CELEBRATED GOLDEN WEDDING ON MONDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Towle Have Lived in Evergreen Township 36 Years.

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John Towle in Evergreen township was made festive on Monday, Dec. 2, when members of their family and neighbors gathered at the Towle home to celebrate the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Towle.

Gold and white were used in the color scheme throughout the comfortable home. Vases filled with yellow chrysanthemums and white snowberries were seen everywhere. The bride's table was beautifully decorated with a white centerpiece over yellow on which was placed a bowl of yellow roses and four yellow candlesticks.

During the afternoon, many old friends and neighbors came to congratulate the bride and groom of 50 years ago, and since many of them were schoolmates of that happy period, old memories were recalled and enjoyed. A buffet luncheon was served by the older grandchildren, from small tables tastefully arranged about the living room and dining room. All the grandchildren furnished several musical numbers and Hawaiian selections were played by B. A. Elliott and son, Leonard, of Cass City. For favors, a yellow rose was given to each guest. The guests, in departing, extended the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Towle would enjoy many more happy anniversaries. They left many beautiful gifts.

As a fitting close to the happy occasion, the bride and groom of fifty years ago sat down to a three-course dinner with their children and families. The old customs were harmoniously blended with the new and a very happy and long to be remembered social hour was enjoyed by the family circle. The couple received several gold pieces as gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Towle are the parents of four children. They are Wm. G. Towle of Plymouth, Mrs. Frank Chambers of Saginaw, Mrs. Charles Mudge and Joseph D. Towle, both of Cass City. Besides these children and their wives and husbands, eight grandchildren and a cousin, Ben Cook, of Midland were present.

John Towle and Miss Sophia M. Walker were married Dec. 2, 1879, at Ailsa Craig, Middlesex county, Ontario. Since coming to Michigan 36 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Towle have lived on their farm, four miles east and three miles south of Cass City.

Krohn was visited and six choice animals killed. Four other sheep may die as a result of wounds encountered in their struggle with the canines.

DEATH OF MRS. SAMUEL G. ANDERSON

A Long Life of Devoted Service To Church and Community Ended on Monday.

Mrs. Samuel G. Anderson, widow of the late Rev. S. G. Anderson, who is well remembered as a former Baptist pastor of the Baptist church of this city, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. A. Schenck, early on Monday, December 2.

Mrs. Anderson, whose maiden name was Julia Handy, was born in Boston, Ontario, July 9, 1847. On October 11, 1865, she was united in marriage to Samuel Graham Anderson and the family soon after removed to New York. Rev. Anderson held several pastorates in Michigan and took up his work with the Cass City Baptist church about 1895. His death occurred October 28, 1909, since which time Mrs. Anderson had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. P. A. Schenck.

Her active work and lively interest in connection with all church and community activities, won for the deceased a wide acquaintance and all who knew her were numbered among her friends. Of congenial and unselfish temperament always, she scattered optimism and good cheer wherever she went, and her ability to cling to the sunny side of life for herself and to hold it up for the comfort and inspiration of others, made association with her unusual in its kindly influence and efficient service. She will long be remembered as a useful and beloved member of this and other communities.

The deceased had experienced failing health for some months, had been confined to her home but a few

REMODELING OF OLD GREENLEAF CHURCH

The Thanksgiving duties of many housewives were lightened by the meals served by ladies' aid societies on and preceding that holiday. The society at Beaulieu served a six o'clock dinner on Nov. 22 which was liberally patronized. The dinner on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day at the Frazer Presbyterian church at Old Greenleaf was also attended by a large number. Many Cass City people attend these gatherings each year and enjoy the bountiful spreads.

The church at Old Greenleaf is in process of remodeling. A new entrance has been added to the east side which leads to the auditorium and basement. The auditorium will be improved by the addition of stained glass windows.

The basement is a recent addition to the church equipment and will be used for community gatherings and Sunday School work. This part of the church building was lathed and plastered last week, the last plaster in the dining room having been applied at midnight preceding the Thanksgiving gathering. Rev. Roberts, pastor of the church, has been very active in the remodeling work and was one of the workmen who handled trowels.

SUGGESTIONS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

The attention of Chronicle readers will be attracted to the display of Christmas advertising this week. At this time of year, the merchants put forth their best efforts to make their advertisements helpful and suggestive in order that the holiday shoppers may reap the benefits when making their purchases. Nearly everyone should be found shopping these days and they will find it a wise plan to look over the advertisements in the Chronicle columns and see what announcements the merchants are making to the purchasing public. It has been suggested that holiday purchases be made early while the stocks are complete and when there is a better selection than to wait until the best and choicest merchandise has been picked up.

There remain only 15 more shopping days before Christmas.

Notice to Public.

Owing to a change of policies of the National Grocery Co. in changing the R Grocery Stores into a chain store system, M. D. Hart, a former R member, announces that he has withdrawn from the R Stores and will be known as the Hart Independent Grocery, owning and conducting his own business and giving the public the same courteous service as in the past. Phone and delivery service will still be maintained.—Advertisement 1

MOTHER, 2 DAUGHTERS UNITED AFTER 9 YEARS

Two 16-year-old girls were reunited with their mother at Bad Axe last week when Anna and Sara Lutz arrived from Czecho-Slovakia. The mother, Mrs. Martin Lutz, came here in 1920 after her husband had been killed in the World war. She did not have money enough to bring her daughters and by the time she was able to finance their passage, immigration laws delayed the trip. Through the efforts of the Red Cross the girls were allowed to join their mother here.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS FATAL TO THREE

Past Week Records Deaths of People near Hemans, Argyle and Reese.

When George Leach of Saginaw, driving a Buick sport roadster, lost control of the car Sunday afternoon, the automobile turned turtle in a deep narrow ditch on M-81, 2 1/2 miles east of Reese and Viola Leach, his 14-year-old daughter, was instantly killed. The girl's skull was crushed and an arm broken. The accident happened about 3:30 p. m.

Immediately after the car overturned, the automobile caught fire. Two men and two women in a house near-by hurried to the scene and pulled Mr. Leach from the wreck. By this time the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to extricate the daughter, her body having been pinned securely under the wreckage. The body of the girl was badly burned. Mr. Leach was burned slightly about the face and hands.

Mr. Leach and daughter came from Saginaw to Caro and Cass City Sunday to visit relatives. It was on the return trip, when Mr. Leach was driving about 45 miles an hour that the car left the road.

The funeral service was held at the Leach home in Saginaw Wednesday afternoon and interment was made in Forest Lawn cemetery. Deceased is survived by her father, three brothers and one sister. The mother died a year ago. Mr. Leach spent his youth near Elmwood Corners and is well known among early settlers in that township.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Morley Smith left Cass City Wednesday to attend the funeral at Saginaw.

When Henry Deming and his son, Howard, and Miss Katherine Crane were driving from Cass City to spend Thanksgiving with Messrs. Deming's daughter and sister, Mrs. James Uren, at Detroit, the Deming automobile ran into a horse and buggy driven by Treffley LaFave, on M-53, four miles north of Hemans, and Mr. LaFave was accidentally killed. No one else suffered serious injury.

Mr. LaFave, a Lamotte township farmer, and Thos. Caulfield, also a farmer, were on their way home on M-53 when the accident happened on Wednesday night. Mr. LaFave was driving his horse and Caulfield was leading a horse at the rear of the buggy. Another automobile was approaching with bright lights on, and Howard Deming, who was driving the buggy, was blinded by them and could not see the horse and buggy. His car ran into the horse behind the buggy, throwing the animal onto the buggy which was upset. LaFave received a broken neck.

Sheriff L. C. Hagle and Coroner Geo. W. Tweedie were notified, and after an investigation, decided that the killing was accidental and there would be no inquest.

The body of Mr. LaFave was taken to Utica, N. Y., for burial. He leaves his widow and four children. The family came to Sanilac county from New York.

Charles Trathen, 42, farmer residing near Argyle, died in the Tweedie hospital at Sandusky Monday following.

PURPLE CROSS FLAGS TO MARK FUNERAL CORTeges

A. McPhail has introduced in this community the flag system of marking funeral processions. The use of this system is now becoming general among undertakers, throughout the country.

A small white flag bearing a purple cross will be mounted on the left front fender of every car, or every third car, in the cortege. It will be unobtrusive but easily seen by motorists approaching from any direction.

At times it is difficult to distinguish a funeral procession from ordinary traffic. Unwittingly an autoist may attempt to break through the

ARTHUR WALKER MARRIES MISS SCHMIDT

Miss Rhea M. Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Schmidt of Webberville, and Arthur D. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Walker of Cass City, were united in marriage Wednesday evening, Nov. 27. The ceremony was solemnized at the Central Methodist Temple house at Lansing, the Rev. Fred Ingvaldstad officiating. They left immediately for a motor trip in the east.

Mrs. Walker has been in the employ of the City National Bank at Lansing as savings teller for several years. After the first of the year, they will be at home in Ypsilanti, where Mr. Walker is athletic coach of the Roosevelt high school.

YOUTHS OF TODAY NEED VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Pupil Should Study Details of Occupation He Intends Entering.

"Every year there go forth 1,000,000 boys and 500,000 girls of the teen age—13 to 19 years—seeking jobs in this country," said Prof. A. A. Metcalf of the Ypsilanti Normal in his address on "Vocational Guidance," at the meeting of the Parent Teachers Association Monday night. "Confronting these one and a half million youth are 3,000 common occupations which number is increased to 8,000 or 10,000 when the several occupations are divided into their different classes."

One sees so many misfits in life that the situation is often heartrending, said Mr. Metcalf. The world has been blind and groping in the past with the result that many people are unhappy because they are working at occupations for which they are unfitted or in which they find no joy and pleasure.

An official in the employment department of the General Motors Co. said it cost on the average of $50 to train a man for his job in their factories. Few succeed at the first jobs to which they are assigned. One finds misfits in the professions as well as in the factories. The trend of modern education has been to fit the youths for "white collar" positions, said the speaker, with the result that there are 5,000 teachers with degrees waiting for positions in that profession in New York state today; lawyers the country over who average $44 a week after spending thousands of dollars in securing an education; and with 65% of those granted degrees in engineering who never pursue that profession. After all the world holds about so many jobs and those who have the highest ability are able to command the most desirable and remunerating positions.

There are three types of intelligence—intellectual, mechanical and social. One of the educator's tasks today is to seek to ascertain for which type his pupil is best fitted. The youth ought to know in his high school days what work he intends to follow in life and his schooling should be centered toward that end. He should study the details of the occupation he intends to enter, said Mr. Metcalf, and acquaint himself with its requirements.

Musical numbers on the program were apiano solo, "Falling Stars" (Paul Wachs) by Miss Charlotte Warner and a vocal solo, "Sweet Mystery of Life" (Victor Herbert) by E. W. Kercher. Miss Tarnoski played a violin obligato in the latter and Miss Phyllis Lenzner served as accompanist at the piano.

Monday evening's program opened with community singing led by Mrs. Charles Day, followed by prayer by Robert Warner. Supt. Randall gave a short talk on the benefits of a P. T. A. organization.

At a business session, Mrs. A. A. Ricker, president of the association, appointed J. Ivan Niergarth, Miss Ruth Erskine, Mrs. Stanley Warner and Miss Elynore Bigelow as a committee in charge of the art exhibit.

The recreation hour was superintended by Rev. Wm. Curtis. Several games were played. In the "fleet and mum" spelling match, the group captained by Mrs. Z. Stafford proved to be more agile than the side led by Cecil Brown.

Doughnuts and coffee were served at the close of the evening's program.

YOUTH WARNED OF THE NARCOTICS EVIL

L. A. Kefgen of Detroit Says Drug Addiction Is No Respector of Persons.

A new insight into the evils of the narcotic drug habit and traffic was given at a lecture Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium by L. A. Kefgen, founder, president and managing director of the Narcotic Educational Association of Michigan. This society was founded as a non-profit corporation 4 1/2 years ago in Detroit and has three main aims: Educational program; co-operating with all law-enforcing agencies against dope peddlers; maintaining a hospital for addicts.

According to 1919 statistics, the government found more than a million addicts in the United States, 10,000 in the city of Detroit, 18,000 in Chicago, etc., and as there is much secrecy among dealers and addicts that number should probably be doubled, said the speaker. There are addicts among all classes, many coming to the large cities from the small towns and farms. Many come from the best homes and are possessors of college degrees. Many visitors who come to the office of the association for help are frightened for fear they will become every thing undesirable.

The most common forms of drugs used are morphine, opium, cocaine and heroin. Morphine is quieting, eases pain and produces sleep. Heroin is exhilarating and causes a person to feel vicious and brave. The word itself is a derivation of hero. Ninety thousand American soldiers in France used heroin during the World War. It is widely used by criminals before committing robberies and other crimes.

Drug addiction is contagious through association, said Mr. Kefgen. One addict strives to make another, no matter how dear that person may be to him. Dope peddlers deliberately make addicts of youth and often give the dope free at first with the knowledge that after the habit is formed in from 10 to 60 days, they become regular cash customers. The speaker warned young people not to take anything from strangers. Often cigarettes, tobacco and near beer are doped with the intention of adding more victims to the drug users' ranks.

Big sellers, who usually are not addicts, have made fabulous sums in carrying on this nefarious traffic.

Medicine fails to cure addicts, said Mr. Kefgen, and the association, at a farm 60 miles north of Detroit, has had remarkable success in curing this disease through outdoor exercise, fresh air and proper treatment. When discharged, the patient is given new clothes, placed in a position and financed until his first pay day. The Narcotic Educational Association is one of the associated charities of the Detroit Community Fund. The society also receives financial assistance from several women's clubs.

Mr. Kefgen displayed implements used by addicts, samples of drugs, opium pipes and other articles secured in Detroit's underworld at the lecture.

Mr. Kefgen lectured Tuesday, in Cass City, his birthplace, under the auspices of the Woman's Study Club. The meeting of the club was opened with community singing under the leadership of Rev. Allured, with Mrs. T. H. Wallace at the piano. Prayer by Rev. Curtis was followed by two beautiful piano solos by Mrs. I. D. McCoy. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. A. J. Knapp.

Say, Friends

Christmas is here. Let's make it the best we ever had in our lives. I will do my part, you do yours. Let's each agree not to say, "I will be glad when the day goes by," for without Christmas we would be a jolly bunch of heathens. How are we going about it? Let each one try to buy something we need before the last week. It will keep us all busy. You will get better service and if anything has been forgotten, you have the last few days to finish up on.

Every merchant has something special for you. Look them over. Carry the good cheer to everyone. See if you don't feel better. There are some things we all have to do without. Roy Taylor says, "I said linings," but I say that's all right, but they can't do without the flour barrel yet, Roy.

Allow me to suggest some things that are useful as well as showing the Christmas cheer. Now for mother, your best friend. Boys and girls, don't fool yourselves, she likes to be dressed up, even if she is not as young as she used to be. What about cloth for a new dress and priced from $1.00 to $3.00 per yard, silk or wool or a pair of nice warm gloves priced from $1.25 to $5.00. When you all come home, she likes to have nice linen on the table. Makes your meal taste better. You can buy her a cloth from $1.25 to $10.00.

Now, the dear young ladies like to get out looking their best. They like a new scarf for their coat with all the color to liven it up. We have them. Now, boys don't forget. Or if you think their hands are cold, you know—Gloves. Say, the price for a pair is from 50c to $5.00. Don't let her think you are a cheap guy. And say, by the way, we have the best line of Silk and Crepe underwear we have ever had in the store.

Maderia and Crepe Gowns priced from $1.00 to $3.50.

Pajama sets from $1.50 to $2.50.
Vests, 85c.
Bloomers from 85c to $3.00.
Handkerchiefs for everyone. Boxed from 25c to $1.00 box. Open stock from 5c to $1.00 each. A special buy, put up 6 to package, all linen, and price 75c.

Silk Hosiery. No need to tell you about them, you all know. We have added a new line of chiffon Hose in wanted shades and priced $1.65.

We will tell you next week what Dad and the boys would like.

And don't forget Eddie Guest's good advice—Just write the folks and tell them you will be home Christmas. See what it will do.

THE HOME CHRISTMAS TRADE

Local merchants always rise to the occasion presented by the annual holiday trade, and it is a pleasure to make the rounds of their stores, and see what they have assembled from all corners of the earth to please the people of this neighborhood.

Our retail stores give anxious thought to the question of Christmas trade for many weeks prior to the holiday. They study the trade newspapers most assiduously, they confer with many salesmen, they observe the trends of trade among the wholesale dealers. They have a clear idea as to the goods that will be most popular this year, and they also know from long experience what our people want.

They have done their full part and shown a fine spirit of enterprise by putting in complete stocks of goods. They are determined to make this community a good trading center. Now it is up to us to back up these business people in their fine enterprise, and buy our Christmas goods at home. It will make a large difference in the prosperity of our community, whether the December trade stays at home, or whether a large section of it goes elsewhere. Let us all make our community more prosperous for 1930 by keeping this business at home.

PEDESTRIANS.

The newspapers are full of denunciations of reckless automobile driving. To which many automobile owners reply, that the blame for accidents should not be wholly laid upon the drivers. The pedestrians, they say, are responsible for many of these mishaps.

They find fault that people are terribly careless in the way they cross streets. At intersections regulated by traffic lights, they will not wait until the proper time to cross, but they take a chance when the signals are against them. They jump out from behind cars in the path of moving machines, they fail to cross at the proper places, and they do not look to see if cars are coming.

Many of them are very absent minded. They are thinking about their own personal affairs so intently, that the most important of all of their affairs, that of avoiding accident, is overlooked, and they plunge across crowded streets without the slightest precaution.

The major share of responsibility for the many accidents occurring in Michigan rests upon the automobile drivers, who should keep their cars under such control that they can stop even when pedestrians do heedless things. That does not justify pedestrians in recklessness. They must learn to adapt their movements to these times.

It is a dangerous thing to cross streets in city and town centers now without looking carefully each way. People should have more patience. Some of them will risk their necks in crossing a street jammed with traffic, when by waiting a single minute the bunch of cars would have passed and they could cross in safety. Where lights or traffic cops are provided, they should wait until they get the signal to cross. It will take only a few minutes more out of a day to exercise strict care, and if this were done many accidents would be avoided.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

A peasant with a troubled conscience went to a monk for advice. He said he had circulated a vile story about a friend, only to find that the story was not true. "If you want to make peace with your conscience," said the monk, "you must fill a bag with chicken down, go to every doorway in the village, and drop in each one of them one fluffy feather." The peasant did as he was told. Then he came back to the monk and announced that he had done penance for his folly. "Not yet," replied the monk. "Take your bag, go the rounds again, and gather up every feather that you have dropped." "But the wind must have blown them all away," said the peasant. "Yes, my son," said the monk, "and so it is with gossip. Words are easily dropped but no matter how hard you try, you can never get them back again."—Ex.

It is claimed that Job was the most patient man, but anyway he didn't have to read the debates of congress.

Anyway, the Sunday Schools are filling up. You've got to give Christmas credit for that.

Calf Chow fed according to directions will raise a calf for about one-third the cost of milk.

The feminine filing clerk slapped the auditor when he asked to see her pink slips. But then, you can't blame her—she misunderstood.

Are your cows doing their best? Use Wayne 32% Dairy or Chow Chow and lower the cost of producing milk.

A Texas man says it is his ambition to have a suit of clothes for each day. Most of us have that now, but it's the same one.

This is no joke: This fall we began selling Wayne feeds and they satisfy. Ask those feeding them.

A small Cass City boy came home crying bitterly the other day. Explanations were hard to get, but finally he explained that he'd dug a hole over at auntie's and she wouldn't let him bring it home!

Calf Chow will raise those calves cheaper and still raise good calves.

The muscles you developed mowing the lawn last summer will now come in handy shovelling snow.

We will have another car of salt about Saturday or Monday. You can save money by taking salt off the car just the same as feed. Let us know how much you want.

Yep, there's no use talking, the old engine starts a little harder these mornings.

We will have another car of Wayne Feeds next week.

We read in the paper that a girl can always tell when she's in love. And she generally does.

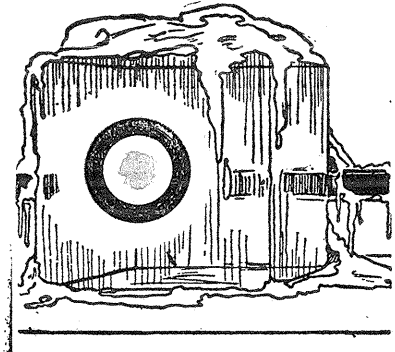

They tell us a Cass City high school sheik calls his girl "powdered sugar" because she uses so much make-up.

Our coal makes warm friends. Try it.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead—who never to his wife has said: "Whad-did do with the snow shovel last year?"

Figaro Smoked Salt does save a lot of work and waste, and cures and smokes meat the easy way. Try it.

CHAPTER X

All Ginger's hottest arguments could not shake her father's determination. The small matter of his own vision must wait upon the education of the twins. The money they had saved during the summer—thanks to his own vacation at Pay Dirt, and to the presence of Hiram Buckworth as a regular paying guest in the parsonage—must go to their equipment for college. As for himself, he was to be in no hurry. The doctors had agreed that the first thing for him to do was to become strong and robust, and to live at peace with all the world. This, then, was his present duty, and to it he bent all his energies.

Miriam, greatly to their surprise, evinced no real enthusiasm for college—Miriam, the student, the twin of judgment. It seemed to her a waste of time, she doubted if true education was to be derived from books, she was not yet sure what specific line she wished to follow as a profession. However, she yielded to their arguments, with the saving clause that she "might not go four years—a couple, anyhow—one can learn a lot in two years."

In this emergency, Mr. Tolliver departed from the established rule of the house, and arranged for a charge account at Joplin Westbury's dry-goods store. He cautioned the girls, in conference with Miss Jenkins, to use it as sparingly as possible, but what other young girls had for college, the twins, too, must have.

Ginger and Marjory held their own counsel. They used the charge account only enough to allay the suspicions of Miss Jenkins and Helen, who was back in Red Thrush after her honeymoon, and living, strangely, in a small cottage some blocks removed from the parsonage. But mostly they drew upon the contributions to the home for the blind. It hurt Ginger afresh every time she drew a dime from the precious store that she had fondly hoped would bring the blessing of clear vision to her father, but he had decreed flatly that the twins came first, that he and his affairs must wait. So Ginger obediently set herself to the accomplishment of the twins.

Already they were registered at Iowa Wesleyan. Already arrangements had been made for them to live at Hershey hall, giving service in return for their accommodations, Marjory at the telephone, Miriam in charge of the library. And already it was September, the public schools were opening, and the dedication of the new church was but one week away.

Mr. Tolliver and Miriam were back in the parsonage now, a sunburned, ruddy pair, with vigor in their steps, and with appetites that boded ill for the overtaxed store of dimes.

On Tuesday of that week, Eddy Jackson called Ginger to the telephone.

"Call out your brass band," he cried, with laughter in his voice. "I have a truly romantic figure lined up for you."

Ginger sniffed audibly into the telephone. "A farm hand, I suspect," she said unpleasantly.

"A false suspicion. He hales from New York."

"So did the can grocer. It seems it takes all kinds to make New York. Well, his father pays enough income tax to buy the whole state of Iowa. And this chap himself—thanks to the convenient death of a lot of remote relatives—is worth a cool million. Not million, I'd call it, but he says cool."

"Is he a cripple?" inquired Ginger cautiously.

"No. He is not what I'd call an Adonis, but he is in good health. He played halfback at college. He is not disabled in any apparent way. Leading members of your sex have been known to make friendly overtures to him without much provocation."

In spite of her own best judgment, in spite of the many pitfalls she had found to await the unwary pursuer of romance and riches, Ginger's heart warmed to the chase. True, it had warmed in the past, warmed often and in vain. But after all, could so much hope, so much patience, and oh, so very much faith, fall in the end to be productive of good results? Certainly the time was ripe for the smile of fortune. Had not suffering prevailed enough nights in the old parsonage to merit the joy that cometh in the morning?

"Oh, Eddy," said Ginger anxiously, "I wish we could get rid of Miriam. She's so likely to say something smart just at the wrong minute, and get his mind off Marjory's looks. Won't you take her out somewhere?"

"Certainly not. It wouldn't look well. He knows there's quite a family of you, so it would be too pointed just to throw him headlong at Marjory's complexion, as you might say. No, you'd better have Miriam on hand, too."

Ginger leaped to her plans with young enthusiasm. "Now, we must rush the thing through with a lot of snap," she cried. "Sweep him right off his feet—and sweep Margie off, too. For you know—wait till I see if anybody's around! You know, Eddy, she's awfully gone on—You know who—Preacher! Wait, till I close the door! Yes, he's nice, but he can console himself with Miriam. Such a sensible girl ought to be a great consolation to religion."

Eddy's invitation for them to come out to Pay Dirt for dinner at the farm she negotiated after a moment's consideration.

"No. Too prosaic. Your mother is so practical. She and Miriam would be sure to talk of canning fruit, or frying chickens, or what not. No, you bring him here. I don't know how in the world I'll get rid of Hiram, but I will. I'll get rid of father, too, for he'd be sure to give it away, he's so honest. Make it rather late—the furniture doesn't show up so well—I

"It's Nice of You to Invite Me, but I Can't Come Tonight," mean so badly—when it is dark. Come for dinner, but not too early. Come in the gloaming."

"All right. What time is the gloaming?" asked Eddy.

Ginger hung up the receiver. Then she went straight to the attic. This was opportunity tapping at their door. Tapping? Why, it was fairly screaming for admittance. A cool million—Eddy was right—hot million would be better, a fiery million, a boiling million, a skyrocket million. She unlocked the doll's trunk. The precious cache had been rifled often, and pretty thoroughly, in the last three weeks, but a steady stream trickled into it every day. And this was to be an event in the lives of every one of them, a thing to remember forever, as long as they lived.

Ginger, with that springing imagination of hers, could already see Marjory, with softly silvered hair and the delicate rose flush of old age on her peach-bloom cheeks, recounting to the grandchildren clustered at her knees, beautiful children, all with golden curls and dimpled elbows, and all about the same size, clustered together like the cherubs in old religious paintings—"and this party was planned, and paid for, for my sake, by my dear little sister Ginger Ella. And there I met—"

She filled her shabby purse with money, all dimes, and went down town. There was buying to be done, much buying. But there was one small detail that required her first attention. At the dry-goods store she went into the private office of the president, to pay her Methodist respects to Joplin Westbury.

"Hello, how's everybody?" he greeted her cheerfully.

"Oh, just fine, thanks. Father's getting a double chin. The twins are fine, too. They go to college in just ten days now. I'm fine, too."

"How's our young preacher?"

"I don't know. I don't see much of him. I think he's blue—or lonesome, or something. You see, he feels that he's sort of out of things, because he's not a regular preacher. I dare say he thinks the members sort of snub him on that account, and leave him out of their church talk, and all."

"Why, that's too bad. I suppose he doesn't want to intrude—with your father there, and all. We like him first-rate."

"But you never do have him come to your house to talk church—the way you used to do with father, do you?"

"Well, you tell him to come around and see me. Tell him I especially asked for him. I'll pretend he's been neglecting me, and put it off on him. You tell him I want to know why he never comes around to talk church?"

"When? Tonight?"

"Well—yes. Tonight."

"He'll be pleased," said Ginger gently. "He's so young. He just loves to go about with father, and hobnob with the old pillars, and feel you are all salt of the earth together."

"Maybe your father would like to come along."

"He'd love it. If you really want him."

"Of course I want him. I want both of them. They've been making me run everything myself, and I don't like it."

"Early this evening? Right after dinner?"

"Yes, after dinner."

"All right. I'll be there."

"Good night."

"Tell them to come for dinner. I'll call my wife right up, and tell her we're having all the preachers for dinner. Don't you want to come along? When it comes to running things, you can put it over the whole board, if you ask me."

"Oh, Mr. Westbury, what an idea! It's nice of you to invite me, but I can't come tonight. I have some personal business to attend to."

From his office, Ginger plunged into an utter orgy of buying. For the first time in her life, she abandoned herself to reckless spending. She bought an alligator pear. There were only two in town, and she bought one of them. She had never tasted an alligator pear, but she knew it was something elegant. She bought a jar of ripe olives. Ripe olives were not common in Iowa, but she had seen them advertised in her systematic study of the magazines. She bought salted almonds and after-dinner mints. She bought an angel-food cake. In the furniture store, she bought two small rose-colored lamps for the living room. In the dry-goods store, she bought two pairs of white silk stockings, silk-to-the-top.

Miriam didn't really need them, of course, but one could not well show partially between twins.

Then she went swiftly home, and into the kitchen, where she rolled up her sleeves and went to work. She had no notion of announcing anticipated events until the two ministers were well out of the house, and dinner was ready. She realized that she could easily fool the men with this most timely invitation out, but her sisters would certainly suspect her of connivance. So she postponed her announcement, and in the meanwhile, she worked.

At five o'clock, she sought out her father and Hiram, deep in a discussion of recent progress in the mastery of the air, and informed them that they had been invited out to dinner, most importantly, and that Joplin Westbury expected them very early.

Hiram Buckworth seemed anything but pleased at this hospitable overture.

"But, see here—I can't go. I told Marjory. I would—I think I'll call him up."

"Oh, it is too late. Why, his wife has dinner all ready for you."

"Why didn't you tell us sooner?" he demanded impatiently.

"Well, I didn't get home until very late, and you were upstairs. I hated to disturb you. And I supposed of course you would like to go."

"Well, of course, I would like it—some time—but tonight—"

"He said to be there before six, because they eat early, and he likes his food hot," she said. "Come, father, I'll brush you off a bit."

And she persisted in her assiduous kindness until she finally saw her father walking off in the unwilling hands of Hiram Buckworth.

"I can't find Marjory," he whispered, dejectedly. "You tell her how it was—will you? And tell her I'll break away as soon as I decently can."

"Oh, don't do that. Marjory won't mind—she can wait until tomorrow night for—whatever you were going to do tonight."

And she stood grimly on the veranda and watched until they disappeared from sight.

"For it would be just like him to drop poor father right in the middle of the street, and come bounding back for a last look at the roof that shelters her—the base pretender," she said indignantly.

But when she was assured that their departure was final, she flew upstairs to the room where her sisters were industriously sewing lace upon bits of silk to accord with the very latest fashions in lingerie.

"Girls, hurry and get dolled up," she said. "Father and Hiram have gone out to dinner—to Jop West's—and Eddy Jackson is coming in, and I'm doing all the work myself, so we're going to pretend it's a party just for us."

"Put it off till tomorrow night," said Marjory, "so—father will be here."

"Can't. Eddy has some kid from some place—old school friend, or something—and he wants something to do with him, so they are coming here. Come on now, let's have a good time. Look, I bought you each a present—silk-to-the-top." She brandished the stockings before them. "A sale. Good ones."

Marjory's eyes were wistful. "They are just lovely," she said, "but I shan't waste them on Eddy Jackson and that child from some place. I'll keep them till tomorrow when—father is here."

"Since when has father shown such fondness for silk stockings? And if you don't put them on this very minute, I'm going to wear them myself. Aw, Margie, be a sport. Show Eddy a good time for once. Think how good he was to father."

Either the pleading or the threat was to good effect. Marjory hastily pulled off her shoes and stockings, and tried on the new silks-to-the-top. The shimmering whiteness of them, the silken softness, seemed to inspire her, to inspire Miriam, also, who quickly emulated her example, and inciting each other to further effort by this brave beginning, they entered joyously into the spirit of the affair. They brought out their entire wardrobe to make selections that would match the charm of the silk stockings—treasured bits of ribbons and lace, modest pieces of inexpensive jewelry. They tried things on, rearranged, experimented. They admired bizarre effects, offered criticisms, suggestions, helped to arrange each other's hair. Ginger, meanwhile, flew distractedly back and forth, between kitchen, dining room, and bedroom, urging them on, praising the results.

It was five minutes before seven when they pronounced themselves perfect beyond the power of their possessions to improve one iota. And then they looked at Ginger, a flushed, perspiring Ginger, with tumbled hair and starry eyes, a Ginger adorned in a trim, cheap, flaming red smock.

"Mercy, Ginger, you are a sight. You'd better dress. They'll be here."

But Ginger had no intention of dressing. She was going to make this a real party, two and two, en tete-a-tete. She would wait on the table, passing back and forth as service was needed. As the girls, indeed, often took turns in waiting upon the table when there were guests, they quickly acquiesced, for as Ginger said, she was entirely too hot, and too tired, and too excited to dress.

She straightened her disordered hair, puffed her flushed face with a whisk of powder, and smoothed down the flaming smock. Beside the twins in their delicate coolness, their shimmering whiteness, she was like a hot and seething little fire.

At the sound of the siren at the gate, she ran toward the kitchen, while the twins, each with an arm around the other's waist, sauntered slowly down the stairs, softly singing, as the two men came briskly up the flagstone path.

But Ginger had not gone to the kitchen. Not all the way. She planted herself just beyond the base of the circular staircase, out of sight, but where a mirror on the opposite wall reflected the veranda entrance. Ginger was not one to miss the approach of a romantic figure. These things happen too seldom to be taken with nonchalance.

And as, in the mirror, reflecting the doorway, she saw that brisk approach up the flagstone path, black horror darkened her eyes, white anger paled her flushed cheeks.

The twins, cool, white and smiling, had descended to the bottom-most step. And in the open doorway, laughing, stood Eddy Jackson. And beside him—post office, two lodge rooms, a garage and a dance hall was destroyed by fire at Carsonville early Sunday morning. The loss is estimated at $43,000. The fire started on the top floor in which was located the dance hall. A dance was given in the hall Saturday night and it is believed the fire was caused by a lighted cigarette or cigar carelessly thrown on the floor. The fire department was unable to save any portion of the Ruttle-Vivian building or contents, but kept the flames from spreading to other buildings.

Miriam withdrew herself impetuously from Marjory's light clasp, and flung her arms about him.

"Oh, Alex—oh, you darling—you hateful thing—Why didn't you tell me?—Margie, it's Alex!"

It was the can grocer.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps, well known summer resident of Huron county and professor of English literature, Yale University, was elected president of the American Institute of Arts and Letters at the recent annual meeting of the society held in New York.

Students of Yale and vicinity will enter a new school building when they return from the mid-summer vacation next year, if present plans are carried out. At the meeting held recently, taxpayers voted a bond issue of $95,000.00 with which to build and equip the new school.

Farmers of Huron county have not yet availed themselves of the opportunity of constructing individual farm drains under the 1929 O'Connell Goodwin law according to records in the state drain office. This new law, which farmers of Gratiot county, in particular, are taking advantage of, provides for special bonding privileges, under direction of the county drain commissioner, making the individual farm a drainage district for its own drainage system just as the county drain projects are carried out.—Bad Axe Tribune.

Fourteen people were scheduled to appear in the Tuscola county circuit court on December 5 and answer questions in an examination for citizenship papers. After more than six years of most devoted service to the Presbyterian church of Vassar, Rev. A. V. Brash-ear, has resigned from the pastorate. He and Mrs. Brashear will make their future home in Detroit and he plans to retire from the ministry for good. Prior to his Vassar charge, Rev. Brashear was pastor at Marlette for several years and at Allegan many years ago. Rev. Wilfred Lindsay of Wapakoneta, Ohio, has been assigned the Vassar church, succeeding Rev. Brashear. Rev. Lindsay is a native of Michigan and his desire to return to his own state and his acquaintance with the people of Vassar, led him to accept the post.

Mr. Trathen and Wm. Periso were returning to the Trathen home near Argyle. When their truck stalled as the result of a pipe freezing, Trathen crawled under the truck at the side of the road to thaw out the pipe.

An automobile driven by Charles Etzler of Port Austin hit the Trathen truck and as a result of the accident Mr. Trathen's left leg was almost severed near the hip and his left hand badly crushed. They were amputated in hopes of saving his life.

Mr. Etzler told officers he did not see the Trathen truck as snow was falling. He was not held.

Mr. Trathen is survived by his parents in Bad Axe: three daughters, Lola of Bad Axe, Mrs. Mabel Freeman and Mrs. Irene Brennan, both of Flint; and two brothers, Arthur and Lorne of Bad Axe.

A report just issued by the state department of health shows that during the first ten months of this year motor fatalities increased at the almost unbelievable rate of nearly 20% over the same period of a year ago. The report says that traffic accidents in Michigan have taken the lives of 1,245 persons.

weeks. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Clydenia Jewett of St. Joseph, Mich., and children as follows: Mrs. P. A. Schenck, Cass City; Mrs. R. L. Holloway, Detroit; Mrs. M. M. Wickware, Detroit; Mrs. W. A. Morey and Mrs. J. C. Brenza, Chicago; Mrs. E. J. Hall, Boston; also one son, Dr. Lewis F. Anderson, Columbus, Ohio.

The funeral service was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. P. A. Schenck on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Wm. R. Curtis of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. P. J. Allured of the Presbyterian church, conducting; and the burial took place in the Elkland cemetery. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful fitting tributes of affection from the many whose lives had been touched by and blessed with the kindly words and helpful ministrations of her now departed but still held in grateful memory.

Present at the services was a large gathering of friends and acquaintances from this vicinity and all of the children named above, excepting Mrs. E. G. Hall, of Boston, Mass.

OBITUARY.

Leonard Blackmer.

Leonard Blackmer, son of Robert and Harriet Blackmer, was born in Minnesota April 7, 1863 and departed from this life December 1, 1929. He came to Michigan with his parents when he was five years of age, where he has since resided.

In 1888 he was united in marriage to Emma J. Cooper. To this union five children were born, Leila, Beulah, Vilas, Virginia and Lawrence.

The greater part of his life was spent in the vicinities of Vassar and Millington. He was highly esteemed for his kind, honest and neighborly spirit in every community in which he resided. He was a loving and faithful husband and father and will be sadly missed from the family circle as well as by his many friends and neighbors. He has suffered ill health for thirteen years and has been seriously ill of heart's disease and dropsy for the past few months.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife, three daughters and two sons: Mrs. Ben Squires, Beulah, Vilas and Laurence of Millington and Mrs. John Guisbert of Cass City. He also leaves an aged mother, Mrs. H. Blackmer, of Flint, four sisters, Mrs. Cora Bartholomew of Clio, Mrs. Ed. Brainerd of Millington, Mrs. Adney Warner and Mrs. Wm. Goldstine of Flint and one brother, George Blackmer, of Birmingham. He leaves eleven grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

PURPLE CROSS FLAGS TO

line. Realizing this and wishing to give the bereaved family and their friends protection from possible accidents or annoyance due to such interruptions, Mr. McPhail adopted the white flag with the purple cross as a funeral emblem. It serves to inform traffic that a funeral procession is passing, and thus gain the right of way for a mortal's last and short journey to the church and cemetery. The few moments' waiting is in itself a trivial thing—yet this simple act of courtesy will be sincerely appreciated by those whose hearts are heavy with grief.

An extract of the Michigan law regarding funeral processions reads as follows:

"Funeral processions have right of way over all other vehicles except fire apparatus, ambulances and police patrol vehicles, at any street or highway intersection within this state: Provided, that each vehicle in such funeral procession shall have displayed on the front thereof a flag which shall be white in color, and upon which shall be printed, stamped or stained a purple cross. Any person passing through a funeral procession of motor vehicles designated as aforesaid with a vehicle of any kind, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in accordance with section fifty-three of title six hereof."

BRISBANE WILL WRITE FOR CHRONICLE

The Chronicle is about to begin publication of a feature of such brilliancy and individuality that, were it unsigned, careful readers of newspapers would immediately identify its authorship.

It is not improbable that something like 20,000,000 sturdy Americans of all classes, including thousands of writers, believe that Arthur Brisbane is the greatest editorial writer of the present day. "Think, think, think," is his slogan, and his immense following is due to the fact that he can phrase his thoughts with such brevity and clarity that they are immediately understood by every one.

Champion and exemplar of the square deal, Arthur Brisbane is the apostle of tomorrow, the prophet of a better time. Human nature, harassed, perplexed, accepts the Brisbane faith that the tomorrow of the race will be greater, finer, nobler, more bearable than it is today. Every day, therefore, one-fifth of the newspaper reading population of the United States, consumes his editorials as hungrily as it eats its bran or oatmeal and toast and eggs.

Brisbane has an unequalled facility for simplifying complex material and making it attractive. For example, if he wanted to "put over" a talk on hygiene and dietetics, he would entitle it "Pity Poor Moses; He Had No Ice-box." His writings have achieved a reputation for the originality which attracts, the brilliancy which holds, the paradox which makes people think, and the bluntness which convinces.

The adage: "Whatever is right," does not go with Brisbane. Whatever is isn't right, to him. It can be, and should be, better. He is the highest priced editorial writer in the world. He wouldn't and couldn't be so high priced, if his clear and humanly attractive philosophy were not worth the money.

The Chronicle shall carry a column entitled: "This Week" by Arthur Brisbane. It will be just what its name implies—thoughts inspired by the latest happenings and trends throughout the world, but more particularly, in America. The feature will seize and hold you, greatly to your entertainment and profit.

It is claimed that the hours of leisure are the most dangerous ones, but few people refuse to accept a holiday on account of that risk.

POOLING HELPS SELL
SURPLUS HERD BULLS

Dairy farmers who belong to the Saginaw Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association have found that the pooling of interests pays in selling surplus bull calves as well as in testing their herds for production.

Ten bull calves were sold for an average price of 100 dollars at a consignment sale held at Hemlock. The records of the dams of these bulls had been determined by the testing work and each buyer of a calf knew just what he was purchasing.

Buyers from five nearby counties attended the sale. Top price in the sale was obtained for a calf consigned by A. C. Tessin, Hemlock, and sold to John Young, Reese.

The value of bull club work which enables the owner to determine the worth of a herd sire before he is sold to the butcher was shown in this sale where eight of the ten calves were sons of one excellent sire. The top price calf was one of the eight and his dam had a production record of 999.49 pounds of butterfat in one year.

A member of the bull club, William Watson, Hemlock, acted as sales manager. A. B. Love, Saginaw county Agricultural Agent, and J. G. Hayes, East Lansing, Holstein-Friesian fieldman, assisted with the sale.

Experience.

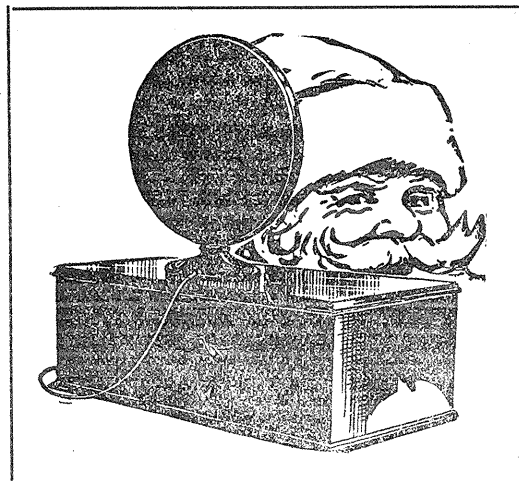

"Now," said the college man to his dad at the football game, "you'll see more excitement for two dollars than you ever saw before."

"I don't know," replied the old gent, "that's what my marriage license cost me."—Southern California Banker.

"Have you noticed how much Mr. Blencken's nose resembles Calvin Coolidge's?"

"I wonder if it chooses to run."—The Pathfinder.

Everyone but the turkey reported a good time on Thanksgiving day.
