Two New Members of Board of Education at Cass City to Be Chosen.

Next Monday, July 13, is the date of the annual school elections in districts in this section when some of the most important offices in the community will be filled. For many years, scant attention was paid to the selection of school officers, but of late years more interest has been taken and larger numbers have attended the annual school meetings.

Two new members will serve on the board of education at Cass City next term as the two men whose terms expire this year say they will not be canlidates to succeed themselves.

After a service of seven years as a nember of the board of education at Cass City, six years of which he served as president, Dr. S. B. Young has told his friends that he has "served his time" and under no circumstances will consider a return to the position. A. A. Ricker, who has been a member of the board for nine years, during a part of that period serving as secretary, is of the same opinion regarding himself.

Spain Goes Republican

Mr. Tunney in Russia If you had been alive on the day after Christopher Columbus discovered America, you would have talked about nothing less important, for at least twenty-four hours. Post and Gatty landed from a flight around the world in eight days fifteen hours and fifty-one minutes.

It is hard to realize what it means to fly across the Atlantic ocean and the European continent, over Siberia, on from Asia to Alaska, and back across the American continent to New York, all in less than nine days. The impossible has been made real.

The $250,000,000 "improved city" that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is constructing in the heart of New York will include an improvement on the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. Three city blocks will have their roofs covered with gardens, in which tenants may take the air and contemplate the power of money usefully employed.

Mr. Rockefeller's center is now called "Radio City," which is not the right name, although a magnificent radio building will be a conspicuous part of it.

The new buildings will contain many fine shops, and tenants, undoubtedly, to help their business will call their location "Rockefeller Center," and that is what the new and magnificent development should be called, offi-

Mr. Rockefeller has rendered an important public service by instructing his architects and builders not merely to erect magnificent buildings, but to show that improving a great city can be made to pay. He is setting an example, not building palaces to amuse himself, like a King Ludwig. His enterprise will encourage others, that need profits more than Mr. Rockefeller needs them, to do something new.

Spain votes republican, with seventeen killed in riots. The chauffeur of the duke of Alba is elected to parliament, the duke, a famous grandee of Spain, is out, and so is the king.

One disgraceful incident was the severe beating, in Madrid, of a priest accused of buying votes to be cast in favor of the monarchy.

Voters in Catalonia and in the Basque districts voted on strictly racial and local lines, which shows that the Spanish republic is not to be completely homogeneous.

France, Alone in Blocking Hoover Moratorium Plan, Is Warned by President-Feat of Globe-Circling Flyers.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

lon and Ambassador Edge negotiated with the French officials in Paris in the effort to reconcile the moratorium plans of Presi-Hoover and Premier Laval, and in Washington the President and Acting Secretary of State Castle Premier Laval were almost constantly at the American end of the transatlantic telephone line, coaching them and learning what progress they were making. At this writing the progress, if any, is small.

Premier Laval, who was confinually receiving the advice and assistance of Finance Minister Flandin and others, stood firmly on the position he had assumed, and the senate, by a vote of 197 to 5, backed him up, virtually giving him a free hand so long as he did not recede. This huge vote did not indicate that the senate had confidence in Laval, however. He was attacked fiercely and jeered, but the senators had to express their approval of the refusal to give in to President Hoover.

Mr. Hoover then came to bat with a memorandum sent to Ambassador Edge for communication to the French government. This was in effect an ultimatum to France that unless she accepted the Hoover plan she was likely to be left out in the cold. The warning was conveyed that if the President's project failed, Germany certainly would apply for a moratorium on reparations as provided by the Young plan, and this, Mr. Hoover figured, would cost France $100,000,-000,000 more than would the Hoover moratorium. Behind the polite phrases in the memorandum seemed to lie the intimation that if France rejected the Hoover plan, the administration would establish a moratorium on war debt payments and leave France out.

MEANWHILE Premier Mussolini put over what was considered by some a "fast one." His government announced that the Hoover proposal, which had been accepted unconditionally, was in operation. so far as Italy was concerned, on July 1. Italy's debtor nations, Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, were notified that she was not collecting sums due from them on that date; and her creditors, England and the United States, were told she was putting aside the sums she owes them, pend ing final decision.

The State department in Washington said the Hoover plan had been accepted by Belgium and Poland, both allies of France and by Rumania, and in part by Greece and Jugo-Slavia. So France was standing alone in opposition. It was believed in Paris that Premier Laval, after closing down parliament, would call a conference of all nations signatory to the Young plan to obtain from them a release from the guarantee clause requiring her, in case of a moratorium, to place in the bank for international settlements the sum of approximately $120,-000,000 to be applied in part to increasing payments to be received by other creditors during the period of suspension.

FOR the first time since the World war the federal government began its fiscal year on July 1 with an unbalanced budget. The deficit is almost $903,000,000.

Handicapped by reduced revenues, the Treasury found itself confronted with rising expenditures, due to the government's efforts to help the farmer, the unemployed and the drought sufferers. About the only favorable factor in the financial situation was a cash balance of over $400,-C00,000 with which the treasury entered the new year. This will be used to meet current expenses during the first quarter instead of being applied to the deficit.

WILEY POST and Harold Gatty, American aviators, set their monoplane, the Winnie Mae, down at Roosevelt field, New York, Wednesday evening. It is estimated that Post and Gatty will realize about $50,000 each from their wonderful flight-and they certainly earned it.

DRESIDENT HOOver's request to the federal farm board for a definite statement of its policy brought a response from the board. through Chairman James C. Stone, in which its policy as announced on March 23 is virtually re-stated. Pleas from the Middle West and Southwest that the board commit itself to keep its immense wheat holdings off the market, either for a stated period or under a fixed price level, are rejected.

One important concession is made. The board agrees to limit sales of its wheat to 5,000,000 bushels a month, this limit to run on a cumulative basis, the unused portions of the quota to be good for succeeding months. But it excepted from this limitation important contracts with foreign purchasers now under consideration.

To the problem of the wheat surplus there is only one answer, and that is acreage reduction, the board declares. Hope was seen for an improved export market in smaller productions in other countries and in the prospect for better world conditions "that will be created by the President's debt plan."

Chairman Stone, before giving out the statement, conferred with President Hoover, and he said it was satisfactory to the Chief Executive. It certainly was not wholly satisfactory to the grain growers, farm leaders and grain dealers of the middle western states. They continued to urge the board to hold all sales of surplus wheat for a year.

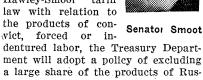

W HAT was the President's national commission on law enforcement and observance, better known as the Wickersham commission, went out of existence with the close of June, and is now just eleven men and women. On Tuesday the fine furniture and equipment were moved out of its offices; after midnight the unexpended remainder of its $500,000 appropriation reverted to the government; and Chairman Wickersham by that time was the only member left in the National Capital.

Sticklers for exactness said the commission will not actually cease to exist until a final history of its activities and expenditures is written and is accepted by President Hoover. In order to attain this end a temporary commission headquarters has been established near the White House, equipped to accommodate only the chairman and a small staff. There the fifteenth report will be written.

Here is the commission's record: Ten reports have been delivered to the government printer or deposited at the White House; four others, one of them the still-controverted study of prohibition, have been made public.

Since midwinter the commission has completed reports upon the deportation of aliens, "lawlessness in law enforcement," crime among the foreign born, juvenile delinquency, the work of the police, prisons, probation and parole, the costs and causes of crime and a "progress report" upon the work of the courts, to be carried on by private agencies.

While this exclusion will not apply to products of the soil, says Mr. Smoot, it will apply to Soviet products which are manufactured, mined or produced by means of forced labor of any kind, and which are competitive with products here. He mentions lumber and pulpwood especially as products which will be shut out.

The Utah senator takes sharp issue with his Democratic colleague, Senator W. H. King, who has denounced the idea of shutting out Russian products in blanket fashion and declared that congress did not have such a thing in mind and did not authorize it. Senator Smoot declares it was the purpose of congress to shut out the products of convict, forced or indentured labor, and that the Treasury Department will adhere to the law.

IN A few days Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will be on his way to our farthest possession, the Philippines, for an inspection tour of the islands. This is because their administration falls under the jurisdiction of the War department.

While the official War department announcement ascribed the reason for the secretary's trip to a desire "to acquaint himself more intimately with the details of Philippine problems," it was understood that Mr. Hurley would study personally sentiment there for independence in preparation for a movement in the next session of congress to free the islands. President Hoover has been advised by members of both senate and house of representatives that it appeared probable sufficient strength would be mustered in the next session to pass a bill authorizing Philippine independ-

SENOR DON SALVADOR DE MAdariaga, the new ambassador from Spain, presented his credentials to President Hoover with due ceremony, and the customary polite phrases were exchanged. S PAIN is to continue to be a republic, and Alfonso will remain an ex-king, according to the results of the national elections. Alajandro Lerroux, old time Republican leader and at present foreign minister, is the man of the hour and it is accepted that he will be the first premier under the new constitution that is to be adopted by the national assembly that convenes on July 14. The Socialists and so-called radicals will control this assembly, which in fact will be rather moderate in policies. The communists are powerless.

Catalonia still insists on being a separate state in a Spanish federation, but Senor Lerroux predicts that the Catalan movement will soon collapse.

SENATOR SIMEON D. Fess of Ohio, who is a leading member of the senate committee on interstate commerce, predicts that railroad and transportation legislation of a comprehensive character will be considered during the next session of congress. He Senator Fess has studied these questions closely for years, and probably knows what he is talking about. In his opinion, consolidation legislation will again be taken up, and laws for the regulation of the motor bus and the motor truck will be proposed. Mr. Fess foresees much difficulty in getting legislation enacted to meet the various transportation problems. This difficulty is much enhanced, as he views it, by the competition between the railroads and other forms of transportation. On the one hand. he feels the ountry cannot get along without the railroads, but on the other. he is convinced the public will

BUILDS YACHT FOR SCIENTIFIC STUDY

Sportsman Will Gather Data in Pacific Ocean.

Long Beach, Calif.—One of the costliest pleasure craft ever completed on the Pacific coast was launched here recently for Capt. A. Allan Hancock of Los Angeles, sportsman, "godfather" of a city and mariner.

The craft is Valero III, a 195-foot twin screw steel Diesel cruiser, driven by two 850 horse power engines. She has a cruising radius of 9.500 miles. During the coming years Capt. Hancock will use the craft for scientific cruises in South Pacific waters. Resembling a navy light cruiser in lines. the usual luxurious furnishings of a yacht have been dispensed with, and it has been outfitted only with necessities for a long cruise.

Captain Hancock several years ago became interested in Santa Maria, situated in the northern part of Santa Barbara county. The center of a large agricultural area, the civic spirit of the town interested him, and he decided to "grow up" with it.

His first move was to buy the Santa Maria Valley railroad, a small standard gauge road extending down the valley from Guadalupe, lettuce growing center of California. The entire line was rebuilt under Captain Hancock's direction, and new rolling stock, including locomotives, was added.

Next he built packing houses, the most modern in the valley, where farmers take their produce for shipment to market. He bought a ranch near the eastern terminus of the line, hired the county farm adviser as manager, and developed one of the most notable model farms of the state. Has Flying Field.

A radio station also was erected by Hancock to extol the virtues of the community.

And as a fitting climax to his efforts to aid the thriving community, he founded and endowed the Hancock College of Aeronautics, which draws young men from all parts of the country for a thorough education in flying.

about 1,700 volumes. It includes books that belonged to Alexander II, Alexander III, Nicholas I, the Count Alexis, and the Empress Marie Feodorovna, wife of Alexander III. The collection formerly was in the winter palace at Leningrad. The purchase includes numerous secret documents embraced in more than 50 volumes which had belonged to the general staff of Russia and related to military preparedness of various countries adjacent to Russia.

The books are printed in Russian, rench, German, English ar

A Butterfly Hunt

On sudden spring-like days in midwinter, when the melting snow drips ing butterflies, deceived by the unexpected warmth, show themselves to our astonished view.

"But are they not killed by the frost? How can such tender creatures live through the bitter cold nights?" One would surely think they would die and many varieties do, but a whole brood of hardy butterflies exists for which the cold has no terrors, and which hide through the winter to enjoy a new awakening in the spring.

There is the "Yellow Edge" or "Antiopa" butt-fly, with red-brown velvety wings trin o ed with old gold, the earliest to fly about the woodlands in early spring; then there are the "Comma" and "Semi-Colon," the "Atlanta" and showy "Red Admiral," all members of the same sturdy group called "Angle-Wings." They are easily recognized, as their wings have a sharp, pointed, bat-like appearance.

In October, long after the Cecropia and Prometheus moths have tucked themselves away snugly in their warm silken cocoons, you can still find the last broods of the "Angle Wing" caterpillars, either in the form of chrysalids, or still feeding as worms upon various late plants, quite happy and contented.

But soon they turn into chrysalids also, and these develop rapidly. In two weeks at most they reappear as butterflies. The occasional frosty nights do not harm them, but seem rather to hasten their change. Flowers at this season are rare, but a few may still be found in sheltered spots and the newly escaped butterflies are not discouraged. The farmer is making cider, and they fly to the pomace heap near the cider press. You may see them sucking the sweet juices of the crushed apples as contentedly as their earlier brothers and sisters do the rose and the lily. Even the rotting apples about the ground in the old orchard are not disdained, and many seek the woodpile and feed on the juices from the newly cut birch logs. It is well to be independent and to know when to help

LIGHTS > By WALTER TRUMBULL of NEW YORK

I had never seen a planetarium, and except for my wife's insistence probably would not have seen one yet. In fact, in preliminary conversation on the subject, I inadvertently referred to it as a solarium, despite the fact that the difference is as that between Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Graham day and night. It does, to be sure, show the sun as well as the stars in their courses, but it is a dimmed sun. which permits observation of the shining of the lesser lights. In ordinary study of astronomy you look outdoors up into what Omar Khayyam designated as "that inverted bowl they call the sky." In a planetarium, they bring the sky indoors.

> Whoever created that weird and wonderful machine, which looks like some nightmarish visitor from Mars, is to my mind entitled to rank with Merlin and all the ancient magicians, although all complicated mechanical invention is just so much mystery to one who considers the proper threading of a film in a movie camera an achievement. It not only shows the entire solar system in movement through its countless fields of stars, but can make thousands of years race in either direction in the space of a few minutes. In other words, this device can show you the moving heavens as they looked to Anthony and Cleopatra floating down the Nile on some clear Egyptian night. Or it can show you the sun, moon, stars and planets in the position they will occupy 10,000 years from now, something which, even as an optimist, I never expected to see. In that space of time, understand, the constellations will be distorted; the big dipper will look as if it had been through the war; Cassiopeia's chair will look like a hammock.

> As you gaze up at the interior of the dome, upon which synchronized and moving objects of light are cast, you have no feeling of being under a roof. It gives you the feeling of looking at the true sky. When the machine is run at speed, you feel decided apprehension for Venus, desperately trying to keep ahead of the sun, and considerable sympathy for little Mercury, trying just as desperately to catch up. Saturn, a lonesome planet, nods eagerly to Venus as she flashes by, but, contrary to any mythological scandal, she neither pauses nor notices him. Jupiter and Mars must be tired business men. They stay out all night. Betelgeuse is apparently a cop on fixed

One reason I never had seen a planetarium is that the only one in the United States is the gift of Max Adler to the city of Chicago. It stands on a little island in the lake, near the Field museum, and has the general form of an observatory. I believe there are several planetariums in Germany, and there is soon to be one in Philadelphia in spite of the cost, which they tell me is considerable. I can't see why there is not a planetarium in every large city in the country. It is one of the greatest educational factors I ever saw. The institution in Chicago is constantly a place of pilgrimage for school children, as well as adults, and teaches them more about astronomy in an hour than they would learn from any ordinary course in months. It is an impressive demonstration, making an indelible impression. Never was a scientific lesson more skillfully sugar-coated. Why so rich a city as New York hasn't a planetarium, I can't imagine.

The head of the Chicago planetarium is Doctor Foxx, but frequently there are visiting lecturers. Doctor Baker, professor of astronomy at the University of Illinois, lectured the day I was present. He showed me a board, which had more gadgets on it than the control board of an airplane. and told me that the speaker regulated the artificial heavens to suit himself by means of rows of what seemed to be electric buttons and switches. Apparently, the manipulator can place himself on any portion of the earth's surface he desires, looking at the sky from a northern, southern or equatorial angle. As I left, Doctor Baker was preparing to take a couple of his students on a trip South, showing them the Southern Cross. I once had to take a trip to South America to see that.

HOW=

DUTCH IN SOUTH AFRICA ACQUIRED NAME "BOER."-"Boer," as applied to the descendants of the Dutch settlers in South Africa, is frequently mispronounced. It is the Dutch word for farmer and is correctly pronounced like English "boor," rimit g with "moor," not "door." Dutch "boer," German "Bauer" and English "boor" had a common origin and originally they all had the same meaning -farmer or countryman. The English called the Dutch in South Africa "Boers" or "Boors" because most of them were engaged in agriculture or cattle raising. The Afrikanders never called themselves boors unless they were actually farmers. Early English writers, when referring to the South Africans, spelled the word either "Boer" or "Boor," but gradually the Dutch spelling was appropriated in this sense, due no doubt to the fact that the English word "boor" was applied specifically to a clownish or unrefined rustic or countryman.

How Tropical Rubber

Tree Clings to Habits The Hevea rubber tree, which has been cultivated as far north as Florida, still clings to habits formed during its centuries of life in the actual tropical jungles. It sends up a slender central trunk in spurts of about 9 inches each to a height of 6 to 10 feet before branching out. During the respites from these growing spurts small clusters of leaves spring out to feed the tree during its next spurt. The clusters shed when the spurt ends and a new cluster starts higher up. The trees do this to enable them to get enough light to grow in the jungle, where the struggle for light is fierce. Although the tree has, in Florida, enough room and light to grow steadily without competition, it still retains its sprinting growth as though it still needed this special method for fighting for light and life.

How Famous Club Got Name The Jacobins, the most famous political club in France at the time of the revolution of 1739, received its name from the fact that it rented the refectory of the Jacobins in the Rue St. Honore, near the seat of the national assembly in Paris, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. This club originated in the Club Breton, established at Versailles shortly after the opening of the state general in 1789. At first composed of deputies from Brittany, it soon was joined by others from various parts of France. Mirabeau and Robespierre were early

How Moon Travels The moon rotates on its axis in exactly the same period in which it revolves around the earth-namely, aproximately 27 1-3 days. The state ment that the moon always has the same side turned toward the earth is not true in the strictest sense. It would be true if the planes of its orbit and of its equator were the same and if it moved at a perfectly uniform angular velocity in its orbit. Thus, at certain times the observer is able to see farther around the illuminated side than at others, and that there is only 41 per cent of its surface which is never seen while 41 per cent is always in sight and 18 per cent is sometimes visible and sometimes invisible.

How Centuries Are Counted

The Twentieth century A. D. began on the first day of January, 1901, and will end on the last day of December, 2000. A century begins with the beginning of the first day of its first year. As there was no year 0 in the Christian era, the first century A. D. lasted from the year 1 to the year 100, inclusive; the second century ended with the year 200, the Nineteenth century ended with the year 1900, etc.

How Starfish Feed

Starfish feed on oysters, clams, mussels, barnacles, sea-snails, worms, crustaceans and even smaller species of their own kind. They are known as the scavengers of the sea because they also feed on decaying matter. Frequently certain kinds of starfish eat not only the bait of fishermen but their catch as well.

Mr. Gene Tunney, who has returned to America after a trip to Jerusalem and extensive traveling in Russia, brings interesting observations on the Soviet republic, including this:

"There are in Russia 30,000,000 young people under twenty-seven years of age that know nothing but communism. "They have been brought up breathing the atmosphere of communism as their ideal, their religion. They would die for it, as any Mohammedan would die for his faith. They do not know what you talk about if you discuss anything opposed to the modern theories of Russia."

That is something to be taken into consideration by those that ask themselves, "After bolshevism, what?" After holshevism it will probably be more bolshevism.

Boys just out of West Point are busy with antiaircraft defense, staying on the ground, shooting at airplanes that obligingly come by towing targets.

That means nothing. Moscow says Russians are making their own airplane engines, concentrating on 300 and 450-horse power motors, and constantly increasing their air strength.

it is a pity. There was value in the 161,531 tiny schools scattered over this country, each with its wood box outside the door, its patient teacher and small group of children.

The bigger boys that sat outside on the fence until the last minute, and swallowed their luncheon whole to have more time for baseball at "recess," often amounted to something later on. At least they could spell, add, subtract and divide. They lived in the country, saw the sky every day, went barefoot and caught turtles in summer, read Dickens and put firecrackers under milk cans, all useful parts of education. (©, 1931, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Compact and Economical Design Just Right for Small Family

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these sub-jects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Here is a cottage type bungalow, very small, very compact, but offering a large amount of living accommodation at a very low cost. In the first place, being but 26 feet square, this home may be built on a small lot and still leave a comfortable margin of space for light, air and privacy between it and its neighbors on either side. The square plan is, of course, the most economical one possible, giving the greatest amount of floor space in proportion to the amount of wall and roof construction. And in the case of this particular house, the design is such as to take full advantage

This is a four-room house with the living room serving also as a dining gaining wide popularity in recent equipment and labor saving devices. The before-meal work must progress along a path that does not cross and recross itself, and the after-meal work direct path.

Those same plans also indicated what the judges referred to as "the tremendous demand for built-in features." The walls were fairly lined with permanent furniture. Built-in equipment which folds up is especially popular, as it has the added advantage of leaving the floor space free between times.

The ironing board which folds up into the wall has become an indisputable part of every housewife's plans. A close second is the folding breakfast table to which we draw up the gayly painted Windsor chair when the waffles are ready. Both of these are to be had ready-made in desirable sizes through lumber dealers. The ironing board, especially, occupies such small wall space that it can be put into practically every kitchen.

But when planning the house-thatis-to-be it is well to go into the matter of fold-ups and other permanent furniture in advance, and make our plans conform to the standard sizes in which these things are available. This foresight will save unnecessary cost. Sanitary finish and appearance of the kitchens is a sine qua non. That does not necessarily require that everything be painted a flat white, like a hospital. Sunshine is a germicide, too-one of the best. The kitchen ought to have plenty of windows, with cross venilation if at all possible. The matter of making the kitchen attractive and cheerful while making it sanitary is one of the most important subjects to consider.

Interior Stairs Can Be

a Point of Decoration The stairway is the largest single item of interior woodwork about the average modern home.

Both from utilitarian and decorative aspects it serves probably the most important functions which any feature of the interior is called upon to perform. The architectural style of the house itself is often indicated or reflected in the design of the stairs. Many builders in past times have apparently regarded beauty in stair work as a matter of size; the larger the newels and balusters the more handsome the work. Modern taste inclines to the smaller, more delicately molded forms which made our early colonial stairs such faithful representatives of individual craftsmanship.

REMOVE ROOSTERS FROM HEN FLOCK

Poor Eggs Result From Laziness and Neglect.

With the coming of warmer weather, there will be the usual rapid inon the markets unless flock owners adopt control measures.

"As first produced, eggs are about tension poultry specialist at the North place until delivery to the consumer, cations. the market will pay the top price if the hens are not well fed, if the nests are dirty and the eggs gathered occasionally and kept in a poorly ventilated, warm room, the consumer feels like ordering a gas mask along with his eggs."

Mr. Parrish insists that bad eggs are not accidents—they result from laziness, neglect, and poor management. It is just as easy, he says, to produce high quality, infertile eggs as it is to offend the customers with stale, fertile, low quality eggs. Farmers of the state lose about $500,000 each season because of bad methods in producing and handling this product. At least one-third of this is due to the partial hatching of fertile eggs which have become warm enough to incubate. Hot days have the same effect on fertile eggs as the hen or incubator and the first step is to remove the male bird from the flock as soon as hatching is over. He has nothing to do with egg production.

Five good rules to observe are given by Mr. Parrish, as follows: Keep nest clean and provide one nest for every four hens; gather eggs twice each day; market the eggs twice each such as the cellar; and pen or dispose of all roosters after the breeding season. To follow these five suggestions is to improve the quality of the prod-

Chicken Culling Most

Important in Summer Chicken culling is not something that should be done only in the late summer or early fall when the hens are molting. Culling should start at the time the chicks are hatched, and should be continued throughout the growing season. All chicks that are weak or crippled when the hatch is taken off should be killed. Chicks lacking in vitality are a constant menace to the flock because they are more susceptible to disease than are the stronger ones. Furthermore, the extra care and attention which must be given the weak chicks increases the cost of rearing the flock. Also those chicks that are weak at hatching time will he slower in starting to grow and will mature more slowly than the strong vigorous birds.

Succeed With Turkeys

The kind of feed and the manner of feeding poults make a vast difference in results. The difficulty in handling turkeys in domestic fashion has been realized for years, more so as farms became closer together and wide, open ranges became harder to provide for flocks of turkeys. Unwholesome feeds and bad ways of feeding have worked much harm to this industry. Growing poults will not require so much attention as to feed when the range is am-

POTATO GROWERS GET PROFIT FROM SPRAYS

The proper spraying or dusting of otatoes to combat insects and diseases will increase the yields of U.S. No. 1 tubers enough to pay a good profit on the cost of time and materials used in protecting the crop, according to the farm crops department of Michigan State College.

The basic spray used in Michigan potate fields is Bordeaux mixture which is made by combining copper sulphate, lime, and water. Either stone lime or chemical hydrated lime can be used. The lime commonly sold crease in the flow of poor quality eggs as agricultural hydrated lime is unsatisfactory for use in the spray.

Cross Section and Footing Plan of Hay Storage Shed.

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, with-out doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

In these days of extraordinary hay crops, the farm where large quantities of hay are produced needs storage space other than the mow in the barn. It is poor economy to fail to provide ample protection for the products of the farm as well as for its live stock and machinery. At the same time the cost of such protection in relation to the value of the hav must be considered and it would be foolish indeed to provide storage space at the cost which would eat up all the profit from the crop. Therefore a weathertight roof must be provided at a reasonable cost.

Proper Hinges Make

Homes More Livable Although usually a somewhat unguarded part of the home, a great deal of the peace of mind and pleasure in occupancy, which is the right of the home owner, depends upon the successful functioning of hinges.

As in practically everything else that enters into home construction, mechanical advancement has taken place in the design and manufacture of hinges. There are now many types of hinges, each suited to the individual needs of a particular location. The home owner does well to consider carefully the specific type of hinge which will best serve each door in his house.

The friction hinge, for example, is a noteworthy advance in hinge design adapted to many locations about the house. This hinge is so made that it will securely hold a door in any position in which it may be set for ventilation or privacy, although the friction is not so great that it is difficult to move the door. Thus, bedroom doors equipped with these hinges may be opened slightly for ventilation, but not so much that privacy will be sacrificed. This hinge is particularly suited to mirror doors.

House Architecture

Leans to Simplicity

Forecasts of architectural fashions for the coming year indicts that American home builders are tendering toward simplicity in house design. Architects report that there is an unusual desire at present for economically planned houses of sturdy design and construction. This is probably the reason why Norman-French types are suddenly so popular.

The simplicity of the Norman-French design is suitable to the straightforward practical methods used in building American homes. This simplicity is also appropriate to the materials used both on the exterior and in the interior. Among the styles found in parts of Normandy and in the valley of the Loire are some houses that have very elaborate details, but it is usually the simple country houses that seem to have most influence in the building of present-day

Speakers at recent archtectural conventions have also emphasized the importance of simplicity in remodeling and painting existing houses, particularly those of the colonial type. Driving through the unspoiled sections of New England towns convinces one that white, and nothing but white, is the perfect color for a colonial house.

Before acting upon this conclusion, however, it is just as well to realize that in the old New England towns graceful trees create a series of natural proscenium arches which frame the views of the houses. Over all, there is a mosaic of sunshine and shadows. Let the trees be hewn down and an amazing amount of the old charm vanishes. If a house is not enriched by trees or climbing vines, an unbroken expanse of white may make it look less pleasing. Whichever is chosen, white or cream, Gerald Geerlings of the Woman's Home Companion points points out that the first maxim to remember is that the whole house should be painted in this one color. The second is to select certain features which can be painted in contrast to the general wall tone.

The chief charm of a house modeled after the colonial comes from its simplicity, says Mr. Geerlings. "Whatever detracts from this simplicity is wasted or misapplied effort."

Too Many Beds Will

Spoil the Garden Avoid the use of too many flower beds except in their proper place. Nothing does more to destroy a fine piece of landscape work than geometrical flower beds scattered about the lawn. The hardy flowering shrub is one of the best materials for all plantings up to 10 or 12 feet in height. They live for a great many years, produce the same flowering effect you get from annual plants, and if you leave home for a month they are even more beautiful when you return.

NUDE DUMMY MAKES POLICEMEN BLUSH

Scandalous Conduct Embarrasses Officers.

San Francisco, Calif.-The scandalous conduct of "Clotilde," beautiful, nude, female window dummy, recently shocked Atherton, startled Redwood City, horribly embarrassed two policemen, and landed two San Jose credit adjusters in jail. And it isn't all over yet, by any means.

Clotilde first crossed official gaze when Policeman Rollen Somer saw a machine parked off the main highway at Atherton at a spot known as Selby lane at 3:00 a.m.. He investigated. Peering cautiously into the sedan he suddenly blushed violently. A beautiful nude woman reclined on the back seat. On each side of her was a gentleman. And each had an arm wrapped affectionately around the young lady.

"Poor girl," said Policeman Somer. He took off his overcoat and covered the unfortunate creature with it. His action aroused the two men, who were sleeping heavily.

"Whazza Matter?" "Whazza matter?" inquired Edward T. Roddy, an adjuster for a credit

"Tha's right," remarked William H. Downey, manager of the same concern. "Wha's big idea?" "Shame on you," said Policeman Somer. "A nice girl like her, too." Roddy and Downey looked at the "girl" and then at each other.

"Hee-hee," snorted Roddy. ain't a girl—she's a dummy. That's Clotilde, our sweetheart."

Policeman Somers peered into the car and took a better look-an official one. He saw his mistake and jerked the overcoat off the beautiful dummy.

Policeman Somer locked the two up on charges of disturbing the peace and drunkenness. He left the "nude lady" sitting in the car. There she was found a short time later by Policeman Clarence Dyer. Dyer flagged George Smith, driver for a baking company.

"There's a nude girl in trouble with her bus," said Dyer. "Will you give her a hand-get her back to San Francisco?"

"Sure," said Smith. He climbed down from his truck and approached the sedan. The girl seemed embarrassed at his approach. "Give you a hand?" asked Smith. The girl made no reply. Concluding she was asleep, Smith opened the sedan door and laid a discreet hand on a bare feminine knee.

"Wake up, sister—hey—she's dead!" he bellowed, backing away.

Chief Calls Wife.

Policeman Dyer's flashlight revealed their error. Smith drove off in disgust and Dyer drove the car down to the Redwood City jail, where he parked it in front of the police station—the nude woman still inside. There, at five o'clock in the morning, it was found by Chief of Police Edward Farrell.

Farrell pressed his nose against the glass. Then he hurried across the street and got Mrs. Farrell. "Come out here and be a witness while I wake a woman," he said. don't want to be misconstrued" With Mrs. Farrell standing by, he opened the sedan door and softly tapped the beautiful nude blond on her bare shoulder. As he jumped back

Jewels of Babylon Court Found by Archeologists

London.-Jewels that adorned the beauties at the Court of Nebuchadnezzar have been found by the Oxford-Field Museum's expedition at Kish, near the site of old Babylon, according to reports.

The jewels are said to be priceless and include solid gold ornaments of outstanding beauty. It is believed they may reveal much of the history of that age. Previous excavations, according to archeologists, have supported to an extraordinary extent the old Biblical narrative.

The secrets of three periods of history are being revealed by the expedition, which is working on three separate strata. Magnificent sculpture dating from 250 A. D. was found on the top layer above the great Temple of Nebuchadnezzar. Below the temple a series of Sumerian royal tombs approximately 5,500 years old were found and are being carefully

WHY==== Many Men Fail to Make Good as Business Leaders

Ambition and hard work are not sufficient to make real business leaders Ninety-nine out of a hundred average business men never become leaders because they are unwilling to pay the penalties that leadership demands, according to Owen D. Young, one of the foremost industrial and financial figures of the day, in an interview in the American Magazine.

"Lack of ambition-or lack of a sort of wishful thinking that often passes as ambition, is rather rare. Most men honestly want places of power, but they refuse to believe that the price is so high," Young continues.

"There is nothing magical about leadership. But there are certain penalties attached to it. The average man has a sneaking notion that he can get ahead just as fast and be comfortable at the same time. He thinks. no doubt, that in his case it won't be necessary to pay the penalties—that he can beat the game.

"By the penalties of responsibility I mean the hard driving, continuous work-the little daily sacrifices-the courage to face facts, to make decisions, to stand the gaff-the scourging honesty of never fooling yourself about yourself. Even when human beings do apprehend at least dimly, the real cost of leadership, too often they fail to measure up to the test. If they had a big crisis to meet, on which they knew their whole future would depend, they would meet it with clenched fists and a high heart. But in the little daily demands—the things they can do or duck-it is here they fail. If you see anyone shy away from a task, however small, you may be sure that you can't rely on him at the finish."

Why Use of Lightning

Rods Is of Real Value While it is true that if lightning should strike a building equipped with lightning rods the lightning probably would run off rods without harming the building, the principal function of Benjamin Franklin's device, as students of physics know, is to neutralize clouds charged with electricity.

The reason for this lies in the behavior of tiny electrical charges called electrons, Caldwell & Curtis' "Introduction to Science" points out.

"Although most persons fear the lightning, there really is very little chance of being struck by it," the book says. "It recently has been estimated that the chances that a person will be struck by ightning in his home are only one in many millions.'

Why Old Custom Prevails

The custom of casting chelo berries into the crater of the volcano is a very ancient one in Hawaii. The object is to propitiate the goddess Pele. The goddess Pele appears in various guises. Formerly it was believed that she would never allow the volcano to harm any individuals, but the recent flows of lava have shown this to be not true. Red flags are often placed to mark the boundaries of the village and a live pig is tied in front as a sacrifice to the goddess. Kilauea is merely a crater on the largest volcano in the world, though not the loftiest.

Why Korea Became "Chosen" "Korea" was the name given to the country in northeastern Asia by foreigners, particularly Europeans. The Koreans themselves as well as other Orientals preferred to call the country "Chosyon," because that was the old native name. It was natural that the Japanese, after they took possession of the kingdom of Korea should have preferred to call it Chosen .- Pathfinder Magazine.

Why No Lift on Wings

When an airplane is on a 90-degree banked turn in a vertical bank, there is no lift upward on the wing. There is a lift inward toward the center of the circle, however, and this in part helps to counteract the force of gravity and prevents the plane from sliding sideways toward the ground. In other words, the plane travels about in a circle and is jammed against the air as if it were an automobile traveling about the inside of a racing bowl.

MYSTERY OF LOST DAUPHIN UP AGAIN

Find Boy Who Died in Jail Was Not Prince.

Paris.-One hundred and thirty-five ears after the disappearance of the lauplan, Louis XVII, French scienthe boy who died from ill treatment at the hands of his cobbler-jailer, in the emple was not the Bourbon baby, son of Marie Antoinette and Louis XVI. If this conclusion is definitely esablished and the republican government accepts the verdict definite status will be given to many of the claims of families all over the world to be the true descendants of the blond little

Charles Louis, Bourbon prince. Theoretically and legally Louis XVII, forgotten and neglected, was supposed to have died in the temple June 8, 1795. That, at least, is the entry on the register of the revoluionary republic. Actually, Napoleon and his successors and the republic cave never believed that story. Millions of Frenchmen today believe that he dauphin was smuggled from his rison and escaped.

Historical Fact. It is a historical fact that Charles louis was brought from Versailles to Paris by the revolutionists and locked ip with his parents and his sister, Mme. Royale, in the temple. Later, he boy was placed under the charge of a Jacobin shoemaker named Simon, who treated him cruelly, shamelessly and taught the boy foul language and bscene revolutionary songs and made f him a drunkard at five years.

Mrs. Atkin, a wealthy Englishwomin, plotted to get his freedom. She says in her memoirs that the Marquis de Fenoyl aided her and that the marquis' valet, Gomin, succeeded in geting Simon's job.

It is her story that as Simon and his wife left the temple they wheeled their possessions with them in a cart and the young prince was hidden in the load. The deaf and dumb son of a Normandy tailor, Hervagault, was put into the temple and pointed out as Louis XVII. At any rate, a boy died in the walled-up cell on June 8, 1795, and was buried in the church of St. Marguerite under the name of the lauphin, Louis XVII. When St. Marguerite's was destroyed under Napoleon III in 1853, the bones were dug up and subjected to a thorough study by the best docors of the day, who decided that the boy who died in prison could not have been Charles Louis. That is the basis of the present inquiry.

Measurements Checked.

Scientists have spent recent months in checking over the measurements of the remains as given seventy-eight years ago and they have about agreed that the earlier conclusion was correct and that the boy who died in prison could not have been the prince. That leaves the door open to the thirty-seven different pretenders, or their descendants, who have made known their claims to the French gov-

Buy Banjo to Ease Last

Days of Former Slave Richmond, Ind.—A banjo has been added to the list of necessities at the Wayne County poorhouse here.

The addition was made after Sanders S. French, ninety-one-year-old former slave, was admitted. French was partially blind, almost illiterate and unable to do even the lightest of tasks. Time hung heavily on his hands and he became one of the most forlorn of the inmates. White people noticed his pessair, took up a collection and bought him a banio.

The decision to appoint women stewardesses has been due to the increasing number of women air passengers. Their duties will be to serve refreshments, supply reading matter, and act as aerial guides.

70 THE druggist, what happened one motionless July evening, on one of those streets of lower New York that after dark, whether merited or not, take on a sinister gloom, while by no means routine was nonetheless not without frequent precedent in the many years of his shopkeeping.

He knew the ear-marks so well The strangely lit eyes, the smeared pallor, the elaborate manner of asking for rat poison. In the case of the girl with the strawberry-colored hair and the pitiful lower lip with a tiny mole that looked like a court plaster beauty spot, it was much the same as usual, except that she was so young. Not over sixteen, if the druggist was any judge, and be flattered himself that he was.

The thing to do in these cases was not to interfere; to interfere was to invite desperate and frightened recoil. There was a little shelf in the store for just such emergency. Neat little phials of barley water duly labeled "poison." In this wise, chances were the subject would have time to recover from the mental abberration and in all probability not repeat the attempt at self-destruction.

That had been the druggist's experience where he had been in a position to follow up the case, but usually they just drifted out of sight after the fiasco he thrust on them, and it was left to his intuition, which he trusted, to gauge the results.

On one or two occasions the wouldbe self-annihilators had returned to thank him for the deception. But more usually, at least according to the druggist's conviction, they just drifted sheepishly out of sight.

In any event, it behooved him to regard the matter that way. It assuaged his unease of mind,

The sixteen-year-old girl with the strawberry hair had not returned, but in the odd times his mind flashed back to her after the event, the druggist had leaned upon his conviction that failure to succeed that once had jerked her to her senses.

The druggist's life was too involved in the multitudinous affairs of his little business to let these matters obsess him. The exacting hours of his shop weighed heavily. It was at the period when his son was attending Pharmaceutical college and the assistant he had was all too inadequate.

The druggist had been fourteen years in his small old-fashioned shop which the antiquated air of a pharmacy still pervaded instead of the modern electrified atmosphere of the newer type of drug store. He took pride in that, and further prided himself in the fact that when his only son had finished training, he, too, would carry on in the spirit of the chemist, rather than that of the new fangled department store regime which had overtaken the corner druggist.

And even down there on the remote by-street, tidings of this small shop spread among physicians to whom the perfectly-filled prescription meant much. Motor cars that seldom, if ever, frequented that part of town swooped now with frequency into the druggist's street. His shop became a trademark of quality.

Curiously and against the modern tendency of the modern youth, the son had returned to fit himself with enthusiasm and valor for the cause of medicine, in the old shop.

Eight years after his graduation from the state college, he was practically carrying alone the increasing responsibilities of the drug store Meanwhile of course the neighborhood had changed, becoming in a way even more remote and even more sinister in its implication.

Various the opportunities that had come and the offers from doctors to help finance the removal of the shop to a more likely part of town, but the old druggist, half bed-ridden now, was querulous when approached on the subject, and for one reason or another his son, twenty-nine past, of steady caliber, and his father's passionate pride, did not urge it.

After all, the store was the old gentleman's life and work. It was he who had created it out of pennies; nurtured it, tended it in infancy and seen it flourish with the years. The world might well be said to have beaten a pathway to the door of the little shop. It was because of his integrity that doctors with national and international reputations recommended it to their patients, and once gained, a customer remained.

No, this was scarcely the time to cross a bedridden old man in his desire for the stabilization of his life work.

Not that it was a strenuous or tormented old age into which he had entered. The little rooms above the shop where he had dwelt the twentyeight years following the death of his wife were snug to him as the proverbial bug in its rug. Peace and pride ruled here; the peace of honest achievement and high pride in a son whose ideals were the ideals of the father and whose youth stood aside in deference to the conservatism of

Some day, naturally, the boy would blossom out into a new and wider enterprise. It was right that he should. He had the ability, the opportunity, the ambition. But while the father lived, there he remained in the shop, right-hand to the business, right-hand to the parent.

And of course, along about the time the older man began to feel upon himself the Shadow. there began to move across his mind torments, fears, heartaches, even terror for the future of this boy. There was something so naive and trusting and simple about this son. His one weakness in the affairs of business was his tendency to take every one at his word. Such a youth would fall easily and readily into the hands of any woman who desired him sufficiently, and at twenty-nine there was dignity to this fellow, fine clarity of eye and brow and a naive quality that gave him added attraction. With the old gentleman standing by to add his pinch of cynicism whenever necessary, all that was well and good. The boy had had his threats of pitfalls and come out unscathed. It was the aftermath the father dreaded. What about after he had passed on? It therefore became almost a secret obsession with him. What about this boy's future? A woman could break or make him. What untold relief to see this boy settled in life before . . . Intuitive always, the old man watched for signs. The reticence of secret thoughts-there was none of that. The absorption in some one of the many charming young women who come into the shop-not a suggestion of personal interest with anyone. The telephone's unexplained demands that might suggest a hidden sweetheartthere were no clews there to indicate a preparation for the inevitable. Countless times he attempted to broach the subject but the boy would have none of it. Not interested in women! Why must father get on the morbid subject of death-nothing but gout the matter with him! Let the future take care of itself.

The future did take care of itself. One spring evening the son of the old druggist entered the sick room with a look on his face that caused the heart of the old man to leap in terror and hope.

This boy was in love! He was, and the matter of introducing the girl to a father who depended so strongly upon intuition was a time of untold nervousness to the boy. "If you don't like her, Father, it's terrible to have to tell you, but if you don't like her I'm going to marry her anyway."

It required only one meeting to set the fluttering old heart of the fluttering old man at rest. She was right! She was the assured future of his boy. She was everything, in her strawberryhaired prettiness, with the mouth so prettily shadowed by a mole, her eyes so prettily shadowed by good common sense, that this father could wish for his son.

One felt so at home with her at the very first meeting. It was as if one had known her before. . .

Native African Houses

The native of Kirdi-Massa, on the west coast of Africa, builds his home of a stiff clay much like the abode used by Mexicans and Indians. This is poured over a framework of slender wooden poles used as reinforcements, and allowed to dry in the sun. The design is worked on with a crude trowellike tool while the mud is moist.

The houses look like huge anthills, with only an inadequate opening for a door in the side and a small round chimney hole at the top to admit light and air. The design on the outside is often elaborate and worked out with the greatest pains, for it serves to identify the owner of the hut.
