SEE FILMS SHOWING TB TREATMENTS

C. W. Kammeier Spoke Before Three Audiences on M. T. A. Program.

Appearing before the Parent Teacher Association on Monday night, at the Rotary Club luncheon on Tuesday noon and at the high school assembly Tuesday afternoon, C. W. Kammeier, representing the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, told of the subtleness of tuberculosis as a disease and gave high points in the story of how the Michigan death rate from tuberculosis had been forced down in the course of 25 years to a figure approximately one-half that prevailing in the early part of the century.

The tuberculosis germ was isolated by Dr. Koch 50 years ago, but up to that time of the organization of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association 24 years ago, the death rate from this disease had dropped but 10%. Since the society has functioned the death rate has dropped 47%. Mr. Kammeier said that for many years the fight was confined to patients in the adult stage, but in late years the prevention of the childhood type of the disease has been stressed as that precedes the adult type in most cases.

The x-ray has been very valuable in detecting the childhood type and has aided greatly in the work in checking the disease. The best prevention is a high physical type of body produced by three factors—rest, fresh air and correct food.

By the use of shadow boxes and x-ray films, the audiences were shown the characteristic chest walls by which the earliest cases of tuberculosis are now positively diagnosed among children and adults. Others pictured the effect on the lungs and the chest cavity of operations performed to help the body overcome tuberculosis.

The fight against tuberculosis in Michigan is financed to a great extent by the sale of Christmas seals. The sale of these stickers in Cass City is under the management of L. D. Randall, who has acted in that capacity in the past two years. The sale starts next Monday. In the rural section, the sale is managed by rural schools in this community.

Those who do not receive seals through the mail may purchase them at any one of four places in Cass City: at the two banks, the A. Henry Grocery or the Chronicle office.

P. T. A. to Give Play January 9

At the P. T. A. meeting Monday night, it was announced that at the next meeting of that society on Jan. 9, there will be presented a one-act play by several members of that organization under the direction of Virgil Logan.

The society voted to help sponsor the serving of milk and graham crackers to children of the first six grades of the school as a mid-morning lunch. A glass of milk and a graham cracker is served in class rooms at a cost of one cent per pupil. This will be started on Monday and will continue for a four-month period, the cost to be borne by the pupils themselves, or through the aid of the Parent Teacher Association and other societies. Parents of 46 pupils have given their consent thus far to have this service extended to their children.

The serving of hot lunches at school at the noon hour during the winter months will be commenced next Monday by the home economics department.

Fire Damaged W. T. Schenck House

Fire, thought to have started from a spark from the chimney, badly damaged the Warren Schenck residence on West Main street Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wood, who were living in the house, were away from home. Mr. Wood had gone north on a hunting trip and Mrs. Wood was a dinner guest at the L. I. Wood home. Quick work by neighbors and the fire department saved the household goods and even the fruit in the basement. The upper story was completely burned and the lower rooms were badly damaged. The loss, not estimated, is covered by insurance.

Champ Corn Husker

Carl Seiler, Knox County, Ill., is the new national corn husking champion, setting a world record of 36:59 bushels in 80 minutes. The former record was 35:08 bushels. The national meet was held in Calva, Ill.

Lamb Brings $166 at Missouri Show

W. J. Kinderman, advertising official for an oil company, paid the record price of $166.66 for a lamb Friday at the American Royal Show at Kansas City and then discovered that he had purchased the wrong animal.

"That's a good buy," he remarked. "It means a lot of money to that boy in Michigan. I was told to buy the grand champion of the junior division and I got it." "Did you?" replied a sheep man. "I thought that was the grand champion of the show, exhibited by Purdue University."

"Oh, well," Kinderman mused, when he found that the sheep man was correct, "we intended to give the junior champion to Mercy Hospital after it had been prepared as food, but this one is as fine an animal and will do the little boys and girls at Mercy as much good."

The lamb, Kinderman hoped to buy so the money would go to a youthful exhibitor sold for $54, or 45 cents a pound. It was exhibited by Harry Crandell, Jr., of Cass City.

The 4-H Club grand champion Hereford of the American Royal, was sold at auction to a Kansas City, (Kan.) meat company for 71 cents a pound. The animal weighed 950. It was the property of Leslie Oberlander, 18 years old, of Garber, Okla.—Detroit Free Press.

Junior Play Was Well Presented

The play, "The Goose Hangs High," was successfully presented by the Junior class on Friday evening, Nov. 11, under the direction of Miss Verda Zuschnitt. The outstanding feature of the play was the excellent group acting, the individual actors contributing to the play as a whole rather than starring in single scenes.

Gus Moss and Georgine VanWinkle gave sympathetic portrayals of the loving parents who have sacrificed everything for their children and expect nothing but their love in return. Nile Stafford as the older brother from New York, and Philip Retherford and Francis Henry as the twins returning for the Christmas holidays from college gave very intelligent performances of the children who were apparently unappreciative, but who prove loyal to their early training when the crisis arrives. Dorothy Boyes as Julia Murdock portrayed the selfish mother, who has kept her son, played by Lloyd Severance, home and has denied him the right to try life on his own, unsupported by constant advice from the family. His resentfulness of his mother's interference is in marked contrast to the attitude, in time of crisis, of Hugh and the twins.

Marie Rawson was convincing as the grandmother who sided at first with Julia, but who later, urged by the twins, helped rebuild the family fortunes by buying a partnership in a nursery with Noel Derby, played by John Kelly, a friend of the family, and hiring the father to look after her interests. Donald Kosanke, as Leo Day, the dapper councilman with social aspirations,

BRUCE BARTON

...writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows."

Strength, Assurance, Calm.

More than once in his journeys Jesus had passed the victims of the justice of that day, writhing, tortured beings nailed to crosses and waiting piteously for release. Sometimes they waited for days before the end. The memory of such sights must have been constantly with him; at every sunset he was conscious that he had walked just one day nearer to his own ordeal.

Yet Jesus never faltered. Calmly, cheerfully he went forward, cheering the spirits of his disciples, and striking more fiery blows against hypocrisy and oppression which were to be echoed by the hammer blows upon his cross. And when the soldiers came to arrest him, they found him ready and still calm.

They thronged the courtyard before the palace, clamoring for his blood, yet even they felt a momentary awe when he appeared before them on the balcony.

Even Pilate felt it. The two men offered a strange contrast there—the Roman governor whose lips were so soon to speak the sentence of death, and the silent, self-possessed ex-carpenter—accused and doomed—yet bearing himself with so much majesty, as though he were somehow beyond the reach of man-made law and safe from the hurt of its penalties.

In the face of the Roman were deep unpleasant lines; his cheeks were fatty with self-indulgence; he had the colorless look of indoor living. The straight young man stood inches above him, bronzed and hard, and clean as the air of his loved mountain and lake.

CHAPTER XIII

A Confession and a Temperature. WHEN Landis began to come to a realization of things as they are, he found himself in bed. At his stirring, somebody tiptoed across the room to the bedside and he saw Wally bending over him and heard him say, "Thank God, Owen, old boy! We were beginning to think you were never going to come back to us! How are you feeling?" "Like the morning after. What's the matter with my head?" "Oh, nothing much; just looked as if it had been run through a sausage mill when we brought you out of the mine. You must have had the time of your young life with those two assassins."

"I did," said the Berserker, to whom recollection was slowly returning. Then, "Fill it out for me, Wally. What happened, and why did it happen? And is Betty all right?" "She is. In the mine we found you and Betty, and a little farther on, your victims. You must have put up a whale of a scrap with those two fellows—both of them with guns and you with only your bare hands." "Not bare—quite; I had a shovel to begin with. But never mind the scrap. Tell me what Canby and his gunmen were doing, or trying to do, and why they had my black box." Beginning at the Hillcrest visit Markham ran rapidly over the events of the kidnaping evening, the holdups on the way to town, his leaving Betty at the Stillings house and his return to the hotel in time to witness the arrival of the real Fleming, Cantrell and Martin from Louisville. "The clerk had just told me that you'd been called over to Starbuck's office; and knowing, or thinking I knew, that Starbuck wasn't in town, I went over to see for myself," and then he briefed the story of the bogus bookkeeper, and the resultant wild-goose chase into the northern hills, winding up with, "You see, they'd got you and Betty out of the way, and they came within one of doing the same for me; did it, for the time being."

"But still you haven't told me the why," Landis complained. "I'm coming to that. As I said, I was thrashing it out with Stillings in the lobby of the hotel, and just as Stillings said, 'Lord, I wish Starbuck were here,' Cousin Billy walked in on us. Then I did what we should have done at first; gave him the whole layout, beginning with the theft of the black box. 'Canby's the man,' he said; and in less than no time he had the sheriff on the wire and a posse sworn in and we were on the way to the Quavapai. "As we were about to pass the Little Alice, a man came running out to say that somebody was digging into the Alice vein from the south; that the men in the Alice had just heard the air drills as if they were only a few feet away. That settled it, and within the next half hour everybody connected with the Quavapai was under arrest, and one of Canby's accomplices had weakened and told us that you and Betty were shut up in the old workings. At this, the posse split; half of it going into the old mine to look for you two, and the other half taking possession of the new workings."

"You found out the 'why' then?" "Yes, we found out what Canby had done. There was no mineral in the Quavapai; there hadn't been from the beginning. But Canby was stuck, himself, and he framed it to stick somebody else. What he did was to drive a tunnel all the way through the mountain to tap the real stuff in the Alice. When the robber tunnel got so near there was danger of the drilling and blasting being heard in the Alice, he was stumped until he happened to hear of your invention through one of his gang members who had spied upon you in your lab."

"Then the three men in the Fleetwing were his accomplices all the Roman Bread Various kinds of bread were used by the Romans. Wheat bread was the most common variety. Barley bread was eaten by soldiers and slaves. The dough was prepared by moistening the flour with water, adding salt and kneading in a trough of wood or pottery. The leaven was added, the dough shaped and placed in an oven to be baked. A coarse bread was sometimes made of spelt. Europe's Highest Mountains The highest mountains in Europe are not the Alps, as is commonly believed, but the Caucasus, a rugged range which rises like a mighty wall across the bridge of land between the Black and Caspian seas.

way through." "Yes. It turns out that he is the secret head—and brains—of a criminal organization that is almost nationwide. He got the three Louisville magnates on the string and they agreed to buy the Quavapai if it proved to be as he represented it. The tunneling through the mountain had cost a lot of money, and Canby had put everything he had into it. If he could make the turn and sell the mine, he stood to clean up with a couple of millions, or more. But more money was needed, so he turned the black box over to his three yeggmen and told them to pick what they could in the way of ready cash on their way out here. And it was one of his little refinements of audacity to have them pose as the three Louisville magnates on the western trip. "It worked," said Landis. "Yes, until we butted in. When the three found out we were on their trail, they yelled for help, and Canby jumped in to try and balk us until the black box had enabled the miners to get well into the Alice vein and the sale to the Louisville people had been made. After that, Canby could snap his fingers at all of us." Landis made no comment for a minute or so. But after a little pause he said, "I'm mighty sorry for Betty. It's a horrible ending to her little romance." Then, "It was Canby who stole my box, of course. But who was the woman who helped him? Has she been traced?" "I don't think the woman will ever be found. But we can afford to let her go. I'll quit you now and send the nurse in. You've had enough excitement for one day." Landis heard the nurse when she came in and crossed the room, and was inclined to be rebellious when he felt her sit down on the edge of the bed. That was an odd thing for a nurse to do, he thought. When she continued to sit there, he opened his eye a sixteenth of an inch to see what she looked like. Before he could determine, a low voice said, "Don't be so bashful, Owen, dear; it's nobody but me." "Betty!" he gasped, coming wide-eyed. "Did—did Wally mean you when he said 'nurse'?" She nodded. "I've been waiting. The doctor said you might be yourself again some time today. Is your poor head hurting awfully?" "It feels as if I'd lost it and got a cracked dinner pot in its place." He looked away from her when he asked the question: "What became of Canby?" "He is in jail." "Poor girl!" "Why am I poor?" "I shouldn't think you'd need to ask. Weren't you going to marry him?" "No; not if he were the last man on earth." "But, Betty—" "I know, Wally has told you his story, and now I've got to tell you mine. I'm going to tell you just what happened, and then you'll hate me. You know now why Bert Canby wanted to get all three of us out of the way, don't you?" "I know why he wanted to obliterate Wally and me. But you—" "He was just as much afraid of me as he was of you and Wally." "But you came out here with him in his car." "Yes; with daddy along. And we hadn't come very far before I was glad daddy had accepted his invitation. In just a little while I knew there was something terribly wrong going on, and that you and Wally were mixed up in it some way. After that I tried and tried to find out what it was; why you and Wally seemed to be trying to catch up with three men ahead of us, with Bert trying to get to them first." "Well, you know now, don't you? It was that black box of mine. Wally has told you about the box—my noise-killer—hasn't he?" When she nodded assent, he went on. "There were three banks and a mine commissary blown up, wrecked and looted, on the way out here, and not in any of the places did anybody hear a sound." "You think those three men stole your invention? Where did you keep it?" "In the safe in my workshop." "When was it stolen?" "On the night when you acted so well as leading lady. Do you remember, in the first interlude, how the orchestra made a queer break, right in the middle of a passage?" "We all noticed it." "I had the box with me, and I had it switched on for a few seconds to show Wally what it would do. After the play, Wally went with me to my lab, and we talked about it. Just before he left, I put the box in the safe and locked it up. In the morning the safe was open and the box gone. I phoned for Wally and he came right over. We found the tracks of an auto in the alley, and footprints between the line fence and my shop." "What kind of footprints?" "There was only one that was plain; it was the print of a woman's shoe in the soft earth under the lab window. Wally made a plaster cast of it, but I don't know what he did with it." "He went straight to our house and went up to my bedroom and compared the cast with one of my shoes." "What? Good heavens—you must have dreamed that!" "No, I didn't dream it. There was nobody but Olga, the maid, in the house when Wally got there. Olga told Wally I'd be home in a few minutes and showed him into the living room. When she got back to the kitchen she thought she heard somebody upstairs. She slipped up the back way and saw Wally. He was in my room and had one of my shoes in one hand, and in the other a white thing that looked like part of a shoe. She told me after he'd gone, and then I knew." "You'll have to make it plainer. My old head isn't functioning very well, just now. What did you know?" "It all came to me like a dim recollection of a bad dream. I seemed to see myself kneeling before your safe and opening it and taking something from it. Don't you remember how you once showed me how to work the combination?" "But, Betty! That's simply impossible. You couldn't have remembered the combination." "No; I'd forgotten it almost as soon as you showed me, and I don't remember it now. But don't the psychologists tell us that the subconscious mind never forgets anything?" "You're getting in too deep for me now. But it's all perfectly ridiculous, anyway. You wouldn't do such a thing as that!" "Of course I wouldn't—not willingly. But can't you imagine me doing it unwillingly?" "No!" "Then I'll have to tell you something I thought I'd never tell anyone. You know Bert Canby drove me to the theater that night, don't you?" "After the play, he took me to Pozzon's for dinner. I was awfully tired, and before the supper was over I began to get so sleepy that I could hardly hold my eyes open. When we left the restaurant I can just remember Bert's helping me into his car; and after that I can't remember anything until I seemed to come awake as he was helping me out at our front door." "D—n him!" gritted Landis out of a full heart. "If they ever let him out of jail I'm going to kill him! Did—did he hypnotize you?" "I haven't wanted to believe it; it's too horrible. But I'm afraid it's true, Owen. At first, I thought I'd just dropped off for a few minutes while he was driving me home. Then what Olga told me about Wally and my shoes scared me, though I didn't know then that your safe had been burglarized, or that anything had gone wrong. But when I went to my room that night and looked at the clock, I knew we hadn't come straight home from Pozzon's. It made me furious to think that anybody had the power to turn me into a puppet—a plaything! That is why I didn't object when Bert invited us to drive out here with him. I meant to make him tell me what he'd done to me—or what he'd made me do." "But he didn't tell you, did he?" "You'd know he wouldn't. Everytime I asked him about that drive home, he'd laugh and say that I went to sleep, and that he just drove around town for a while to let me have my nap out. Since we've been in Brewster I've felt that he was trying it again—trying to get the control, I mean. I could feel his will pushing hard against mine, and now I know why. He was afraid I might remember." Landis was silent for a little time after she stopped. Then he said, "I'm pretty badly up in the air, Betty. You see, I've been thinking all along—with everybody else—that you were in love with Canby. I was sure of it. Now you've left me sort of gaping. But I—I'm awfully glad, you know—for Wally's sake." "For Wally's sake?" she said, with a little grimace that had always made him want to kiss her. Then she laughed. "I wonder if there ever was another man so maddeningly, so exasperatingly—oh, I can't find words for it! Have I got to tell you right out plain that there has never been anybody but you, just you, always, you dear, dense, absent-minded, self-forgetting dreamer? Haven't you known that?" "My G—d!" he breathed. "Have I been that stupid and blind, Betty? But you know, don't you, that I've always loved you, and that I haven't told you so only because I wanted to be able—I mean, I was waiting until I could offer you something more than my love and a bare living. And I haven't any more than these to offer you now, for there'll be no more experiments with things like the black box. And when Canby butted in I thought I'd lost you." "Foolish boy," she said softly. "Don't you know you couldn't lose me if you should try ever so hard?" Then, "Listen—here comes the doctor making his rounds! If he finds me here instead of the nurse that I bribed to let me in, he'll murder me. Kiss me quick, dear, and let me run. And don't you dare have a temperature when he comes in!" But after she had fled, and the house physician, bearded, fierce-eyed and savagely professional, had come and had applied his thermometer—to read it with a frown and a growl—Landis grinned and said, "Never mind a bit of temperature, doctor. If you'd been through what I have, you'd have a hundred and five and still be calling it normal. I'm all right. You couldn't kill me now with a baseball bat. I've got too much to live for!" Good Lighting Costs No More Than Poor Lighting During the winter months more time is spent under artificial light. Because of this, careful attention should be given to the matter of lighting, just to have illumination is not enough since mere illumination may be good or bad. The basic rule of proper lighting is "to light the object, not the eye." Proper distribution of lighting when an area is to be lighted is essential, while concentration is the most practical and economical when lighting the individual object. Lighting can be practical or impractical, economical or costly but correct lighting never was expensive. Michigan Electric Power Company Your Servant Day and Night.

New road reflector signs to mark all railroad crossings outside of villages in Tuscola county, on state and county trunk lines will be in place before Jan. 1, G. F. Schultz, commissioner in charge of maintenance, says. This action is to follow the mandates of a law passed by the last legislature which requires such signs on state and county roads. The signs will be about ten feet high from the center of the grade to the center of the signs, and so constructed that the headlight of automobiles at night will be reflected by the glass in the signs. The word "Railroad" and the number of tracks will be lighted up in this manner. There will be 74 of these signs placed on county roads and 12 on state trunk lines.

BEARD OF PROPHET STIRS UP DISPUTE

Delays Completion of Nebraska's Capitol.

Lincoln, Neb.—The whiskers of the prophet Ezekiel, who lived some 2,500 years ago, are holding up the finishing touches on the sculpture on Nebraska's new $10,000,000 state capitol. Ezekiel had whiskers at one time and the Lord ordered him to cut them off, giving minute instructions as to what disposition to make of the remaining hair. But the record does not register that Ezekiel followed the instructions of the Lord and now sculptural work on the tower of the capitol is held up until the question is settled.

Who Said "Beaver"?

Eight figures are being cut on the outside of the base of the tower. Seven are completed. The eighth represents Ezekiel. And the figure has a long beard. That's where the trouble arises. A controversy had arisen similar to that which arose when the bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln was designed by Daniel Chester French for a place on the capitol grounds. Lincoln is there shown to be wearing a beard, although some contended for a smooth face.

Ezekiel's face has a very long beard like the old Hebrew patriarchs always are depicted as wearing. Before the figure was completed somebody discovered that in all probability Ezekiel didn't have a beard when he was doing his best prophesying.

Ezekiel's Instructions.

The authority quoted to uphold this opinion is to be found in the fifth chapter of the book of Ezekiel: "And thou, son of man, take thee a sharp knife, take thee a barber's razor, and cause it to pass upon thine head and upon thy beard; then take the balances to weigh and divide the hair."

"Thou shalt burn with fire a third part in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are fulfilled; and thou shalt take a third part, and smite about it with a knife; and a third part thou shalt scatter to the winds; and I will draw out a sword after them."

Critics are saying members of the commission didn't know their Bible or they would have caught the point before approving the model with the whiskers.

Defenders of the beard point out that while Ezekiel was undoubtedly ordered to shave, there is nothing in the Bible to show that he carried out this order. To which argument the "clean facers" reply that the Lord continued Ezekiel as his prophet for many years, and that if Ezekiel had disobeyed he would not have so continued.

Plan Two Sea Trains to Carry 115 Loaded Cars

Chester, Pa.—Two "sea trains," a new type of ocean cargo carrying vessels, are nearing completion at the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock corporation yards here.

The "sea trains" resemble tankers in general appearance. They have three decks within the hull, all served by one large hatch extending across the beam of the vessel amidships.

Each deck has four rows of standard gauge railroad track. The ships will accommodate 115 railroad cars of any type, including box cars, flat cars, gondolas and tank cars.

The freight cars are loaded singly at the terminal, large cranes capable of lifting 115 tons being used. Each car is lowered on an elevator to whatever deck it is to be stored.

When the freight car has been placed in its assigned position on the vessel, the wheels are locked by four rail clamps and powerful jacks, operating at an angle of 45 degrees, are attached to relieve the car springs from tension.

The "sea trains," each of which cost $1,500,000, will have a speed of 16 1/2 knots per hour, the fastest freighters in the world, according to the builders.

Europe's Concerted Move for War Debt Cancellation—Hoover and Roosevelt to Confer—Diversion of Colorado River Completed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SIR RONALD LINDSAY, British ambassador to Washington, handed to Secretary of State Stimson his government's request that the United States agreed to a reconsideration and modification of the war debts agreements under which European powers are obligated to pay this country eleven billion dollars in principal and ten billions in interest during the next 58 years. The French ambassador followed with an almost identical request on behalf of France, and two days later Belgium asked the same thing. The three powers asked suspension of all war debt installments, including those due December 15, pending the outcome of the discussions suggested.

Receiving notice of this action while on his way from California to Washington, President Hoover immediately informed President-Elect Roosevelt of the development and invited him to a conference at the White House, suggesting that he bring with him the Democratic leaders of congress and other advisers he might select. He told Governor Roosevelt he was loath to proceed in the matter with recommendations to congress until he had conferred with him, since any settlement of the debt problem must be the result of protracted negotiations that would reach beyond the remaining days of his administration. The President's plan seemed fair enough, but Mr. Roosevelt accepted it only "in principle," saying he would glad to meet with Mr. Hoover and go over the situation, but asking that the meeting be "wholly informal and personal." He added that the European notes create a responsibility "which rests upon those now vested with executive and legislative authority." Thus it was made evident Governor Roosevelt has no intention of shouldering any responsibility ahead of time.

ONE thing that is fairly certain is that Europe's concerted move for revision of the war debts, and cancellation if possible, will not be successful with the short session of congress that opens in December. Not one of the senators and representatives in Washington was in favor of granting the concessions asked, so the prospect was that the debtor nations would either have to pay the December installments or default. The British installment is 95, the French 20 millions, and the Belgian two millions. It was certain that Great Britain could pay if necessary.

Governor Roosevelt, according to Democratic leaders, is opposed to any reduction of the debts; but he thinks payment could be made easier through an economic conference to free trade channels of tariff barriers and exchange restrictions. President Hoover is opposed to downward revision of the tariff, but has suggested that foreign nations be given credit against their obligations for any concessions that would offer a wider market for American farm products and manufactures.

GERMANY'S interest in this debt matter is vital, for the drive of the allied nations for revision is based on the Lausanne pact of last July. This was a "gentleman's agreement" providing that the reparations which Germany must pay the allies should be reduced from $26,000,000,000, as stipulated in the Young plan, to $14,000,000,000. The reduction was not to take effect unless the United States could be prevailed upon to modify the understanding under which the allied powers are obligated to pay this country.

The United States government has consistently refused to link the war debts with reparations. On the other hand the Hoover administration has repeatedly made it clear that its attitude toward full payment of the debts could be modified only by measurable success of the world disarmament movement.

FRANCE, Germany and Great Britain have got together in one project—the formation of a tripartite economic consortium designed to rehabilitate Europe and the Near East. It was announced in Paris by Raymond Patenotre, French undersecretary for national economy, who said the first project would be the offering of a loan of 17,000,000,000 francs for the electrification of railways in Poland, Portugal, Rumania and Iraq. France and England are expected to provide 40 per cent of the loan each, and Germany 20 per cent. Premier Herriot will be the titular head of the consortium in France and Chancellor Franz von Papen in Germany. Patenotre, as the vice president of France, will be in actual charge of operations, with headquarters in Paris.

Patentore said guaranties as to insurance, security and noncompetition in industrial bidding would constitute the underlying principles of the organization.

FRANCE, through Premier Herriot, laid before the disarmament conference in Geneva its complete plan designed to bring about general disarmament and world peace. It was well received by the British, and Norman Davis, American representative, praised it as "a great concession," so hopes for the success of the conference were high. But they were dashed when Germany refused to find in it reason for rejoining the parley, declaring the Herriot program was just another plan to assure French hegemony on the continent.

The French scheme, combining the ideas of security and disarmament, seemed to offer Germany the equality she demands under terms yet to be agreed upon. But it provides for "Progressive disarmament" of the powers and excludes rearmament for Germany. The section of most vital interest to the United States reads: "Any war undertaken in breach of the Paris (Briand-Kellogg) pact is a matter of interest to all the powers and shall be regarded as a breach of the obligations assumed towards each one of them. "In the event of a breach or threat of a breach of the Paris pact, the said powers shall concert together as promptly as possible with a view to appealing to public opinion and agreeing upon the steps to be taken. "In application of the pact of Paris outlawing war, any breach of that pact shall involve the prohibition of direct or indirect economic or financial relations with the aggressor country. The powers shall undertake to adopt that prohibition immediately effective. "The said powers shall declare their determination not to recognize any de facto situation brought about in consequence of the violation of an international undertaking. "This in essence means that the United States would abandon its historic claim to neutrality rights. Great Britain's plan, presented by Sir John Simon, concentrates on a reduction of national armaments, particularly air forces, the latter to be abolished by degrees on condition that Germany in the meantime does not rearm in the air.

and ore business of the Great Lakes, and magnify the unemployment problem. Among other attacks on the waterway development as proposed in the Hoover-Bennett treaty, were charges that completion of that sea-way between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic via Montreal, would jeopardize billions of dollars' worth of railway bonds held by the public and insurance companies.

REPRESENTATIVE SHANNON of Missouri resumed his investigation of government competition with private business with hearings in Chicago, and his committee was told that this competition is a "trust" that must be destroyed if private enterprise is to be encouraged and economic recovery furthered.

Representatives of business organizations in Illinois and the Panama Canal Zone as well as executives of steamship companies, told the committee of specific cases where the government competes to the detriment of private companies. On the basis of their testimony, the United States government today is interested in every type of business from mortician to the manufacture of gun powder.

The Illinois Manufacturers association, representing practically every manufacturing industry in the state, ascribes to the government responsibility for a large part of the unemployment in the state and through its counsel, David C. Clarke, charged before the committee that the government had been found to be competing, directly, in 27 different manufacturing operations, "and numerous others."

Clarke declared that his association had been advised that the federal government was not strictly concerned with the actual cost involved in its venture. "Much less," he said, "is there strict regard for any reasonable profit to the government from industrial operations."

OKLAHOMA is twenty-five years old, and the silver anniversary of her admission to the Union was fittingly and excitingly celebrated on November 16 in Oklahoma City. All the people of the state and the governors of other states were invited to the birthday party, and many were present. At the head of the pioneers participating was Gov. William H. Murray, who was president of the constitutional convention and speaker of Oklahoma's first house of representatives. He was one of the speakers, the other being Charles N. Haskell, the first governor, and Federal Judge Robert L. Williams, former governor and first Supreme court justice. Among twenty-six Oklahomans honored at a banquet and whose names were added to those in the state's Hall of Fame were Secretary of War Patrick Hurley, Will Rogers, cowboy humorist; Judge Haskell, once known as an oil company capitalist; Senator T. P. Gore, Senator Elmer Thomas and former Senator Robert L. Owen.

The marriage of "Miss Indian Territory" to "Mr. Oklahoma" was re-enacted by the couple who participated in the first ceremony at the state capitol in Guthrie, November 16, 1907. Following the ceremony carrier-pigeons were released to bear news of the birthday to the four corners of the United States.

LIBERALS of Honduras, having lost out in the recent election, have turned to revolution and have been fighting some bloody battles with the government forces. The rebels were reported to have seized the towns of Trujillo, La Ceiba and La Esperanza, and then they moved on the city of San Pedro, which they captured. The fiercest of the fighting to date was in a counter attack there by the government troops. Many hundreds were said to have been killed.

SEVERAL weeks ago in this column mention was made of the quarrel between Peru and Colombia over the possession of Leticia, and by a slip of the pen it was said the sector in dispute had once been ceded by Colombia to Peru, instead of by Peru to Colombia. An authoritative source now gives the information that the Leticia sector was in fact ceded by neither country to the other, but that it is in territory that has always been claimed by Colombia. In 1922 by the terms of the Salomon-Lozano treaty (between Peru and Colombia) it was definitely decided that Colombia's southern boundary line included Leticia within the limits of Colombia, and the sector was thereafter recognized by Peru as belonging to Colombia.

SOON after the December session of congress opens Senator Benigno Aquino of the Philippine legislature will be in Washington to take part in the efforts to win independence for the archipelago. He sailed from Manila some days ago bearing secret instructions to the Filipino delegation, presumably in the form of a mandate of the legislature opposing both the Hawes and Hare bills, and demanding a new independence grant without reservation by the United States of naval bases and coaling stations.

WHEN Senator Borah's committee on foreign relations opened the hearings on the St. Lawrence waterway treaty the expected opposition developed immediately and in full force. Witnesses for the railroads, port authorities, cities, and world shipping interests united in asserting that the development of the St. Lawrence river for navigation and power would disrupt the national transportation system, peril vital American industries, injure lake shipping, jeopardize the coal

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

Joe has been for years the official bootblack of a large magazine publishing firm in Manhattan. Years ago when the organization was further downtown. Joe was chief of the shiners and when the business moved he moved with it. He knew every foot of the editorial departments. As becomes a gentleman of polish, Joe always has had literary ambitions. He had an idea that, starting on a shoe string, he could as an author reach financial affluence. Customers, he maintained, showed him not only their soles but their hearts. But hard-boiled editors could not see the pictures he painted with a shoe brush. They kidded Joe in moments of leisure and sushed him sternly when they were busy. One editor put his foot down firmly. To retain his patronage, Joe had to promise not to mention the subject of writing. One day he broke the taboo, and the editor roared: "This is too much! Never darken my shoes again!"

But, after many years, Joe found a listener who was sympathetic. "I can't write," he told him, "but I have seen much and I have ideas." The listener was just young enough to believe him. So he and Joe went into partnership. Joe furnished the plots, the other man did the writing. The stories were accepted by the editors who had laughed or sworn at Joe so many seasons. They were glad to print them. They were real stories. A good bootblack apparently learns to read footprints in the sands of time.

I see by the papers that at Los Angeles the Rainbow division planned a colonel's eagle on the shoulder of Ann Harding. In memory of her father, the late Gen. George Gately. The Thirtieth division should pin another eagle on Miss Harding's remaining shoulder. It was the Thirtieth division which General Gately trained at Camp Sevier, near Greenville, S. C. It was the Thirtieth division which he took to France, and which referred to him fondly as "Good Gus," and would have bled and died for him. It was later that he went to the Rainbow. And on his arrival that division was richer by one first-class fighting man.

Bob Sherwood, Arthur Sherwood, Donald Carlisle and Norman Stevenson came out of the Ritz and started to walk down Madison avenue together. The shortest of this foursome is Mr. Stevenson. He stands a mere six feet four inches. A studious looking little chap, who was strolling along in an absent-minded manner, bumped into the four guardsmen, took one startled look, and scurried down a side street in an evident panic. Friends think it would be a great idea if these four friends could be induced to show dachshunds at the next dog show.

A black leopard is no gentle playmate. One of these beasts with a circus reached out and dragged a dog through a space not six inches wide, killing the animal before anyone could do a thing about it. The dog was one of the best trained collies with the show.

When Calvin Coolidge was President, he sent for a congressman who had introduced a certain bill. "Is your bill going to get by the house?" he asked. "Yes, Mr. President," said the congressman. "We have all worked hard on it and I think there is no doubt it will pass the house." "Will it get by the senate?" "Yes, Mr. President, I have assurances from powerful committee members and leaders. Yes, I think it will get by the senate." "Well," said Mr. Coolidge, "it won't get by me."

WINS $1 for Rescuing Boy from River Waters. Camden, N. J.—"Gee, that's great! I didn't expect that!" exclaimed twelve-year-old Victor Soroken when a park guard gave him $1 for saving Robert Banks, ten, from drowning in Cooper river. After a day of swimming Victor was trudging home when he saw Robert fall into the river. He plunged in and dragged the other boy ashore.

Texas Cops to Let Women Do Talking. Houston, Texas.—Pity the poor policeman. Regardless of what they do or don't do, they may be considered rude. Believing a policeman couldn't be rude if he didn't say anything, the police department here passed a rule that policemen were not to speak when handing a woman a ticket for traffic violation. And now City Judge Fred Turner reveals women violators think the police are rude when they hand out a ticket without a word of explanation. And if the women are inclined to bawl out the policeman he has to take it.

PAUL SCHOOL.

Teacher, Mr. Blackmer.

The eighth grade are having their history outline about the War of 1812.

We have a colored turkey on the board for Thanksgiving day.

The fifth and sixth grades are having a history outline about Columbus.

Donald DeLong and Donald Stilson were absent Friday because they were ill.

First, second, third and fourth grades are working hard for perfect reading lessons so they will get a colored star after their name.

The higher grades are busy Friday afternoons with sewing and handicraft lessons. The boys are fixing the garage for their work shop. Mr. Kastruba gave them a stove and Harold Anthes made them a bench.

We have put the money from our fair into the treasury of our clubs. The boys have bought some wood chisels, a gimlet bit, a plane, and a saw with some of their money. The girls are Scotch. They haven't used any of their money yet.

A man came to school a few weeks ago and took pictures of each of us. We received them this week. Most of them were satisfactory.

The eighth graders are busy working on arithmetic, civics and English work books.

Use Sweet Clover to Improve Soil
It Also Provides Nutritious Pasture—Live Stock Take to It.

Sweet clover is an excellent soil-improving crop, probably the best when stands are secured. However, it is necessary to lime average lands before seeding sweet clover, says a writer in the Southern Agriculturalist. If it is practical to lime the land, I think you would make no mistake in seeding it to sweet clover next spring. If you sow the unhusked seed, you could sow it in February; while if you sow husked seed, you had probably better not sow until the tenth or fifteenth of March.

While live stock do not like sweet clover at first, when confined on it they soon acquire a taste for it and make good use of the crop. It makes a nutritious pasture. Even if you sow sweet clover on the land, it would be very well to sow three to five pounds of lespedeza to the acre also, to fill in any gaps that there may be.

Lespedeza is an excellent soil improving crop, although it does not improve soil as rapidly as does sweet clover. It will not be necessary to lime for lespedeza. Just sow it on a lightly frozen ground or a freshly prepared, compacted ground about the middle of March. If you sowing for a full stand, you had better use 15 to 20 pounds of seed per acre, although six pounds will give a fair stand the second year.

If you sow unhusked sweet clover seed, sow 20 to 25 pounds to the acre; if you sow husked sweet clover seed, 10 to 12 pounds to the acre should be sown.

Grass Beef Considered Inferior to Grain-Fed

Beef formed on grass is, on the average, considered to be less desirable than the beef from grain-fed cattle. It is usually darker colored, the fat is normally yellower, and the carcass shows greater shrink from slaughter up to time of consumption. Because of the greater exercise the animals have to take during their period of fattening their muscles are, on the average, tougher. On the other hand, the flavor of grass beef usually ranks high and in some of the special investigations on quality and palatability of meat co-operatively conducted by the Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, unusually fine results with regard to flavor, quality, texture, flesh color and fat color have been secured. Nevertheless, it is the common opinion of the trade that grass beef is inferior to grain-fed beef, and the outlets for grass beef are diminishing annually.

Potato Acreage Cut

Reports received by the Department of Agriculture from commercial growers of southern early and of intermediate crop potatoes show a greater degree of uncertainty concerning plans for the approaching season's plantings than has prevailed for several years past. Although expenses will average lower on many important items entering into the cost of producing potatoes, credit is restricted and the difficulty of securing the usual financing to grow a crop is reflected in a majority of the reports.

For 18 states growing a commercial early or intermediate crop, the reported January 1 plans indicate a prospective planting of 236,030 acres, which would be about 23 per cent less than the 1931 acreage and slightly below the reduced acreage of 1929. The intermediate states, as a group, report plans for a slightly increased acreage.

Feeding Test Results

In Michigan feeding tests with beef calves, barley, and corn proved themselves quite superior to oats. Three lots of calves were used. Each lot received linseed meal, corn silage, and alfalfa hay. In addition lot one received ground barley, lot two shelled corn, and lot three ground oats. The barley-fed group showed a feed cost per 100 pounds of gain of $9. In the corn-fed group it cost $9.09 per 100 pounds of gain, while in the oat-fed group the cost per 100 pounds of gain was $9.05. No charge was made for grinding the oats and barley. If this had been done the corn-fed group would have shown the greatest profit.—Successful Farming.

Housing a Bull

Writing in an English dairy journal, a breeder of that country makes among others this interesting statement regarding the housing of bulls: "The way that has been successful so far has been our endeavor to let the bulls see and hear as much as every one can in their necessarily restricted lives, and never shut them up where they can do neither and therefore have empty brains. Satan finds lots of things, no doubt, for idle hands to do, but nothing to what he does for a bull's idle brain (and horns)!"

If the bull is confined in his pen, let him view the world through the open upper half of his door.—Hoard's Dairyman.

RICHES OF ANCIENT ANTIOCH REVEALED

Explorers Are Busy in Once Gay Capital of Syria.

Washington.—Antioch, which has yielded many rich treasures of antiquity, again is the scene of explorations which recently uncovered a picture gallery in the form of a paneled mosaic floor.

"Modern Antioch, a drab city of 30,000 inhabitants, lying about 15 miles up the Orontes river from the Mediterranean, is a mere shadow of the gay city that once was the capital of the great empire of Seleucus Nicator, favorite of Alexander the Great, and later capital of the Roman empire in the Orient," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Traditionally, Antioch owes its location to the flight of an eagle. Antiochia, built in 307 B. C., a few miles north of Antioch, was planned to be the fountainhead of government, commerce and industry in the Near East. While Seleucus was offering sacrifices at an altar in the city, an eagle swooped down, caught a piece of meat from the altar, and flew to the banks of the Orontes river. Seleucus interpreted the eagle's act as an omen that the gods wished him to found a capital on the river.

"The outstanding feature of the new city was the four-mile main street that connected the east and west gates. On each side rose double rows of lofty marble columns between which Ben Hur drove his chariot and Caesar paraded in triumph. Flanking the street was a marble-paved, covered promenade adorned with statues and carvings in marble and bronze. Beyond the promenades rose the handsome facades of government buildings.

"At night the main street was a great white way. Despite its gaiety, however, Antioch's path was often strewn with sorrow. Its walls were frequently pounded by jealous enemies. While the columned highways, walls, gates and handsome buildings are memories, a large part of the modern city is built of the stones that once witnessed the processions and chariot races of 'Antioch the Glorious.'

"Antioch has been succeeded commercially by Aleppo. Today its largest industries are shoe and soap making and hide tanning."

Auto Drivers Can Save Game by Flicking Lights

Washington.—The motorists who runs down a wild animal or bird on the highway may not realize that he is helping, probably without deliberate intention, to swell one of the most impressive death lists in the lives of small game creatures, declares a bulletin of the American Game association.

With game commissions and sportsmen striving in numerous ways to save and restore wild game for its tremendous recreational and economic value, many states have launched educational campaigns during the tourist season to reduce game mortality due to thoughtless driving.

Most of the animals are killed at night. Lights blind them. Flicking the lights to dim or slowing down will save them, and in the case of larger creatures, such as deer, may also save the drivers from a dangerous crash.

Office Workers Given Five Hours for Lunch

Rome.—Five hours for lunch is the rule for most office workers in Rome during the summer months. The various government bureaus and a great number of private offices and stores operate on the summer schedule. The working day begins at eight in the morning. At noon everybody will go out to lunch and not return until five o'clock in the afternoon. They will then work from five until nine. The intense heat of early afternoon is the reason for the schedule.

Giraffes Are Mute

Washington.—Despite the great length of its neck and tongue, it is said that the giraffe never utters a sound even when in great distress. This tallest of all animals apparently is an absolute mute, according to the Smithsonian institution.

Dance in Lion's Den Obeys Dying Wish

London.—To carry on her father's dying wish, nineteen-year-old Rose Purchase danced in a cage with the lions that caused her parent's death. The father, Capt. Thomas Purchase, a lion tamer, died in a Manchester hospital after the lions had mauled him. "I am going on with my dancing, for it was my father's wish," said Rose just before a performance. "I promised father as he was being taken away to the hospital that I would not desert the show. There have been generations of fair ground and circus people before my father who bore his name, and I and my young brothers mean to carry on the tradition."

The 18th Amendment.

America can work out her problems if she wills to do so, even the 18th amendment.

If Congress and the legislature were well meaning and bone dry, if congressmen, legislators and the idle rich did not want their high ball refreshments. If enforcement had not grown weaker and less efficient. If the enforcement officials of every branch in connection were not corrupting the cause. If we had retained the search and seizure law. If the people themselves did not want everything obtainable on their own shelves or in the basement. If the 18th amendment was for the rich as well as the poor. If there were not a 12-mile sale limit. If prohibition could be effected under the present plan of operation. If Mabel Willibrand had not convinced the department of justice that 12 per cent wine was not intoxicating when Volstead fixed it at one-half of one per cent. If enforcement was not selling the cause out for a bribe. If the booze wagon could not get through the firing lines for 30 pieces of silver. If man's inhumanity to man was changed to charity. If the 18th amendment had been advocated and accepted as bone dry. If the people had submitted to the decision of the ballot. If beef, wine and iron and Virginia dare was not on sale. If alcohol was not good for medical purposes. If we could not buy malt or wet equipment. If conditions had not forced the Wickwam commission to say it could not be enforced. If there were not any government liquor warehouses. If the enforcement and the people were willing to have bone dry enforcement. If enforcement took it from one as well as another, there would not be any malt or wet accessories to buy.

Mrs. Marie Moore of Cass City entered Tuesday and submitted to an operation Wednesday.

WICKWARE.

Landmark Burned Sunday—

The Wickware store, which was built about 50 years ago, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday noon. The fire which started in the upper story had gained such a headway before discovered that there was little time to save any of the stock or household goods from the living rooms in the rear of the building. Mr. and Mrs. Lovelace purchased the store about a year ago, moving here from Detroit. They returned to Detroit Monday evening. There was no insurance on the building.

are weeds that must be pulled if enforcement takes place. If the people at large and the enforcement were both honest and willing the 18th amendment could be enforced. If we will cut out graft and unnecessary expenses, take advantage of the water power at hand in this country, we can enforce the 18th amendment and live almost without taxation.

FARM FABLE IN REAL LIFE.

Once upon a time there was a good Republican Farmer whose father had defended the old flag in the sixties. Now, this Farmer became peeved at the Republican party and the head of the ticket. This rural veteran had a pair of Republican horses, and he believed one of them too old to work, so on election day, he killed the old crusader and traded for a Democratic Donkey. Now this Donkey was small but very strong. The Farmer hitched the team in double harness and proceeded to pull a load. The Donkey sat down on the load and let the Republican horse and old time voter pull the load. That was election day. A true yarn.

What Must a Young Girl Know About Marriage?

There is a true story of an ingenious Budapest bookseller, who—faced with hard times—advertised that he had for sale a volume of information indispensable to a young girl contemplating matrimony. He said that in this book would be found—not what every young girl is told before marriage—but what she will find indispensable to know.

Thousands sent their mail-orders. Then—complaints began to pour in. Finally an outraged man brought the bookseller into court. He stated that he had sent for one of these compendia of Indispensable information . . . and that he received by mail a 19th Century Cook-book—"Lazy Little Lulu Learns Cookery." He wanted the bookseller found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses.

But the judge acquitted him, saying that he was in thorough accord with the bookseller's view that a knowledge of cooking was of primary importance to the prospective bride.

The modern newspaper could be advertised truthfully in very much the same way. The most Indispensable knowledge to a young wife is knowing where and what to buy . . . how to get the most for her money . . . how—on a limited budget—to keep her home fresh, new, attractive . . . how to dress herself and her children, inexpensively yet in the very latest styles . . . how to serve on her table foods of the most dependable quality.

In other words—the advertising that appears in your local newspaper contains information of real value . . . NEWS! Announcements of the latest and best in the shopping world. This is indispensable information to every woman, especially to those with families. It helps them run their homes successfully. Surely that is what every woman must know.
