Great Democratic Landslide That Carried Roosevelt and Garner to Victory—Gossip About the Next President's Cabinet.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

RIDING triumphantly upon the crest of a tremendous wave of discontent, Franklin Delano Roosevelt was elected President of the United States, the thirty-second man to win that lofty eminence. Herbert Hoover went down to cataclysmic defeat because of conditions and circumstances beyond his control and not of his making. The sovereign people of the nation wanted a change, a "new deal," that might conceivably bring about an improvement in business and industry and provide jobs for the millions of unemployed. So they went to the polls and got the change.

The defeat of the Republican national ticket was the greatest sustained by a majority party in more than a century. Governor Roosevelt carried 42 states and has a vote of 472 in the electoral college. President Hoover won in only Maine, Connecticut, Delaware, New Hampshire, Vermont and Pennsylvania. His electoral college vote is 59. The Democratic candidate was 206 votes in excess of the 206 necessary to a choice. Moreover, when the victor takes office next March he will have backing him a congress controlled by the Democrats, for they won a majority in the senate and increased the majority they already had in the house of representatives. Among the notable Republican senators who were overwhelmed by the deluge were Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, Reed Smoot of Utah, James E. Watson of Indiana, Otis F. Glenn of Illinois and George H. Moses of New Hampshire. Brookhart of Iowa, Blaine of Wisconsin and Shortridge of California had been eliminated in the primaries.

Though New York with its 47 electoral votes had been considered the crucial battleground, Roosevelt, as it turned out, did not need it to win. However, he carried his home state by about 642,000 plurality because of the immense plurality of about 862,000 given him by Greater New York city. Lieut. Gov. H. H. Lehman led the national and state tickets, winning the governorship over "Wild Bill" Donovan by nearly a million votes. Senator Robert F. Wagner easily won reelection. Among the well-known New York congressmen defeated were Fiorello La Guardia and Ruth Baker Pratt. Former Senator James W. Wadsworth, Republican wet, was elected a member of the lower house.

DEMOCRATS of Illinois, with the aid of thousands of Republicans, not only gave Roosevelt and Garner a handsome plurality but elected their entire state ticket. At its head was Judge H. Horner of Chicago, who swamped Len Small in the race for the governorship. This was not surprising, for Small's record as state treasurer and governor was peculiarly open to attack, while the only argument against Horner was that his election would add strength to the powerful machine built up by Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago. Congressman William H. Deterich was successful in displacing Senator Otis F. Glenn. In Cook county the chief battle, that for state's attorney, was marked by a lot of unpleasant scheming, with charges and counter-charges concerning the crime situation in Chicago. The Democratic candidate, State Senator T. J. Courtney, defeated the Republican incumbent, John A. Swanson, by more than 300,000 votes.

In Wisconsin the La Follette following defeated in the primaries threw its strength to the Democrats, and the conservative Republicans, led by Walter Kohler for governor, were defeated. A. G. Schmedeman of Madison was elected governor, and F. Ryan Duffy defeated young Editor Chapple for the senatorship. Senator Jim Watson's victorious opponent in Indiana was Frederick Van Nuys; and Paul V. McNutt was chosen governor of the Hoosier state. Henry Field, who whipped Senator Brookhart in the Iowa primaries, went down in the debacle, and Louis Murphy, wet Democrat, was elected senator. Brookhart, who ran as an independent, received a pitifully small vote.

Governor Roosevelt received the congratulations of President Hoover, and his promise to "dedicate myself in every possible helpful effort," by wire from Palo Alto. He calmly heard the rejoicings of his close associates in the campaign, and then went to Albany to take up the task of adjusting the New York state budget. A group of leading Democrats in the senate and house, as soon as his victory was assured, telegraphed him urging that he enunciate as soon as possible his program of combating the depression, and asking especially that he tell the country whether or not he planned to call a special session of congress immediately after his inauguration to deal with the tariff. It was intimated in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt might assume at once the leadership of his party and direct its doings in the final session of the Seventy-second congress during the winter. Since the nation's problems are so grave and really not partisan, it would be gratifying to the people to see the President-elect and his party co-operating sincerely with the administration of President Hoover in seeking their solution. With the election ended so decisively, this delightful dream might be realized.

MR. ROOSEVELT at least proposes to try to get his program for national recovery started during the coming short session of congress. He let it be known that he would invite the leaders of the present senate and house to a conference at his winter home at Warm Springs, Ga., where he will spend two weeks at Thanksgiving time, and will plan with them what can be done without waiting for his inauguration. Farm relief especially will be discussed. Mr. Roosevelt has plans to aid agriculture by a domestic tariff to be levied on certain basic crops such as wheat, corn and cotton, which would be intended to give the farmers a better price for their products and strengthen their buying power.

It is likely, too, that a measure to legalize beer will be put through the lame duck session of congress if the plans of the wets work out, though the dries will fight it as long as they can, and they are still in the majority in both houses. Many of the states on election day voted to repeal their dry laws, and the next congress will be controlled by wets.

GREAT interest is now evinced in the makeup of Roosevelt's cabinet. Before the election he announced that he had made no commitments, and to date he has made known none of his selections. Political gossip was that Al Smith's reconciliation with Roosevelt was based on virtual assurance that the latter would not consider any of the independent Republicans for cabinet positions, and this was taken into consideration also by other conservative Democratic leaders who feared nothing else would so alarm business as the selection of radicals for positions of importance. It was not thought likely that Mr. Smith would himself accept a place in the cabinet but possibly he might be appointed chairman of a commission to reorganize the federal government.

Mention as possible cabinet members were John W. Davis or Newton D. Baker for secretary of state; Melvin A. Traylor or Owen D. Young for secretary of the treasury; National Chairman James Farley for postmaster general; Governor Ritchie, Senators Glass, Walsh of Montana and Harrison; former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia and Bernard Baruch.

ONE outstanding result of the election was the immediate launching of a general movement among the foreign debtors of the United States to obtain revision or cancellation of their debts. They seemed to think the change of administration would give them as well as the people of the United States a "new deal." It was said Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay informed the State department Great Britain could not continue its war debt payments without seriously dislocating her financial structure; and Washington received dispatches from several other nations saying they would have to default on the payments due in November and December. Under the war debt funding agreements the treasury can allow postponement of payment on principal for two years, but only congress can arrange for postponement of interest payments.

CUBA suffered the greatest disaster in the history of the island when a tropical hurricane struck its southern shores. The entire province of Camaguey was devastated. The town of Santa Cruz del Sur was utterly wiped out and other places, including the city of Camaguey, were partly wrecked. The number of dead is uncertain at this writing but the mayor of Camaguey said his information was that it would reach at least 1,500. The first official figures at Havana were considerably less. Thousands of persons were injured and the property losses were immense. At Santa Cruz del Sur a wall of water described as being 20 feet high was driven five leagues inland by the terrific gale.

GERMANY also had an election, and is struggling with the tangled condition resulting therefrom. It was held to choose members of the reichstag, for the fifth time in 1932, and was as indecisive as those preceding it. No political party won a majority in the assembly, but Chancellor Von Papen nevertheless declared his government would not relinquish power. The outstanding result of the election, in which 35,500,000 voters cast their ballots, was the loss sustained by Hitler's Nazis. They have only 195 deputies in the new reichstag instead of their 230 in the last chamber. On the other hand, the Communists made big gains, electing 100 members. The Von Papen government can count on only about 60 votes in the assembly, and the opinion was expressed in Berlin that President Von Hindenburg would have to effect a reorganization that would retire the chancellor to private life.

Speaking of the Foreign Press association in Berlin, Von Papen hinted that he might retire when he said that "personal questions do not matter; the aims of the government will be pursued unswervingly." He predicted that "a real national concentration is coming" which will aid Germany to recover internationally and to regain her equality with other nations.

He attacked the Versailles treaty and reiterated Germany's claim for equality in armaments. The Lausanne conference created a sound beginning by doing away with reparations, he said, and pointed to the forthcoming world economic conference as the next great opportunity for important achievements.

ARMISTICE day was selected as the date for the wedding of John D. Rockefeller III, heir to all the uncounted Rockefeller millions, and Miss Blanche Hooker. The ceremony was performed in Riverside church, New York city, by Rev. Harry E. Fosdick, the pastor. The bride, who is a daughter of the Elton Huntington Hookers of New York and Greenwich, had as her maid of honor her sister, Helen, and two other sisters, Barbara and Adelaide, were attendants. The bridesmaids were Mrs. H. Edward Bilkey and the Misses Mary French, Faith Rockefeller, Diantha Walker, and Virginia Furman.

Nelson A. Rockefeller was best man for his brother, and the ushers included a cousin of the bridegroom, Avery Rockefeller, as well as three brothers, David, Lawrence and Winthrop Rockefeller, and a brother-in-law, David Milton.

SENATOR BORAH of Idaho, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, went to Washington immediately after the election and began hearings on the treaty providing for joint construction of the Lawrence water way by the United States and Canada. He will give a chance to all interested parties, and probably hearings will be held in both New York and Chicago.

Vigorous opposition to senate ratification of the treaty already has developed. Indications were that the opposition will be centered around the section permitting Canadian authority over Lake Michigan to the extent of limiting the Chicago water diversion, the power features of the $500,000,000 project, and the division of cost between the United States and Canada.

SOVIET Russia, especially in Moscow, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of the October revolution, which by the standard calendar now in use there comes on November 7. The famous Red Square in the capital was the center of the ceremonies and a million persons took part in the demonstration of the nation's military and labor powers. Dictator Stalin and his colleagues reviewed the proceedings from a stand on top of the massive Lenin mausoleum, and for many hours the Red troops, the workers and the peasants marched by cheering and singing.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

"One reason the theater business is bad," said Mike Jacobs, the big shot among ticket brokers, "is that in these days persons pick their spots."

"What do you mean by that?" I asked him.

"Why," said Mr. Jacobs, "in the old days, if you didn't have seats for the show they demanded, you could sell them seats for some other show. That frequently was very useful, as you might have tickets for a show you were trying to boost. But you can't do that any more. The customers accept no substitutes. They make up their minds how many shows they can afford to see, and then they budget their money among the shows they particularly wish to see. If you don't happen to have the reservations they want, they walk out on you and go to a movie. As a result, a few hits are doing all the real business. In the good old days," said Mike sadly, "it was not like that at all. Everybody had money and would spend it for almost any sort of entertainment. Now they have become hard-boiled."

"Broadway," continued Mr. Jacobs, "has changed until the old-timers wouldn't recognize it. The old Broadway doesn't exist any more. Once you could stroll along under the bright lights and meet a dozen persons you knew in every block. Broadway was a street filled with color, life and laughter. It held the flash of jewels and the rustle of silks. The popping of corks was like machine gun fire. There was music and gay conversation. Now the Bowery has come to Broadway. The old rainbow tint has vanished. But for the movie theaters, the street would be as dead as a burned-out bulb."

It certainly is true that the new generation never will know the old White Way. Martin's and Rector's are only memories. The old Shanley's is gone. No longer does Captain Churchill welcome friends and patrons in the early hours of the morning and chat with them concerning the news of the day and stories of the night. There is no "Diamond Jim" Brady and none to take his place. The young men of Manhattan, the politicians, the theatrical crowd are scattered around in various speakeries on side streets, but there is no one place where you may be sure of finding many of them. The best collections are to be observed at private parties given by hosts who still have enough left to entertain. I am speaking of the "after the theater" crowd. There are still one or two restaurants where you are reasonably sure of seeing some one you know at luncheon or dinner. But in the main the best place to be alone with your thoughts is in a hotel dining room.

I have been learning a few things concerning banks. They tell me, for example, that every check drawn costs a New York bank about six cents. That includes printing and handling. The time locks on most of the ordinary vaults are controlled by three clocks, so that if one gets out of order, the others will do the job. These clocks generally are set for 8 a. m. and reset every morning. If anyone should get locked in a vault on Saturday, he would be out of luck, because the clocks will not do their stuff until Monday.

The really big banks have a most intricate system of alarms. As I understand it, if a holdup man so startled an employee that his knees knocked or his teeth chattered, he would set off gongs all over the place. In that case, guards would pour from all sorts of spots like water over Niagara falls. They tell me that a new employee in one of the larger banks did set off an alarm by accident and was almost scared to death by the instantaneous and mystifying appearance of a platoon of guards armed with Tommy guns. For all I know, they also held bowie knives in their teeth.

Birch Grows From Pine

Old Gobbler Guards Children on Estate

Leonardtown, Md.—There is an old turkey gobbler here that is causing widespread interest in his dog-like instincts.

He follows the children of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Swann around like a dog would do, and if any stranger comes on the place or near the children he flies at them, gobbling frantically, beating his wings and trying to peck them in his effort to guard the children.

The Swanns live on part of the large Tudor estate, which belongs to the prominent Key family of southern Maryland. Tudor Hall lands surround three-fourths of Leonardtown.

First Base "Sliders"

Robert Addy of Rockford, Ill., is credited in 1886 with being the first baseball player to steal base by sliding into the bag, although some historians accord the honor to Eddie Cuthbert of the Philadelphia Keystones, saying he stole third in 1865.

Reindeer Increase

In 1891 about a dozen domestic reindeer were brought to Alaska from Siberia by Dr. Sheldon Jackson for the benefit of the natives for use as food and for transportation. Importations were continued for ten years and to the number of 1,200. From these sprang the vast herds which have created a new industry. The number is now estimated at nearly a million, and many reindeer are being transferred to the interior.

All-Powerful Truth

Nothing which is true can be harmful to the body, to the mind, or to the soul; whatever is natural, in the wondrous and beautiful order or nature, cannot be fraught with danger.—Henry Fairchild Osborn.

Word's Many Applications

The English hunter pursues, with the aid of trained hounds, the adult male of the red deer, a European species. But the word "stag" has many more applications than that, according to Webster's new international dictionary, being not only the name of males of other species of deer, but of other animals, including man as well. "Stag" is probably of Scandinavian origin; it has been in the English language for many centuries.

Machine Invention

Machines of the modern kind only became possible when the art of working large masses of metal reached a high state of development.

Indication of Returning Prosperity

EMPLOYEES of the Des Moines assembly plant of a big automobile manufacturing company were called back to work the other day after months of idleness. The reopening of the plant was hailed by the Iowa city as a sure sign that prosperity was returning, and the parade put on by the workmen was heartily cheered.

avorably on repeal, the new Congress will have no opportunity to do so until December, 1933, unless called in special session at an earlier date by the President. These facts become all the more important when it is pointed out that the legislatures of forty-three states meet in January, 1933. If a repeal proposal was not ready to be submitted to them for action before their adjournments a couple of months or so later, there would be a delay of two years until their next regular sessions, unless special legislative sessions were held to provide for the calling of the conventions, it being taken for granted that the convention method of ratification would be used. Time would then have to be allowed for the election of delegates and subsequent debate in the conventions. Not until thirty-six states had voted favorably could any repeal, or new amendment, become effective. Question: Can any immediate steps be taken to legalize light wines and beer? Answer: This can be done at any time by Congress altering the Volstead Act to change the meaning of "intoxicating liquor," which it has the power of defining.

When Bees Require to Be Winter Fed Matter Worthy of the Most Careful Attention.

Two methods of winter-feeding bees are suggested by R. G. Richmond, deputy state entomologist at the Colorado Agricultural college, for use in colonies where the honey crop was short last summer and starvation is showing up. "Winter feeding should not be practiced unless absolutely necessary," Richmond says, "because it disturbs the bees, causes loss among the workers and generally results in unsuccessful wintering. Consider before feeding if the colony is worth it and if the bees would live even if fed." Where the colony has a queen and the cluster includes four frames, proper feeding of capped honey in frames, placed just beside the cluster of bees to replace the empty frames, is the only real satisfactory method, he says. The honey should be partly liquid, the more liquid the better, and must be from healthy colonies. If the origin of the honey is not known to be satisfactory it should not be used under any circumstances, he warns. One or two standard full frames of honey should be enough to carry a normal colony from four to six weeks, depending on how early brood rearing starts. If abundant honey in frames is available, six frames may be added and the colony will be insured against further shortage if the honey flow starts in May. An emergency feed may be made as a fondant candy of sugar, with proportions of two pounds of sugar to one pound of water, hot water being used to dissolve the sugar. To each 20 pounds of sugar add one teaspoonful of tartaric acid. Boil until the mixture reaches 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Cool and add, by kneading, powdered sugar until a very stiff candy is made. Roll the fondant to a flat slab and place on top of the frames in the hive. The candy should be very stiff, making it difficult to pinch off and the powdered sugar must be free from starch, as starch is indigestible for bees.

Mrs. James W. Heller. Mrs. James W. Heller passed away Sunday, November 13, at her home, 6 miles east and 1 1/2 miles south of Cass City, after an illness of four months. Funeral services were held Thursday at 1:30 p. m. from the home and interment was in Elkland cemetery. Anna Bilderbeck was born Sept. 28, 1861, in Van Wert county, Ohio, and was united in marriage with James W. Heller on Nov. 10, 1878, at Hopkins. They came to Cass City about thirty years ago when Mr. Heller was employed at the Elkland Roller Mills by his brother, C. W. Heller. They have lived in and near Cass City since then except a short time at Caseville and at Saginaw. Mrs. Heller was of a loving Christian character and was a prominent and active worker of the Methodist church as long as she was able to attend. She leaves her husband, one son, William A. Heller, Los Angeles, California; a grandson, Carl G. Heller, also of Los Angeles; a granddaughter, Mrs. Karl Jekel, St. Louis, Mo.; two sisters, Mrs. Celia Clark, Portland, Oregon, and Mrs. Etta Hartnell, Hammond, British Columbia; and one brother, Melvin Bilderbeck, of Weidman, Michigan. Relatives from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. Karl Jekel of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bilderbeck of Weidman; Mrs. Mary Heller and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Heller of Lansing.

Robt. L. Kerbyson. Funeral services for Robert L. Kerbyson, 81, who died Monday night, November 7, at his home in Deckerville, were held Wednesday afternoon from the Methodist church in that city. Obituary of Nonagenarian. From Oxford Leader. An aged resident of Oakland County and a pioneer of Addison Township, Manuel Smith, passed away very suddenly at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mo Davis, on Park Street, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 16, 1932, of a heart attack, at the well ripened age of 96 years, 6 months and 8 days. Although in a weakened condition of health Mr. Smith was around as usual and enjoyed an auto ride the afternoon of his demise, about 4:30 o'clock. Getting out of the car, he entered the house, walked to his chair as he usually did, and sitting down, expired immediately. He was of a kind, pleasant disposition, retaining all his faculties to the very end, and will be greatly missed by all who knew him. He was born in South Hampton, England, April 8, 1836, the second son of Richard and Sally (Ingels) Smith. With his parents, brother and sister he came to America in 1838, living at Clifton, Michigan, for just a short time. They soon came to Addison Township, walking most of the way and settled in North Oxford. His mother died in 1841, leaving her husband and four small children, who knew what it was to suffer the hardships of pioneer days. Three of the children were later placed in other homes, Manuel remaining with his father until he was fourteen years old, when he went out to earn his own living. In 1860 he was married to Sarah Elizabeth McHose, of Detroit, who made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Purse, also of North Oxford. They lived on different farms until 1867, when Mr. Smith bought the land on which he built up their home in the woods, and where they lived until they moved to Oxford about twenty-four years ago. He had never been out of Michigan since he entered the state, except once, when he and a friend, James Clack, crossed over to Canada at Windsor, staying long enough to eat their dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were the parents of four children, two daughters and two sons, Lura Mae, Catherine J., Chauncey W. and Harry L. Mrs. Smith passed away June 15, 1913. Their youngest child Harry, died also, nearly five years ago. After his wife's death, Mr. Smith continued to live at the home on Dennison Street, until six and a half years ago, he came to be with his eldest daughter, Mrs. Mo Davis. The other daughter, Mrs. William A. Foe, resides at Cass City, Michigan, and the son, Chauncey W., at Flint. Besides the three remaining children, five grandchildren survive, Roy B. Smith, of Penton; Ray M. Smith, of Flint; Adah M. and George W. Foe, of Cass City; and Hildred E. Smith, of Oxford. One grandchild, Helene E. Foe (Allis) passed away two and a half years ago. Her two children, John W. and Harry D. Allis, of Flint are the only great grandchildren. Funeral services were held at the Mo Davis home Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Fred H. Allen of Lake Orion, was the director in charge. H. B. Johnson officiated. The son, three grandsons and two sons-in-law acted as pallbearers. Burial was in Oxford cemetery.

INFORMATION ON REPEALING A NATIONAL AMENDMENT. Concluded from first page. states have never so acted at once. Question: What is meant by "two-thirds" in Article V? Answer: Two-thirds of a quorum of each House, a quorum being a majority, and not necessarily the whole membership of the House. Question: What part does the President play in amending the Constitution? Answer: Legally, none. But as a political leader he may exert influence on his party members in Congress. The resolution passed by Congress proposing an amendment does not need the President's signature, nor can he veto it. Question: What is the step after Congress has approved an amendment by two-thirds of both Houses? Answer: It is submitted to the 48 states for ratification, either by the State legislatures or by state conventions especially called. Congress determines which method shall be used and so far has always chosen the state legislatures. Question: If ratification is by the legislatures, what vote in each is needed to adopt the amendment? Answer: The same as is required in each state constitution to pass state legislation; in most cases a mere majority or a quorum. To put the amendment in the national Constitution, both Houses of the legislature in 36 states must pass it. Question: Can Congress withdraw a submitted amendment? Answer: No. Its duty ends with submitting the amendment. Power then goes to the states. Question: Must states act immediately or does their opportunity remain open indefinitely? Answer: In the past, states could wait indefinitely. For the first time, with the 18th amendment, Congress set a time limit, seven years in that particular case, and was upheld by the Supreme Court. Question: Can a state, after ratifying, rescind its action? Answer: This point is not absolutely settled. Attorney-General Mitchell believes it can. Opinion in the past has been to the contrary. Of course once the required two-thirds of the states have approved the amendment the matter is definitely closed. Question: Ought a proposal for repeal of the 18th Amendment be submitted to state legislatures or to state conventions? Answer: On a question directly affecting the rights and habits of the people, a convention, popularly elected to consider this one matter would doubtless give the clearest expression of popular feeling. Both major parties have indicated their preference for this method on the prohibition issue, though it has never been used so far. Question: Can Congress interfere with the methods of calling and voting in the state convention? Answer: Legal opinion generally holds that it may not. Question: What form would the proposed repeal or resubmission of the 18th Amendment take? Answer: This is entirely up to Congress. That body may simply submit a proposal merely to strike the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution, or it may combine with such a proposal the provision that control be returned to the states, reserving certain powers to Congress. Several proposals might be submitted for state choice, but this would lead to considerable confusion. Question: Can early action on repeal be expected? Answer: Most likely not. In the first place a long debate in Congress is probable. It must be remembered that Congress, which convenes in December of this year, is the Congress elected two years ago. The members elected this November election will not begin their terms until March 4, 1933. If the old Congress does not act fa-

CRANDELL HAS CHAMP LAMB AT BIG SHOW. Concluded from first page. Detroit, Dec. 6, 7, and 8, where first place in the fat steer class means several hundred dollars in the pocket of the young showman, according to the club department at Michigan State College. First place last year was won by Lewis Horner, Cass City, and he pocketed $484.50 as the sales price of his grand champion steer. The purple ribbon was pinned on the steer shown by Forsyth McCrone, Milan, in 1930, and that grand champion brought $1,785.00 in the auction sale. Eighty-three Michigan club members have already sent in their entries for this year's show. Animals will go to the show from 15 counties in the state. All three of the leading beef breeds will be represented. Many of the youngsters are showing sheep in the fat stock classes. The boys and girls who will exhibit animals at the show will be able to tell visitors how much their animal has cost in original price, feed, insurance, interest on the investment, and hours of labor in preparing it for show. Each club member keeps a complete cost record on each animal and can give a profit or loss statement when the animal is sold. The Junior Livestock Show is the youngster's own show ring, but old showmen now find club members competing against them in the open classes of the great national shows and the honors are not always won by those with years of experience.

Mr. Curtis received a buckskin shirt as second man and Mr. Campbell and Mr. Kelsey, as third and fourth respectively, will have woolen socks for their husking days this winter. G. W. Landon served as announcer and historian, Bruce Brown as referee, and C. U. Brown, Louis Krahling, G. A. Tindale and L. I. Wood as managers. It was a feast of fun from beginning to end. Tuesday's night program was presented by local talent, under the auspices of the merchants' group, and is regarded among the best of the club's programs in recent years.

PLACED POISON IN FAMILY DINNER. Concluded from first page. ner, also salt and sugar found in the preparation of the meal, and these were taken to Lansing Thursday for examination by specialists. Inquiry failed to disclose that the woman had purchased any poison recently, but it was learned that some poison purchased to kill crows two years ago had disappeared. Advertise it in the Chronicle.

Butter Supply Must Be From TB-Free Sources. Cleveland, Ohio, has a city ordinance requiring that butter sold in the city must come from the milk of cows that have passed the tuberculin test. The ordinance became effective January 1, 1932. Cleveland officials anticipate no serious opposition to the enforcement of the ordinance. Tentative arrangements have already been made for the proper labeling of butter from tuberculin-tested sources so that it may be readily identified. It is understood that the term "tuberculin-tested sources" means an area in which the dairy herds have been tested under federal and state supervision and which is officially designated as a "modified accredited area," that is, an area in which not more than one-half of 1 per cent of the cattle are tuberculous.

Cornstalk Poisoning. Cornstalk diseases, which in some seasons causes heavy losses in cattle and horses that pasture corn stalks, is a difficult disease to contend with, states Dr. W. G. Weaver, veterinarian at South Dakota State college. The cause of the disease is not known. The most reasonable opinion is that it is due to some kind of poisoning either prussic acid or potassium nitrate, or both. Animals become nervous, a sort of intoxication takes place, the animal becomes weak and wobbly, some being so crazed that they have a tendency to fight anyone giving them attention. Treatment of sick animals is ineffective and the only absolute preventive is to keep cattle out of the stalk fields. Some years there is little trouble from this disease, and most farmers take a chance on getting the feed from the fields. If poisoning occurs it probably would be wise to abandon the stalks so far as feeding is concerned.—Prairie Farmer.

Around the Farm. Four northwestern states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana—produce most of the nation's flaxseed. In the bee family, the queen is the "better half." All efforts of the bee-keeper bring only failure unless there is a good queen in the hive. If there are old queens, or queens which for some reason are tired of laying, the colonies containing those queens will show a decided tendency to swarm. Boll weevils are appearing in large numbers in Halifax county (Minn.) cotton fields. Some growers have begun the fight by mopping and dusting. Others say they cannot afford to poison. Raw carrots are good for horses of all classes. One or two good-sized carrots for a colt per day should be satisfactory, and heavier horses may be allowed half a dozen or more if you have them.

Scripture Quotation Puzzle

Upon this bit of abandoned back fence some one printed a six-word quotation from the Bible. But some one else came along and rubbed away the upper part of the letters. Can you take a pencil and finish out the letters to make them spell the six words?

A Bear Who Finds Ice and Snow Warm

We can't all be of the same opinion, that is certain. To most creatures, snow and ice are cold but not so to the beautiful white bear of the frozen North. In the picture you may see Mrs. Bear and her baby. Spring has come, the ice has broken away, and she has brought her baby out of their snow cave to hunt for food.

She can make the coziest nest in all the world—in the snow! This she does by lying close to a cliff and letting the snow fall over her until she is entirely covered and has left only a tiny breathing hole open. Here in this tightly packed home she is content to sleep with her baby until spring comes. Mr. Polar Bear roams about all winter long; he doesn't seem to need a long winter sleep. Mrs. Bear stores up a great deal of fat to keep her alive through her sleeping season. When her baby grows up and is strong she, too, will make herself a snow cave and follow her mother's example.

The Polar Bear's feet or paws are very powerful and in order that they may be secure in walking on slippery ice, many prickly hairs grow on the soles. And oh, how these beautiful creatures can swim and dive! You see they must be able to, for the food they like best lives in the water. Seals are a great delicacy as is walrus meat, but when these are not to be had, the bears content themselves with berries. Perhaps these make rather nice dessert!

Baby bears are born as blind as they can be and without one little bit of fur. They must be nearly five weeks old before their eyes can see or before their bodies begin to grow their lovely thick coats. These Polar Bears are the largest in all the bear family and certainly the most beautiful. Sometimes they may swim for many miles, or drift on ice cakes far from home. They do not mind, for the whole Northland is their home and if they can find plenty of ice and snow they are happy.

What Must a Young Girl Know About Marriage?

There is a true story of an ingenious Budapest bookseller, who—faced with hard times—advertised that he had for sale a volume of information indispensable to a young girl contemplating matrimony. He said that in this book would be found—not what every young girl is told before marriage—but what she will find indispensable to know.

Thousands sent their mail-orders. Then—complaints began to pour in. Finally an outraged man brought the bookseller into court. He stated that he had sent for one of these compendia of Indispensable information . . . and that he received by mail a 19th Century Cook-book—"Lazy Little Lulu Learns Cookery." He wanted the bookseller found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses.

But the judge acquitted him, saying that he was in thorough accord with the bookseller's view that a knowledge of cooking was of primary importance to the prospective bride.

The modern newspaper could be advertised truthfully in very much the same way. The most Indispensable knowledge to a young wife is knowing where and what to buy . . . how to get the most for her money . . . how—on a limited budget—to keep her home fresh, new, attractive . . . how to dress herself and her children, inexpensively yet in the very latest styles . . . how to serve on her table foods of the most dependable quality.

In other words—the advertising that appears in your local newspaper contains information of real value . . . NEWS! Announcements of the latest and best in the shopping world. This is indispensable information to every woman, especially to those with families. It helps them run their homes successfully. Surely that is what every woman must know.
