100 ATTEND SOIL

FERTILITY FIELD DAY

Three Soil Experts Explain Results in Fertilizer Tests at Reagh Farm.

One hundred farmers journeyed to the John Reagh farm in Elkland township, 2 1/4 miles west of Cass City, on Wednesday afternoon to hear Dr. Mallar, Dr. Paul Rood and Dr. R. L. Cook of the soils department of Michigan State College explain the results of four years' work in fertilizer tests made by this department on this farm. Results covering this period of work on the farm were displayed on posters in each field.

Later in the afternoon, one-year projects on sugar beets on the Ben Loomis farm and on barley on the John Dillman farm were inspected by the farmers.

The soil of the 120-acre farm of John Reagh is described as Miami Loam soil. Rotation cultivated crops of corn, beans and sugar beets are grown as well as oats, barley, wheat and hay.

A fund of information is contained in a bulletin showing the three-year average crop, the return on the dollar, and the crop price required to pay for the different types of fertilizers used on the same kind of soil on the Reagh farm. With five brands of fertilizer used in growing oats on this

WHEAT CHECKS ACT AS CROP INSURANCE

Benefit Payments Are Based upon Past Production; Not Reduced by Low Yields.

Benefit payments for reductions in the production of wheat will act as crop insurance for all farmers who have contracts because these payments are made on the basis of past average production instead of the yield of this year's crop, according to Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture.

The second payment on the wheat contracts, which originally was to be eight cents a bushel, has now been increased to nine cents a bushel. This will bring the total of the second payment to farmers in the United States to more than $30,000,000. Michigan farmers will receive $264,000 as their share.

Wheat production in the United States has been lowered by the drought but, even in sections where the crop is a total failure, those farmers who cooperated with federal authorities, will receive as large benefits as if the crop had been normal.

This is one of the ways in which the agricultural adjustment administration plans to take a portion of the gamble out of farming. Production based on the needs for consumption is as good business for farmers as it is for any other industry. Reserve stocks can be carried to remove any danger of inadequate supplies of food and huge, unsalable surpluses can be eliminated.

The first checks of the second benefit payment for wheat reduction are going to states where there are complete crop failures. Checks to other states will follow as rapidly as the hundreds of thousands of individual payments can be made.

Craig-Ramsey Nuptials June 17

A very quiet wedding took place Sunday morning, June 17, when Miss Helen R. Craig, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig of Evergreen township, and A. Riley Ramsey of Marlette, were married by Rev. G. Nevin at Standish, Michigan.

The bride wore a white linen suit and carried pink roses. The couple were unattended. Mr. Ramsey is a graduate of Marlette high school and for the past six years has been affiliated with the circulation department of the Port Huron Times-Herald.

Mrs. Ramsey is a graduate of the Cass City high school and of Central State Teachers' College. For the past six years, she has been teaching in the public schools of Pontiac.

Previous to the close of the school year, a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Ramsey was given by teachers of Crofoot school. Miss Genevieve Craig also entertained for her at a linen shower, and Miss Geraldine Friedli at a kitchen shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey will make their home in Marlette after a short motor trip in northern Michigan.

Will Teach in Pratt Institute

Miss Florence Bigelow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Bigelow, of Cass City, has been graduated from the Pratt Institute at Brooklyn, N. Y., after a year's study in dietetics in that institution. Previous to that time, Miss Bigelow was a student at Cass Technical School at Detroit and for several years was employed as a chemist in the plant of the Nestle's Milk Products, Inc., at Cass City and in that company's laboratory in New York City.

Miss Bigelow has accepted a position as instructor in the Pratt Institute for the coming year, a position which came to her unsolicited. She is expected home today and will spend about two weeks here with her parents. She expects to attend a summer school for several weeks.

Three Amendments at Fall Election

Three constitutional amendments at least, will be submitted to Michigan voters at the general election, Nov. 6. A total of 161,627 signatures is needed to qualify for a place on the ballot containing the proposed amendments. The final date for filing is July 6.

First on the ballot will be the proposal to elect all Michigan judges on separate non-partisan ballots. If the amendment is approved by the voters, all judicial elections ranging from the supreme court to municipal courts, will be removed from partisan elections.

The second proposal, if approved, would make it impossible for any future legislature to increase automobile weight taxes above 35 cents per hundredweight. This is the amount now collected by the state under the law passed by the last special session of the legislature. The third proposal on the ballot, if approved, would reduce the gasoline tax from 3 to 2 cents a gallon, and would prevent any future legislature from increasing the tax.

To Improve Cass River Bridge Here

The Tuscola County Road Commission has let the job of improving the bridge over the Cass river, one mile south of Cass City, and the work commenced early this week.

The bridge will be widened 4 feet 11 inches, making a 20-foot clear roadway. It will be raised 34 inches and undertrussed and the plank floor will be replaced with concrete. The traffic load will not be limited as it has been in late years.

The northwest end will be moved four feet and the southwest end the same distance, bringing the bridge straight with the highway. When the bridge was erected 30 years ago, it crossed the river at a slight angle, "contrary to traffic" as roadmen express it.

Segar Street May Be Paved This Year

Members of the village council were scheduled to be in Caro yesterday (Thursday afternoon) to confer with members of the Tuscola County Road Commission regarding the paving of Segar Street, Cass City, one mile in length and 20 feet in width.

The proposition for the paving came from the county commission unsolicited and the expense will be borne by county funds except the amount necessary for hand labor on the job. Paving of this stretch of county highway has been desired by local citizens for several years and it is probable that the commission and the council will reach a satisfactory agreement which will assure the completion of the project this summer.

Several members of the club spoke briefly and the principal address was given by Roland O. Kern, Caro attorney. "The object of the club as well as the whole conception of conservation is to educate the people to preserve wild life and natural gifts to the state," said Mr. Kern. "The way of accomplishing preservation of natural resources is the process of education."

ONE-DAY FAIR AT CASS CITY JULY 4

Prizes Offered on Live Stock Exhibited by Youthful Breeders.

Announcement is made of a one-day fair at Cass City on Wednesday, July 4, at which time prizes will be offered on boys' and girls' live stock exhibits. As Cass City is the center of one of the best 4-H live stock breeders' groups in the country, there is opportunity for securing exhibits from flocks and herds from which grand champions and reserve champions have been taken and shown at some of the nation's largest fairs in past years.

Harry T. Crandell, who is promoting the project, says that Angus McPhail will be in charge of horse racing at the fair grounds during the afternoon, and that plans include baseball game, foot races and other contests. A "junk" auto race for two miles in which the poorest car stands the best chance of winning the prize is another feature of the afternoon program.

Music by the Cass City Ladies' Band and a pavement dance on Main Street at night are included as features of the day, it is announced.

Rev. P. J. Allured is the dean of the school and is in charge of the beginners' division. "Our Happy World" is the subject of study. Invention of Compass

The origin of the compass has been attributed consecutively to the Chinese, Arabs, Greeks and Etruscans, but it is not absolutely certain how far these accounts are correct. The invention of the compass was partly due to the discovery that a lodestone or a piece of iron which has been touched by a lodestone will direct itself to a point in a northern or southern position, depending on its position north or south of the equator.

RUINS OF 5 CITIES
FOUND ON ONE SITE

Levelled by Invaders and Restored Each Time.

Philadelphia.—Buried beneath the placid wheat fields of Palestine lie the remains of a great city which was leveled by invaders at least four or five times and restored to its former grandeur after each invasion. It was the city of Beth Shemesh in Ah Shems. Situated on important trade routes between Egypt, Palestine and Syria, the city flourished between 1800 and 600 B. C. Five archeological expeditions from Haverford college have delved into the ruins 20 feet below the waving wheat. A sixth expedition is being arranged for next year.

Findings of the fifth expedition now are being collected under the direction of Prof. Elihu Grant, director of the department of biblical literature at Haverford.

The mounds, which have yielded startling historic material, are located 20 miles east of Jerusalem, overlooking the Mediterranean.

The first expedition unearthed three Bronze age cemeteries. Successive excavations have disclosed four successive levels, representing distinct epochs in the city's history.

When the city was first pillaged and burned by invaders, walls and roof beams were leveled to the floors and the new builders erected another city on the ruins of the old. This process was repeated, the findings show, until at least four or five cities were destroyed and rebuilt on the same site.

Evidence of the prosperity of the ancient city is seen in the remains of temples, palaces, dwellings, shops, and industrial properties. Vases, flasks, bowls, tools, weapons, and jewelry indicate the personal wealth of the inhabitants who dwelt there 3,000 years ago.

As a result of the findings a Palestine museum has been formed at Haverford college. It contains an abundance of valuable material and Doctor Grant has published several reports of his discoveries.

Census Shows Apple to Be Most Popular in Pie

New York.—A nationwide census of pie-eaters, involving an analysis of 12,000,000 meals, shows that apple is the most popular.

Among pies, apple is the men's choice in all parts of the country. Women also prefer apple pie in the East, but in the West they show a slight preference for lemon meringue.

The pie census, reported by the Woman's Home Companion, indicates that cherry pie is growing rapidly in favor everywhere in America. In fact, cherry is going ahead so fast that, if it continues its present rate of gain, it may be expected to outstrip apple pie in about 65 years.

The most popular luncheon menu in America today consists of a sandwich, a cup of coffee and a piece of pie.

The pie industry, however, has suffered quite seriously from the depression of the last four years. Americans eat one-third fewer pies now than they did at prosperity's peak. They ate $75,000,000 worth of pie in 1929, but only $55,000,000 worth last year.

The 20 most popular pies, after apple, cherry and lemon meringue, are: Pineapple, mince, pumpkin, prune, custard, raisin, rhubarb, strawberry, cranberry, chocolate, apricot, coconut, blackberry, raspberry, cream, date, huckleberry, cheese, squash and peach.

Work Horses Are Still Favored in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa.—The horse still is holding its own in Philadelphia. And there's a reason, according to Max Litz, who stables 70 horses. "No one as yet has invented a truck that stops at red lights automatically," he said, "or starts when spoken to, or always realizes when it's on the wrong side of the street and corrects the error, or runs all day on a bag of feed and never stalls."

Smallest Hen's Egg

Grapeland, Texas.—What is believed to be the smallest hen egg in existence was laid here recently by a chicken owned by Mrs. C. C. Hill, of Grapeland. The egg weighed eight and three-fourths grains.

Wise Hen Eats Bugs on Auto Radiator

Holland, Texas.—A hen that wearied of barnyard fare has added a distinctly new service to the garage-filling station operated here by Virgin Huddleston.

Tourists driving in for gas and oil usually carry a delicious supply of bugs and grasshoppers on the radiators of their automobiles. The hen hops on the bumper and pecks out the insects, dropping them to the ground. She then inspects the machine from stem to stern for other dainty bits.

When the car drives away, the hen enjoys a real meal. She roosts atop the town hearse, and nests beneath a blacksmith's anvil.

Cleveland Is to Have a Lakefront Airport

HERE are some of the hundreds of OWA workers who are employed in building a lakefront airport for Cleveland, Ohio. Ingalls, calls for the expenditure of $250,000.

Colorado Mother of Rivers

Colorado is the mother of rivers, says Nature Magazine. From high mountains great streams radiate like the spokes of a wheel. One system reaches the Mississippi through the Platte and the Arkansas, another courses southward through the Rio Grande to the Gulf, while a third flows through the Colorado to the Pacific. These rivers have fixed the routes for land transportation, the areas of irrigated agriculture, and the location of cities and towns.

Scott Hid Name

For many years Sir Walter Scott's novels were published anonymously, for Scott, seriously and with good reason, believed that if he put his name to "Waverley" and "Guy Mannerling" he would injure his reputation as a poet and even his character as a gentleman—a good commentary on the social standing of the novelist in his days.

She leaves her husband, Ray Gunningham; five children, Charles, Mary Jane, Buddy, Martha Ray and Myrindell; her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William Gage; one sister, Loretta Gage, and a host of other relatives and friends. She was buried near Port Huron.

POULTRY

MILK POWDER FEED PROVES EFFICIENT

Adequate Vitamin G Ration Needed by Poultry.

Much of the advance in the science of animal feeding that has taken place since 1900 was first proved on a practical basis in the poultry yards of America. Poultry mash usually contain a larger variety of feeds selected especially for their value as to mineral content, laxative effect or vitamin value than do other animal rations.

Milk has been a standby of the successful poultrymen for a number of years. As poultry raising became more of a business and the birds were taken off of the range and crowded into houses it was found that certain types of diseases could more easily be regulated by the addition of milk.

When bulk milk became too troublesome and too valuable, powdered milk was found to be more efficient. The perfection of the process of drying skim milk widened the use of this product among poultry feeders. At the same time dry milk powder aided greatly in maintaining the health and vigor of birds during the laying season as well as giving the chicks a better start in life. With the discoveries of vitamins milk got another boost.

The most recent of these vitamins that is holding the attention of poultrymen is vitamin G, the vitamin that affects growth and the hatchability of eggs. Lack of vitamin G has reduced average hatchability below 10 per cent and sometimes as low as 2 per cent in carefully controlled experiments at the Ohio experiment station and those results have been confirmed by similar experiments carried on by other investigators. Growth of chicks fed rations deficient in vitamin G has been affected adversely almost, to an extent equal to the reduction in hatchability of eggs.

Since vitamin G is present always in the watery portion of milk it is present in skim milk and in whey which is the watery part left after the making of American or Swiss cheese. This dried cheese whey is designated by government feed control officials as milk sugar feed. It is listed as such in the list of ingredients that the law requires to be printed on the outside of the bag.

When skim milk is dried approximately 10 to 11 pounds of liquid are required to make one pound of powder. When whey is dried it requires about 15 to 16 pounds of liquid to make one pound of powder.

But the vitamin G element so valuable and so essential to poultry health and poultry profits is present equally in each ounce of liquid whether it is skim milk or whey. Therefore, the more liquid represented in one pound of powder the higher will be the vitamin G potency.

Cornell university at Ithaca, N. Y., is famed for its research in animal feeding. For several years Dr. L. C. Norris and his associate, Victor Heiman, have been working on the sources from which poultry might get vitamin G most economically. This report on the work of milk sugar feed, dried cheese whey, has recently been published.

According to the Cornell authorities, vitamin G is found in several well-known products. Beef or pork liver is especially strong in this respect. Dried yeast is also a carrier. But, the outstanding sources as far as the farmer and poultryman is concerned are milk products.

Corn apparently has absolutely none of it, while wheat and wheat products have only a trace. Fish scrap may have it in small amounts or may have none at all, while meat scrap has a relatively small amount.

These studies show that baby chicks whose rations contained an adequate amount of vitamin G grew three or four times as fast as those whose feed was deficient or lacking in this vitamin. While the number of eggs produced during the experimental period did not seem to be affected, the hatchability of the eggs from the hens which did not receive this vitamin varied from 8.3 to 31.4 per cent and averaged only 21.9 per cent compared with about 70 per cent for eggs from hens receiving adequate vitamin G ration.

Dressed Ducklings

In order to have dressed ducklings appear to the best advantage and also to insure their keeping qualities as long as possible, it is important that they should have no feed in their crops when they are killed. This means that if they are to be killed in the morning, which is the usual practice on commercial duck farms, the ducklings should be fed for the last time the previous night. If, however, they are to be killed in the afternoons, they can be fed lightly in the morning. The regulations regarding all dressed poultry for the market state that they shall have been starved for sufficient length of time before being killed to empty crops and intestines, during which time they should have access to clean drinking water.—Montreal Herald.

Mermash the Life Time Feed

WE HAVE been using Mermash and have put it to every test and have used it under practically all conditions found on a large poultry farm, a farmer told us recently. He said that Mermash:

1. Produces stronger chicks.
2. Chick losses are lower.
3. Pullets are well developed, early layers.
4. The hens lay more winter eggs.
5. The egg average per hen is higher.
6. The eggs are heavier shelled.
7. Mermash hastens old hens through the molt.

ONLY MERMASH contains Pacific Ocean kelp (a plant) and ocean fish meal, both rich in digestible iodine and other minerals essential for health and growth. Michigan crops and soils are low in these elements. Mermash contains ground yellow corn, pure wheat bran, flour midds, alfalfa leaf meal, kelp and fish meal. Priced low.

WHY A COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER?

The following paper received favorable mention in a contest sponsored by Adrian VanKoeving of Zeeland, Mich. It was written by Miss Minerva Anderson of Marion, Mich.

A community newspaper is of the people, by the people, and for the people in the truest possible meaning. A community without a newspaper has no centralized, organized point of contact, no source of facts or information to draw on, no method of keeping informed in local, business or social affairs, no reliable time schedule of events. In fact no reliable way of reaching the people of the community at any given time no matter how important.

The community newspaper is a "letter from home" to absentees; a friendly helping hand in time of need. It welcomes the stranger and mourns the passing of old friends. It stands for sympathy in time of trouble and rejoices with you in your good fortune.

What would the merchant do without the "paper?" How find new customers or let anyone know when he has new goods, bargains and sales. How would he advertise to reach the public?

What about the farmer who has stock or feed to sell or who might want to buy or exchange?

How reach the most people in the shortest time and easiest way other than a small "ad" in the "paper." What if there is no paper?

A farmer's wife is ready to go to town for shopping and groceries. She looks up the different values offered by the merchants who have advertised in the paper. She has saved time and has the satisfaction of knowing she has received the most for her money. The paper has formed a connecting link between buyer and seller.

You may subscribe to all the big dailies and all the magazines you like but none of them will express for you your heartfelt thanks to your neighbors for their help in time of trouble, and much less will they carry an appeal for aid for your needy neighbors.

The community newspaper fills a real need in the everyday lives of the people. It gives the answer to many a vexing problem. Within its pages can be traced all the humor and pathos of the homely lives of the great army of "common people." Glance back over old files and there you will find the family record of all your old neighbors and friends. Marriages, births, deaths, misfortunes, sorrow, joy, the whole list of events which go to make up a human life. Take away the community newspaper and you take away the heart of the community. You take away no small pleasure from the old people who spend many a pleasant hour enjoying the one paper which means so much to them.

Many a child gained his first knowledge of the love of reading from the "home paper." His interest was aroused because he knew personally many of those he read about and if he had a birthday party he wanted to read himself what was in the "paper" about it.

The community newspaper provides a condensed review of all important current events, especially the doings of Congress and the Legislature. It provides a way for Senators and Representatives to reach their own particular public through personal messages which arouse and stimulate the interest of the people in these affairs.

It helps to keep the people interested and working together in church and school activities, in social and charitable organizations. It is in fact a weekly review of worthwhile happenings at home and abroad.

The agricultural page always contains good usable ideas and facts, many of them time and money saving. It pays to read the continued story too for thereby you escape from yourself a while, you travel in far countries, you live the joys and sorrows of unknown personalities and visualize the triumph of right over wrong.

The community newspaper is advisor, counsellor and friend to every man, woman, and child in the community. When the financial crash came the newspaper was hit along with everything else but did it complain and cut off the mailing list the names of those who couldn't pay? It did not! It merely shouldered the heavier burden and "kept on sawing wood." It tried a little harder to help and cheer the other fellow and—waited for better times? Not waited. It set about helping to make better times but it can't do it alone.

Your community newspaper needs your help now as never before. It has never failed you yet but it cannot do the impossible. It cannot help him who will not help himself. Read and make use in the best possible way of the different departments of your "paper." You can't afford not to.

The better the community the better the newspaper and the better the newspaper the better the community. It works both ways.

And remember the old saying, "You never miss the water till the well runs dry."

OBSERVATION
By
LEONARD A. BARRETT

One of the most convenient things about a home is a small instrument attached to a wall, inside of which is a filament which is very sensitive to the temperature. When the dial is set at 70 degrees Fahrenheit and the temperature of the room reaches that point, the filament moves in one direction, thus disconnecting the electric current which shuts off the fuel supply at the furnace. When the temperature falls below the 70 mark, the process is reversed. That little instrument is called a thermostat.

It was discovered by a man named Spencer who possessed unusual powers of observation. He had a job as a night watchman, and in addition to that task kept the fires in the furnace all through the night. After filling up the fire box he would rest at a little distance from the furnace, not too far to hear, every once in a while, a sharp crack at the furnace door. He soon discovered that the crack came at about the time the furnace needed a fresh supply of fuel. While this incident would have passed unnoticed by the majority of night watchmen, it started Mr. Spencer to thinking. Upon close observation he discovered that the sharp noise came from the center of the furnace door when it was hotter than the outer rim, and also snapped again when the cooling process set in. He worked at this idea with the final reward, after years of hard toil, of having made the first thermostat.

Some claim that the power of observation is a special gift with which only a few people are endowed. On the contrary it is something which can easily be cultivated. Not only are the things we look for nearest to us, but the opportunities for personal advancement and happiness are also all around us, but it takes an observing eye to see them. The same law holds good in the world of emotional and spiritual values. The blessings of friendship and love are frequently very near us, but we fail to see them because we have not developed the art of observation.

"Seek, and ye shall find," is a law which has proved its value many times. There are "sermons in stones—and good in everything" to the person with an observing eye and a patient mind.

Sanilac Breeders Buy Excellent Bulls

Robert Willis of Marlette and Gough Brothers of Deckerville bought two of the finest bulls sold at the Gladwin Beef Sale. The bulls were excellent type and the best breeding that money can buy. County Agent, Russell S. Wait, says that these were two of the finest bulls consigned and any breeder would be proud to have them in his herd. These bulls would make excellent sires to head most any beef herd in the county.

The Shorthorn bull bought by Mr. Willis was consigned by Peter Zimmerman & Son of Traverse City. Its ancestors are very outstanding in Shorthorn history, extremely high prices having been received for sale of these animals, and their show winnings are very outstanding.

The Hereford bull bought by Harold and John Gough was consigned by Lynn Spencer of Tyre and is sired by the $500.00 show bull bought by the Spencers and from a 4-H Club cow.

There were 45 head of cattle entered in the sale from 17 counties. They ranged in price from $31.00 to $96.00, the highest price being paid for a Milking Shorthorn heifer. The consigners from Sanilac county were: Robert and Lynn Spencer, Tyre, Hereford; Harry Gardner, Crosswell; Oscar Stimson, Brown City; and Gust H. Reiche & Son, Minden City, Milking Shorthorns; George Wright, Crosswell, Beef Shorthorns. These breeders should be complimented on their co-operation in furthering the use of good sires.

Other people from Sanilac county attending the sale were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gardner, Mrs. Henry Gardner and G. L. Perry of Crosswell; Fred Willis of Marlette; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Pattulla, Frank Ridley, Guss Terpenning and Clare Decker of Deckerville; Guss Link of Minden City and Russell S. Wait, county agricultural agent.

$4,260 VERDICT TO MRS. MARY GROBITZ OF VASSAR

After seven hours' deliberation, a federal court jury at Bay City on Friday returned a verdict of $4,260 against Dr. Chas. N. Race of Caro, and in favor of Mrs. Mary Grobitz, of R. F. D. 1, Vassar.

Negligence was alleged against Dr. Race, who struck Mr. Grobitz's conveyance from the rear, hurling him to the pavement on M-81, near Watrousville, on Sept. 28, 1933. Grobitz was driving a horse and wagon without lights and died in the Caro hospital shortly after he was hurled to the pavement in the accident.

Several witnesses for the plaintiff testified that the accident occurred while it was still daylight. The defense refuted this by producing witnesses who testified that driving lights were necessary on automobiles at the time of the crash.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY SECTIONS

Liams' Inn is the best it has been in over four years. He is getting more business from the city than in several years, Mr. Williams stated.—Harbor Beach Times.

Because of the continued favorable weather, the completion of pavement on M-53 from Marlette to M-46 trunk line highway, may be finished before the end of June, and opened for the motoring public before July 12th. In spite of several delays, because of broken machinery, cement has been laid as far as the four mile corner and it is anticipated that by this Saturday evening, that the road will be paved as far as the Neumann school. The road is now open for cars as far north as the three mile corner.—Marlette Leader.

At the regular meeting of the Brown City council, Monday evening, a recent offer of the government, to assist in local improvements was discussed and it was decided to take advantage of the proposition. Under the new PWA plan the city will furnish the materials and the government the labor. The government's portion will be an outright grant, not a loan. Completion of the east end sewer projects and re-sidewalking the entire town, where new walks are necessary, were decided on as the work that would be undertaken. Estimates on the sidewalk proposition are being prepared for presentation to Mr. Graham, in charge of the PWA in Sanilac. It is figured that the new sidewalks would cost 6-cents a foot, half of which would be borne by the adjacent property owner and half by the city.—Brown City Banner.

As the initial step in ending water pollution in the Sebawaing River, the Sebawaing village council Monday evening passed an ordinance that will prohibit the dumping of sewage and other refuse matter in the river. The ordinance, requires the installation of approved septic tanks where they are not already in use. To check the stench arising from the river, the council has ordered a quantity of chloride of lime to be dumped into the stream. Experiments with samples of the water have shown that the lime kills the odor. It is not expected the lime application will definitely stop the odor while the pollution continues, and it may be found necessary to repeat the treatment at intervals, especially during the warm weather.—Sebawaing Blade.

The Sanilac county poor commission announce an expenditure of $32,444.14 from July 1, 1933, to June 15, 1934, for relief, in reply to a communication directed to the Sanilac emergency welfare relief that Sanilac county had failed to put up its share of emergency relief funds.

"Next Monday morning, we will be glad to see the juniors, ages from 9 to 12, in line for a joyful three weeks' work and play," says Rev. W. R. Curtis, leader of the junior group. "As a foundation for our program, we are using a new book entitled 'Friends at Work.' Then we will dramatize friendship in the story. There will be special training in music; The handwork will be principally in clay modeling, some doing sculpture work this year, or woodwork, and spatterboard, the last being a new project. We will all be friends together." Miss Charlotte Warner is the instructor in music in this group. The intermediate department, or junior high school group (12 years and up) will spend a happy time together under the direction of Rev. Chas. Bayless and a staff of helpers. The course will include nature study, listening to good music, learning some of the great hymns of the church, studying about people who have made contributions in the fine arts, and exploring the Bible for great passages and dramatic situations. Hikes, music, trips, dramatics, projects in art and manual training, planning workshop services, and practice in leadership will fill every morning with worthwhile interests. All the activities of the group are planned to

CHAPTER XV

What's a Million Dollars?

They dined out at Cliff house, Mary Brown, John Stark and Denis Craig.

"And I thought I had matured enough to swing a man-size job!" Mary laughed ruefully to Stark, when he had recovered from what he called his Cinderella attack. "But my mind still was in rompers. I thought that to succeed I must start in as you and dad did. I can't see why dad didn't tell me—"

"He did, my dear. In the most dramatic way. By showing you through your own experiences. You'd have thought it a lot of twaddle if he had told you in words that the opportunities for pioneering today lie in quite different fields and under quite different conditions from those of fifty years ago. And—the experiences have been good for you."

"I don't deny it," Mary dared. "I've preened myself as Denny's silent partner." Surely, surely, something would make Denis stop looking at her as if she were merely a person with a million dollars to invest! Something would make him remember she was Mary! But not this.

"You probably mean that you relished it," she might take him lightly or seriously as she chose, "after you were convinced that the million was a loan to me, not a wind-fall."

Mary couldn't attempt to answer this. Had he forgotten the morning at the cabin when she proclaimed her undying faith in him—before she ever dreamed of his repayment?

"After your project is finished, Denis," Mary ventured, "maybe you could dream some dreams for Stark and Brown to materialize. Won't you perhaps ally yourself with us some time and in some way?"

Stark chuckled; grew daring himself in an effort to thaw out the iceberg remotely suggestive of Denis Craig.

"How's that, boy, for an answer to your claim that Mary had repudiated you by refusing two offers you said you made to keep her there?"

Two offers! Mary flushed painfully. Of course Mary Stark didn't know that one had been that of becoming telephone central, the other of becoming Denny's wife.

Denis looked as if he could have murdered his beloved friend John Stark.

"I understand, now, of course, why Mary couldn't be telephone central. And her note explained

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given that a mortgage dated the 3rd day of December, 1921, was executed by John J. Klein and Mary A. Klein, his wife, to Pinney State Bank of Cass City, Michigan, and recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for Tuscola County, Michigan, in Liber 151 of Mortgages at page 473.

her other refusal quite eloquently. She is entirely vindicated."

Mary huddled a morsel of steak savagely. Her note hadn't explained a thing! How could Denny be this way? Why was he determinedly standing aside to let her pass?

"By the way," Stark asked, "what were you doing in an art shop?"

Denny merely explored his salad. Mary answered. "He was looking for chintzes for Hope—for the cabin, having some silly compunction about using mine after I passed out of the picture."

"The cabin is closed," Denis stated without looking at her. "I'm planning on refurbishing it, and selling it."

"Oh, Denis!" The cry broke from her voluntarily, but it came from the very depths of her being. "You wouldn't—you couldn't—"

Denis held out his hand, then turned to offer it also to Mary.

"Good-by," he said pleasantly, as if she were just some one he had chanced to meet at a dinner. "Good luck to the new firm. And I shall be glad to see your father at any time."

He was gone. Mary leaned back in her chair, trying to look as if everything that mattered in the world hadn't gone with him. She must get herself together; must talk to John Stark. But John Stark was talking to her, his eyes narrowed, his bristling little mustache severe.

"Where's your courage, M. Brown? You aren't letting him go, are you?"

"Do you mean that I should ask him—I ask him—"

"Make the idiot talk, Mary!" Mary gave a wild frightened look at Stark, a desperate one at Denis Craig's back just vanishing through the door, took a deep breath and flew after him.

He turned, removed his hat with a faultless gesture.

"Denis, I want to talk to you."

"I don't believe there is anything to be said, is there, Mary?"

"I have a different slant on that."

"I'll miss my train."

"Miss it then!" defiantly. "May I talk to you?"

With a gesture which signified that he couldn't be rude, he followed her around the cliff, beyond the glare of lights, to the beach below, and seated himself beside her on a bench facing the ocean.

Mary, attempting to speak, made a strange noise and camouflaged it as a cough. How did a millionaire ask a poor man to marry her—if he happened to love her yet? And how did she find out if he did love her yet, all shut up as he was inside himself, locked and barred and the key farlung?

"Denis," she cried impatiently, looking at the rigid figure well, very well, on his own side of the bench, "it happens to be money, not leprosy, that I have! And besides, you treated me as if I wore a quarantine sign before you knew I had money. Why? Talk to me!"

"What's money?" truculently. But those were her lines, were they not? "And you should know that I can't give you friendship, Mary. I'm not made that way."

"What?"—she gave a preparatory swallow, then emitted the question—"what did you mean, Denis, when you said I wrote finis?"

"Mean? What else was your note? 'I just can't do it, Denny.'"

"But, you see now why I couldn't tell you—why I didn't want you to know I was—"

"I see no slightest reason in the world why you couldn't have told me everything—unless you meant that you were closing our chapter."

"You—you don't?" she gasped. She jumped up excitedly and ran to dabble an uncertain toe in the lapping water. Thinking. Trying to figure it out. A salt slipped into the water. She watched it, unconsciously; turned back suddenly to cry, almost joyously, "Can't you, Denny? Truly, can't you?"

He had arisen to pace the beach. Mary swung into step beside him. Half crying, but as if worlds were at stake, she demanded again, "Will you stick to that, Denny?"

"Mary, where is all this getting us? I can't stand more of it."

"Will you?" she persisted. "Stick to it that you can't see?"

"I'll swear it on a stack of Bibles, What of it?"

Exultant, she swung to seize him by the coat lapels. Her voice was wholly laughing now. "Denny!

Denny! All this talk is futile, then!"

"What else was your note but a definite refusal? Of my job and of me? Why didn't you tell me who you were?"

"I was afraid I'd lose you—if I did!"

"You'd—" The hands tightened their hold. Tersely, doggedly, analytically. "That—presupposes that—that you loved me, Mary."

"I've adored you forever!" His bewilderment rivaled the leap of light to his eyes, the swinging of the door wide open.

"And how could you lose me, except by telling me that you didn't want me? For heaven's sake, talk, darling! End this hell I've been in, if you can. Why wouldn't you marry me?"

He didn't even guess, the funny angel! Again her head was in the hollow of his shoulder. Again he was cupping it with his hand, pressing it closer.

"Men do run," she told him from that sanctuary, "from a girl with a million."

"A million! Great jumping grasshoppers!" demanded the idealist, the dreamer. "What's a million dollars?"

But those were her lines, too! Could their slants on this wretched million actually be identical?

"Denny, I never dreamed you had so much sense!"

He kissed her. He wiped her wet cheeks with his handkerchief. He held her close. His face, she thought, looked spiritual under the moon. He spoke in a voice all husky and tender.

"You precious little goose, what's money? Just a commodity. What has it to do with love?"

"Darling, I'm not an orthodox edition. I don't give a continental whether you come to me with rings on your fingers and bells on your toes, or just in your old pants—so long as you come!"

"I don't care whether we eat your caviar or my rye bread—if we but dine together. I don't care whether we live in Hope of Heaven which I shall remodel for you (sweetheart, I couldn't stand the place with you gone) or on one of your estates, so long as we live together. I don't care whether these precious fingers make biscuits or bridges, where your mind and hands turn to make life interesting while I'm at my day's work—so long as you are happy, and your heart is in my keeping."

"Denny!" His lips touched her forehead as he added, whimsically, "Maybe it isn't sense I have, darling. Maybe I'm just a case of a fool rushing in. But, at least," more seriously, holding her back until his eyes could meet hers, "I'm not a coward, dear. Not coward enough to sacrifice our happiness because people will say I'm marrying you for your money. I'm used to having people say things. You and I know what brings us together."

"I'm not afraid of the financial adjustments that will have to come. Surely, with an engineer and a promoter in the family, we can find some recipe to keep me from the role of Mary Brown's husband!" She slipped an arm about his neck. "I can name you a formula that will take care of the filthy lucre, public opinion, self-respect, and what have you."

"Name it, sweet."

"It is—just going on forever being a little mad together."

The Brown Bowl lay flecked with sunshine and shadow as live oak leaves swung to soft breezes. It was the wedding morning of the girl for whom the Brown Bowl had been named, and of the fledgling promoter who had dedicated it to her when she was a penniless engineer.

It was the culmination of two weeks' breathless with the romance of a man and girl brought together by an orphaned million; two weeks during which all interest had centered in the rich David Brown and his family. There were the arrivals of Mary Brown's sisters, their husbands and children; of Clarissa and the eleven trunks Mary had left behind. The arrival of wedding finery within those trunks.

A wedding as it is done in one of the country's richest families was no event to be taken lightly. The assembled guests waited eagerly. Mary Brown was the type to make an ideal bride, with her slender, fragile figure, eager face that would be flushed, eyes that would be starry, silver-gold hair that would glister through her wedding veil. And Denis Craig in wedding clothes would not be hard for the eyes, either.

"Come, come, Mary!" Eve was saying in the Brown mansion on the most exclusive hill. "Don't sit there mooning any longer. Get into your dress."

"No need, honey, until I see Denny's car coming across the valley."

"Why a man would rush off to sell a piece of land—on his wedding morning!"

Mary smiled dreamily, wrapping her arms about her silken legs as she curled up on a chaise longue. She was thinking of Denis—Denis, the go-getter who had rushed in two hours ago, afire with energy and enthusiasm.

"Darling, I've a big deal in the air! A relative of the baron is here—lukewarm about buying that tract adjoining ours and the baron's, and having it developed after our plan. He'll be more than lukewarm when I get through with him! I could carry it on while I'm finishing this. Girl—how would that be as a commission for a promoter on his uppers, and as a suitable first bid for the firm of Stark and Brown?"

"Go get it, Denny!"

"He's here only until noon. I'll try to get back in time for the wedding, dear!"

She was thinking of Denis last night, when, returning from a tramp, they had stood for a moment under the low-hung branches which formed a natural canopy where they were to stand as they were made man and wife—as Hilt had suggested on a morning long ago.

Denis had posed her for the part. "Tomorrow is so far away! I wish it were this very minute, sweet!"

"With your bride—this way?" she laughed, looking down at herself in boots and breeches.

"Even so?" tenderly. "She will be 'beautiful' in her wedding gown, but she's dearer to me this way. I have so many memories of her—like this."

Now the dress lay waiting on the bed. "You must get into it, Mary," seconded Diane.

"And you girls must go, this minute! Now, hurry along, and go in slowly and turn about several times so every one can have a chance to see your dresses. They're dreams!"

"Rissa! I help me, and I can easily get there ahead of Denny after I sight him!"

And after they had departed, she added, "And I can manage dad!"

But it was Denis Craig's car which first came swirling toward the amphitheater in a cloud of dust. There was a baffling glimpse of Denis leaping out and disappearing, back stage. Then shortly came the magnificent limousine of the copper magnate, parking at the entrance to a vine-covered archway which connected with the stage.

A breathless interval, with the orchestra throbbing out Lohengrin's melody of love triumphant—the bridegroom appeared at one side of the stage—and there seemed to be a common intake of breath about the amphitheater.

Then appeared the robust figure of David Brown, and, on his arm—on his arm—

Even the leaves seemed to stop rustling. Surprise crept into the strains of the orchestra.

To David Brown's arm clung a slim boyish figure in stout white shirt, riding breeches, and putts. Her eyes, eager and questing, sought out Denis Craig.

Denis, across the stage, started, gazed at her for one second, that touched tender look suffusing his face.

Then, after that first brief glance, he rushed forward with a quickly murmured, "Darling!" Mary Brown flew to his open arms, to clasp her own about his neck.

"You came—like this—for me, darling!"

"It's you I'm marrying, Denny! We can model our wedding togs at our reception."

"Our—" He looked down at himself, in the trig riding suit in which he had gone out to tramp over the project he had made a certainty.

"Criminy, honey!"

"I adore you for it!" she bubbled. "I—forgot to go home and change! I was thinking only about putting over that deal, and of getting here—"

He broke off as they became conscious of the approach of the dark-garbed Mission Father, with a small volume in his hands; of an audience making a display of handkerchief linen, as the orchestra rapturously prophesied: "Blest be ye both, far from all earth's annoy!"

Tears or laughter—which reflected more accurately the emotions aroused at this tossing down of the gauntlet to earth's annoy by this young man sufficiently uncowed by material things that he could forget to dress properly before marrying into a multi-millionaire family; by this girl with visions in her eyes, insouciantly tossing aside tradition, convention, and the outward symbols of her wealth to pamper the lightly uttered whim of a young adventurer who had not so much as five hundred dollars "in the pockets of them classy riding pants?"

Now, obviously to all the world, the girl to whom a million had been an obstacle to success stood within the circle of the arm of the man to whom a million had been an essential to success, fearlessly repeating the old vows which should start them forth upon the adventure of being a little—oh, quite a little—mad together.

They stood, at sunset, on the threshold of Hope of Heaven, watching the shadows deepen in their own isolated round little valley.

She laughed suddenly as her eyes fell upon a little pine tree snuggled chummily against the cabin. Her hand went out to touch its shining needles.

"There, Denny," she declared, "am I! At least, there I was! Just another foolish little pine tree that didn't like its own green needles! Remember?"

"I'm afraid I'm rusty on my old classics, sweet. I suppose there was a fairy—"

"Um! She pampered its whims, outfitting it again and again, according to its heart's desire. But each time its dreams ended only in frustration. It, too, discovered through experience, that one meets life best in one's own uniform."

Lesson for June 24

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT—And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Luke 1:33.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Carrying on Jesus' Work.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Saviour and Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall I Do With Jesus?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Comprehensive Program of Jesus.

The method of review must always be determined by the teacher in the light of the grade of the school and the aptitudes of the pupils. For senior and adult classes the best method will be to recall that all the lessons of the quarter are from the Book of Matthew which has as its theme, "Jesus Christ, the Messiah, King, and His Kingdom," and then to present each lesson in its relation to the central purpose. The lessons have a threefold unity, namely: one book, one theme, one person.

Lesson for April 1: The resurrection of Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. It is the grand proof that Christ was what he claimed to be, the Messiah, the Son of God. His resurrection authenticated his claim. By it he was declared to be the Son of God with power.

Lesson for April 8: The greatest in the kingdom are the childlike. Entrance into the kingdom is infinitely more important than rank therein. There is no way into the kingdom except through the new birth (John 3:3-5).

Lesson for April 15: In this lesson we have divine instruction as to behavior in case of ill treatment. Those who are Christ-like shall suffer persecution. Those who have entered the kingdom by birth from above will have a forgiving spirit.

Lesson for April 22: Riches are deceitful. Possessors thereof are prone to put their trust in them. It is most difficult for those who are rich to give place to spiritual things.

Lesson for May 6: To the nation which rejected Jesus as king, he officially presented himself at the appointed time in the counsel of God in the fulfillment of prophecy.

Lesson for May 13: The parable of the king's marriage feast stresses the necessity of a right relationship with God in order that there be a life of temperance and good citizenship. Our first obligation is unto God.

Lesson for May 20: In the Olivet discourse Jesus outlines the events to take place in the world in the interval between his crucifixion and his second coming. The parable of the ten virgins shows the right behavior of believers in this present age in view of the coming of the Lord.

Lesson for May 27: There is a coming judgment for the living nations on the earth. The issue of that judgment is determined by the attitude of the nation toward Christ the King. Their destiny will either be inheritance of the kingdom or eternal fire.

Lesson for June 3: The cross is the touchstone of human life. The behavior of Mary, Judas, Peter, and others gives us a cross-sectional view of the world.

Lesson for June 10: The climax of the quarter's lessons is reached in the lesson today. The supreme value of the quarter's lesson centers in the cross. Jesus did not die as a martyr or as an example, but to make an atonement for sin. Teachers, it is not a matter of getting your children to learn the lessons of a great teacher but to induce them to have faith in Christ's sacrificial work.

Lesson for June 17: The resurrection of Jesus Christ demonstrated his Messiahship and Deity. The command to preach the gospel in all the world is backed by his resurrection power.

The Greater Example
A Brahmin lawyer in Madras is quoted as saying to a missionary during the course of a long conversation about the spread of Christian ideals among the educated classes: "It's an interesting thing that though there have been Mohammedans in India for a thousand years, you never hear a Hindu say, 'I wish you were more like the Prophet.' We have known of Christianity for only a quarter of that time, but there is no educated Hindu who would not say to any Christian, 'I wish you were more like Jesus Christ.'"

The Resurrection
The resurrection of Jesus stands as a fact unaffected by the boastful waves of skepticism that ceaselessly through the ages beat themselves against it, retains its significance as a cornerstone in the edifice of human redemption, and holds within it the vastest hope of time and for eternity that humanity can ever know.—James Orr.

Advances Cosmic Rays Theory
Exploding stars that burn with a fire equal to 100,000,000 suns for six days and then are reduced from a diameter of 500,000 miles to little spheres 14 miles thick are the cause of cosmic rays, an authority states.

JUMPING FOR LIFE

WHAT a person can do well he almost always enjoys doing. Nimbleheels, own cousin to Danny Meadowmouse, is the very best jumper on the green meadows, so it is quite natural that he should enjoy jumping. He jumped and he jumped for Peter Rabbit's benefit. Peter stole out from the dear old Briar Patch and sat up in the moonlight that he might watch Nimbleheels better. Such jumping Peter had never seen before, and both he and Nimbleheels became so interested that they quite forgot that it is never safe to play in the Green Meadows unless a sharp watch is kept for danger. Suddenly a shadow swept over Peter. There wasn't a sound. Keen as are Peter's long ears he heard nothing. Luckily for him he was sitting absolutely still at the time. Had he moved the least tiny bit the end of Peter would have been right then and there, for the shadow was Hooty the Owl. Nimbleheels was so intent on his jumping that he didn't see that shadow at all until he shot up into the air above the tops of the grasses almost under Hooty. It is a question which was the most surprised, Nimbleheels or Hooty. Swiftly, but without a sound, Hooty turned in the air and Nimbleheels had no more than disappeared in the grass than Hooty was hovering right over it, his great eyes piercing down fiercely for a glimpse of the little Mouse he knew must be hiding among the grass stems right beneath him.

Bad Weather Tests Value of Alfalfa

Alfalfa again proved that it is the most dependable forage crop for Michigan, when the thousands of fields in this state came through the recent drought in fair condition and with vitality enough to promise well for a second crop according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College. On some of the lighter Michigan soils, alfalfa is practically the only forage or meadow crop which will return a fair amount of livestock feed. Yields will be lower for alfalfa than last year but the quantity of hay to be harvested in 1934 will still be greater than would be obtained from any other hay in a normal year. Injuries to alfalfa from late frosts in 1934 were greater than the damage done by lack of rain. Michigan harvested 874,000 acres of alfalfa in 1933, as reported by the U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates. Nebraska was the only state with a greater acreage. Yields from all kinds of tame hay in Michigan in the ten-year period, 1924-1933, averaged 1.14 tons per acre. Alfalfa during the same years yielded 1.6 tons per acre. The advantage for alfalfa becomes much more obvious when

Peter sat quite still with horror, which was, perhaps, just as well for Peter. Could it be that the little friend with whom he had become so well acquainted was going to be snatched away in the cruel claws of Hooty right before his very eyes? Could it be?

Suddenly Hooty screamed and at the sound out from the grass shot Nimbleheels in the longest jump Peter had yet seen him make. Hooty struck with his great curved claws, but he was too slow. As before, hardly had Nimbleheels landed in the grass than Hooty was hovering right over the very spot. Nimbleheels did not wait for him to scream but was in the air in another long jump almost as soon as he reached the ground. This time he jumped to the side instead of in the direction he had jumped before. Probably it was this that saved his life. Hooty was not ready for him in that direction and so he missed him again.

Then began the most exciting game Peter had ever seen. At least it seemed like a game. It wasn't of course, because both Nimbleheels and Hooty were very much in earnest, the pretty little cousin of Danny Meadow Mouse to save his life, and Hooty to get a good dinner.

Such jumping! It made Peter Rabbit ashamed to think that he had ever bragged about his own jumping. This way, that way, the other way, darted Nimbleheels over the tops of the grasses, and wheeling and turning on noiseless wings Hooty the Owl followed, always just a wee second too late, as he struck savagely with his great cruel-looking claws.

Peter wanted to shout to Nimbleheels and tell him to make for the dear old Briar Patch, but even if he could have he wouldn't have dared, for he knew only too well that Hooty wouldn't think twice of a little jumping mouse if he had a chance for a rabbit dinner. So there was nothing for Peter to do but to sit there and hope and hope with all his might that Nimbleheels would escape, and that Hooty would get far enough away to give him, Peter, a chance to bolt for the safety of his home.

It seemed to Peter that Nimbleheels was making shorter jumps. Was he getting too tired to jump? If so, the end would come soon. Peter held his breath.

FORD ANNOUNCES REDUCTION IN CAR PRICE

Reductions of $10 to $15 in list prices of 1934 Ford V-8 passenger cars and $10 to $20 in list prices of Ford V-8 commercial cars and trucks were announced last week by the Ford Motor Company effective Friday, June 15.

Ford prices have remained unchanged since the introduction of the 1934 Ford V-8 last December, the Ford Motor Company not having participated in the recent general automotive price increase. The reductions announced are, therefore, a decrease in the original price.

The price reduction on the standard and de luxe Tudor Sedans, most popular individual models in point of sales, is $15. Prices of other standard and de luxe body types were reduced $10 except prices of roadster, phaeton and cabriolet, de luxe types, which remain unchanged. Both standard and de luxe passenger cars have the same V-8 engine and 112 inch wheelbase chassis. Body types for both are identical except for the de luxe equipment.

Offer Aid for War Upon Chinch Bugs

Federal assistance in combating chinch bugs will be available for Michigan farmers when the deprecations of that insect become severe enough to warrant such help, according to the entomology department at Michigan State College.

Federal agencies have already co-operated in the Michigan battle against insects by supplying the state with ingredients for making poison bait for grasshoppers. This material has been sent to 29 counties.

The chinch bug becomes harmful in Michigan only in years of unusual weather conditions which permit the insect to multiply far beyond its ordinary numbers. The pest is usually confined to counties in the lower part of the state.

This year the grain crops are shortened by the drought and as the straw dies it becomes unpalatable to the chinch bugs and they migrate to corn fields. Control measures utilize this habit of traveling for destroying the insect. Barriers with traps are constructed across the probable line of march and the trapped bugs are killed.

It is impossible to control chinch bugs already in fields without destroying a part of the crop in building the barrier lines.

The barriers are furrows plowed to throw soil toward the field to be protected. The bottom of the furrow is smoothed down and a row of holes dug at spaced intervals in the center. A barrier of tar or tar derivative is then placed down the center of the furrow between the holes. Chinch bugs dislike the tar and follow it along the furrow to the holes, where they are trapped.

Members of the entomology department at the college have made application for 40,000 gallons of material to make these barriers. This quantity will protect from 35,000 to 40,000 acres of corn.
