175 ATTEND DILMAN SCHOOL RELINION

Reading of Extracts from Early Records Gave Audience a Peep behind Scenes.

Nearly 175 pupils and patrons gathered at the Dillman schoolhouse Saturday, July 12, for the sixth annual reunion of that district. Guests from Pontiac, Bad Axe, Saginaw, Caro, Detroit, Fenton, Lapeer, Lansing Alexander Joseph Boutin, 37, Caro; and Oak Park, Illinois, came to renew acquaintances.

Shortly after twelve o'clock, the school bell called the hungry folks together. The centerpiece for the table was a large gold angel food cake decorated in color with the words Dillman School, District No. 1 and was made by Mrs. Richard Bayley.

After enjoying the huge dinner, the people assembled in the schoolhouse for a short program. With James D. Tuckey presiding, everyone was, at once, made to feel they were a part of the afternoon's program. After the singing of "America" followed with prayer by Mrs. Knapp, Mr. Tuckey extended greetings and expressed happiness in seeing so many friends gathered. The following officers were elected: President, Roy M. Allen; vice president, Mrs. Richard Bayley; sec. and treas., Visitors Skill Will Be Rewarded Beryl M. Koepfgen. Mrs. Knapp, a former teacher, then presided for the remainder of the program.

Communications and greetings were read from absent members. Letters from Mrs. Mary McBurney Goodall of Saskatchewan, Miss Evangeline Purcell of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Myrtle Dilman Bingham of Kalispell, Montana, came too late for reading at this time.

An interesting feature of the program was the history of the school compiled by Miss Martha MacArthur, 30 per cent; and sugar beets, 63 per cent. The acreage of potatoes is estimated to be the same as that harvested last year. The only crops showing decreases are wheat, buckwheat, and lover and timothy.

Crop conditions as reported on July 1 were average to 10 per cent crops except rye and tame hay. Rye was 3% less than the average July 1 figure. With increased acreages and favorable growing conditions to date, the present outlook is for larger total production than last year on all crops except wheat and hay.

The condition of field beans on July 1 was reported at 84 per cent as compared with a ten-year average for that date of 83 per cent. The planted acreage is estimated to be 833,000 acres which, on the basis of the present condition, indicates a probable production of 9,163,000 bushels. If realized, this would mean a crop nearly three and one-half million bushels larger than that harvested in 1929 and five hundred thousand bushels more than that of 1925 which was the largest crop on record for the period that estimates have been made. CONGRESS FINISHES.

No matter whether a congress does well or ill, its adjournment brings more or less relief to the country. Even if its members have made a sincere effort to meet the country's needs, the discussion of the various policies, and possible changes that may be made, create business uncertainty. So our people are well satisfied that the 71st congress has finished the work of the recent prolonged session, save for the brief time to be spent by the senate in considering the London conference naval

It is an almost impossible task to keep the people of 48 states and all kinds of industrial elements satisfied. The various interests are so numerous and conflicting, that the majority of them usually feel that their own interests have not been adequately considered. The prolonged debate over the tariff proved particularly trying to the business community. The concerns that were buying goods affected by tariff duties naturally hesitated to give, their orders until they could see what the new tariff rates were to be. The country urgently needs some better method of making tariffs. Whether the powers given the tariff commission and the president through the so-called flexible tariff, will meet needs as they arise and remedy inequalities, is yet to be proved.

This congress has handled some very big questions. It has not merely home are just as jolly. The houseperformed the enormous task of revising the tariff, but it has attempted to solve the problem of farm relief which has vexed the country for ty. The men who play picnic base-10 years, and it has liberalized the ball, and run around bases as if they treatment given to the war veterans.

Much of this legislation is experimental, and people will have to wait and see how it works. The verdict upon its labors will be rendered by time, which searches out faults and mistakes with relentless eye, but which rewards all honest and sincere attempts to promote the country's welfare.

THE ART OF BUYING.

The business philosophers tell us that it does not make so much differwhat we save that counts. Many Village of Mayville, $1.00. people who have large incomes can't save a cent.

The capacity to save depends upon two things. First, the ability to deny oneself foolish expenditures. Second, the judicious use of our income. Many people who have the capacity of self denial, yet can't seem to spend their money wisely. They keep buying stuff that is not worth what they

Success in the use of money depends upon a process of education. Some folks are skilful buyers and some are unskilful. Some people make a careful study of every purchase, and they become excellent judges of every article of household and personal supplies. These folks are not likely to be reduced to pover-

One of the principal means for acquiring this skill in the art of buying, is to study the newspaper advertising. and durable as the straw itself is. For the transparent hair capeline centered in the group, the lace employed is allowed to retain its original suppleness. Note how very shallow is the crown. The trend toward crowns of little depth is being accentuated more and more with the increasing favor of the back-on-the head pose which flares the brim about the face so as to expose the forehead and reveal the hair.

As to new lightweight coarse straws, they are a case of love at first sight. The model shown to the left below is typical of the new trend. It is black. glossy and flattering.

Black and white mixt es as shown in the concluding sketch are the "last word" in these voguish coarse straws.

KEEP BULL UNTIL QUALITY PROVEN

Sire Should Be Kept Until Daughters' Work Shown.

The value of a dairy bull cannot be determined until the production of his daughters has been tested. Then it often happens that the bull has been slaughtered for some reason and his valuable influence lost to the herd. John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college, says the bureau of dairying at Washington had proven the value of 834 bulls up until September, 1929, through records kept by dairy herd improvement associations, yet when the bureau began to search for these bulls, only 126 were living. The remainder were dead or no authentic informtaion was available. For that B. Cootes entertained about thirty of the hull has had a chance to prove as he is fit for service, provided he should be slaughtered immediately. Many bulls are sold to the butcher when quite young because they have developed a vicious disposition. Viciousness is not a characteristic on which to condemn the animal, thinks Mr. Arey. Frequently such animal is one of the most valuable that the dairymen could own and there are ways in which a dangerous bull may be easily handled. One of the best is the method used by a group of farmers in Caldwell county. These men have an elevenyear-old animal owned jointly. They have constructed a pen with shelter and with a breeding pen adjoining. This equipment was built at small cost to each individual and yet it provides ample facilities for handling the bull and at the same time insures his safe handling. Such equipment is recommended by Mr. Arey to other farmers who may wish to keep a herd sire that has grown dangerous with

to Keep Up Milk Flow

To keep up the milk flow in summer it is essential to have good pasture. Grass probably provides the cheapest feed that is available for dairy cows. Because of its succulent character it produces a larger flow of milk than an equal amount of feed furnished in some other form. Cattle showing a mineral deficiency on many other types of feed will generally show no mineral deficiency when they are on good pasture.

Overstocking is probably as great a cause as any other for damage to pastures. They should be top-dressed with manure or a complete fertilizer to give them the proper amount of nitrogen and minerals. Lime and osphorus also have been found

New York State College

Favors Early Cut Hay Plan to cut hay early and feed some of it. Feed well on grain. For Holsteins and Ayrshires, New York State college recommends one pound of grain to five pounds of milk produced during the early summer, and one to four as soon as pastures show any drought. Jerseys and Guernseys need more. The college recommends one to four of milk early and one to three later in the season.

The grain mixture the college suggests is 300 pounds wheat bran, 400 pounds hominy, 200 pounds gluten feed and 100 pounds cottonseed meal. Feeding in summer boosts the yearly average of cows; and all records show that the higher the yearly average of a cow the greater the profit from her.

RELIABILITY ECONOMY GOOD PERFORMANCE

THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

YOU are buying proved performance when you buy a Ford. You know it has been built for many thousands of miles of satisfactory, economical service.

Letters from users in every part of the world show the value of the sound design of the car, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

Further tribute to the sturdiness. reliability and general all-round performance of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by government bureaus, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most cases, the new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering speed and power, safety, comfort, ease of control, oil and gas consumption, low yearly depreciation, and low cost of up-keep.

They have found, as you will find, that the Ford embodies every feature you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Are All Politics Rotten? The Smithhoughs, father and son,

"I was going in for public life-possibly be a senator," said Bob, seriously, "but I've about come to the conclusion it is not desirable after all. Dad. are politics rotten?"

"Been reading the papers a bit eh, Bob?" queried dad. "Well, I can hardly blame you for coming to such a conclusion with all the graft and scandal in high places, yet, Bob, the law is a very highly respected profession and just because here and there, now and then, a man high in public office sells his birthright for a mess of pottage you must not conclude that all of our vast army of public officials are crooks, by any means. America is what she is today as a nation, largely because of her type of government; a type of government which makes possible tremendous initiative on the part of officials, plus the fact that we still have vast natural resources easily exploited and wealth is so comparatively easily attainable by fair means "Remember how we all enjoyed the box of salted nuts the other evening. They were unusually fine until you bit into a rancid one and then you didn't want any more. It would have been too bad to have concluded that you would never eat salted nuts again because of one bad one to a box.

"Let's go a little further, Bob. The strength of American life is the quality of its citizenry. Most men are honorable and honest. Of the probably more than one hundred thousand public officials, a large part of the leaders of which have a legal training, there is a very small per cent but that have rendered their day and time and constituency thoroughgoing honorable service, many, at large personal sacrifice. Here I was just now readvelt that has an exact bearing on the

"'In our history there is now practically no mention of any great finanmerely made money for himself. If at some crisis in the nation's history that financier rendered a great nafor high score. Ice cream and cake tional service, or if he identified himself in useful fashion with some great philanthropy or otherwise, then his name remains. But even under these conditions it remains as a secondary value. America's contribution to permanent world history has been made by the statesmen and soldiers whose devotion to the country equaled their efficiency, by men of science, men of did great work and treated that work as in itself a great reward "The history of our growth and development as a nation is largely the public life.

"True it is, my boy, that we have an oversupply of 'small fry' in the legal profession, but it is also true in the other professions. Human nature is no different in politics than in business or medicine or the other sci-

"Some one has told us that the real value of great lives is to fertilize the imaginations of our youth. When you think politics, think of the great game that Washington played with his Continental congress; think of the great game that Lincoln played with millions of human lives at stake. Think of the great and fascinating game that starving children of the world. Do not let your ideals and conclusions be reached by dwelling too much on the petty graft and mistakes of the greedy and overly ambitious few.

"True American citizenship means loyal service to God and country. Boys of sterling quality must be trained to enter politics—yes, to become fighting politicians; live-wire citizens who do their share of the public work, and Bob, you don't need to wait until you are a senator. Pe a good straight-shooting, hard-hitting politician in school; in your club; in your camp; yes, in your gang.

"We must recognize that there are defects in our land and weaknesses in our systems; that our plan of things is not perfect; that all our institutions can be bettered; and that only by preparation and co-operation to make America the great democracy where there is less and less fear, more and more confidence in each other and a united hope for even better things, will a new day come. "Good and bad politics, Bob, bring up another point, too, that it is well to consider. Good politics is simply loyalty. Everybody likes the fellow who stands up for his family and his school, his friends, his team, and his country-all of that is not so hard

Mussolini and Kemal What Is Education? Affection, Then Science

Women in Business Mussolini interests Europe and causes excitement in France, proposing an alliance with Germany.

France understands that the suggestion calls for a military alliance, or, at least, an agreement that Germany will remain neutral in case of an Italian-French war.

Mussolini ought to know what such an alliance really means when war really starts.

In 1914, Italy had an alliance with Germany, and the kaiser was foolish enough to think it would stand up.

When Kemal Pasha, boss of Turkey, makes war, he makes war. You remember that Mussolini threatened him, and Kemal replied: "If you send Italian soldiers against me, the difficulty will be to find room to bury the number that I shall kill."

A dispatch from Turkey tells how Kemal trapped 1,000 rebellious Kurds in his Zeylan river valley, and killed every one, granting no quarter.

That sounds like old days when Mohammed himself was leader, and later when western Europe whispered in awe the name of "The Grand Turk."

Educators, between the closing and opening of schools, discuss "What Is Education What Should It Do? How Can We Form the Young?" etc.

Educators should start with the meaning of the word "educate" and stick to that. It means "to lead out," to bring out of the youthful mind and capacity that which is in it. It does not mean to force the opinions of teachers on that youthful mind.

Dealing with raw materials, science and industry "educate" those materials by bringing out the best that is

They seek for hardness in steel, for resiliency and wear in rubber. They steel of rubber. But that is exactly the process applied to many young

And for that reason, in reading the biographies of many successful men, you find that their first proof of real ability was ability to evade the process of education.

And their greatest good fortune was an irregular education, or none.

Doctor Frankel, learned Metropolitan Life expert, says the philosophic mind rules the child best.

Between the ages of three and fifteen, according to Doctor Frankel, each child goes through all the various stages through which the human race as a whole has passed, from the Stone age to the present day.

"The philosophic mind," knowing that a young child is a young barbarian, and cannot be anything else, does not foolishly expect too much and force the child to be a hypocrite.

However, one thing is more important in the bringing up of children than the philosophic mind, or anything else, and that is affection, and especially the love of a mother.

No science can take the place of

It is to the mind's expansion and healthy growth what food is to the body. There is no substitute.

Mrs. Edison wants women to go back to the home because they "lose prestige in business."

"Deep down in her heart, every woman wants a home," the distinguished lady told her hearers. That is true, but every home needs a man to support it and protect it. Between "losing prestige" and washing dishes and clothes for an incompetent male, the intelligent woman decides to relinquish a little prestige. If every one could find a husband like Thomas A. Edison the problem would be easy.

Suppose you suddenly learned that your grandmother used to walk a tight rope on one foot, her other foot held high in the air. You'd be shocked. But you would not be as seriously shocked as ten million British old ladies, male and female, suddenly informed that Queen Mary actually smokes cigarettes.

She smokes only two, one after luncheon, one after tea. But she does smoke.

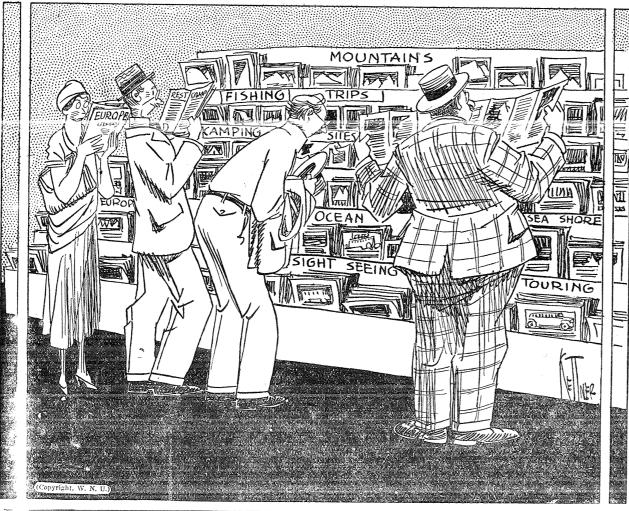

Her marvelously complicated Victorian hats, skirts below her ankles, stately carriage, dignified expression, cannot make the horrified millions forget the three dreadful words: Queen Mary smokes.

Lindbergh gives the League of Nations transit section detailed suggestions for aviation. Standardization of airways, uniform markings and signals, a comprehensive meteorological and radio reporting system, uniform regulations for clearing, are suggested.

The recommendations are sound, but the people are too busy to pay attention to recommendations, from no matter how high a source.

Unusual Dutch Colonial Design With Sun Porch Across Front

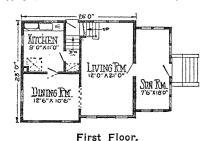

Here is a Dutch colonial design with a sun porch extended across the entire front. Except for the ornamental entrance steps the house depends upon its good lines for effect and the result is highly satisfactory in every way.

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest cuttbuilty of the country of the highest authority on all these sub jects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The architect who designed the home shown in the accompanying illustration did an unusual thing. He gave the house the appearance of a Dutch colonial home, added a sun porch at one end, and made it into an entrance porch. The wide brick steps leading to the door into the sun room, with the wide stretch of awning above, give this house a most unusual appearance. Inside, however, it is a well arranged five-room home. The living room is large, 12 feet by 21 feet, and extends the width of the house back of the sun porch. At first thought this would seem to be not a good plan, because of the sun porch shutting light out of the living room, but two windows have been placed in either end of the living room which gives it

The dimensions of this house are 23 feet by 26 feet and the foundation construction of the ordinary frame. The break in the roof lines giving the effect of wide dormers on either side with the overhang of roof at the second floor make the exterior appearance of the house pleasing. This design has enabled the owner to secure all of the space the dimensions of the house would allow. How the five-rooms are arranged and the dimensions of each are shown on the floor plans. It will be noted that on the second floor the bathroom is un- see. usually large and there is more than the usual closet space.

For the small family who wants an economical but comfortable home this

Pepping Up Old Hot

Water Heating Plant Heating engineers have recently developed methods of speeding up the circulation of the water in a hotwater heating system.

One method involves the use of a pump which forces a more active circulation of the water. Another method consists of adding to the hot-water heating system a pressure relief valve, and a pressure reducing valve.

The latter system expensive in its installation cost and may be used successfully with an old hot-water heating system or with a system that is being installed in a new house. Here is the way it works:

The pressure tank is installed at the highest point in the basement. Before the boiler, the pipes, and the radiators are filled with water, they, of course, are full of air.

As the water is turned into the system, the air retreats into the pressure

When the system is completely filled, the tank is usually about onethird full of water and two-thirds full of compressed air.

Since water expands when it is heated, it is evident that as the heat in the boiler is increased the air space in the tank is lessened and the pressure on the system is increased.

This has the effect of accelerating the circulation of the water with the result that the rooms are heated more quickly, the system is more flexible, and less fuel is used. Furthermore, a higher temperature of the water is possible with the socalled "closed system" which has just been described. Water will boil when heated to 212 degrees under pressure of the atmosphere, as for instance in the case of an "open" system with an expansion tank in the attic. But in the case of a closed system with a pressure greater than atmospheric, the boiling point of the water is raised. All of this is merely an introduction to the fact that if a house has scant radiation, the closed system will to some extent help overcome this difficulty in that it will enable the homeowner to have water at a higher temperature in his radiations.

At the same time there is no lessening of the safety factor because the plant will be equipped with a relief valve which will relieve the boiler pressure when it arrives at a certain point. The valve is adjustable up to 35 pounds. When the maximum pressure has been reached, the valve opens automatically and liberates water until the pressure is lessened to such an extent as to eliminate any chance of breaking the boiler.

The pressure reducing valve is installed in the water supply main and provides for automatic filling of the boiler. The water is kept at the desired level in the boiler without attention on the part of the home-owner.

Window Shade Plays Big Part in Home Decoration

The possibilities that lie in the correct use of window shades should be considered.

Too often people look on them only as a means of obtaining privacy in the home. They do not realize that shades have another very important use. Shades play a big part in carrying out the interior and exterior decorative scheme of every room. In fact, shades often play such an important part as to the keynote of the color

Imagine for a moment that the housewife has worked out a pleasing and novel color scheme in her living room. Let her then shade her winthat does not harmonize with the other decorations. The effect that she has tried so hard to produce is destroved with one stroke.

What would have been a charming, delightful room, had shades of the cor- My kidneys and bladder caused lots rect color been used, is turned into an unattractive and depressing room. Yet too many people do not realize the

This feature of the room-window shades—demands just as careful study as does the background or wall, the floor and the furniture. In fact, you might go further and say, with truth, that it is the most important of them all. There are today so many different colors and so carefully composed, that it is a very easy matter to visit a decorator's shop and find exactly what you want at a reasonable expense. An intelligent selection guided by an expert's hand will cause shades to blend with the drapes and fur-to Have Modern Style Just as the days of the old-fashioned coal heaters, washtubs and carpet sweepers are in the decline, so way to progress, and that crude necessity is the uncovered radiator.

Engineers realize this great need of a humidifier in rooms equipped with radiators designed a cabinet that has proven an artistic, as well as useful piece of furniture; also as being an article of beauty and scientific construction.

In taking the radiator cover from the artistic standpoint only, a person can procure several designs and finishes to suit almost any period design and color scheme, but this is not all that is desired in a radiator cover. When the question of radiator covers comes up it will be well to contemplate many things that are vital in the real function of the radiator cover. First of all, inquire what material is used in the cover. Any sheet metal pieced together and painted or bronzed may be a radiator cover, but not an essential radiator cabinet or shield.

FEEDING AND CARE OF DAIRY CATTLE

Pays to Feed Good Cow Liberally and Individually.

"Feeding and Care of Dairy Cattle" is the subject of a new bulletin just published for distribution to interested dairymen and farmers by the Colorado Agricultural College Extension service.

The bulletin was written by B. W. Fairbanks, associate professor of animal husbandry, and C. A. Smith, extension dairyman at the college.

Under the heading, "Feeding for Milk Production," it is emphasized in the pamphlet that it pays to feed a good dairy cow liberally, to feed cows individually, to make good use of roughages, to feed succulent feeds, to feed feeds that are palatable, to feed a variety of feeds and supply plenty of fresh, pure water.

Other main divisions of the bullletin include such phases of feeding and care of dairy cattle as principles of dairy-cow nutrition, feeds for dairy cows, nitrogenous concentrates, nitrogenous roughages, carbonaceous roughages, succulent feeds, pastures, readymixed commercial feeds, summer feeding of dairy cows, feeding and management of cows on official test, raising, the dairy calf on skim milk and on skim milk substitutes, growing out the dairy heifer, care and management of the dairy bull and selecting the grain ration for the dairy cow.

Several different grain rations are outlined. Vitamine content of various feeds is shown, together with a table showing the cost of 100 pounds of digestible protein. Anyone desiring a free copy of this bulletin may obtain it by writing to the extension service of the college.

Contamination of Milk

Quite Easy to Prevent From the act of milking, as well as from any subsequent handling, milk may become contaminated. If the udder and flanks of the cow are covered with dirt from yard or stable, the process of milking will dislodge a greater or less amount of this filth, causing it to fall into the milk pail. Everything that comes into contact with the milk, such as pails, strainers, cans, etc., may be a source of trouble if not kept clean and dry. Milking with wet hands always results in contamination of the milk and should not be practiced. The flanks and udders of the cows should be carefully wiped with a damp cloth before milking in order to remove dust and dirt which would otherwise fall into the milk.

The cows should not be groomed. bedded or fed just prior to milking, because by so doing the air becomes laden with dust, which gets into the

Shade Is Important for

Dairy Cows on Hot Days Dairy cows may suffer during the hot summer days if no shade is pro-

When pasture is abundant, it is the nature of cattle to feed during the cool part of the day or at night and to lie in the shade during the hot part of the day, therefore every permanent pasture should have enough shade to accommodate its cattle.

Various trees may be planted for this purpose. They must be protected at all times so that live stock cannot tramp closer than five to six feet from the trees or they may be killed. Four posts should be set and a fence built about each tree. They should be planted on land which has good surface drainage so that mudholes wiil not be found during rainy weather. Cows should not be salted under such Shade trees on too high land or close to a wire fence may invite loss from lightning.

Producing Cow in Need of a Grain Supplement Should grain be fed to dairy cows on pasture? Since spring and sum mer grass is relatively low in nutrients, a cow producing 25 to 30 pounds of milk per day must eat about 150 to 300 pounds of grass to get enough feed for her daily requirements. Since this is practically impossible, a grain supplement must be given. For cows producing 30 to 35 pounds of milk per day, a mixture of the ordinary farm grains, such as oats, corn, wheat bran. and barley fed at the rate of 1 pound of grain to 4 to 6 pounds of milk produced per day will be sufficient. For cows producing more than 35 pounds of milk per day, the ration should contain one high protein concentrate.

Digestibility of Frad

Experiments with dairy cows which have been conducted by the Ohio experiment station indicates that most of the dairy rations are not as digestible as generally considered. Rations which were low in protein seemed to depress the digestibility more than rations which had a higher protein content. However, there was considerable variation in rations that had similar amounts of protein. Low di gestibility did not always indicate reduced efficiency in the ration.

FIRST TROUSERS FOR LITTLE BOY

May Be Made to Train Him in Self-Reliance.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The clothes worn by a little boy, between two and three years old, may be made to help train him in self-reliance if carefully designed. If he is obliged always to run to some older person to be dressed, buttoned and unbuttoned, he does not develop the independence that he should have as he comes into contact with other children and people outside of the family circle. Being able to do things for oneself is a great source of self-confidence. It is also a convenience to any mother to have her child able to dress himself without her help and go to the toilet alone. He soon begins to take pride in selecting what he wishes to wear, and at this stage can be taught very readily to take care of his clothes, both when he wears them and when they ought to be put away or laid out, ready for another day. In the past, one of the greatest obstacles to complete independence encountered by the small boy has been the complicated system of buttons and belts around his waist. There seems to be no reason why boys' trousers should have so many buttons and openings. And in different suits they may be in different places, so that the special manipulation of each suit has to be learned.

After studying the faults of boys' suits as made heretofore and the ways to remedy them, the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has designed a number of practical suits which overcome some of the most undesirable features. It is suggested that until a little boy has learned to solve the problem of how to fasten his own things, the same basic design be used for all his trousers so that buttons and buttonholes will always be in the same convenient place. Variety may be obtained by slight changes in detail, forms of soy bean flour prepared for color, material, and so on. Simple front openings are recommended, with buttons and buttonholes that are easily manipulated and uniform in size.

For a very small boy who wears the Oliver Twist type of suit which has the trousers buttoned to the blouse, a simple and satisfactory design is shown in the picture. The trouser leg is cut without a side seam and the placket, instead of being on the side is slanted forward to make a front drop. The plackets are finished to simulate welt pockets with a fairly wide underlap. The front section laps over the back in these trousers, but only four buttons are used, and they are so accessible that the little boy will have no trouble in buttoning them correctly. This location, of the buttons is especially good in the case of a boy who likes to climb because buttons on the side seams often cause binding and are frequently torn off as a result. As in all the trousers designed by the clothing specialists of the bureau, these are above the knee and are roomy enough to be comfortable, especially in the seat. The blouse illustrated has several good points. The simulated collar is stitched flat and so are the trimming bands on the sleeves, which are purposely made very short. This gives greater freedom and does not interfere with the bend of the elbow. A printed fabric with a small pattern in colors harmonizing with the plain color of the trousers and trimming is appropriate for a boy between two and three, but unfigured materials may be used if preferred.

HINTS ON USING LEFTOVER RICE

Several Ways of Taking Care of Cold Material.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States Department of Agriculture recommends some of the following ways of using cold cooked

Cold rice, or rice reheated by steaming, may be used as a breakfast dish with sugar and cream, with stewed fruits with baked or coddled apples. Rice reheated by steaming may be served on a platter surrounded with carrots and peas, or turned over in browned butter or other fat.

Rice may be combined with vegetables and served cold with cheese sauce or mayonnaise as a salad.

Rice may be used for thickening soups, or in scalloped dishes instead of bread crumbs, or combined with chopped meat and seasoned with onion, parsley, or celery seed and made into croquettes.

Rice mixed with a little chopped meat and green pepper or celery makes a good stuffing for tomatoes or baked fish, or to place between two steaks of fish for baking.

The tougher cuts of meat may be combined in stews with leftover rice. Rice may be recooked in milk, and a little butter or other fat and sugar added. This makes a nourishing dish for children or invalids.

Rice scalloped with white sauce in which chopped or grated cheese has been melted, makes a substantial and appetizing dish suitable for luncheon for supper.

Water from cooked rice may be used in soups, for the liquid in scalloped dishes, or for starching sheer mate-

Soy Beans Are Becoming

Popular as Table Food Soy beans, long considered in this country as feed fit for live stock only, are gradually finding a place on the American table. Soy beans have been utilized for many centuries by the people of the oriental countries in the preparation of numerous fresh, fermented, and dried food products.

Extensive experiments in North America and Europe indicate the value of soy beans as the basis of food for persons requiring a low starch diet, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and for many years food companies have had on the market persons requiring a diet of this kind. Investigations have shown that soy bean flour as a gruel is a most valuable food for infents.

Way of Mending

When men's or boys' summer underwear tears at the armscye across the back, sewing the tear up means you will have to do it after every wearing. A better way is to cut straight across the back of the garment to the other armseye and insert a piece of thin muslin or dimity about two inches wide, using a double seam. Then hem the inserted piece at the armscyes and your trouble is ended for that part of the garment.

BROILED HUTCH-RAISED RABBIT IS FINE

Tender, Sweet-Fleshed Domestic Rabbit Broiled.

(Prepared by the United States Department | sult the meat is delicate in flavor and of Agriculture.) Broiled chicken-why not broiled rabbit? Perhaps you have seen lately in your local market some of the domestic or hutch-raised rabbits that are being extensively produced from West to East. You have wondered whether the family would like them; the

"gamy" flavor of wild rabbit was not especially popular. Without hesitation you can experiment with some of these tender, sweetfleshed domestic rabbits. The meat can best be compared to that of chicken, and it is cooked in all the ways chicken is cooked. Get a young rabbit to try, and broil it. Put it on the table without comment and some members of the family will suppose they are eating chicken. These hutch-raised rabbits eat rolled cereals, alfaltender in texture. They may be eaten at any time of the year.

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for broiling a rabbit:

Wipe the rabbit with a clean damp cloth, sprinkle it with salt, pepper and flour. Place whole, back down, on a rack in a flat baking pan. Place generous pieces of butter in the hollow places. Cook in a moderately hot oven (375 to 400 degress Fahrenheit) for 40 to 50 minutes, or until tender. Turn the rabbit over, baste with pan drippings and place under the flame of the broiling oven to brown. Cut and serve the broiled rabbit on a hot platter and pour over it the drippings mixed with one tablespoonful of finely fa hay and leafy vegetables. As a re- chopped parsley.
