NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Huge Crop Losses Due to Drought Boost Prices and Rouse Government.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD PROTRACTED drought and excessively hot weather brought to the farmers of the United States a mixture of good and evil and aroused the administration to the consideration of relief measures beyond those contemplated by the act creating the federal farm board.

Both government and private crop reports led to estimates that the new corn crop had been damaged to the extent of at least 500,000,000 bushels, and the rains that fell throughout much of the corn belt during the week were said to have come too late to have much influence on the yield since pollination had failed.

Private reports by one of the leading experts of the Middle West indicated that a large part of the crop was beyond any material recovery. In Ohio the corn was deteriorating rapidly, and in southern Indiana it was badly damaged. In Illinois the situation was at its worst in the southern part of the state. The crop in northern and western Kentucky was said to be entirely ruined, and the condition in Missouri and Iowa was not much better. Throughout the whole drought region, also, pasturage and all fodder crops were burned up to an alarming extent.

On the other hand, these bad crop prospects led to a sensational rise in the prices of grain on the exchanges, and within a few days there was an estimated increase of about $650,000,-000 in the theoretical value of farmers' products. The market in Chicago went wild and corn led in the swift advance, followed by wheat and the other grains. For the first time in five years the public came in on a big scale, and there were heavy buying orders from foreign countries. It was believed there would be a heavy substitution of wheat, oats, rye and barfley for corn as live stock feed, and consequently the demand for those grains was large. Also the estimates of the Canadian wheat crop were slashed as a result of damage by drought, heat and black rust. The wield of rye in Europe, exclusive of Russia, will be far below normal, and the Prussian oats crop is greatly reduced.

barges and towboats were stuck on sandbars and mud flats all along the Father of Waters. At the same time the levels of Lakes Michigan, Superior and Huron were higher; which led commentators on the lake diversion controversy to think that the policy of the government has resulted in giving the citizens who use the Great Lakes more water than they need, at the same time depriving the manufacturers and farmers of the Mississippi valley of sufficient water to float their cargoes to the sea.

WHEAT prices and drought did not have much effect on the Republican primaries in Kansas as many persons had expected. Gov. Clyde M. Reed, who sought to champion the cause of the farmers and severely criticized the policies of the federal farm board, was defeated for renomination by Frank Haucke, farmer, World war veteran, and former state commander of the American Legion. Senator Henry J. Allen, who was appointed by Governor Reed and is a staunch supporter of the Hoover administration, was nominated for the senate term ending in 1933, and Senator Capper was unopposed for re-nomination for the long term. On the Democratic ticket Harry H. Woodring will oppose Haucke for the governorship, and Jonathan M. Davis, former governor, will try to defeat Senator Capper.

S OUTHERNERS who voted for Hoo-ver in 1928, through Horace Mann, formally announced their rebellion against the administration of southern federal patronage and political affairs generally by Postmaster Walter H. Brown. Mr. Mann's statement, which was issued on the eve of a meeting of the Republican national executive committee in Washington, outlined plans adopted by a group of prominent southern Hoovercrats to incorporate in "all-southern" Republican organization and throw off the yoke of northern "patronage carpet-baggers"

Japan also was in action, sending a number of destroyers with landing parties of marines to Hankow, Kiukiang and other river ports threatened by Communist invasion. The Nationalist government had admitted its inability to guarantee protection for foreign residents of Hankow, though it was sending additional troops to that region and had re-occupied Changsha. The Communists were still entrenched in the hills about the city and were continuing their sanguinary course, having already slain two thousand Chinese residents of the place and captured four thousand. The Farm Produce Co.

PRESIDENT HOOVER conferred with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde on plans for a government program to aid the farmers threatened with ruin by the drought, and he asked both Mr. Hyde and Chairman Legge of the farm board to make recommendations within a few days. It was stated at the White House that the President had received prompt and favorable response to his appeal to railroad executives for co-operation in reducing rail rates for the emergency movement of live stock and feed in the stricken areas.

The farm loan board said it was willing to do all possible to extend credit through the intermediate credit banks, the farm land banks and joint stock land banks. From congressional quarters came many requests for help, and to those was added the offer of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, to undertake a refund by congress to the farm board if the latter would divert all its available funds to drought relief. "The measures of assistance that the farm board and the other agencies of the federal government can and should undertake are being determined," said Mr. Hoover. "It is too early to determine the precise character of relief; much depends upon the further spread of the drought; but no stone will be left unturned by the federal government in giving assistance to local authorities."

IN OTHER ways the drought had serious results.' There were numerous destructive forest fires in both the West and the East; the milk shortage in many regions was serious; and the water in the staff of the army to succeed Maj. Gen.

jackers.' Hoovercrats representing ten southern states had met in conference in Savannah and adopted resolutions expressing resentment at the refusal of the administration to recognize Mann's services and leadership. They agreed to meet again in Atlanta on August 15 to perfect their organization. Because of the heavy Hoover vote in the South in 1928, the ten states represented in the Savannah conference will be entitled to 267 delegates in the 1932 Republican convention, 100 more than they were allowed in the Kansas City convention.

The Republican executive committee accepted the resignation of Claudius M. Huston as national chairman and elected Senator Fess as his successor. Robert H. Lucas was made executive director, and he quits his post as internal revenue commissioner to give his full time to the work.

 $G^{\rm REAT}$  interest was felt in a conference which Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York held with John J. Raskob, former Gov. Al Smith and other party leaders. It was understood that Mr. Roosevelt would seek re-election on a "dripping-wet" platform and would make a leading issue of public electricity rates. The belief was that Mr. Smith would place Mr. Roosevelt in nomination at the state convention.

Republicans of New York state seem badly split as to the liquor question. The wets, led by former Sen-ator James W. Wadsworth, insist upon a declaration for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, declaring they will accept no compromise. The drys. on the other hand, are as firm in their stand and threaten to form a new dry party if the wet plank is adopted.

BEFORE a crowd of 5,000 persons, two negroes were lynched by a mob in Marion, Ind. They had been arrested for murdering a white man and attacking his girl companion, and were said to have confessed. The sheriff, police and fire department, tried in vain to scatter the lynchers with tear bombs and fire hose streams.

tension veterinarian, University farm, St. Paul. It may also be brought on by milling of sheep in dusty corrals. Affected sheep have a watery discharge from the nose which later becomes yellow, thick and stringy. The dried pus sticks and mats up the wool about the nose and mouth. The eyes are inflamed and watery and the sheep may have difficulty in breathing and loss of appetite. In severe cases, pneumonia may develop, followed by exhaustion and death.

For treatment, provide the sick sheep with a clean shelter, free from drafts, and bedded deeply with dry straw. Very weak animals may be given a dose of strong black coffee as a stimulant. Bathe the eyes and wash out the nose with a solution of boric acid which may be made by dissolving about a tablespoonful of powdered boric acid in two quarts of warm water. If a nose syringe or spray is available, the boric acid solution, or one containing camphor or oil of eucalyptus, may be sprayed directly into the nostrils. The inhalation of various fumes commonly recommended for treatment of similar conditions in man are not satisfactory. Good care, clean forage that is free from dust, plenty of water, and attentive nursing will usually effect a cure, according to Doctor Billings, who says the shepherd will have to be patient and repeat the eye bathing and nostril washing at least once a day until the cure is complete.

Pastures and Roughages

Are Most Economical The liberal use of pastures and roughages has cut the cost of keeping work horses materially on Webster county,

Iowa, farms, according to Iowa State college at Ames. Farmers who fed horses largely on grass and roughages had feed bills of $45 or less while farmers who saved the pasture and hay and fed mostly grain had feed bills of considerably more, one amounting to $96. These figures were gathered from records of farm account keepers. The lowest average cost of keeping horses was $33 but in this case a tractor and a truck did most of the of heavy work. The four farmers who kept the feed costs down lowest averaged $20 grain, $4 worth of hay, $11 for pasture, and allowed the horses free access to the straw pile. The four farmers who had the highest

The fact is that we have charming actors and actresses, but not "great" actors and actresses.

Rachel, born in Switzerland, daughter of a Jewish peddler, possessed genius that could not be extracted from all the American actresses that have ever lived.

Jean Tasserand, to prove that he loved a girl, wrote her a farewell note, jumped to his death from an airplane, his broken body landing in the garden of his mother's home. Fools will make a hero of him. He of all time," and many of them are than twenty full months after the introduction of this type. Just as Chevrolet led the world in four cylinder car production during the last two years that the company built that type, so now it assumes leadership in the six cylinder field by having built nearly five times as many sixes in twenty motnhs as any other manufacturer in the history of

he industry. The two millionth six-a coachcolled off the line at Flint with Chevcolet and General Motors executives in attendance to witness the final assembly of the car, for which no further ceremonies were planned. The brief time required by Chevro-

PLANEMAKERS PLAN HONEST AD CAMPAIGN

Tests Under Standardized Code Are Arranged.

Chicago .- What is termed by manufacturers "one of the most important steps in stabilizing the aviation industry" has been taken by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, an association of the large planemakers, in arranging for tests of all aircraft under a standardized performance code in order that the extravagant claims made in advertising in technical and trade publications may be curbed, says David Rotroff in the Chicago News. The first of these thing anyway, whether we ride the tests was made at Roosevelt field pesky thing or not-it has stimulated on Long Island, where a Curtiss Ro- a movement all over the country for bin, equipped with a Challenger en- better roads. gine, was submitted to the observations of representatives of eight universities offering courses in aerodynamics and the theory of flight and union of the 86th New York regiwith faculties of highly trained scientists fitted to conduct such tests.

These trial flights laid the groundwork for a campaign within the industry to certify the performance of airplanes and to guarantee truth in advertising statements of manufacturers. Heretofore the purchaser has had to depend entirely on the statements of manufacturers and dealers, it is explained, whereas hereafter the air transport man and the private purchaser will know what types of craft have been certified by the examining board and need only consult its official records, which will be issued at intervals.

Will Give Certificates.

The new code provides that a manufacturer may have his plane certified in high speed, climb to 10,000 feet, ceiling, angle of initial climb, length of takeoff, time of takeoff and landing run and speed under power or without. When the ship has been tested with calibrated instruments the manufacturer will have certified figures to produce, vouched for by a recognized, well-equipped university laboratory.

Certificates will be awarded the manufacturer, showing the exact performance, and the purchaser will have available the certificates in making his selection. This move will do much, it is said, to eliminate the manufacturer who has been marketing his product on unscrupulous advertising which has resulted frequently in dissatisfaction on the part of the purchaser and occasionally has resulted in fatalities when the owner of the new ship attempted to perform with it some of the feats described in the advertising matter.

New Types Needed. Persistence in airplane styles has done much to retard progress in developing speed and cruising reliability, according to some engineers, who insist that radical departures or modifications of present designs will be necessary before needed advances can be made. Engine design has, in particular, shown a tendency toward copy and not toward ingenuity in the last few years, they say, and supercharging devices, reduction gears, in verted engines and the greater use of motors of the Diesel type, wherein cruder and less expensive fuels may must be develo Only timid advances have been made, they further point out, in the use of new designs of wing structure and fuselage shapes. The tendency abroad is toward the thick flying wing, almost devoid of the standardized fuselage of the last fifteen years. Several attempts toward ships of that type have been made in America, notably the Northrop flying wing, an allmetal ship produced in the Boeing factories at Seattle. This plane is almost a pure type wing and test flights with it are said to promise much.

At the commencement exercises Tuesday at the Michigan Agricultural College, Mr. Masselink was awarded a gold medal for being the best debater in the oratorical contest of Aug. 2. The Cass City School may well look forward to a very prosperous year with such a principal at the helm.

Skyliners' Port May

Be on Land of G. W. Washington .- Skyliners bridging the Atlantic in commercial service may base on ancestral homelands of George Washington.

Hybla valley, table-smooth region of which part was cultivated and planted with trees by Washington as a Virginia gentleman farmer, is the site favored by Dr. Hugo Eckener for the American terminal of the proposed transoceanic dirigible line.

The historic spot, edged with windbreaking hills and flanked on one side by a house built in prerevolutionary times by George Mason, colonial political leader, is nearly midway between Mount Vernon and Alexandria and ten miles from Washington.

Selection of the site would link the oldest and newest experiments in America with lighter-than-air craft. One hundred and thirty-seven years ago Washington signed a passport for the French aeronaut, Blanchard, and witnessed his balloon ascension in Philadelphia, the first flight in the western hemisphere.

Planning Air Route

Britain to America London.-Fifteen young explorers, whose average age is only twentythree years, sailed from London aboard the ship Quest for Greenland and Iceland. The purpose of the voyage is to obtain information with a view to establishing an air route from England to America across the Arctic regions with only 300 miles over the sea.

H. G. Watkins, twenty-three-year-old explorer, is leader of the expedition. His 14 companions are all about the same age and each is a specialist.

Example of Colonial Type of Home That Has Many Pleasing Features

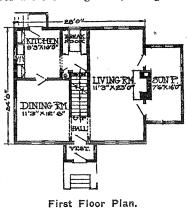

We are sure you will agree that this fine example of the colonial design is worth a second look, and don't overlook the floor plan with its center hall and large sun room off the living room. The entrance is one of the best colonial designs.

By W. A. RADFORD Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these sub-jects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There are many variations of the colonial type home, but the one shown in the accompanying illustration is about as near the true colonial as it is possible to get. The only variation from the colonial in this home is the addition of the sun porch at the right. Without this porch this home is exactly the type that will be found in so many New England villages.

This is a two-gable, rectangular house, 28 feet by 24 feet. On the first floor are the living room, dining room and kitchen, and on the second floor three bedrooms and bath. The entrance door is directly in the center of the house with the living room at the right of the hall and the dining room at the left.

left of the entrance hall is the dining room the same width as the living room and 12 feet 6 inches deep. At the back is the kitchen, 9 feet 3 inches by 10 feet with a breakfast room adjoining.

Colonial stairs run out of the entrance hall to the second floor. There are three bedrooms, two at the front and one at the back and a bathroom all opening off the hall.

The house is built of frame set on a concrete foundation with a basement of the same dimensions as the house proper. An attractive feature of the home is the entry way, which is enclosed. The platform and steps of brick lead to it. For prospective

ROUND WORMS IN PIGS EXPENSIVE

Mistaken by Some Growers for Thumps or Influenza.

What the hog raiser calls thumps, influenza, or pneumonia is usually worms. Round worms in pigs cost hog growers of eastern Carolina more money than any other one thing.

"There is only one way to handle this trouble," says W. V. Hays, swine extension specialist at the North Carolina state college. "Use only movable farrowing houses and self feeders. Rake up all the litter, bedding and other trash in the lots and burn if. Turn the lot with a turn plow. Sow some soy beans for the sows and pigs to graze upon in the fall and then plant rye and crimson clover or vetch for winter and spring grazing." Mr. Hays says before the sow is put into farrowing quarters, clean them out well and scrub with a solution made of one pound of lye to thirty gallons of boiling water. Wash the sow's sides and udder with warm. soapy water before putting her into the clean quarters and then keep the pigs on clean ground where they cannot suffer from worms. To do this will aid the grower in raising the same number of pigs from one-third less brood sows. This is more economical and also prevents runts. It helps to give uniform thrifty pigs coming along six weeks earlier than where they are raised in dirty, worm-infested guarters. Such a system also works in well with the Shay method of breeding and feeding and helps the grower to have his animals fat and ready for the high markets in April and September. Mr. Hays says the co-operative carlot shipments of hogs are increasing where these sanitation suggestions are followed. In Craven county nearly all of the growers and shippers are following a rigid system of sanitation both in the breeding lots and the fattening pens. The results are seen in ## a better control of worms, he declares.

Obsolete Animals Are Named by Dr. Mohler In order to keep abreast of the times the live stock industry must adopt 1930 models of doing business. Dr. J. R. Mohler of the United States Department of Agriculture stated recently. Doctor Mohler described three types of obsolete animals as follows: 1. Those that fail to repay cost of maintenance.

2. Scrub and grade sires. 3. Animals affected with communicable diseases.

dealers have put before home owners. The sale or rent value of an old home may be greatly increased by improving its appearance and equipping it with modern conveniences. The increased value is considerably greater than the cost of making the improvements.

People not able or willing to pay for the construction of a new house may have their old home modern in appearance and convenience for but a part of the cost of a new building.

Most old homes hold a hidden treasure-sound lumber and sturdy construction. The sound lumber in an old house is well seasoned. Architects and contractors often pay a premium for the lumber taken from old buildings for use in building apartments and other structures. Most old houses are of real good construction-a value that the owner would be wise in taking advantage of.

Many old homes have an unsatisfactory arrangement of rooms, doors and windows. These features can be made to the owner's liking by modernizing. It is not necessary to do all of the modernizing work on a house at one time, although this usually is desirable. The owner can determine on the work he wants done and have it completed step by step as he is able to pay for it. A nondescript type of house can be changed into a good architectural type, such as an English cottage, one of the colonial types or an adaptation of one of these styles. A house may be modernized easily. without impairing the strength of any part.

Some owners of old homes want to keep them because of sentimental attachment. By modernizing they can retain that to which sentiment is attached and at the same time have modern conveniences and attractiveness.

Owners of some old homes would like to have them modernized because of their contrast to the modern houses which have been built around them. An old home can be made absolutely new in appearance, with no indications that it has been made over. Unused attic and basement space can be converted into additional bed-

CRUDE OIL WILL ERADICATE MANGE

Water in Wallow Covered With Heavy Film.

Mange, which has been reported as infesting hogs in several localities. may be treated most effectively by applications of crude petroleum, fuel oil, coal-tar dip or lime-and-sulphur dip, says Dr. R. F. Bourne of the veterinary department of the Colorado Agricultural college.

"The methods used in applying such preparations include dipping, spraying, hand dressing or the use of medicated wallows," Doctor Bourne says. "Cement wallows which provide for three or four inches of liquid with allowance for a rise in level when the pigs are occupying them, have proved satisfactory in warm weather. Wallows should be charged with water only until the pigs become accustomed to using them. Then, for a day or two, the water may be covered with a heavy film of crude oil. This routine should be repeated as often as neces sary to control the disease.

"Wallows should be in a shaded place to avoid the water becoming too warm to be inviting. Spraying with fuel oil or applying it with a garden sprinkling can, in which the openings have been enlarged, often gives relief at less expense.

"Mange in hogs resembles itch or mange in other animals, and is caused by a similar minute mite which lives exclusively upon and within the skin of hogs, although sometimes temporarily affecting other animals and man. The females measure only about one-fiftieth of an inch in length while the males are still smaller.

"The female burrows into the skin and travels for a considerable distance under the surface by excavating a tunnel within which her eggs are deposited. This migration causes intense itching and results in much scratching and rubbing, which together with the direct effects of the invasion, causes loss of hair, thickened, inflamed, and often furrowed and scabby lesions of the skin.

"The condition spreads to other hogs by contact and probably also by infested pens, the mites being able to live away from their host for several weeks. In some cases the progress of the disease is rapid and the effects severe, while in other instances the disease is only mildly irritating and spreads slowly. It is usually most noticeable in unthrifty animals or in those kept in unsanitary, crowded tics in Washington disclosed that a quarters."

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On ac-count of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, with-out doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to Wil-liam A. Radford, No. 407 South Dear-born Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Building materials, together with many other commodities, are relatively low in price now, so that farmers who have delayed erecting new buildings can go ahead with the assurance that costs probably will not be less in a number of years. Farm building since the war has been neglected because of high prices of materials and abor. The present scale of costs coueled with the fact that modern farm buildings are profitable investments should cause a resumption in the erecion of new farm improvements.

Losses in Sheep From

Acidosis Is Puzzling Paralysis of pregnant ewes, followed -shortly afterward-by death, has become a problem with sheepmen in the Middle West.

The disease is caused by an acidosis; the indirect cause is the condition of the ewes being too fat and not having enough exercise. The ewe becomes lame, gets weak, and finally collapses in a paralyzed condition. Two or three days later, she dies.

Post mortem examination usually shows that the uterus contains twin lambs, or triplets.

To prevent acidosis, cut down the feed, provide exercise, and feed a laxative feed-not dry feed. Each ewe suspected of being affected with this disease should receive a quarter pound of epsom salts, dissolved in a pint of water and administered as a drench. Alfalfa hay might well be used in place of dry fodder.

Animals to Cull

In the fall of the year the live stock raiser should take an inventory, particularly to determine which animals he will cull out to fatten for market. Old animals that have outlived their usefulness should be disposed of. It costs more to feed and house live stock during the winter months, and this expense can be lessened if none but the most useful animals are kept. Shy breeders, old stock with poor teeth, and the females which are not good mothers should be sent to market.

"Flying Fort" May Be Built by Uncle Sam

Belleville, Ill.-A "flying fort," carrying a 37-millimeter gun, two air planes, ten machine guns and from 5,000 to 15,000 pounds of bombs, will be constructed at Scott field here, if congress approves a bill for construction of a new metal dirigible, according to announcement here.

Col. John A. Paegelow, commandant of the field, has outlined plans for construction of the dirigible. The projected craft will be 547.2 feet long. Eight engines of 4,800 total horse power would give the dirigible a maximum speed of 100 miles an hour with a cruising range of 4,400 miles. While construction of the dirigible would be essentially a military project, Colonel Paegelow said it would serve such useful peace-time purposes as aiding in Mississippi flood-relier work and making a detailed aerial map of the Mississippi valley.

Idaho Ranchman Uses Plane to Herd Sheep

Anderson owns three planes which he uses to visit his different sheep camps, many miles apart, to which he takes supplies for his sheep herders. The long journeys across mountains and plains, to the various sheep camps which require days for wagons and even trucks can be made by airplane in a few nours. The sheep have

Worth Two Million Milwaukee.—Aproximately $2,500,000 is invested in aviation fields and equipment in Wisconsin, according to a survey completed by the Milwaukee

Chamber of Commerce. It is shown that there are 68 air fields, of which 14 are established airports, 18 landing fields with 36 emergency fields. The largest and best equipped fields are the Milwaukee county airport, the chamber of commerce report said, and the Curtiss airport in Milwaukee county. Each represents an investment of $500,000, the report There are 18 municipally owned fields in the state, 45 privately owned and five provided by the Department of Commerce.

Whether a person is building or renovating, one is nearly always confronted with the problem of dark ooms.

Brighten Up Dark Rooms

The northern exposure needs sunlight, the eastern exposure warmth of tone. Even the western and southern exposures may often have too little light from a too small window or an obstruction of sunshine by neighboring buildings. Occasionally there will even be a windowless room.

The last problem is a common one in the older parts of cities, where the dark "middle room" of the house is a usual architectural feature. The interesting manner in which this situation has been handled in one such home is worthy of the attention of anyone who would like to make sunlight for a sunless room.

The walls are painted a warm cream, while the woodwork, which fills an entire side of the room with series of charming little cupboards, is ivory white.

The double doors leading to the passage which turns onto the patio are half of glass, as are those leading on the other side of the living room. Both are hung with gold-colored gauze, through which the light filters with a suggestion of sun. Glittering brass candlesticks and a gilt china bowl on the table, repeat this suggestion.

Not only is a light color used for this room, but a paint carefully selected for finish. A glossy surface generally reflects more light than a dull one, and while the walls and woodwork need not necessarily have a high gloss finish, the flat finish, which always absorbs a certain amount of light, must be avoided in such a situation.

In every detail, where it can profitably be done-in hue, value and what may here be referred to as textureeverything in this treatment is subordinated to light making. The success may be estimated to some degree by the electric light fixtures chosen. Two small fixtures suffice, proving the luminous qualities of the finish for artificial light.

Of course, this problem of a windowless room is not a particularly common one in most parts of the country, but there is seldom to be found a house or an apartment that has not some poorly lighted place. Hallways, bathrooms and kitchens frequently achieve astounding results. A light, bright color should always be used. Where sunlight is lacking, it is particularly essential to provide the missing warmth of tone.

For this purpose no color is better suited than yellow. Deep ivory, buff and rose are also warm colors, and well adapted to a northern or eastern exposure. The darker the room the paler should be the shade selected.

For a very dark room a pale yellow or cream has excellent light-reflecting properties. The effect of the glossy and the flat finish is also worth remembering.

Roofs No Longer Mere

Covering Over the Home The day has passed when the roof of a home is regarded as the covering over four walls and nothing more. The roof is an important part of the house exterior and should have the same:architectural treatment and consideration as the rest of the house. Today roofs are recognized as comprising more than a mere necessity (a necessary expense) in house construction: they are character-endowing beauty-enhancing features, fitting in with particular types of architecture, yet losing none of their usefulness, says a statement issued by a wellknown architect.

"Progress in roof designing has been steady," the statement goes on. "In the last decade some particularly noteworthy strides have been made. The departure from the purely utilitarian field began in all probability with the gradual assumption of broken lines and the consequent elimination of some of the oversevere regularity."

Harmonious Effect Should

Be in Trim and Walls The trim should, if possible, be of the same hue (color) as the walls. In times past we thought that the trim should form a harmonious unity with the walls. If the trim must be of a different hue we should take care that the brightness or value is the same Otherwise there would be a suggestion of hard and inconsistent lines. which in turn would produce a feeling of restlessness.
