit. "Usually, the breaking strength has been tested by pressing the eggs between two hard-

Breaking strength of eggs indicates, to some extent, breeding and feeding of the hens. Minerals must make up a part of the ration, and, in this connection, it is said that cod liver oil aids in the assimilation of the minerals by the birds.

Tobacco Dust Useful to Destroy Worms in Flock Placing 2 per cent of tobacco dust in the mash is a common remedy for the Village of Caro in said county, or removing worms from poultry. Then or before the 10th day of August A. once each week give epsom salts to the flock at the rate of a pound per hundred birds. The salts can be given of wet mash that the flock will eat quickly, allowing as even a distribution of the medicine as possible.

Some poultrymen are using the commercial worm capsules with good success, as it insures every bird receiving the proper share. Keep the droppings removed from the houses, and distribute them as far as possible from the poultry houses and range. This helps to keep down the infestation of worms

Poultry Hints

Let the breeding flocks have the range when you shut up the hens for winter eggs.

Watch the water supply. Poultry should never be allowed to drink frozen water.

For hatching eggs breed from the best of the late-laying hens, rather than from the pullets.

Be on guard for the first sign of colds or roup in the poultry, and to separate the afflicted from the rest.

It is not well to force heavy egg production through feeding where birds are to be used for breeding pens.

It is a good scheme to plow or spade up the poultry runs each spring in order to get rid of worms that cause gapes in chickens.

Nature's way of resting her feathered family is to let them rear a family. Turkeys and chickens are both better for the season of rest.

Turning hens out of the warm henhouse on a chill wintry day, or with a cold wind blowing, or with snow or ice on the ground, opens the way to wheezing roup before midnight.

If you shut up the pullets they may lose their appetite. Coax them along with frequent grain feedings and a moist mash once a day. Cement makes the best floor for

CARD OF THANKS-I wish to thank the Cass City Grain Co., Past Noble Grands and friends for flowers sent me while ill. Mrs. A. A. Brian.

WORDS fail to express my appreciation for all the kindness that was shown me during the sickness and death of my beloved wife, Gail. To the friends and neighbors who did so much in every way, I offer my sincere thanks. The beautiful flowers were a tribute to the one who lived among you all her life, and their messages have all been written in my heart. Thank you one and all. Henry Zemke.

CARD OF THANKS-We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and for the beautiful floral offerings; also to Mr. and Mrs. Mc Phail and Rev. Newberry and those who furnished cars. Mrs. A. E. Summers and Family.

WITH HEN FLOCKS

Summarizing a year's reports of 31 Minnesota poultry record flocks in 19 counties, Cora E. Cooke, poultry specialist with the agricultural extension service. University of Minnesota. finds that one location is about as good as another in Minnesota for keeping poultry; that there is no one most 30 to 60 pounds each. Address John profitable breed; that improved feeding more than pays for itself in increased returns; that good housing is essential to good returns, and that Minnesota farm flocks are an asset to the farm business.

Also the records seem to show that increased annual net returns can be expected from a high egg production, a low feed cost, and the selling of poultry and eggs to advantage, especially for breeding purposes.

Six breeds are represented in the 31 flocks. The average number of eggs laid per hen was 128 and the average feed cost per hen for the year was $1.95. The average net return per bird was $2.53. In the ten flocks having the highest production, the actual feed cost was $2.04 per hen as compared with a cost of $1.86 in the ten lowest producing flocks. Figured in terms of a dozen eggs, the high-producing flocks did the best with feed costs amounting to only 15.04 cents per dozen eggs, while it was 25 cents a dozen in the low producing flocks. The average was 18 cents a dozen. In other words, it costs more to produce more eggs, but the increased production brings a greater return.

Rooster Needs Special

Feeding and Management

The rooster should have special feeding and management so as to keep up his vigor, vitality, constitution and activity, says H. A. Bittenbender, head of the poultry husbandry department at Iowa State college. "Care must be taken in the selection of roosters, but even after the proper males have been put into the flock, it is entirely possible to ruin the chances of getting a large number of fertile eggs," says Mr. Bittenbender. "First, have the right proportion of females in the flock. Generally we can use the following guide: For Mediterranean breeds, in the early part of the season, one male to 14 females, and as the season advances increase to 25; for American breeds, one male to ten females early in the season and one to 15 later; for Asiatic and English breeds, in most cases it has been found best to use a lesser number of females than of the American breeds."

One good method of managing the rooster is to keep the hens that are not laying in a pen by themselves, and as they come into laying, put them into the breeding pens. In this way it is possible to insure a greater percentage of fertility from the ones that are laying during the earlier part of the season. It is not necessary to have a trap nest in order to do this.

a Very Difficult Task

As soon as the turkeys, which have been fed for Christmas holidays, have been marketed the ration which was used during the fattening period, no doubt consisting largely of corn, may be reduced.

A breeding flock should be brought through the winter in good flesh and care should be taken not to have excess fat. Corn is a good winter food, but it is not considered best to make more than one-third of ration corn. A mixture of corn, wheat and oats in equal parts will serve as the main part of the ration.

As long as it is possible for the turkeys to range through the woods and over the field one feeding a day is sufficient. When the fields become covered with snow it may be necessary to increase the grain feeding. Green food is very essential and can be supplied in the form of carrots, turnips, cabbage, beets, etc. Meat scraps, sour milk, fresh ground bone and ovster shell will supply food which is very essential.

Take care of the flock this winter, and next year you will be rewarded for your efforts and work.

Have Plenty of Nests

Every poultry house should be equipped with plenty of nests so that each hen may have an opportunity to have the sole use of a nest when she wants to lay. One nest for each two hens is not too many, but two to five hens will do pretty well. Nests should be about 12 inches by 14 inches, and at least 12 inches deep. The opening should be about 8 inches wide and 9 inches deep. This will allow for enough straw in the bottom to make a soft nest.

White Orpington Breed

The White Orpington is one of the large breeds of chickens. The males should weigh 10 pounds and the adult hens around 8 pounds. They are fairly good layers the first year and lay a good-sized brown egg. Of course, the laying is more a matter of feed, care and breeding than it is of the breed. They are good mothers. Heas after their first laying year are likely to be broody a great deal and do not lay as well. For this reason pullets are favored for laying.

WHY==== Phases of the Moon Cause Loss in Weight

When the moon passes vertically overhead did you ever notice that you lost weight. Well, you do, says the Abbe Moreux, noted French astronomer. A man weighing 168 pounds weighs 1-3200th of an ounce less under the moon.

It is the same influence that causes the tides, perhaps the best-known example of the moon's meddling in our affairs. Here's what happens to make the tides, according to the abbe:

If the water loses weight when the moon is overhead, the column of water directly under the moon must be higher than in other parts in order that the pressure on the sea floor may remain the same and equilibrium be maintained. This bulging outward of the ocean's surface is the tide.

Now, here is an odd thing. When the moon passes straight over New York, for instance, not only are the tides the same in exactly the opposite parts of the earth, but the other magnetic efforts likewise. At the same time that we lose that 1-3200th of an ounce, so do the Chinese on the other side of the globe.

The earth may be eighty-one times the size of the moon, but that does not mean we can look upon it with contempt, according to the abbe. The sometimes with, sometimes against, song writers, and simply works with independent and pulls in the opposite direction.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why Storm Windows

If a storm window is put on the outside of windows the glass thickness is doubled, an air space is added, and the heat consumption is reduced by more than half, or to 31.5 B. T. U. per square foot. It is obvious that the initial cost of storm windows, especially if placed on the sides of the house with the coldest exposure, will be covered in a few years by the saving in cost due to reducing the size of the original heating system and by the annual saving in fuel.

Valuable heat is often lost in appreciable quantities through windows. To get some idea of the heat loss that is taking place on a cold day, place your hand near a pane of glass and see how chilly it feels.

To measure the heat loss that is taking place constantly in cold weather through each square foot of wall or window space a common yardstick can be found in the British thermal unit (B. T. U.), but in using it we must remember that each materialbrick, glass, wood, plaster and so onhas a different cold-resisting scale.

For instance, with the temperature at zero outside and at 70 degrees inside, a square foot of brick wall, eight inches thick and furred and plastered, may be considered as wasting 21 B. T. U., whereas, each foot of glass window wastes 78.8 B. T. U. In other words, the furnace heat escapes nearly four times as fast through the window as through the wall.

Storm windows and doo this heat loss and make any home, especially one in an exposed location, more livable and easy to heat.

Why Smokestacks Are High is 572 feet high. The second highest neighborhood.

How Prison Got Name

Sing Sing prison was so named because it was located at Sing Sing, N. Y. The name of the town, which is on the Hudson river about thirty miles north of New York city, was derived from the Sin Sinck Indians who lived in that vicinity. In 1901 the name of only a New York state prison.-Ex-

You may think you have a hard time, but how would you like to make your living selling buggy whips?

It is estimated that 75 per cent of the people who keep poultry crowd too many birds in their poultry houses. Egg production is thus disregarded and proper development of younger birds is prevented. Wherever any disease breaks out in the flock overcrowding helps spread the disease more rapidly. Cull the birds so that the flock will fit the house. "Give Him One of Your Cards, Bob!" Two men in a sedan and a farmer and his boy in a smaller car had stopped on a country road for a short discussion of business in general. The farmer and one of the men from town were old friends. The other was unknown to him. "Give Mr. Hartley one of your cards, Bob," suggested the farmer's friend. "You ought to do some business with him before long.' Now, if Bob had presented his card to Mr. Hartley, there would be little of interest to us in the transaction. But Bob did not have a card to give him! Whatever your business or profession may be, you can't afford to be without a supply of personal cards. Your business is built by making yourself known favorably to a lot of people. When folks need, or consider, something in your line, you want them to think of you. If they have your card the chances are in your favor. There is no better place in this community to get personal cards—for business, social or campaign use—than right at this newspaper office. Our prices will please you just as much as the cards. Let us prove it. You need them NOW!
