LOCAL FARMERS GET OF FASE CHECKS

Two Companies Hold Oil Leases community activities here. on Farms in Novesta and Grant Townships.

Are the geological formations of Novesta township in Tuscola county and of Grant township in Huron county favorable for the production of oil? This is a question that is of particular interest to half a hundred farmers, more or less, in the two townships, who have leased their Cass City and Floor Cifford of B. farms to oil companies within the tiac were married in Toledo, Ohio, on in the last three periods to win. The past two years.

In Novesta township, several leases were made in July 1928, by T. M. Wills and Worthy E. Dyson. Checks covering oil lease payments have been written by the Mellon-Pollock Oil Co., the checks being drawn on Pontiac and continue their work at the scoring with five field goals and the Mellon National Bank of Pitts- the state hospital. burg, Pa. The checks received here within the past ten days are in payment of the leases for the first three months of 1930.

According to information received from a Novesta township farmer who signed an oil lease agreement in July 1928, the oil company promises 50 cents an acre annually providing there is no operation, these payments to start 18 months after the lease is signed and payable quarterly in advance. If operations are started on the land, the property owner receives one-eighth of the oil produced instead of the 50-cent per acre rental fee. In the event that a gas flow as well as oil is the result of the drilling, the owner receives $10.00 annually on each well in addition to the oneeighth of the oil produced while operations continue. If the well produces gas exclusively, the land owner's revenue will be $200.00 a year on each well from which gas is sold off the premises.

/ Among land owners who leased farms in Novesta township are the following: Robt. Warner, Henry J. Stone, C. H. Tedford, John Little, Walter J. Thompson, Ruth Gray, Fred Ball, John Gray, Jacob Earl Spencer, Chas. Holm, Joe Polheber, James McKinnon, Geo. H. Moshier, Frank Hegler, John Smentek, Geo. McArthur, Thos. Knight, Philip Asmus, John R. McDonald, Chas. E. Hartsell, Jeremiah N. Shantz and Loy A. Smith. These land owners have had checks issued in their favor recently in payment of lease rentals.

Oil has been found in Michigan at various places and in several geological formations. These geological formations are struck at different depths in different parts of the state because of the "dip" of the so-called

Violet Rays Fight Disease Apples and Oranges Little Men Do Learn No Chemical Life

Doctor Lucas, one of the many able scientists employed by the telephone company, has perfected a "violet ray" microscope, expected to work wonders in the fight against disease, specifically in treatment of cancer and other malignant tumors.

A violet ray machine, using 10,000 volts, magnifies to an extent absolutely amazing, making the specimen examined "seem to jump through the Following a typhoid epidemic at Oviedo, in Spain, drinking fountains were closed and people ordered to drink only cider. In a week the epidemic vanished. Spaniards believe that apple juice kills disease germs.

Perhaps cutting off a bad water supply had more to do with it. But every human being would be the better for an apple a day at noon and an orange in the morning.

Some one should make a little cider press that could be used at the family table, to squeeze out the cider and give it to children with their noon meal, fresh from the apples.

HAVE YOU SEEN THESE TWO GREAT NEW CARS?

GENERAL MOTORS' Lowest-priced Eight-

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Three years of actual designing and testing preceded the announcement of the New Oakland Eight. In addition it incorporates General Motors' sixteen years' experience in building fine eight-cylinder automobiles. This mature background accounts for its sound basic design.

Superior Performance

The New Oakland has an 85-horsepower engine. This is the highest power ever employed in a car of Oakland's size and weight, racing cars excepted. Oakland develops one horsepower to 37 pounds of car weight. That's why few cars are as fast. That's why few, if any, can pass it on the hills. That's why it accelerates so rapidly. In fact, that is the reason for its superior performance.

Eight-Cylinder Performance

With its high speed and fast acceleration, the new Oakland combines the smoothness resulting from the overlapping power impulses inherent in eightcylinder design. This smoothness is intensified by such features as its complete down-draft fuel distribution, its patented laminated spring and rubber engine mountings and a new type of cylinder head which assures uniform combustion.

Only a close inspection and a demonstration will enable you to understand fully the many advantages provided by the New Oakland Eight.

The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list prices. Bumpers, rear fender guards and spring covers extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Improved non-squeak four-wheel brakes

Finer Car

Once again Pontiac has improved upon a car already noted for its excellent qualities. To the hundreds of thousands who own Pontiacs, and to everyone interested in low-priced automobiles, this announcement is important. For it introduces the New Series Pontiac Big Six a new and finer car with a famous name.

New Beauty, Smoothness, Safety

Smart new bodies by Fisher make the New Series Big Six a more beautiful Pontiac. Pontiac's smoothness is increased by a new type of rubber supports for its 60-horsepower engine.

and a new sloping non-glare windshield add to the car's safety.

Time-Tried Performance

When these and other improvements were being made, all of Pontiac's basic big car excellence was retained.

Come in. Let us show you the many advantages of this finer car with a famous name—the New Series Pontiac Big Six.

Christmas is over, the New Year has begun and most of us have settled back in the old routine of living. If we happened to have a child or children in the home, the past season would have been otherwise.

I was talking not long ago to a man who is very happily married, but one did not miss the children so much until they began to grow old. Really, I suppose it is a fortunate thing that people who have no children never fully realize the joys that they are

I came out of that darkness when understanding became my sight, when I had learned to bear disappointment, when I had comprehended to do the thing that was to be done for love of the cause and not for self-aggrandizement. #### Velvet in Favor lvet in Favor for Formal Wrap

Short Coat, Shaped at Bottom, an Expression of Youth, Smartness.

Wraps to wear with evening dress signed for Sunday nights—have been a problem for the couturiers, notes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. They must have a certain touch of elegance and yet fit in perfectly with the casual character of the costume as a whole, and, more than anything, they must allow great leeway for individual taste, since the dresses they have to go with are to be worn either for restaurant dinner or for the informal dinner at home or elsewhere, when men are having their day of relaxation and indulgence.

The wrap, of course, depends upon the place, the girl and the gown. The one most in vogue is a velvet coat wrap with sleeves, a big collar and perhaps cuffs of fur, such as would be suitable to wear with one of the soft gowns of velvet, lace, net or lame that are so fashionable. The wraps of plain velvet that are being shown by French and American designers are less pretentious than those of metal or velvet brocade, and serve equally well for formal afternoon or evening.

A model that is the expression of youth and smartness is a short coat, shaped at the bottom, longer at the back and bordered about all the edges with fur-fox, mink, marten or ermine, natural or white. A wrap of this description fits easily over a dress of several flounces, small ruffles or bouffant drapery. Three-quarters and full-length coats and wraps are worn most comfortably with gowns of long, slim lines, and are distinguished by a low dipping shape at the back paral leling that of the gown.

One designer emphasizes the ensemble for this type of dress. For the wrap she departs seldom from plain velvet or panne, which she uses in some long formal coats cut on princess lines with a fitted circular flounce, which is to ripple softly over a gown of almost any model. The lining of the coat must match or blend with the dress, and the costume must represent a color harmony. Black, and black and white together, are in the limelight this season. And whatever the color of the wrap lining, that too must be reflected in the fur, of which a luxurious collar and often other trimming is made. The ensemble possibilities are countless. Among them is one of a princess gown in warm brown velvet, with overlapping slender panels stitched in lines that curve from one hip downward across the front to cluster at the other side and hang in long points at the bottom. Between these curving panels are entredeux of lace dyed in the same shade of brown, which forms also the yoke and lower sleeves of the bodice. The coat wrap of brown velvet is lined with a lighter shade, completing a costume of quiet elegance which will serve for many informal occasions.

Trains Come With New

Fashion of Long Skirts Not only will feminine America conceal its erstwhile emancipated limbs under ankle-length skirts these winter evenings but, if it accepts the judgment of Paris, it will trail a foot or so of train behind.

Evening and house gowns reminiscent of Greece and the French empire are being imported by the leading New York shops, reports Harper's Bazaar. Some are raised in front and lowered in back, some barely touch the floor with the suggestion of trailing, some sweep along for two or three feet in the wake of the wearer. There is hope, however, for the woman who has found the short skirt too satisfying to be surrendered without protest. Madame Louiseboulanger is quoted by the magazine as believing that "short daytime skirts will be classic for years to come," and Baron DeMeyer, European fashion authority of Harper's Bazaar, observes that "the elegant and well-dressed women of 1930 will do much as they please Their wastlines will follow their builds and their skirts will be as long. or as short, as proportions and good taste demand."

OLD MAN HENDERSON IS ABOUT RIGHT....

Let me give you a little history of a small industry in Cass City.

I have lived in this town 35 years and can call everyone a friend or neighbor. The last 16 years my wife and I have met the public every day, except when I enlisted in the army and left my wife to run the business. No one ever put a petition or subscription list before me that I did not sign. I have always paid lots of taxes and interest. Last Friday I paid $107.20 school tax on 22 feet. There are five families depending on this industry, all paying taxes in this community.

We have only one thing for sale and that is bread. Every time you don't ask for Cass City bread you are letting an outside bakery get a foothold. May I ask, are they more to you than the five families right now in your midst? We make good bread and besides it is fresh bread. Your grocers would be glad to handle only Cass City bread if you didn't demand something else. I ask your worthy consideration of this for me and mine.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, partic-ularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants, and heroine of an epic destined to live long in the vil-lage annais.

CHAPTER II.—How the romance of Molly Brant, sister of the great Indian chief, Joseph Brant, and Sir William Johnson, in pre-Revolutionary days, comes down to today with the birth of a son, Paul, to Molly Kirke, wife of a powerful New York financier, and her death when Paul is thirteen years old. Molly Kirke was a descendant of Molly Kirke was a descendant of Molly Brant, and her boy has many of the Indian characteristics. At thirty-two Paul marries Claire Durand, daughter of his father's business partner. He is in charge of an immense engineering work on the Mistassini river, near Peribonka, which his millionaire father has undertaken, but his Indian blood deplores the destruction of the wilderness, and his thoughts are more of Carla Haldan—not then the Crippled Lady—than of his work.

CHAPTER III.—Paul's wife is in Europe, she having no inclination to live in "those horrible woods." He comes to see in Carla, daughter of a central European immigrant, with her devotion to her invalid mother and her work of educating the village children, his ideal of womanhood.

CHAPTER IV.—Paul writes to his wife, urging her to join him, though Carla is the inspiration of the letter. Later that evening, passing the Haldan home, he hears Carla crying. He enters the cottage. Mrs. Haldan, long a hopeless invalid, is dead. Paul's efforts to comfort Carla, he feels, bring them closer together.

CHAPTER V.—Claire announces her intention of joining Paul on the Mistassini in a short time. She also writes to Carla, of whom she has heard from Paul, a letter of kindly sympathy, on the death of her mother.

CHAPTER VI.—Paul goes to Queboec 'o meet Claire, and brings her to his temporary home. Though she is apparently glad to be with him, and evinces warm friendship for Carla and Paul's other friends, he feels she is only there because she feels it her duty. She is not really happy. He becomes aware of a gulf between him and his wife.

CHAPTER VII.—Paul, Claire, Carla, and two iriends make a luncheon party to visit the "Big Gorge" of the Mistassini, an appallingly swift current which disappears in a mountain side. Current belief is that anything dropped into it is never seen again. In sport they cast into the stream pieces of wood, and other objects, watching them disappear. Finally they carry a large log to the edge of the rushing water. As they toss it over it uperds, striking Paul and throwing him into the stream. The two women with whom Paul's life is entwined see him go to what they are sure is certain death. One asks the other if she is go to what they are sure is certain death. One asks the other if she is going with him. Receiving no answer, she announces, "Then—I am!" and springs into the water.

CHAPTER VIII

Paul saw the swift, deliberate plunge through space of the slim body, which, in the uncertainty of his vision, an instinctive and positive impulse told him was Claire's. A woman's piercing cry came from the cliff, but no responsive echo of horror escaped his own lips, no sound, but an articulate

Thought of physical salvation scarcely filtered in a ray of hope through his mind, and his senses were unterrified by the suffocating presence of death. In Carla were his strength and courage. He locked his arms about her closely. He could feel her clinging to him with the same desire to remain inseparable when the end came. Strange. A kingdom of Micomicon-a land of Alnaschar-a place of fairies-a world of dreams- They were going to it all. Between the walls where no man had ever looked. Death! A magnificent adventure, with Carla in his arms! A roaring filled his ears. They were traveling swiftly now. His senses grew less distinct, like colors merging one into another in a sunset sky. Queer, why it should end like this, after years of life-he-and Carla -together-as it must have been intended from the beginning. A glorious graciousness of Fate, an immortal symphony of fulfilment-to pass on like this with Carla, no matter how many hundred centuries had gone before! And some one-his wife-had said-that seconds meant more than years-when-like this-

The roaring was an enormity of sound. Its wailing was like the wind in the cave of Aeolus, its thunder like Stentor's blasts rumbling through the empty bowels of the earth. They numbed and anesthetized, yet left him with a shred of living, thinking cells which told him they were tearing through the gullet of the gorge, and which, at the same time, held his arms unyielding as bands of steel about Carla's body.

Although close to the edge of an abyss of utter darkness, consciousness did not quite leave him. Vaguely he experienced the thrill of being transported out of a hell of tumultuous sound into a soft and gently drifting sea which was without noise or violence. For an interval he fancied his arms were wings and that he was trying to fly, making rather a bad mess of it because one side of him refused to co-ordinate with the other. This was the arm, only one arm now, which held Carla. With the other, after a little, he found himself clawing and digging into something. A man may live a hundred years, but when he is ready to die and looks back over the path he has traveled, it seems very short, and the hundred years no more than a few hours. Paul had reflected upon the illusory and baseless fabric of time, its inadequacy and the hollowness of its human measurement. "One who is happy has but a fleeting vision of life," Carla had said to him once. "To live long and terribly, one must be unhappy-in prison." It was odd why he should be thinking of this as he continued to claw and dig. But

Condemn old-fashioned heating methods

The old, overworked stove is the culprit. And he does his most devastating "culpriting" during February and March, say health officers. For during these two months human resistance is said to be at its weakest-vitality at its lowest ebb.

And it is at this time that many families neglect their health the most. Huddling around a rundown stove, they shiver and shake in the chill of a half-heated house. Hallways are frigid, floors are draughty, there are Winterills and doctor bills. Health officials vigorously condemn this old-fashioned heating method.

"Enjoy-It-Now" Club to Rescue

Right now, it is estimated, there are unwards of one million homes in the United States that are underheated. Many of these people are trying to make the old stove "do until next season, failing to realize the sacrifice they are making in comfort, health and waste of fuel. As a result of action taken recently, the Sanilac board of supervisors will meet three times a year henceforth instead of just twice, as has been the custom. The extra session will be held in April and by providing opportunity for preparing for the June meeting will considerably relieve the situation and speed up work. The chairman will be elected in April, thus permitting committees to function immediately on the opening of the June session.

Permission to abandon the last unit of the old Almont and Northern Railroad, a 15 mile line from Romeo to Rochester Junction, has been asked by the Eastern Michigan Railway company. It is expected that the state Public Utilities Commission will grant the request within the next few weeks.
