Twenty-five Years Ago

Nov. 1 and Nov. 8, 1907. Amzy Clay, an old pioneer of Tuscola county, died at Ellington Oct. 25, at the age of 79 years.

On Sunday, Nov. 17, the dedication of the new M. E. church at Grant will take place.

The new Masonic temple at Bad Axe was dedicated Tuesday afternoon.

Married on Oct. 30, at Saginaw, John P. Neville and Miss Anna Lorentzen.

A. Doerr has disposed of his fine farm, six miles north of town, to James Maharg.

Dr. Chas. F. Klump and Miss Maud M. Brown were married at the bride's home in Detroit on Nov. 6.

Rev. Wm. Richards, pastor of the M. E. church at Shabbona, was married in New York City on Oct. 28 to Miss Jennie Lawry of Cornwall, England.

Amos P. Jeffery, well known resident of Kingston, was found dead in the road a mile from his home Friday morning. Death was due to paralysis.

A much better feeling prevails not only in Detroit today, but throughout the county, according to our latest advices. The financial atmosphere is considerably clearer. This comment was made by several Detroit bankers Wednesday, says the Detroit News.

Thirty-five Years Ago

Nov. 4 and Nov. 11, 1897. Wm. Smithson has purchased the draying business of A. Spring.

Negotiations are as good as completed for the purchase of the Ale residence in the Campbell addition by Chas. L. Robinson.

W. A. Beach, who recently opened a general store at Novesta Corners, has leased the large Owen building at Owendale and transferred his stock to that point.

Grand Champion Calf and 4-H Club Owner

Meadow-View Lindy, Angus calf owned and raised by Marion Syrcel, Siloam Springs, Ill., was made Grand Champion of the 9th Annual Baby Beef Show at the 4-H Club show in East St. Louis. 217 entrants from Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas competed. Meadow-View Lindy, shown here with the owner, weighs 820 pounds.

On our blackboards, we have some turkeys drawing carts loaded with pumpkins. We also have some larger turkeys on our windows.

Reporters, Dale Gingrich and Frederick Bayliss.

FERGUSON SCHOOL.

We are sorry that we had to have our "weenie roast" inside last Thursday, but the furnace roasts weenies very nicely. It was not raining though, so we played games outside.

We have changed our daily program this week. Right now it seems very interesting.

The fifth grade are working very hard to get a percentage of 100 in arithmetic. They have 1 per cent yet to gain.

The little folks made a jointed Humpty Dumpty for art and the older ones are making a "Hiawatha" poster.

In the whispering contest, Mildred's side is ahead with 43 checks against 46 for Vera's side.

On Tuesday, we had an unwelcome visitor. Without a bit of warning, one of the neighbor's goats came walking into the room. We would rather know when he is coming next time.

Reporters, Clark Churchill and Lawrence Auten. Teacher, Marie O'Dell.

SHABBONA SCHOOL.

"November woods are bare and still, November days are clear and bright."

We have been improving our school room by washing windows, desks and back doors, killing flies and varnishing picture frames. We still have many things to do.

Marion McGregory brought us a pretty foliage plant. Thanks, Marion.

Since we discovered one of our group had the "itch" we have been having morning inspection.

The beginners made waste paper baskets. The paper is kept picked up now.

The fifth grade have been writing autobiographies. We found that some have already attended ten schools.

The seventh grade are studying colonial life. They have collected many pictures. Jane Phetteplace gave a very interesting report on the first settlement of Evergreen. We have written a composition on colonial homes. We are now looking for material on colonial schools and churches.

The eighth grade agriculture class has been judging corn. We have sympathy for the judges at the fair.

The Nature study class has been giving reports on the care of the forest. Our main text is the Forest Primer, but we also have other references as bulletins, magazine articles and books.

The 4-H Sewing Club will be ready to give their program November 22. Mr. Martin is going to help us by showing some 4-H pictures. Remember our date. Reporter, Virginia Leslie.

TANNER SCHOOL.

We enjoy playing "scrub" when it isn't raining.

Billy Jackson received the prize for reading this week.

Louise and Earl McKay have been absent this week because of the mumps.

We have four new pupils who have just moved into our district which now makes us an enrollment of thirty-six.

We surely appreciate and wish to thank Jas. Hewitt for the treat he gave us Friday noon.

We also wish to thank L. Hewitt and those who have been fixing our bell and furnace pipe.

The third and fourth grades are having "Taktuk," an arctic boy, for language.

We have many good stories in our traveling library which we have enjoyed reading.

Those who were neither absent nor tardy for the month of October were: Earnie Hill, Billy Jackson, Loreta Jackson, Billy McKay, Robert McKay, Calvin, Junior Lavara, Mildred and William Morrish, Junior Robinson and Richard Rolston.

Reporters, Lorene Robinson and Sera Dybilas. Teacher, Leta O'Dell.

CEDAR RUN SCHOOL.

For Halloween we dressed up and roasted marshmallows. After a peanut hunt we played games and sang.

The people who have been absent with measles are back in school.

Maxine Hendrick and her little sister, Emma Jean, visited school Thursday afternoon.

The fifth grade dramatized the story, "The Broken Kite," for reading Friday.

Today is election day and we will have a mock election in seventh and eighth grades. Our bulletin board has been plentifully supplied with pictures of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt.

Reporters, Pauline Hiser and Chester Orlovski. Teacher, Marion Leishman.

"Bugging" Babies

Bobby, aged three, had been ill and could not have his usual outings because of that and inclement weather. One day he looked out of the window, then turned to me and said wistfully, "There are two mammas 'bugging' their babies." Two neighbor women had passed with their baby carriages.—Chicago Tribune.

Cosmic Rays

The cosmic rays, according to Doctor Millikan, are rays of extremely high frequency and penetrating power produced probably beyond the earth's atmosphere or nearly beyond it by transmutations of atoms continually taking place through interstellar space. These rays bombard the earth from all directions.

Finnish Athletics

Organized gymnastics did not become known in Finland until the late 70s of the last century. The most popular branches of athletics are skiing, long-distance running, and several other track and field events and wrestling. Recently rifle shooting and a game adopted from American baseball have achieved popularity.

Interesting Historic Fact

It is a curious and little known fact that Napoleon narrowly escaped being born an Englishman. France and England had long been wrangling about the possession of Corsica, and only a few months before the birth of the great Napoleon in 1769, the matter had been settled in favor of France.

Changed in Meaning

"Myriad" is of Greek origin and literally means 10,000. As popularly used it means a great but indefinite number.

Mormon Legend

Lehi, according to the Book of Mormon history, was the leader of a colony of Israelites who left Jerusalem about 600 B. C., and after much journeying reached the western shores of South America. Their descendants, the legend sets forth, spread up into North America. From these Israelitish people the American Indians are descended.—Detroit News.

Real Art

Diplomacy is the art of saying simple things in such a manner that no one in the world knows exactly what they mean.

Old Sporting Treatise

The earliest known treatise, definitely mentioning the form of sportsmanship known as wing shooting is Bonfaldini's "La Caccia dell Arcobugio," published in 1640.

NEW FALL STYLES

Stressing

---Slim Waists
Broad Shoulders
Straight Skirts

The Dresses

The new fall dresses are just as flattering as any style could be. With swagger broad shoulders accented with the full sleeves to the wrists, with slim waists and straight skirts, it's hard to conceive of an improvement. Many designs in thin wools, in uncut velvets, in all sizes.

The Furs

In the furred coats, unusual effects are secured by deft cutting and sewing. In one model, for example, a collar is placed and sewed in such a manner that it appears to be a separate scarf.

The Coats

In the Fall coats, fur is literally piled above the waistline in unusual collars, armhole bracelets, spiral cuffs, double cape-bands and huge "doughnut" collars. Foxes and flat furs are the most popular for cloth coats.

Father Loved Punishment

By FANNIE HURST

TO KATHLEEN, ever since she could remember, there had been something almost unbearably pathetic about her father. Not alone because he was so good; not alone because widowed at thirty, his middle years had been entirely dominated by the heritage of a brood of five young children; not alone because with hands horny from labor, nightly he would undress with the tenderness that would have befitted the wife who had left him in death, the five noisy, bawling, often squalling youngsters, who rode him with a high hand because of his apparently infallible good humor.

To Kathleen, his second, his paths lay rather in the fact that he accepted it all without question or rebellion. There were five children to be reared on his meager earnings as gardener in one of the town's public parks; five mouths to be fed; five small minds to be trained; five pairs of feet to be shod and that was all there was to it. No grumblings. No complaints. No stinging in so far as it was possible for him to provide.

He was just the best old thing! Time and time again, Kathleen's conclusions regarding him summed themselves up in that rather defeated conclusion. He's just the best old thing!

Completely unaffected in the way that Kathleen was affected were the remaining four children of Pat. Emma, the eldest, had no particular attitude about her father. That is, in so far as she felt anything more than the warm filial affection due a parent from a dutiful daughter. The three boys, pretty rough, all of them, from the vagabonding childhood about the streets, took their "old man" somewhat for granted. "Pap's all right. Little bit of a dub, but Pap's all right. Gives me a pain in the neck sometimes, but Pap's all right."

Not one of the four would have known quite what Kathleen meant had she tried to explain the paths that cut into her heart where her father was concerned. His patient way of plodding off to the park, grateful for coffee if Kathleen or Emma happened to be up to give it to him before he left; uncomplaining and silent if the kitchen stove were cold when he came down and starting off to work with a roll taken from the baker's bag of them at the kitchen door, as he made exit.

It was not often Kathleen let this happen, but the weeks she had been laid up with a broken ankle, time and time again Emma had lain oversleeping and father had gone off without breakfast.

He had a way with the boys, too, of letting them bully him. He was forever contributing out of his weekly wage to tide them over this and that dilemma. "Pap, if you don't let me have a fiver this week, I might as well throw up my job and it'll mean the devil to pay. I owe the till five and it's got to be paid."

That patient, tired, horny old hand sliding down into the worn pocket of his baggy trousers! That patient, walrus-shaped, sandy-colored old mustache, drooping with perplexity and disapproval. Not a particularly efficient father, as fathers go, weak with his boys, vacillating in what few demands he made and absurdly sentimental with his girls.

"My Katy's the queen of them all. My Emma is a lark of the morning."

This because Emmy, with a pretty fluty voice which had been trained from lessons squeezed, dear knows how, out of father's lean weekly envelope, had created about herself, in the narrow little household, somewhat of the aura of a prodigy.

Emma sang. Emma's voice was something to be treated like a jewel in its casket. That was why it was sometimes necessary for father to go off to work without breakfast. A body that contained a voice must not be overrid or overruled.

Father fell in with that. But Kathleen, who was on night shift as telephone operator and did not always return home in time to fix father his breakfast, would boil and then sob a little, inwardly, at the patience of father. The dear, tired, gallant patience of father.

For eighteen years of widowerhood, father stood for all this, sweetly, a little tiredly, but so uncomplainingly that sometimes it seemed to Kathleen he must be made of the stuff of saints. Then, one by one, the boys married and took themselves and their bickerings and their demands and their unthoughtness and their inconsiderate bullies out of the house; and next came Emma, who inside of twenty-four hours met, fell in love with, married and went off with the orchestra leader of a traveling musical show which had come to town.

By this time, resolutely, there began to take full shape in Kathleen's mind a half-formed dream which had lodged there ever since she had been old enough to cerebrate about the stunted life of her father. He was fifty-nine by now, rheumatic, subject to spells of asthma and bent from the long years at gardening.

Father must have his day. Somehow, some way, now with the boys and Emma no longer hanging like so many sacs around his neck, he must be given the first respite he had known.

Safely hidden beneath Kathleen's mattress, were three one hundred-dollar bills and a fifty, the result of five years of saving toward this end. Given this start, and what with her capacity for earning at the telephone exchange where she was now chief operator, there was no reason in the world why father might not retire.

The scheme, amusingly presented, was to be his sixtieth birthday gift.

There was, to be sure, one serious rift within the lute. It meant a continuation of the indefinite postponement of Kathleen's own romance, one of long standing, with a young fellow exactly her own age, proficient in the lovely work of bookbinding. Not a highly paid success job, as those things go, but a quiet, beautiful vocation that in Kathleen's eyes was part of the very home and fiber of this youth himself.

It was hard, the waiting. There had been six years of it already. But there had always been valid reason, and now, with the father approaching sixty, more valid the reason than ever.

With more of staid reconciliation to circumstance than their years would presuppose, the youngsters bowed once more to the dictates of the situation and Kathleen began the dedication of her time, her funds, and herself to her father's twilight years.

It would all have gone through very well, the surprise she had planned for him on his birthday when the new scheme for his retirement from gardening, his leisure and his new life in a home freed of responsibility were to be sprung on him, except for one circumstance.

On the eve of his birthday, father married the widow Croop, a comely neighbor woman of forty-three, with seven growing children and, as she shyly confessed to Kathleen the incredible evening that the incredible pair came trooping home, "the hope of more."

Father, seeming thus to love his punishment, Kathleen and the young bookbinder are married now, and even as father and the widow Croop, are living happily ever after.

FEED RATIO FAVORS BIG MEALS FOR HEN

Dozen Eggs Now Buys Most Mash and Scratch Grain in Decade.

A dozen eggs will buy more pounds of poultry feed this year than at any other time during the past decade, according to studies made by the farm management department at Michigan State College, which indicates a definite loss in skipping the feed supplied to farm flocks.

During the past 10 years, the average price paid for a dozen eggs would buy 16.9 pounds of poultry feed. A dozen eggs during the first nine months of 1932 would buy 19.5 pounds of feed. Last year, the dozen eggs would buy 17.1 pounds of feed and, in 1930, only 16.5 pounds of feed could be purchased with the money received for the eggs.

The poultryman has an investment in land, buildings, birds and equipment and he can get returns from these and his labor only by selling eggs or poultry meat. Good average production of the hens cuts the cost per dozen of producing eggs. With present feed prices, birds should be fed as heavily as possible in order to get the possible profit of turning feed into eggs.

No pronounced improvement in egg prices, other than seasonal raises, is anticipated unless there is a decided improvement in the purchasing power of consumers; but, if any increase does occur, the profit of heavy feeding will be greater.

The price of eggs divided by the price of the poultry ration gives the feeding ration. When this ration shows, as at present, a high ratio in favor of eggs, the mash and the scratch feeds should be supplied liberally.

I noticed. How can the different companies that run in here, between twelve and fifteen busses a day, get away with their franchise, with no bus station?" I asked the mayor if I could write to the Governor of the State of Michigan, Mr. Brucker, and put him wise to the situation. He said he would be very glad to have me do so. You know it does not do your town any good, and why not have it corrected?

"Now, for Cass City, you can be proud of your mayor, your postmaster, and, outside of transportation, your town of Cass City."

Mr. West, since the lack of a bus station has been called to his attention, suggests that the council rooms be used as a bus station. It is centrally located and is conveniently reached by the travelling public and the busses.

SHABBONA.

Death of Mrs. Raymond—Funeral services for Mrs. Roswell Raymond were conducted by Elder Wm. Sheffer of Sandusky, at the L. D. S. church at Shabbona, on Monday, Nov. 7, at 2:00 p. m. Entombment was in the Evergreen cemetery. Mrs. Raymond had been ill a week at her home 2-3 miles east of Shabbona. Death came as the result of a stroke on Nov. 4.

Marrila Ann Smades was born in Canada 66 years ago and was united in marriage with Roswell Raymond on Feb. 20, 1889. They came from Yale to Shabbona ten years ago. Mr. Raymond died within the past year.

She leaves three sisters, Mrs. Wm. Raymond and Mrs. James Burns, both of Shabbona, and Mrs. D. Bidleman of Los Angeles, Calif. Among friends from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. Annie McAulley and Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson of Port Huron.

Double Wedding—Miss Marion Groombridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Groombridge, was united in marriage with Voile Dorman, son of John Dorman, on Nov. 4, at 7:30 p. m. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Payne at Sandusky, by Elder Willard Parks of that city. Murray Kilborn of Snover and Miss Violet Cole of Sandusky attended the couple and were married the same evening, making the occasion a double wedding. Both brides were attired in green flat crepe. House decorations were in pink and yellow. After the ceremony, dinner was served to a company of 75.

Mrs. Dorman has lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Thos. Brown, at Shabbona, since she was four years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Dorman, after a trip to Port Huron, will reside at Germania, Mich.

Wm. Coulter is on the sick list. Mr. and Mrs. Vern McGregory and Dean Meredith visited relatives in Berkeley and Farmington from Thursday to Monday. Miss Marion, who had been visiting relatives for the past week, returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McGregory and family spent Sunday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Eugene McKee, near Hay Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wells of Pontiac are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Norman Kritzman is assisting Ernest Hyatt with his fall plowing.

Roy Furness of Elkton was the guest of his brother, Clifford Furness, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hillicker and family have moved to their new home on the Geo. Smith farm, east and south of here.

Mrs. Annie McAulley of Port Huron spent last week with relatives here.

Leland Leslie and Miss Marjorie Sweeney of Detroit were callers at the J. P. Neville home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Claud Kirkpatrick spent Sunday with relatives in Sandusky.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Furness and daughter Loraine, spent the week-end with relatives at Elkton and Kinde.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neville were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Brennan in Detroit, Sunday, Oct. 30, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Neville's silver wedding anniversary. Mrs. Neville had spent ten days at the Brennan home, returning to her home here with Mr. Neville Sunday night.

SMOOTH tires don't hold on wet pavement. Punctures are more dangerous when it's slippery. Changing tires is also dangerous and disagreeable. Better put on new Goodyears now—they'll protect you, save you money on repairs and delays.

Civilization Has Laid Hand on Desert Trail

I remember chromos of the desert trail, with hollow-eyed skulls of long-horns beside the wagon tracks. And now I have seen that trail, graded and ditched, with signs marked "soft shoulders" and "speed limit: forty-five miles." There are skeletons beside the road now, too—the rusting, crumpled, wheelless skeletons of old autos, upside down.

On that blue mountain, blue from here, but white sand and pale olive brush when you get to it, the miners used to make little holes and tunnels in hope of precious metal. Now there is a great white "A" on its crest, visible for miles around. A tribute to alma mater from the students of the University of Arizona.

HEAVY DEMOCRATIC VOTE IN STATE AND NATION

Concluded from first page.

Stebbins, mayor of Ionia, by 80,000, for lieutenant governor.

Patrick H. O'Brien, of Detroit, led Paul W. Voorhies, Detroit Republican, by 45,000 for attorney general.

Oramel B. Fuller, auditor general, whose state service began back in Gov. Pingree's time, went down to defeat before John Stack, of Escanaba by 55,000.

Howard C. Lawrence, Republican state chairman, was beaten by 45,000 by Theodore L. Fry, of Grand Rapids, for treasurer.

Nine Democratic Congressional candidates were certain of victory and one other was in doubt, giving Michigan a Democratic majority in Congress for the first time in history. Republican representatives who have been sent to Washington consistently for from 12 to 26 years were defeated.

Famous Ocean Races

One of the famous California clipper races was that of the Wild Pigeon, John Gilpin, Flying Fish and Trade Wind. They sailed against time, leaving New York on different dates. Flying Fish won, making the passage from New York to San Francisco in 92 days 4 hours, from port to anchor. The Gilpin made it in 93 days from port to pilot, and Wild Pigeon in 118 days. The Trade Wind, which left some time after the others, followed with 102 days, having taken fire and burned for eight hours on the way. Another famous race was that between William H. Webb's Swordfish and Donald McKay's Flying Fish. The latter sailed from Boston November 5, 1851, and on the same day the Swordfish passed Sandy Hook. The Swordfish arrived in San Francisco on February 10, 1852, after a passage of 90 days from Boston.

Chemicals Combat Ice

Several states where there is considerable snow or ice on the highways have adopted the use of chemicals in conjunction with the sand or cinders used heretofore to prevent skidding. Calcium chloride mixed with the sand or ashes causes it to imbed itself in the ice and prevents it from blowing away or being swept aside by passing cars.

BUS STATION NEEDED HERE, VISITOR SAYS

dry-goods boxes. She was very nice about it, and said there was one chair, she believed, "Make use of it."

"I asked her then what kind of a mayor they had in their city and Mrs. Hunter said he was a very efficient, trustworthy and as grand a mayor as they ever had. 'We are proud of him.' 'Well,' I said, 'From looking around your city, I find it very nice, a good, clean city, and also your people are so good that they don't even need a policeman, just a night-watchman, and he is paid by the merchants. And no city taxes to pay, and money in the treasury. You can be proud of your mayor, Mr. West.'

"On my return, I looked up the mayor, and congratulated him on the success they have obtained from their efficient management, but I said 'Your bus and transportation system is the only bum thing
