Origin of Nickname

"Squarehead" is a slang phrase or term which originated in Australia and was given to German and Scandinavian immigrants. It is commonly supposed that this term was an outgrowth of that applied to winter wheat, which has close compact ears.

Simple Explanation

"Some hats cause hair to turn gray," says a writer. The hats belong to the women and the hair to their husbands, who have to pay for them.—Exchange.

DAIRY

STERILIZATION OF DAIRY UTENSILS

Thorough Cleaning to Destroy Bacteria Important.

(By C. K. JOHNS)

Of the various sources of contamination to which milk is subject, the dairy utensils have been definitely established as one of the most serious, capable of contributing a high percentage of the bacteria found in milk. Consequently the sterilization of cans, pails or other containers cannot be neglected if milk containing few bacteria is to be produced. Thorough cleaning is essential, but in itself is insufficient. Steps must be taken to destroy as many as possible of the bacteria still remaining if the keeping quality of milk is to be improved.

For sterilizing, steam under pressure, the most satisfactory agent, is seldom available. In its absence, a sufficient quantity of boiling water gives good results. Pails, strainers, etc., after washing are scalded by pouring a pint of boiling water over the entire inner surface; cans are best treated by pouring in a quart of boiling water, replacing the lid, and rolling the can along the floor to ensure thorough scalding of the inner surface. As the temperature of the water drops over 50 degrees Fahrenheit during this operation a fresh quantity must be provided for each utensil.

Because of the saving in time and fuel, chlorine solutions are being used in some districts to replace the scalding treatment, and where used intelligently have equal or superior sterilizing efficiency. Cans and pails are carefully rinsed with chlorine solution as in the scalding treatment, or immersed for one minute in a tank containing the solution. Either is satisfactory, provided the utensils are well washed and the chlorine solution is up to strength.

The leaders planned passage of the measure about the middle of October. The house will reconvene September 23 and will mark time until the tariff bill is passed and ready for conference.

WHILE the representatives of the allied nations at The Hague were still disputing over the division of German reparations, with small prospect of immediate agreement, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, informed them that, whether or not the Young plan was ratified by September 1, Germany could pay, beginning on that date, only the reparations called for by the scheme devised by Young and the other experts, namely, $487,900,000 a year.

BRITISH cotton manufacturers have agreed to arbitrate the dispute with their workers, the great strike in the Lancashire mills came to a close and half a million hands returned to their jobs.

NEW YORK has formally abandoned its plan to hold a world's fair in 1933, leaving that year to Chicago, whose Century of Progress exposition is fast being brought into concrete form.

PREMIER Aristide Briand of France replied that since the Young plan has not been adopted the German government must continue to carry out the treaty in force—the Daves plan—which the reichstag had ratified.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, said he considered the Germans must continue their payments according to the Daves plan, which is the only recognized scheme for reparations.

British and Belgian troops were preparing to evacuate the second zone of the Rhineland, but Premier Briand said the evacuation of 60,000 French troops from the occupied territory hurriedly would be difficult since barracks were lacking in France to house them.

As for the split of reparations, London dispatches indicated that Morgan and other American bankers might have a good deal to do with forcing a compromise. The British press and, on the surface, the British government uphold Snowden in his refusal to accept a reduced share of the German payments, but it was said Prime Minister MacDonald was much impressed with the arguments of the financiers.

THE Graf Zeppelin completed its momentous voyage from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo in approximately 102 hours, circled over the Japanese capital and landed at the Kasumigaura flying field forty miles away. For several days the passengers and crew were feted by the wildly enthusiastic Japanese while the dirigible was being refueled and overhauled, the emperor himself taking a leading part in the entertainment of the visitors.

Oscar Kaeser and Kurt Luescher, young and comparatively inexperienced Swiss aviators, took off from Portugal for a flight across the Atlantic ocean to the United States. By the end of the week it was believed they had paid the penalty of their rashness with their lives. From the time when they were seen above Terceira island in the Azores all trace of them was lost.

Miss Marvel Crosson of San Diego, one of the contestants in the women's air derby from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland, Ohio, met her death in western Arizona. Her body was found crushed against a boulder and a hundred yards away was the wreckage of her plane. Evidently she had leaped for her life but her parachute had failed to open.

Mamer and Walker in the plane Spokane Sun God accomplished the feat of making a refueling non-stop flight from Spokane to New York and return. They were in the air five full days and traversed 7,200 miles.

One of the British entries for the Schneider cup races, a super-marine Rolls Royce six piloted by Flying Officer Waghorn, made in tests the fastest flight ever made by an airplane. The tremendous speed of 350 miles an hour was reached, without an assisting wind. Lieut. Alford Williams was having a lot of trouble with the American hope for the Schneider trophy. House That Will Appeal to Those Who Don't Care for Faddish Designs

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Recent years have seen extensive improvements and variations in home design. Many of these are highly desirable in getting away from monotony and lack of artistic effect. Others, however, have gone to extremes and are of a faddish sort. As their newness wears off, their value will depreciate rapidly. There are many home builders of a more conservative in-house shown here will be found particularly appropriate. There is nothing faddish about it. At the same time it is thoroughly modern, well designed and will maintain its desirability throughout the years of its life. It is just the sort of a place for the family that wants a house that is homelike in appearance. The front entrance opens directly into a large living room at one end of which there is a sun room. hallway gives access to the stairs and also the dining room at the rear. Also in the rear portion is the kitchen with a breakfast room off it. This breakfast room also serves as a passage to the basement stairs.

On the second floor we find two bedrooms and a smaller room designated as a playroom. This room, like the bedrooms, is provided with a good closet which makes it available as an additional bedroom should occasion require. There is another closet, for linens, in the upstairs hall and a small closet in the bathroom which will be found most convenient.

HOW

USE OF COLOR CAN SAVE SPACE IN BUILDINGS. — Saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of space was cited as one of the results of the increasing use of color in building.

Henry S. Churchill, prominent New York architect, explained how this was effected. Scarcely realized by the public, or even by the owners of the buildings, the saving has been brought about by architects employing decorative color in terra cotta and similar modern materials. Instead of shadow effects obtained by depressions and projections in the walls.

The beauty of a building, Mr. Churchill points out, is largely dependent upon the lines expressing its individuality. In the past this expression was achieved in great part by the use of shadows, formed either by projections or depressions.

Deep depressions in the walls, sufficient to form strong enough shadows to emphasize the proper lines of the building, require the sacrifice of valuable space. On the other hand, color offers the architect the opportunity to bring out whatever lines he wishes without difficulty.

Sometimes color is combined with a shadow effected by a shallow depression, emphasizing the shadow as if it were much deeper.

How Ether Waves Add to Velocity of Sound

Sound travels through the air at the rate of one mile in five seconds. Ether waves have a velocity a million times greater!

Big Ben can be heard to strike four miles from Westminster. Owing to the difference between the speed of wireless and air waves, in many parts of London it may be heard to strike 22 times when the 11 a. m. time signal is being broadcast from Daventry — through a loud-speaker and through the air. There is an interval of four and one-half seconds between each stroke of Big Ben.

At one mile, the first two strokes by wireless would be heard before the first by sound waves, and after the last by wireless two would arrive through the air. At four miles, five would be heard by wireless before the first by sound waves, and the last by wireless would be followed by five carried by air waves.—London Times.

How Barnacles Are Fought

By the use of a newly discovered paint it is expected that the hulls of ocean-going vessels will be kept free from clinging barnacles. The crustaceans are said to cost shipping firms $100,000,000 annually.

A government commission, after four years' study, found that the dark red paint used on most ships was the principal thing that attracted the barnacles. They would not collect on light-painted surfaces, but most light paints hitherto manufactured dissolve in sea water. The new paint is said to be of the exact light shade to make a barnacle turn away in disgust.

How Magnetic Needle Acts.

On the northern hemisphere side of the magnetic equator the north-seeking end of the magnetic needle dips downward below the horizontal direction by increasing amounts with increasing north latitudes until it assumes a vertical direction at the position of the magnetic North pole, and on the southern hemisphere side of the magnetic equator the south-seeking end of the needle dips downward below the horizontal in increasing amounts with increasing south latitudes until the needle assumes a vertical direction when the magnetic South pole is reached.

How to Mix Good Putty

A durable putty for nail holes and cracks in hardwood which is to be varnished is made by mixing a little dry white lead with high-grade linseed oil and whiting putty and adding a small amount of Japan drier to make a stiff paste. This can be tinted with burnt sienna to match mahogany, vandyke brown to give walnut shades, and raw sienna for oak and other light woods. Either colors ground in oil or dry colors, says Popular Science Monthly, may be used for tinting the putty.

How Sleet Hurts Wires

Damage done to telephone wires by ice and sleet runs into millions of dollars. At times sleet or ice forms on the wires to a weight of five pounds to the foot, and a mile of wire is bearing an enormous burden. It is not strange that so many wires break under the strain.

How Insects Breathe

Until recently the manner of insects' breathing was not fully understood by biologists; now it is known they inhale air through tracheal tubes that are in the muscles; they exhale the exhausted air through their body coverings directly.

Why Flowers Are "Pinks"

The name "pink," so frequently given to carnations, is derived from the verb "pink," meaning to puncture or pierce, and the flowers were so called on account of the jagged edges of the petals.

POULTRY

TURKEYS RAISED IN CONFINEMENT

Better Results Secured Than Where Poults Are Free.

In times past many people felt that turkeys could not be raised in confinement but that they should have a large area over which to range. This contention has changed now, however, and in several localities turkeys have been raised in confinement with a great deal of success.

The Minnesota and Nebraska experiment stations have been among the leaders in investigational work in turkey production, in recent years, with some such work being done at other experiment stations in various parts of the country. At both of the stations mentioned it was found that better results could be secured if the poults were raised in confinement than if they were allowed to range over a large area, the method once followed in turkey production. In view of these findings, those who wish to go into turkey production, either on a small or large scale, are no doubt interested in the practices to be adhered to in this method of turkey raising.

The United States Department of Agriculture has found that turkey production has declined consistently since 1890, in the face of an increase in the production of all other lines of poultry and live stock. This decrease in production cannot be attributed to a decrease in demand, for the demand has always exceeded the production, or at least, there has never been a surplus of turkeys on the market with which to contend.

This decline in turkey production can be explained almost altogether by the fact that farmers have always felt that turkeys should have unlimited range. Because of following this method of production the turkeys came in contact with the chicken yards, to the detriment of the turkey business. The disease problem among turkeys which come in contact with chickens is great enough that it has tended to cut down on production among farmers and farmers' wives who have, in the past, raised turkeys and chickens together on the same range.

In the Nebraska investigations it was found that the old method of raising the turkeys on the open range with natural hatching and brooding by turkey hens was not successful. On the other hand, artificial brooding and hatching, by means of which feed and environment could be kept under the control of the producer, was found to yield very good results.

Electric Brooders Are Clean and Convenient

The New York experiment station found electric brooders very satisfactory except in extremely cold weather, when this type of heat did not warm up the space in the house away from the brooder. Like electric incubators, brooders heated by electricity are clean, easy to regulate and very convenient.

Individual farm light plants extend the advantages of this electrical equipment to farms which are not located on an electric "high line." Because many farm plants are equipped with both generator and battery power, the supply of current for the incubator or brooder is constant and reliable.

Aylesbury Duck Meets Favor as Market Fowl

The Aylesbury duck comes from the Vale of Aylesbury, from which fact it derives its name. It is the market duck of England. It has a long body, deep keel, and legs placed a little behind the center of the body. The Pekin is Chinese, and is the most popular market duck in America. Its legs are set far back, giving an upright carriage.

While the Indian Runner is not a popular market duck on account of its small size, its flesh is tender and palatable, and its foraging habits give it a game quality that will make it in demand with epicures.

Watch Young Birds

Watch young and delicate birds very closely as they are most susceptible to the deadly roup germs. The same is true of fowls suffering from common cold or catarrh. The throat and nasal passages, being already sore and inflamed, are easily infected. Sick birds should always be isolated. They can be much more effectively treated when away from the flock and they cannot contaminate the healthier ones if the disease should prove to be contagious.

Don't Hurry Pullets

It is best not to hurry the pullets into heavy production. Allow them to come into production normally without feeding highly stimulating feeds. Fewer "blow outs" will occur when production is not forced on the start. Feed two parts of grain to one part of mash. The pullets will continue to gain in weight and still receive enough protein to encourage the egg organs to function without interfering with growth. Any change in feed is to be discouraged.

Mrs. Britton of Caro was in town last week visiting relatives.

We forgot to mention the birth of a 9½ lb. boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Morris last week.

Several from here attended the Caro Fair last week and pronounced it the "best ever."

Work on the road is progressing very fast at present.

Peter Rushlo was a business caller in town Saturday.

Immense Sturgeons

According to a report of the American Museum of Natural History, the largest sturgeon on record was taken in the Columbia river in 1911 and weighed 1,000 pounds. There are species of sturgeon in Russian waters which are said to weigh more than a ton, but there are no records of catching them.

Goldsmith's Birthplace

The birthplace of Oliver Goldsmith, the British poet, playwright, and novelist, is not known for certain. He is usually said to have been born at Pallas or Pallasmore, County Longford, Ireland. Recent investigations indicate that he may have been born at Elphin, Roscommon, Ireland, in the home of his mother's father, Rev. Oliver Jones. At any rate, Goldsmith was born in Ireland in 1728.

The CHRONICLE

The Home Team

by A. J. Dunlap

Give me a bright day again in July,
 Ball, diamond gleaming as slick as a rat;
 Home folks all there and the score six to six,
 End of the tenth and the home team to bat.
 Pitch me a drop again right in the groove,
 Oh let me feel the quick soul-stirring thrill
 Known to the hearts of the batter alone
 When he connects with the swift flying pill.

Let me steal second and third by a hair
 Fly or to home, and my run win the game,
 Home folks all raising a hullabaloo
 Shouting and whooping and calling my name.
 Give me a place on the home team again
 Known to the archers who play in the street.
 Give me the praise of the home town again
 Life has no honor as deep or as sweet.

HOLBROOK.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Simkins and children, who have been visiting relatives and friends here for the past two months, started on their return trip to Medford, Oregon, on Monday, August 19.

Quite a number from here attended the Caro Fair last week. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Milford Keyser and children, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Sharrard and children, Charles Tanner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Simkins and children, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hewitt and son, James.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson and children of Royal Oak were Sunday visitors at the Stewart Nicol and Anthony Richardson homes.

Floyd Schubel of Detroit was a Sunday visitor at the Edgar Jackson home.

Jack Tueardo and brother, Joe, who were visiting at the Robert Spencer home last week, returned to their home in Detroit on Saturday.

Theodore Price and mother, Mrs. Mary Price, who have been visiting relatives and friends in Canada, returned to their home on Saturday.

A large crowd attended the ball game between Holbrook and Shabbona. Score—Holbrook 20, Shabbona 14. Next Sunday's game between Holbrook and Tyre at Holbrook promises to be real interesting as this will be the first time Tyre played on Holbrook's diamond.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robinson and family of Kingston were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Robinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Codling. Stanley Jackson is very ill at this writing with typhoid fever. It is hoped by all the neighborhood that he will recover from his sickness.

Mrs. Thos. Codling is very sick with a bad case of heart disease.

Mrs. Cresses of Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Spickett of Detroit and Mrs. Frank Bowles are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hewitt and grandchildren, Florence and Ella, were business callers in Uby on Monday.

Leslie Cleland of Pontiac is visiting at the Milo Dunlap farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Britton of Caro and Miss Florence Britton of Detroit, who spent last week at the Robert Spencer home, returned to their homes on Saturday. Miss Britton will spend a week's vacation with her mother at Caro before returning to her home in Detroit.

Jack Robinson and James and Geo. Jackson visited at the Quick home in Cass City on Sunday.

A birthday party was given in honor of Miss Evelyn Bailey's 19th birthday on Saturday night. All enjoyed a pleasant evening and wished Miss Bailey many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. Selena Wilkinson of South Bend, Ind., is at the home of her brother, Stanley Jackson, who is very ill with typhoid fever.

Robert Bailey and family of Carsonville were Sunday visitors at the Ben Bailey home.

Morris Dunlap of Pontiac visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Dunlap, over the week end.

Vern Bailey of Detroit is visiting at the Ben Bailey home.

There will be no Epworth League meeting tonight (Friday) as there will be an ice cream social held this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hill and family and Mr. and Mrs. Spickett, Mrs. Cresser and Mrs. Frank Bowles, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trathen and Miss Lorraine Barnes spent Sunday at Oak Beach.

Mrs. Ed Brigham and children are spending the summer at the home of Mrs. Brigham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Moss.

Volcanic Lure

The reason for the return of farmers to dangerous slopes of volcanoes is explained by Dr. Henry S. Washington of Carnegie Institute by the fact that the lava flows are the best vineyard soil on earth. Most of the best grapes are grown on lava soil in areas surrounding long extinct volcanoes and sometimes, as on Mount Etna, around mountains which occasionally grow violent.

Between you and me, no friendship can long endure without the spirit of WE. And the WE spirit must be actively manifested in everyday thought and speech. Between You and Me
 "Common sense is the most uncommon kind of sense."
 By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT

A Safe Bet

"Whatever a feller thinks about himself, hit mostly ain't so; that's why the man what does a lot of thinkin' about other folks is most generally a man you can tie to."—Preachin' Bill.

THINK it over and you will see that words are very much like people.

There are weak words, strong words, tricky, sly, mischievous, shifty words. There are soft, mushy, fat, flabby, hard, hot and cold words. There are words that pretend to mean one thing when they actually mean the very opposite. There are downright vicious, quarrelsome, fighting words, killing words, and words that are kind, hearty, true, honest, steadfast and reliable. There are a great many big words that are very showy and impressive, but really do not amount to much, and there are some little unpretentious fellows that don't take up much room but are of tremendous importance.

I sometimes think that words are spirits, good or evil, moving in and through all things to ends both good and evil. I am quite sure that they are just as much alive as you or I. Of course, though, some words are much more alive than others—just like human beings again. Consider such words as childhood, comrade, son, daughter, sweetheart, friend—how alive they are; what wealth of humanity is in them! The word death, how alive it is! No word is more instinct with feeling. It is vital with sorrow and weeping. It is so charged with mystery and awfulness and finality that its appearance in any company is invariably greeted with a solemn hush.

By universal consent our most beautiful word is mother. But the biggest, broadest, tallest, strongest, most comprehensive, most inspiring word in any language, I think, is the word WE.

And the meanest, most contemptible, vicious, poisonous and deadly word in any tongue is that little two-letter arrangement; ME.

Without question, ME is at the bottom of 90 per cent of all the trouble and sorrow and wretchedness and woe that human beings experience. It has wrecked more characters, ruined more happiness, caused more untimely deaths than any other thing in the world. It is the chief cause of all the wrongs we human beings suffer.

You remember the man who said "Me and God"? And you remember what inconceivable agony, what incalculable loss of life, what incredible torment of pain and starvation and disease followed.

No, I do not mean to say that the simple phrase "Me and God" caused the World War. But I do say most emphatically that the spirit which puts the individual self first before any consideration of others, the spirit which puts self-interests before the welfare and happiness of all other fellow beings, the spirit which would even put itself first before God—that spirit, I say, has caused all the wars that have ever been fought since human wars began.

Yes, and that ME spirit will continue to cause untold suffering, sorrow and death. If we could drive that spirit of ME out of life and out of our affairs, we would insure the peace, well-being, and happiness of the world. And the only power in the universe which can banish this destructive spirit of ME is the spirit of WE.

It is often said that life is a gamble. This makes us all gamblers, with the odds in favor of our losing. But we go right on taking chances just the same.

There are no safe bets, no sure things. The surest thing—the one safest bet—is to stake your all on the man who has the WE habit—who always says WE, and always thinks WE. Ninety-eight times out of a hundred you will come out winner if you bet on the WE man.

Homes where the WE spirit is a member of the family are never wrecked. Husbands and wives who think and say WE, and who live WE, continue in their happy oneness even unto the end of their days. Fathers who have the WE habit are rarely dishonored by their children. Mothers who are WE mothers are never forgotten or overlooked or neglected by their sons and daughters.

Business enterprises in which the WE spirit is the head of the firm seldom fail. People who think and say WE—who have the WE habit—seldom double-cross their associates. Such people never take selfish advantage of another's generosity. They never cash in for themselves on the confidence which their friends have in them. They never betray or rob or short-change those who trust them.

Between you and me, no friendship can long endure without the spirit of WE. And the WE spirit must be actively manifested in everyday thought and speech. It is not enough to have the WE spirit theoretically. There is no such thing as a theoretical WE. The WE spirit is actual, spontaneous, operative, always evident in thought and word and deed, or it does not exist.

When any one of two or more persons who profess friendship and whose interests are held in common, begins to discriminate in the use of ME and WE, that friendship is headed toward the rocks.

To illustrate what I mean by discriminating in the use of ME and WE: Two friends were hunting deer. They were sitting on the side of a hill when there was a movement in a quaking asp thicket below and they caught sight of an animal half hidden among the trees. One of the men instantly fired.

"We got him, we got him!" shouted the other friend as they were hurrying down the hill to see the result of the shot.

"We got him!" said the other. "Where do you get that we stuff? I shot that deer. You didn't even raise your rifle to your shoulder!"

But when they reached the thicket of quaking asp and found a fine yearling heifer dead, the man who had fired the fatal bullet turned to his friend with: "We sure played h—l this time, didn't we?"

There are people who seem to have learned only one letter in the alphabet: I. The only grammar they ever took seriously was the first person singular. You need to look out for them; they are dangerously ill, and it's catching.

This I trouble is insidious and little noticed, like some other diseases which are contracted and developed to the danger point before the sufferer is aware of their existence.

Don't bet on these I people in the gamble of life. And, what is more, watch yourself that you do not unconsciously develop that I disease. It will cause no end of pain and unhappiness if not checked in time.

The man who thinks ME instead of WE always defeats himself in the end. It is disastrous to consider any kind of an enterprise or business undertaking from the ME point of view because such a view is not comprehensive enough. It leaves out too many factors. There is no such thing as an individual interest in life. A person can do nothing which does not include other people. To consider any human relationship, business or social, friendly or domestic, from the ME point of view is like trying to arrive at the sum of a column of figures by leaving out all the figures but one. It simply can't be done.

My farmer neighbor says: "I raised a bumper crop of corn this year." Did you, neighbor? You might have helped a little, but as a matter of fact, you yourself raised nothing.

The men—many of them dead and gone—who invented and improved farm machinery—they helped raise that crop of corn. The men who labored in the mines, the lumber camp, and the smelters to produce the iron and steel and wood, and the men who labored in factory and foundry to make your plows and planters and cultivators and harvesters—they helped. The merchants who sold these implements to you, and the banker who financed the manufacture, the merchant and you—they all helped. The farm hands who worked in the field—they certainly had a hand in making this crop. You did not plow a furrow; you did not plant a seed; you did not cultivate a row; and did not gather an ear—how can you say: "I raised a bumper crop of corn?"

Your education? I beg your pardon—your education is not your education at all. What you call your education, my friend, in reality belongs to a great many people. It belongs to the taxpayers and donors who build the schools, equip, maintain and run them. Did you think these great educational institutions were established and are operated for your own personal benefit? Indeed they are not. Your fellow citizens merely entrusted this education to you in order that you might use it for all.

Education which is not in this spirit of WE is a dangerous education. The educated ME person who does not acknowledge a real indebtedness to teachers and to those who make schools possible is, after all, not well educated. We would do well to write over the entrance of every school in the land this wonderful little word WE.

Consider what the WE spirit would do in the affairs of our government! If our politicians were to seek office in the spirit of WE rather than in the spirit of ME, our election campaigns would at least be raised to a level of decency more becoming to the dignity of our nation—if you can read much of our legislative doings and still feel that such a thing as national dignity is possible.

The ME type of office seeker and job hunter is the shame of our country—professional politicians whose conception of public office is that it exists for the personal and individual advantage and prosperity of whoever is lucky enough, or clever enough, or unscrupulous enough to win it. These ME people never think WE in connection with their public duties except insofar as WE includes their financial obligation to their campaign managers and party committees. They have no feeling of WE in their relation to the people in whose service they have to take the oath of office. From street sweepers to post office club it is I—that I can get out of it—and the people go bang.

Nevertheless this nation was brought into being by the spirit of WE. The spirit of WE is written in every line of its early history. Only in that spirit can it endure.

Yes, indeed, WE is a great little word. In business, in religion, in education, in the home and in friendship you can safely bet on the man who thinks WE, says WE—who, in short, has the WE habit.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.
