Circuit Court

In circuit court in Tuscola county on Monday, a default judgment was granted in the case of Dennis Andress vs. Samuel McCreedy in the amounts of $1,232.71 for damages and $22.75 for costs.

Victor Weisheim pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the oil station of Fred Heinzman in Wisner township on Sept. 17. It appearing to the court that the young man is not likely to engage in a criminal course of conduct, he was placed on probation for two years under the supervision of A. F. Clark, probation officer, and ordered to pay $1.00 a month to the officer during that period and $25.-00 to county clerk within 30 days. Weisheim was ordered to abstain from intoxicating liquor and to avoid saloons and poolrooms. Two other young men charged with the same offense will be brought into court soon.

The court granted temporary alimony to Mrs. Harmon Crosby to be paid by her husband at the rate of $3.00 a week.

In the case of the Lincoln Life Insurance Co. vs. Henry D. and court ruled the company may proceed with the sale of the land if defendants do not pay the amount due within 30 days.

A similar ruling was made in the case of Lewis Walton, receiver Would Your Guess Be Ten, of the Michigan Savings Bank of Vassar, in a foreclosure proceedings against Clarence A. and Bertha Rowland.

A divorce decree was granted in the case of Fred H. Chapman vs. Stella D. Chapman.

or Twenty or More Persons of That Age?

How many persons 80 years or more of age reside at Cass City? Would you guess ten or twenty? Probably the last named may come closer to the correct number. At any rate, a brief outline of the activities of these persons eligible to join an octogenarian club may prove of interest, so the first of these sketches is printed in the Chronicle this week.

Probably no two men enjoy a wider business acquaintance in this section of the Thumb of Michigan than Christian Schwaderer and James Tennant. Both mingled in a business way with the public here

Oh Cynthia! Norma Knight

$$$$$$$$

Almost every Sunday Geoff spent the day in the mountains. Miss Nona and the Captain often went with him if the destination was not too high or the ride too long. Tenny would come if Cynthia would; but Cynthia wouldn't. She pleaded fatigue from her long week, or accounts to be gone over. So it was with a sense of real triumph that Geoff prevailed upon her one October morning to drive with them all to Red Rock lake.

"We'll pack a basket," Cynthia said, entering into the plan with an enthusiasm which astounded its promoter. "There's chicken-Marguerite can fry it and we'll nack it in the thermos basket so it will stay hot. We'll build a fire and make coffee just for the outdoorsiness of it."

Tenny capered about the room with joy and Miss Nona beamed at her daughter.

"Like to drive?" Geoff asked Cynthia as they went down the steps together.

To his surprise she took the seat behind the wheel and presently they were bowling smoothly along.

Cynthia had discarded her hat. and the tendrils of hair curled about her forehead endearingly. Geoff marveled at the change in her. She was gay, youthful, charming. She had dropped her weariness, her hint of hostility toward him, her air of worry, like a cloak.

What a dinner that was! Marguerite's fried chicken was crisp and hot; her buttered rolls melted in their mouths.

"Why do we have to go down?" Tenny asked wistfully. "Why don't we just send Cary and Geoff back for some blankets and things and stay up here all the time?"

"By this time tomorrow night there may be three feet of snow right where you're sitting," Cynthia other October as warm as this up pected.

"Something else has thawed out nificantly. "Your manner toward him, my dear sister!"

"Don't you like Geoff, Cynthia?" Tenny wanted to know.

She laughed, flushed a little. breezes up here! I'm like Tenny -I want to stay for ever!"

She's lived in so many places, she's had so many ups and downs that she had acquired a rather terrible distrust of people when she came to us."

"She needed your mother's petting," he said.

Cynthia smiled. "Miss Nona's strong point is petting. You come in for a good share of it."

"And, like Tenny, I thrive on it," he replied somewhat aggressively. "As I've told you, my parents were abroad during most of my childhood and I know what Tenny went through at boarding school."

"It must have been hard for your mother," Cynthia commented, "being pulled between her duty to you and to her husband. I-I know this will add to your belief in my hardness!-I'm glad she was the sort of woman who put her husband first! There's something so magnificent about that sort of love," she said wistfully. "Something so royal in a marriage which allows nothing-not even children-to dis-

Geoff was silent through sheer astonishment. Cynthia's words gave him too a new vision of his mother. For the first time he was able to think of her as a wife as well as a somewhat casual mother

It was nearly sunset before they turned the car downward and began the long descent from mountain heights to the city below. Geoff had a feeling of extraordinary satisfaction over the day. Cynthia's mind to him heretofore had been like a long corridor in which door after door stood, all closed. Today she had opened several of them and given him fascinating peeps at the rooms within.
