it is satin by day and satin by night, which reigns supreme, in the mode. The style-wise woman who is seeking to replenish her midseason wardrobe or planning her fall costumes will, if she has not already done so, discover that there is simply no getting away from satin either for sports wear or the formal evening gown or for the popular pajama fashions.

Notwithstanding its aspect of luxury, satin, whether it be white or in pastel colors, owing to the fact that it tubs perfectly, has proven conclusively that it is as practical as it is chic for the making of the sports costume. Which accounts for the enthusiasm with which fashion's followers are turning satinward this season.

Just now it is the sleeveless white or pastel satin tailleur which is making definite appeal. The model to the right in the illustration is typical. Details which intrigue in the styling of this attractive sports suit are square revers, big buttons and a belted waistline for the blouse with a generous pleating giving a proper flare to the skirt.

In many instances the mode is varied with a cunning cape arrangement to take the place of sleeves. The very latest satin sports frocks are intricately seamed after the manner which has so successfully entered into the designing of the evening satin frock.

Defenses Strengthened, Say Aviation Heads.

Washington .-- Under the impetus of the five year expansion plan adopted by congress in 1926, the army air corps has been vastly strengthened, in the view of War department aviation experts.

While holding still more planes and officers are necessary for a well rounded military air defense, the air corps, in summarizing its achievements of the last few years, pointed to what it considers rapid progress both in technical equipment and skill of pilots. Under the five year plan, adopted in 1926, but not put into effect until 1927, the air corps was to have 1,800 "serviceable" planes, 1,650 regular officers, 550 reserve officers on duty each year and 15,000 enlisted men in 1932. The material program has gone forward according to schedule, save for a deficit of 66 planes, construction of

New Fall Millinery

A remarkable change in millinery is the message which the first autumn hats carry. The initial chapter of the story has to do with little felt or velvet shapes which are almost too quaint to seem possible in this age and day. They are worn at a tilt which is tantalizing, over one eye and showing one side of the coiffure. Feathers on them, too, either perky little colorful novelties or sweeping ostrich of the most picturesque sort. Speaking in general it is the hat fashions of the second Empire period which is the inspiration for 1931 millinery. Just at present the theme uppermost in the mind of designers is the Empress Eugenie silhouette. Worn at the recent Paris races were any number of cunning chapeaux of the type as shown in the sketches herewith. The little felt in the circle is one of the smart new derbies.

Red and White and Brown

This is a new alliance of colors which appears again and again in smart costumes. In one instance a frock of brown and white printed silk was accompanied by a red hat and red accessories. In another a brown suit had a red and white scarf and was complemented by a red bag.

Famed Theater May Live Again as West's Shrine

Central City, Colo .- Famous actors again may bow into the wings of the Central City opera house just as they did in the turbulent gold days when the playhouse was a center of entertainment for this section of the West. Heirs of the original builder, Peter MacFarlane, have expressed a desire to make a shrine for drama of the granite theater, which was erected in 1878 when Denver was but little more than a village on the banks of Cherry creek and offered nothing in the way of entertainment except cheap dance halls and saloons.

MacFarlane's heirs have offered the theater to the University of Denver. If the university accepts, a revival is planned. Central City is but 40 miles from Denver and may be reached in a short time by automobile. Backers of the move believe that tourists from all parts of the world would visit the playhouse, once the Mecca for the stout hearted men and women of an adventurous age.

Boa Constrictor Rides

North in Banana Bunch Philadelphia, Pa.-A young emperor boa constrictor is making his home in the Philadelphia zoo after a journey from the jungles of tropical Brazil in a bunch of bananas.

The snake caused a near panic when Philip Braverman, who operates a fruit store, unwrapped the cover from a bunch of bananas he had purchased from Brazil. The snake dropped to the floor and police were summoned who captured it and turned it over to C. Emerson Brown, director rare specimen and that he had never heard of a boa constrictor making the trip from Brazil in a bunch of bananas.

Cass City High School Opens Aug. 31

cellent educational advantages to boys and girls who have passed the county eighth grade examination. They are cordially invited to attend this modern school during the coming year.

Courses are offered as follows: Agricultural course, Commercial course, Academic course, and Home Economics course. The Cass City High School offers extra credit in the following work: Art, Chorus, Orchestra, Debating, Public Speaking, Bible, Girls' Glee Club, Boys' Glee Club, Agricultural Project. Numerous school societies provide valuable training. Added advantages are to be had in the splendid churches, library, and the various lectures and gatherings which center in the community of Cass City.

The Cass City High School is accredited by the University of Michigan and is on the North Central Association list. Students graduating from the high school here are admitted to the various colleges, universities and normal schools without examination.

All high school and grade teachers are specialists in their respective fields. All high school teachers of academic subjects hold degrees.

The 1931 graduating class numbered 44 students. This compares favorably with schools in towns two or three times larger than Cass City.

The commercial course gives the student four years of special training, fitting him for the commercial field. Commercial arithmetic, bookkeeping, typewriting, and shorthand are all offered in this course.

Enrollment in the high school has August 31.

The Cass City High School offers ex- | passed the 260 mark. Non-resident pupils have increased in the past few years from approximately 40 to 167 in 1929. Careful attention is given each pupil in planning his course of study and in his work throughout the year. We have a physical director for students.

> Good roads make it possible for students to come long distances. Many drive to and from school to their homes each day. Others living much farther away have been at home week-ends. Provision is made at the school cafeteria for high school students to purchase lunches at cost during the winter months. Between two and three thousand meals were served last year at an average cost of 15 cents a meal.

> Cass City students placed well in many state contests during the past season, taking honors in club work at local, county, and state fairs. Our contestants earned honors in the state extemporaneous speaking contest, commercial contests, and academic contest, as well as placing high in others. Our athletic teams were made up of a wide personnel of boys and gave a very fine account of themselves in all sports. Physical education for the girls under a competent director is an added feature to our program.

Tuition is $80.00 a year for high school pupils. The home district must pay $60.00 of this amount per year if application for tuition has been made to the director of the home district.

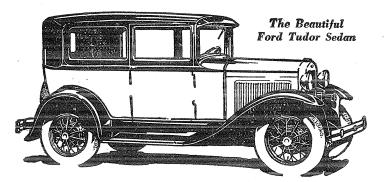

The principal and superintendent will be in the high school office Saturday, Aug. 29. to aid those who wish to arrange their course of study. School opens Monday, HEN you buy a Ford car today, you buy what is unquestionably the greatest value in the history of the Ford Motor Company. Never before has so much beauty, comfort, safety and performance been offered at such a low price.

The low price of the Ford is something to think about because it means an immediate saving of many dollars – always an important consideration. But far more significant than price alone is what you get for that price. When high quality is combined with low price, you may justly take pride in having found a most satisfactory purchase.

See the Ford - ride in it - learn something about the value that is built into every part. The more you know about it, the more certain you will be that it is the car for you. It is literally true that when you "get the facts you will get a Ford."

Rome Had Plumbers The word "plumber" comes from the Latin word "plumbarius," which means a worker in lead. Rome had its plumbers for its great public baths as well as for the installation of running water systems in private houses. Practically every house that has been excavated at the site of Herculaneum and Pompeii had running water, investigators report.

America's "Gibraltar" "The Gibraltar of America" is the name acquired by the isle of St.

Thomas in the Virginia islands of the West Indies. The enclosing ridges and projecting peninsula, say the military experts, could be so fortified that it would be impregnable by land and sea to all that sought the Panama canal, and that this fact was one of the reasons it was purchased from Denmark.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN,

Right Care of Property Obligation of Owner

A house receiving proper care will last much longer than the one that is neglected, is the trite reminder addressed to home owners by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in one of its series of articles on "Looking Into Real Estate."

"In the year 1297, in the twentyfourth chapter of the English statutes of Marlbridge, it was provided that a tenant damaging or wasting his property be fined and deprived of his holdings," the association writes. "All land then was owned under the feudal system and being a life tenant was as near to property ownership as most people could get. But this ancient statute shows that even in those far off times people were conscious of the possibilities of depreciation and did what they could, through such regulation, to conserve real property.

"Care of the home and property means keeping an eye out for many things. It may look like a lot of work but, spread over the year, it really isn't so much. Furthermore, such work is building up an equity, figured from the point of view of the continuing endurance of your domicile, and you are willing to work for equity in other things. If your house lasts longer, you will have your investment longer, and enjoy your home more."

Modernization in Terms of Dollars and Cents That there is a vast field in modernization for use of building materials and equipment and for employment of construction labor, which has hardly been scratched, is coming to the knowledge of those in the industry in many cities.

Analysis of permits issued in several hundred cities of the United States shows that bringing the home up to/ date and making the old commercial building and even the factory modern has become quite popular and accounts for a large volume of work.

There is enormous waste each year in the abandonment of the older homes for the newer models and it cannot be said to be in the same class with buying the latest model motor car or radio, since the home, with some care at intervals, never does wear out. In the older districts of this country homes still are being used which were built a century or two ago.

Keeping Step With Progress Progress changes all. It rebuilt the old automobile advertised as a machine "which takes you there and brings you back" into a thing of beauty which pleases the eye and eases the body while it takes you considerably farther and faster and brings you back even more certainly than its predecessor ever did. Today progress is beginning to change the roads. Bridges, among the first highway links to feel the change, have become structures of longed to a migrating race which real beauty. The new bridges at Harrisburg and Columbia are examples 1,000 years ago. development. The elaborate or this system of viaducts on the express highway system through Elizabeth and Newark, N. J., is another example, and the beautiful bridge at Bethlehem, solving a difficult engineering problem in a definitely artistic way, cannot be overlooked.-Philadelphia Ledger.

GREAT OUTDOORS WORTH BILLION

Tourists and Vacationists Spend Vast Sums.

Washington .- What is the "Great Outdoors" from an economical standpoint, worth to each state in the Union? Several states have tried to answer this question, producing huge figures which they admit, are conservative. The great outdoors is worth more than a billion dollars a year to the United States, according to estimates of the American Game association.

Classing hunters and fishermen, tourists and vacationists under one head, their expenditures for nature outings would be staggering. For example, W. C. Henderson, associate chief of the United States bureau of biological survey, has estimated that game and fish alone are worth $80,-000,000 a year to the state of Maine. This sum is directly traceable to expenditures for hunting and fishing alone. The recreational and health values are incalculable.

The "tourist crop," including hunters and fishermen, is estimated by W. C. Cribbs, extension agent of Michigan state college, to be worth $200,-000,000 annually to Michigan. This state's out-of-doors is the great lure. The "tourist crop" exceeds the combined return from Michigan's four great industries-fruit crop, $20,000,-000; potato crop, $25,000,000; dairy industry, $80,000,000, and poultry industry, $60,000,000. An editor, Mr. A. E. Andrews, of the Indiana Farmer's Guide, in estimating the value of the tourist to Indiana, worked out a sound basis that every state may apply and arrive at an approximate of the tourist crop expenditure value within its borders. After careful checking and re-checking, Mr. Andrews found that the average tourist spends nearly $1 with private enterprises to every cent spent with the state. Moneys derived from the parks, hunting and fishing licenses, are not more than 1 per cent of the moneys spent by the tourist, he said. Some tourists do not spend a cent with the state through these channels. By multiplying state moneys received, $461,000 by 100, he figured that the tourist crop is worth $46,000,000 to his state annually.

Found Buried in Ohio Kenton. Ohio .-- The skeleton of a man, who perhaps lived long before Columbus touched the shores of America, was found recently in a gravel pit on a nearby farm.

The curiosity was discovered by W. S. Barringer, Lima, a namateur anthropologist, under 12 feet of earth. In his study of the skeleton Barringer discovered that it could not have been that of a North American Indian. This was indicated in the fact that the cheek bones were not well defined. Yet the skull did not indicate that the man was a member either of the white or black races

Barringer said he had two reasons for believing the man might have became to Ohio from California 600 to One was that

School in a New Light

"W HAT is the matter with Mary Jane?" sings Mr. Milne. What is the matter with Frederick, we hasten to echo. He has been urged repeatedly and most persuasively, too, to depart for school in the morning without raising his voice to a piercing whine and distorting his face in protest. He has been given gold stars as rewards of merit which might eventually profit him something; he has been told that pennies are put in his bank every time he is a good boy; he he been promised a new baseball glove and other coveted treasures, but although he expresses a desire to attain these, he emits daily sounds of torturing penetration as he is helped into his coat and nears the front door. "I don't want to go to school," he shrieks. Helpless adults stand by and thrust upon him the usual threats, promises and futile questions.

Hotels

"Why, Frederick," they exclaim, "Don't you want to go to school? Don't you like school? Don't you like all the children, and the games, and nice teacher?"

"Noooooooooo!" returns Frederick. in a note that implies that he thinks the children pests, the games a bore and the teacher an ogre, "Noooooooooo. I don't want to go to school. I won't. I won't!"

Adults stand helpless while Frederick grows purple. The only way he gets to school is by being forcibly dragged there, and then he is so nervously unstrung (so is every one else) that he is completely hostile and nonreceptive. Lessons are in vain.

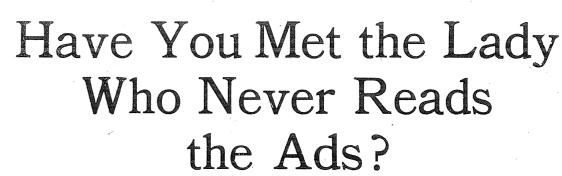

Well, Frederick is not alone in his hour of struggle. There are many like him. Some are timid; some have been tied to the proverbial apron strings so long that they can't stand on their own feet: some receive a subconscious stimulus to their dramatic instincts by securing so much attention; some suffer from genuine shyness, but whatever the cause and whoever the Frederick that dreadful hour recurs again and again and must be done away with. Generalizations are of no use. Assuming that the situation has been carefully investigated and that there are no visible "ghosts in the closet," an experience of complete revelation might be profitable for Frederick. Does he know what a bore his life would be without school? Has he been given a chance to twiddle his thumbs as an alternative to the pleasant association with his schoolmates? Take him at his word sometime, keep him home from school, let him sit in idle- 🍘 ness all by himself for a good long time, and there's not much doubt that if his boredom were complete enough, departure for school would soon become a vast and delightful relief.

Beautifying Highways

To its world leadership in good roads, the United States is seeking to add supremacy in beautiful roads.

Dressing up the highways is seen by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads. as the next step after establishment of smooth roadbeds and easy grades.

Ståte highway departments have chosen to organize their own programs of applying "make-up to nature," but federal assistance is available for planting shade trees along routes of the federal-aid system.

Massachusetts, rounding out the tenth year in its beautification work, is acknowledged as the pace settter. Native trees, shrubs, and flowers are preserved for raw shoulders and scarred landscapes.

For Architectural Progress

Developing its plans for a more beautiful America, the architectural profession, through the American Institute of Architects, will attack ugliness in blueprints rather than in finished structures. With the National Capital as a model, the institute will urge the formation throughout the country of architects' advisory councils before construction begins. Homes, offices, shops and institutions will take on new dignity, well ordered neighborhoods will no longe be threatened by single eyesores, and endless rows of mediocrity will cease to disfigure entire sections, once nationwide vigil exists, it is declared in a statement issued by the institute from its national headquarters.

Distinctive Ornamentation

An interesting chimney will often give distinction to an otherwise hope less design. Ornamental balconies, railings, shutters, awnings and flower boxes are used to similar purpose.

Dancing Worse Than Athletics, Educator Says

Kingston, Ont .-- College studies suffer more from students' dancing than from athletics, says Dr. W. Hamilton Fyfe, principal of Queen's university. Dr. Fyfe admits, however, that "it would be a waste of words to deplore at length the excessive demands of dancing upon the time of some students." Athletic students are better students than those who spend their spare time dancing, he declares.

HE house of the Crandalls in Wittegar street was one of those massive brick-and-stone affairs that looked as if it had been built and passed on for a few generations from father to son. And so it had, except in the case of the Crandall branch now in occupancy, it had been a case of from father to daughter. Martha Crandall had married Deeping Johnson in her father's home and remained there after her marriage, and after the death of the elder Cran-Martha Crandall Johnson's daughter Adeline had been born in that same house, in the same stodgy, high-ceiling, wainscoated bedroom in which she herself was born.

It was a somber house, heavy woodwork, wooden pillars between archways, folding doors, long halls, pierglasses, hot-air furnace, push windowhangings, balcony-fronted china closets, hatracks, what-nots, great bronze figures for bric-a-brac, and a bronze clock with two bronze warriors for the centerpiece on the parlor mantel. And yet withal, there was within this house, the feeling of stability. Its silent old walls had soaked into their timbers the emotions of sane, steadygoing folks.

You felt about the house of the Crandalls that the people who inhabited it had not made their money overnight, so to speak. Crandalls, ever since Crandalls had lived there, had been able to afford the substantial things of life.

Little Adeline Crandall Johnson grew up in that environment, as blithely as if the somber old house had been a rose garden. She flitted through its halls. She danced through its dark corridors as brilliantly as a butterfly, caught in some strange netherworld environment. Her parents, her staid, cotton merchant of a father and her mother Martha Crandall, who had been reared to be stolid, marveled at the electrical kind of brilliancy of this girl, their child. They marveled, and it was as if they warmed their icy fingers around the luminous flame of her personality. She was something so alien to them and yet so incalculably fascinating. She had been born in the chill autumns of their lives, when Martha was forty-two and her husband fifty. Almost any way you looked at her she was a phenomenon, the last creature in the world you would have expected to spring from the union of two such angular souls at Martha Crandall and Deeping Johnson.

Unconscious of the incongruity of her young presence in the deep brown plush of the Crandall-Johnson environment, Adeline rushed into the flush of her adolescence.

By this time the Crandall-Johnsons

flowed around them in rivers brown

By the time Adeline's baby girl was born, the young pair were part and parcel of the house located on Wittegar street. It cannot be said for Jacques Stendhal that he was of the stuff that parents would select as the hushand of a loved daughter. He was a frail fellow, probably in character, too. A constitutional dilettante, unstable by nature, playful, and in a way that was forever to be adorable to Adeline, dependent upon her for decision. Then, too, he loved her. There was no doubt of that. This volatile

Frenchman, full of traditions that were alien to the very life and being of Adeline, had one quality of stability that was impeccable. He loved Adeline. It was curious, but within that household, slowly, surely, steadily, as relentlessly as the progress of a Greek drama, unspoken plans for the destiny of Adeline Stendhal began to shape themselves in the mind of Martha Crandall and her husband Deeping Johnson.

This catastrophe that had come to them was not to be borne. This frail, blond, volatile, young outsider, with the stage-like name of Jacques Stendhal, music teacher, was not to be endured within the substantial walls of the Crandall mansion. And it must be admitted, that as time marched on, Jacques himself gave justification to their enormous resentments against him. He twaddled away his days. After his marriage, his slight income from the teaching of piano, fell off entirely. It was nothing for him to spend hours on end in the narrow strip of garden behind the Crandall house, dandling his baby girl on his knees. In vain Adeline, as if she sensed the menace that was forming between them. pleaded with him to stabilize his life: to either resume his own profession of piano instruction, or adapt himself to some form of work in her father's vast cotton organizations

It was no use. To all intents and purposes, Adeline had married a ne'erdo-well.

When the baby was three years old, a phantom of delight if ever there was one, affairs in that household began to shape themselves toward a climax. For thirty months Jacques Stendhal had not turned his hand in an earning capacity, the threats, the aspersions, the abhorrence of his parents-in-law notwithstanding. For thirty months, until her sweet eyes were rimmed with weeping, Adeline had importuned, begged, coaxed. And to what end? To the end that after these importunings, Jacques, remorseful for the moment, would promise, and the scene would end in one of play; the young father, the young mother, their child between them romping in their youth and vitality through the somber rooms of the somber mansion. It was at the end of the fourth year, however, that the older Crandalls did succeed in creating a schism. It was finally borne in upon even Adeline herself that life with this play boy was

Since adopting the muzzling method three years ago, little difficulty has been experienced with calf scours. A large breeding establishment in New York state at that time was losing most of the calves with scours and related complications. After adopting muzzles they have lost but few calves. Where little or no trouble is experienced, Mr. Crawford says, such a strict system of management is unwarranted. But where valuable stock is grown, and diseases make losses, the system deserves a trial and it is good economy to observe every detail. A strict sanitation program outlined by Dr. D. H. In order to determine what price attached. can be paid for a feed and which feed will be the cheapest to buy, the dairyman must appreciate what type of feeds he has on hand and what type of feeds he needs to balance them. Feeds should be purchased not by the price per ton but by the price per pound of the necessary digestible feed elements. Unfortunately the feed store man merely tells us the price per ton or per bushel and the dairyman must use his judgment.

Before the christening the monster was brought to life by the inflation of twelve of its cells with helium gas, enough to raise it about ten feet from its cradle. It was then "walked" sideways forty feet and secured as in actual operation by sand ballast, so it was really afloat when Mrs. Hoover set free the homing pigeons to carry messages of the event to the various navy stations.

The trials of the Akron will take place in the latter part of August or early in September, under supervision of a board of inspection and survey. They will consist of five or six flights of various duration, including one of forty-eight hours, to determine speeds, fuel consumption, endurance, structural integrity of parts and other details of performance and handling.

If the trials prove satisfactory the Navy department will accept the Akron and have it flown to Lakehurst for commissioning and docking.

MORE trouble for the federal farm board developed during the week in the form of "civil war." It is now under fire from within its own ranks as the result of the fight between the farmers' National Grain corporation and the Farmers' Union Terminal association of St. Paul, on the one hand, and the Northwest Grain association on the other.

-Jike others, the Northwest Grain association protests that the government's helping hand is not being stretched out to all alike. Ten other co-operatives and farm organizations have supported a resolution to that effect.

. The side the board has taken is that of the management of the Farmers' National. Chairman James C. Stone reiterated that the board would not finance competition among the northwest co-operatives, which was tantamount to saying that the Northwest Grain association must come into line or it will not have its loan renewed.

ley of Mayville, Bruce Malcolm and "Bright" and "dull" children are often incorrectly labeled, according to Dr. Joseph Miller, director of guidance in the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) schools. The former are frequently just glib, while the so-called dull children often are normally intelligent, but are slow of speech and shy.

Arkansas Diamonds The Arkansas diamond mine in Pike county has produced several thousand diamonds equal in color to the best produced in other parts of the world and 1 per cent harder than the hardest from other parts of the world. In the Arkansas diamond mines the gems have been found "in place" as the geologists put it, and nowhere else on this hemisphere have they been so found.

Shrewd New Englanders

Throughout the Colonial period and during the first decades of national independence the economic life of New England was centered in the shipbuilding trade and in commerce. After the adoption of the embargo and other restrictive trade measures, the shrewd men turned their capital from shipping to manufacture. They realized that in this section was an almost unexploited source of wealth in an abundant water supply.

Picturesque Canada

In the province of Quebec many old French customs still prevail. Few European cities are more romantic than the city of old Quebec with its glorious view from the citadel. Montreal, the largest city in the Dominion, is the third largest French-speaking city in the world.

Runner and Skater

Whether a man can run as fast as a person can skate on ice depends upon conditions and length of race. The 100-yard skating record is 9 2-5 seconds, and the record for the 100-yard dash is the same. Over a longer course the skater makes the better time.

Many Uses for Cactus

Cactus plants are now used to produce various drugs, soap, cleaners, water softeners and a boiler compound. which is the latest commercial product of the desert plant and has proved a boon in cleaning and purifying heating systems.

While the row goes back to fundamental differences between the two groups, the more immediate cause of the crisis lies in the recent policy of the Farmers' National to take over the marketing activities of the twenty-five co-operatives composing its list of stockholder members.

The Farmers' Union Terminal association was the first co-operative in the Farmers' National and it now owns 30 per cent of the Farmers' National stock outstanding. Acceding in the program of the central organization, it sold out its marketing facilities to the Farmers' National. The Northwest Grain association, however. refused to sell. Briefly, it gave as its reason that with the power exercised by the Farmers' Union Terminal association in the National and the close ties existing between the terminal association and the National management, it soon would be forced entirely out of the picture.

DRESIDENT HOOver, in a long conference at his Virginia week-end camp with Secretary of Labor Doak, virtually completed his plans for the organization of government and charitable agencies to care for the unemployed and others in distress during the Sec'y Doak. coming winter. Mr. Hoover is unchanged in his opposition to anything like a dole, or direct government assistance, and will continue to rely on organized charity. He is willing, however, that the army should be used as a distributing agency, as it is in the times of flood disasters, and to communities where distress is acute there will be loans of army blankets and supplies. The Red Cross will be, as heretofore, the backbone of the relief organization.

Mr. Doak presented to the President a report from the recent survey of conditions throughout the country. Neither of them would make public. the estimate of the number of people who would be out of work during the coming winter, but both admitted that it would be little different from last year.

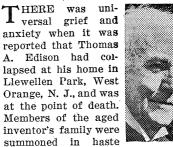

However, it was learned that the President, as head of the Red Cross, has directed the Red Crosssto start a new drive to raise funds and that the machinery has already been set in mo-of the problem, but the prospects of reaching an agreement were said to be small.

Through Ambassador Sackett the suggestion was made to Berlin that Germany purchase large amounts of wheat and cotton now held by the federal farm board, and it was promised that long-term credits would be arranged. The administration in Washington thought, this would both aid Germany and relieve the farm board, and the idea was well received in Berlin. Germany is especially eager to get American cotton and for this reason might also take the wheat, although unofficial reports said she had already contracted with Rumania for wheat. She needs, in addition to her own production about 25,000,000 bushels of the grain.

When it seemed such a deal might be put through, objections to the sale of the farm board's cotton to Germany came from the southern producers. Senator William J. Harris of Georgia said he had received a protest to the effect that such a sale would tend to depress the world price of cotton and that the policy of the farm board should be to hold its cotton and encourage purchases direct from the producers. There were indications, too, that some foreign countries would oppose the wheat and cotton proposal on the ground that it would be tantamount to dumping and would put Germany in an advantageous position over and his personal physician, Dr. H. S. Howe, sped to his bedside by airplane. Mr. Edison was indeed in a precarious state, but three doctors after thorough examination, said he was not in immediate danger of death. In his order the governor defended Branch his actions on the grounds that he is protecting the natural resources of the state. A considerable portion of the proclamation was given to an at- igan. tack on the Harry Sinclair interests. The governor charged that Sinclair attempted to bribe forty members of the Branch spent the week-end at their legislature and to impeach the governor; that Sinclair maintained a large oil lobby during the last session of the legislature and that the Sinclair company has continually attempted to break down proration of production.

T WAS an eventful week in aviation. Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh flew up beyond the Arctic circle with success and precision and rested at Aklavik before proceeding to Point Barrow. Parker Cramer was found to be making an unannounced flight to Norway by the northern route, the news breaking when he landed at Angmagsalik, Greenland. He was attempting to blaze an air mail route to Copenhagen for the Trans-American Airlines. Herndon and Pangborn reached Tokio on their world circling flight, and planned to try for a nonstop trip from there to Seattle. Just before their arrival in the Japanese capital Amy Johnson, the English aviatrix, also landed there.
