Fifteen of the 17 members of last year's staff of instructors are teaching here this year. Miss Verda Zuschnitt, who taught commercial subjects here last year, tendered her resignation last week to accept an office position in Kalamazoo. Robert Lewis Keppen, a graduate of Olivet College and the Detroit Business University, has been engaged to fill the vacancy. Mr. Keppen graduated from Southwestern high school in Detroit, and after finishing his college course, was employed as a substitute instructor in mathematics and commercial subjects at Southwestern and comes here highly recommended from that school. Mr. Keppen's experience in college athletics makes him a valuable assistant in the local school's physical and health program.

Burglars Take Pickles and Cash

Dill pickles, cigarettes and cash were secured by burglars in Tuscola county the past week.

The station of the Heinz Pickle Co. at Vassar was entered one night and a barrel of dill pickles is missing. Another barrel of pickles was rolled 300 feet before the thieves left it.

The White Star gas station at Vassar was entered Sunday night and $80.00 were taken.

The White Elephant dance hall, south of Vassar, was entered on Tuesday night and a quantity of candy and cigarettes taken.

Victor Weisheim, 18; Manuel Cineros, 18; and John Androl, 19, were arrested by county officers charged with breaking and entering a gas station at Quinciassee on Sunday night. They waived examination before Justice Atwood Wednesday and were bound over to the circuit court for trial.

Paving of M-53 This Season Has Not as Yet Been Determined

The Rotary Club of Cass City at a meeting held on July 11 passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, that we hereby call the attention of the State Administration Board, in their responsibility for determining the concrete road jobs for this summer, to seriously consider the importance of completing the paving of M-53 at the earliest date possible. This road being the main traffic artery for the whole Thumb district is already receiving harder wear than its present condition can stand. With the added strain that better economic conditions will place upon it, even this fall, it is the more imperative that this trunk-line be hard-surfaced at once in the interests of growing tourist and commercial traffic and the general convenience of thousands of residents in this large section of the state. The long delayed grade separation at Imlay City should also be undertaken, if at all possible, during this season."

Paul J. Allured, chairman of the resolution committee, forwarded the Rev. T. S. Bottrell who has served as minister in the M. E. churches at Cass City and Bethel, has been transferred to the pastorate at Davison.

REVISED SCHEDULE FOR LOCAL ELEVEN

Another Strong Football Team Is in the Offing for Cass City.

Coach Bill Kelly of the Cass City high school is now drilling the entire squad of 35 in preparation for the first game of the season at Harbor Beach today (Friday). The local schedule is now complete with four excellent home games and as many played away. For three successive weeks the team will give the local fans a chance to see them in action. Then the team is away for three weeks, to return again for the final game of the year.

Coach Kelly's football teams have lost only seven games in the last three years, but with the present material, it is hoped that the locals will again hold their county championship and also bring the Thumb championship back to the hub.

The backfield for the opening game will be composed of Ed. Graham, Dave Knight, Russ Quick and Clare Ballaugh. Graham will be calling the signals, besides taking care of the passing and punting. With Knight and Quick, Cass City high school presents two extremely fast and shifty backs. Ballaugh will be at fullback and his short, fast plunges will probably give the locals many first downs and touchdowns this year. Leland Kelley, a fast charging backfield man who can tackle plenty hard, will probably be called on often throughout the season.

Fred Ward seems to be a certain fixture at center, and a pre-season guess is that he will be filling that position as capably as Walter Goodall or Fred Brown, both excellent pivot men of old Cass City teams. The guard positions are an un-

Wanted a Night's Lodging; Given 90 Days and Nights

When Kenneth Rhyndres asked Deputy Sheriff J. A. Caldwell where he might secure a night's lodging, the officer informed him that he might spend Saturday night in the village lock-up. Taking another look at the young man, Officer Caldwell insisted that Rhyndres accept his invitation for he recalled that he was looking for a man of his description.

Rhyndres, the officer said, was wanted for the theft of a sum of money from Mrs. Casper Whalen when he was at the Whalen home last June. Some of the money belonged to the Nazarene church, Mrs. Whalen being a treasurer of one of the societies of that congregation. Rhyndres, who claims Flint as his home, was sentenced to spend 90 days in the county jail by Justice Atwood.

LOSES ARM AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Pedestrian Hit on M-81 and Arm Broken and Lacerated.

Mrs. Steve Mehlick, 62, of Bancroft had her left arm amputated at the Caro Community hospital on Monday as the result of injuries received in an unusual automobile accident on Sunday night.

Mrs. Mehlick and her husband were walking from Bancroft to Unionville to visit their son, John. Carrying her shoes under her arm when her feet hurt her, Mrs. Mehlick's arm was protruding over the highway and was caught in the door handle of the car of Earl Pfaff of Sandusky as the automobile was passing the couple on M-81 near Watrousville. The arm was broken and badly lacerated.

Mr. and Mrs. Pfaff and two friends were returning from Saginaw to Sandusky when the accident occurred. Cars with bright lights approaching from the opposite direction temporarily blinded Mr. Pfaff, officers said, as he approached the couple.

MANY BENEFITS COME FROM FORESTRY WORK

President's Order to Continue Camps Good Insurance for Future Timber.

Continued employment of 10,000 men in the civilian conservation corps in Michigan camps through the order of President Roosevelt will materially benefit this state both now and in the future, according to the forestry department at Michigan State College.

Immediate benefits are the employed who otherwise would be out of work and who might become a social problem in the cities from which they are recruited. Work done by these men will add to the attractiveness and to the commercial possibilities of the regions in which the camps are situated.

Financial returns from the resort trade in Michigan are large but the college forestry department says that continued prosperity of Upper Michigan is dependent upon an industry to supplement the recreational riches and that local wood working factories and proper harvesting of timber are best adapted to the natural resources of the region.

Workers in the conservation camps are performing tasks which will assist Michigan in assuring a future supply of timber. The men were not familiar with woods work at first and now have adapted themselves and are giving a good account of themselves. Tree planting, improvement of natural stands, and fire and disease prevention are all insurance of a future timber supply in Michigan.

Tours of the camps made by members of the college forestry staff have shown that the corps members have improved a great deal in morale. Nervous and irritable men who entered the camps are becoming energetic and cheerful and have a real interest in the work they perform.

People living near the camps now seem to be heartily in favor of the work being done and are gratified by the order for the continuation. Local men are employed in most of the camps as foremen.

Band Has Given Last Concert of the Season

Owing to the rainy weather on Wednesday evening, the band concert at Cass City was cancelled. The band was scheduled to give its last open air concert of the season next Wednesday night, but that has been cancelled also owing to the probability of cold weather.

The band is sponsoring the presentation of "Uncle Henry's Wedding," a three-act comedy of married life and old time 1890 styles. The comedy will be presented here on Oct. 5 and 6, a week later than was first announced.

Those who desire to show their appreciation for the fine concerts of Cass City this season may find one way in doing so by purchasing tickets for this attraction.

Two Viewpoints on the Allocation of Federal Highway Funds

This Is Laughable. From Tuscola County Advertiser.

State Highway Commissioner M. D. VanWagoner has made to the Tuscola county road commission a proposal which is really laughable, because it is so childlike. Tuscola county has been allocated more than a hundred and sixty-one thousand dollars, to be expended for road work, presumably in this county. Now comes the commissioner who, with a perfectly straight face, suggests that he is going to take some of this money and spend it on a concrete road in Sanilac county.

Sanilac county has already been allocated more money than has Tuscola. Sanilac county has not less than three state trunk lines running north and south through it (we forget the exact number, but it is surely more than three), and some of these trunk lines are partly paved.

Tuscola county has but little paving on trunk lines in comparison with Sanilac county. It has sever-

STATE TO LEVY HEAD TAX THIS FALL

Tuscola County Persons Over 21 Must Pay $2 for Old Age Pension Fund.

County Treasurer Whittenburg and County Clerk Morrison have a big task in store with the announcement that the head tax and old age pension law, passed by the 1933 legislature, will be put into effect this fall. It will be the duty of Mr. Morrison to register every person in Tuscola county over the age of 21, and the duty of Mr. Whittenburg to collect from all those persons a $2 tax. The registration must be completed by Nov. 15, 1933.

The county clerk is requesting citizens not to apply for registration at this time as the necessary registration supplies have not been received. Mr. Morrison will announce the date on which registrations will be received in the near future.

Application blanks for old age pensions will be available about the middle of November and may be secured from the county old age pension board. Funds secured from Turn to page 4, please.

PRIMARY MONEY HERE.

County Treasurer Whittenburg has received a check for $108,349.29 of the primary money due to school districts of Tuscola county. No apportionment list has been received, and as soon as Mr. Whittenburg is given the amount due each township, that amount will be sent promptly to the township treasurer.

Mr. Whittenburg has received a check of $2,960.00 as a part payment of the September apportionment from the state for relief and welfare purposes in Tuscola county.

Two Viewpoints on the Allocation of Federal Highway Funds

Unfair to Neighbors. From Marlette Leader.

The proposal of M. D. VanWagoner, state highway commissioner, that Tuscola county agree to the allocation of part of the Federal Highway Funds, contributed to Michigan for the construction of trunk lines and bridges, to the construction of pavement on M-53, north of Marlette to the Cass City road, this year, does not meet with the approval of Tuscola county's road commissioners, nor of the editor of the county's leading newspaper. In fact they seem to be very indignant that Mr. VanWagoner should suggest such an allotment. They claim that the Federal money allotted to Tuscola county can be used on roads wholly within the county, which is admitted, but for the same reason, Sanilac county can put forward the same claim and suggest to the State Commissioner that Federal Funds to be given Sanilac county could be spent on some lateral road, M-46, leading west from Sandusky, or M-81.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Grau San Martin Tries to Establish Government for Cuba—Four More States for Prohibition Repeal—Blue Eagle Notes.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SITTING precariously on the edge of the Cuban Presidential chair to which he had been hoisted by the radical junta, Ramon Grau San Martin endeavored earnestly to maintain his balance and to establish a government so solid that it would be given recognition by the United States. On all sides he was beset with difficulties and threats. In the big National hotel were the deposed army officers, heavily armed and supported by the more conservative factions that favored the return to power of De Cespedes whom the radicals had shoved out. In the harbor of Havana and elsewhere about the island were American warships, embodying the possibility of armed intervention by Uncle Sam if conditions became too chaotic. In the capital city and other centers new political and revolutionary factions formed nightly, and various strikes complicated the situation. Money, food and gasoline for the troops that were supporting Grau San Martin were running low, and merchants were refusing credit.

Ramon Grau San Martin

Nevertheless, the President, who is a more forceful figure than De Cespedes, carried on bravely and proceeded to select a cabinet. Posing and speaking for the talkies, he declared: "At last Cuba is again free among civilized nations of the world. Cuba now has a stable government, all that we need for prosperity, and we hope that prosperity will come quickly."

The ousted military officers, who had taken entire possession of the National hotel and were beleaguered there by the radical soldiers, sent Col. Horatio Ferrer, secretary of war and navy under De Cespedes, to the Presidential palace to demand the immediate resignation of Grau San Martin, but he met with no success. Meanwhile the entire staff of the hotel left, and the officers were forced to run the place themselves. Ambassador Welles, who had resided in the hotel, also departed, as did nearly all of the Americans who had taken refuge there.

WASHINGTON, of course, was watching the developments in Cuba with deep interest, not to say anxiety, but President Roosevelt was determined to avoid intervention if possible. Through Secretary of state Hull he indicated that he would follow a line of strict neutrality among the island's factions and would permit Cuba to solve her own political problems. Mr. Hull's formal statement was: "The government of the United States has no interest in behalf of or prejudice against any political group or independent organization which is today active in the political life of Cuba."

Former President Mario G. Menocal, who returned to Cuba after the ousting of Machado, entered into the picture when the military officers invited him to lead their efforts to force Grau San Martin out of the Presidency.

For several days Spain was without a cabinet, following the ousting of the pro-Socialist government of Premier Manuel Azana, and the situation was critical. However, President Zamora called in Alejandro Lerroux, veteran republican leader, and charged him to form a coalition cabinet based solely on the Radical party and the independent republicans. This Lerroux accomplished with some difficulty, persuading all the minority republican groups to support him, although two of their leaders, Salvador de Madariaga and Felipe Sanchez Roman, had refused to sign up. Lerroux selected a cabinet that was approved by President Zamora. Of its thirteen members, six are members of the Radical party, which is really the most conservative party in the country, so the government has taken a decided turn to the right. Lerroux and his government may have considerable difficulty in the cortes, for the Socialist left and the monarchist right will be strong in opposition.

One thing the Spanish government has to cope with is the great crime wave that is sweeping over the country. Murders, bombings and incendiary fires have been frequent and the police and civil guards so far have been unable to check the outrages. Many of the crimes are attributed to Communists.

FOUR more states fell into line for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, making twenty-nine that so far have voted, with none in opposition. Only seven more are needed for the ratification of the amendment, and now not even the most confirmed prohibitionist believe the wet wave can be pushed back. It is a moral certainty that repeal will be accomplished before Christmas.

Maine, stronghold of prohibition since 1851, proved her change of heart by voting more than 2 to 1 for repeal. The wets carried every county and their 80 delegates will take formal action in convention on December 6. Then, all in one day, came Maryland, nearly 5 to 1 for repeal; Minnesota, where the wets outnumbered the dries more than 2 to 1; and Colorado, where the repealists won by nearly 3 to 1.

Other states to vote on the repeal amendment this year are: Idaho and New Mexico, September 19; Virginia, October 3; Florida, October 10; Ohio, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky and Utah, November 7. The repealists can afford to lose three of these, but probably will not do so.

ADVOCATES of recognition of the Soviet Russian government by the United States are much encouraged by the appointment of John Van A. MacMurray as minister to Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. They believe this is a step toward recognition and that Mr. MacMurray will be our ambassador at Moscow before very long. He is a college professor specialist in Russian affairs and history and recently returned from a trip through Russia. In every respect Mr. MacMurray is qualified to represent the United States abroad, for he has held many important posts in the diplomatic service, in Europe and in the Far East. In 1924 he was an assistant secretary of state and soon after was appointed minister to China.

It is believed that the next step in the program for Russian recognition will be the establishment of credits amounting to at least $50,000,000 for Russian purchases of copper, cotton and railroad supplies in this country.

NEW YORK city staged a huge NRA parade, and as a preliminary Administrator Hugh Johnson, addressing a mass meeting, informed the nation that 85 per cent of the employers in the United States were already enrolled under the blue eagle. He attacked critics of the NRA, which he declared was "not an attempt at regimentation of industry, but a charter of freedom," and asserted the country had been lifted "about one-quarter of the way out of the inky blackness of last March."

While General Johnson was struggling in Washington to formulate a code that would be accepted by the soft coal interests, President Roosevelt was endeavoring, in a conference with the heads of each of the recovery units, to push ahead three of the major parts of his program—expansion of credit, insurance of bank deposits and control of the oil industry.

Aid for the small business man, who still is having trouble with his credit arrangements now is the central question in the government's credit problem, according to Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, who attended the conference. Large industries are finding accommodations, he said.

Banks in small towns must be convinced that loans are now feasible, according to Mr. Jones. They are still hanging back and not helping the merchants and industries in their communities, Mr. Jones said. Mr. Jones repeated his threat that the government plans to take over functions of banks through the medium of mortgage corporations, formed among industries for the discounting of paper with the R. F. C. This device, he said, would clear up the remaining credit difficulties in the road of the recovery drive.

Secretary Ickes, after his conference with the President, said that the price fixing provisions would remain in the oil code, but that he would not attempt to regulate prices until such a step became necessary.

In another conference, plans to collect a billion dollars in back taxes due the federal government were laid before President Roosevelt by Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue. Of the total due, $750,000,000 is tied up in litigation which the government is seeking to speed. Helvering explained, because tax payers are seeking to have it refunded to them. Another $250,000,000 has not been paid in. Assured by the President of a sufficient fund to carry on the work, Helvering said he hoped to round up $300,000,000 in the near future without great difficulty. No prosecutions are being planned at present.

PEACE for ten years between Greece and Turkey is assured by the pact which was signed at Ankara by Premiers Tsaladris and Ismet Pasha. The pact guarantees reciprocal frontier security against aggression, a common understanding before deciding on domestic and international questions and mutual representation at international conferences.

CHANCELLOR HITLER and his Nazis have compelled Prof. Albert Einstein to revise in part his long held pacifist attitude. His altered views appeared in a letter to a Belgian anti-militarist who appealed to him to help two Belgian conscientious objectors to military service who had started a hunger strike.

"You will be very astonished at what I am going to tell you," Einstein wrote. "Only a short time ago we could hope to fight militarism in Europe successfully by individual refusals to do service. But today we are in the presence of altogether different circumstances. There is in the center of Europe a state (Germany) which is publicly preparing for war by all means."

"In these conditions the Latin countries, above all France and Belgium, are in great danger and can only count on their preparedness."

"As far as Belgium is concerned it is obvious that this little country will not make abusive use of its preparation and that it has the greatest need to safeguard its existence."

"Imagine Belgium occupied by present-day Germany! It would undoubtedly be worse than in 1914, even though occupation at that time was terrible. That is why I am telling you in the most direct fashion that if I were a Belgian I would not refuse to do military service under the present circumstances, but on the contrary I would accept it in full conscience with the feeling that I was contributing to save European civilization."

At that time Einstein was in Brussels, but it was reported a Nazi organization had put him on its death list, so he fled to England and hid in a cabin on the east coast provided for him by Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson. Its location was kept secret and he said he would remain there until October, when he was coming to America to lecture.

BRUISED and footsore after a week of struggling through the forests on Ontario, Ward T. Van Orman and Frank A. Trotter, pilots of a Goodyear balloon in the James Gordon Bennett race from Chicago, were found and brought back to civilization. Caught in a bad squall, they had been forced to land, upside down, in dense woods. Carrying heavy packs, the two men fought their way slowly toward the line of the Ontario Hydroelectric company. Their rescue was made possible by the cutting down of a telephone pole along this line, for James Barrett, lineman, seeking the cause of an interruption in service, found a note written by the aeronauts. Following a course which the note mentioned, the lineman found the Americans in a camp.

Though formal announcement had not been made, it appeared the winners of the race were Capt. Franciszek Hynek and Lieut. Zbigniew Burzynski of Poland, who landed near Riviere a Pierre, Quebec, 812 miles from Chicago. Van Orman and Trotter made about 500 miles. Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle and Charles H. Kendall, pilots of the United States navy balloon, landed in Connecticut. They traveled about 750 miles. Balloons representing Germany, Belgium, and France flew shorter distances.

TONY CANZONERI made a gallant effort to regain the lightweight title in New York and failed. For fifteen rounds he battled with Barney Ross of Chicago, the present champion, but in the end the decision was given the younger man who had conquered Tony last June.

IRAQ was in deep mourning for King Faisal, who died suddenly in Berne, Switzerland. His son, Ghazi, twenty-one years old, was declared his successor and took the oath of office at Besrah. He retained his father's cabinet and was expected to follow Faisal's policies.

Lesson for September 24

REVIEW: SOME EARLY LEADERS OF ISRAEL

GOLDEN TEXT—Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends From God's Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Some Heroes of God's Book.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons From Great Leaders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Makes a Great Leader?

For senior and adult classes, two methods are suggested.

First—The grouping of the men and women as leaders.

The material of this lesson is adapted from the Lutheran lesson commentary.

I. The Military Leaders (Lessons 1, 2 and 5).

1. Joshua (Lesson 1). He was skilled in military tactics as well as organization. He possessed natural gifts, but his success was due mainly to his obedience to God.

2. Caleb (Lesson 2). As one of the twelve spies, he courageously insisted that by God's help they could possess Canaan. He stood with Joshua, but was overruled by the people.

3. Gideon (Lesson 5). He obeyed God's strange command to reduce his army to 300 men. With this small force he routed the host of Midian, and made Israel free for about forty years.

II. Women (Lessons 3, 6 and 7).

1. Deborah (Lesson 3). She was called in an emergency and led the people forward to victory.

2. Ruth (Lesson 6). She adopted a new people, a new God, and a new country, with no thought of personal gain. She became the ancestress of David and thus of Christ.

3. Hannah (Lesson 7). In Hannah shines forth ideal motherhood.

III. Prophets (Lessons 4 and 8).

1. Isaiah (Lesson 4). He has the place of first rank among the prophets. He denounced the sins of Israel. Drunkenness was one of the sins which destroyed Israel.

2. Samuel (Lesson 8). He was director general of Israel while serving as a prophet of God.

IV. Royalty (Lessons 9, 10, 11 and 12).

1. Saul (Lesson 9). He had the anointing of God and the approval of the people. His days were filled with blunders, largely because he trusted and exalted himself rather than God.

2. David (Lesson 10). David came into prominence unexpectedly. He had the inner qualities that God could use for a true king. He brought the scattered tribes under one government, bound together by the bond of one religion.

3. Jonathan (Lesson 11). He is noted for his friendship for David. He was legal heir to the throne of his father, but renounced his right in favor of David.

4. Solomon (Lesson 12). He came to the throne welcomed by a united nation. The idea of building the temple as well as much material for its erection came to him from his father. He built the temple and dedicated it to God. Setting forth that its supreme purpose was God's glory.

Second—The Summary Method.

The aim here is to state the leading fact and principal teaching of the several lessons. The following suggestions are made:

Lesson for July 2. Joshua's faith in the promise of God and obedience to the divine command enabled him to carry forward to success the work begun by Moses.

Lesson for July 9. Because Caleb wholly followed the Lord, his strength was preserved.

Lesson for July 16. It was out of the ordinary for God to call a woman to a place of national leadership. Deborah had the good judgment to urge Barak forward.

Lesson for July 23—Drunkenness and other sins caused Israel's ruin.

Lesson for July 30. Gideon, with a small band of men, routed and destroyed the Midianites because he trusted and obeyed God.

Lesson for August 6. Because Ruth chose to identify herself with the people of God she was abundantly blessed.

Lesson for August 13. Hannah stands out as the ideal godly mother.

Lesson for August 20. Samuel heard the call of God while serving in the capacity in which his mother dedicated him.

Lesson for August 27. Saul shamefully failed because he disobeyed God.

Lesson for September 3. Because David was a man after God's own heart, God used him and blessed him in spite of his sins.

Lesson for September 10. Jonathan is an example of a true friend. Because of his love he renounced his rights and endangered his life for the sake of David.

Lesson for September 17. Solomon chose wisdom rather than honor and riches. Because of this God was able to give riches and honor.

KASHMIR VALE FULL OF CHARM

Srinagar Is a Lovely Place for a Vacation.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

AS WARM weather approaches, the vale Kashmir, one of the famous garden spots of the world, beckons to the vacationists of India. Its wooded hillsides don a new green which is reflected in the clear, blue, placid streams of the valley; and houseboats are put in order for a busy season.

The Vale of Kashmir lies among the lower Himalayas, north of the Indian Punjab. One reaches Srinagar, the summer capital of the native state known as the domain of the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, over a long route by rail and motor. From Bombay one travels northward by trains, via Delhi and Lahore, the Rawalpindi, one of the chief army posts of British India. There the way to beauty opens.

Almost at once on leaving Rawalpindi the motor road begins to climb. Up and up through the deodar-clad slopes of the lower mountain the road twists and turns, the heated air of the plains grows cool and invigorating, until, when travelers make their first overnight stop at Tret, they feel captivated by a joyous holiday spirit.

Everything seems amusing and interesting. Ruffled punkas swing from the ceiling, though you may have no need for them. Your deft and turbaned servants patter bore-footed about the rooms, unrolling your bedding on the stringed charpays, the fairly comfortable beds of India. Even the not-too-bad food served by the bungalow cook is a matter for hungry jest. Lovely, lovely world, with a summer of Kashmir ahead.

Native Chauffeurs Are Speedy.

The road from Rawalpindi to Srinagar is a well-built motor road, some 200 miles long, and it lies through the mountains north of the Pir Panjal pass. Snowy peaks rise high above you. The rushing waters of the icy streams chatter noisily below. Hairpin turns in the road make you catch your breath and curl your toes, for the ways of the native driver are his own and without fear, and, also, you have not the knowledge wherewith to express your feelings.

Soon, from the first traveling sahib, you may learn to say, "Ahista, ahista!" But you never succeed in making an Indian chauffeur drive slowly, slowly.

It is possible to make the trip to Srinagar in a day, but not ahista! Quite the contrary. You spend two nights in dak bungalows (rest-houses) along the way, the second at Baramulla, which lies at the edge of the great depression known as the Vale of Kashmir.

From Baramulla one can go the rest of the way by boat, up the Jhelum river; but you may prefer to drive. The last 35 miles lie across a level stretch, the road bordering on either side by slender poplars.

The people passed along the way are quite different from those one sees in India. Ekkas and tongas, the two-wheeled horse-drawn vehicles of the country, draw aside to let you pass.

The Vale of Kashmir is a level valley about 80 miles long and averaging about 20 miles in width. It lies, a great oval, surrounded by mountains green with deodar and spruce on the lower reaches and white with snow until well into the early summer. Skies of an incredible blue complete a color scheme of fairy loveliness. Throughout the valley winds the curving line of the River Jhelum, along the banks of which straggle the streets and bazaars which form the ancient city of Srinagar.

Quaint Scenes in Srinagar.

Seven curious bridges span the river, and along the shore quaint old wooden houses lean sometimes at a rakish angle. Many of the city streets end in wide stone steps leading down to the river's edge. These stairways are usually animated scenes of native life. Here the laundry men wash the clothes; here the women come to fill their water jars. Children tumble and play about, and goats and cows ramble freely among them all. From the overhanging balconies lengths of dyed pashmina hang out to dry. All is colorful and gay.

Also there is the interesting river life. A large part of the population of Srinagar lives afloat. Odd, long-pointed boats, called dangas, with superstructures hung with mats of woven reeds, are the only homes which thousands of Kashmiris ever know. Sleeping quarters within, a kitchen of sorts open to the eyes of all, a few pots of brass or copper, and a poor Kashmiri's household is complete.

The native of more ample means has a better boat. Walls of wood replace the woven mass, and as better and better financial status is indicated, so the boats improve. The best are comfortable and well-furnished house boats, such as one might see upon the River Thames. The English have made their contributions in the development of the house boat in Srinagar; for the Vale of Kashmir has become not only a favorite vacation land for the English army in India, but the permanent home of many retired officers and their families.

One lives easily in Kashmir. A host of servants cost about as much as one good cook in the West, and they feed themselves. Each one has his appointed duties and does them fairly well.

Servants All Are Men.

All your servants in Kashmir are men. The women seldom work out. Even the little children of Westerners frequently have men servants to care for them. Your list may include a Mangi, or head boatman; a khitmatgar (chief house servant), assistant khitmatgar, a bhisti (water carrier, sweeper—of lowest caste and doer of menial jobs), a khansaman (cook), a dholi (washerman), a dhurzi (sewing man), a mall, (gardener), and three little chokers, the small boys who paddle the shikara, a small gondola-like boat in which you go everywhere you desire. It seems an ample list!

If you take guests for tea to Shallmar gardens, the houseman goes along and serves a perfect meal under the spreading chinar tree. When you plan a morning in the bazaars, the houseman follows respectfully behind, your guide. Your days are carpeted with ease and your home is a joy, thanks to the willing service of an able houseman.

Where but in Kashmir could one call back to a houseman as one is leaving home for all day, "we will have guests for dinner tonight at nine o'clock," and return to find everything in perfect order, fresh flowers everywhere, the table set in holiday attire, and a coarse dinner perfectly planned?

Many of the Kashmiris are fine looking, the women especially having beautiful eyes and quite regular features. Like other native states of the Indian empire, Kashmir has an English resident, or advisory official, and through him more sanitary ways of living are gradually being introduced into the country. There is an excellent mission hospital and a zenana hospital, as the name implies, for women, and a school conducted by an English clergyman is doing wonders among the youth of the country.

Foreigners Like Kashmir.

The foreign element in Srinagar increases yearly. From the terrible heat of the Punjab come English army people, seeking the cool air and health of the hills, and these bring with them the influence of English manners and customs, and, better still, of English fair play. There is not in all Srinagar a merchant who does not rely wholeheartedly on the honor of the English sahib.

Shopping is a quaint pastime in this City of the Sun. As one strolls along the Bund, eager merchants press their wares. Mohamad Jhan assures you that not in all Srinagar—no, not even at All Jhan's, his rival—can you procure such embroideries, such fine pashmina, such beautiful designs. Will not the Lady Sahib but see?

Or, as the small shikara of a merchant is rowed alongside your boat, deftly timed to find you at home, he eagerly spreads his wares. He is insistent that you see his treasures. "Only looking, Lady Sahib. Not buying, only looking." The foxy merchant well knows his goods are tempting. He is sure that some time you will buy.

The native industries of Kashmir, alas, have cheapened and some have almost died out entirely. No longer, for instance, can one procure the very finest shawls, such as made the name of Kashmir famed throughout the world. One can get good shawls, soft and fine, but the exquisite, old-time shawls are hardly found outside of museums.

Pashmina is one of the loveliest products of the land. It is a soft cream-colored woolen cloth, made from the fine under hair of the Tibetan goat. The finer weaves are incredibly soft and the shawlmaker, hopeful for your order, will show you how a length of it can be drawn through a finger ring.

A much heavier woolen cloth, sometimes akin to Scottish homespun, is called puttoo, and the better weaves make splendid outing clothes.

When "Cowboys" Were Robbers

During the Revolutionary war the term "cowboy" was applied to robbers, usually of cattle and sometimes of other property, who infested the roads east of the Hudson river between the British and American lines. They professed to be Tories. A similar band, professing to be Whigs, called "skinners," plundered wayfarers in the same period and in the same places.

Our Government—How It Operates

By William Bruchart

SPiRiT OF THE HOuSE

ANYONE who observes the course followed by a public official can hardly fail to arrive at the conclusion, eventually, that there is one characteristic common to all of them, namely, a desire, an insatiable determination, to be vindicated for what they have done. That really is the important factor in the career of any politician, and he or she charts a course accordingly.

There is no higher exemplification of this spirit to be found anywhere than among the representatives who constitute the house. There may be a few individuals, indeed, there must be some who fail to keep a weather eye on the trend of the sentiment in their districts, but the number is negligible when compared with the total house membership of 435. Frequently, one hears loud pronouncements of independence on the floor of the house, vociferous declarations that the folks "back home" have been misled by propaganda or by preachers from the opposition for ulterior purposes. But that very independence is the finest sort of an appeal for vindication because it is a simple attempt to justify the course followed, or to be followed.

But there really ought to be no quarrel with that procedure. Look behind it. Certainly, after all, the majority of voters in a congressional district sent that individual to congress. He is responsible to them. They know it, as well as he. When he goes wrong on the "burning issue," they retire him. Thus, they attain a responsiveness to their will. The representative's vain desire for vindication of his acts results in exactly the thing for which the house was created, a proper reflection of sectional and local viewpoints, a melting pot from which emerges that thing which is called "the will of the people."

All of the above is by way of saying that the house is a highly sensitive body, politically. Receipt of mail from the home district over a period of a week, mail that deals with some particular question, has been known to change enough votes in the house to overthrow an apparent strong majority. Take, for example, the upset through which the house passed when it was considering the revenue act of 1932—the tax bill. Under most circumstances, party leadership controls firmly, although rather easily. But party leaders meant nothing to the house after scores of its members began hearing from "back home" in opposition to the sales tax that had been recommended for passage by its ways and means committee. Representatives of all shades of opinion were panicky. Why? Because they wanted to have the voters vindicate them at the polls in the next election and they were not sure they could convince the electorate of the propriety of their course had they supported a direct tax on things we buy.

A representative's term is only two years. Once he is elected, he necessarily must start solidifying the position thus gained. He knows that opposition will be out there in the field all the time, making hay while he stays in Washington. It may be in his own political party or in another party. But it usually is there, just waiting for an opportunity.

Thus, the successful candidate must look to his laurels from the start, and he usually does so by fostering legislation of particular benefit to his district. He has to choose a side, however, on questions of importance to the whole nation, and on these his ordinary course—and easiest—is to align himself with his political party. Yet oftentimes that course proves fatal.

So the life of representatives during his two-year term is just one attempt after another to guess what the majority in his district desires. The desire for power seems to go hand in hand with the desire for vindication. It always has been said that, in politics, as in war, the spoils go to the victor, and the spoils accompanying control of the house are worth considering from the standpoint of well-built political fences out in the home district. The majority party in the house, as in the senate, gains the chairmanships of all committees. It means control of legislation; it means appointment of dozens of job seekers, and it means a voice in management of the party throughout the nation. With that control goes the speakership of the house, an honor of greatest consequence to some member of the majority party. It is all a part of a great game called politics.

When all things are considered, however; when all factors and influences and causes and effects are weighed, the scales appear to balance to the side of benefit to the people. This spirit that seems to grip every man or woman sent to the house cannot be eliminated in our two party system of government, but why should it be destroyed when the sum total of its effect is to make representation possible for a people too numerous to get together in a town hall meeting. ©, 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

If you want to GET RID of Constipation worries—

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the unwise choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable; you can make constipated spells as rare as colds.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:

1. Select a good liquid laxative.
2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system.
3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Syrup pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Deaths

George Finkle. The funeral of George Finkle, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Paul Hague, at Grand Blanc on Sept. 13, was held at Grand Blanc Saturday and interment was made in the Williamson cemetery near Gagetown.

Geo. Finkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Finkle, was born on Oct. 3, 1861, in Burlington township, LaPeere county, and came with his parents to Grant township in 1882. In 1888, he was united in marriage with Miss Eva G. Hare. In 1905, they moved to Owendale and ten years later they came to Cass City. Since the death of his wife in 1920, Mr. Finkle has made his home with his two daughters. In his early manhood, Mr. Finkle followed the farming industry and was later employed as pumpman by the Grand Trunk Railway.

Mr. Finkle leaves one son, John H., of Detroit; two daughters, Mrs. Paul Hague of Grand Blanc and Mrs. Bert Stickland of Caro; and two sisters, Mrs. Belle Martin of Kallispell, Mont., and Mrs. Jennie Case of Detroit. One son, Thomas, passed away in 1906.

D. C. Bush. D. C. Bush, 90, last of the pioneer settlers of Caro died at his home in that village Monday.

Bush, whose father donated to the county the site upon which the Tuscola county court house stands, was the first merchant in Caro, known that time as Centerville.

Born in Oakland county, Michigan, June 21, 1843, Bush came to Tuscola county with his parents in 1856. The farm upon which the family located covered much of what is now the village of Caro.

Later erecting a store on the site where the Hotel Montague now stands, Bush became a dealer in furs, trading merchandise to the Indians for the valuable skins and furs of the animals that were then plentiful in this section.

Louis Wean, 57, prominent Caro resident throughout his life, passed away Wednesday night, Sept. 13, as a result of a stroke suffered a few hours earlier. Mr. Wean had been active during the day at the State Savings Bank of Caro, of which he was chairman of the board of directors. He was stricken shortly after returning to his home for dinner. Earlier in his career, Mr. Wean was affiliated with the private Carson-Ealy bank, which later became the State Savings bank. He was president of the latter institution for three years after its organization, later assuming his duties as head of the board of directors, which office he retained until his death. He was treasurer of the M. E. church at Caro for the past 35 years. Surviving are his widow; one daughter, Virginia; and two sisters, Mrs. H. E. Inglesbee, Caro, and Mrs. John Strohauser, Detroit.

STATE TO LEVY HEAD TAX THIS FALL

Concluded from first page. The head tax will be used to pay the pensions.

Under the present plan, as revealed in a letter to Mr. Morrison from Miss Evelyn Mershon, state welfare director, the state will furnish registration and collection blanks, and pay five cents per name to cover the cost of the work; one cent for collection, two cents to the county clerk for registration and two cents to enumerators appointed by the clerk to expedite the big task.

In her letter to the treasurer, Miss Mershon says in part, "As state welfare director it is my personal plea to county treasurers and clerks to realize the ultimate good that will be accomplished as the result of this law, in caring for our destitute and infirm old age persons in this state. This very thought alone should overcome any doubt of any person to handicap your part in the registration and collection of this tax. This is a step forward for the state of Michigan."

Mr. Crow's Importance "It is doubtful," states a publication of the United States Department of Agriculture, "whether any other bird is of as great economic importance to the farmer as the crow. In food habits it is practically omnivorous; it takes anything from the choicest poultry and the tenderest shoots of sprouting grain to carrion and weed seeds. The fact that no less than 356 items have been identified in its food gives some idea of the bird's resourcefulness."

Yes, What Fools We Mortals Be.

After sitting on the bank of the St. Clair river for six hours Saturday, to see the Gar Wood-Scott Paine procession, writes Joe Haas in the Holly Herald, we came away with our annual "never again" feeling. But we hope to be on hand next year.

Close Friends.

A frequent visitor to a modest bungalow home in Northville is Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the Crown Prince of Germany and grandson of the former German Kaiser. The prince, as is well known, is employed in the Ford plant, and one of his closest friends is Fred Hoffman of Northville, also a Ford employee. Their acquaintance began, however in their native Germany when Hoffman was master of the Kaiser's stables, and taught the young prince to ride the royal mounts, neither little thinking of the strange vicissitude of fate that would renew their friendship many years later in America.—Milford Times.

PAVING OF M-53.

Concluded from page 1. "Whether or not it may be possible to include the paving of some portion of M-53 between Marlette and Bad Axe has not as yet been determined. There are certain projects in the state which the Bureau of Public Roads are insisting upon being placed on the new Federal Aid program. In the event there are balances remaining in the county allotments after the Bureau's requirements are taken care of, we will consider the Marlette-Bad Axe paving situation."

Farmers Can Seed Meadows as Usual

Approved practices for handling acres withdrawn from wheat production under the adjustment contracts fit well in planned rotation, according to R. J. Baldwin, director of the wheat reduction plan in Michigan.

Growers are permitted under the replacement regulations to plant their hay crops without interfering with their regular rotations," says J. F. Cox, chief of the replacement crop section of the U. S. Administration. "They can also plant to permanent pasture on the contracted acres. In the corn belt, the winter wheat region, and the northern and eastern states, wheat is grown in regular rotations in which these hay or pasture plantings fit well.

"The farmer, for instance, who grows wheat on a 30-acre field in his regular rotation would, in many cases, leave a strip not planted to wheat along the side of the field to the extent of his reduction or contracted acreage. If it is the practice to seed timothy, blue grass, red top or other grass in the fall, then the entire field, including both that part seeded to wheat and the contracted acreage, can be planted to grass.

"A more wide-spread rotation practice is to seed clover, lespedeza, alfalfa, timothy and other grasses together in the spring, according to adaptation. The entire field, both wheat acreage and contracted acreage, can under the terms of the contract be seeded to clover or grass at the same time, following the regular practice.

"During the first year, contracted acreage so seeded is given over to establishing the hay or pasture crop. The second year, this acreage can be used for hay or pasture without restriction, provided other acres are substituted as contracted acreage and handled in accordance with the terms of the wheat contract.

"In addition to planting to pasture and meadow crops, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has recommended as approved practices the planting of soil-improvement crops, resting the land for a year, controlling weeds, planting forest trees, and summer fallowing. These are practical methods of using the contracted wheat acreages so as not to contribute to other surpluses and yet to make good use of retired land in accordance with local adaptation.

"Growers are paid a substantial benefit to reduce wheat acreage without creating damaging surpluses of other agricultural commodities."

REDUCTION COMING IN ELECTRIC LIGHT BILLS

Michigan domestic and commercial users of electricity will receive reductions in the costs of their electric service aggregating approximately $1,300,000 a year as the result of the transfer of the 3 per cent federal excise tax from consumers to companies, states the Utilities Information Bureau at Ann Arbor. This estimate is based upon reports from operating companies. The change went into effect on September 1 and will apply on bills for the present month and hereafter.

The tax burden is now imposed directly upon the utilities, as is the new National Industrial Recovery Act tax of $1 per $1,000 on the declared value of their capital stock. It is in addition to other federal, state, county, school and local taxes, borne by Michigan utilities, which in 1932 amounted to a total of $9,478,845, out of gross revenues of $79,278,883—an average of 12 cents out of every dollar taken in.

Personality Counts

Brooklyn Bridge's Fame The streets spanned by the Brooklyn bridge and those on which its piers and approaches stand are not only of historic import, but have been the inspiration for interesting tales. One of the New York piers rests on the site occupied by Washington's first New York residence. Stephen Foster was an habitual wanderer about the crooked streets now darkened by the bridge. In Sandy Welsh's beer cellar, which stood where now the bridge casts its shadow, Edgar Allan Poe read aloud "The Raven."

The Fable of the Desecrated Village

By GEORGE ADE

ONCE there was a Town about twice the size of a Poultry ranch. It surrounded a Depot and the principal Reclpe for killing Time was to sit on the Front Porch. A little Croquet, accompanied by bantering Conversation; some Horse-Shoe Tossing back of the Smithers Garage and a Ball Team which mobilized once in a while for the Purpose of getting trimmed—these helped to differentiate the Residents of Comaville from Live Stock, but there is no getting away from the cruel Truth that this Settlement acted most of the Time as if it had taken heavy Doses of Hop.

Of course, the Weekly Paper often spoke of Comaville as a hustling and progressive little City.

From all Reports it would seem that Comaville was not always cold in the Shell. They say that the Whole Region was lively before the Early Settlers drove out the Indians. Nevertheless for some 90 years before Mr. and Mrs. Eli Furbison began to spend their Winters in Florida, accompanied by a Camera, there is no denying that Comaville was moribund, dopey and altogether flump.

Some Day there will be a Bronze Tablet down by the Depot, marking the exact Spot at which Mr. Furbison alighted from No. 7 one day in Springtime, with the leather-trim Bag over his Shoulder and as slick an assortment of Golf Tools as ever came out of a Department Store.

The Rubes had seen the Pictures in the Colored Part and when they got a Peek at the Shiny Set they let out a Guffaw which might have been heard as far away as the Hay Press. It is probable that Goliath cackled when he first spotted David and that Samson told his Buddies that he would call on Dallah merely to study her Character, but there wasn't a Chinaman's Chance for his falling for any of that Vamp Stuff.

If the Citizenry of Comaville had burned the queer-looking Implements and then suspended Eli by the Neck from the Hard Maple just across the Street, in front of Uz Burlig's Blacksmith Shop, then a great many things which afterward came to pass might not have transpired and the Restful Calm which had brooded over the Hamlet for so long probably would not have been busted up.

Mr. Eli Furbison accepted the Scoffs with apparent Good Nature, but already he was nursing, in the back of the Trusty Bean, a set of Plans which would guarantee him a juicy Revenge for all of the low-Comedy Cracks.

He being President of the Bank and owning most of the Corners along Main Street made Eli the Sacred White Bullock of his Birth Place. So when he laid out a 4-hole Golf Course in the Pasture near his palatial Shack at the Edge of Town, every Cyrus and Cynthia sat up and began to take notice and wonder if the somnolent Burg would have something to brag about at last.

Music With Meals. The first to go out and experiment with the far-famed Division of the Idiotic Rich were the Elite, meaning those Professional and Business men who wore White Collars all Week, and Blue Elastics.

They began to order from a Catalogue and the Wives ran from House to House telling that Mrs. Furbison had met Glenna Collett in Florida, and also said that all the Girls, both Cuties and Grown-Ups, down there were gooty about the Game and every one played it except Campers, Cripples and Tin-Canners.

Ere now you have guessed that a Meeting was called and every Car-Owner was present, in the Back Room at the Bank, trying to look like one of the Declaration of Independence. Officers were elected. The By-Laws, as adopted, were about the Length of the Constitution of the U. S. A.

A rolling Tract of about 50 Acres was leased for 99 years and the Cows were moved out. When the Golf Architect submitted his Blue Prints for a 9-hole Course and Workmen began to build a Club House, which was practically a Ball Room with a Porch in front of it, then the Die was cast, the Doom of the Victims was sealed and all of the Socially Important got ready to commune with Nature and Profanity and Bridge Whist.

The Golf Course still looked like a Pasture but the would-be Whitemans began to tighten up the Rivets on their Saxophones and what used to be known as a Fish Fry became a Dinner Dance, and all those who belonged to the Country Club made no attempt to keep their Names out of the Department headed Social Chat.

Many a staid Citizen who had two good Reasons for not advertising his Shape began to parade around in Knickers and use all of the Terms commonly found in an Article by Walter Hagen. Those who had not been off the Sidewalks for years began to tramp over the Hills regardless of the Pods and fretful Pupples. Girls of middle Age who hadn't swung anything heavier than a Palm Leaf Fan for many Moons might have been seen on any nice Day tearing up the Turf and whanging out Screemers that went 80 to 100 yards, straight as a Bee Line, into the Rough.

Agriculturists driving by in their Henrys got many a Snicker and some who were quite original allowed that if the darn Numbskulls had to do that for a living they wouldn't be so keen for it.

It was the same old Story. Many who came to Scoff remained to Play. The Outsiders continued to squat in Sunny Spots, protected from the Wind, and they were frankly of the Opinion that anyone who fought a wee Pill for Hours at a time during Dog Days must be a little curdled in the Coco, and the Golfers were too busy to deny it.

Everything happened in Comaville, the same as in 1,000 other distracted Communities. A local Preacher attacked Sunday Play and said right out that the Reprobates in White Clothes were headed straight for H—l and the Sinners, counting up their Scores, often agreed with him.

When some of the Lady Addicts, including several who had Children in the Grammar School, stopped Traffic along Main Street by appearing in He-Attire, then the Pure and Unsullied began to clamor for a law to prohibit Ziegfeld Costumes. They had everything else in the World restricted or prohibited by Legislative Enactment and they agreed that the World would be a great deal brighter and better if some Official would stand on a Corner and measure all Pants, and any that were short would go to Jail.

Out at the course some of the Boys who never forgot their Stroke Allowances often forgot some of their Strokes, but the other Members, wishing to be clubby, never called them anything worse than Liars.

Each Player wanted some Greens changed and Traps moved but no two could agree and the Members of the Greens Committee could not hold a Meeting as they were not speaking to one another.

The Chairman of the House Committee had been a Respected Citizen in Years ago, but now it was discovered that he had a one-track Mind and could think of nothing but Ham.

Were the entrants in the various tournaments satisfied with their Handicaps? No, ma'am, they were not. If they had been, then the Comaville Country Club would not have been a regular Golfing Institution.

Mr. Furbison started out to make it the Real Thing with Factions, Caddy Compliments, a Bonded Indebtedness and Everything. It is prolonging the Lives of many Old-Timers whose Heirs are beginning to doubt those Yarns about Elderly Gentlemen dropping dead on the Fairway.

Tuna Fish

The tuna fish is a noted game fish found in the Mediterranean waters and on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. It is known among sportsmen as the "leaping tuna," and is distinguished by its huge size, pearly black or dark blue above, with silvery sides. In California, tunas are hunted by anglers as one of the giants of the game fishes, but commercially they are usually caught by huge purse seines cast in a circle around the schools, and the catch is commonly the young fish, less than four feet in length and averaging 36 pounds in weight. Very little fresh tuna meat is sold in market, the canning industry absorbing nearly the entire stock.

Penguin Is Curious Bird

Slow on land, but swift in the water, on the bleak, storm-bound coast of the Antarctic the penguins live their lives. At times, singly and in pairs, they traverse the snow-covered wastes, walking like a man on snowshoes. Unable to fly, they are at the mercy of enemies when on land. Seemingly unafraid of man they crowd about him curiously peering into his face with wonderment and amazement written on their countenances. Interesting and harmless, the penguins live their lives in the lonely outposts of the earth.

Settling Crusoe's Island

When the German cruiser Dresden was sunk by a British warship off the Juan Fernandez islands in the World war, two of the sailors made their way to Robinson Crusoe's island, according to the Boston Herald. So impressed were they with its beauty and resources that they have returned to it and are establishing a Communist colony to which they are inviting recruits from all over the world. The island, now belonging to Chile, already has a population of 285.

Poultry

LAYING HENS NEED SHADE, GREEN FEED

Comfort of Flock Important in Summer Time.

The comfort of the poultry flock is a main consideration in getting good egg yields during warm weather, states G. W. Knox, extension poultryman, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Shade can be provided by the use of low-growing shrubs or fruit trees. Heavy leafed plants as the castor bean make good shade, or temporary shade can be constructed by making low frames covered with wire and then covered with straw.

The poultry house should be made as cool as possible. Opening up the front of the house, and windows on the back and ends will allow ventilation which will insure cool houses.

Green feed is important in stimulating egg production. Cowpeas and soy beans make good summer greens as they grow well in hot weather. They also stand dry weather fairly well. If a triple yarding system is used, by rotating the hens from one yard to the other each day tender greens can be kept growing.

Skim milk will stimulate egg production and may be given either sweet or sour, but should be fed the same way each day. Buttermilk may also be given. If as much as one gallon of milk is fed each day for each 25 hens, a simple mash mixture may be used. This mixture may be made of 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds corn meal, and 3 pounds salt. Oyster shell is kept before the hens, and a grain feed of 2 parts corn and 1 part wheat is fed late in the afternoon. If no milk is available, 75 pounds of meat scrap can be added to the mash mixture. Dry mash should be kept before the hens all the time during the entire year.

Poultrymen of Illinois

Find the Cost of Eggs
Eggs, of which Illinois farmers were producing almost 137,000,000 dozens annually in the last census year, were produced at an average cost of 13 1/2 cents a dozen in 1932 on a group of record-keeping poultry farms in this state, according to figures announced by R. M. Wilcox, of the department of agricultural economics, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. At this rate the farmers' bill on the annual production reported in the last census would have been more than $18,200,000.

While this was the average cost for a relatively large group of poultrymen in the state, some of the flock owners in the group kept their costs down as low as 6 or 7 cents a dozen. The low cost on all these farms was the result, mainly, of the very low prices of feeds during the past year. Higher feed prices will make costs much higher in 1933.

The average cost of rearing a pullet on these poultry farms was 46 cents, but here again individual poultrymen using better management kept their pullet-raising costs below 30 cents.

Another group of men not specializing in poultry production but using their flocks as a source of income along with other farm enterprises kept cost records on their poultry along with their Illinois farm account book records. The cost of producing eggs on these farms was 9.6 cents a dozen.

Iodine in Eggs

Goitre is a deficiency disease the cause of which is a lack of iodine. The best way of administering the iodine is in some organically combined form. Hence the present fad for eggs of high iodine content, especially in regions where goitre is prevalent. On the principle that if a little iodine is good, much must be better, poultry breeders have been adding iodine compounds to feeds and drinking water. The method is so simple that Dr. C. H. Almquist of the University of California finds it necessary to sound a warning against it. No one knows how much iodine or how little should be fed to a laying hen or a growing chick. Until the correct doses are fixed by experiment the eating of eggs rich in iodine may have its drawbacks.—New York Times.

Culling the Hens

The federal government issues the following instructions about culling hens: "Cull all hens that are sick, weak, inactive, lacking in vigor, poor eaters; those with shrunken, hard, dull or whitish colored comb; those with thick stiff pelvic bones that are close together, and those that have a small spread or distance between the rear end of the keel and pelvic bones. Those that have a full firm or hard abdomen are also less desirable, and those that have molted or begun to molt should be removed likewise. In breeds having yellow legs and skin, the discarded hens would also show yellow or medium yellow legs, and yellow beaks and vents."

Going After Some Long Lost Gold

This peculiar salvage apparatus constructed by the Dutch engineer, F. Beckers is placed over the spot where the English vessel Lutine went to the bottom in the North sea over 100 years ago with a gold cargo estimated at some $10,000,000 aboard her. The salvage operations have been started near the Isle of Terschelling. It is estimated that the vessel rests in 15 feet of water and is covered over with 40 feet of sand.

Western Alfalfa Weevil Spreading

Entomologist Says That All Districts Will Be Reached in Time.

By J. H. Newton, Deputy State Entomologist, Colorado College Experiment Station—WNU Service.

Occurrence of the alfalfa weevil in all the alfalfa-producing areas of the western states is only a matter of time. First discovered in American alfalfa fields near Salt Lake City in 1904 or 1905, this native insect of Europe has spread since then to portions of seven of the neighboring states.

It was in 1917 that the weevil was first discovered in Colorado near Paonia, in Delta county. Since then it has spread to parts of Gunnison, Montrose, Ouray, Moffat, Routt, Rio Blanco, Garfield and Mesa counties. There is also an isolated infestation at Glenwood Springs, Garfield county. The spread of this insect has been at an average rate of six miles per season.

Careful scouting work has failed to reveal the alfalfa weevil east of the continental divide in Colorado.

Quarantines were never expected to prevent the spread of the weevil that can be expected from flight and other natural means. They are intended to:

1. Prevent promiscuous hauling of hays and straws and thus cut off the most important avenue for carrying the insect into uninfested areas.
2. To meet the quarantines of 22 states, thus assuring them that we are reasonably careful to see that our agricultural products are not carriers of the weevil.
3. To keep outside markets open for all hay grown in uninfested territory.

Orchard Irrigation Is Used by Ohio Growers

Irrigation of orchards is the new thing in Ohio agriculture. Prompted by losses incurred in the drought of three years ago, Ohio fruit growers in increasing numbers resort to canvas hose and pipe line irrigation to bring their crops through dry periods.

C. E. Dutton, manager of the Ohio Orchard company at Milford Center, in keeping records of costs and profits of the irrigated sections and non-irrigated sections of his orchard in 1932, found the total cost of irrigating Rome Beauty trees amounted to $11.30 an acre. Yield of fruit was increased 25 per cent. Irrigated apples cost less to produce than the non-irrigated fruit, owing to the increased yields.

Increased value of the apples on the irrigated section, owing both to increased yields and improved quality, was $66.80 an acre.

Water is being distributed in the irrigated orchards through "ooze" type of canvas hose. The water oozes through the side walls of the hose lines distributed among the trees. No nozzle sprinklers are used.

In dry seasons irrigation is continued through until the fruit ripens. From two to three acre-inches of water are applied each time.

Fermenting Tomato Seed

Allowing tomato pulp to ferment in the process of saving seed helps control the spread of bacterial canker, a plant disease that is very destructive to tomatoes in many parts of the country. At one time all tomato seeds were obtained by allowing them to ferment in the pulp. Recently high-speed seed-extracting machines have come into common use for separating these seeds. Studies by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Utah agricultural experiment station have shown that seed fermentation largely kills the canker organism present on them, whereas seed extracted by the machines transmit the disease more generally.

Feeds Don't Change Milk

From a practical standpoint it is impossible to alter the composition of milk through heavy or light protein rations, experiments at Ohio State university show. Since the amount of protein in the ration is one of the big factors which is known to have considerable influence on the amount of production, it has been thought that it might also affect the composition of the milk. It was found that great difference in the amount of protein produced no consistent changes in the proportion of the four major chemical constituents of the milk (lactose, fat, protein and ash).

Bull Circles

One of the cheering factors in the year's dairy extension work in Texas is the first statewide report of heifers sired by bulls in co-operative bull circles established a number of years ago by county agents. There were 139 of these circles reported with 645 bulls which served 16,923 cows that raised 4,954 heifer calves. Incomplete records on production of the daughters indicate increased production over dams of about one-third.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Wheat: U. S. Exports to Europe and Production in Europe

WHEN Europe produces more wheat for herself she buys less from the United States. That is the feature of the world wheat problem that this chart shows. For instance, in 1921, when many wheat ships were busy carrying the bread grain to Europe, that continent produced only 1,200,000,000 bushels. Since 1927, European countries have been producing more and more of their own wheat and the wheat traffic across the Atlantic has slowed up. In fact, efforts of European countries to supply their needs, and their buying wheat from other countries has just about cut off our wheat exports, as the lone boat for 1933 represented in the chart indicates. The United States doesn't want to withdraw from the export trade, but rather than have grain pile up in the United States or be sold at less than cost, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has begun a wheat plan which will reduce acreage in the United States and bring production down to the point where it can all be marketed at a profit to the farmer.

DEATH OF DR. HOMER C. EDWARDS IN WEST

The following paragraphs regarding the death of Dr. Homer C. Edwards of San Francisco, California, a former physician of Cass City, on Sept. 1, is taken from a San Francisco paper:

"Dr. Homer C. Edwards, friend of Bohemia and intimate of the late George Sterling, Henry Mencken and Jim Tully, was dead today—victim of an automobile accident.

"He was crushed in the wreckage of his automobile last night on Fourteenth street, Oakland, in a collision with a truck while returning from his San Francisco of-

from Marlette north to 81, is just as important to Tuscola county shippers as it is to Sanilac county shippers.

To us, it seems unfair that Tuscola county should not contribute her share towards the rapid completion of this project.

al places where paving would be very acceptable, for instance, M-81 between Caro and Cass City, or M-85 south from Caro or north from the county line, or some of this money might be used to improve M-46 still further. There are plenty of places within this county where the money could be used advantageously—but no, the commissioner wishes to spend this money in Sanilac county.

A further silly proposal is the one whereby the commissioner says that Tuscola county men will be used to do this road work in Sanilac county. He would, apparently, have Tuscola county furnish several trucks to transport men from this county 20 or 30 miles daily in order to get from a half day to a full day of work two or three times a week. Or would he establish a camp where Tuscola county men might live while they were building a road in Sanilac county with money which should properly be spent in Tuscola county? Would either one of these proposals be called Democratic economy?

The commissioner is a comparatively young man in years, and he is even younger than that in his job. That is fortunate, because the young learn more easily than their elders. It is to be hoped that the commissioner will learn what a foolish proposal he has made, that he will no longer take the members of the Tuscola county road commission or the people of Tuscola for a flock of Santa Clauses, and that he will leave Tuscola county money to be spent where it is allocated.

leading west from Brown City, both to join up with M-53. In that case, the completion of M-53 from Marlette to Bad Axe would be delayed, and the objective of completion by 1935 of this important trunk line that means much to all Thumb counties, would be deferred.

Back fifteen years ago, when the Earle Memorial Highway Association was organized, enthusiastic township organizations were formed in all the townships bordering the proposed route from Wayne county to Marlette in Sanilac county. Largely through their efforts and their contributions, the right-of-way and the other preliminaries necessary for the completion of the pavement to Marlette was consummated.

At no time during that period has there been any perceptible action on the part of towns and villages of Tuscola county, with the exception of Cass City, to cooperate. Road boosters of Huron county have been alert, and have always been well represented at the annual meetings of the association.

Nor as far as we can learn, Tuscola county was not called upon to pay any of the costs of the survey and other expenses incurred.

It is quite well known to most every interested citizen that the state highway fund for the building of concrete roads or any other kind of roads, is but a small amount in comparison with former years, and that the Federal allotment of thirteen millions for Federal highways in Michigan, will be the major portion of the moneys spent for highway construction.

It is obvious to any person familiar with the location of the road, that the proposed stretch

al places where paving would be very acceptable, for instance, M-81 between Caro and Cass City, or M-85 south from Caro or north from the county line, or some of this money might be used to improve M-46 still further. There are plenty of places within this county where the money could be used advantageously—but no, the commissioner wishes to spend this money in Sanilac county.

A further silly proposal is the one whereby the commissioner says that Tuscola county men will be used to do this road work in Sanilac county. He would, apparently, have Tuscola county furnish several trucks to transport men from this county 20 or 30 miles daily in order to get from a half day to a full day of work two or three times a week. Or would he establish a camp where Tuscola county men might live while they were building a road in Sanilac county with money which should properly be spent in Tuscola county? Would either one of these proposals be called Democratic economy?

The commissioner is a comparatively young man in years, and he is even younger than that in his job. That is fortunate, because the young learn more easily than their elders. It is to be hoped that the commissioner will learn what a foolish proposal he has made, that he will no longer take the members of the Tuscola county road commission or the people of Tuscola for a flock of Santa Clauses, and that he will leave Tuscola county money to be spent where it is allocated.

leading west from Brown City, both to join up with M-53. In that case, the completion of M-53 from Marlette to Bad Axe would be delayed, and the objective of completion by 1935 of this important trunk line that means much to all Thumb counties, would be deferred.

Back fifteen years ago, when the Earle Memorial Highway Association was organized, enthusiastic township organizations were formed in all the townships bordering the proposed route from Wayne county to Marlette in Sanilac county. Largely through their efforts and their contributions, the right-of-way and the other preliminaries necessary for the completion of the pavement to Marlette was consummated.

At no time during that period has there been any perceptible action on the part of towns and villages of Tuscola county, with the exception of Cass City, to cooperate. Road boosters of Huron county have been alert, and have always been well represented at the annual meetings of the association.

Nor as far as we can learn, Tuscola county was not called upon to pay any of the costs of the survey and other expenses incurred.

It is quite well known to most every interested citizen that the state highway fund for the building of concrete roads or any other kind of roads, is but a small amount in comparison with former years, and that the Federal allotment of thirteen millions for Federal highways in Michigan, will be the major portion of the moneys spent for highway construction.

It is obvious to any person familiar with the location of the road, that the proposed stretch from Marlette north to 81, is just as important to Tuscola county shippers as it is to Sanilac county shippers.

To us, it seems unfair that Tuscola county should not contribute her share towards the rapid completion of this project.

"Quite a number in each township in Tuscola county have signed," says County Agricultural Agent Hammond, "and they will help their neighbors in making out their applications if requested to do so."

The doctor's automobile struck the rear of a truck driven by Jack Enos and he was pronounced dead on arrival at Highland hospital. His wife, Mrs. Elsie Edwards, a musician, witnessed the accident. She was following in another machine.

"Dr. Edwards earned the respect and admiration of Bohemia for his aid to struggling writers and artists and he was renowned for his humane personality.

"Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Oakland. In addition to his widow, he leaves a brother, John H. Edwards, of Michigan.

"He maintained offices at 942 Market street."

County officials and their "better halves" will make merry at an informal potluck luncheon in the "dugout" under the Tuscola county court house this (Friday) noon, according to invitations "done in pink" which officials received early in the week.

Tables will be decorated with sunflowers, daisies, wild carrot and artificial flowers furnished by Mr. Ogden, the janitor. The Misses Oreno Osburn and Lucile Craig will serve as head waitresses with Mrs. Rhoda Daugherty and Miss Myrtle Burse assisting.

The fish course will be furnished, the invitations say, by Roscoe J. Black, drain commissioner, and S. W. Morrison, county clerk. Mr. Morrison, B. H. McComb, school commissioner, and Arthur Whittenburg, county treasurer, have been named as entertainment committee.
