PAID TRIBUTE TO GOVERNOR BRUCKER L. Mann, Cass City, secretary; and E. H. Fox, St. Charles, treasurer.

Speaker at Republican Rally Praised Hoover's Fine Record.

Calling attention to the serious times in the past three years, Seth Q. Pulver of Owosso told his audience at a Republican rally held here Wednesday evening that the depression came to the United States after it had left its mark the world. It came, he said, as an destruction of billions of dollars in number of lives. It was inevitable that in time the depression would reach us no matter what political party was in control. Because the country stood so nobly back of President Wilson in the World war crisis, Mr. Pulver suggested that the same loyalty be accorded President Hoover in his fight against the great economic war now in progress and in which the speaker sees signs of recovery of the nation's business.

He praised President Hoover's effective efforts in the stabilization of the country's financial structure through the establishment of the Reconstruction Finance | Combining bad tackling, poor Corporation in which all classes blocking, faulty generalship, tohave received benefits.

Distress in All Areas Met by Giving Food, Clothing and Other Aid.

More than 3,000,000 families throughout the nation were given relief of various types by the American Red Cross in the past winter, to aid them in their distress caused by unemployment, diaster or other misfortune.

A major relief task, due to unemployment and other unusual conditions in the bituminous mining counties in twenty states, was met by the Red Cross chapters alone, or participating with other agencies. In these 143 counties, the Red Cross aided 90,000 families through giving groceries, school lunches, clothing, flour and other necessities to combat priva-

Flour, milled from government wheat turned over to the Red Cross by Congress, was given to 15,000,000 persons in the period from March 8 to June 30, the close of the fiscal year. Three Admit Guilt in Burglary Charge

Harry Zeeman, 20, and Thos. Mellon, 17, both of Marlette, and Gordon Compbell, 19, and Mike Nagie, 18, both of Koylton township, were arrested Saturday on a charge of breaking and entering the John Barden store at Kingston on the night of Oct. 14. At a Wednesday evening, all pleaded guilty to the charge except Mike Nagie, who said he was not with the others when they entered the store but admitted to officers that he had received stolen property from them and the charge against him was changed accordingly. Justice Imerson bound the young men over to the circuit court for trial. Mr. Barden reported the theft of four shotguns, a hunting coat, a revolver, 19 boxes of shotgun shells and three wrist watches. Justice Atwood sentenced Wm.

Flag Smut Found in Winter Wheat

Its Presence Is Reported in Three States by Federal Experts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

Flag smut, a serious wheat disease in Australia, and one now found in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas in this country, is spreading persistently, although it has not reached dangerous proportions.

Department authorities fear flag smut may get into semiarid winterwheat regions in the West, under growth conditions more like those in Australia, where the disease is a serious problem, and for that reason they are doing everything possible to check it in its present stage.

In Illinois the plant disease men found flag smut in one county, Macon, where it had not been found before. Counties in which it had not been found before and was present this year were: Logan, Hancock, Green, Madison and St. Clair.

In Missouri they found the flag smut in St. Louis county. It was found in Leavenworth county, Kansas, where it had previously been reported, and the scouts also discovered it in four fields south of Wallula in Wyandotte county.

Harvest Queen wheat continues more susceptible than other vari-Harvest Queen, while many of the standard varieties have proven very resistant in experimental tests at Leavenworth, Kan. The government men visited Kay and Nobile | cide." counties in Oklahoma, as that is a Harvest Queen area, and they feared a new infection there. No flag smut has been reported from Oklahoma,

Flag smut is a disease in the stem and leaves of the wheat which Dist. W. C. T. U. robs the plant of its food and prevents it from heading. Treating the seed prevents the smut except where the disease is in the soil, when the use of seed of resistant varieties is the best preventive. The department, in co-operation with the Kansas State Agricultural college, is testing about 250 varieties and selections at Leavenworth, Kan., in the winter wheat belt to develop wheat resistant to flag smut.

Great Vitality of Seeds

Proved by Experiments Here's weed news for the farmer, but it's bad.

Seeds of wild morning glory, buried for 20 years, sprouted almost at once after being unearthed and planted, the United States Department of Agriculture reports.

The seeds were buried as part of an experiment to discover how long seeds may lie in the soil and still grow, and to discover how long seeds must be buried to be killed.

The morning glory will be given further opportunity to prove its "staying power," as some seeds buried 30 years ago are still in the ground and will not be removed for ten more years.

Gardening Hints

Azaleas and rhododendrons need an acid soil. This can be supplied by piling oak leaves around the base of the plant, and letting them rot there, or to some degree, by working granulated peatmoss into the soil and using it for a mulch. It must be remembered, however, rooted, and the utmost care is required, while performing the above task to keep from breaking or disturbing these roots. When planting rhododendrons, masses of oak leaves should be put at the botearth placed over this. These leaves

Palatability of Pastures

A group of steers "voted" legumes -such as clovers, alfalfa and lespedeza—the most popular pasture plants at an experiment conducted in Maryland. They registered the "vote" in a series of pasture trials. Twentyfive different grasses and legumes were sown in one field and government pasture specialists observed which was grazed most.

The legumes led. Next came brome-grass. Following were Italian and perennial ryegrass, and meadow fescue. A mixture of the standard pasture grasses ranged next to those in palatability.-Dakota Farmer.

Fertilizer Boosts Profit

George B. Harreld, Grant county, Indiana, has found that there is more profit in tomatoes and roasting ears than in field crops. Last year he raised 155 tons of tomatoes on ten acres. The crop brought $2,170.\ He also raised 30 acres of sweet corn. Though it was a dry year, the corn averaged three tons

"I must give a lot of the credit for my good tomato yield to fertilizer," said Mr. Harreld. "I used 200 pounds an acre of 2-8-6. I wouldn't try now to raise tomatoes without fertilizer."-Capper's

BEWARE OF STALE GASOLINE!

ONLY fresh GAS PACKS FULL POWER!

THE longer gas is stored, the weaker it gets. Volatile "easy starting" elements evaporate. In addition, a definite physical change takes place -- so that as gas gets staler, it gets feebler and teebler!

State gas is stickier, too-and is far more apt to knock. The entire petroleum industry has long known these facts -has long sought a way to halt gasoline deterioration.

Now, by radical advances in refining and distributing, Gulf protects you from staleness—assures you of getting FRESH, full-powered gasoline. In this way ...

By making the finest possible gasoline and by refining out of that gas the hydrocarbons which cause fast deterioration-"staleness." Hence Gulf gas stays FRESH longer And by rushing you this FRESH, MADE gas like some perishable food-giving it no chance to get stale.

Careful location of Gulf refineries has made this possible. So wisely are these refineries placed that every Gulf station is close to a source of FRESH-MADE gas. A huge fleet of tank trucks rushes FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day. Get FRESH-MADE, power-packed gasoline!

Get Gulf - and nothing else. Your motor will be cleaner. Quieter. Faster.

EVERY VOTER'S RESPONSI-BILITY.

Next Tuesday, for the fortieth time, the United States will elect a President. Thirty-one men have held this high office, nine having been elected twice. Only thirtytwo of the Presidential elections, however, have been decided by popular vote, in our present fashion. For that matter, there is no at Cleveland, Ohio, from Saturday provision in the Constitution of the until Monday night. Those things and other speakers on the prowere left to the states, and the Constitution reads that "each state shall appoint, in such manner as its Legislature may direct," the required number of Presidential electors. If any state Legislature wished to, it could pass a law repealing the privilege of its citizens to vote for Presidential electors, and have them appointed by C. E. Terry, daughter, Miss Phylthe Governor or chosen by the Legislature. .

Increase Value of Timber by Pruning

Foresters Advise Treating Forest Trees.

Fruit growers have pruned their trees for years to get more good fruit with its blush developed to the rosiest hue, but forest trees have just grown to a finish-fight for the survival of the fittest. Now Cornell foresters advise farmers who have pine plantations that they can increase the value of the lumber about $400 to the acre by pruning. Trees which grow close together and have a diameter of four inches or more have about seven or ten day form a three weeks' visit with feet of stem with dead branches. These branches provide no food for the tree, and if they are removed the tree grows clear wood without knots, they say.

Only the dominant trees, or about two hundred of the best trees in an acre, need to be pruned. The first pruning should be done when dead branches can be cut off as high as the pruner can reach from the ground. Two later prunings will be necessary to clear all of the 70 per cent of the volume of a 15inch tree is in the first log, which, if pruned, will be clear lumber.

Dairy Calves Benefited

by Vitamin D in Rations Calves eating reasonable amounts of good legume hay are likely to get enough vitamin D in their ration. On the other hand, smaller calves, eating little hay and getting little butterfat in their milk, may benefit from the addition of 1 per cent of cod liver oil to their grain rations. This is particularly true if such calves are raised indoors where they have no access to direct sunlight.

The need of vitamin D for dairy calves was emphasized by the prompt recovery of two calves showing symptoms of rickets at forty weeks of age that were fed (oxidized) cod liver oil in which the vitamin D was normal, but the vitamin A had been destroyed. Their improvement in appetite and general thrift of condition marked and they grew rapidly during the next six months while the vitamin D supplement was added to their feed.-Hoard's Dairyman.

Poison the Gophers

Pocket gophers may be controlled by poisoning with either vegetable or grain baits. Strychnine is the poison commonly employed. In using the poison the main runway of the rodent should be located and the bait dropped into the run. The entrance to the runway should then be closed with a ball of damp earth or wad of grass. Baits need to be placed only at two points in each separate system of ten to thirty mounds, which is usually the home of a single gopher. As new easily seen, and these live runs poi-

Protect the Navel Cord One of the first steps after the calf is dropped is to disinfect the navel cord with tincture of iodine, using a small brush or a piece of cheesecloth. In case iodine is not available, use a 5 per cent solution of a coal-tar disinfectant. Hold a calf so that the raw, exposed part peat the treatment daily until the cord becomes dry. Proper disinfection of the navel prevents disease germs from entering the body of the calf at that point.—Exchange.

Season Before Setting

In a test in Iowa, catalpa posts lasted 18 years without any chemical treatment. Those treated with creosote lasted 28 years.

These posts were not put in until they had a year to dry after hing cut. It always pays to let the post season if possible. Cut them, if you can, in the fall so they will dry out enough to prevent the wood borers from attacking them while they are

Agricultural Notes How can war on the flies be successfully waged? Clean up, spray, and kill the flies.

"Spray early," says the agricultural expert at Cornell university, "and do not let pests get started."

Early market hogs can be produced most economically in areas where there is an abundance of alfalfa or other succulent pasture.

Flag smut, a serious wheat disease in Australia, was reported by the Department of Agriculture to be spreading persistently in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. Beans germinate best in a warm, mellow soil and when planted just deep enough to get the seed into moist soil. Plant in hills or in a row one or two inches deep.

When spraying fruit trees with arsenate of lead, put a thick coat of vaseline on face and exposed skin. This keeps the spray from burning and it will also wash off much easier.

Architect Was Right

When Wren built St. Paul's cathedral, he was so mistrustful of stone near iron that he is said to have specified that no iron inside stone should be within hine inches of the air. His instructions were not carried out, and much damage has resulted. Over 1,000 iron rumps and dowels were removed rom the main plers of the catheral during recent repairs. Many of these, which caused much damage to the masonry, were found to lie within an inch or two of the surface of the stone.

New York's "Lower East Side" While its fame is world-wide only few people know exactly where New York's "Lower East Side" is and what is its area. What is officially known as the Lower East side is one and one-half miles in area, reaching from Brooklyn bridge to Fourteenth street and from the Bowery and Third avenue east to the river.

Presidents Related

There have been several Presidential relationships. John Adams, the second President, was the father of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President, William Henry Harrison, the ninth President, was the grandfather of the twenty-third President, Benjamin Harrison. Zach ary Taylor, the twelfth President, was a second cousin of James Mad son, the fourth President.

Symbolic Phrase

The phrase "Agathocles' pot" (a tyrant of Syracuse, 361 B. C.-289 B. C.) is a phrase which might be regarded as symbolic of his power. He was born the son of a poor potter and himself learned that trade. but as the fisherman evoked the powerful jinn out of his pot, so Aga thocles evoked from his one of the most powerful reigns of any tyrant of Syracuse. Marrying an heiress was a help to him.

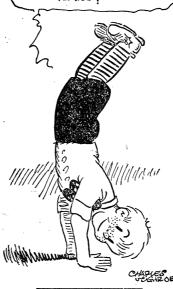

Marie Antoinette's Age Marie Antoinette, that gay little queen, is usually thought of as quite young, when she met her untimely death, but she was almost fortyeight years old. Playing in the gorgeous palace gardens, with the ladies and gentlemen of her court, she has left for posterity a picture of youth and it is hard to think of her as a woman of almost fifty.--Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Music of Kindness

Kind words are the music of the world. They have a power which seems to be beyond natural causes. as if they were some angel's song, which had lost its way and come on earth, and sang on undyingly, smiting the hearts of men with sweetest wounds and putting for awhile an angel's nature into us .-F. Sec. of State Has Fine Record

In these times of economic stress, when every individual is at his wit's end to find the way out of his own troubles; when affairs of the state and nation call for real executive ability on the part of public servants, it is refreshing to mow that among men of ability in state affairs there is none that can better the record of Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state.

Here, briefly are some of the accomplishments of Mr. Fitzgerald during his first term of office as secretary of state: Part time employment for employees of his office, so that all had work and none

Farmers or their employees may hunt or trap without a license on that enclosed area on which they rive but must be provided with a license to hunt on any other lands even though it be "worked" as part of the farm according to the Department of Conservation in answering numerous inquiries as to the regulations permitting certain persons to hunt without a license. Chapter Four of the General Game Laws of 1931 provides that "resident citizens of this state and their children and employees when hunting or trapping upon their own enclosed farm lands upon which they are regularly domiciled" are not compelled to obtain a license.

This has been interpreted to mean, according to the Department, that farmers or their children or employees may hunt without a license only on the area in which their home is enclosed. If part of the farm is directly across the road no license is necessary to hunt there since the farmer owns to the center of the highway on either side, making the area contiguous.

However, should a farmer own or "work" a plot of ground separated from the farm on which he lives by other property, he would be compelled to have a hunting license to take game or fur-bearing animals there.

In Tuscola, Genesee, Shiawassee and Washtenaw counties, where Sunday hunting is permitted to property owners hunting on their own lands, the property owners are not required to live on the land on which they hunt on Sunday. They are, however, required to have POST YOUR LAND for the hunta license if they are not regularly domiciled on the property.

Wheat to Take Drop Nov. 7

Wheat will be worth 75 cents per bushel at this office until Monday night, Nov. 7. Up until that time The Chronicle's offer to accept two bushels of wheat for a $1.50 year's subscription will remain good. Scores of our farm readers have already taken advantage of this plan and are "all set" for another year. Many more are expecting to do so but they have only a few days more. Don't delay.

Wheat growers who wish to take advantage of this offer to pay their subscription for a year are asked to bring their wheat to the Farm Produce Co., or the Elkland Roller Mills at Cass City, the Michigan Bean Co's elevators at either Cass City or Deford, or the Gagetown Elevator Co. A receipt will be given by the grain dealer for the two bushels and this should be brought to the Chronicle office where subscription credit will be given. The equivalent in cash will not be accepted. This offer is good for new as well as renewal sub-

3,000,000 FAMILIES HELPED BY RED CROSS

Concluded from first page.

"The Red Cross faces the busiest winter since the days of the World War," Chairman John Barton Payne said. "It is organized in virtually every one of the 3.072 counties in the United States, and will cooperate with all agencies to meet distress wherever found. The flour has proved of great benefit, and the cotton clothing will be given wide distribution.'

While carrying on nation-wide these unemployment and other relief measures, the Red Cross also was engaged in its regular peacetime activities in public health nursing, service to ex-service men and their families, teaching home hygiene, life saving and first aid. The Junior Red Cross, composed of almost 7.000,000 school children, also rallied to the support of the society's relief efforts, and the children aided others of their age in practical ways, formed sewing and food canning classes, and were of great assistance in chapter relief work.

While the wheat and cotton were given by the U.S. Government, no money was provided to pay for the necessary work entailed. The Red Cross will meet this expense of almost $500,000 from its treasury. Citizens can aid by joining as members of the local Red Cross chapter during the roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

CHARACTER OF SOIL CHAPES HAN'S LIFE

Due to Plant Growth Peculiar to Cortain Arcas.

Washington .- "The character of the soil-the few inches or few feet of the earth-has very largely molded the way of life of millions of people throughout the world," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Other factors, such as moisture and temperature, are important in plant growth," continues the bulletin, "but the fundamental factor is the soil itself, the medium in which roots can anchor themselves, and from which they can draw their food supplies.

"The great loess region of north China is a striking example of the effect of soil on customs. This light loam deposited by the wind, is easily drained, and none too well supplied with moisture. It dictates the growth of wheat and other hardy grains instead of rice. The northern Chinese, therefore, are non-rice eating folk. Their dry soil also decrees the raising of live stock; so it is here that China has its greatest concentration of sheep and Flood Irrigation.

"The lower Yangtze valley forms a marked contrast to the loess region. With its basins of rich alluvial soil, which responds well to wet culture, it is the center of China's rice production. In this region the soil condition has brought about dependence almost exclusively on rice as a vegetable food, the practice of flood irrigation, and the raising of poultry rather than large

"In the United States the great 'corn belt' near the center of the country has been marked out by deep, easily-penetrated soil, although temperature and moisture conditions also are important factors in making this the greatest maize-producing region of the world. Corn is an excellent food for animals. It is largely because of its soil and temperature, therefore, that this region has become the great cattle-fattening and hog-raising section of the United States.

"Two of man's chief luxuries, tobacco and wine, are more strongly affected by soil differences than almost any other agricultural products. In the United States cigar leaf tobacco is grown best on certain soils of the Connecticut valley, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Wisconsin. The Burley types grow on the blue-grass soils of Kentucky and adjoining states to the north; and the bright tobaccos, used in cigarettes, on the light soils of the Carolinas and nearby Virginia.

"The most famous Cuban tobacco, which has at times sold as high as $20 a pound, can be grown only on soil in about 25 square miles. Two other restricted areas produce the second and third most famous Cuban tobaccos. On special soils in Macedonia and Asia Minor are grown the celebrated Turkish tobaccos, with flavors and aromas that cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

France owes its special character to vantage by seeding in oats which the soil on which the grapes grow. may be cut along with the clover What Soil Is Made Of.

"This priceless soil layer, on which all of the world's land vegetation and land animals are dependent, is nothing more than broken up hits of rock into which the decayed remains of vegetable and animal forms have been mixed. Chemically, there are three broad types of soil: alkaline, neutral, and acid. It is in accordance with their physical characteristics, however, that soils are usually classified.

"Sand is the soil of coarsest particles. Through it water drains easily, little being imprisoned, and not much mineral matter goes into solution from its hard grains.

"At the other end of the scale, physically, is clay. Its particles are fed. A slop made of milk or water so fine that they are not found in a and mill-run is the best feed. Rolled separate state, but stick together with water in large groups. Whereas pure sand is too 'light' for satisfactory crop production, pure clay is too 'heavy.'

"Between sand and clay lies the wide range of useful soils, made up of particles smaller than those of sand and larger than those of clay; or else of varying proportions of sand and clay, with the addition in most cases of mixtures of lime, other mineral salts, and decayed vege-

"The soil, as the feeding ground of plant roots, is in truth much more than a mere group of fragments of rock and humus. It consists of soil 'crumbs' composed of groups of microscopic particles; the obvious spaces between the crumbs; the unseen spaces within them; the water, air, and other gases that circulate between the crumbs and are imprisoned in them; minerals in solution, and the bacteria and microscopic animal life that exist underground. It is from the mineral solutions that surround and permeate the soil crumbs that the tiny rootlets draw most of their nourish-

Poison Advised in Fight on Cutworms

No Method Yet Found for Treating Seeds.

By SAM C. McCAMPBELL, Deputy State Entomologist, Colorado Agricultural College.—WNU Service. Cutworms are most effectively controlled by scattering poisoned bait on the ground just beneath the plants on which they are feeding. There is no practical method known for treating seed to prevent cutworm injury. The poisoned bait may be made of five pounds of bran, four ounces of paris green, threefourths of a pint of cheap molasses and two quarts of water, if only small amounts are needed. Larger quantities may be made in the same proportion.

The poison and molasses should be mixed in the water. Stir thoroughly, then pour slowly over the bran. Mix completely, to insure getting some poison on each flake of bran. With large amounts the mixing may be done on a tight floor or heavy canvas with a hoe or shovel. The mixture should be crumbly, but not sloppy. It should be broadcast at the rate of ten to fifteen pounds per acre in the evening so it will be fresh when the night feeding begins.

Explaining Purpose of

Use of Corn Cultivator The main purpose of corn cultivation is to kill weeds, and if it can done without aerating the soil too much or disturbing the roots of the young corn plants, the more successful the crop will be, state Iowa State college investigators. Contrary to general belief, they find, cultivation does not keep water in the soil. It does kill weeds that would use moisture, however.

The roots of the corn plant are located in the first six or seven inches of soil. It is in this layer of soil that the most nutrients are found. Summer rains of one-quarter of an inch moisten only about three inches of soil. Stirring of this layer aerates and dries out the soil and prevents the roots from secur ing food and moisture.

The theory that water moves upward through the soil capillary system from great depths beneath the surface has been disproved.

Legume Inoculation Inoculation of legumes is not a once-in-a-lifetime proposition. If you grow alfalfa in your rotation once in three or four years, inoculation is a job to be done every three or four years. In other words, inoculate every time a legume is sown. There may be some of the nitrogen-gathering bacteria in the soil, but not enough of them to enable the alfalfa to do a good job of gathering nitrogen from the air. In the absence of the right kind of real efficient bacteria, the plants will take nitrogen from the soil and thus deplete it the same as a non-legume crop.-Farm Journal.

Unless this is done, weeds will likely start ahead of the oats and smother them out. There is little advantage in seeding more clover or grass on the spots if the land is to be broken this fall. However, if the field is to be carried over for another year, a new stand of grass and clover can be started with the oats. - Prairie

The Surgeon's Kit. A T THE discovery that the three men talking with Smith were by no means the three who had traveled in the Fleetwing, Markham's first impulse was to intro-

For a time nothing intervened to make him slacken speed. With the paved road left behind, however, Markham's difficulties began, and he had to get out the scratch-paper and follow its markings. But after he had made the first two or three arrow-indicated turns a speed slackening became strictly obligatory.

Spurred on by the sharp necessities. Markham kept the roadster in motion, shifting gears only when he was obliged to. In this manner he had made something over twenty speedometer miles of the bad going before he came to the end. On one of the rockiest of the hills the mo-

Briefly, and hurriedly, Markham explained, and the gray-haired one laughed.

"Somebody's done played a mighty mean joke on you, I reckon. Ther' ain't nothin' the matter with old Doctor Bonehunter, as we call him. > "A good part of it." said Markham, convinced now that he had been gotten out of Brewster by subterfuge. Then, overwhelmed by a sudden realization of what the plot might mean not only to himself, but also to Landis and possibly to Betty, "It isn't a joke; it's the way a bunch of crooks took to get me out of town and lost in these hills. You've got a car and it will be worth a hundred dollar hill to you to get me back to my car and give me gas enough to run me to Brewster. Will you do it?"

Markham entered the cabin with his host and helped him cook a breakfast of bacon and pan-bread. Stillings explained rapidly. "We were out for a call on one Betty telephoned to say that you were staying at Hillcrest for dinner. Mrs. Stillings told her to look under the mat for the door key if she returned before we did. We key was where we left it and there was no one in the house but the servants, who had gone to bed. The natural supposition was that Miss Betty was staying the night with the Smiths; but when we tried to call up and find out, we were told the line was out of order. Then we tried to get you here at the hotel, and were told you'd been in and gone out again."

"I had," said Markham shortly. "Early this morning we tried the Smiths' phone again and Mrs. Smith said that you and Miss Betty drove in between eight and nine o'clock last night. That rang the fire alarm right, and I've been haunting the hotel ever since, trying to get track of you or Mr. Landis. Have you anything at all to offer?"

"Only this: that Owen disappeared last night at about the same time; and that, a little later, I was sent to the northern part of the Timanyoni on a framed-up story which was intended to efface me for an indefinite time."

"What was the framed-up story?" Markham told it succinctly, beginning with the telephone message which had - presumably-caused Landis to go across the street to the Little Alice offices, and bringing his own experience down to date. "Why, that would mean that you three were the victims of some extended criminal organization," said the lawyer, half incredulously. "How could that be?"

Roof Leaks Take Toll of Profits

Hard to Find Excuse for Farmer Who Permits the Condition.

By W. A. FOSTER, Rural Architecture University of Illinois. WNU Service.

Leaking roofs over stored grain and roughage are one threat to market price and value which farmers can control. Grain and roughage now being harvested and stored will be in danger of costly losses unless roof leaks are repaired in time. A leaking roof may be better than ter Brock were dinner guests at no roof, but if not repaired, it soon becomes no roof at all. In addi- day, Oct. 27. tion, the roof frame is weakened by decay of its members. In dwellings, plaster is loosened and falls from continued leaks, and insulation is broken down, packed or made ineffective by moisture.

After a summer shower is a good time to spot the small roof leaks. They can then be repaired as time permits before the rainy season opens. If these small holes remain, they quickly grow in size. Rodents enlarge them to get water after rains. The wind wears and tears until the holes get bigger or the roofing is entirely destroyed.

A wood shingle roof may be patched by inserting new shingles and nailing them in place. Slate may be replaced and fastened with clins or the exposed nail head covered with mastic. A sheet metal roof loosened by wind or expansion should be renailed or the wind will soon tear it off. Roll roofing tears from wind or from stresses set up by settling. Manure Losses Stopped by Early Applications To test the loss of food elements in manure that is left out of doors, Ohio State university agronomists placed 4,000 pounds of horse manure in a wooden box that was not waterproof and left it exposed from April 1 to October 1, Prairie Farmer reports. During this period there was a loss of 41 per cent of the nitrogen, 47 per cent of the phosphoric acid, 76 per cent of the potash and 57 per cent of the total weight. About 65 per cent of the this six months' period.

The losses from 1,000 pounds of cow manure exposed under the same conditions were 41 per cent of the nitrogen, 19 per cent of the phosphoric acid, 8 per cent of the otash and 49 per cent of the total weight. Thirty-two per cent of the value of the manure was lost.

Early application of manure is recommended to prevent these losses. When applied on pasture, the grazing value is lost for some time, and not more than one-third of the acreage should be covered in a season.

Rodent Control

Seed treatments with repellent substances to prevent injury by ro Rev. and Mrs. Jones and daugh- dents and birds is not generally recommended, as the seed may be severely damaged in the process, according to G. C. Oderkirk of the United States biological survey. Instead of treating the seed with the possibility of severe damage, or delayed germination, it will be better to depend upon poisoned bait to reduce the number of destructive rodents that destroy the seed. Mechanical devices can be used quite effectively to scare off birds during the shorter period when they may, cause damage.

Bought Kansas Herefords

A western Oklahoma ranchman recently purchased 1,500 Hereford heifers from Kansas breeders. In making selections, many herds were visited, and high quality was demanded, although the cattle are to be used for replacement in a commercial herd. The purchase of the heifers for less than grades would have brought only a short time ago indicates the far-sightedness of ranchmen in knowing when to buy and sell. This fine lot of females topped from the good herds of Kansas will replace old and inferior cows.-Kansas Farmer.

Quality of lumber in secondgrowth southern pine stands is improved by the presence of a substantial mixture of second-growth of hardwoods of the same age, recent United States forest service studies show. The shorter, broadleaved trees help materially in shading out and causing natural pruning of the lower branches of the lines, promoting earlier formation of clear lumber in the growing pine trunks. Best results were found where the stands included approximately 20 per cent of well-distributed hardwoods.

Insist on genuine Bayer Aspirin;

Take a tablet of Bayer Aspirin and some other tablet, and drop them in water. Then watch the Bayer tablet dissolve-rapidly and completely. See how long it takes to melt down the other.

That's an easy way to test the value of "bargain" preparations. It's a far better way than testing them in your stomach! Bayer Aspirin offers safe and speedy relief of headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, rheumatism, or periodic pain. It contains no coarse, irritating particles or impurities.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.
