DAN CUPID BUSY IN TUSCOLA COUNTY

Dan Cupid is optimistic. Unemployment and low prices on farm produce seemingly do not hinder Dan's business in Tuscola county.

On Tuesday, five bashful swains entered the office of Guy N. Ormes, county clerk, and made applications for marriage licenses, bringing the total amount of applications thus far this year to 176. From January 1, 1929, to October 31, 1929, the number of applications received reached 162. From January to October inclusive in 1930 the number was 139.

BAKER FALLS IN HOT GREASE; BADLY BURNED

Anson Witmer, proprietor of the Brown City bakery, was badly burned Saturday morning when he fell into hot grease, which had been overturned on the floor.

Mr. Witmer had just finished cooking fried cakes and took the hot lard from the stove to set it somewhere else to cool. The kettle was not set securely, however, and tipped over. As Mr. Witmer jumped quickly aside to avoid being hit by the contents, he slipped and fell in the grease. His back, one arm and one foot were severely burned.—Banner.

Mrs. Margaret Burns of Silverwood and daughter, Mrs. Walter McCool of Shabbona, visited Mrs. McCool's daughter, Mrs. Herbert Bigham, on Thursday. Mrs. Burns, who is 86 years old, is real well and active and spent last week with her daughter at Shabbona.

ONE DAY LEFT TO SECURE DRIVER'S CARD

The new automobile drivers license act, passed by the 1931 legislature, becomes effective Nov. 1 and it is estimated that 200,000 drivers who secured their original licenses prior to Jan. 1, 1925, will not have reregistered in accordance with the new law.

Applications for new licenses can be made to chiefs of police or sheriffs. The officer then issues a temporary license which is good for 20 days. Before the expiration of that period, the application will be checked by the department of state and the Department of Public Safety, and the new license issued, if no hindrances are discovered. The new licenses are good for only three years.

MEN'S BROTHERHOOD MEETS HERE SUNDAY

Evangelist Weigle Will Preach in Evening on "God's Message to Cass City."

The union evangelistic meetings at the Methodist Church are drawing ever-increasing audiences. On last Sunday morning, the evangelist, Chas. F. Weigle, preached in the Evangelical church. On Sunday night, the Methodist church auditorium was filled. A large chorus choir led in the singing. The evangelist preached a forcible message on "Sin" using as his text the Scripture "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life."

On Wednesday night, Mr. Weigle used for his text the words found in Matt. 22:42—"What think ye of Christ?" Among other things he said: "When we ask this question today we want to know whether He is the divine Messiah. Can we trust our all in His care? Is society safe under his teaching? Are there hopes to come to us through his life, his teaching and his resurrection? This subject has all the force of a personal appeal."

"Let me say first of all that if Christ be not divine, if he is not the Son of God, then his claim to such was false. If he claimed to be the Son of God when he was not, if he allowed his disciples to call him divine when he was not, then he was an impostor, and if an impostor, then a wicked man, and if he was a wicked man, then no one ought to believe in him."

"What do you think of Christ? Does believing in him do good to mankind? Does it improve society? Does it purify character? Does it make men better or worse? We will answer these questions by calling attention to the following facts: "Compare the Christian nations of the earth with the un-Christian nations. We have comforts and conveniences they are strangers to. The Christian nations manufacture and send their products to the ends of the earth. Christ gives us this. To reject Christ is to reject home, and purity, and comfort and elevation."

"Christianity, the outgrowth of Christ, has been marked with benevolent influences. Christ's record is a record of pity. Even infidels tell of the goodness of Christ while they reject him as the Son of God. Jesus was ever helping his neighbor. He opened the eyes of the blind, cleansed the lepers and healed the sick. DRAIN COM. MAKES REPLY TO CRITICS

Gives a Short History Regarding Sebewaing River Drain Project.

Preparing a supplementary report to the board of supervisors, Conrad Mueller, Tuscola county drain commissioner, gives a history of the various activities in connection with the Sebewaing River and Branches drainage project. In this report, he says:

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of the County of Tuscola: Gentlemen:

At a recent meeting of the so-called Taxpayers' Protective League of Tuscola County which was held at Caro, Monday, Oct. 12, 1931, statements were made, among others:

That the drain commissioner of Tuscola county was receiving a salary of $3,000.00 a year.

That the drain commissioner overstepped himself by constructing the Sebewaing River Drain.

That he built more drains in the last two or three years than have been built in the past 10 or 15 years.

None of these statements are true; they are misleading and deceiving. About the salary, you all know that the salary of the Tuscola county drain commissioner is $2,150 and not $3,000.00 a year.

The second statement was that the drain commissioner overstepped himself by constructing the Sebewaing River Drain. This statement is very far reaching, and therefore I feel it my duty in fairness to myself, the taxpayers and the board of supervisors of Tuscola county, especially the supervisors of the townships of Columbia, Elmwood, Almer and Ellington, who are so deeply concerned about this Sebewaing River Drain, to give you a short history of the Sebewaing River Drain so the true facts may be known to all.

For the past 20 years there has been a consistent demand from Huron county to improve the Sebewaing River and its tributaries. Public meetings were held by the drain commissioners, township officials and taxpayers of Tuscola and Huron counties, to act on pending petitions and find ways and means to relieve flood conditions in Huron county, foremost in Brookfield township.

All these proposed improvements were voted down by county and township officers and taxpayers of Tuscola county.

Taxpayers, county and township officials of Huron county were indignant and protested strenuously against Tuscola county for dumping its vast amount of water into Huron county without sufficient outlets, and for refusing to help care of flood conditions in Huron county caused by Tuscola county water. Injunction and damage suits were threatened by Huron county if Tuscola county would not take action and help solve and relieve water conditions in Huron county. Up to the year 1923, Tuscola county successfully blocked all extensive improvements in connection with the Sebewaing River and its tributaries. The necessity of the proposed improvements were never questioned by Tuscola county. The main reason for opposing the building of these drains was high cost of construction and consequently high and burdensome drain taxes.

In the year 1923 a drastic change of the drain laws was made by the Legislature of Michigan when it passed the Gettel-Butler Bill pertaining to drains and inter county drains. The bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator Gettel of Huron county, while Representative Butler introduced the bill in the house.

Previous to the passage of this law only disagreements on percents between counties were settled by the Legislature of Michigan in the year 1923 made the commissioner of agriculture or any deputy appointed by him chairman of the drainage board of all inter county drains. He was given authority to cast the deciding vote in case of a tie to declare the drain necessary, and fix percents of cost between counties in case of a disagreement between drain commissioners. Thus the state was given the right and power to put through any inter county drain in case of a tie vote by drain commissioners.

The aim, purpose and extent of the Gettel-Butler Bill as passed by the Legislature of Michigan in the year 1923 was not realized by our representatives in the legislature, the late Representative Wm. C. Sanson and also Senator (Doctor) O. G. Johnson both voted for the bill. The passage of the Gettel-Butler Bill soon resulted in action by Huron county when a most desperate attempt was made to make Tuscola county take care of its own water in its own county by circulating and filing an application with the drain commissioner in Huron county. This application

BRIGHT SPOTS OF INCREASED BUSINESS

A decided change of mind regarding economic conditions is noticeable among men who transact business with the corporation division of the Department of State. During the past few weeks, it has been reported that "bright spots" of increased business activity are evident in various parts of the state.

The corporation tax this year, while not as large as in 1930, exceeds by about $500,000 the amount that it was estimated the state would receive. The total 1930 tax collected was $7,440,300. This year $6,622,869 has been paid by corporations thus far and is estimated that at least $130,000 more will be received before the end of the fiscal year June 30.

CASS CITY LOSES TO CARO, 20-18

Drive in Second Half Pushes Over Two Markers but Try for Extra Points Fail.

Taking advantage of the breaks, Caro nosed out Cass City Friday in one of the most thrilling battles ever waged on the Cass City field. The scoring started when Caro blocked a punt and recovered for a touchdown early in the first quarter; this was followed by another touchdown made by Palmer when he raced more than fifty yards in returning a punt, giving the fans a fine exhibition of broken-field running.

Near the end of the second quarter, Cass City began gathering power and scored their first touchdown when Moss recovered a punt near the goal line. Caro's last touchdown came when big Smith grabbed the kick-off and ran straight down the field behind some good blocking, for a touchdown. These three long runs, without ever once carrying the ball from scrimmage, gave Caro their score, along with the two added points after touchdown.

Coming back strong in the second half, Cass City carried the fight deep into Caro's territory, pushing over two more touchdowns, but failing to add the necessary extra point. As the final gun went off the ball was in Cass City's possession on the fifteen yard line, cutting short their final drive for a winning touchdown. Due to injuries, the starting lineup against Sebewaing this Friday will be somewhat changed. Pinney is out with two cracked ribs and B. Doerr with a twisted knee. Other minor injuries are expected to show enough improvement so that the rest of the regulars will be able to start. Sebewaing, with a record of four victories and one defeat, will offer plenty of opposition.

P. O. CONTESTS NEXT POLITICAL ACTIVITY

Some one has said that for every postmaster a congressman appoints he "makes one luke-warm friend and five bitter enemies." This may be true, but it does not deter postmaster candidates from aspiring to these positions and thereby adding to the woe of the congressman in his home district. Sanilac county has two second-class postoffices, Sandusky and Crosswell, each paying the postmaster a salary of $2,500 per year, both now being held by women, Mrs. Gertrude Moffatt at Sandusky and Miss Jean Jackson at Crosswell. The term of both incumbents will expire in the near future and both are candidates for reappointment. In Crosswell there are two other aspirants, Frank Beedon and Wm. J. O'Connor; in Sandusky, one other candidate, Mr. Cramer, who is at present the D. C. & S. station agent. At the time the present postmasters were named, the recommendations for the appointments were made by Louis C. Cramton, who was defeated by Jesse P. Wolcott at the last election, and Wolcott now is the man who will make the recommendations for the appointments in these offices and the third-class postmasters in the seventh district as the terms of the present incumbents expire. Besides Crosswell and Sandusky, other presidential postoffices in Sanilac county, with salaries, are as follows: Minden City, $1,500; Deckerville, $1,900; Carsonville, $1,700; Applegate, $1,100; Lexington, $1,400; Brown City, $2,000; Marlette, $2,200; Peck, $1,300; Snover, $1,200.—Peck Times.

MANY TEAMS ENTERED IN PLOWING CONTEST

Big horses in big hitches hold the stage in the state plowing contest and multiple hitch demonstrations scheduled at Michigan State College, November 3, and part of the horses in the contest will be sold at the annual consignment sale held in the livestock pavilion November 4.

One hundred and fifty good type draft horses will be working in the contest field at one time. Team hitches include combinations of four, five, six, and eight horse teams pulling gang plows.

Winners will be decided on a basis of horsemanship, quality of work, and amount of plowing done in the allotted time. Four horse teams will be required to plow one-half acre and other teams greater amounts. Each contestant must strike out his own land and the depth of plowing must be at least six inches.

Multiple hitches increase the amount of work one man can do, equalize the loads for the horses, and make it possible to use more than one implement at a time in fitting soil. The College contest starts at 10:00 a. m. eastern standard time.

The consignment sale of draft horses is sponsored by the Michigan Horse Breeders' association and is held the afternoon of Nov. 4. Judging contest and demonstrations will be held during the forenoon of that day at Michigan State College.

On Saturday evening, Rev. Jonas W. Boyer, pastor of the Warren Ave. Presbyterian church of Saginaw, will be the speaker. Rev. Boyer is a very enthusiastic Christian Endeavor worker, having recently organized four graded societies in his church.

FARM BUILDINGS BURN NEAR COLWOOD

Six farm buildings on the David Pine farm, 1½ miles north of Colwood, were destroyed by fire early Monday evening. Included in the loss were a large barn, a tool shed, well house and corn crib.

Henry Wisette, the tenant on the farm, lost two horses, a cow and about 450 bushels of unthreshed beans and Albert Abke lost a bean threshing machine. A neighbor's horse was in the barn and was burned to death with the other horses.

Bean threshing had nicely started late in the afternoon and one load had been hauled to the elevator. The fire was discovered after the threshing crew had been called to the house for supper.

PLANNED MENUS CUT FOOD BUDGET COSTS

Twenty-Five Cents per Day Buys Food Needed by Adults.

The new series of meals in which the foodstuffs are appropriate to the present season and cost 25 cents per person per day are being served in the home management houses of Michigan State College, under the supervision of Miss Irma H. Gross, home economics department.

During the summer, menus at this cost rate were studied and were found to be satisfactory as they provided an adequate dietary for the average college woman and furnished enough calories, sufficient protein, iron, calcium, and phosphorus. The same basic foods used in the new series include one pint of milk per person per day and plenty of fruits and vegetables, the menu changes were made to use fall foods rather than those plentiful in the summer.

Only eight-tenths of the total amount of nourishment required by an adult man engaged in moderately active work are furnished in this plan. Miss Gross, however, states that the cost may be workable in the case of a family composed of adults and children as the requirements for the various individuals differ according to age, sex, and activity, thus balancing the total amount of food needed by a family.

The menus, planned for nine days including two Sundays, follow. Only one major meal is planned on Sunday, but food for breakfast and supper is available in the house and the total market list includes whatever materials may be needed for other meals on those two days. The menus were planned by Doras Jackson, Richland, and Mida Tyoni, Wakefield. Sunday: dinner (at noon)—Spanish steak, mashed potatoes, cucumber salad, French dressing, rolls and but-

SUPERVISORS ENDED SESSION FRIDAY

Decrease Mileage Allowance and Reduce Clerks' Salaries in County Offices.

The board of supervisors of Tuscola county completed the regular work of their October session on Friday, Oct. 23, and as one of the supervisors described it, "it was one of the hottest sessions in ten years."

Following a reduction of the supervisor's own salary from $5.00 to $4.50 a day, the board reduced the mileage allowance of county officers and employees from seven to five cents a mile. The salaries of clerks in the offices of the county clerk, county treasurer, judge of probate and commissioner of schools were reduced from $1,200 to $1,000 a year. The expenditure for widows' pensions was fixed at $15,000 per annum. A deputy drain commissioner's salary was reduced from $4.50 to $4.00 a day and an extra clerk in the drain commissioner's office will not be on the county's salary list. All these changes become effective on Jan. 1st next.

By a vote of 12 to 11, it was decided to continue the agricultural extension work in Tuscola county, such work to be directed only by the agricultural extension committee of the board of supervisors. Only $500.00 were voted for this purpose. Last year the amount raised by the county was $1,800 with a mileage allowance of not to exceed $700. The vote on the extension work proposition stood as follows:

Yeas—Heckroth, Dillon, Keinath, Rawson, Dietz, Perry, Noble, Purdy, Osburn, VanWagnen, Lewis, McFarlane—12.

Nays—Whittenburg, Miller, Morrison, McAlpine, Haas, Higgins, Burns, McArthur, Haines, Freeland, Macomber—11.

ROTARY ANNS GUESTS AT BANQUET TUESDAY

Hallowe'en decorations enhanced the attractiveness of the Gordon Hotel Tuesday evening when Rotary Anns were entertained at a banquet by their husbands.

The Rotary Club membership had been divided into three groups by the committee in charge, Ernest Schwaderer, Earl Douglas and L. D. Randall. Each group was responsible for a number on the program which followed the excellent chicken dinner.

The first group presented a burlesque in golf playing in which the idiosyncrasies of four Rotarians on the golf links were emphasized by Dr. P. A. Schenck, Frederick Pinney, J. A. Sandham and G. A. Tindale. A quartet composed of Dr. W. D. Dickerson, A. C. Atwell, Dr. I. W. McCoy and G. W. Landon sang three numbers which were very well rendered and were heartily appreciated by the audience. A few old-time games were played and the evening closed with a sleight-of-hand performance by Prof. John McKay of Ubyly.

Aid for War Veterans

More than 430,000 ex-service men and their families were aided through 3,008 Red Cross Chapters and the national organization during the year ending June 30, 1931. Dependent families were cared for, veterans' claims were filed, hospitalization obtained and many other services given. Part of each contribution during the American Red Cross annual roll call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, goes toward supporting this vital work for veterans of the World War and other wars in which the United States has engaged.

Books for the Blind

Through American Red Cross Chapters, 3,827 volumes of novels, class books and others, transcribed into braille for blind readers, have been added to libraries, in the past year. These books are to be obtained through the Library of Congress and city libraries. This activity, carried on by a great number of devoted women volunteers in Red Cross Chapters, had its inception in preparing books for war blinded.

DEPT. INTERESTED IN ODD COLORED BIRDS

(Dept. of Conservation Press Service)

Game bird hunters who took unusually dark greenish or otherwise peculiarly colored birds during the recent open pheasant season are urged to write to the Department of Conservation about it telling where they took them and what number of dark birds they took in proportion to the standard white necked cock. The department is interested in finding out how these particular birds are succeeding in Michigan.

Two years ago a thousand eggs of the versicolor or green Japanese pheasant were purchased for the Mason Game Farm. These eggs were hatched along with the regular "ring necks" and last year some of the resulting birds were released and a part retained as breeding stock.

During 1931 the "green" pheasants kept at the Game Farm were crossed with the regular ring neck stock so that this year's young birds are in large measure hybrids. In addition, the birds released in 1930 have no doubt crossed with the wild ring necks in the fields.

As a result of these operations, hunters probably saw some queer colored birds. The pure strain of "green" pheasant averages somewhat smaller than the common birds, but the cross often results in birds larger than either parent. The color of the bird in the pure strain is dark bronzy green on the back, sides and breast. The neck is tinged purple. There are none of the russets and white neck markings typical of the common pheasant. The hybrids may show almost any combination of variation of the parental color schemes.

The new lesson, as Mrs. Gillies gave it, was divided into six parts, under the following heads:

1. Good decoration.
2. Furniture grouping.

3. Good proportions.
4. Balance.
5. Center of interest.
6. Rhythm.

A general discussion enjoyed by all followed each of these points. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kelley on Nov. 24.

Today the same Christ gives himself, the bread of life, for every human being. He comes with mercy and with grace to the most sinful and depraved.

"Christianity is an outgrowth of Christ. He tells us, 'As the Father hath sent me, so also have I sent you.' All true Christians are like Christ. God's plan is to fill the earth with the spirit of Christ. In Isaiah we read, 'Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given—and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty One, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace; of the increase of his government and Peace there shall be no end.'"

"We have reached the period of the Everlasting Father and are about to enter that of the Prince of Peace. Christ is to reign King of Kings and Lord of Lords. When that time comes there shall be no end to his dominion.

"I know what the angels think of Christ. They think of Him as the Son of God. They came with Him from behind the curtain of heaven and sang, 'Peace on earth, good-will to men.' When they saw his agony in Gethsemane they came near and longed to help him. They thronged about him on the cross, but were not permitted to interfere. But after he had lain three days in the grave they hurried from heaven and rolled away the stone, and when Mary came weeping, they said, 'He is not here.' They sang the first notes of the resurrection song, and the disciples took it up and started it around the world. We've all been singing it since.

"Many great men of the earth have worshipped Christ. Shakespeare, the greatest intellect known, paid reverence to Jesus Christ in passage after passage of his writings. In his will were these words. 'I commend my soul into the hands of God my Creator, hoping and assuredly believing, through the merit of Jesus Christ my Saviour, to be made partaker of life everlasting.'"

"Count Tolstoi, the great Russian writer, said, 'For thirty-five years of my life I was a nihilist, a man who believes in nothing. Fifteen years ago my faith came to me. I believed in the doctrine of Jesus, and my whole life underwent a sudden transformation. I tasted joy and happiness that death cannot take away.'"

"William Jennings Bryan in his lecture on the Prince of Peace said, 'Reared in the home of a carpenter, never having access to the wisdom of the past, never coming in contact with the sages of other lands, and yet, when only thirty years of age, He gave to the world a code of morality the like of which the world has never seen. He preached for a few months and gathered around him a few disciples. Then He was crucified, his disciples scattered and many of them put to death. And yet from this beginning his religion has spread until hundreds of millions have taken his name with reverence upon their lips, and millions have been ready to die rather than surrender the faith He put in their hearts. How do you explain this fact in history? Christ earned the title 'Prince of Peace.'

"What do you think of Christ? Some men turn their eyes to the Cross of Christ with longing; they see the right, but because they want to cling to their sins they turn back to earth. Hear me tonight! Is not Christ worthy of your faith, your homage, your hearts, your lives? He has the power to subdue appetite, and lead you in the way of purity and life everlasting."

These services will continue for another week, every night except Saturday. On Sunday, Nov. 1, the Men's Brotherhood, a county organization, will meet at 4:00 p. m. and remain for the night service. On Sunday night at eight o'clock, Evangelist Weigle will use as his subject, "God's Message to Cass City" and all across the course when the club's citizens are invited to attend. THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Six bandits came aboard the steamer, Midnight Sun, while she is tied to the bank of the Mackenzie. Father Claverly and the other passengers on the boat are amazed at the sight of banditry in this great waterway country. A thousand miles north of Edmonton, Jimmy Montgomery, who had spent years with the Canadian Mounted, draws his gun in the face of the coverd men and fires upon the ruffians. He is shot through the heart by a half-breed. The bandits get away with gold dust and choice peltry.

CHAPTER II.—Corporal Bill Hardscock brings the news of the crime to Sergeant Alan Baker at the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance. After a brief dispute over plans with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, Alan starts out after the bandits in the big police launch with the corporal and four constables.

CHAPTER III.—Reaching the Midnight Sun, they stop long enough for Alan to board her and consult with the nesses of the crime. Alan asks the skipper to put Jimmy Montgomery's orphaned four-year-old daughter off at Fort Endurance and leave her in the care of Alan's fiancée, Elizabeth Spaulding. At the MacMillan trading post on the Big Alouka, Joyce MacMillan is alone, awaiting the return of Dave, her father, from a fur-buying trip. She is thrilled when the police launch ties up there for the night, as she has not seen Alan Baker for months. Secretly she had hoped to marry him; then she was stunned by the news of his engagement to Elizabeth. She is happy now to perceive from his halting talk that the planned marriage is not definitely certain.

CHAPTER IV.—Haskell, who is Alan's active enemy and is trying to win Elizabeth, blames Alan for the failure and orders his demotion to the ranks. He daily denies that he ordered Alan to split the police party. He refuses to let Alan lead a second expedition against the bandits. Seeing only one way now to go after the bandits and clear Joyce's father from the charge resulting from the obviously planted evidence, Alan buys out of the Mounted. Haskell gives Alan his release on condition that he sign a paper to the effect that Haskell did not give the order to split the expedition.

CHAPTER V.—After making arrangements with Hardscock and old Dad Pence to look after Joyce's safety while she is alone at the MacMillan post (her father being jailed at Fort Endurance), Alan starts out of the country in a motor canoe. As the days pass and she does not hear from him, Joyce is heart sick for Alan. She questions Hardscock when the latter pays her one of his brief calls, and from what Hardscock tells her she believes final arrangements for the wedding have been made.

Over at the MacMillan trading post Joyce was awaiting a visit from Bill Hardscock. A young Loucheux, John Tabanask, had brought a note from Bill, saying he would be along some time late this evening.

This last week had been a feverishly busy one for her. With no hesitation she was sacrificing the entire trading stock. Word of her good bargains had gone out by moccasin telegraph, and the peltry was rolling in beyond all her expectations. Her days were from twenty to twenty-four hours long. Hasty meals for herself and old Dad Pence. Sleep in broken bits when she could snatch an hour or so. Sorting and grading furs as exactly as any man. It was work for any two men, and she was doing it alone-handed, earning the fur-dollars to fight her dad's battle.

Faithfully carrying out Alan's instructions, she had done a bit of detective work on her own account. But she failed to glean the slightest hint of information.

The mystery of the bandits' sudden appearance engrossed her, as it had Alan; and with good reason it made her keenly uneasy. Those men were hiding in the Thal-Azzah, not many hours distant. Knowing in her heart that her father was innocent, she believed that they had put that fateful pack of furs in the shed because of some animus against him. Their hostility might extend to her, his daughter; and they might make some attempt against her. There were times, when she thought of those vicious, brutal criminals so near her, that she wanted to flee back to the safety of the post and the mothering of Mrs. Drummond.

Before she left Endurance, Bill had told her that Alan had bought out and had severed relations with the Force for good and all. That was the news which Joyce had been brooding about. Elizabeth had wanted him to get out of service. He was out now. Elizabeth had wanted him to take that Victoria job. He probably would take it now. Elizabeth had had her way with him. The thing which had held her and Alan apart no longer existed.

For more than a year Joyce had seen Alan Baker slipping away from her, little by little. She had fought for her secret hopes as one will fight in the face of death. She wanted Alan! Her days were like a passionate cry for him. He was the meaning and purpose of life to her, and she could no longer bear up under her racking doubt. She, too, had come to the parting of the ways, and must take some irrevocable step.

In the twilight she heard the drone of Bill's motor canoe down the Alouka. When the craft swung around a bend, she stood up and waved. Catching sight of her on the jutting rock, Bill glided in alongside.

He held a warm place in her heart. He had a man's stubborn will power, he was honest and open as daylight, he was loyal clean through. Joyce knew that Bill loved her, in a dogged hopeless way, asking nothing more than to do favors for her and be always dependable when she needed some one. She was sorry for him, terribly sorry he loved her. For his sake she had several times rebuffed him; but it hurt Bill so visibly that she had stopped.

She invited him: "Bill, let's go up to the post. You're tired. And I'll get you a bite to eat."

"I can't, Joyce," he reluctantly refused. "I've got to light out for Endurance. I just wanted to drop past and see that everything is all right with you. How've you been making out?"

"Better than I even expected. I've taken in an awful lot of furs."

"That's good. But I mean, any trouble with these 'breeds or Smokies'?" He spoke rather beligerently toward a hypothetical enemy of hers.

"Not the slightest bit," Joyce assured him. That was not exactly true; a couple of incidents of the last week had been a little ugly. But she felt she could guard herself against those cowardly men.

She asked rather hesitantly, "Has anything happened at Fort Endurance, Bill?" She was thinking of Elizabeth waiting there; and that beating question crowded out even her father's trouble. It took an effort to speak of it. Bill knew more of Alan's plans than she did. He might know the answer to that question.

He said: "No, nothing much has happened. I moved up to Alan's cabin. Haskell has made Whipple a corporal. Imagine that! The new doctor for Hershell Island came past on his way down north, and looked at Larry. He couldn't do any more than Father Claverly has done. Larry's getting some strength back, and that chest wound is past the danger point; but his leg is all busted. The doctor said Larry 'ud be permanently crippled. No hope of anything better."

"Have they sent— Is Dad still there?"

"Yes. We can't spare a man to take him out. He'll be there a week or ten days yet."

"You'll tell him about my good luck here, Bill? And tell him I'll be with him as soon as I close out this post?"

Bill nodded. Personally he hoped that this news might lift Dave MacMillan out of his despondency. Dave's state of mind was causing Bill anxiety. Resenting any kindness, he had sunk into a sullen mood, uncaring, hopeless—a man brooding self-destruction.

Joyce forced herself to ask, "Have you heard anything at all of Alan, Bill?"

"No, not a word. I don't expect to for some time."

"You must know where he is and what he's doing. . . ."

Bill realized she was asking him to tell her of Alan's venture. He wanted to tell her; and he knew he could trust her, but Alan had asked him not to let her know where he'd gone, and Alan might have personal reasons for it.

He lied: "No, I don't know. I'd just be guessing."

"But he's coming back, sometime, to Endurance?" Joyce persisted.

"He may come back and may not. But not to stay. He's out of service, broke away complete. He turned his cabin and things over to me. He isn't intending to come back. I know definite. He's going to take that job in Victoria. Told me. One of the last things he said."

There was a moment's silence. Bill looked at Joyce curiously. She was staring down at the rock, plucking with trembling fingers at the wolf-foot moss. She was pale. "Did Alan say—" the words came slowly, like reluctant footsteps—"say anything about when he'll get married?"

"He didn't exactly say when, but it'll be as soon as he's carried through this scheme of his."

A question came from Joyce: "He and—Elizabeth—have decided definitely, then, Bill?"

"Yes. She's waiting for him to come for her or send for her. They've made plans to be married in Edmonton and have their honeymoon in the Selkirk and then go on over to Victoria."

Joyce asked one last question. She asked it calmly, without faltering or even pausing on the precipice edge.

"Did Elizabeth say that, or did Alan?"

"Alan said it. I overheard them, that night he left. They planned it together, there in his cabin. . . ."

Joyce was aroused by old Dad Pence calling for her. Raising her head from her arms, she looked around. Gropingly she realized that she was there on the jutting rock, numbed with cold—with a cold that was more than physical.

Dawn had come. The dark hours had passed. It took her moments to realize. Time had stood still for her since she told Bill good-by.

Before going up the river bank she had the presence of mind to go down to the water edge and bathe her face and hands and smooth back her hair.

She went back to the trading store with old Pence, and prepared breakfast for him. Over his birch-marl pipe old Pence began whittling again at the "story-stick" he was carving these days. The stick was a long-standing ambition of his, for with his razor-keen, six-bladed knife he was carving the story of his life. And he was going about it in earnest, carving steadily every day. It was as though he had some dim fore-knowledge of the black wings hovering—a warning to hurry.

Noticing Joyce's exceeding paleness and her exhaustion, he bade her: "Now you got to go an' rest, gal. I'll tend to 'furs this mornin', if anybody comes."

Joyce went into her room. It seemed so cold; she could not get warm; the chill seemed to have pierced her through and through. She kindled a fire in her small sheet-iron stove and put in wood, and then lay down on the bed.

From the dresser Alan's picture was looking down at her. She did not glance away, but looked at it steadily, as she lay there so motionless and still.

The exhaustion that had drained her had left her very quiet of mind. She could think clearly, in thoughts precise and rational. . . .

You fought this battle once, Joyce, and you won it; and then you handed the sword back to your enemy and gave him power over you again. When Bill first told you last fall of Alan's engagement—do you remember the heartbreak of those weeks, Joyce? You finally rose above it, you conquered. But then you permitted yourself to hope again. When Alan merely came past here on a patrol, after staying away from you all winter, you went wild with hope.

Last night Bill came to you once again; and after he left, you collapsed there on that rock. Joyce, don't lay yourself open to agony such as that. You must forget Alan Baker. You must, you must! You cannot turn this way or that; you cannot evade it; you must walk that path. You must never again look back. You have been punished for looking back, and your punishment has been terrible. In self-preservation you must forget Alan Baker. . . .

As she lay there gazing up at Alan's picture and seeing her course so clearly, it seemed to Joyce that if she could destroy his image there on the dresser, if only she had the courage to do that, it would be a symbol of destroying his image in her heart.

After a little while she got up from the bed; and going over to the dresser, began taking out of it all of Alan's letters to her. They dated back across six years, addressed to her here, at her college, at Ottawa—all of them carefully treasured. Pack by pack they went into the stove.

There was good augury for Joyce in the firm and unhesitant way she set about burning them.

He had given her more than a few presents: a costly old-fashioned lavalliere which had been his mother's; a miniature hope chest of India-silk kerchiefs which had been the envy of her college friends; a gold-and-ivory hunting knife; a wrist watch for graduation present, and a dozen less expensive gifts. Joyce laid aside the lavalliere to send to Elizabeth; but the other gifts she destroyed by fire.

She took his picture from the dresser, and burned it.

Afterwards she sat by the table writing a long letter to her bureau chief in Ottawa, telling him frankly about her father, her hope to see her father vindicated and then to bring him over to Ottawa with her; and asking him if his former promise of a position whenever she wished to return was still good.

At noon, hours later, when old Pence looked in, he was pleased to find her plunged into a dreamless sleep. The secret worry he had noted on her face this last week seemed to have gone now. Her features were pale, but there was a look of peace on them, of some strange spiritual peace at heart.

CHAPTER VII

By Lone Camp Fires

That gray dawn when he said good-by to Joyce at Fort Endurance, Baker set off alone on a journey of a thousand miles. Instead of heading northeast toward the Thal-Azzah where the bandits were hiding, he turned his canoe prow directly away from them and started south, up the Mackenzie. He did not delude himself about his plan. It was little better than a desperate gamble, and he knew it. But the usual man-hunting methods were useless against those criminals; and his plan was the last thing in the world they would be expecting.

By traveling in his own motor canoe, depending entirely on his own resources, he expected to cut ten days from the fastest time of the fur-company boats.

In those lonely hours, as he stared in reverie at the shimmering pine hills, it was borne in upon Alan that he had forever cut himself off from life here in this North country. He felt as though he had been torn up by the roots. The system he had founded at Fort Endurance had been his own creation. He had been a builder in his own right. From the ground up, Fort Endurance belonged to him. He and Curt and Jimmy had cut the very timber for barracks and cabins. The work had been his particular work in life. "Sergeant Baker of Endurance" stood for something. There was but one such man in the Dominion. Now he was cut off from it, an alien of lost identity, never to be a part of it, the guiding genius of it, again.

On the third day he met a lone-fire Indian, a young Chipewyan wandering aimlessly, with some secret personal tragedy preying on him. Alan took him into the motor canoe, and together they traveled on. Hardly speaking a dozen words a day, they worked on up the Mackenzie, sleeping by turns, spelling each other at the motor. Raising a blanket sail to a northeast wind, they scudded across the island-dotted lake from Resolution, and whipped up the Quatre Fourches delta toward Fort Smith.

Watching the dim clouded stars above him, Alan looked steadily at the two girls who had loomed so large upon his manhood. In this last week a cataclysm had happened in his life, breaking into the old order, blasting the even routine of week and month and season. It had opened his eyes in a deeper way than ever before to the preciousness of his intimacy with Joyce, to the priceless quality of their former comradeship. Now, when it was irrevocable, he was asking himself whether the motive and powerful circumstance which had actuated him were humanly justifiable. Had not he and Joyce had a right to happiness? Had he, in his stern sacrifice, been blind to the needs of the human heart?

Tired out by days of incessant travel, he fell asleep at last, and dreamed that in his cabin it had been Joyce, not Elizabeth, whose arm had been around him and who was waiting for him when this lone adventure should be ended.

At Fort Smith the heavy rains had rendered the sixteen-mile portage impossible to teams and to the motor trucks which plied that stretch. Alan dared not wait; his days were too precious. In his decision to go on, his young Chipewyan friend stuck with him. Shouldering their craft, they plodded stolidly across that slippery, red-clay stretch to Fitzgerald.

Among the north-bound crowd waiting there, he spotted the tall, slightly stooped figure of Superintendent Williamson, who was going north to inspect the down-river posts. The superintendent was the last person in the world whom Alan wanted to meet. His first superior officer when he graduated from the "Awkward Squad," Williamson had been good to him and taken a fatherly interest in his brilliant work. What would he say when he learned that his protégé had bought out and deserted the Force? . . . "Your commission wasn't forthcoming, so you quit! Your loyalty to our work went no deeper than that!" In his eyes a quitter was worse than a gross incompetent.

Passing by, ten feet away, Williamson merely nodded slightly and said, "Good luck, Baker."

Alan understood. He thought: "In civilian clothes, so far away from Endurance. . . . He thinks I'm on some detective detail. Good Lord, when he finds I'm out, bought out—!"

Williamson's esteem was a precious thing to Alan, as precious as a father's. An impulse swept him to talk with the superintendent and tell him the whole sorry story. But there was the matter of that signed affidavit. Alan refused to go back on that; and even if he did he would literally be branding himself a liar. What did his personal feud with Haskell matter now? He was out of the Mounted. And the superintendent would try to stop his venture if he heard, for it was beyond the law.

He allowed Williamson to go past. Setting their boat to water, he and the young Chipewyan hurried on to the great delta-mouth of the Peace, where they caught up with a steamer going on to McMurray. The young Indian wanted to turn west to the Rockies and see the Land of Ice Mountains. Giving him the motor canoe and the outfit, Alan shook hands, said Klahowya, and went aboard the boat.

In his cabin, with the steamer throbbing on toward Steel-End, Alan wondered what Joyce's reaction would be if he should go to her and frankly tell her about that tragic incident in his life which had brought about his engagement to Elizabeth. Joyce would understand his motive. She would no longer think he'd acted of his own free will. Perhaps if she knew this truth, she might allow him to resume their old intimacy. . . . But Elizabeth, what of her? She was waiting, waiting there at Endurance, for him to marry her. In honor and faith he could not break away now. That secret and powerful circumstance still bound him and would bind him to her all his life.

REPLY TO CRITICS

tion called for shutting off of nearly all the drains from the north side of the county which naturally flow north through the County of Huron having their natural outlet in the Sebawaing River, by commencing in the Columbia and Brookfield Drains on the east and west 1/4 line of section 4, Township of Elmwood, and running west on said 1/4 line through the north tier of sections of Elmwood township and continuing on same line through Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, Township of Columbia, thence north and west across SW corner Sebawaing township thence same course through Akron township and having for its outlet the Wiscoggin Bayou in Township of Akron. The area to be drained by this proposed drain amounted to over 60 sections of land in Tuscola county which would require a very deep cut and expensive digging, expensive right of ways and at least a 40-foot bottom and a much wider bottom at the outlet. It would require large and expensive railroad, state, county, township and private bridges. The seriousness of the application and the consequence of the drain would be declared necessary was fully realized by the drain commissioner and township officers of Tuscola county at that time.

In his annual report to the board of supervisors in the year 1924 County Drain Commissioner Hicks reported as follows: "For reasons your honorable board can plainly see, your commissioner strongly opposes the creating of said drainage district, and I have been able to this date to have postponed the final settlement which I fear will not be favorable to the best interest of this county. Four joint meetings of the drainage board have been held and much additional time spent, but as yet the matter is still unsettled." He goes on further and said, "In the opinion of your commissioner, if it should be decided to lay out the drainage district, a gross injustice would be done the taxpayers of our township as they have already paid for six drains having their outlet in the Sebawaing River which the proposed Cut Off Drain will cross and will add hundreds of thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of this district without giving them any real benefit. For the above reasons your commissioner respectfully requests that should the decision be favorable for the drain that your honorable board would co-operate with the drain commissioner in taking further steps to defeat the said proposition." This proposed Cut Off resulted in many meetings and hearings before the drainage board and a spirited fight between taxpayers, county and township officials of the two counties. Tuscola County fought this drain with all its power and influence. A delegation of township and county officials went to Lansing, arranged a meeting with the commissioner of agriculture in Lansing. At this meeting the commissioner of agriculture was informed by the delegation that the proposed Sebawaing River Cut Off was not necessary and not conducive to public health and welfare, impractical, expensive and would not give the long sought relief. Also, illegal because it is contrary to law to drain water from one drainage district into another, which would be the case if this drain would be declared necessary by a majority of the members of the drainage board. It was requested by the delegation that the commissioner send an engineer over the route of this proposed drain and report his findings to him so he may have first hand information and expert opinion of the necessity and practicability of this drain. The request was granted and the report of the engineer was not favorable for the drain. The drain was declared impractical by the drainage board and that the proper drainage for said district was through the present outlet or the Sebawaing River. The result of this action by the drainage board was an application for the laying out of a drainage district for the Sebawaing River and some of its branches. Also a petition for cleaning out, deepening and widening and extending the Kemp Drain, affecting the Township of Sebawaing in Huron county and the Township of Columbia in Tuscola county and having its outlet in the Sebawaing River. The Kemp Drain was declared necessary by the drainage board but no further action was taken at that time on account of an insufficient outlet, and was later included in the Sebawaing River Drainage District.

high taxes. He further stated that although the drain was necessary and some farmers badly needed drainage, as was true in his own township, the cost of the entire project was too high and too much for the taxpayers to stand now. Supervisors of Elmwood, Almer and Ellington townships strongly supported Mr. Dillon's statements and ably assisted him in his fight against the drain. After a long discussion, the chairman of the drainage board adjourned the meeting to Bad Axe for a further hearing to be held in the Court House. At this meeting a remonstrance against the drain, signed by over 300 taxpayers of Sebawaing township was presented to the chairman of the drainage board and read before the meeting. Again Mr. Dillon, supervisor of Columbia township, addressed the meeting. He made another strong plea against the drain, pointing out the condition taxpayers are in all over the State, including Huron and Tuscola counties, and that this improvement would add still more taxes to the already overburdened taxpayers. Again injunction and damage suits against Tuscola county were threatened by the supervisor of Brookfield, if this drain was not declared necessary. Drain Commissioner Smith of Huron County made a motion that the drain be declared necessary by the drainage board. The motion was put to a vote by Mr. Hunter, the result of the vote was: Walter M. Smith, drain commissioner of Huron county, yes; and Conrad Mueller, drain commissioner of Tuscola county, no. Drain Commissioner Smith of Huron county voted for the drain and Drain Commissioner Mueller of Tuscola voting against the drain. This made a tie vote between the two counties. This gave Mr. Hunter authority to cast the deciding vote which was in favor of the drain and finally resulted in the construction of the Sebawaing River Drain. The next step to be taken now was the division of percent between counties. It was the general belief in Huron county that Huron county was to pay about 25% and Tuscola 75% of the cost of this drain. Much time was spent by the drain commissioner of Tuscola to acquaint himself with conditions of the drainage district such as conditions of township, county and railroad bridges and all benefits to each county on account of construction of this drain, and also the amount of excavation in each county. He also received valuable information from the supervisors of Columbia, Elmwood, Almer and Ellington townships.

The drainage board held a meeting to fix percents of cost between counties. Commissioner Smith of Huron County offered to take 25%. Commissioner Mueller stated that Tuscola county would not take more than 50% and submitted facts and figures to the chairman of the drainage board to substantiate his claims. Mr. Hunter, chairman of the drainage board, then announced the percent of cost between the two counties as fixed by him as follows:

Huron County 47.30% Total acreage assessed	22,192
Tuscola county 52.70% Total acreage assessed	42,427
Total	100.00% Total
Acreage in district	64,619

Although the drain was declared necessary by a majority vote of the drainage board, this action was not final as the commissioners were unable to secure all releases of right of way for the construction of the drain in their respective counties. The law provided in such case that application be made to the judge of probate in each county, asking for the appointment of three disinterested special commissioners to pass on the necessity of the drain and award damages.

The special commissioners so appointed held a public hearing on February 3, 1930, which was attended by a large number of taxpayers. Again arguments were made for and against the drain. After hearing all arguments the drain was unanimously declared necessary by the special commissioners.

The statement that more drains were let during the last three years of the present drain commissioner's administration than in the preceding fifteen years, does not agree with the facts taken from the drain records in this office, which are as follows:

During Mr. Hall's and Mr. Hick's administrations of ten years a total of $1,062,975.90 was assessed in the county for drains, making a five year average of $531,487.05 for 10 years.

During the five years of present administration a total of $568,117.00 was assessed in this county for drains, which includes $30,872.95 paid by the state at large, railroads and power lines, which deducted from the sum total leaves $537,244.05 collected from Tuscola county, making an almost equal average per year for the last fifteen years. I might say that the three most costly drains let during my administration, namely, the Allen, Sheboygan and Branches and Sebawaing River were all determined to be necessary before I entered upon the duties of this office.

This short history as just given is only for one purpose namely, information and the stand taken by all county and township officers, on all questions pertaining to the Sebawaing River Drain.

Our Brother's Keeper.
(Los Angeles Times).

This period through which the world is struggling is more than an economic crisis. It involves more than a study of strategic plans to ambuscade the dollars which fled. Humanity itself is on trial. The civilization which we have evolved is undergoing the supreme test.

If there is such a thing as brotherhood among men, now is the time to show it.

Drunk with wealth, we have strayed a long way from the fundamental and eternal truth. We have been living in a house stuck upon golden stilts. And it has crashed.

In our agony and suffering we have discovered that Jesus Christ meant what he said. The Golden Rule was not a pleasant homily intended for reward-of-merit cards with silk fringe on the edges and diamond dust shining on the snow scenes. It was a simple statement of the eternal law, the same law that keeps the stars in the skies and the world turning on its axis.

We speak of breaking the law and commandments. You can break them; but they break you. "Love one another" was more than an admonition to light the path of virtue. It was the statement of an eternal principle upon which all law, all philosophy, all business, all ethics, all civilization rests. Like all the doctrines left by the Christ, this was the sublimity of common sense—the finality of practicality—the only sure foundation upon which civilization can rest.

During these money-glutted years we have tried each to go our own way alone. Years of greed and money lust have ended with this terrible lesson: That wealth evaporates and leaves men stark and with naked hearts.

It is for us to see that this terrible rebuke has not been in vain. For us to see that we rebuild the fallen structure on the rock of brotherhood.

This winter will be a period that calls for all men to have fortitude, strength and sympathy. It is, for once, clear to the dullest mind that we can only help ourselves by helping others.

Out of this period of re-adjustment we can regain our souls. It can be a better world because of this period of hunger and sorrow; a stronger America and a sounder civilization if it brings to us a realization we are given the privilege of being our brother's keeper.

The remedy for our financial crisis lies not in laws, federal commissions, in panacea or financial errors.

The sound and practical answer was mon spoken on a mountain in Palestine two thousand years ago in a sentence.

INSTANT LIGHT Aladdin

KEROSENE (Coal Oil) MANTLE LAMPS

YOU'LL be charmed and delighted with this gorgeous array of the New 1932 Instant-Light Aladdins. They are beautiful new styles—new finishes—new shades. They are just what every home without electricity needs to make them as modern as any city home. And Aladdin light, you know, is the nearest of all to sunlight, in quality, and it takes ten ordinary lamps to equal it in quantity. Economical too, in fact, the Aladdin saves its first cost in a short time in the lesser oil it consumes and keeps on saving for a lifetime.

TEN BIG FEATURES

Burns common kerosene (coal oil). Lights instantly. Gives a modern white light equal to 10 ordinary lamps. Absolutely safe. Burns 94% air. The most economical of all lights. No odor, smoke, noise or trouble. No generating or waiting; a match and a minute that's all. All styles; table, hanging, bracket, vase and floor lamps in nickel and bronze.
