KINNAIRD IS LOCAL MILKING CHAMPION

Hundred Enjoyed Program and Banquet of Community Club Tuesday.

Audley Kinnaird probably has been reading apologues in late weeks and became convinced that the fable of the hare and the tortoise is just as good in a milking contest and just as true as when it was first written. Or was it Ben Franklin's sayings he read: "Take time for all things. haste makes great waste."

Anyway, when contestants lined up on the school auditorium stage for the milking contest at the Community Club gathering Tuesday night, Audley was the least excited and most composed of the quartet. Started on with a kick from his resident, who will be 92 years of cow, he had the sympathy of the onlookers, and although he finished lost he was fast all a fall and forking beans in last, he won first place.

A play entitled "The Clinic of a Missionary Specialist," was prement, its sponsors hope, will bring Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church at the home of Mrs. J. L. Cathcart, Thursday, Oct. 6.

Dr. Nozitt, assisted by her nurse, Miss Tryett, conducted the clinic. The patients all suffered from mysterious ailments which were much more severe on Sunday or on the day of a missionary meeting. Miss Jones had writer's cramp terribly if she attempted to write a missionary paper, but could write letters to her friends. She could open her purse to go to the movies but her fingers pained her so greatly she couldn't open it to get any money for the church collection. Stiffneck, whenever new ideas were suggested, was one of the complaints of Miss Amandy Perkins, who was old fashioned in both her ideas and dress. Now this atmosphere of perfect sympathy and trust the Master breathed upon children is one we cherish for the Christian home. Unfortunately the modern family too often reveals a disturbing inner conflict and strain.

Furthermore, modern life is so fashioned that parents are largely separated from their offspring. The tendency is to farm them out to the school, the church, the camp, or the Scout troop. A real divorce between the interests of the older and younger generations is thereby encouraged.

There is great need for a revival of the family circle, with working together in education, the fine arts, politics, and religion. Let me suggest definite religious

The apple picking season has ar- etc. rived. All over the United States ly distributed and most generally popular of all fruits has begun. In most sections, we understand, this is a pretty good apple year. The yield is larger than usual but, Sec. 13, Twp. Vassar, $1.00 etc. like everything else, prices are down.

The apple has become such a 16, Twp. Watertown, $1.00 etc. distinctively American product that most people do not realize that, like wheat, rice, cotton, oranges and many of our other fruits and crops the apple was imported from Europe. Indeed, about the only farm products which America has given to the rest of the world are tobacco, potatoes, corn and turkeys.

In thirty-six out of the fortyeight states the annual crop is large and important enough to figure in the government reports. Washington grows the most apples —more than thirty-seven million bushels a year. New York State is second, producing more than twenty-seven million bushels. In the whole United States the annual crop of apples shipped to market averages above one hundred and

Black Cats

The exact origin of the superstition of falling heir to bad luck if a black cat crosses one's path is lost in the Middle ages, when the belief was prevalent that Satan frequently assumed the form of a black tom-cat when he was mischief-bent. Some also thought that at the end of seven years all black cats were turned into evil spirits.

Gave Name to English Inns

That favorite name for old inns, "Rose and Crown," was taken from that of the influential English nobleman, John o' Gaunt. The red rose which he wore was combined with the royal crown to make the title.

landed somewhere." After they had sent their respecafternoon for it. It was an afternoon wasted. In the round of inquiry only one circumstance developed which might have some bearing upon the mystery. This was in the public garage where Canby was keeping his Nordyke. When they questioned the proprietor about the Fleetwing, he said he had put up only one car that had come from the east that morning, namely, Canby's limousine. Landis asked if he could fix the time of the limousine's arrival.

"Why, yes," was the reply, was just about five o'clock."

"More mystery," said Landis, as they left the place. "You remember what the hotel clerk said this morning when we got in-which was a little after five o'clock?" "Don't know as I do. I was pretty tired and sleepy." "You asked him if he had anybody else from the east and he said, 'Yes,' a party of three—came in a couple of hours ago. Then he told us who the three people were."

"I see now what you are getting at. That leaves two hours_unaccounted for between the time Canby reached Brewster and the time he put his car up in the garage. Question: can we find out what he did in those two hours %'

"That's it. If we can, I have a notion that we shall find out what has become of the Fleetwing bunch."

Returning to the hotel, they were fully agreed that the only remainthree was through Canby, since his connection with them had been conclusively proved. Markham went up to shave, while Landis went to the desk to have his card sent up

Before Landis could reply, Markham stepped out of a descending elevator.

"I was hoping we might eat with you. Cousin William," he said. Then, "Been digging into Owen a bit to find out what he is made of?" "We've been talking about this ruction over at Stan Broughton's mine. Mr. Landis tells me you just missed being in the thick of it." "We did. Shall we go in to din-

As was most natural, the table talk centered upon the crime of the night before, and the mystery which seemed to be the chief feature of it. But there was no mention made of the three men who had so unaccountably disappeared somewhere on the eastward road.

It was after coffee had been served that Landis saw a man rise from his seat at a table on the other side of the room and come across in their direction, though he did not recognize the man as Canby until the promoter was beside them, and saying, "Well, well! See who's here! Betty was telling me last night that you two were in Copah. but she didn't say anything about your coming on to Brewster." Then, 'How do, Mr. Starbuck,"

The three who were finishing their dinner reacted to the intrusion, each after his kind. Landis said nothing; Starbuck nodded. said, "How!" and went on sipping ing chance of tracing the missing his coffee. Markham bridged the gap, chatting easily for a moment or two with the intruder, accounting for himself and Landis as vacation runaways from the home town, with no particular object in view, and expressing, in his turn, surprise that Canby could tear himpretty daughter.

At this last, the good-looking "Good company is right. But it so happened that I could combine business with pleasure. As you will testify, Mr. Starbuck. I still have a stake in the Timanyoni, in the Quavapai."

"Um," said the elderly mire own-

"Thought I'd take a few days off and run out to see how we are getting along," Canby went on glibly: then, to the two Carthaginians. "We'll have to get together and do a bit of sightseeing. I assure you the Timanyoni is worth it."

As Canby returned to his table, Starbuck closed one eye slowly and said, "Did you two young fellows follow that crook out here?"

Markham answered truthfully. "No: we are both inclined to think it was the other way round-that he followed us. Anyhow, he was behind us for a good part of the them. way. And his surprise just now at seeing us here was a fake. He knew three days ago that we were headed this way."

Silence for a minute, and then Starbuck spoke again. "Tell me, Walter, have you got anything on Canby?" "No: but now he is here, and on him, if only for the sake of enlightening some of our good friends in the home town. As I told you, he is trying to put over a lead some. of Caro in said County, on the 8th thing like the one he engineered ther thinks-just about as much profit to the investors in it."
