WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In a short program, Rev. Wm/Curtis gave a brief talk in which he spoke gracious words of comfort and cheer, and music by B. A. Elliott and son was greatly enjoyed. Allen Barnes, a former neighbor of the Seeger family, gave an interesting talk on early days in which he praised Mr. and Mrs. Seeger as "dear old neighbors." The bride and groom of fifty years ago were the recipients of baskets and boquets of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Seeger were married in Lancaster, New York, on Oct. 7, 1880. Forty-four years ago, they moved to a farm in Greenleaf township, four miles east and two miles north of Cass City, where they resided until 13 years ago when they built their fine residence on North Seeger St., Cass City, where they now reside. A son, John, lives on the old homestead. Other children are George, Albert and Andrew Seeger, Mrs. Charles A. McCaslin and Mrs. Sam Popham, all of Cass City, and Mrs. Blake Sachett of Detroit. One son, William, passed away 16 years ago and a son, Arthur, gave his life in France during the World War.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Seeger are 72 years of age. Mrs. Seeger enjoys good health but Mr. Seeger has been ll for over a year and is confined to his home all of the time.

ELLINGTON AND NOVESTA.

The linest time on the form by far
Was after the sun went down,
Olong in September-when autumn leaves
Were yellow and russet brown;
When twittering cables of blackbirds flew
Ocross the gray twilight sky;
Ond tasset and blossom both told the tale
That Summer had drifted by.

Then over the ranks of the dead-ripe corn
Hung low the round Harvest Moon,
While up in its tower, the old windmill crooned its mellow and home-like tune.
Then down by the barn in the old corral.

Contented, the cattle lay

And chewed their cuds while the cotton-tails

Skipped round the new ricks of hay.

The bull frogs were still in the swamp at last, And deep in the stacks of grain. The chorus of crickets and katydids

Played on in a minor strain.

And dull was the eye or the ear that failed To catch in the twilight there,
The wonderful message of peace that rode The wings of the autumn air.

17 YEAR SIEGE OF RHEUMATISM

Lady Thought She Was Hopeless Invalid before Master Medicine Gave New Health.

"I suffered from rheumatism for 17 years," said Mrs. Almina Attenberger, Route No. 4, Birmingham, Michigan. "The pains in my limbs were terrible. My right limb was almost paralyzed and it became impossible for me to walk. My liver, also, was in bad condition. In fact, it had bothered me since I was young. I had frequent dizzy spells and was unable to stoop, which hindered me greatly

Mrs. Almina Attenberger in my housework.

"Konjola gave me the first relief I have experienced in years. In a few week's time my rheumatism was entirely banished. I have no more dizzy spells or specks before my eyes, because my kidneys are now in a fine condition. Konjola gave me this wonderful health."

Many express amazement at the speed with which Konjola works. It loes, but a course of from six to eight bottles is strongly recommended. Konjola is both a medicine and a tonic, rich in up-building powers.

Konjola is sold in Cass City, Michigan, at Burke's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section .- Advertisement 10-10

How came it that this great man, without scientific study or preparation, was able to form a conception about our world that was hidden at that time from the world's most learned wise men and philosophers? One can account for it only on the theory that he was one of the closest observers and most originating thinkers that the race ever produced. He saw the things that other people did not see, and he reasoned with amazing accuracy as to what these observations meant.

One reason for the failure of many people to vote at elections, is always that it is not until election day or a few days previous, that they wake up to the fact that they want to vote. A very entertaining feature of the program was the presentation of the play "Wurzel Flummery" by the Hilltop Players, the high school dramatic club. FEEDING PULLETS FOR WINTER EGGS

*To Be Good Producers Fowls Should Be Well Developed.

The profit or loss in winter egg production of pullets depends upon the care and feeding they receive. For pullets to be good producers during the winter months they should be uniformly developed, have good frames, and be in good flesh before they begin to lay. It is therefore necessary that they receive a good ration which will fill them out and also store up an abundance of fat, according to H. M. Wells of the Colorado Agricultural col-

Feed a good growing mash or a laying mash that is supplemented with a grain mixture of two parts by weight of corn and one part of wheat, advises Wells. A laying pullet during the winter months will draw upon her reserve supply of fat and the feed she eats will go toward the development of eggs; otherwise if she does not have this fat reserve she will utilize the feed she consumes to supand only the surplus will go toward the production of eggs.

It would be profitable, if one has the room, to grade the pullets according are laying well developed, would be mended above. The next smaller fant. grade of pullets should be given all the growing mash they will consume, and this should be supplemented with a moist mash at noon. This moist mash consists of the growing mash moistened with milk to a crumbly consistency. By following this method, the more backward pullets will be brought into production before extreme cold weather sets in.

To secure the maximum results in production from pullets, it is advisable to keep them housed separately from the hens.

Air Outlets Prevent

Colds and Diseases

All poultry houses should have an air outlet from the highest point in the house, for without this air-vent moisture collects. The fresh air that enters the house becomes warm and rises, and as warm air holds more moisture than cold air can hold, it will cause dampness in the poultry house unless it has a chance to go out. Otherwise it condenses under the roof and drops to make the litter moist and to cause a damp hen-house, which leads to colds and other troubles for the birds and a gradual loss of vigor on their part and loss of money on the part of their owners.

These facts, and many others, on ways to house poultry at low cost are given in a Cornell bulletin, written by H. E. Botsford and sent free to poultrymen of New York. It tells how to remodel old buildings-even large disused harns-and how to construct new placing of the buildings. Try to plan out the ranch as it will be at the end of five to ten years' development, and put the first building where it should be at the end of that time.

Every building that must be moved is a dead load of effort, time and

Figure to save steps by having tasks that can be done going and coming, driveways that save using carts wheelbarrows and man power-and locate feed room centrally.

If water must be carried, try to cut down the distance and plan on running water as a part of the progression of plant.

Use Lice Powder

Body lice on hens are best treated by some good louse powder such as sodium fluoride, Persian insect powder, and a dozen more or less, good commercial powders. The main point is to get the powder clear to the skin To do this, hold the hen in the left hand, head downward. Force a small handful of powder, about the equivalent of a level teaspoonful in measure, through the long, soft feathers that cover the abdomen and clear down to the skin.

Needed Minerals

The Ohio experiment station has been doing some work of late years with minerals for poultry, with a very simple mineral mixture composed of raw bone meal finely ground, 60 parts. ground limestone 20 parts containing 95 per cent calcium carbonate, sodium chloride or salt, 20 parts.

The above named experiment station concludes that these are the mineral elements that are most needed for the most profitable production of eggs and health of the hen.

PLEASANT RIVER LIFE

David wandered up the Lebanon mountains and a Map person told him that the word meant white.

This he could understand because the walls of rock looked like white chalk, and the high peaks were covered with snow.

He met the Jordan river, rising on the foot of Mount Hermon who was wearing a cap of snow.

How very, very far he had wandered in his trip through the Map that had come to life!

"I wouldn't be considered much of a river in your country of wide, huge, mighty rivers," Jordan said, "but I have a pleasant life in my own way.

"Then I go down cascades, and my current is swift. I wind and I wind and as I take my journey of nearly two hundred and fifty miles I make a huge drop as I go to the Dead Sea. "I wouldn't advise you to stop there.'

"Why not?" David asked.

"There is a thick, terrible hot mist always over it, and there are so many insects. I doubt if you'd like it." "Thank you for telling me,"

"I'm not always so pleasant myself," continued Jordan. "Sometimes I widen and sometimes

"Down by the Dead Sea my waters look like milk and are salty—the Dead Sea is terribly salty."

"More so than the Great Salt lake?" David asked.

"Much more so," Jordan answered. "I'm below sea level there. "It's enough to make one's spirits drop and one's self too when one goes

Then he went off, quite by himself, toward the west, where he saw a sign which said "Cana in Galilee," and kept on a little further south until he came to Nazareth.

It was such a tiny distance.

The sun was setting as he came to Nazareth, setting over the old yellow limestone houses and then the stars came out, one by one, and David stretched out upon the ground to sleep while the stars shining over Nazareth shone over him too.
