Kill 100 Dogs on Which Taxes Are Unpaid

Officers of the sheriff's department in Tuscola county assigned to the duty of collecting dog taxes collected $160.00 in taxes and killed 100 dogs on which the owners would not pay taxes last week. Dogs have made serious inroads on sheep, poultry, swine and even cattle and losses have been heavy in some parts of the county. Two police dogs killed two hogs weighing 250 pounds each on the Lloyd Teller farm three miles northeast of Colwood Saturday. An officer found both dogs and killed them.

The sheriff's department finished their dog canvass in Juniata township Tuesday and are now working Indianfields township.

SALIENT BILLS

Lansing, Mich .-- Not until the very day that the Michigan legislature decided to adjourn its present session and go home will the people of Michigan know how they are going to be taxed and what is going to be taxed. Neither will they know how much money has been appropriated for state expenditures and how much has been cut from the budgets of past years. Seemingly all of the important tax legislation, all of the tax relief measures and many of the important appropriation bills are being turned into the legislative hopper at one time-at a time when representatives and senators are anxious to quit their long tedious legislative grind and get back nome.

Bills that provide finances for the public school system of Michigan are making progress. Fears expressed a few weeks ago that almost a complete collapse of the school system of the state was an outlook for the fall, have been dis-appearing and it begins to look now as though the legislature will be able to get some revenue producing bills through that will keep the most of the schools open for at least a greater portion of the year. Some progress is also being made on the Moore delinquent tax bill that has been down and out two or three times but in some way finds sufficient new vitality to rise again and carry on. Possibly this is due to the fact that even though the original bill wasn't all that it should have been, there is merit to Turn to page 5, please.

Compiling Genealogy

Rev. R. J. Striffler, pastor of the First Congregational church in Geneva, Ohio, is engaged in compiling a genealogy of the Striffler family, and has succeeded in locating about 1,000 folks, all of whom he believes to be descendants of his great grandfather, Jacob Striffler, the head of the Striffler branch of the family in America.

Rev. Striffler recently visited Lancaster, N. Y., where his great grandfather located when he came from Alsace Lorraine about the year 1827. He resided in Lancas-1850 and is buried in the old section Celebrate Golden of Rural cemetery, near his wife and other members of the family.

Relic of Akron on Exhibition Here

A piece of insulation, a part of the dirigible Akron which went down with most of its crew off the Atlantic coast several weeks ago, is a relic on exhibition at the Chronicle office. The relic was left here by Ernest Reagh and was forwarded to him by his son, Ronald.

Ronald is a member of the Marines and is with a group of that branch of the army doing patrol duty off Cape Charles where a ship with a shipment of gold was sunk years ago. The Marines are stationed there to preserve peace among those who are salvaging the gold from the vessel at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean.

Wedding in Rochester

From Rochester Clarion.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Kitchen of Cass City was celebrated at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Norman Ross, of Rochester Sunday. A lovely program was given by the Ross family. Over 75 guests were present.

Mrs. Kitchen is 67 years old and before her marriage was Miss Sarah Ellen Austin of Petrolia, Ont., and Mr. Kitchen is 78 years old and lived in Brigden, Ont., prior to his marriage. In the year of 1889 they settled in Michigan. Seven sons and four daughters were born to this union. Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen now have 23 grandsons, 14 granddaughters, one great grandson and three great granddaughters.

X-rays Make Plants Grow

X-ray can cause plants to grow faster, blossom earlier, form more chlorophyll, and in general speed up their life processes. But if they get too much of a dose of the rays, they become cripples. This, in brief summary, is what Prof. Charles A. Shull of the University of Chicago found in experiments.

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future.

Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it.

Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method --- new political and financial machinery --- to pull us out the way we are going --- forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office.

And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can.

The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back.

The Master wisely avoided a "Yes" and "No" reply. It is possible, He insists, in His famous answer, to be obedient both to Caesar and to God, to the state and the church.

Now came the priestly Sadducees with their artificial query concerning the woman with seven husbands. "Whose wife shall she be at the resurrection?" they demanded. It was a silly question, but presented a golden opportunity to the Master. Skilfully He lifted the problem into a region far above the quibbling of His questioners. In the risen life beyond life, He insisted, persons dwell not as husbands and wives, but as angels of God. communing with Him Who is not the God of the dead, but of the living. CHAPTER VI

 $T_{\rm was}^{\rm HE}$ kindly face of the banker was marked by lines of worry as though he feared he had talked too much. But the ponderous detective did not seem particularly interested.

"Vernon," he remarked. "Maxwell Vernon, eh?"

"Yes. They call him Max." "Friend of yours?"

"I like him-if that's what you mean."

"What sort of kid is he?" day !" Fiske hesitated, then leaned forward with a sudden burst of confidence. "If I give you my honest opinion of that boy, Hanvey-will it prejudice you against him?" "Golly, no."

"He has faults-"

"Who hasn't? Only men I'm afraid of are these goody-goody, ain't-Ihonest ones. They're the cute babies! Now about Vernon?"

"It isn't a long story. You know we have a college here. Vernon entered as a freshman three years ago -he's finishing his junior year now. I met him when he came into the bank and opened a ninety-thousanddollar checking account. It was that boy. I don't believe there's rather unusual-'

"I should guess yes." -"And naturally I had a chat I've overlooked some point which with him. This money was the remainder of an inheritance from his mother, she having been his surviving parent." "Orphan?"

"Exactly. In the past three years Max and I have been quite friendly -so friendly that at times I'm afraid he has rather resented what must have seemed like interference on my part."

"What were you interfering about?" "Vernon has been running through his money pretty fast. He started slowly in his freshman year, but the word got out that he was very rich and he gathered around himself a group of friends rather more mercenary than genuine. Max Vernon is weak; about as weak as a young man who is not vicious can be. I really believe, though, that there isn't a vicious bone in his body. His first year at college he spent money lavishly. Last year he spent it faster. This year he has run through every cent of what little was left."

"Gosh! He must be a bird!" "Too many friends for his own good. One in particular-"

"Who?" "I see. . . . Who arrested him?" "I'll tell you about him directly. "The local police." To stick to Vernon; when I saw his "Mm-hmm! They sure are h-l on money dwindling I started having makin' arrests. Guess they feel sensible, fatherly talks with him. thev've scrupulous. Suppose he gets the more than one hundred thousand idea that Thayer has been cheating dollars. I am terribly afraid Max him at cards? Vernon was implicated in that hold-you know about the money situation, they spotted Vernon as the man, eh?"

"Yes. If they heard about this ... I'm worried about the lad, Hanvey. Maybe he killed Thayer, and maybe he didn't. If he did I'm sure it was the result of a quarrel and a fight. The boy needs help. We have the loss of what must have appeared to him as an inexhaustible fortune; his desperation over finances: the five thousand dollar note covering a debt of honor . . and we have a staggeringly strong reason why he must have become mixed up in the robbery of this bank. I'm afraid Vernon did one or the other, and frankly, Hanvey, I'd rather see him tied up with the robbery than the murder."

The detective lighted another "A new car," said Fiske "A cigar. There was a silence for a brand new and very expensive one." few minutes and then the door "Hmm. . . ." Randolph Fiske started to interrupt. "I told Hanvey-" A big fleshy paw was raised in admonition. "I'd rather hear this direct from Reagan, if you don't mind." The banker nodded and Reagan proceeded. "First, the robber was using Max Vernon's car and it's a ten-to-one bet that Vernon was driving it. Second, after the robbery occurred Vernon drove right through Birmingham and on to Steel City. I've just come back from there." "How far is Steel City?"

"Eighty miles from Birmingham. A hundred miles from here. He carried his car to a dealer and dickered for a new one on a trade-in basis. Next morning they closed the deal and Vernon turned in his old car on a new one, and paid the difference-twelve hundred smackers-in cash. Now the funny part Hanvey, is that from all I can gather Vernon has been broke for about a month."

"What makes you think that?" "He tried to borrow money several places-and didn't get it. Now I ask you this: If a man is dead broke one week, how does it hap pen that the next week he buys a new expensive car and pays twelve hundred in cash on the deal?" Hanvey nodded. "Sounds queer, Reagan. And then what?"

"Plenty." Reagan's face was beaming with pardonable pride. "I discovered that when Vernon traded "Floor rug, eh? What does that mean?" "It means this: I'm sure Mr. Fiske, here, has told you all about the robbery and how Mr. Burke each other. The feller must have been hit pretty hard because there was blood on the floor of the bank and a trail of blood between the front door and the curb. Now, then, it's natural to suppose, ain't it, that this paluka was bleeding pretty free and easy when he piled into the back of Vernon's car." "If it was the boy's car."

"We'll take that for granted. Anyway, he was bleeding. That blood would have gone over all the floor rug, because we got to remember that a man who has just robbed a bank wouldn't be fool enough to sit on the back seat of any car. Chances were he was curled up on the floor. Now, then, I just naturally believe it would have been common sense for Vernon and the other guy to have lost that bloodstained rug, because it would have looked pretty queer if they hadn't." Hanvey blinked. "You ain't nobody's damfool, John Reagan."

"Thanks. Now, there's one more tie-up. I looked at the car Vernon traded in, and Jim-there was blood right by the sills, just where it would have been left if it had run over the floor rug before the rug was thrown away. Get what that means? It proves that there was a floor rug there originally." "Sure does. John."

"Then," interrogated Randolph Fiske hopefully, "you're positive, Mr. Reagan, that Max Vernon was mixed up in the robbery of this get the shock of their lives because and she came away, leaving him Vernon swings around on them and perfectly happy and healthy. But that ain't the point, Jim: There's says he don't give two hoots in h-1 where Thayer is. Then Versomething queer between her and Thayer. kids goggle-eyed. "Then, before they get over this shock, something else happens. There's a girl in school—Antoinette Peyton, and they call her Tonywho, from all I can find out, is one regular feller. This Peyton kid comes walking down the street looking not much happier than Vernon did. And she turns in at the same fraternity house. That gives the two kids a jolt because they explained to me that it's against all rules for a girl to go anywhere even if there wasn't, and he thought near a fraternity house without a there was-I reckon Welch would chaperon. be a pretty bad hombre." "But that ain't all, either, Jim;

because it seems that this Miss Peyton rambles up on the porch and known to have been in Thayer's asks where Pat Thaver is. They room before Mike Carmicino, the say he's up in his room and offer to call him. She says not to bother, she'll go right up. That knocks 'em for a goal, and they sit back gasping like a couple fish while she calmly starts a big scandal by walking upstairs to see Thayer. You gittin' it all straight, Jim?" "Believe so, Reagan. You sure

"Yeh-and there's a heap more. About a quarter past one Miss Peyton comes downstairs and walks away. She nods to the two kids, but don't stop for any conversation. At about a quarter before in his car, there was something two o'clock Max Vernon comes busting downstairs and stamps across the porch without so much as a hello. He has on a different suit of clothes and there is a bundle under his arm. He beats it out to and the stick-up guy pot-shotted ward, heaves this bundle in the his car, which is parked in the back and goes down the hill at

> "I won't," promised Hanvey. "Fifteen minutes later Farnum and Gleason find out they're still not immune to shocks when an other guy comes down the hill to the fraternity house and in-

"Gosh!" murmured Jim, "they must have thought he was a popular guy. Who was this new feller?' "A professor! And a whale of a fine feller, too. He only graduated last June and before that he was the best athlete this college ever had. His name is Welch-Larry Welch-and, while I hate to land it on him, he's got a pretty rotten tie-up with Thayer."

"In the first place, this Miss Peyton who had just been to Thayer's room is supposed to be Welch's girl. Everybody at the college says they're nuts about each other. In the second place, Welch is the brother of the girl that Pat Thayer and Max Vernon are supposed to have quarreled about.

He finally called the hill to the college. Five or ten me a d-n fool, which wasn't very minutes after Larry Welch left, the two boys on the porch heard all h-l bust loose inside. Yelling and screaming and all, and they hear a feller coming down the steps so fast that he's almost falling. Out on the porch comes the janitor-a wop named Carmicino. He's darn near cuckoo, but they finally get out of him that he saw Thayer's door partly open and could see Thayer's legs. Thought Thayer was most probably drunk-or maybe sick. Went in to straighten him out-and discovered that he was dead." "And you think that Max Vernon

"I'm glad," said the banker "Because if, Vernon helped simply. rob this bank, then he couldn't have killed Paterson Thayer. Good G-d! Reagan-it isn't reasonable. You've seen this boy; does he look like a person who could murder a man and go straight from that crime to the robbery of a bank, and then calmly return to college the next day with the idea of resuming his regular life?"

"He does not," answered Reagan promptly. "But Jim Hanvey will tell you what I'm saying is true, Mr. Fiske: You can't tell from a feller's looks just what he'll do if he gets plenty desperate. Ain't that so. Jim?"

"You see!" said Reagan triumphantly. He produced a little notebook from his pocket and consulted its pages. "Here's as near as I can get to the happenings of day before yesterday-May first.

"Miss Peyton and Larry Welch-Thayer's other visitors." "I see. . . ." Hanvey was ab-

"They're under arrest, too," he announced.

The huge detective nodded approval. "I'll hand you one thing, John-you sure have made a complete job of it."

Reagan mopped his forehead with lavender-bordered handkerchief. "I had to, Jim. I've got those three, and I know I'm right on one of 'em."

"Which one?"

"That's what puzzles me. One a long tall bird with a sad face and | time I think it was Vernon; then I come to believe it was Miss Peyton. And just when I'm sure of that I get a hunch that it must have been Welch. Of the three, I'd rather it be Vernon."
