

ONLY 3 DIVORCE CASES ON CALENDAR

Smallest Number Seeking Dissolution of Marriage Contract in Several Years.

The December term of circuit court in Tuscola county opens Monday, Dec. 4, with 56 cases listed on the calendar. Twenty-five of these are civil cases, 22 chancery and six criminal. Divorce cases are limited to three in number, the smallest in several years. One of the first three days of the December term, according to the court rules, will be set aside for hearing petitions for naturalization.

The following cases are listed on the calendar:

BROTHER HUNTERS DIVIDE TROPHY HONORS

Stacy Vatters and Ed. Schwieger returned Wednesday from a deer hunt at Hillman. Edward's smile is broader than usual which is evidence that his aim was true. Milford Robinson, Eber Harrison, Harry Clark and Donald Lottrup came home Thursday from Ontonagon, each bringing a deer with him. Maynard and Robert McConkey, Jr., brothers, fired at the same deer. Result—two shots in exchange for one-half deer apiece.

W. M. S. HAVE INTERESTING MEETING

Mrs. Frederick Klump of Saginaw was welcomed as a guest at the annual thank-offering meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Evangelical church at the home of their president, Mrs. Wm. Schwieger, Friday afternoon. Mrs. Klump was the organizer of the local society and she gave an excellent talk at Friday's gathering. In spite of the unpleasant weather and bad roads, the session was well attended. Other numbers on the program, which had been prepared by Mrs. E. W. Kercher and Mrs. A. A. Ricker, were readings by Mrs. Ben Schwieger and Mrs. G. A. Spittler and two piano solos by Mrs. Raymond McCullough. A short memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Kercher as a tribute to Mrs. Fred Jaus, one of the faithful members of the society, who had recently been called to the Beyond.

After the business meeting which was conducted by the vice president, Mrs. Kercher, the hostess served refreshments. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Benkelman.

RECORDS SHOW DROP IN FARM RECEIPTS

Accounts on 65 Michigan Farms Prove No Upturn Occurred Previous to 1933.

Any upturn in farm incomes that may have occurred in Michigan has happened since the close of 1932, if at all, according to the farm management department at Michigan State College.

Continuous records on the same 65 farms, from 1929 through 1932, show that the average loss of income on each farm during that period was $2,388, 55 percent of the total income of 1929. There were general farms deriving about two-thirds of their income from the sale of livestock or livestock products.

Attempts by the owners of these farms to meet conditions also show in the record. Two methods of improving the situation were tried; first, larger units, and second, more efficiency from each unit.

More acres of crops were planted and the livestock was shifted somewhat to permit the keeping of the more highly productive types. The number of ewes, cows, and hens increased during the period but the number of sows decreased.

More men were employed per farm, each man worked more, and more assistance was received from members of the farmer's family in 1932 than in 1929. All this labor was thrown into the balance in an unsuccessful attempt to shift the pointer to the profit side.

Records of the actual cash spent on each acre tilled throw a powerful light on what has happened to the purchasing power of the farmer. Cash paid out for each acre of crops in 1929 was $25.64. The expenses per acre in 1932 were $7.93, a decrease of 69.1 percent.

Union Thanksgiving Service on Sunday

Baptist Church—Union Thanksgiving service at 7:30 p. m. in this church on Sunday. Sermon by Rev. G. A. Spittler, pastor of the Evangelical church.

Presbyterian Church—Union Thanksgiving service at 10:30 a. m. Theme, "The Fruit of the Spirit." This is another sermon of the chain on "His Indwelling."

Sunday School at 11:45. Cecil Brown and Mrs. Judson Bigelow, superintendents.

Junior B. Y. P. U. at 3:00. Ella Mae Glaspie, president. Senior B. Y. P. U. at 6:30. Stanley McArthur, president.

Owing to Thanksgiving gatherings, the prayer meeting will be taken up next week.

The improvements in the basement are being carried on by volunteer labor; so also is our ecclesiastical buzz pile of wood. Fifty Juniors were at the party Tuesday evening and enjoyed a wonderful time. These parties will be held each month. The girls beat the boys just a little bit in fixing their tables. They can't do it again.

W. R. Curtis, Pastor.

Presbyterian Church—Paul J. Alured, Minister. Sunday, Nov. 26: Morning worship and church school, 10:30 to 12:30. Sermon: "God's Increasing Dependence Upon Us." Adult lesson: "Paul in Corinth"—an appeal for church unity (Cor. 1:2 to 2:8). Christian Endeavor, 6:15. Leader, Rita Helmer. Union Thanksgiving service, 7:30 at the Baptist church. Sermon by Rev. G. A. Spittler.

The Chain of Recovery

Thursday, Nov. 30—Thanksgiving Day. No church services. May there be in every home gathering a consciousness of God's presence and a genuinely-felt gratitude to Him for all His Gifts.

Annual Thanksgiving service, auspices of Woman's Home Missionary Society. Anthem "God Be Merciful" (Danks). Sermon: "Christ-like Gratitude." A free-will offering Turn to page 8, please.

Crandell Showed 4-H Champ Lamb

Harry Crandell, Jr., a charter member of the Cass City Live Stock Club, exhibited the champion lamb in the 4-H division at the American Royal Live Stock Show at Kansas City last week. Young Crandell, 19 years of age, was not surprised that the blue ribbon was his, for in 1931 he won a similar award and in 1932 he showed the grand champion at the same show, but of course with different lambs.

Tom Ed Doak's lamb from Galatin, Mo., won the vocational agriculture contest.

Last year the two blue ribbon fat lambs were matched for the junior championship. This year there was no prize offered for a junior champion and although the rivalry between the 4-H boys and the vocational students was keen, the fat lamb from Missouri and the one from Michigan were not matched.

24 Jurors for December Term

Only 24 names were drawn from the jury box to secure jurors for the December term of circuit court in Tuscola county. Judge H. H. Smith requested County Clerk Morrison to limit the December jurors to that number. For several years, 30 jurors have been chosen at each term of court.

The following is the list of jurors for the December term which opens on Monday, Dec. 4.

Arbela—George Roth.
Akron—John Ruppel.
Almer—Ed. Cutler.
Columbia—Geo. Irion.
Dayton—George Traubenkraut.
Denmark—Carl Auernhammer.

EARLY COPY DESIRED FOR NEXT WEEK'S PAPER

Correspondents, advertisers and other contributors of newspaper copy are requested to send in their copy to the Chronicle early next week on account of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Chronicle printers will appreciate receiving as much of this copy as possible on Saturday of this week and the Monday following as the paper will be printed earlier than usual.

COMPETITION KEEN AS SEASON OPENS

Interest Runs High as Volleyball's First Blood Is Spilled.

The eight volleyball teams chosen last week swung into action Tuesday night. The veterans of the league demonstrated surprising form and unusual polish for the start of the season. The many rookies proved themselves so apt at learning the game that this first series of the winter should uncover many well-balanced teams.

Auten's team, while short handed, came through to win two out of three games from James Milligan and his boys, but Milligan out-pointed the Auten group 39-34. While this battle was going on, Frank Reid led his boys to an easy victory at the expense of the Kellys. The score was 43-31. "Ken" Kelly says that if he can get his own team into action instead of a group of substitutes, the league will hear much of them.

In the other games, C. M. Wallace, playing inspiring volleyball, led his boys to the front 45-24, while Fred Pinney held his boys together and pulled them through to victory against the vocal opposition of the other seven teams and the stubborn resistance of E. B. Schwaderer's men 45-35. The big guns of the McConkey group were helpless before the teamwork of team six. Team two felt the absence of their captain, Mr. Schwaderer.

Next Tuesday, Nov. 28, at 7:30, Fred Pinney meets Robt. McConkey's team, while Wallace meets Reid. At 8:30, E. B. Schwaderer battles M. B. Auten and James Milligan goes against the Kelly team. If you have not been assigned to a team, come up next Tuesday and get into the fun.

The standings:
Team 6—Wallace, capt. 45
Team 1—Pinney, capt. 45
Team 8—Reid, capt. 43
Team 4—Milligan, capt. 39
Team 2—Schwaderer, capt. 35
Team 3—Auten, capt. 35
Team 7—Kelly, capt. 31
Team 5—McConkey, capt. 24

Clifton Heller in Fine Position

Clifton Heller, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Heller of Cass City, has accepted a position as superintendent of the Greenville Nursery. This large nursery is owned by the proprietors of the Gibson Refrigerator Co. of Greenville and the nursery plant which has 70,000 square feet under glass is heated by the exhaust steam from the refrigerator factory. Mr. Heller has been foreman of the Greenville Nursery since graduating from the Horticulture Department of Michigan State College last June.

Mr. Heller was recently offered the position of superintendent of the greenhouse at the Washington State College, but decided to stay in "good old Michigan."

Associated Charities Elected Officers

At a recent meeting of the Associated Charities held at the home of Mrs. Roy Stafford, on Garfield Avenue, the following officers were elected: President, J. A. Sandham; secretary, Mrs. Mary Gekeler; treasurer, Mrs. Edward Pinney. The committee appointed to plan the Christmas baskets are Mrs. Stafford, Mrs. E. W. Kercher and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson.

DEDICATE MAYVILLE HIGH SCHOOL TODAY

Would Cost $22,000 More to Duplicate Building Today.

The Mayville high school will be dedicated on Friday, November 24, in connection with the Michigan Thumb Potato Show, which will be held in the School Auditorium, November 22, 23 and 24.

A special program is being arranged for the evening, at which Supt. of Public Instruction, Dr. Paul F. Voelker; H. Z. Wilbur, Professor at Ypsilanti College, County School Commissioner B. H. McComb, and others will speak.

After the program, the building will be open for inspection and teachers and high school pupils will act as guides.

The school was completed last spring and was used for the graduating exercises last June. It contains twelve rooms with a student capacity of 460 pupils. An auditorium seating 700 is attached.

An estimate of duplicating the building at today's prices has been made by William H. Kunt, of Detroit, the architect for the school, and his figures show an increase in the cost of almost every item of labor and material entering into the construction of the building, with a total of $22,000 additional cost to duplicate. It is believed that this is only a part of the advance in building prices which will soon take place, as for the past two years materials were being sold at less than the cost of producing them. For example, the face brick used in the school were purchased at $18.00 per 1,000, while today they are $28.00. Four carloads of cement were used at a cost of $1.40 per barrel, while today's price is $2.19.

A. D. McIntyre Has Fractured Skull

A. D. McIntyre, secretary of the Frutchey Bean Co., with headquarters in Saginaw, is suffering with a fractured skull and a broken arm. Relatives were alarmed over his condition Wednesday, but he was reported somewhat improved Thursday noon.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre were the guests of friends at dinner Wednesday and Mr. McIntyre returned home alone. Mrs. McIntyre came later with her father, Joseph Frutchey, and they found Mr. McIntyre lying on the basement floor with the injuries noted above. Mr. McIntyre recovered consciousness long enough to tell that he had been hit over the head and pushed down the basement stairs when he reached his home in Saginaw on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

CLARA SCHIELE MARRIED TO ELTON RICHARDSON

Miss Clara M. Schiele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Schiele, of Ellington township and Mr. Elton A. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Richardson, were united in marriage at the home of Rev. E. R. Wilson on Saturday, Nov. 18, at 4:00 p. m. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Schiele, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride was very pretty in a gown of black velvet chiffon with white trimmings and hat and slippers to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of yellow roses and pink sweet peas and the groom a boutonniere of the same flowers. The bridesmaid wore navy Fylenese crepe with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Schiele wore yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Immediately following the ceremony, a bountiful wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. The tables were beautifully decorated in bouquets of white chrysanthemums, pink and yellow snapdragons and sweet peas. The bridal table contained a large three-story wedding cake and lighted tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will leave at once for California where they will make their home. Mr. Richardson is employed in the oil fields in that state.

DENTAL WORK EXCHANGED FOR BEANS AT $3.00 CWT.

Dr. P. A. Schenck of Cass City offers $3.00 a hundred for Michigan pea beans in exchange for all classes of dental work or old accounts. Beans may be delivered at either elevator at Cass City. Advertisement.

Advertise it in the Chronicle.

PAY OF OLD AGE PENSION ENUMERATORS IS RAISED

County Clerk Morrison has received word from state authorities that the compensation of enumerators securing information for the old age pension plan has been increased from 3 to 4 cents a head. The village rate remains at the original rate of 2 cents. Any village of 200 or less is counted as rural.

Less information is required for the enumerators to secure, making their work somewhat easier than at first outlined.

Mrs. Simeon Moore has been appointed enumerator for Nevesta township.

CO. LEGION IS CONDUCTING MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The Atwood Post Drum and Bugle Corps visited Cass City Wednesday night and gave a parade on Main street preceding a supper at the Classic Cafe. The Atwood Post of the American Legion is conducting a membership drive and desires to add new members from this and other parts of Tuscola county.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Thomas and William Bottrell of Davison were week-end guests of Cass City friends and relatives.

The W. C. T. U. will meet today (Friday) at 2:30, at the home of Mrs. A. J. Knapp, when C. W. Price, superintendent of schools, will address the society. The pastors of churches in this community are invited to attend.

Mrs. P. J. Allured, Mrs. Charles Wilsey, Mrs. Henrietta Rowley and Mrs. Martin McKenzie of Cass City attended a District Presbyterial meeting in Bad Axe Tuesday. This was a gathering of the missionary societies of the churches in the northern part of the Flint Presbytery. Mrs. Allured had charge of the devotionals. Mrs. Seeley of Caro, who accompanied the Cass City ladies to Bad Axe, was also on the program.

Mrs. G. A. Spittler delightfully entertained a number of ladies on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her mother, Mrs. F. Klump, of Saginaw. Each guest named her favorite song and all joined in the singing of them. Various poems were read and a spell-down was held. Mrs. Solomon Striffler and Mrs. S. Benkelman being captains. A delicious luncheon was served at tables very pretty with lighted tapers. Mrs. Spittler was assisted by the Misses Ruth Schenck and Shirley Lenzner.

Century of Progress Day was observed by the Woman's Study Club at the home of Mrs. Edward Baker Tuesday afternoon. The following club ladies, who visited the big exposition, gave their impressions in short talks: Mrs. Raymond McCullough, Mrs. R. A. McNamee, Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. E. N. Hart, Mrs. H. F. Lenzner and Mrs. A. A. Ricker. Mrs. A. J. Knapp conducted an instructive parliamentary drill and Mrs. Lewis Law presented an excellent review of "Miss Bishop" by Bess Streeter Aldrich. The response to roll call was, "Why are we thankful?" The next meeting will be held Dec. 5 with Mrs. H. F. Lenzner, hostess.

Comparing conditions during the Napoleonic wars and those of today, Supt. Alex. Duncanson of the Sandusky schools, told Cass City Rotarians Tuesday that they were better now than in days of old. The present-day trend in education is not so much to prepare students for college careers, but to equip them to live their best in their own communities. If one meal can be prepared better than another at the Gordon Hotel, Tuesday's luncheon was one of them. The meat course was a Swiss steak from an animal raised by a member of the Cass City Live Stock Club. It was an excellent cut much enjoyed by Rotary members.

Willis McCulloch of Beaverton, a brother of Mrs. Wm. Parrott of Cass City, has been selected as one of two boys who have been chosen by vocational educational authorities at Washington to represent Michigan as an American Farmer at the national convention in Kansas City this week. Michigan is allowed two American Farmers each year, according to the present Future Farmer enrollment. E. E. Gallup, state agricultural vocational leader, has written McCulloch and commended him highly on his past four years' accomplishments. While at Kansas City, McCulloch, with other "American Farmers," will attend the sixth annual national convention of the Future Farmers of America which will be held in conjunction with the American Royal Livestock show.

THUMB CHAMPS WIN FINAL CONTEST

Severance and Quick Score as Bad Axe Is Defeated 19-0 in Final.

By Lewis Pinney.

In the final game of the season for the Maroon and Grey eleven, Coaches Bill Kelly and Bob Kepen started a team composed almost entirely of seniors. Ed. Graham was the only man to start who was not graduating, and he would not have started if Keith Karr had not been sick in bed at home.

Bad Axe kicked off to the Hilltoppers and held. Graham punted to midfield and Bad Axe followed with two fast first downs. The Cass City regulars were then sent in and Donnelly intercepted a Huron pass on the first play and ran 10 yards. Numerous punts followed, neither team gaining. Quick hit center for 20 yards and on the next play Ballaugh added 15 yards through the same spot. Quick then circled right end for five yards and a touchdown. Cass City kicked off to Bad Axe and the quarter ended before another play could be attempted. The Hilltoppers were leading 6-0.

The second period found the ball in Bad Axe territory all of the time, but the locals were not able to get beyond the 20 yard line. They were at this point late in the period when Chick Severance went into the game. He took the ball through left tackle and was not touched on his 30 yard romp for a score. Rus Quick plunged for the extra point. The half ended with Cass City leading 13 to 0.

Cass City kicked short in opening the third period, but held. It took only three plays for the locals to score, however. Ballaugh hit left tackle for 20 yards, and Ward hit the same spot for 10 more. On a reverse play, Rus Quick circled right end for 30 yards and scored only after he had outrun four Huron tacklers. The plunge failed to produce the extra point. Cass City boys were sent in at this point. The play was then entirely in Cass City's territory. Failing to get yardage by plunges, Bad Axe resorted to passing. A 30 yard heave, Reese to Glass, was good and Glass ran six more to the Cass City 8 yard line as the period ended with the locals leading 19-0.

The first team was rushed in to stop Bad Axe scoring. McCallum broke through and smeared Buchanan for an 8 yard loss. A pass over the goal line ended the only real Bad Axe threat. Graham then let go with a beautiful 45 yard kick from the line of scrimmage. Bad Axe fumbled and the Maroon and Grey recovered on the Huron 33 yard line. Quick circled his right Turn to page 8, please.

SIX BOYS COOK MEAL, HOPE TO BE CHEFS

"Six high school boys who were willing to learn got the opportunity last night," say the New York Times of Nov. 16. "In a two-by-four kitchen in the basement of the Labor Temple, Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue, they cooked a meal and ate it."

"The chefs-in-the-making, whose reasons for taking up cooking varied widely, all held scholarships given by Vocational Service for Juniors, 122 East Twenty-fifth Street. The scholarships indicate that they are doing good work at a city high school and Miss Florence F. Bigelow of the Labor Temple staff, in charge of the new class, agree that they might soon qualify for awards in the culinary art."

"The menu comprised meat-loaf, baked potatoes and chocolate pudding. Spinach managed to get in, too, although no one knew just how. The boys arranged the materials, gossiped cheerily, wiped their hands on their aprons—and after an interlude of posing for photographers—sat down to eat their meal."

BOY SCOUT NOTES.

Monday evening's meeting was a surprise as twenty-five boys appeared on the program. After a fine game of basketball, all retired to the manual training room for a more perfect organization. The following boys were elected as patrol leaders: Arnold Reagh, Grant Reagh and Bernard Kelly. Seven new boys appeared for the Tenderfoot application. A special meeting was planned at the home of the Scoutmaster for the next evening, at which time each passed his test. A race for advancement is launched between the patrols. Just watch what happens.

Oh Cynthia!

NORMA KNIGHT

CHAPTER II

A Brute of a Girl.

DINNER was a surprisingly elaborate meal. Knowing nothing of the benign services of caterers, Geoff found himself believing that the family usually dined on such dishes as squabs cooked with cream and mushrooms, white cherries in aspic, ice cream frozen in the form of rosebuds.

He thought it one of the pleasantest meals he had ever eaten. The gentle courtesy which prevailed in this charming family, Cary's blithe nonsense, Miss Nona's motherly solicitude, Captain Cary's interesting reminiscences, even Tenny's occasional childish pipe were a revelation to a young man who had known no family life whatever. He thanked his lucky stars that his year in Denver would be spent beneath this hospitable roof.

Just as the last bit of the ice cream was disappearing and Cary was holding a match to Geoff's cigarette, Tenny sprang up with a joyous cry.

"There's Cynthia! Oh, Cynthia, you did get home for dinner, didn't you?"

At once there was a soft bustle about the table. Miss Nona held out welcoming hands to her daughter. The men rose, Geoff looking approvingly at the newcomer.

The girl was small. She had the bluest eyes Geoff had ever seen. Gentian blue, sapphire blue, a blue that had light and sparkle in it and was made bluer by the long dusky lashes in which it was set. Her hair was brushed severely off her forehead and caught in a knot at the back of her neck. Her mouth was too wide, and far, far too firm, Geoff told himself. She was tanned almost as deeply as Cary. No hint of her mother's charm softened her severe young mien. Geoff felt a rising antagonism at the sight of her.

"Hello!" She put an arm about Tenny but addressed the room at large.

"Darling, if we'd known you could come early of course we should have waited!"

"I didn't know it myself until the last minute." The blue eyes swept the table where the last of the rosebuds lay melting on the green glass plates. "What a dressy meal you appear to have had!" The blue gaze traveled to Geoff and something in its direct inquiry made him uncomfortable.

"We've been celebrating!" Mrs. Aylesbury said gaily. "Do you know who this is, darling? Geoff Ensloe—your godmother's son!"

Cynthia nodded curtly, kept her arm about the child so that there was no question of shaking hands. "How do you do? Are you staying in Denver long?"

He detected distinct unfriendliness in the question. Deuce take the girl! What had he done that she should look upon him with such open hostility? "A year," he replied briefly.

"He's going to stay with us. Isn't that keen?" Cary asked eagerly.

Geoff glanced at Miss Nona a little curiously. The happiness had all gone from her face, the warmth from her voice. Something like fear looked out of her soft brown eyes. What a brute of a girl this was, Geoff told himself, whose mere arrival so changed the atmosphere of her home. The Captain had extinguished the fat cigar he had lighted and tossed a napkin over it. The maid, summoned by Miss Nona, murmured something in a low tone to her mistress who in turn murmured back, glancing apprehensively toward her daughter. Cary puffed nervously at his cigarette. Only Tenny seemed happy in Cynthia's arrival. She kept her thin little arms about the other girl's waist and when Cynthia said something about running upstairs to wash her hands, Tenny went with her.

Geoff tried doggedly but in vain to restore the former gaiety to the party. A blight had fallen, Cary could only smile in sickly fashion, Miss Nona looked from the table to the door and back again.

Presently Cynthia returned, still wearing the dark swiss frock which was her office dress but with little curls and ripples testifying to the wet comb she had run through her hair.

"I'm starved," she began as she took her seat. "No lunch at all today and—"

"No lunch? Oh, Cynthia!"

"Absolutely no time for lunch—and I didn't quarrel with that fact, you may be sure!" She stopped as the maid set a plate before her; raised her eyebrows questioningly.

Miss Nona hurried into speech. "I'm so glad you could come home for a good hot meal, dear. Was it terrible down-town today?"

"Pretty hot. Even the tourists felt the heat, and you know they're usually indefatigable. However, we sold about a peck of abalone rings, and silver bracelets with turquoises in 'em, and shell chains."

"Did you sell any more rings like your jade one?" Tenny's voice asked interestedly. "Wasn't it lucky your godmother sent you that just when the lady from Detroit wanted one?"

There was an appalled silence. Geoff was maliciously pleased to see the color rise in the girl's face until it flooded her temples and was lost in the waves of her hair. He asked blandly:

"The jade dinner ring? Too bad you didn't like it. I rather flattered myself it was a bit unusual. I helped my mother select it, you know."

"It was a mistake—Tenny, you shouldn't—" Miss Nona began agitatedly.

Cynthia bit viciously into the roll she had buttered.

"It wasn't a mistake at all! It happened that I needed other things more than I did a ring, and as I had a special customer who wanted it, I sold it. Sorry if your mother will be hurt!"

The implication stung the young man. "I hope you don't think I mean to tell her!"

She lifted her shoulders in a little shrug. "I didn't know. You might feel it your duty to write her about it." She pushed her plate away. "I don't seem to be so very hungry, after all. The heat, I guess. Tenny, where's Hadji? Tell the rascal he's lying down on the job. He didn't meet me at the front door tonight."

This time Geoff partook of the feeling which kept them all silent. He glanced across the table and saw that Miss Nona's eyes were brimming with tears and that her chin was quivering like that of a terrified child. The sight gave him back his own composure. A girl who could frighten her mother like that deserved anything. Quickly, before Miss Nona could falter out the news or Tenny blunder into it, Geoff spoke.

"I'm afraid I've got bad news of your dog," he said, real sympathy in his voice. "You see—he got out somehow this afternoon and the dog next door—"

Cynthia sprang to her feet. "Miss Nona! You didn't... after all I said... after I'd warned you—"

She stopped, visibly fighting down the emotion that shook her. "I beg your pardon, dear! I'm sorry!" She turned to Geoff. "How badly is he hurt? Where is he? Oh, why didn't you tell me when I first came home instead of letting me—"

Tenny's arms were around her neck. Tenny's cheek was laid lovingly against hers.

"Hadji's dead, Cynthia," she said with a child's wise directness of speech. "He was hurt so bad Geoff had to shoot him to stop his suffering. Don't cry, Cynthia. Geoff didn't let him hurt long!"

"Dead?" She gently loosened Tenny's arms, took a step toward Geoff. "You shot Hadji?"

"I had to."

Something in the conviction of his voice reached her and she held out her hand.

"I understand. Thank you."

With Tenny tagging forlornly in her wake, Cynthia left the dining room and ran up the stairs. Geoff had an uncomfortable conviction that she had gone to her room to cry.

Cynthia was driving Geoff down town. Why she had proposed herself as his chauffeur Geoff did not know. She had come into the old parlor, entirely calm and composed, no traces whatever of tears in her face and asked quietly if she might take the guest down for his luggage. Geoff had been a little astonished at the effect this simple request had upon her family. Miss Nona looked distressed, the Captain cleared his throat, Cary shifted his feet uneasily. What, Geoff, demanded of himself, was the matter with this girl that everything she said or did appeared to paralyze her relatives? Was she a lady bully, a girlish tyrant who traded on their love to keep them in a state of subjection to her whims? He set his jaw—Geoff had a nice firm jaw of his own—and rather looked forward to a brush between this Cynthia person and himself.

"Pretty sight," he commented as the car made its swift if unimpressive way down the broad streets. The city was asparkle with lights, blazing against the soft darkness of the summer sky.

"Yes, Denver's pretty," Cynthia assented absently. They drove for a block or two more in silence which she broke abruptly. "You say you're going to stay with us for a year?"

"Your mother has asked me to," he replied with cool defensiveness. "That's all right—I can see Miss Nona will love having you. The only thing—you'll want to pay board?"

The shock of it took his breath away. He felt himself turning scarlet in the darkness.

"Naturally," he began stiffly. "A fellow's self-respect requires it. I offered to—I insisted, but Mrs. Aylesbury—"

"I know," she answered. "You can pay it to me and not mention it to her."

"To you?"

"Yes."

He remembered the Captain's comment on her gift shop. "An expensive toy!" So that was it! The greedy young grabber needed more money and saw a way to get it without asking her family.

"I think I'd rather—I think it would be better for me to pay it to your mother."

"She wouldn't take it."

"But if I paid it to you and she didn't know—"

She smiled, a faint, rather weary smile that held something of scorn and something of tolerance. "So it's the effect on Miss Nona you have an eye to, not the preservation of a fellow's self-respect?"

He was silent through sheer annoyance. This was the most unpleasant girl he had ever met.

"No use getting angry," she admonished him. "I'm just trying to make it easy for you, that's all. I realize that you've been put in a difficult position; that you really would hate it, staying with us for a year as a nonpaying guest. So I'm suggesting that you pay your board to me—"

"So you can put it into your gift shop?"

She slewed around in her seat to give him a cryptic glance.

"What do you know about my gift shop?"

"Nothing," he said curtly. "Only that you have one."

She nodded. "Oh, yes, I have one, all right. And I can use whatever sum you decide on as a financial recompense for the home life we offer you—don't I put it nicely—I can use it in my shop." She laughed, a mysterious, mirthful little laugh which increased Geoff's irritation. She was finding him funny, was she? "It's the Odds and Ends, you know."

"I beg your pardon?"

"The name of my shop—Odds and Ends."

"I can imagine that describes it very aptly."

To his amazement she pulled the car to the curb, stopped it and offered him her hand.

"But why?" asked the dazed young man.

"I'm saluting you as a foe man worthy of my steel. I was so afraid you were going to be a polite supine sort of chap, horrified to death of me but covering your consternation with courteous murmurs."

The description amused him. "Taken from life?"

"Yes. We've had three of that kind in the last year."

"Had 'em? Had 'em where?"

"In the house: guests of Miss Nona. It was necessary to get rid of them—since they didn't pay board!—so I mocked 'em and I shocked 'em—and finally they left."

He digested the inference of this in silence.

She started the car again. "I'm in dead earnest about the board money. Sixty dollars a month—d'you think that's too much, considering all the petting and the mothering you'll get from Miss Nona?"

"I hate to hear you speak of your mother like that," he told her severely.

"Of course you do," she soothed him. "You've got a mother complex. Comes from having your own mother away so much. I expect. All right—go as far as you like with it. Miss Nona's a darling. And how about the sixty dollars? Tenny's father pays seventy-five, but then I buy her clothes out of it, too."

"You buy them? Do you receive Tenny's board secretly, too?"

"Not now," she sighed. "Mr. Montague—perfect fool that he is!—forgot and sent the check to the house one month instead of to the shop."

He asked an anxious question. "D'you spell it with two p's and an e?"

"No."

"Thank heaven for that!"

"Oh, I'd spell it with three x's and a row of w's, if that was what the public wanted. Give 'em anything they ask for—that's my motto. But quaintness is out and straightforward business is in."

"Well, go on about the check. What did your mother do when she discovered you were perpetrating a fraud like that?"

"She was shocked, of course."

"And returned the check?"

The slender shoulders beside him squared themselves. "No, I wouldn't let her. I needed it, you see."

Suddenly Geoff began to laugh. It started with a low rumble in his throat, grew to a deep roar and finally assumed such proportions of sound that passers-by stared curiously.

"Why?" Cynthia demanded.

"Thinking what a jolt my mother would get if she knew you, especially if she knew what you did with the jade dinner ring."

The car swerved a little. "I said I was sorry about that!"

"No need to be—and that wasn't what I meant. You see, Mother has pictured you all these years as a pretty, fluffy little thing. She even—uh—warned me against your flirting with me—"

"Of course. She remembered Miss Nona. But you see I was born in Colorado where clinging vines and pretty coquettes and sweet sentimentality don't flourish. Altitude's too high for 'em, I guess. Now about that sixty dollars—"

"My dear Miss Shylock, I would gladly write you a check here and now but I don't believe the traffic cops would approve of your stopping the car just here. Is my credit good until we reach the hotel?"

"You'll promise not to say a word about it to Miss Nona?"

"Why should I? They get no benefit of the money. As it is I gather that they're called on pretty frequently to help you out with the shop."

"Well—put it on that basis then. It'll be just sixty dollars less I'll mulct from them every month."

"But listen!" he said in distress.

"Do you think I want them to think I'm the kind of guy who'll sponge on them for a whole year?"

"Don't worry," she told him. "They'll think a lot more of you than if you'd reduced friendship to a sordid commercial basis."

"What a queer girl you are."

"Do you think you're going to like me?"

"I'm quite sure I am not," he answered her.

She nodded dispassionately. "Some do—some don't. Here's your hotel."

She was still frowning slightly when he returned, holding between his thumb and finger a slip of paper which he handed her.

"My first month's board money."

My First Month's Board Money—I'm Sure You Won't Try to Collect It Twice.

I'm sure you won't try to collect it twice—and the canceled check will serve as a receipt!

To be continued.

Liverpool a Great Port

Liverpool is a great port because it possesses the only deep water haven on the west coast of England. There are six and one-half miles of docks on the city's side of the Mersey and nine and one-half miles on the Birkenhead side.

Early Sundials

The early English sundials were made of stone, and often with elaborate carving on them. They adorned not only the walls of churches where they had survived from earlier periods, but also the gateways of monasteries and cathedrals, castles and public buildings.

What's Doing in the Fabric Realm

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN EVOLVING wardrobes which must prove 100 per cent efficient in meeting the demands of the present autumn and coming winter sports and social season, designers are playing up fabrics with more than usual zest.

More and more are we brought to realize that there is a fabric for every occasion, and for every occasion there is a fabric. Present couturier displays are a real schooling in this respect, since they so unmistakably classify materials as to their intent.

An especially intriguing display is being made this season of handsome woollens and sturdy novelty weaves which tell you at a glance that they are essentially for sports and practical town and country wear. In this class a spectacular showing of plaids indicates that they will animate many a grandstand assemblage during the coming weeks. A costume which tunes in admirably to a colorful autumn picture is shown in the group illustrated. It includes a skirt with matching belt and tie of brown and beige woolen plaid. The jacket of brown ribbed velvet tops a blouse of beige silk.

This idea of combining several weaves as instanced in this ensemble of plaid woolen, ribbed velvet and rough crepe silk is significant in that it is a gesture among designers which offers fascinating possibilities not only as to working several materials together, but the promise of alluring color schemes is limitless.

Perhaps you have heard that the smartest thing on the boards this season for practical daytime wear is a shirtwaist dress. These are being made up effectively of the new checked woollens. The model pictured is tailored of a dark green and beige check. Its perfectly tailored knapsack pockets and its zipper fastening carry unmistakable style prestige.

As to more formal dress, the trend to elegance is reflected in the sumptuousness of the regal velvets.

the sleek satins, crisp taffetas, glittering metal cloths, the beautifully colorful laces and a host of other seductive weaves such as the world never witnessed. Then there are the new bengalines and ottoman silks. Their revival is one of the outstanding events of the season. A party frock of white bengaline becomes a necessary luxury in the wardrobe of the woman who attends society doings.

It is understood that every replete wardrobe is to include at least one velvet dress. If only one, then let it be black with trimmings of white starched lace. The importance of velvet cannot be overstated. It is used for everything from hats and gloves to shoes and for autumn suits as well as afternoon and evening gowns and wraps. Plaid velvet is the latest sensation—perfectly stunning for the new tunic blouse! Plaid velvet suits are also chic.

Velvet evening ensembles are very smart. We are showing a most lovely velvet evening ensemble in the picture to the left. It is sapphire blue. With the jacket removed it is extremely décolleté. Fulle sleeves and ruff collar give the jacket distinction, also the fact that it has a slight train.

Competition for first honors between velvet and satin is keen. For immediate wear suits and frocks of sleek satin are quite the thing. As an evening fabric, satin ranks high. The modest skirt with low fullness of the satin gown shown to the right, interprets the "very latest" in regard to this season's sponsored silhouette.

BUTTONS IN FRONT HELP TO CHILDREN

Small children arriving at the age to be taught to dress themselves will learn more quickly if their garments button in the front. The foundation garment should consist of a small waist, onto which the panties may be buttoned.

Petticoats may be of the wide-armed and -open-necked variety, which slip over the head without buttons. Little dresses and suits, which button or tie, or snap down the front, can be found easily.

Little hangers may be purchased and a half-dozen hooks placed low inside the closet. As the child sheds his garments at night, he will take pride in placing them on hangers, "like mother does," and hanging them in the closet.

Bird on Nellie's Hat Makes Comeback in Fall Mode

It now looks as though you could get out your hat again with the bird on it—you know, the one folks sang about in 1910. And furthermore, you'll probably want to add a few side dishes for 1933 in the way of a feather cape, feather muff, feather purse and so on. You may even hide behind your feather fan and roll your big movie eyes from that point of vantage if you like.

Sailor Collars In Again

Old-fashioned sailor collars are here again. The new designs are broader than ever, often standing two inches off each shoulder to give the broadest shoulder effect now in vogue.

Fall Colors

Geranium reds—some of which are also called Indian red—chocolate brown, beige, navy blue and Parma violet are favorite fall colors. Turquoise blue is used as a trimming on Indian red.

KNIT JACKET By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It is not only the college girl who is going to spot this knit jacket for her own. It will be literally snatched up by the feminine world for golfing, for riding, for walking—for hundreds of occasions when a jacket needs to be slipped on. This one is surely a surprise and a genuine find for—it is knitted of crepe paper! It really is. That knit crepe paper fad is becoming an honest-to-goodness fashion instead of a mere passing fancy. The strips crocheted and knit beautifully, wear sturdily and you have enough shade and tint of the rainbow colors to choose from. The one shown here is made of crepe paper in a neutral tint with red and blue edges. The directions for making it are simple, and, best of all, the entire cost amounts to less than half a round dollar for you. If you've an eye out for chic, and if "do it now" is your motto for getting coming Christmas gifts together, you'll work many.

Lesson for November 26

PAUL IN CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-17; I Cor. 1:1-2:3.

GOLDEN TEXT—For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. I Cor. 2:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Care at Night.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Gets New Courage.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Work With Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unity in Christ.

The establishment of the church at Corinth is an example of missionary endeavor for all ages. The method employed and the message delivered which resulted in success then will result in success now.

I. The True Missionary Method (Acts 18:1-3).

Paul came to Corinth a stranger in a strange city. His method of gaining a foothold was,

1. Finding a home (v. 2). This he found with Aquila and Priscilla who had recently been expelled from Rome. Being of the same nationality, there was a natural affinity with them.

2. Telling for daily bread (v. 3). Paul was of the same craft as his host. Every Jewish child was taught some trade by means of which he could gain his livelihood, should occasion require. Missionaries should not be above honest toil.

II. Preaching in the Synagogue at Corinth (Acts 18:4-8).

1. Compelled to toil for a living (v. 4). Though compelled to toil for a living, he did not lose sight of his main work. He reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, persuading the Jews and the Greeks.

2. His activity increased through the coming of Silas and Timothy (v. 5). This was caused by, a. Favorable report from the church at Thessalonica. This report put new vigor into his labors.

b. They brought pecuniary gifts from the Macedonian church (Phil. 4:15; II Cor. 11:9). Being now free from the necessity of toiling for a living, he could devote more time and energy to the preaching of the gospel.

c. Silas and Timothy became helpers to Paul in the work.

3. Increased opposition (v. 6). Paul's increased activity met with increased opposition. This can always be expected.

4. Paul announces his purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6). This was necessitated because of the opposition and blasphemy of the Jews.

5. Paul in the house of Justus (vv. 7, 8). He remained sufficiently close to those whose hearts God had touched that they could easily find him. His success here was such that Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted. Paul departed from his usual custom and baptized Crispus.

III. Paul's Vision (Acts 18:9-11). This vision was for the purpose of giving encouragement to Paul at this time. His experiences in Europe were most trying.

1. "Be not afraid" (v. 9). The one who is doing the will of the Lord need not be afraid.

2. "Speak and hold not thy peace" (v. 9). The one who has heard the voice of God cannot refrain from speaking.

3. "I am with thee" (v. 10). All who faithfully carry out the divine commission can be assured of the divine presence.

4. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee" (v. 10). No harm can come to the Lord's servant until his work is done.

5. "I have much people in this city" (v. 10). The one who goes forth with the divine message can be assured that his ministry cannot fail. The one who goes forth in the name of the Lord, preaching the gospel, shall have fruit for his service.

IV. Party Spirit in the Corinthian Church (I Cor. 1:10-13).

In this church rival factions were contending against each other. Some were for Paul, some for Apollos, some for Peter, and some for Christ. The cause of this threatened division was failure to see the trueheadship of the church. Christ is the one and only Head, and the members composing his body cannot be divided. Membership and interest all center in Christ. By one Spirit all were baptized into the one body (I Cor. 12:13). Sectarianism is an evil to be deplored. The factious spirit in the church mars its testimony and retards its growth. These who understand the oneness of Christ will be joined together in the same mind and judgment.

V. The One Supreme Message of the True Preacher (I Cor. 2:1-8).

It is Jesus Christ and him crucified. On the basis of intelligent assent to logical proposition, Christian unity is impossible. Prejudice and human limitations prevent men from seeing eye to eye. Christian unity is possible only as the members of his body grow up into Christ.

POULTRY FACTS

GET PULLETS INTO WINTER QUARTERS

Time to Prepare for Young Birds' Comfort

Now is the time to make final preparations for the winter egg supply. It should be remembered, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer, that the great bulk of winter eggs come from pullets hatched last spring—assuming they were hatched early enough so that they are now practically mature—so while the older hens should not be neglected the poultryman should pay special attention to the pullets. Every effort should be exerted to bring them into laying at earliest opportunity. One of the important things to do is to get them into winter quarters. The chief reason for this is that if laying while on the range, these laying pullets are very apt to suffer a set-back when transferred to permanent quarters. Frequently this set-back is so serious that it precipitates a fall molt and the pullets may experience a winter or early fall molt just at the time when eggs are higher in price. One of the problems of the poultryman is to avoid this fall vacation and early housing will tend to reduce the danger of this trouble. The usual recommendation is to house the pullets when as many as 5 per cent of the flock are laying, but generally speaking from now on the earlier the pullets are housed the better. By early housing the pullets become adjusted to their new quarters before starting in on their year of production and in addition they will probably be less susceptible to fall colds which always cut down production.

In the housing of pullets emphasis should be placed in the preparation of the winter quarters. First of all plans should be made to house the pullets in separate houses or pens as pullets fail to make satisfactory development if mixed with older hens. The presence of older hens not only exposes the pullets to diseases to which the hens may have become immune and yet may be able to transmit to the pullets in which immunity has not been established. Then, too, there is always the danger of the pullets becoming infested with external parasites. Again the presence of old hens causes the pullets to be reluctant in frequenting the feed hoppers and consequently with limited feed consumption growth and maturity are retarded.

Fast-Growing Chickens

Eat More Than Unthrifty

Thrifty, fast-growing chickens eat more than the unthrifty. Heavy layers eat more than poor layers. In neither case, however, is the difference in the quantities of feed consumed as great as the difference in the results obtained. Poor birds eat much more proportionately than good ones. The reason is because chicks that grow well and hens that lay well are birds which constitutionally are able to make full use of all feed taken into the system, while much of that eaten by those which are inferior in this respect passes through the system undigested.

The fundamental principle in modern poultry feeding is to feed so liberally that not a bird in the flock will ever be unable to get all the feed it wants. In doing this, feed is kept before the flock practically all the time. In renewing supplies of the different kinds of feed at regular intervals, it is often noticed that the consumption from day to day or from week to week is variable. This is most noticeable with adult stock. It is apt to be overlooked in chickens because they constantly require larger amounts until full grown. Because of this variability close weighings of feed consumed in short periods, when taken as the basis of computation for the full period of growth, or for laying hens for a year are seldom accurate.

POULTRY HELPS

Plowing up the ground helps to rid the soil of disease germs and intestinal worms.

Vitamin G is deficient in some poultry rations and such deficiency causes low hatchability of the eggs produced.

An extra quantity of green feed, such as chopped green alfalfa or Jersey kale, will darken the color of yolks of eggs and improve their quality.

The fact that a hen's egg is composed of two-thirds water indicates the importance of having a supply of clean water before the biddies at all times.

An occasional feed of boiled wheat will give variety to the menu for the chickens and is practical for a small flock. Another good plan is to place some wheat in a shallow pan and allow it to bake in the oven until the kernels are a deep brown color.

DEFORD.

The young people of the Sunday school held their monthly social gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Locke on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. David Merriman is training the junior and the young people's choir.

George MacIntyre, W. B. Hicks and Frank Hegler returned on Monday from the Upper Peninsula where they were hunting. Mr. MacIntyre was the only one fortunate enough to secure a deer. The snow was so deep that hunting was made very difficult.

Mrs. Peter Burian spent the past week visiting at Detroit. She returned home Tuesday.

Kenneth Kelley and Lawson Stenger were business visitors on Tuesday at Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner Kelley of Royal Oak were visitors for a few days at the Kelley home.

Rev. and Mrs. Peter Bissett and Miss Viola Bruce spent a few days last week at Hamilton, Ontario, and also were visitors at Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Mary Parks of Caseville was a Sunday caller in Deford.

Mrs. Wm. D'Arcy, Mrs. Floyd Howey and Mrs. William Wilson of Kingston were callers in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ryan is feeling quite poorly this week.

Wm. Randall slashed his thumb quite severely with a butcher knife on Monday.

A goodly number were in attendance at the Farmers' Club on Friday when they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Stewart. The December meeting is to be at the Howard Retherford home.

Mrs. Mack Smith of Leonidas was a guest on Thursday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Retherford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Talbot of Detroit were Tuesday and Wednesday guests at the Duncan McArthur home.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Schultz of Imlay City were Sunday visitors at the E. L. Patterson home.

Perry Hill of Detroit was a visitor during the week at the Louis Locke home.

Mrs. G. A. Martin attended a meeting of the Vassar Women's Christian Temperance Union on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Martin were in Crosswell Sunday visiting Mrs. Martin's mother and sister, Mrs. Mary Campfield and Mrs. Mabel Lovell.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kilgore entertained on Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Scott Kelley of Mayville, and on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Kilgore of Pontiac and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Kilgore and daughter, Marcella, of Ypsilanti.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horner were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Gasparie at Cass City.

ELLINGTON AND NOVESTA.

Mrs. Byron Banard, who has been ill at the Morris hospital, was able to be brought to her home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mark and Mrs. C. J. Brotherton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wanner on Monday.

We are all sorry to hear that Rev. Clink is suffering with blood poisoning in his hand.

Ruth and Esther Tuckey, who spent last week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wanner, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Tuckey, were deer hunting, returned to their home Sunday evening.

The Telescope

To most people the word "telescope" connotes a long tube with an eyepiece at the lower end and a lens at the other end, the observer looking through the lower end. This is the refractor type of telescope. The reflector type, however, is built upon an entirely different principle. It operates by the use of a reflecting mirror, or a series of reflecting mirrors.

Science of Chemistry

The science of chemistry had its origin in remote antiquity. Many of its earlier secrets form the basis of modern knowledge. Early chemistry developed from gradual findings usually relating to the extraction of various metals from ores. Modern chemistry had been largely developed along industrial lines during the Nineteenth century, and since the World war enormous progress has been made.

Snake Charming

A snake can frighten a bird so that it remains rooted to the spot. A man can charm a snake by music, a slow monotonous whistling, or by stroking, but no snake can charm a man or a woman.

Snake Likes His Rats

One fox or pine snake is worth a dozen traps for capturing mice and rats, according to the president of the University of Michigan, for this snake seeks these undesirable rodents in their nests and eats the entire brood at once.

MYSTERY CAVERN EXCITES INTEREST

Rival for Mammoth Cave Is Found in Mississippi.

Waynesboro, Miss.—Subterranean wonders, rivaled only by the famous Mammoth cave and Carlsbad caverns, await adventurous explorers at Pitts cave, three miles northwest of here.

Situated on the Pitts' plantation, its contrasting natural beauty and legendary treachery provide awesome thrills to visitors. A maze of winding passages, "bottomless" pits, phantom-like stalactites and ghostly vaulted domes add to its mysteries.

Probable unexplored sections of the cave include a long passage said to extend under the Chickasaw river. Tales of men, who entered the long passageway never to return, are told by J. O. Pitts, grandson of the late Dr. J. R. S. Pitts, the original owner.

Pitts delights in showing visitors through the short route and relating legends connected with the cave.

The entrance, on the side of a hill, resembles somewhat the mouth of a gaping prehistoric monster. A flight of steps provided by Mother Nature guides the visitor into a vestibule about 10 feet wide, approximately the same height, and extending back into the hill 40 feet.

Forty-five minutes are required to make the trip through the short route. The explorer, after crawling, walking, climbing natural stairs, and wading through narrow passages, finally will exit into another vestibule, similar to the one at the entrance.

Pitts said an Indian and his dog once explored the long route. The Indian returned but his dog was lost, according to the story. Returning into the cave in search of the animal, the Indian never was seen again, but the dog finally emerged with all the hair gone from his body. The supposition is that the dog's hair was removed by some form of gas, which probably killed the Indian.

Later, an uncle of the present Pitts plantation owner equipped himself with a mass of twine and candles, and unwinding the twine, explored a portion of the long cave. His string supply ran out when he had gone about three miles and he returned with his eyes and face swollen, probably from the same gas which removed the hair from the Indian's dog.

U. S. Begins Its Annual Patrol in Bering Sea

Washington.—The Bering sea patrol, famous annual duty of the coast guard along the bleak Alaskan coast, has begun with the cutter Shoshone, flagship of the fleet which guards the shores of the territory. The patrol, conducted by seven coast guard vessels, has for its main purpose enforcement of international regulations relative to protection of seals, fisheries, and fur bearing animals.

The scope of the patrol, however, extends to various humanitarian functions, such as caring for sick and injured of isolated coastal communities in the northland, and of fishing vessels in Bering sea.

Among its duties are: Transportation of government officials, carrying of the mails, assisting in scientific researches, holding court and inquests, "settling differences between employees and employers."

Other vessels in the patrol are the Snohomish, Tahoe, Chelan, Tallapoosa, Northland, and the patrol boat Alert.

Corvusite Found Near

Radium Beds in Utah

Salt Lake City.—Deposits of corvusite and ralanidite have been discovered in Utah near the carnotite beds, chief source of radium in the United States.

The rare chemical element vanadium is the chief constituent of corvusite, otherwise known as ravenstone because of its purplish-black appearance resembling the feathers of a raven. Edward P. Henderson and Frank L. Hess, Smithsonian geologists, who discovered the new mineral, reported.

Rose Bush Is 81 Years Old

Macon, Ga.—Terrell Smith, who has lived in the same house here for 62 years, has a rose bush in the yard that is known to be at least eighty-one years old—so old that slips from it will not take root and grow, and have not for 40 years.

Old Pals Play Role

in a Tragic Finale

Moundsville, W. Va.—Two men, one a judge and the other a banker, were the principal actors in a drama in Marshall County Circuit court. Old friends, they had helped and watched Moundsville grow for many years.

The banker, Carl H. Hunter, former state senator, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging embezzlement of $3,416 from the closed Mound City bank. His voice was low, scarcely audible.

The judge, James F. Shipman, reviewed their long friendship. In a whisper, he said: "Twenty years."

Local Happenings

Mrs. George Karr is quite ill at her home on Houghton street.

Mrs. H. L. Benkelman spent a few days the first of the week with friends at Fairview.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Knapp spent the week-end in Detroit.

Robert B. and Maynard McConkey spent from Friday until Tuesday hunting at Glennie.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMasters and children of Flint were callers at the Hugh McBurney home Monday.

Niclo Hitchcock of Milwaukee, Wis., spent Thursday night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hitchcock.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McBurney and daughter, Mavis, were callers at the Charles Lowe home in Cumber Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ernest Lorentzen and two daughters, Donna and Betty, of Marlette were week-end guests of Mrs. John Lorentzen.

Miss Winifred Schell, who is employed at the home of her uncle, Fred Schell, at Kingston, spent last week at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Burke were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Brooker in Bay City Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Striffler and daughter, Luella, and Miss Gertrude Striffler of Detroit spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Striffler.

Miss Hollis McBurney left on Wednesday of last week for her home at Youngstown, Ohio, after spending a week with her mother, Mrs. Jane McBurney.

THE FAMILY HOLIDAY.

Thanksgiving day has lost, to many people, its old religious significance. In such a loss, something has gone which produced moral fiber. But in spite of that real loss, another very fine feature has been preserved, and that is the custom of bringing families together on this holiday.

The custom of an annual family feast may have led to much excessive eating. The consumption of vast amounts of turkey and heaps of luscious pies and puddings is a queer way to show that we are grateful for the gifts life has brought us. Still, this noble feast has drawing power, and the relatives will travel quite a way to enjoy such a hilarious occasion.

Something more than the big dinner draws people to the old homes. If the old folks live in the homestead of former days, the heart strings that tie us to former experiences have a great drawing power. Scenes of childhood stir deep thoughts in our minds, and they are or should be very dear, even if our present dwellings are much more convenient and beautiful.

We do not see the big family reunions of former years. Most families are smaller, and they are scattered far and wide. The laborious women who would toil and struggle for weeks to provide one of their famous Thanksgiving dinners for 20 or 30 people, have mostly passed on. Their descendants have not the same untiring energy. Perhaps they do not take the same pride in housewifely triumphs.

It is a wonderful thing to keep up the old family ties. They are worth cherishing. Your own family folks will stand by you when newly found friends forget you if your luck turns. Thanksgiving day is a good time to renew the old bonds, and we should always cherish it.

CHRISTMAS TRADE.

Every city is going to cut up a very handsome pie during the next few weeks, in the shape of Christmas trade. Who will get the pieces of that fine pie, distributed by the citizens of this community? Will they go mostly to our own people, who will use the proceeds thereof to strengthen our home town business and employ more labor from their home town? Or will large and generous slices of that nice pie go elsewhere, to people who will make no return of it to our community?

A large fraction of the year's business is done in the four weeks before the Christmas holiday. The ability of a concern to pay anything to the owner, or even to pay expenses, may depend on whether it gets a fair share of holiday trade.

People who insist on going elsewhere to spend a large share of their Christmas money seem neglectful of the interests of their home town. A community can't prosper if there is a steady drain of money going out to other places. If the Christmas trade, or a considerable share of it, is lost in that way, the loss handicaps local business for months to come.

Our people should also consider that now is a very excellent time to buy their Christmas gifts. The annual custom of rushing into the stores during the week previous to the holiday, and buying the gifts of the season so late, produces a congestion that is costly to the stores, extremely hard on the employees of those concerns, and it places a mountain of work on the backs of harassed postal and express employees. People who are hard up for cash can't perhaps anticipate their purchases. But others will enjoy the Christmas season better if their purchases are made several weeks in advance.

If folks didn't try to hit the high spots so much, they would hit more ten spots.

The cities are willing to co-operate with the government by accepting all the free money that someone else is willing to raise for them.

It is claimed we need an elastic dollar, but somehow the dollar all ways seems to shrink easier than it stretches.

The Mark
By RALPH ANDRE

JIMMY BEDFORD clenched his teeth to keep them from chattering. For weeks he had tried to summon courage to propose to Janet Ames. It was his last chance, for tomorrow he would sail for South America. He forced himself to look at her. Her lips were parted, her head cocked in that pert little way she had.

Her bright glance caught his and held. Something in the misty depths of the soft brown eyes gave him a breathless courage. He had a wild impulse to shout but the tightness in his throat made his voice low and husky. "Janet . . . I—that is I love you. Will you marry me?"

She retreated a step that brought her face into shadow. Seconds ticked into eternity. Became minutes, hours, years, before she answered. "No, Jimmy, I cannot . . . we would always be poor . . . can't you see, Jimmy? It's—it's because you're so easy going. You're just a mark, a dear lovable mark . . . be like Bernard Wagner. No one imposes on him. He is a man of the world and he uses modern methods . . . bound to succeed. . ."

A smart fellow, Wagner. He had gone into the building contracting business in their home town. Every one knew that "Bunny" Wagner was a comer; a hard-headed business man; a competitor who was hard to beat. Ruthless in his methods but popular, nevertheless. Men hailed him on the street, in clubs, everywhere. They liked his brisk style. Dumb and miserable, Jimmy watched her; wondered if that firm little chin would relent; knew that it would not. Then dully, slowly, the rest of her soft accusation burned in. His chin came up and the glance from his mild blue eyes was level. His voice was steady as he held out his hand and said good-by.

Jimmy pitched his camp on the bleak mountainside where the icy blasts from the eternal snows on the rugged peaks of the Bolivian Cordilleras hurtled down and tore savagely at his frail tent. He threw himself into his work with grim purpose. He saved his money as never before.

It became a byword that anyone could make a touch on "easygoing Jimmy Bedford." To his Aunt Mary's Indians he was "Don Santiago" (St. James). No one knew that the smiling and optimistic Jimmy carried a constant dull ache in his heart. He could not forget Janet Ames, but he stubbornly resisted an overwhelming desire to write to her. The silence between them held for three heart-tearing years. At the latter end of his contract he tore open a letter from Bernard Wagner with cold misgivings as her last words came to him again.

"Dear Old Friend Jimmy," it began. "A puzzled frown spread over Jimmy's face as his eyes strayed to the signature at the bottom. He read, bewildered:

" . . . and if you could just let me have a small loan—say twenty-five—"

"Otherwise, things have been going well for your old pal. You, of course, remember Janet Ames. Well, old boy, I'm the lucky fellow . . . thought once you had the inside track . . . be married in June."

Home, Jimmy swung from the train and looked about the station for his father and mother. They would be along. He was glad to be back. He said it several times as if it were a ritual to which he must cling. It was nice to see old faces, familiar sights. Everything looked the same. Not quite.

His roving glance took in the office and yard diagonally across the street. The windows were dirty and vacant, the yard deserted. A swinging right angle sign creaked noisily in the wind. "Bernard Wagner, Contractor," it said. Jimmy rubbed his chin. "Bunny" would have moved into the new ten-story bank building he had built. Jimmy's eyes strayed to it, a block up the street. It was not yet finished. It, somehow, looked dead.

"Jimmy," said a timid voice at his elbow.

"Janet!"

His heart contracted as he looked at her with wondering eyes. She was making a brave effort although the glistening eyes belied the smile on her sensitive mouth. Her dress was neat but a trifle shabby. Why it was the same one she had worn that last night! He remembered those pink flowers and the lacy what-you-call-it around the top of it. Her shoes. He realized by her heightening color that he was staring; that she was painfully aware of her clothes, and he looked again across the street.

"Where's 'Bunny' now?" His voice was wracked with pain. It sounded thin and metallic as it came from the top of his throat.

"He's gone. I—" Her voice trailed off and he wheeled in amazement. She was fumbling in her purse. He could only see the point of her chin. It was quivering. Presently she found what she sought and held it out—an envelope. Dumbly, mechanically, he opened it and drew out a check. It bore his signature; and on the paper it said: "Pay to the order of Bernard Wagner

AVOIDING TROUBLE.

When the patronage question comes up the party in power gets into trouble.

People talk about a great "office holding" machine. It is supposed to have power and influence. It has been little.

The fact is that patronage gives more trouble than it is worth. A postmaster is to be selected. Only one may be chosen. A half dozen people, their relatives and friends are disappointed.

There is trouble right away. What happens in one community happens in several thousand.

Some day one of the political parties will be smart. It will choose a few of the important offices and leave all of the rest to the defeated party. It will concede the trouble to the other fellow. The party which follows such a plan might stay in office until the day when people cease to kick about their taxes. That will be a long, long time.

Lived to See Sons President

Eight women: Sarah Delano Roosevelt, Mary Washington, Susanna Adams (second President's mother), Nelly Madison, Jane Polk, Harriet Grant, Eliza B. Garfield and Nancy McKinley. Five men: John Adams, Richard Taylor, Jesse Grant, John Coolidge and George T. Harding.

Birds in Memorial Window

Over 60 different kinds of birds are portrayed in the Gilbert White memorial window in St. Mary's church, at Selborne, England. The window attracts many visitors to the church each year.

Japanese Women Strong

Japanese women of Oshima island can carry unusually heavy weights on their heads. The training comes because of the scarcity of water; women often have to travel five miles to the nearest well for water.

The old timers established Thanksgiving day to give thanks for all their blessings. The people of the present age are not much inclined to give thanks for anything, but they keep asking for the things they want with the same persistence and eloquence.

If the "Buy now" campaign would go over as well as the "Talk now" movement does, everything would be all right.

FIRST OF ALL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I HAVE a thousand things to do Today, and one is writing you—Curtains to clean, and hang again. And then a little mending; then Take out a stain from that new dress.

The one I wrote about (I guess)—It seems that ev'ry morning brings Around about a thousand things.

Now, some might say, "What shall it be

The first of all?" It seems to me—Though curtains are important, and A stain is something I can't stand. And other things my eyes have met I haven't even mentioned yet—The first of all, of things to mend, Is separation from a friend.

I fear too many of us say, "I'll have to write to her some day"

Yet I know nothing, high or low, That ever needs attention so, (I'd hate to think you did a lot Of little things, with me forgot)—I have a thousand things to do, But first of all is writing you!

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

ON BEING SURE

"OF ONE thing only am I positive; and that is that I am not sure!"

A genius said that. For the more one knows, the more one knows how little one knows. So to know that one is never sure, must amount to genius!

In a world full of people who are always so sure of things, so certain of themselves, so positive that they are "right"—what a relief to find some one who is "not sure!" What a boon to live with such a person!

Doubtless there are faults in the extreme of never being sure. But victims as we are of so much over-sureness, of so many conflicting certainties, it will take a large dose of unsureness to convince us that that quality is anything but perfect!

Surely as between the too sure and the unsure, safety and wisdom and charm are on the side of the latter.

How much damage has been done by people going off on a tangent with half-baked certainties and convictions—how dangerous advice in certainties founded on half-knowledge or hearsay!

With those who have lived a while and seen much, complacent certainty is immediately suspect. The first quality it suggests is narrowness. For it is easier if your outlook is bounded in very small space to be sure of what you see, than if there are spread before your vision broad vistas of sun and shade, and beauty and sorrow, of much of man's history, and the good and bad of many things.

The broader your background the harder it is to pin your vision to one point. The more you have seen and heard and felt, the more difficult it is to judge. And the wiser the man or woman, the less likely are they to be too sure.

Call for Hats With Feather Accent

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT the new little feathers are doing for the new little hats this season in the way of giving them swank and charm, is a trifling tale to be told. The milliner takes a wee bright feather not much bigger than your thumb and with wondrous cunning thrusts it through some little nook or crook in the crown of a soft rakish felt shape and voila! you have a sports hat which is positively devastating in its debonair lines. Perhaps it is a cluster of diminutive ostrich tips on a more formal velvet or satin chapeau which is just as captivating.

It's the Tyrolean influence which sprightly colorful feather accents on soft, folded and creased crowns is reflecting, and the result is as picturesquely alpine as fancy may conceive. Your town or sports hat is supposed to be just like that—of felt novelty woolen or of stitched velvet or satin, just so it's properly tailored, with a frivolous little feather posing most anywhere that looks nonchalant.

In the group illustrated, the hats inset in the panels flaunt their saucy feathers with a casualness which is exactly in step with the mood of the hour. The felt to the left savors of a man's soft fedora which is characteristic of the newer sports models. Its novel multi-colored whirligig of a feather poses at just such a rakish angle as fashion demands.

The draped woolen beret to the right which dips over one eye with a peak to its crown which goes a la Chinese, as the smartest hats have a way of doing these days, flourishes a teeny-weeny quill which carries a most convincing style message.

CORD AND TASSEL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Ever so many unique things are being done in the way of trimming this season. One is the use of ornamental cord and tassel novelties. An Araby red jersey frock as pictured has heavy red silk cord and tassels at belt and neck. A red and beige check coat complements this frock. The red felt hat has a perky feather which poses erect at the back.

Slipper Satin

Stiff shiny satin, the kind they make slippers of, is being used for the newest and smartest evening wraps for fall.

Of course, when you dress up for matinees and calling and more formal events, you will be wanting one of the perfectly fascinating ostrich-trimmed velvet chapeaux such as are making so glamorous a showing on autumn and millinery collections. There is that note of elegance and the prettily feminine about them which goes back to the gay 90s for inspiration.

The coloring of the three velvet hats shown at the top in the picture, is just too delectable for words. The ravishing velvet sailor depicted to the left is in that new blackberry tone which can scarcely be distinguished from black itself. It seems that in Paris several of the best designers are preferring this glorified berry tone to deadly black. The trio of lovely ostrich tips on this hat are in petunia shades.

The coquettish little toque centered above is one of the new fatigue types which, by the way, are considered a "last word" when it comes to up-and-coming millinery. Its success depends on tipping it at exactly the correct angle over the right eye, as you see in the picture. The model shown is developed of gray velvet ribbon with two little ostrich tips emerging from along its center seam.

Narrow velvet ribbon is stitched together row-and-row for the ostrich-trimmed hat to the right. This is one of the Renaissance beret types of which we are hearing about this season. The wee ostrich tips are in violet tones.

The light blue draped felt toque centered in the illustration is trimmed with a novelty feather which has been dyed a matching light blue.

OLD TRUNKS HIDE "LATEST" FASHIONS

Now that the spirit of the 90s has returned in leg-o'-mutton sleeves, wide-shouldered frocks and a return of some of that gay "fuss and feathers" spirit, it may be that a little rummaging among the family relics will be more than repaid.

Of course, most old clothes are discarded or given away, but the exceptions are always lovely things.

The styles of the coming winter are going to be more formal, more graceful in some ways than they have been for years. Perhaps if you rummage through some of grandmother's packed away belongings (if she'll let you), you may be rewarded by finding some exquisite pearl embroidery, a priceless egret plume, or a bit of delicate Valenciennes that will give distinction to your winter wardrobe.

New Ribbed Fabrics Are

Favored in Winter Mode

From present indications, ribbed fabrics will have first place next winter, and very interesting novelties in corduroy and ottoman are anticipated. There is a new wide-waisted corded ottoman in rayon, which might be called corduroy ottoman, and which is recommended for suits, coats and dresses, and exists in several weights.

It can already be foreseen that broadcloth will be prominent next winter, especially for afternoon coats over crepe or satin dresses. Spongy, sometimes very slightly boucle materials and loose woven enamines will dispute the supremacy of the morning mode with hairy angora wools, djarred kashmere and rabbit-hair fabrics.

POULTRY

LOAFING HENS NOT WORTH THEIR FEED

Should Cull Flocks to Hold Expenses Down.

At present prices for poultry and poultry products eliminate all hens that lay just enough eggs to pay feed costs.

"Hens that lay from six to nine eggs a month cannot make money for the flock owner at present farm prices and should be killed, sold or canned," says C. J. Maupin, poultry extension specialist at North Carolina State college. "Such hens will eat more feed than their total market value and should be taken from the flock in order to lower feed costs and increase the quality and production of those birds left in the flock."

For proper culling, especially where the flock contains 50 or more hens, some form of catching coop should be provided. Such a coop can be made of slats or just a frame covered with wire and should fit the poultry house door so that the hens can be driven into it without injury. With such a coop the poultryman can cull at any time of the year.

Maupin advises that close attention also be given to the breeding males as this will determine, to a large extent, the profit made from pullets hatched and raised next year. Old male birds that will not be needed next year or young cockerels that are not developing properly should be removed from the flock. Where possible, one or two breeding cockerels should be secured from trap-nested flocks.

Daddies of Muscovy Duck Found in South America

Early explorers of South America found the ancestors of the modern Muscovy duck there in the wild state. Efforts to mate them with other breeds proved that they were a distinct species as the matings produced sterile offspring. They were known as Wild Musk ducks and also as Brazilian ducks. They made their homes in the wildest marshes and lowlands, and nested and hatched their young in high places.

Little attention was given to them until about 1870. Since then they have been distributed quite widely over the world. In Europe and America they have been bred with care and found to reproduce to form and color suitable for exhibition. Females have been found to be kind and tractable. Males under two years can be controlled, but when they get older they are cross to children; and, especially during the breeding season, will attack adults and even animals savagely, if they are provoked, or disturbed in their habitats.

The original, wild specimens were almost entirely black. Other colors have been developed. Some offspring have plumage like the Blue Swedish duck. This is said to have resulted from crossing white and colored specimens.

Yeast for Hens

Hens fed fermented laying mash as an extra to the regular mash and grain at the coastal plain experiment station in North Carolina, laid more eggs than hens fed the regular laying mash and grain. There was very little extra cost from feeding the fermented mash.

The fermented mash was made by adding two cakes of yeast to ten quarts of mash and adding enough warm water to make the mixture fairly moist. The mash was allowed to set for 20 hours, then the birds were given all they would eat in a half hour. The 75 birds that ate the fermented mash plus regular mash and scratch grain laid 18,393 eggs; those eating only the regular mash and grain, 15,885 eggs.

Cost per dozen for feed was 12 cents when fermented mash was used, 11.9 cents without. Birds that had fermented mash ate more mash, more grain. These birds were better in appearance and had higher vitality when the feeding test was completed.—National Farm Journal.

Table Form in Fowls

The perfection of table form in fowls is reached in fancy roasting chickens. A fancy roaster is one that is meaty all over; that is marketed when it reaches full development (after which it begins to lose quality); and that when served on the table can be carved easily. To meet the last requirement a bird must have a broad straight back, flat at the shoulders, straight in the middle and wide at the hips—with the hipbone level. Such a bird will lie right on the platter.

Ventilated Trap-Nests

Open trap-nests are advocated in some quarters. The sides are constructed of laths or other similar material, admitting cool air freely, and these are covered with wire screening to keep out other hens, mice and other nuisances. The usual trap-door is at the front and the top is boarded over, but three sides are ventilated.

Effect of Lice

While lice probably rarely cause the death of mature birds, they are often directly responsible for great mortality among growing chicks, which do not have the vigor to resist them possessed by the adult birds. The effect on the bird varies of course in proportion to the degree of infestation, but a bird that is lousy will generally show increased nervousness, a loss of vitality, lack of appetite and a droopy, forlorn appearance, which results in decreased egg and meat production.

POULTRY FACTS

Rigid culling throughout the growing season cuts the cost of raising chicks and lowers the mortality among them.

Chopped alfalfa hay and skimmed milk are potent sources of Vitamin G and their inclusion in a ration for laying hens is recommended.

Only 4.5 dozen eggs were required to buy 100 pounds of poultry feed in New York state in 1932, compared with 4.9 dozen in 1931, and 5.7 dozen before the war.

For leg weakness a tablespoonful of cod liver oil well mixed in mash for 30 chicks will work wonders and a teaspoonful given to a leg-weak hen will often remedy matters. Breeding hens and male birds are always invigorated by cod liver oil.

Action at Niagara

At the Whirlpool rapids, at Niagara, the velocity of the stream is over 28 miles per hour. The crests of the waves are often 40 feet above the level at the edges. The whirlpool is a little more than 3 1/4 miles from the Horseshoe falls. Here the river rushes into an elbow with tremendous force in a northwesterly direction, but has to turn in a northeasterly direction, and the impact of these two currents meeting forms the rotary movement.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Rockyfellow are mourning the loss of their seven weeks old son who died Sunday and was buried in the Hillside cemetery Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Rockyfellow and the baby were visiting relatives in Wisner when the child was taken sick, although not thought seriously. The baby was found dead in bed.

Patrick Kehoe, who had his collar bone broken, is improving and soon be able to attend school.

Several of the ladies attended a quilting bee last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ben Ritter near Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Nutt and family moved this week to their farm near Akron which they recently purchased. Mr. Nutt for some time has been in Akron conducting a meat market. Francis Rocheleau will look after the business here.

Birds Ride on Steamers

Wild birds crossing Lake Superior in a fog often find refuge on the decks of steamers, where they remain until the fog has cleared away, seemingly enjoying the rest to their weary wings.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is syrup pepsin. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

Old Dutch Custom

Among Holland's peculiar farming customs is that of baptizing calves before they are sent out to the fields to graze, the idea being that the sprinkling with water will keep the animals away from the ditches which surround the fields.

Are Not Pigs

The name Guinea pig apparently is misleading. An authority on these small, tailless rodent mammals states that they are not pigs and neither did they come from Guinea. Their native habitat is South America and they are much more closely related to porcupines, rabbits and mice than to pigs.

JERRY AND PETER TALK THINGS OVER

NOW that his house was finished Jerry Muskrat felt that he was entitled to a little rest. He had worked faithfully. Now he could enjoy the results. It certainly was a fine house. Peter Rabbit said so quite as if he were a judge of houses. You know any old tumble-down house some one else has given up will do for Peter.

"Yes," said Jerry, "it is a pretty good house. It is a better house than my old one. I am glad I have finished it. A house like that means a whole lot of hard work."

"I should say so!" exclaimed Peter. "I wouldn't work like that for the finest house that ever was."

Jerry Muskrat shook his head at Peter reprovingly. "Peter," said he,

"Of course I do," replied Peter.

"You never look beyond your nose, do you?"

"Why, of course I do," replied Peter. "If I didn't, how would I ever see anything?"

Jerry laughed. "I didn't mean that just that way," he explained. "I mean you never look ahead and plan for the future. Now you haven't prepared a single thing for the coming winter, have you?"

"No," replied Peter promptly. "Each day brings its own troubles and they are plenty, thank you. I don't see any use at all in worrying about things that may never happen. It is time enough to worry when there is something to worry about."

"Who is worrying?" demanded Jerry. "I'm not worrying. It is just to keep from having to worry that I have been working so hard. Now, you know, Peter Rabbit, that just as surely as you are sitting here on this bank you are going to have a hard winter. You are going to have hard work to get enough to eat; you are going to have hard work to get around in bad weather, and you are going to shiver with the cold."

"Maybe we won't have a bad winter," interrupted Peter.

"Now, I," continued Jerry without heeding the interruption at all, "am going to be perfectly comfortable, no matter what kind of winter we have. It won't make any difference to me how cold or how stormy the weather may get. I won't make that much difference."

Jerry slapped the ground with his tail. "In that house is a nice, soft, comfortable bed of grass. Those walls are so thick the cold will not get through. Jack Frost will freeze the mud in the walls and roof so hard that none of my enemies can tear them open. I can swim about under the ice when I please. After I have rested a little I shall store up a few supplies of food in a storehouse I have provided in the bank. Then Jack Frost may come as soon as he pleases. All winter long I shall live in perfect ease and comfort and all because I have looked ahead and prepared for it by a little hard work now."

"Huh!" said Peter. Then at a sudden thought he added, "Do you have to lay up a store of food?"

"Oh, no," replied Jerry. "I don't have to. Usually, I can find enough roots and things in the mud at the bottom of the Smiling Pool."

"Then what do you do it for?" demanded Peter. "That's what I call a waste of time, not to mention the work."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Jerry. "It is thrift. It is making sure in case I shouldn't be able to get all I need from the bottom of the Smiling Pool."

"Huh," said Peter. "Huh! I never do any work I don't have to." "Which means that you haven't yet learned how to live," laughed Jerry Muskrat.

Mother's Cook Book

TRY THESE SANDWICHES

A SANDWICH filling that will keep is one which will be appreciated by the busy housewife. Here is one:

Boil two cups of tomatoes a few minutes, add half a pound of chipped beef and one-half pound of cheese which has been chopped or put through the food chopper. Bring to a boil. Add one well-beaten egg, cook carefully to spreading consistency. Add cayenne and use as filling on any kind of bread.

Take a can of salmon, remove the skin and bones, add three hard-cooked egg yolks, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, one-half cupful of cream salad dressing, salt and pepper to season. Mix well and spread on buttered whole wheat bread.

Cucumber and Onion Sandwich.

Peel and chop fine two firm cucumbers and grate two mild onions, add pepper, salt and a half teaspoonful of sugar. Place in a sieve to drain and chill in the ice chest. At serving time add French dressing, drain and mix with mayonnaise to spread. Serve on buttered whole wheat bread and garnish with stuffed olives.

Olive and Celery Sandwich.

Chop fifteen large olives, three stalks of celery and three sweet cucumber pickles, mix well and add three tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of catsup and one-half teaspoonful of mustard. Use on thinly sliced white bread well buttered.

Pigs-in-a-Blanket Sandwich.

Select as many oysters as needed, take an equal number of slices of bacon, one green pepper chopped. Place one oyster on the bacon, sprinkle with chopped pepper, roll up and fasten with a toothpick. Pan broil in a hot frying pan. Place in a hot oven until ready to serve. Spread slices of bread lightly with mustard or any other mixture you prefer and serve the little pigs in between the slices.

Moulting Time Bird's Holiday

Wild geese retire to distant haunts when they lose their flight feathers during the moult. They choose out-of-the-way places where they can rest until their feathers grow again. Hundreds of other birds seek shelter where they will not be disturbed, for moulting time is the birds' holiday.

"Once in a Blue Moon"

Under varying conditions the moon appears to be of different colors. It has never appeared to be of a blue color and hence "once in a blue moon" may be taken to mean that the occurrence referred to in the expression will most likely never happen.

An Astrophane

The astrophane is an educational globe illustrating the stars and constellations and their relationship and showing the sun and its planets and their relative movement. By means of a simple adjustment an observer can find the position of the stars at any time of the day or any date.

Deaths

Mrs. John W. Fish.
Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock for Mrs. John W. Fish from the home, nine miles west of Cass City. Rev. Wilson officiated and burial was in Almer cemetery.
Ida Belle Coleman was born October 30, 1880, at Manchester, Mich., and came to Tuscola county with her parents when a girl. She was united in marriage with John W. Fish in 1898 and they have lived in Columbia township since. Mrs. Fish passed away at Pleasant Home hospital Thursday, November 16, after an illness of two weeks.
She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Lyle Hitchcock of Detroit and Miss Florence Fish, at home; a step-mother, Mrs. Sarah Coleman, of Colling; two sisters, Mrs. Etta Scully of Manchester and Mrs. Anna Miller of Jackson, and two grandchildren, besides a host of friends.

Frank R. Dunham.
Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, from the A. McPhail home on South Segar street, for Frank Robert Dunham, who passed away Thursday afternoon in Port Huron City hospital after an illness of several years. Rev. W. R. Curtis officiated and burial was in Elkland cemetery.
Frank R. Dunham was born March 22, 1888, in Cass City. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Dunham of Detroit; one sister and four brothers, Mrs. Fred Myer and James Dunham of Detroit; Albert of Royal Oak; Herbert of New York; Ernest of Counaut, Ohio; two half brothers, Floyd Dunham of Detroit and Lee Dunham of Los Angeles, Calif.; four half sisters, Mrs. Howard Reid (Mabel) of Birmingham; Mrs. John Folk (Florence) of Imlay City; Mrs. Sterling Matthews (Hazel) of Detroit and Mrs. William Chambers of Berkeley.
Relatives who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James S. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunham, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Myers, Frederick Smithson and Mrs. Pauline Smithson Thompson, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dunham of Royal Oak; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dunham of Counaut, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. John Folk of Imlay City.

Mrs. Finley Ross.
Mrs. Finley Ross passed away Friday evening, November 17, at her home on South Segar street after an illness of three weeks.
Catherine McIntyre was born August 15, 1851, in Lobo, Ontario, and was united in marriage with Finley Ross at Park Hill, Ont., in 1875. Mr. and Mrs. Ross made their home in West Williams, Ont., for two years and then came by way of Forester to a farm at Sheridan where they lived until coming to Cass City twenty-three years ago, when they purchased a home on West street, where Mr. Ross died in February, 1921.

Mrs. Ross was a loving mother and a kind and thoughtful neighbor, always ready to lend a helping hand wherever it was needed. She never tired of telling how much she loved her home in Cass City.
She has been quite well all summer, visiting with her neighbors and attending church regularly until she was taken ill a few weeks ago.
She leaves to mourn two sons, Hector and Dan J. Ross, both of Sheridan; three daughters, Mrs. Allen McIntyre of Detroit, Mrs.

William Cleland of Minden City, and Miss Kathryn Ross of Detroit, who has spent the last eight months with her mother. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Martin Carey, of Port Huron; a brother, Neil McIntyre, of North Bay, Northern Canada, and eleven grandchildren.
Funeral services were held Monday morning from St. Columbkil church at Sheridan. Rev. Fr. William X. Fitzpatrick read High Mass and told of the staunchness of the faith of Mrs. Ross. Burial was in the church cemetery.
Relatives from out-of-town who attended the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Ross were Mr. and Mrs. Martin C. Carey of Port Huron; Neil McIntosh of North Bay, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Allen McIntyre and family, John and Norman McIntosh, and John Trainor of Detroit; Mrs. Marie Uebelhoefer, Mr. and Mrs. John Obee and Neil McIntosh of Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. William Cleland of Minden City and many from Sheridan, Gagetown and near-by places.

Richard B. Ricker.
Richard Braun Ricker, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ricker of Owendale, passed away Sunday morning, November 19, at the Morris hospital.
Richard was born September 12, 1930, in the Morris hospital at Cass City. He was ill only a few days.
Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Owendale Evangelical church and burial was in the Williamson cemetery. Rev. C. A. Wilkie of Bay City conducted the services.
He leaves besides his parents, his grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. O. N. Braun and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ricker, two uncles, Henry Braun and Carl Ricker, all of Owendale.

end, reversed his field, and ran across the goal line, but a Cass City man was holding and the play was called back. Graham then punted dead on the Bad Axe 8 yard line. The Hurons returned the punt to Knight, who went 18 yards before he was stopped. Cass City made it a first down on the Bad Axe 20 yard line. Quick made eight yards on a reverse. A fumble sent the locals back, and an incomplete pass lost the ball. The Hurons made seven yards in three plays, but the game ended before they punted.
This has been one of the most successful seasons for Cass City in many years. The Maroon and Grey team has piled up 226 points in eight league games, while holding opponents to 12, six of which were scored by Vassar against the third team. Rus Quick, candidate for All-State football eleven, has led his team by scoring 104 points. Knight and Ballaugh have also added plenty to the total. Although five of the regulars will graduate next June, another excellent eleven from Cass City will be seen next fall.

Pen Barn Adapted To Dairy Business

Pen barns for dairy cattle enable the dairyman to reduce his expense for equipment and for labor, according to the agriculture engineering department at Michigan State College.
This type of structure is not new but it has not been in much favor until recently. The theory of the building is to permit the cows to run loose in a large room in the barn all of the time they are confined except while they are being milked and fed grain. Hay is fed in racks in the main barn.
Units built to accommodate 12 cows provided a separate room with four stanchions for a milking room. Four cows are admitted, fed grain, milked, and returned to the main barn. The process is repeated as many times as necessary.
The college department claims that this type of construction not only saves equipment and labor but also produces cleaner milk. The cows keep cleaner in the main barn than they will when confined in stalls, and the small milk room can be kept in sanitary condition more easily than a stable in which the cows are kept overnight.
Cows in the main room have more freedom than when kept in stalls and appear to be more comfortable and less subject to injuries. Increases can be made in the herd without a corresponding increase in stall equipment.
More straw is required for bedding in the pen barn than is commonly used. Horned animals may become troublesome in the main barn, and the milk room may be cold unless it is small and well insulated.

OLDER BOYS' CONFERENCE AT KALAMAZOO, DEC. 1-3

The annual Michigan Older Boys' Conference sponsored by the State Y. M. C. A. will be held in Kalamazoo on December 1, 2, and 3. The Saginaw-Tuscola Area Y. M. C. A. last year had twenty-four boys and three leaders at the conference, and this year's delegation is expected to be as large. The conference is open to any boys fifteen years of age or over regardless whether or not they are members of a Hi-Y Club. Sunday schools and young people's societies are eligible to send delegates and should communicate at once with the local Y. M. C. A. leaders or should send a card to Thomas

A. Rowe, care of Y. M. C. A. in Saginaw.
The principle speakers will be Dr. A. W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and also president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Max Yergan of South Africa; Samuel S. Wyer, consulting engineer of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Royal G. Hall, Albion College; Dr. W. H. Aulenbach of Cranbrook; and Geo. W. Campbell of Cincinnati, Ohio. Other leaders will include Boyd L. Walker of Detroit, Smith Barnham, Kalamazoo; Walter L. Jenkins, Detroit; G. R. Koopman, Ann Arbor, Owen Emmmons, Detroit; Stanley Niles, Eaton Rapids; Dr. Wendell Vreeland, Detroit; and Stanley Graves, Detroit.
The theme of the conference this year is "Youth Moves in New Directions." This idea will be worked out through talks and through discussion groups.

Good Intentions
"Good intentions," said Uncle Eben, "need good judgment to back 'em. A hen don't get no credit whatsoever for settin' on a china egg."

Chile Calls Horseshoe Necessity
Horseshoes have been listed in Chile as a prime necessity and placed under government control.
