

DEFORD WOMAN DIED IN MYSTERY FIRE

Mrs. Roberts Lost Life When Old Farm Home Burned in Lamotte Twp.

Mystery surrounds the death of Mrs. Alberta Edell Roberts of Deford, whose charred body was found in the ruins of a burned farm house near Lamotte Corners, Lamotte township, on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Roberts left her home in Deford Saturday, taking the Grand Trunk train to Kingston. From Kingston, she made her way to her old farm home in Lamotte township where in 1881, four years after her marriage, she and her husband went to live and entered the pioneer life of that neighborhood. Mr. Roberts died 25 years ago and it has been many years since Mrs. Roberts lived in that community.

In late months, Mrs. Roberts has resided in her home at Deford with her granddaughter and the latter's family. On Saturday, Mrs. Roberts expressed the desire to visit the old farm home in Lamotte before the place was sold and she left to visit among old friends in that neighborhood. Relatives say that she was last seen by Mrs. Thos. Ellis, who resided near Mrs. Roberts' old farm home. The two ladies visited for more than an hour late Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Roberts said she expected to remain in the neighborhood for about three days. On being invited by Mrs. Ellis to stay at the Ellis home Saturday night, Mrs. Roberts made the remark that she intended going to spend the night with Mrs. Kelley, another pioneer friend. Mrs. Kelley, however, knew nothing about Mrs. Roberts' intention and was as surprised as anyone when the body was discovered in the ruins Sunday. The Roberts farm house was badly in need of repairs and had not been occupied for two years. Relatives are unable to account for the mysterious happening. They think there is a possibility that the floor might have given way and Mrs. Roberts fell while carrying an oil lamp, thereby setting fire to the dwelling. The unusual feature of the tragedy is that no one saw the house burn and the fire was not discovered until the neighbors arose Sunday morning.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Kingston Baptist church.

Alberta Edell Rogers was born in Imlay township, Lapeer county, on May 9, 1858. In 1877, she married Frank B. Roberts, who preceded her in death 25 years ago. She leaves one brother, Mica Rogers of Kingsmill, two daughters, Mrs. Martha Slack of Novesta township and Mrs. May Crocker of Akron, Mich., and one son, John D. Roberts of Astoria, Ore., 9 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

W. C. T. U. MEET BEST IN HISTORY OF DISTRICT

The W. C. T. U. convention held at North Branch Thursday and Friday, Oct. 18 and 19, is said to be the best in the history of the seventh district. The attendance of delegates and visitors was very good at all sessions. There were 22 delegates from Tuscola county.

Reports of district directors were exceptionally good, showing a large amount of work done along all lines of department work. The annual address of the president, Mrs. Bell Waters, of Lum, was splendid. On Thursday evening, there was a large attendance to hear the fine address of Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins, national director of child welfare, and on Friday evening a crowded house listened to the stirring address given by Rev. H. H. Savage, pastor of Baptist church at Pontiac. The high school orchestra of North Branch gave exceptionally fine music at both evening meetings. A number of pastors of churches and business men of North Branch and surrounding communities attended the convention and gave good talks. It was said to be a Hoover convention from beginning to end.

The 1929 convention will be held in Caro. Officers elected were: President for her ninth year, Mrs. Bell M. Waters of Lum; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Genie Martin, Deford; recording secretary, Mrs. C. S. Bates, Kingston; treasurer, Miss Laura Moore, St. Clair; vice president at large, Mrs. Linnie Reed, North Branch.

CASS CITY AND CARO PLAY 12-12 TIE FRIDAY

Locals Score Touchdown in Last Minutes of Thrilling
Final Quarter.

Cass City and Caro high schools played a 12-12 tie in the annual tussle between the two schools Friday. The game was well played by both teams, the edge slightly in favor of Caro on first downs.

The heavier Caro squad scored with but one minute to remain in the first half. A pass placed the ball in the scoring zone and another heave, Rajkovich to McMahon, scored the first touchdown. The gun sounded to end the half before the ball was put in play from the kick off. Caro failed in kick for point and the half ended 6-0 Caro.

To start the second half, Cass City used an inside kick giving the ball to Caro on the 35-yard line. Held for downs, Caro punted and Cass City punted back to Rajkovich, who fumbled the kick on the 40-yard line and Vatters, local end, dropped on the ball. On the second play, Flint passed to Edgerton, who ran for a touchdown. On this play, McCullough took out Pete Rajkovich, the only Caro man who could have stopped "Bob." Brown missed try for point. Score, Cass City 6, Caro 6.

Caro received and carried the ball to the Cass City 20-yard line before losing it on downs. The local backs messed up a play and were thrown for a 12-yard loss. Punting to the 30-yard line against the wind gave Caro the ball and they proceeded to score on line plays, again missing the try for points. Score 12-6.

The last quarter was a thrilling fight, by one team to score and by the other to hold. A pass, Flint to McCullough, put the ball on the Caro 30-yard line and the Maroon and Grey captain tried a long pass, McCullough to Flint, and the play was called complete when Flint was interfered with. On the next play, Reagh plunged across to tie the score, 12-12. Brown dropped back for the try for point and before the kick was well off, the ball was blocked. The whistle blew ending the game before the ball could be put in play after Caro received and the game was tied.

This game eliminates the home squad in case Sebewaing or Bad Axe go the route without defeat. However, both Sebewaing and Bad Axe have to play Caro in an association tilt.

This Friday, the locals meet Ubly and are assured of a battle. Ubly is always a fighting team, and with the chance of eliminating Cass City in view, will be doubly so.

THUMB OF MICHIGAN ASSO. NEWS LETTER

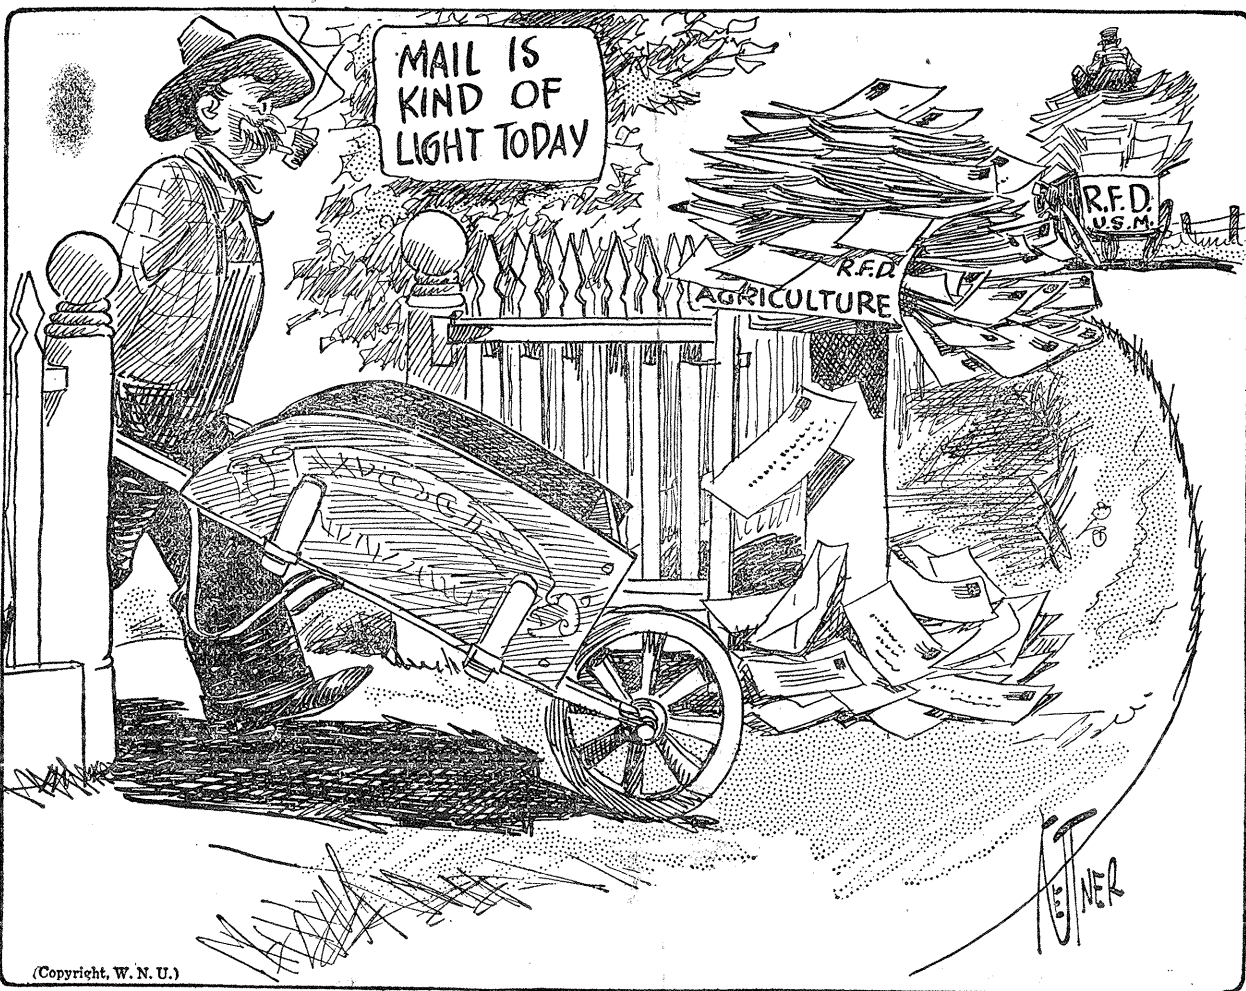

A large proportion of the farmers in The Thumb have found 1928 a disastrous season so far as field crops were concerned. Sugar beets, chichory, beans and other crops have been drowned out and many of the farmers have little to show for their year's work.

This confirms emphatically what the agricultural authorities have been preaching for years past—the necessity of better drainage for Thumb lands.

The drainage program is advancing slowly. In some parts of The Thumb the drains are being extended and land being relieved of surplus water, but there is a vast amount more to be done, not only extending the drains but in maintaining drains constructed in the past. There are many drains which are almost filled up with mud and weeds. There is little use in constructing an expensive drain unless it is kept free for the flow of water.

In addition to the community drains our lands need more tile. In many parts of The Thumb, where the soil is right, it is likely that the mole system of drainage can be used at much less cost than tile. The mole system is being tried out extensively in various parts of Michigan and Ontario and in the right soil is giving very satisfactory results.

Of all the problems confronting the farmers, the business men, and bankers of The Thumb there is none of more importance than the matter of drains.

Still, the prospect for the future is not so bad as this season's experience might suggest. An examination of the records of the Port Huron Turn to page 6.

HUNTER SHOT BY FRIEND NEAR KINGSTON

Bert Bell, 35 years of age, 492 Omar St. Pontiac, was accidentally shot near Kingston by a friend with whom he was hunting pheasants on Thursday morning. The shot lodged in his left ankle. The wounded man was brought to Pleasant Home Hospital at Cass City where an emergency dressing was applied and he was then taken to a Pontiac hospital by his friend. Bell will probably be obliged to spend two weeks in the hospital in his home city.

ANGUS MACLACHLAN WRITES OF NAVY EXPERIENCES

Angus MacLachlan, son of Mrs. Sarah MacLachlan of Cass City, enlisted with the U. S. Navy two years ago and at present is on the ship, Saratoga. This boat was designed to be a battle cruiser, but under the terms of the Washington treaty was converted into an air-craft carrier in 1922. The size, equipment, and character of the U. S. S. Saratoga make her a much-visited ship, perhaps the most visited ship of the navy at present. According to its own newspaper "all hands delight to show friends around and tell them some of the interesting things about the Saratoga."

Something of the size of this airplane carrier can be imagined in that in her airplane hanger space alone, the battleship, Oregon, could be stored snugly in regard to length and breadth, and the hanger takes up but a fraction of the room in the ship.

A letter received from Angus telling about the boat follows:

Bremerton, Washington,
October 2, 1928.

Dear Mother:
We arrived at Puget Sound Sunday but because of the heavy fog were unable to proceed any further, as the sound is very narrow in some places and we had some bad bends to make on our way to the navy yards, so we decided to drop anchor and wait until it got a little clearer. In the afternoon, it was no better so we were compelled to wait until Monday. It was still hazy then, but we decided to go on. We passed Seattle about noon, but due to the fog, we saw but little of the city. It cleared in the afternoon and we could see both sides of the sound. We passed many lumber camps on our way from Seattle like pretty tough places. We docked at the navy yards, which is at Bremerton, at about five o'clock Monday night. Had that night off so decided to go ashore to see what the place was like. Well, I got back to the ship without a scratch even though there were a number of lumbermen there. I don't think they are quite as tough as those you read about.

Bremerton is a nice place. The population is about 12,000. Most of Turn to page 8.

Vassar citizens will go to the polls on Nov. 6 to decide on a proposition which the council is submitting which asks for permission to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000 to be used in adding new equipment to the Vassar light and water plant. The calling of this election is another attempt on the part of the village trustees to solve the light and power problem that has been confronting them for over a year. On August 27, less than two months ago, a special election was held on a bond issue proposition of $60,000 and the voters turned it down by a vote of 253 to 152.

William Stein, Winsor township supervisor, finds that drained land is increasing his yield of beans. Mr. Stein states that he expects a yield of about 32 bushels to the acre on a piece of land slightly larger than 18 acres, which is tile drained. About half of this field has yielded 279 bushels, he says. On another piece of undrained land on the Stein farm the average yield of beans will be about 10 bushels, Mr. Stein estimates. The quality of beans on the tile drained land is better than those from the undrained land, he says.

Brown City high school will be presented with a bronze tablet, suitably engraved, won by the high band as Class D champions at the State Music Meet in June. The presentation date is set for Friday night, October 26, at the high school.

Tony Zello of Saginaw, and Frank Parratti and Peter Marostico of Detroit came to Tuscola county Sunday to get some game and incidentally to prove that the Sunday hunting law was a joke. All went well and their game bag began to fill. It happened that local conservation officers had decided to give the visitors a welcome and dropped in on them at the Blaylock farm one mile south of Vassar. Thus ends the first act of the little tragedy. The second act was staged before a Caro justice Monday morning. When the curtain was rung down, each of the three main actors had separated themselves from $90 apiece.—Vassar Pioneer.

Harry Price of Bad Axe, formerly manager of the Consolidated Telephone company in this district for some years, has been promoted to the assistant plant on the Saginaw division of the Bell company.

The board of supervisors unanimously passed a resolution Monday asking the state legislature to enact the proper legislation to prohibit commercial fishing and hunting in the government harbor at Harbor Beach. While the resolution asks that the harbor be closed to commercial fishing and hunting of wild fowl, hook and line fishing would be permitted. The setting of nets within one-half mile east of the main gap in the breakwater would also be prohibited under the terms of the legislation asked in the resolution. Action on the resolution was taken at the behest of Harbor Beach citizens.

Erich Schuette, 6, was probably in-

KENNEY CREAMERY ERECTING WAREHOUSE

Workmen are engaged in erecting a two-story garage and warehouse in the rear of the Kenney Creamery on Main Street.

OIL FOUND NEAR SEBEWAING IS REPORT

Operations at the Pure Oil Company's well on the John Dressler farm were temporarily stopped last week pending the arrival of a larger drilling machine, says the Sebewaing Blade.

The old machine had gone down to the 1,400-foot level and the drilling contractor had thereby completed his contract. The machine was not considered large enough to go down the full depth, which is expected to be approximately 2,500 feet.

Already two loads of parts for the larger machine have arrived and another load was on the way today. Operations will be resumed as soon as the big machine can be set up, which will be within the next week.

Slight traces of oil were found at the 1,400-foot level, a sign that is said to be encouraging. Paying sand is expected to be found at the lower strata.

Some Changes in 23 Years of Carrying Uncle Sam's Rural Mails

(From Ellington-Novesta Correspondence.)

Beginning June 1, 1905, to deliver rural mail, Walter Schell has observed some changes.

For the first two summers Walter rode a bicycle four days of the week and drove a horse and buggy the other two. There were no daily papers on the routes then. The semi-weekly Detroit Journal and the Tri-County Chronicle brought most of the news.

Then for the next six years the "put-put-put" of the motorcycle heralded the coming of the mailman.

When parcel post was adopted in 1915 and catalogue days began, the motorcycle was inadequate and the "Lizzie" came into use. Walter purchased his first Ford from Schenck & Waidley. At that time he could count all the cars owned on his route on his fingers; now it takes three figures.

Of the eighty farmers who resided on the route at the beginning only the following remain: J. S. Parrott, Ed. Knoblet, Wm. Little, E. S. Hendrick, Robt. Spaven, O. A. Hendrick, James Wilson, Anthony Beutler, HALLOWE'EN DOINGS.

The Hallowe'en stunts have varied from pretty and picturesque frolics of the boy and girl element, to lawless mischief. The kid element are entitled to their fun, and it is a pleasure to see them cutting up with their pretty jack-o-lanterns, parading in their white sheets, and trying to scare the sober grown-ups by their ghost antics.

The Hallowe'en custom is hoary with antiquity, and something creepy in human nature seems to like to flirt with the mysterious spooks supposed to return on this occasion.

The Hallowe'en doings in many places however, do not stop with these harmless and playful capers. There is a growing tendency among gangs of boys, and girls as well, to make it a kind of reign of terror in their neighborhoods. They are not satisfied with making a noise, but feel that they have not properly observed the occasion unless they have done things that will cause some damage and make trouble.

It is not a complete excuse to say that boys will be boys, and they have always done these things and always will. It may be said that there is no great harm in ringing doorbells and rapping on windows. But in this time when we are trying to bring the children up to be polite and considerate, it does not help any to have them rampaging through the town and doing insolent things.

When they get to the point where they destroy fences, carry off gates and posts, punch holes in window screens, knock blinds off houses, ring in fire alarms, trample down vegetables remaining in the gardens, then it is time for someone to get busy. Bringing a few of them up in the local courts would have a sobering effect in many places, and would give the parents some good talking points when the next Hallowe'en comes around.

THE ENVY OF GREAT CITIES.

A gentleman who recently visited one of the big cities of the country, remarked on returning that he could not help a certain feeling of envy, on account of the concentration of wealth and money in such centers. He came from a quiet rural district, where he reported that people found it difficult to get along and pay their bills, while in the big city he saw evidence of very free spending. It seemed to him unfair and wrong.

There are too many inequalities in our social system. Yet if this friend would examine the lot of the average big city dweller, it is doubtful if he would find him any better off. It is doubtful if these big city folks have any more money saved at the end of the year, or have had the benefit of any better living conditions.

The big city folks usually pay high for their living. They have to put up with smaller quarters, and their rents are high for what they get, and food prices and about everything they buy are usually higher.

A small element of people in big cities no doubt have the spending of big amounts of money. In many cases it comes because they manage large business operations successfully, and save money for the people. Sometimes it comes because they succeed in speculative operations, but they may have gotten it away from someone who lost speculatively, so the wealth of the community has not been increased.

The people in the smaller cities and towns have comfortable living quarters at low and moderate prices. Food and the various necessities of life are had for lower prices. The food is apt to be better, the living conditions more healthful. The big city folks live under crowded and uncomfortable conditions. Employment is often irregular. A great many people try out these big city conditions, and find they are not as desirable as they seem.

Herbert Hoover says:

I wish to remind you of something which may sound humble and commonplace, but it vibrates through every hope of the future. It is this—the unit of American life is the family and the home. It is the economic unit as well as the moral and spiritual unit. But it is more than this. It is the beginning of self-government. It is the throne of our highest ideals. It is the source of the spiritual energy of our people. For the perfecting of this unit of national life we must bend all of our material and scientific ingenuity. For the attainment of this end we must lend every energy of the government.

Innovations Mark Gowns for Women

Normal Silhouette Used in Many Models; Long Waist Is Prevalent.

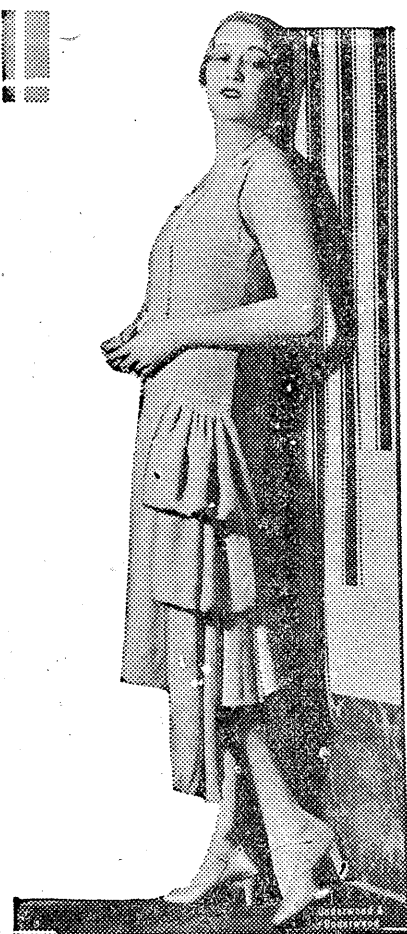

Both French and American dress designers are making an effort this season to restore the much-discussed normal waistline, but as for the last three years, with only partial success, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times. The adjustment of this line to the prevailing taste in silhouettes is a difficult problem. The slender figure that is now so fashionable may not be achieved with a belt that circles the natural line and the "easy" fit is obviously here to stay. The long waist, accordingly, is again prevalent this season, but with less unanimity than before.

The couturiers are introducing adaptations of the blouse, the bolero, the empire and other styles, with new and subtle arrangements of drapery. In their efforts to bring the normal one back, Jean Lanvin, who brought into vogue several years ago the robe de style—which demands a normal line—with such distinction that it returns with minor variants every season, introduces this model again, with a fitted short-waisted bodice. This, with voluminous skirts that sweep the floor, creates a delightfully youthful costume when made of moire, velvet or satin. To create different effects with this type of dress the skirt is lifted in front or at one side, and in a late model a circular peplum, wired to flare sharply, is added to the skirt.

Other modistes are making this new-old, ever picturesque costume in variants that illustrate the charm of a bodice that follows the outline of the figure and yet does not have the rigidity of stays. It is usually lightly boned or pinched at the belt. Many dressmakers and tailors are adopting the idea for both gowns and wraps. Patou is insistently presenting models in which the normal waist is indicated, particularly in a number of suits made of tweed and jersey, in which the coats, short and three-quarter length, are drawn in at the waist. In the fall-weight wool jerseys this style is highly successful in giving a formal appearance to the frock or suit. In moire, satin and velvet gowns the waistline is indicated by tucks in small radiating clusters, and with passementerie, which is being extensively used in the more elaborate models.

The Use of Boleros. The lifted waistline is accomplished in some of the frocks by means of boleros. These, as several prominent Parisians are introducing them, are suitable for either the youthful slim silhouettes, or the more mature ones. The associated houses of Drouillet-Doucet are bringing out a brilliant evening gown of georgette that clings to the figure, the skirt being of circular cut and attached to a snugly fitting yoke about the hips. A sleeveless, decollete bolero of the material covers the normal waistline without the use of a belt or a grille, but with a facing of satin which gives the effect of a double jacket at the lower edge.

The surface of the entire gown sparkles with beads, which are sewn in stripes from the hip yoke down the length of the skirt. The skirt comes down to a low point at one side of the front. This before scheme is introduced to stimulate the normal belt line in a number of the new models for afternoon and evening of satin, moire and velvet, particularly in velvet.

Another delightful article of dress in which the high waist is accentuated is the coat frock. This is being shown in models for daytime and evening in almost all of the fall fabrics. One of wool crepe for all-day wear is made with a redingote over a foundation of satin, belted in such a manner as to mark the natural waistline. This same design is also shown in moire, satin and crepes, and may be worn for either formal or informal occasions, according to the material and color.

A handsome model made in Paris is an ensemble of purples. The coat, cut with an empire waist, is of mauve moire faced with silver tissue. The underdress of satin, in a paler shade, is covered with finely plaited chiffon and is held around the waist with a buckled belt of silver braid. A similar scheme is illustrated in an afternoon reception costume of peach-pink satin over a dress of pink chiffon and pale yellow lace.

Tiers With Normal Waistline. Models decorated with tiers are happily adapted for frocks with a normal waistline. In a handsome gown of this style to be worn to the theater or for dinner at a restaurant the material is satin in an intense blue violet. Each tier is cut to flare at the bottom. The top tier forms the bodice, overlapping the first on the skirt, and below this are two wider ones, each rippling at the lower edge.

The minaret is one of the new styles in which the waistline may be placed wherever the designer indicates, and it is shown in somewhat fantastic models. One of ecru all-over lace has a sleeveless bodice in bolero form, stiffened slightly to flare over a soft-crush belt of tea-rose satin. The slip is of matching color. The skirt is made of two flounces, the upper one narrower than the lower and flaring from the hips. The bottom flounce is unstiffened, but gathered on a straight thread, and falls softly about the figure.

A few of the Paris modistes frankly mark the normal waistline. Patou makes an evening gown of ecru lace with sleeveless surplice bodice and skirt draped to form a deep point at each side, and a crush grille of ecru suede. From Patou also comes a sports suit of jersey in shades of rust brown and beige, which has a flaring skirt striped in the different colors, and a short jacket over a blouse belted with leather at the normal line.

A chic suit of fall weight knitted goods in burgundy shades has a high waist strapped about with a suede belt to match the material. Larden Lelong makes concession in some of his latest designs by clever arrangement of drapery and by placing the belt to define a higher waistline. In most of these a jacket model, long or short, is used for afternoon ensembles of handsome materials, velvets, satins or moire.

In an evening gown from this artist, the fabric is a jade green moire, which is faced with crepe-satin in a lighter shade. The front of the dress is made in a princess style and a width of the goods at the back is attached to the bodice with a large soft-petaled velvet flower at the natural line of the waist.

Molded Tightly to Figure.

Gowns created in the ultra-modern mode by some of the prominent designers reverse the type of voluminous skirts and swaying draperies and are molded tightly to the figure. Some striking illustrations of this style are being brought out by well-known couturiers, especially by American artists.

The uneven hem line is now so generally accepted that few gowns other than the tailored styles for the street and sports are made straight around the lower edge. The long black, which Louiseboulanger insistently presented two seasons ago, is used in gowns for both daytime and evening. This design is strikingly illustrated in a new version of the period gown created by one of the most exclusive couturiers in New York.

In two stunning gowns made for the matron and maid of honor at an ultra-fashionable wedding, moire in shades of blue and pink orchids is combined with petunia velvet and trimmed with gold passementerie, studded with pearls. Wide pieces of the moire are attached to the lower edge of the bodice, being gathered full at each side and cut longer at the back than at the sides. The front of the dress is one piece, and cut slightly below the knee.

HOLBROOK.

The rural parents' and pupils' meeting at the Cass City high school on Friday night was quite a success and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Games were played by both old and young. Entertainment was fine and refreshments were served. All enjoyed a pleasant evening and felt better acquainted with the teachers and the school board, and also many of our rural neighbors whom we never met before. Here's wishing that the next parent-teachers' meeting will bring more parents from this locality and other surrounding ones to enjoy the excellent programs that the teachers work so hard to put on for the benefit of the school and communities. Who's your Grocer Now?

TREAT YOURSELF! THE BEST IS YOURS!

"Why don't you advertise the price of the Sterling Cakes?" I asked R-Grocer. "I should think you would be awfully proud of the prices."

"Ah, there you are! And we advertise as partly to blame," frowned R-Grocer. "You judge all things by price. Yes, the price of Sterling Cakes has a real appeal," continued Mr. Henderson, "but we are selling Sterling Cakes to you because they are menu treats and there are none better. We are showing CLASS and we don't want prices' loud calling to drown quality's voice."

Still remembering my query he added frankly, "Now, how could we give the price of Sterling Cakes when there are thirty varieties to choose from?"

I am proud of R-Grocer because he is more and more stocking his shelves with the world's best, even though it costs a few points more.

I like the best.

HOW

SCIENCE PROVES WATER IS NOT A SOLID BODY.—It takes a distinct mental effort for us to realize that water is made up of immense numbers of small particles, all free to move, and that between them there must be space, empty or filled with something else.

But that is the status of water beyond any question—it is an aggregate of molecules between which there is space and we can introduce into this space other material. This we can test for ourselves by the familiar experiment of pouring some alcohol into a vessel filled, apparently, as full as it can get, without raising the level.

Water, as ice, takes up more space. Roughly, ice is about 10 per cent less heavy than the same volume of water. Evidently the spaces between the water particles, or molecules, have become greater.

When we heat water, however, enough to convert it into the condition where we recognize it as steam, there is evidently a tremendous separation of particles. Steam is water greatly expanded. Approximately, though not quite, a cubic inch of water, converted into steam, occupies a cubic foot. Condense this steam in any way and the individual particles of the water, its molecules, come back into intimate relation with each other, though still with intervening spaces, and we have the familiar liquid, which, because of the temperature range within which we must live, is the normal condition of water for us.—Detroit News.

How Absence of Sun's Rays Affects Clouds

Small scattered clouds have a tendency to disappear rapidly after sunset, the Literary Digest remarks. The presence of moonlight makes this process conspicuous; hence the popular notion that the moon itself causes the clouds to vanish. This idea is expressed in the saying "The moon eats the clouds." What really happens is thus explained by Charles Fitzhugh Talman, in his Science Service feature "Why the Weather" (Washington):

"When the sun's rays are withdrawn, the clouds radiate more heat than they absorb, grow rapidly colder, and cool the air adjacent to them, which thus becomes denser than the surrounding clear atmosphere. The chilled air sinks until it is again in equilibrium with the air about it. In sinking, it is heated by compression, and when it finally reaches the level of equilibrium it is warmer than it was before the clouds cooled it and started it downward. Thus it has been warmed by cooling! One result is to evaporate the clouds, and another is to make the air drier (in terms of relative humidity) than it was at the beginning."

How Sunspots Cause Crime

The influence of sunspots on human beings is said to be a probable cause of crime waves, startling discoveries having been made by a Russian scientist regarding the effects of the spots on human conduct.

According to this authority the responsibility of a person in the commission of a crime decreases according to the nearness of the period of the sunspots' greatest activity to the time of the crime.

Sunspots produce an enormous quantity of electrons that cause strong magnetic disturbances. These electrons also cause notable alterations in man's emotional and volitional centers, rendering him in a certain sense irresponsible for his actions.

How to Test Linen

In this day of cleverly executed substitution for real linen, even to the imposition of the fine gloss which is characteristic of fine linen damask, there is one infallible test by which real linen may be detected from other fabrics. In order to be certain of your cloth, remove a thread from the fabric, hold one end upright, wet it and tauten with the fingers. As it dries you may know it is linen if it revolves anticlockwise. You may know it is not linen if the thread revolves clockwise. Another test may be made by putting a few drops of water on the cloth. If it soaks through quickly, it is linen.

How Pearls Are Formed

The pearl formation is often due to the irritation caused by the presence of a grain of sand or some other foreign body lodged between the mantle and the shell of the animal; an extra amount of pearly matter is thus secreted and forms roughness or projections on the inside of the shell which, if becoming free and regularly spherical, form one or more pearls.

Why Water Evaporates

The bureau of standards says that air saturated with water vapor is lighter than dry air at the same temperature because water vapor is lighter than air. When water evaporates a given quantity of water is dispersed through a large volume, so that the resulting vapor is lighter than a mass of air having the same volume and at the same pressure.

THUMB OF MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION NEWS LETTER.

Concluded from first page.

Weather Bureau throws considerable light on what has happened in The Thumb this year—and it is not only in The Thumb, but to a great degree in the rest of Michigan, that we can be taken as a fairly reliable index.

For ten years up to 1926 we had a shortage of rainfall all over the basin of the Great Lakes. This is evidenced by the lowering of the water level all over the lakes. Since 1926 the rainfall has increased again. In 1927 the rainfall for the whole state was an inch more than the so-called "normal".

The Port Huron records show that for 1928, up to and including September, the rainfall was almost exactly normal. That is, 21.9 inches fell in the first nine months of 1928, while the normal is 22 inches. The feature that has affected our crops is this. The normal rainfall for the three months, June, July and August, derived from the records of fifty years, is 8.21 inches. In June, July and August of this year we had 12.64 inches, more than half as much again as we were entitled to. This contrast is shown more strongly on examining the rainfall for those three months for the seven years previous, from 1921 to 1927. The average for these seven years is 7.11 inches, while the maximum was 10.83 inches in 1926.

Is it any wonder that the crops, not only in The Thumb, but in the rest of Michigan, suffered from surplus moisture?

The farmers of The Thumb should receive hearty co-operation and assistance in the emergency that this year has brought forth from all who are interested in the welfare of The Thumb, and that means all of us—merchants, bankers, brokers, transportation companies—everybody.

After all is said and done we still need drains—more drains.

The Conqueror Stoops.

From an advertisement in the Rochester paper, we read of the inauguration of a "Travelling Horse-shoers' service. One Fred May and his son have a truck which "will call at farm homes," all fitted for shoeing horses.

This would seem to mark the last step in the gradual extinction of the horse—when they get so scarce that men must travel around the country in motor trucks in order to find them! And yet may this not mark the highest position in the social scale to which the horse has yet attained? For in all centuries of his history, when has so much solicitude been shown him? When, before 1928, has the farmer stepped to the telephone and called a number, in response to which a completely equipped motor truck rushes out upon the highway—to do service to the lowly horse, who once trudged many miles into town on his old shoes when he had to have new ones?—Farmington Enterprise.

Which Are You?

It is not necessary to search very far in North Branch these days to learn that "hunting isn't what it used to be." In fact, the old enthusiasm that used to mark the approach of frost and colder weather has almost disappeared. Make inquiries of the man who says "hunting isn't what it used to be" and you'll learn why.

There was a time when we had only sportsmen in the field. Now we have both hunters and sportsmen. The difference is that hunters go forth to see how much he can slay; he violates game laws to suit his convenience; he breaks down fences and leaves gates open at will and he is reckless with firearms when in the neighborhood of livestock. As a result his greediness has greatly reduced the amount of game, since he leaves little each year for breeding purposes. And his destructive methods have caused more and more land owners to bar their fields to all hunters.

The sportsman, on the other hand is content to kill only for his own needs. He is thoughtful of other people and respects their property rights. He is careful not to endanger livestock, and is not destructive of fencing or growing vegetation. He takes nothing that does not belong to him without first asking the owner's permission to do so. Hunting isn't what it used to be—but the blame rests on the hunter, not the true sportsman.—North Branch Gazette.

Sunday Hunting.

No Sunday hunting will be voted upon by Huron county voters next month. The Bad Axe Tribune says the proposition "ought to carry easily inasmuch as both the anti-Sunday and Sunday hunters appear to be for it. Those nimrods who have had no church or religious scruples against Sunday hunting are for the law because, as they say, it will keep outside hunters from the county on Sunday. These now flock to Huron county on Sunday from Detroit and other nearby counties which allow no Sunday hunting with the result that there will soon be no hunting here for home hunters or any other hunters."

Campaign Resolutions.

I shall strive throughout the campaign to keep my temper cool and my spirit sweet.

I shall be resolute and alert to discount all campaign stories reflecting on the character, spirit and purposes of candidates, and to realize that if they are hateful they are born of hate, and therefore probably are lies.

I shall do my part to keep the campaign free from hate and hatefulness.

I shall scorn bigotry but pity the bigot.

I shall support the candidate of my party stoutly, but I shall not belittle the opposing candidate or lose patience with his supporters.

I shall not make political differences of any kind whatsoever and spoil my friendship with my neighbor.

I shall freely yield to my neighbor who differs with me in thought the respect for his views, even tho I believe them to be mistaken, that I expect for my own views even from those who believe me to be in error.

I shall strive throughout the campaign to keep my temper cool and my spirit sweet for only so can I see men and issues clearly and judge them fairly.—Duluth Herald.

FALL PLOWING ADDS TONS TO BEET CROP

Although new ideas frequently increase the farmer's profits, farm crops specialists say that proved practices, such as fall plowing for sugar beets, should not be neglected as both experiments and farm trials have shown that the extra tonnage of beets from fall plowed land will pay the cost of plowing.

A firm seed bed, which is needed by beets, is assured on fall plowed soil and less time is needed to get the beets planted in the busy spring season.

Beet ground should be plowed deeply, according to crops specialists at Michigan State College. Ground plowed eight inches deep yielded two tons to the acre more beets than soil plowed to a depth of six inches. There was a corresponding increase in yield on land plowed deeper than eight inches.

Good yields are obtained when beets are planted on an alfalfa or clover sod, but the usual Michigan practice is to follow the legume with corn or beans and the beets are planted after the cultivated crop. Some farmers are finding that, if the beets have been well cared for, it is possible to secure a good yield of beets after beans without plowing the soil again.

When this practice is followed, deep plowing should precede the planting of beans; the ground must be thoroughly cultivated and kept free from weeds, and the soil must be high in fertility.

Cass City Schools

Kindergarten: We are developing the idea of sail boats in free hand drawings. We are starting with more simple sail boats and gradually working up to more complicated ones such as our "Columbus" boat on the black board. We expect soon to make the Mayflower in color. In connection with this, we are learning a traditional old Nursery Rhyme set to music, entitled "The Fairy Ship." This fits in very well with our witches, brownies, and witches' house, and with the Hallowe'en spirit of spooks and the supernatural.

First Grade: This week we aim to carry out a little "Housekeeper Program" thereby encouraging cleanliness and neatness with some stress on the demands of a hostess. In our "busy work" periods table etiquette will be developed along with the correct table setting. To make this even more realistic we will make house-keeping booklets, explaining the processes through pictures.

Sixth Grade: In language we have been telling ghost stories. It has been very interesting. Carlos Vader won the spell down for boys on Friday. Maybelle Gowan was the last girl standing.

The A. B. C. girls furnished the program for the assembly Friday afternoon. All members led the songs and yells. In the "Grand Uproar" (The Grand Opera) we gave the students some real music. "The Romance of Zingarella," a short three act play, aroused much laughter. Our characters took better parts as Spanish and Irish characters than they do as American. Real doctors and nurses performed an operation on "Chester," after which he carried the football across the stage, breaking through Caro's line and making a touchdown for Cass City. Two very interesting talks were given by senior boys, Glenn McCullough and Ed. Greenleaf. Our object was to entertain and at the same time, arouse pep in the student body for the Caro game.

All students of the high school and seventh and eighth grades may vote in the mock election to be held on general election day, November 6th. All must register before voting. The last day given for registration will be Tuesday, October 23. Members of the Community Civics classes will act as registration and election officials.

In connection with the study of business organization and management, the Senior Economics classes will visit the Caro sugar beet factory on Wednesday morning. Items to be observed are as follows: Process of sugar making, organization and capital stock of company, value of stock, earnings, use of by-products, division of labor, kinds of power, labor saving machinery, sanitary conditions, and safety appliances.

American History: In the American History class every week, students are asked to give special reports on things that are of special interest to us because, they are things that are happening at the present time.

Last week on Thursday, a debate was sponsored by the second section of the American History class. The question was "Resolved that Alfred Smith will make a better president for the United States than Herbert Hoover." The chairman was Mildred Karr. The affirmative side was upheld by Donald Wallace, Francis Elliott, Marian Leishman and Ronald Reagh. The negative side was upheld by Alison Milligan, Ira Gerou, Evelyn Schmidt and Kenneth Clement. The important issues discussed were the tariff, immigration policies, water power, farm relief and prohibition. The judges of the debate were Mr. H. W. Holmes, superintendent of the Cass City School, Mr. Niergarth, principal of the Cass City School, and Miss Ellenbaas, sixth grade teacher of the school. The decision of the judges was negative two votes, and affirmative one vote. This debate proved to be very educational and instructive.

SUPERVISORS FIX CO. OFFICERS' SALARIES

Mileage for county officers is fixed at 8 cents a mile.

The compensation of visiting circuit judges while sitting in Tuscola county was fixed at $10.00 a day by the board of supervisors.

The county drain commissioner was ordered by resolution of the supervisors to collect expenses from petitioners on all drains which have been declared not necessary by the board of determination or in case proceedings are dismissed.

The county clerk and the county agent were authorized to prepare a questionnaire card to be mailed out with each mother's pension once a month.

Chairman Whitlock appointed Supervisors Black, Heckroth, Meacham, Whittenberg and Dillon to attend the meeting of the East Michigan Tourist Association, and Supervisors Perry, Morrison, McArthur and Higgins to attend the state tax conference.

Supervisors voted to have the proceedings of the board printed in three newspapers of the county, the Cass City Chronicle, Caro Advertiser and Vassar Pioneer-Times, and also in pamphlet form.

Mrs. Nettie Schall was re-elected to succeed herself as school examiner. It seems that Mrs. Schall's term does not expire this fall, but that of Miss Beryl Koepfgen does. The error was corrected by the supervisors and Miss Koepfgen was unanimously elected to succeed herself as examiner.

State taxes in Tuscola county total $100,412.69, county taxes are the same amount this year, county road bonds are $20,315.90 and the court house tax totals $31,515.75 for this year. No tax will be raised by the county for the maintenance of county roads by the road commission. Only once in the history of the present county system have the road commissioners asked for financial support for maintenance, and that was eight years ago, when the board was first established. For the past three years the commissioners have not asked for any funds from the general tax.

Obituary.

On Thursday of last week, the Death Angel visited the Alfred Shaw home and took Mrs. Shaw to the great beyond.

Mary A. Simons was born in Elgin Co., Ontario, on April 13, 1862, and moved to this country in 1882, with her parents to Lamotte. In 1890 she was united in marriage to Alfred A. Shaw and they lived at Lamotte for a number of years and then moved to California for a year. They returned to live at Wilmet and Caro. For the past eight years, they have resided in Deford. She leaves to mourn an aged husband, two stepdaughters, a sister, Mrs. Aselton, of Orion and one brother, of Tacoma, Wash.

Waldo Trueb has decided to retain his position as field man for the Nestle's Food Co.'s plant at Cass City. He had planned to accept a similar position with that company in California, but the illness of his mother who was to accompany him to the western state, made it advisable for him to change his plans.

The Woman's Study Club will enjoy a social evening tonight (Friday) at eight o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles Wiley. The evening is in honor of Mrs. A. J. Knapp, who has just finished a most successful term of two years as president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

ANGUS McLACHLAN WRITES OF NAVY EXPERIENCES

the people work in the navy yards and the others in the woods. We expect the overhauling of our boat to be finished about the 5th of December. The cost of the work being done is estimated at $350,000.

Our ship, the Saratoga, is getting more like a city every day. About all it lacks is a street car and it would be a city in itself.

The Saratoga is 888 ft. long and 105 ft. wide and has on board practically every activity of a good sized town: Power and lighting plant, water supply, telephone system, men's furnishing store, shoemaker, tailorshop, blacksmith, foundry, movies, dental office, hospital, five-chair barber shop, cold storage plant, complete fire mains and fire fighting equipment, a newspaper, general announcing system with 236 loud speakers (which can be hooked up to receive radio broadcast in every corner of the ship), ice plant, general store, laundry, jazz band and orchestra, athletic teams in every sport; in fact, there is almost nothing in civil life that is not carried out even at sea on this boat. Both Protestant and Catholic services are held. Every possible comfort is provided for the men.

Since I have been on this boat, I have seen many people from all over the world who have been inspecting it, but as yet have seen no one from Cass City. I would be very glad to show anyone around if they happen

Helping The Dollars Roll In For Hoover

WHEN Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson took office as Chairman of the Wayne County Committee of the Hoover-Curtis Legion, Frank W. Blair, Chairman of the Michigan Finance Committee of the Republican National Committee, and Claude S. Briggs, Chairman of the Michigan Committee for the Legion, were present. Miss Mae Stuart, a stenographer, made the first contribution to Mrs. Wilson for the Legion. Mr. Blair is on the left and Claude S. Briggs and Miss Stuart on the right. From the first day, dollars began to roll in to the Legion fund, and Mrs. Wilson is confident of having Wayne County's quota more than subscribed in short order. The photograph was taken in Mrs. Wilson's office, 1715 Buhl Building, which are headquarters for the Committee.
