MISS METCALF BRIDE OF GRANT PINNEY

The auditorium of S. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit, was the scene Friday evening, Sept. 4, of the wedding of Miss Lillian C. Metcalf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Metcalf of Detroit and Mr. E. Grant Pinney, son of Mrs. Edward Pinney and the late Edward Pinney of Cass City. Dean O'Farrell was the officiating clergy-

The bride was attired in an ivory satin-gown fashioned on princess lines, with long lace veil arranged in a tight cap. She was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Lamb, as matron of honor. Mrs. Lamb's gown was in green. Misses Elizabeth and Patricia Pin-

HUNDRED ATTEND STRIFFLER REUNION

Descendants of Six Families Feasted and Made Merry on Labor Day

At the reunion of the Henry Striffler family held during the summer of 1930, it was decided to enlarge the scope of the invitation list and include Jacob Berkowitz vs. James Daily and Mrs. Bertha Karr of Rochester, all of the Striffler families in that relationship. Accordingly, on Labor Day of 1931, descendants of Henry Jacob, Joseph, Christian, Susan and John Striffler gathered with their "inlaws" at the Assembly grounds at Sebewaing for a clan reunion. Dinner was served in the spacious dining room to nearly 100 persons.

CELEBRATED MRS.

From Ellington-Novesta Corre-

A happy occasion took place at the home of Chas. McConnell on Sunday when several relatives and friends celebrated the 80th birthday of Mrs. Thos. McVeigh.

The guests were seated at a long table decorated with pink asters and snapdragons in deep red, rust and yellow, and the centerpiece was a beautiful birthday cake in pink and white with many candles. Two sons of Mrs. McVeigh, Ira and Gaylord Shagena, and three daughters, Mrs. Dan McClorey, Mrs. Chas. McConnell and Mrs. John Mudge, were present. Two sons and a daughter, who are in the East, were unable to be present.

Guests included Carl McConnell, Miss Berniece Neitz and Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Real Life Dime Novel $30,000 a Week Girl Brave, Patient China A Smart Young Girl

Dime novels, no longer printed, occur in life's reality.

Charles M. Rosenthal, young broker, was kidnaped, $100,000 demanded. He won $50,000 from his kidnapers at poker, got their I. O. U.s, reducing the ransom to $50,000, which his mother paid. The kidnaping "bait" was a "pretty young woman, of light complexion, found living with a big, very big, black negro." She was of negro blood.

When the kidnaped young man won $50,000 at poker, two kidnapers voted to shoot him. Numbers on the ransom bills caught the kidnapers, the light colored young lady, and recovered $16,-830 of the ransom.

Is not that a super-dime novel?

Motion picture exhibitors say "Hollywood should be deflated," whatever that means, and object, especially, to the salary of one young picture lady, supposed to get $30,000 a week. Perhaps she doesn't get so much, but if she does get it she earns it.

The laborer is worthy of her hire, even under Klieg lights.

Exhibitors want pictures that will fill theaters. If any actor can be worth $30,000 a week, everybody should be grateful.

Nothing is cheaper, no matter what it earns, than the exceptional person-

An American from China admires "the Chinese dogged patience and courage even in terrific floods that have made thirty millions homeless, fifteen millions destitute."

It seems strange that after 5,000 years of civilization China has not learned to control the Yang-tse and other great rivers.

Then we remember humbly that with all our machinery and money we haven't learned to control the Mississippi.

Machinery will do it eventually, however, and as the late William Boyce Thompson predicted, will store up surplus flood waters in some inland sea, saving them for use in drought.

probably fair. The American Chemical society, gathered at Buffalo, N. Y., is told by Professors Smyth of Princeton, Andrews of Johns Hopkins and Drury of Columbia university that with the radio men can hear the "dance of the finite"-in other words, the noise made by molecules and atoms as they move mysteriously. Each atom "sings its own melody and dances its own individual dance." The ancients talked of the "music of the spheres," meaning music produced by the rolling stars.

Man may become a complex animal one ear listening to atoms, and the other to suns a million million times as big as the earth; one eye studying infinity through the telescope, the other the finite "infra-world" through the microscope.

At the same time both ears and both eyes will tell him what is going on in his neighborhood. All interesting, but you hardly have

An able Du Pont company chemist has developed a "synthetic dress goods fiber, like silk.'

The process sounds like "Alice in Wonderland," including castor oil, ethylene, glycol, carbon, hydrogen, oxygen.

Synthetic silk is said to be "at least as good as real silk," and silk worms, dropped into hot water to make their coccoons unwind, will be glad to hear that. When will the Du Ponts announce "synthetic rubber" at $20 a

The Pullman company, on its "Sportsmen's Train" of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, installs foot rests for travelers. They ride comfortably, with feet raised, legs stretched out, leaning back, according to the American habit. A good idea. Our great American trouble is heart disease and the Pullman foot rest will help that. When your feet are up and you lean back, the blood flows horizontally, instead of perpendicularly, and the strain on your heart is

OIL WELL ACCIDENT MADE POST AVIATOR

Compensation for Lost Eye Paid for First Plane.

New York .- A man who "didn't give a hang" about anything but aviation and another whose earliest life had been bent toward charting difficult courses, have flown into world renown because of an oil well accident.

Wiley Post and Harold Gatty-born on different sides of the world and to different modes of living-were friends mainly through the fact that both lived and suffered through the cause of aviation in the last few

Wiley Post lost an eye in an oil field accident in Oklahoma. That gave him $2,000 compensation, and his first airplane—the start of his flying career that brought this famous flight.

Harold Gatty trained in the Australian naval academy as a navigator, charted courses on the South seas as a youth in his teens, became interested in aviation and after one unsuccessful transoceanic attempt joined Post in this around-the-world undertaking. Post was born at Grand Plain, Texas. In his youth he moved with his family to Maysville, Okla., a small town outside of Oklahoma City, where the elder Post built up a farm. But Wiley wasn't much good on the farm. He disliked it. His father often remarked that Wiley "just didn't give a hang."

in Days of Oil Boom. But that was in the days of the oil boom in Oklahoma. Jobs beckoned from the rich oil fields. Wiley tried them. He worked on a number of such jobs, the while completing uis early education.

Then on one oil job there was an accident. A piece of metal struck Wiley in the eye. He lost the sight of that member. The oil company gave him $2,000 compensation and with that Post bought a "crate" and started barnstorming with Burrel Tibbs and

For three years he was a "barnstormer" and his adventures and experiences were many—just as they were with other barnstormers of that period, including such famous flyers as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Never has Post been hurt, although he has taken all sorts of chances. F. C. Hall, backer of this sturdy Oklahoman, takes up Wiley's story from there. "One day he came into my office with a leather cap in his hand and said he wanted to be my pilot," Hall remarked. "He said he'd be heartbroken if he didn't get the job. What was I to do but let him have it."

Wiley got the job. Subsequently through Hall he got the plane now the Winnie Mae. It was named the Winnie Mae after Hall's daughter and cost $22,000. And in that plane he won the Los Angeles-Chicago air derby in 1930 with an average speed of 192 miles an hour. World Flight His Goal. But a world flight was his goal. His

And so the start was made in a search for a navigator with Post going down to Oklahoma one day with Harold Gatty, a navigator from Los Angeles. Hall didn't know who Gatty was > but said: "If Wiley wants him, all right,"

The navigator was born at Campbelltown, Tasmania, January 5, 1903. At thirteen he entered the Jervis bay naval school, the royal Australian school which corresponds to the United States Naval academy.

For four years Gatty studied navigation. He learned the intricate charting of the South seas. He served town. four years as a merchant marine navigator, then went aboard a private yacht as a navigator.

NATIONAL PARK TO HAVE NOVEL WEAPON

Tourists May See the Ancient Blowgun of Cherokees.

Chicago.-When Uncle Sam opens up his new national park in the Great Smoky mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee he is going to have within this magnificent playground that cannot be equaled in any other national park in the country, says the Izaak Walton league in a recent conservation bulletin.

This peculiar gun is none other than the blowgun, that primitive, nine foot, hollow, tube-like weapon through which the Cherokee Indians blow 18inch arrows "feathered" with thistle down. Some of these quaint old weapons which are nine feet long and which have counterparts among the savage tribes of South America and the South seas, still can be found in the possession of the Cherokee Indian nation living in western North Carolina. The reservation of this tribe is in the heart of the picturesque Smokeys where the Cherokees live in roughhewn cabins, till the valleys and mountain slopes and hunt.

Campers, fishermen, automobile tourists and other outdoor fans who want to see one of these curious old-style guns which depend on lung power and a good "blow" instead of on gunpowder for its force, can do so by driving from Bryson City, N. C., to the Indian town of Cherokee in the heart of the reservation. Several of the old Indians, champion blowgunners of former days, usually can be induced to domonstrate the shooting power of the house on West St. to the Mrs. Bessie blowgun which originally was used to Holt place on Third St. kill small game.

From Tame Bear to Wild-How Long Does It Take?

Chicago.—How long does it take for a tame bear to go wild? Residents of the village of Seney, Mich. are puzzling over the question as they receive nightly visits from Ted, a big black bear who knocks at back doors for chocolate bars, cake, doughnuts or any other food scraps he can get.

Ted and Nellie, his playmate of last year, were very tame and used to entertain visitors to Seney when they were kept in captivity in the heart of the town. Then Ted slipped his collar and took to the woods. The lure of being the "playboy of the forest" is too much for him by days. He stays in the woods. But regularly each night he stalks into town to beg for food and then he displays the startling trick of peering in a front windemand for a snack.

Meantime, Seney residents still love Ted, but they are inclined to temper one finds out how long it takes a tame bear to go wild.

Larger Crop of Wool Is Forecast for 1931

Washington.-Production of wool in the United States this year is expected to surpass last year's because of the increased stock and more favorable weather conditions, the bureau of agricultural economics here announced, but the world's wool crop is expected to be smaller. This, it was pointed out, will increase the value of domestic wool clips.

Wool production in the southern hemisphere fell off from its abnormally large supple of last year and is now just below normal, the bureau said. The wool production of the British possessions continue slightly above normal.

Police Stumped; Cannot Silence Croaking Frogs

Winchester, Mass. - Police Chief William H. Rogers, accustomed to restraining dogs, rescuing cats and performing kindred services just recently received a complaint which, officially speaking, is still "on the table." It was the appeal of a woman who wanted the police department to keep the frogs from croaking at night in the Mystic lakes. Thus far the chief has been unable to discover a satisfactory frog silencer.

PERSHING STILL IS HERO TO FRENCHMEN

A. E. F. Commander Is Busy With Monument Work.

Paris.—Gen. John J. Pershing, whose whitening hair and erect military figure still afford a thrill to Frenchmen and foreigners, is occupied with postwar services which makes his day a round of arduous duties here.

With Foch, Joffre, Haig, Wilson, Clemenceau, Serrail and Mangin gone, Pershing's easy gait and familiar face, grown softer and more amiable with the years, recall memories of more than a decade ago.

Pershing spends much of his time these days with the officials of the-American battle monuments commission and is lending a guiding hand to the completion of the 14 notable memorials which commemorate America's participation in the war. His services are sought for almost every important Franco-American activity, and he must exercise the greatest tact in accepting places on committees. Entertained by Doumer.

Not the least important part of Pershings' time is that spent with his old comrades of the war, who are still liquidating the aftermath of the war. One of President Doumer's first luncheons was given in Pershing's honor. The American has infinite respect for the venerable Frenchman. white-bearded aristocratic senator. who lost three sons in the war. At this luncheon were many of the great soldiers about whom Pershing spoke frankly in his war book. There were General Weygand and General Gourang, Minister of War Maginot, former French Ambassador Berenger and Col. Bentley Mott, associated with so much of the Herrick regime in Paris and biographer of the late ambassa-

National Hero.

General Pershing's prestige seems to increase in Paris as years roll on. The tough job he had during the war required a tough, unflinching soldier, They said Pershing was too much of a disciplinarian: that is, those who needed to be disciplined.

But when Pershing rode up Fifth avenue one bright afternoon at the head of the returning American army he was not the cold disciplinarian; he was the national hero.

General Pershing, at seventy-one years of age, is perhaps no longer considered as a Presidential possibility, but his knowledge of national and local politics still is keen.

Icebergs Disappearing From Northern Atlantic

Montreal.—Icebergs no longer are a scenic attraction of the St. Lawrence route. They are disappearing. Last year 440 icebergs were reported in the areas of north Atlantic travel. This season only two small bergs have made their appearance and they were so distant from the recognized steamship lanes that they failed altogether as a spectacle.

It is suggested that drought over a large area of this continent prevented the accumulation of sufficient water in the North to produce the usual supply of bergs, and the novel idea is mooted that it may soon become advisable for steamship companies to anchor a few bergs off the Straits of Belle Isle for the benefit of passengers. Enterprising purveyors may, it is said, soon be advertising in the columns of tourist journals, "Icebergs for sale."

Hotel Proud of Bullet Hole Made by Outlaws

Longview, Texas.-A bullet hole in the frame wall of the old Magnolia hotel today serves as a memento of the visit of Bob Dalton, famous outlaw of the Southwest, to Longview in

The slug bored through the pine one summer day when Dalton and his band galloped into what is now the east Texas oil capital to rob a bank. Citizens opened fire and a pitched battle followed.

The engagement ended when Dalton and his men fled.

Another boast of the Magnolia hotel is that its rates today are the same as they were in 1911. Even the east Texas oil boom has failed to increase them.

Two Million British

People Take Up Hiking London.—Hikers in England now number more than 2,000,000, according to a recent estimate by J. E. Walsh, editor of the Hiker and Camper. The steady increase in the number of hikers is seen by Walsh as a revolt against modern industrial conditions, the workers fleeing to the country during the week-end to escape the noise of the city. The popularity of hiking, it is said, also has brought a better understanding between the villager and the city

Smaller City Has No Need for "Skyscrapers"

Large cities, have carried concentration too far and must begin to think in terms of decentralization, Cass Gilbert, New York architect, recently told the members of the Society of Arts and Sciences when they presented him with the society's gold medal for inaugurating the age of skyscrapers with the Woolworth building. He also intimated that skyscrapers will not last indefinitely.

Discussing the problems of modern cities in relation to skyscrapers, Mr. Gilbert said:

"I doubt if skyscrapers are desirable for small cities, for they reduce property values by drawing tenants from surrounding buildings, just as they do in large cities, only with more serious economic consequences. As to whether the skyscraper, per se, is cause or effect, I have leave that discussion in the competent hands of those who discuss whether the hen or egg came first.

Transportation is the pulse of urban life. As transportation provides access business will develop. When business develops, then land is valuable. When land is valuable, buildings will arise.

"The architects for 30 years have been advocating the development of city plans adequate for the future which they clearly foresaw. Trained to plan even more than to construct, they clearly foresaw the need, but only recently has the public begun to awaken to that need."

Combine Planned for

linking architects, builders, bankers and workers, is to be a major aim of of the American Institute of Architects during 1931, according to the annual report of the committee, of which William Orr Ludlow, New York architect,

Establishment of credit associations for the guidance of the building industry in distinguishing between financially responsible and irresponsible firms is also projected. Holding that "labor's part in building has never been properly recognized," the committee will continue its efforts to secure recognition of superior craftsmanship.

The committee also seeks united action to relieve unemployment and to inform the public of the advantage of building now, while costs are from 15 to 20 per cent below normal.

Modern City Planning

Today we would not be satisfied with a city planned wholly by an engineer; it might be an efficient city, but it would not be beautiful. Beauty is a more important factor in our lives than efficiency, and that applies to radios and automobiles as well as cities and regions.

People buy radios and automobiles for their beauty as well as for their efficiency; people move out of cities, planned for efficiency, into the country because of the seauty of the surroundings. They would rather spend two hours on the train and live in the country than 15 minutes each day and live in the city.

Areas around large cities must provide pleasant places in which to live; and if our citizenry is to develop in a normal way we must see to it that the areas best suited for homes are maintained exclusively for that purpose. The plans should provide for reservations, parks, parkways, zoning and rail transportation.—Exchange.

Garden Worth While

It cannot be denied that plants are what we most desire in a garden, plants arrayed in such a manner that they enhance the design. So it is that we may look to "modernism" in the garden: design in new forms, but with the same old plants. What will these new forms be?

A garden magazine recently published sketches for a garden in the "modern" style, designed for a house in the modern style. An article accompanied the illustration and in this it was explained that there are three principles which make the modern garden essentially different from any ever designed before. These three principles are simplicity, unity and low cost of upkeep.

Effective Campaigning

The time has come to stress roadside beautification as much as safety, as the Pennsylvania Federation of Garden clubs and the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty have been doing for a long time. The women of this state deserve every encouragement in their campaign for the elimination of roadside signs and the further beautification of the landscape by planting flowers and trees along our main highways. Organizations of motorists, civic clubs and other groups are also participating in this good work, and their efforts must eventually prevail.—Philadelphia Record.

Preserving Roadside Beauty

Nevada is the only state in the Union having laws regulating the erection of signboards. No permit is issued for signs that will measurably mar the roadside beauty, or obstruct

HOW=

ESCAPE IS MADE EASY FOR SUBMARINE CREWS. — The English have a new method of escaping from sunken submarines. Their experts have developed a safety dress containing a breathing bag. The bag is a breathing bag. The bag is equipped with a small cylinder of oxygen and a cartridge of soda lime, the latter to absorb the poisonous carbonic acid gas of the exhaled breath. Plans are now under way to equip every member of British submarine crews with this safety device (it takes the place of our navy's diving "lung"). Should a submarine sink, every man would immediately don his safety dress. Then the hull of the underseas craft would be flooded to equalize the water pressure inside and out so the hatch could be opened. Once the hatch is open the crew can pass out in their safety dress and rise to the surface, none the worse for the experience. Such safety equipment has already been successfully tested to depths of 130

How Science Has Made Cottonseed of Value

Doctor Skinner, assistant chief of the unit in charge of chemical and technological research in the bureau of chemistry and soils, says that the utilization of cottonseed has been one of the most spectacular examples of progress in the disposal of what was once a crop waste. "At the time of the Civil war," he says, "cottonseed was a waste product and disposal was a real problem. By 1870 it was recognized as a fertilizer. By 1880 the value of cottonseed meal as a cattle feed had been recognized. By 1890, thanks to the ingenuity of the chemist, methods had been developed whereby the unsightly, ill-smelling, offensive crude cottonseed oil was converted into snow-white, sweet-smelling, pleasantthe committee on industrial relations tasting, hard fat or shortening material.

"This latest development was made possible by the efforts of a research chemist, hidden away in his cloistered laboratory, juggling his molecules and atoms, cutting out an atom from a molecule, much as you would cut an eye out of a potato, or hanging an atom onto a molecule, much as you would hang your hat on a rack. The hard, white pastry shortening made from cottonseed oil is known chemically as a hydrogenated fat; that is, a hydrogen atom by chemical legerdemain has been hung onto a molecule of vegetable oil, and thereby changes the physical properties of the original product better to suit the purposes of man."

How Pineapples Are Grown

Propagation of pineapples is usually accomplished by means of slips or suckers, although crowns and other vegetative parts of the plants are sometimes used. The plant growths from buds on the fruit stalk near the base of the fruit are known as "slips," while the tuftlike growth at the top of the fruit is called a "crown." Slips appearing at the apex of the fruit just below the crown are called "crown slips." In 1860 Benjamin Baker of Key West obtained a number of slips from Havana and started a small experimental pineapple patch on Plantation Key, Fla. This is the earliest recorded successful planting of pineapple in the state.

The pineapple occasionally produces seeds. These are rarely used except for experimental purposes. It takes several years to produce a mature plant from a seed.

How Regiment Got Name

The origin of the "Black Watch" dates from 1729, when a number of loyal Highlanders were embodied forming six independent companies and constituted a part of the regular army. They wore the dress of their country, a tartan of dark color which gained for them the Gaelic appellation of Freicudan Du-that is, Black Watch, in contradistinction to regular troops who wore scarlet coats and were called Seidaran Dearag or Red Soldiers.

How Granite Is Cut

By soaking wooden pegs in water until thoroughly saturated and driving them into holes drilled about three inches apart in th granite. The wood is kept soaked and its swelling breaks the block out the desired size. Granite cannot be cut like the majority of building stones, with saws, but is worked first with large hammers and then with pointed chisels.

How to Protect Books

The binding of a book may be protected from stains and finger marks drying out and scratching by rubbing it lightly with wax. Even water will not harm the cover of a book so treated. Every one has seen old leather books which have begun to crack and peel; an occasional waxing would have prevented this damage.

How Air Is "Weighed"

Air, like all other substances, has weight, although it is very light. A column of air an inch square extending from sea level upward as far as the atmosphere goes weighs only about 15 pounds. Theoretically, an automobile tire filled with air is heavier than the same tire from which the air has been removed.—Exchange.

Monday, under the influence of a strong east wind, the water in the river was more than four feet lower than normal, and there, sticking up from a mud bank 16 feet from shore, grinned a human skull. Pasterz was first to see it and, urged by his companion. Galisinski dug the skull out of the mud and threw it on shore. The skull was filled with mud from the river bottom. but the boys cleaned it and took it to Detective Geddes. For days Geddes had the skull, but all efforts at identification were futile. Friday, from an anonymous source, came a clue might be that of Francis Blasius. Saturday friends of the Tuscola county farmer who had known him for many years were called to the court house to attempt identification.

Cass river near Saginaw is accounted from the stalk and husked. for by Detective Geddes through the fact that the river flows about eight miles from the Blasius farm in Tuscola county. It is believed that if Blasius were murdered and his body weighted on the bottom of the Cass ried a considerable distance in five years by the river's current.

The features aiding friends in their identification were that Blasius, though a man of more than six feet in height and weighing approximately 185 pounds, had an unusually small head, that his teeth were in perfect condition, none of them having cavities, and were large and prominent. Most of the teeth remain in the skull and the missing ones show that they had dropped out, as the sockets are uninjured. One molar had been removed years ago, friends said, and the skull shows a molar missing by extraction. Blasius also had a gold crowned tooth. One front tooth is gone from the skull, but the others are perfectly preserved.

Further attempts at identification before an effort is made to further the solution of the five-year-old mystery.

With the exception of the dancing girls of the country, the Korean women wear no head covering other than their hair and this is twisted in the shape of a coil on top of the head to act as a pad in order that they may balance rather heavy bundles upon their heads. The first American poet, according to Francis C. MacDonald of Princeton university, was Philip Freneau, who became known as "The Poet of the Revolution" for his satirical verse of a political nature. He also wrote a few lyrics in the Eighteenth-century tradition, but was more in the public eye because of the "First Poet" cigar, sold until a few decades ago.

SELECT SEED CORN FROM BEST PLANTS

Picking Ears from Standing Stalks Helps Rid Fields of Poor Yielding Strains.

Time spent in selecting seed corn from the field before the corn is killed by frost will help to eliminate the undesirable types of plants in next year's crop.

The plant which bears the ear of corn furnishes at least 50 per cent of the inherited characteristics possessed that led Geddes to believe the skull by the seed, and, if the corn plant is weak or diseased, it is quite probable that the ear from that stalk will furnish seed that will also produce undesirable plants. It is impossible to tell what kind of a plant produced an The presence of the skull in the ear after the ear has been separated

The tendency for corn to smut varies greatly among individual plants. Some strains of corn plants have smutty ears and some have smut only on the tassels or on portions of the stalk. Seed from smutty ears will produce plants which have the same endency

All the seed needed for next year can be selected in a few hours, and the farmer will be sure of vigorous seed which will test and yield well.

Farm Board Ouits Buying Cotton as Well as Wheat-New Government Securities Marketed-Doings in Geneva.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD stabilization has finally been abandoned by the federal farm board, as a great many citizens believe it should have been long ago. Carl Williams, vice chairman of the board, announced that no further purchases of wheat or cotton would

RICE fixing by

Carl Williams. be considered under any circumstances. "Stabilization," said Mr. Williams, "is valuable in the face of temporary or seasonal surpluses. But the board has discovered, and it hopes that the American people have discovered, that continued purchases in the face of continued production is not a remedy for the agricultural situation."

The board's cessation of wheat buying had previously been announced. but the statement of its determination to withdraw from the cotton market was new, and was not pleasant news for the southern planters.

E. A. Cudahy, Jr., president of the Cudahy Packing company, gave notice that his company would invest 10 per cent of its southern sales up to December 1 in cotton bought on the open market the total to be thus invested heing estimated at about $1,000,000 The cotton will be held by the Cudahy company for one year if necessary, or until such time as cotton returns to 10 cents a pound. The first purchases were made at about 7 cents a pound.

WHATEVER the poor farm board does seem to anger a lot of Americans. The trade of wheat for coffee, with Brazil, appeared to be a wise move, but first the shipping interests wailed because the grain was to go in Brazilian ships; then the coffee dealers in the United States raised a loud howl that their trade would be injured; and now the Millers' National federation is up in arms. The reason for the protest of the millers is that Brazil, as one result of the wheat-coffee barter, has declared an embargo on all imports of flour for eighteen months. Most of the flour for South American export is milled in Buffalo, N. Y., and several southern cities, and the millers there will be hard hit by the embargo. And that isn't all. Argentina heretofore has been the granary for Brazil, and the deal with the farm board virtually kills the sale of nearly 10,000,000 bushels of Argentine grain to Brazil annually. The Argentine government has registered a formal protest in Washington, but of course the deal will go through anyhow.

If the farm board reaches terms with China for the sale of a lot of wheat on long term credit, it is possible some of the old shipping board vessels will be resuscitated to carry the grain and will then be sold in the orient. It is also suggested that this wheat be shipped in cotton bags, which would help, by 7,500,000 bags, in reducing the cotton surplus. It is figured this whole plan would give employment to much American labor.

No solution of the cotton problem has yet been reached. The Louisiana legislature, at the behest of Governor Long, passed a bill prohibiting the planting of cotton in 1932, with the provision that the governor might suspend it if states raising 75 per cent of the crop failed to adopt similar legislation. This put the matter up to Texas, producer of one-third of the nation's cotton crop, and the sentiment in that state appeared to be against Governor Long's scheme. For one thing, the cotton raisers of the South have neither the equipment nor the experience to raise any other ops.

GENEVA was swarming with statesmen and political scientists during the week. Economic experts from twentysix nations assembled there as a co-ordinating committee of the commission for European union, and the council of the League of Nations met on M. L. Litvinov. Tuesday; while the members of the League assembly were gathering for the sessions of that body beginning September 7. Most of the top notchers were in the Swiss city. and not the least nor the idlest was Maxim Litvinov, that wily and skillful statesman who is the Soviet commissar for foreign affairs.

The first thing this Russian did was to submit to the co-ordinating committee a proposal for a general non-aggression pact. Andre Francois-Poncet, French delegate, tried to have the plan referred to the economic committee of the league where it could be allowed to die, for France likes better the idea of separate non-aggression treaties. Litvinov, vigorously seconded by Doctor Curtius and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, insisted upon immediate action. The committee finally agreed to pass the plan over to a subcommittee which was to edit it and report back to the co-ordinating commit-

Senator Henri Beranger of France, former ambassador to Washington, told the co-ordinating committee that the isolation policy of the United States was obsolete. "American entanglement in world affairs is now complete," he said. "The penetration of American capital since the World war has made a 'European bloc' impossible, and provincialism appears to be a thing of the past for continents as well as for nations.

"Recent events demonstrated that the whole world is involved as soon as one nation is in peril. No state an be permitted to collapse without menacing all other states."

On the agenda of the league council was the proposed Austro-German customs union, but this seemed to be disposed of finally when the secretary of the league received from the World court at The Hague a verdict declaring the agreement was illegal, being in violation of the protocol of 1922 in which Austria specifically undertook to maintain her economic and political independence in return for financial assistance from the big powers.

SECRETARY of the Treasury Mellon placed on the market new government securities totaling $1,100,000,000 to start the fall financing campaign of the treasury. Treasury bonds for $800,-000,000 headed the list. They run for 20 to 24 years and bear 3 per cent interest, the lowest since the war. The rest of the total sum was made up of $300,000,000 of one-year treasury certificates of indebtedness bearing interest at the rate of 11/8 per cent.

It was revealed in Washington that the government would need probably all of this huge sum to retire maturing obligations and to finance treasury operations during the next quarter, which makes it apparent that the deficit at the end of the year will far exceed that for the last twelve months. In some quarters it is predicted that the deficit, taking into consideration the fact that there will be no war debt payments this year, will run above a billion and a quarter. The public debt during the course of the year, if no move is made to increase receipts, may be increased as much as a billion dol-

G REAT BRITAIN'S financial credit was restored when American and French bankers, led by J. P. Morgan, agreed to lend the government $400,-000,000 for one year. In America the loan -one-half of the total—was absorbed by the banks; but one

HINES, administrator of veterans' affairs, addressing the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Kansas City, asked on behalf of the government that all veterans' organizations refrain from asking congress for further legislation in their behalf until they have studied and determined the ultimate cost of relief acts on the law books. He noted that the government's annual outlay for benefits to former service men amount to about $900.000.000 and stressed what he termed the "inevitable trend" of all forms of veterans' aid toward increase above the initial expectations.

In the meantime, he said, the principal need of veterans is more jobs. He explained the bureau was working with the Labor department toward this | ELKLAND AND

"Wise men make proverbs: fools quote them," is often heard. Who made that one?

"Merrie England"

The original meaning of "merry" was pleasant or delightful, and it is with this meaning, rather than jolly or full of merriment, that the phrase "Merrie England" originated.

WHEN YOUTH IS DONE

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

T SOMETIMES seemed to Estelle Winters that she could reckon almost to the day, when the first realizations that she had reached specific milestone in her life had rushed over her.

It was not so much that her mirror told her that she was fading and that the jonquil-yellow of her hair was running to pallor or that her blue eyes were weakening, but there was a tolling note inside the heart of Estelle which said "youth is done," "youth is done," "youth is done."

A conspiracy of circumstances brought about this conscious termination of the golden glow that had always characterized Estelle Winters. Life had not been easy for her. Twenty years of singing in the cafes of the large cities of the Far West had exacted their tribute. Twenty years of the solitary struggle to rear in integrity and innocence, a girl-child with the beautiful name of Rosalinda, had told in strain on Estelle.

The latter she had accomplished and the latter she was willing to regard as her life work. Indeed, Rosalinda was a fair enough monument to anybody. At twenty she was like a flower, slim, lovely, fragile. And so it was that when Rosalinda was in this early bloom, Estelle Winters, her mother, taking inventory, so to speak, of her own face, her spirit, her vitality, came so poignantly to realize that her youth was done. The following year, Estelle, instead of flitting like a tired bird of plumage from one cafe to another, established herself quietly in a San Francisco cafe of first-rate standing as cashier.

It was a let-down, but it was a letting-down that somehow warmed and eased the tired, bruised spirit that was Estelle's. The struggle against the ever-widening crack in her voice was finished; the uneven race against the flesh of years, as it settled on her hips and shoulders, was over. Estelle could sit back quietly, now, noticing but unnoticed, and let the years roll in.

And more than all of these, Estelle could now keep fastened more firmly, her watchful eve on Rosalinda.

This girl, whom her mother yearned to protect from the disappointments that had been hers, was now also employed in the same cafe where Estelle held the throne of cashier.

Rosalinda's duties were light. noon she arrived, attired herself in a peasant costume that enhanced her loveliness, and moved with a tray of hot rolls in among the patrons of the cafe, offering her dainties as she slid by the tables. At six o'clock Rosalinda came on duty again, and was free to leave the restaurant with her mother somewhere shortly after ten

It meant that through all the workaday hours her mother's eves were on her. It meant they arrived together and they departed together. It meant that whatever secret ambitions lay smoldering in the heart of Estelle for the daughter Rosalinda, for the present, at least, her plans for the future were held in abeyance. Rosalinda was literally under her mother's thumb. as well as her eye. And the girl, sweet and submissive enough at twenty, and at the same time regarding her occupation as only a stepping stone toward the thing her heart craved, submitted because of the peace she realized she was able to afford Estelle.

They were rather a pathetic pair. The husbandless Estelle, the father-less Rosalinda. There had never been a husband. So far as Rosalinda could remember there had never been a father; just the two of them, playing their humble roles with a certain submission, and yet the younger of them with a quality of rebellion flaming in her blue eyes that had long since died down in the eyes of the THE Linkshow !.

It was hard to realize, after beholding the leveliness that was Rosalinda's, that this child had kept her innocence to a degree that was perfection. At twenty she lived like a little girl. At twenty, she had never been out in the company of a man without the chaperonage of her mother.

And it had not all been clear sailing. The eyes of men veered quickly to the loveliness that was Rosalinda's. Her presence in a room made them conscious. Seated in her corner behind her cashier's desk, the eyes of Estelle were relentless in their watchfulness. If ever a girl was protected by the bulwark of fierce loving, jealous, panther-like watchfulness, that girl was Rosalinda,

There was not a recess of the be ing of this girl that Estelle did not feel herself capable of understanding. As Rosalinda sometimes admitted to her mother, it was as if the older woman sensed, almost before the girl herself, the nature of her ambitions, secret desires, yearnings.

And the secret desires of Rosalinda's were not just those of the average girl becoming aware of her love-

It was not unnatural in the face of things, in fact it would have been more unnatural if it had not happened so, that the youthful and beauteous Rosalinda should finally find herself confronted with one of the emotional climaxes sure to befall a creature of her caliber Curious, but across the room, within her lair, Estelle Winters knew everything that was happening, just as concisely as if she were present there beside the table of the well-known figure of the sportsman-art connoisseur, Hiram Bridges. From her lair, Estelle with her hand to her throat, saw this happening; with her eyes dilated saw this happening. What is more, she saw happening across the sweet face of Rosalinda, the first faint flushes of awakening. When Hiram Bridges left the restaurant that night, elated with his conquest of a type that was alluring to him, there confronted him in the corridor the pale, washed-out figure of a woman who caused him to stare. "Yes. Hiram, it's who you think it is," said Estelle, a little tiredly, none of the melodrama of the mon.ent in her manner or her voice. "Why, it's twenty years, since-

"Twenty-one years," she corrected, her glance sliding way toward the remote figure of Rosalinda. "That makes her twenty."

"Who twenty?" "The girl you are meeting lateryour daughter," said Estelle. Rosalinda radiant, more beautiful than ever in her innocence, is studying for grand opera in Italy. An internationally known sportsman and art connoisseur, who has never seen her since that night in the restaurant, is educating her.

Famous Danish Castle

Notwithstanding its rather remote position on the Island of Jutland in Denmark, on the banks of the Limfjord, Castle Spottrup has lured many visitors to its walls of recent years. been forgotten, it has been there for many centuries, and is one of the best double-moated castles of Europe. Its dividing bulwark of earth on the eastern side reaches almost to the eaves of the structure, and, with its grassclad ramparts, adds immensely to the impression one receives of its ancient formidable strength. It is only restored in part and the visitor can easily visualize its ancient extent and

Altar Overhangs Sea

About 12 miles from Kjoge, in Denmark, is an ancient church in Hojerup, built on the famous Stevns cliff, which has been undermined by the sea. In the Fourteenth century an old sea rover was threatened with disaster off Stevns cliff, and vowed should he reach land safely, he would build a church on the cliff. Fortune favored him and he fulfilled his vow and set his church on the very edge of the beetling crag, so close, indeed, that the erosion of the rock during the centuries has brought the altar actually hanging over the sea. A legend says that every New Year night the old church "moves a cockstride back from

Ancient Well Discovered

The discovery of an ancient well during excavations for the terminus of the London Tube railway extension from Finsbury park has revived stories of the notorious ghost of Sir Geoffrey de Mandeville, earl of Essex. who, according to local legend, was drowned in a well at Barnet, in 1144. Sir Geoffrey's ghost is said to haunt the district every Christmas. Frequent attempts have been made to discover this well, at the bottom of which, the legend says, is a heavy iron chest ocntaining precious stones. At this spot is laid the scene of the murder of Lord Dalgarno in Sir Walter Scott's "Fortunes of Nigel."

Murderous Band

Perhaps the most vindictive secret society which has ever existed was that from which we derive our word "assassin." It was founded on a rocky fortress in Persia by a discontented noble and its characteristic feature was that young people were trained from their childhood to assassinate those devoted to destruction by their chief.

Discovery of Nitrogen

Nitrogen was first recognized as a distinct substance by Daniel Rutherford of the University of Edinburgh in 1772. His demonstration consisted in showing that when a small animal breathes the air in an inclosed space for a while and the carbon dioxide produced is removed by absorption, there still remains a gas that is incapable of supporting respiration.

A YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION FOR THREE BUSHELS OF WHEAT

Following the lead of the Huron County Tribune, the Cass City Chronicle is offering to trade a year's subscription for three bushels of wheat. Wheat growers who wish to take advantage of this offer to pay their subscriptions for another year are asked to bring their wheat to the elevator of the Farm Produce Co. or the Michigan Bean Co. at Cass City, or the Elkland Roller Mills. A receipt will be given by the grain dealer for the three bushels and this should be brought to the Chronicle office where subscription credit will be given.

Bring in the wheat. The equivalent in cash will not be accepted. This offer may be for a limited time only.
