STATE CROP REPORT HAS BRIGHT SPOTS

Potatoes and Some Fruits Are Expected to Be Better Than Last Year.

No famine is in sight in Michigan figures of crop prospects for 1934 released by Verne H. Church, state agricultural statistician.

The most important crop shortages for this state are in feed crops for livestock, hay and fodder crops being much below normal. The only chance to remedy this shortage now is to plant rye for pasture, as suggested by Michigan State College farm crops department.

Michigan potatoes are expected to produce more bushels than in 1933 if weather conditions from now until harvest are about normal. A crop of 22,950,000 bushels is indicated by present conditions. Last year's crop was 20,670,000.

Bean conditions are considerably worse than last year as a crop of only 3,055,000 bushels is in sight and the production in 1933 was 3,519,000 bushels. This decrease in probable production has occurred in spite of a planting five per cent greater than last season.

Corn is expected to yield 40,268,000 bushels in Michigan as compared with last year's total of 42,315,000 bushels. This crop has withstood the drought well and grows rapidly in the unusually hot weather prevailing. Increased plantings of fodder corn have been made to replace hay shortages.

Another optimistic angle of the crop report is the probability of a better harvest of peaches, pears, and plums than last year. The peach crop, however, is still much below the average production for the state. The apple crop will be 3,500,000 bushels less than last year's production of 8,651,000. Grapes and cherries are not as good as last year.

50 TO COMPETE FOR SUGAR QUEEN HONORS

Tuscola County Fair to Continue for Five Days in August.

The Tuscola County Fair will be held five days instead of four, as in previous years, according to Walter Ayre, secretary of the fair board, who says that the fair would continue from Tuesday to Saturday inclusive during the week of Aug. 21. Mr. Ayre said that he expected the fair would draw at least 10,000 people from all parts of the lower Thumb district.

The fair program will be featured by a sugar beet festival in which it is expected that 50 girls from Lower Michigan and the Thumb district will compete for the honor of being designated as the Michigan Sugar Queen. The winner of the contest will be given an airplane trip to Washington to present to President Roosevelt a bag of Michigan sugar together with jellies and preserves made from beet sugar.

SELECT SPEAKERS FOR FARMERS' DAY

Use of Surplus Land and Livestock Conditions Are on Program, July 27.

Present day problems are the keynotes for speakers who will talk to their Farmers' Day audience at Michigan State College, on Friday, July 27.

The afternoon program will be in charge of Dean E. L. Anthony, who will talk briefly before introducing Dr. George S. Wehrwein, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Wehrwein's subject is "What shall we do with our surplus land." The speaker, after years of service, in Texas, Washington, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, is qualified to discuss this question from an intimate knowledge of conditions in all parts of the country.

The difficulties confronting livestock men of Michigan have caused a special program to be arranged for them at 10:45 a. m. Professor G. A. Brown and Elmer Beamer, Blissfield, will have charge of the livestock discussion. Mr. Beamer is now making a survey of conditions in the Middlewest. As president of the Michigan Livestock Exchange and of the Buffalo Producers' Commission Exchange, Mr. Beamer is in daily contact with the livestock industry.

Members of the dairy and the crops department at the college will talk at the livestock men's meeting. All ways of alleviating the shortage of forage crops will be discussed. Federal aids which may be available will have a place on the program.

The afternoon meeting starts at 1:00 with a concert by the Lumberjack Orchestra. Massed choirs from the 12 entered in the country church choir singing contest will give one or more selections during the afternoon. This large entry list of choirs insures a spirited contest and a pleasing number for the audience.

If the weather continues as at present, the log sawing contest at three o'clock will be a hot number. Entries for this contest should register at the forestry building before one o'clock. Timber and implements will be furnished or contestants can bring along any pet saws that run better than college trained tools.

The morning, except for the livestock program, will be devoted to an inspection of the crops plots and the college livestock and the exhibit by the world's champion log roller who displays his skill at ten o'clock on Red Cedar River. This show will include fancy birling and a log rolling bout between the champion, William F. Girard, Gladstone, and his son.

The Lumberjack Orchestra will furnish a musical setting for the log rolling and a canoe tilting contest will conclude the forenoon sport features.

One-half Trench Dug for Pavement

Approximately one-half of the trench for the 20-foot pavement on Segar street will have been dug by this week-end by workmen of the Tuscola County Road Commission. The dirt is being hauled to the Cass River bridge one mile south of Cass City and used in constructing the approaches to the bridge. The contract for building one mile of cement pavement on Segar street will be let by the road commission on July 25.

Farmers, Attention!

Walter Nelson, Detroit attorney, will speak at a Farmers' Union meeting at the town hall, Cass City, Wednesday evening, July 25. All farmers are urged to attend.—Advertisement.

Betty Mark Badly Hurt at Play

Betty, twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mark, is confined to her bed with injuries received Sunday while playing with a number of friends at her home. Workmen had been digging a cess pool and dirt had been raised by means of a hook on the end of a rope. The children found it great fun to draw each other up by means of this rope. In some unaccountable way as the rope was being swung, the hook caught tearing a severe wound in Betty's groin. She is at her home on Woodward Avenue.

TOWNSHIPS INTACT.

Now that the proposed constitutional amendment, giving a Michigan county, by vote of its people, the right to plan and adopt some improvements in the county system, has been placed on the state ballot for Nov. 6 next, some of those who promoted the petition drive are explaining what the amendment means, and trying to correct what they regard as mistaken opinions expressed in recent weeks.

W. P. Lovett, secretary of the State Committee on County Reorganization in Michigan, declares that the one and only guide to a fair view of the proposal is the amendment itself. It is that, and that alone, which Mr. Lovett says can rule any given situation in the future.

"It has been due the excessive zeal of some of our own group," said Lovett in a statement, "that many people have misunderstood it. A few zealots would like to wipe out the township unit entirely, but our amendment leaves the township intact. One newspaper printed a broadside article, with a proposed map of Michigan which reduced 83 counties to five counties or districts. Of course that is absurd. Others hoped to get a new deal in regard to local school districts, but our plan has absolutely nothing to do with that question.

"Personally I stand where I did last February, when another plan was considered by the state legislature. While our present plan allows changes in the number of members in a Board of Supervisors, and permits reduction in the number, I would be well satisfied if we could achieve only the one aim of greater efficiency in the administrative side of the county. I care very little whether any change is made in any Board of Supervisors. Any way the question will rest entirely with the people of any given county, so after Nov. 6 next each county alone will settle its own question, or leave things as they now are."

PUBLIC NEVER WINS.

Important as the automobile is to our civilization, there are very few people, outside of those directly engaged in selling or servicing cars, to whom the taxation of automobiles is more important than the taxation of homes, business, food, clothing, etc.

Consequently, when enthusiasts come before the public with a demand for a constitutional limitation on gas and weight taxes, we are constrained to inquire as to the effect of such an amendment upon the future of property taxes, sales taxes, income taxes, and all other form of taxation other than those directly upon the motor car itself.

We know the highways must be maintained if our investment in the family flivver is to be of any value. And we know that if the money is not levied on the basis of car ownership and use, it will be levied in some other way. We know what the present burden is. It is a pure gamble as to whether a different plan would cost more or less, but if our memory serves us right it is seldom indeed that the public wins on a gamble.

WHY A COMMUNITY NEWS-PAPER?

The following article written by Nettie S. Ferrell of Berrien Springs, received favorable mention in a contest sponsored by Adrain VanKoeveering of Zeeland, Michigan:

One of the greatest forces in our national life is the newspaper—the channel for communication, for dissemination of thought, for propaganda of all kinds, the means for education of public opinion, of crystallization of ideas, and formation of national policies.

All these needs are well served by the great dailies of the great cities. Into every country community, every tiny village, every town and city of the nation, go these carriers of news, of records of progress, of broad information on any topic and of any nature whatsoever.

Why, then, the community newspaper? Why the small daily or weekly publication, which must necessarily be limited both as to space and circulation? We need not search long to find the answer. It is because such a newspaper performs a function which the big dailies cannot even remotely exercise. Little intimate affairs touching the lives and interests of neighbors and friends what place have they in the papers of the larger centers?

Which paper chronicles the entrance into and the return from college of our young people, or the triumphs of our school boys and girls of any age? Which paper writes the account of the bridge club and its winners, the doings of the Ladies' Aid and the missionary society? Which paper chronicles the visits of ourselves and our friends, the cases of illness and recovery from illness? Which paper publishes a full and sympathetic account of the death and obsequies of a loved member of the family?

It is the community newspaper which does all this: and it is the editor of this same paper who inquires with thoughtful and genuine interest into all our own little personal affairs which might form an item for the paper: it is this same editor, by the way, who greets with an impartial smile the paid-up subscriber and the one who is many months in arrears.

Is there a matter of general welfare which should be brought to the attention of the public? The community newspaper cheerfully gives its exponents space in its columns. Should public sentiment in the town be molded or crystallized along certain lines. Again the community newspaper becomes the organ of expression and leads the movement to the desired goal.

Any doubter as to the value to any community of a local newspaper will do well to check up on the kind of news and articles contained in any recent issue of his own town paper, and then compare it with the big daily laid on his doorstep by the distributor. The small newspaper will not suffer by the comparison, if variety and scope are to be considered in the decision. And the community paper has added advantage of being of real interest to the reader from the society to the world news in review.

The average reader of the big daily scans the pages hurriedly, seeking to make himself well informed by a glance at the headlines, or at his favorite column. The community newspaper is read from beginning to end, advertisements, want ads, news, and all. These pages may seem trivial to the casual observer, but they are not. They are the chronicles of community life, and are therefore of vast interest to the true citizen and community member who cares for his neighbors' interests as well as for his own. The big dailies are the chronicles and molders of national progress and thought, but it is the community newspaper that gets close to the human heart, and that binds communities together into one big sympathetic brotherhood.

All hail to the community newspaper! Long may it live and prosper!

On account of school meeting on Monday evening and getting ready for the Sunday School picnic, the Rescue correspondent didn't have time to send any news last week. A number of people told her they looked for the news and couldn't find any. The correspondent knows now that the people appreciate her sending news each week for they surely missed them the first time she didn't send any.

Insects Manufacture "Lac"

"Lac," a transparent, glass-like substance used in the making of shellac, is "manufactured" by small insects which swarm over certain trees in the tropics. The glandular excretion of the insects deposited on the twigs is one of the ingredients of shellac, and is also used in the manufacturing of billiard balls and phonograph records.

"2 TRIP" TESTS SHOW GULF-LUBE CUTS OIL CONSUMPTION AS MUCH AS 51%!

MRS. LEE KETNER
705 Melrose St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Do you doubt that you can cut your oil costs from 10% to 55% and get better lubrication? Then listen to this...

Fact No. 1—Last year the American Automobile Association tested Gulf-lube against 3 other famous 25c oils in 6 borrowed cars. Gulf-lube went 28½% more miles per quart than the average of all other oils! It outlasted every oil in every car.

Fact No. 2—This year, motorists in various parts of the country made the "two-trip" test. They made two trips to some distant point, using a well-known 25c oil on the first trip, and Gulf-lube on the second. In every one of these tests made thus far, Gulf-lube has showed the lowest oil consumption!

MR. J. D. BOWDEN
868 Myrtle St., Atlanta, Ga.

Drain old, worn oil, refill with Gulf-lube—and start saving! 25c a quart! Plus tax. NEW OIL TEST detects motor dirt. Ask about it at any Gulf station.

Lice Are Common on Young Cattle

Use Raw Linseed Oil Before Pasturing, Recommended for Control.

By C. L. Blackman, Specialist in Dairy Husbandry, Ohio State University, WNU Service.

Before cattle go to pasture in the spring is the best time to rid them of lice. Raw linseed oil is the best material to use.

The oil should be brushed thoroughly into the coat and all over the animal, and then thoroughly brushed out. The lice, creeping through the coat of the animal, become covered with a thin film of oil which clogs their breathing organs. The process repeated a second time ten days later kills the lice which hatch after the first treatment.

A day or so after the treatment the cattle take on a dirty appearance. This is remedied by rubbing the animal with a damp cloth dipped into warm water. The treatment must be followed by careful grooming to remove loose, matted hair.

Lice are found most commonly on the younger cattle, which are not so carefully groomed as the milking herd. They concentrate usually on the shoulders, the withers, and about the neck.

Cattle that rub against fences and trees are seeking relief from itching caused by lice. So are cattle that scratch their heads and necks with their hind feet. Dirt on these parts of the body, put there by the scratching, is almost a certain indication of the presence of vermin.

Brush Dams Last 3 Years; Other Types More Durable

To farmers who would like to know how long temporary check dams built in gullies for control of soil erosion will last, the United States bureau of agricultural engineering supplies information derived from experience.

Check dams made of brush will last from two and one-half to three years. This is time enough for vegetation to grow on the silt accumulated in the gullies and to prevent erosion of the soil.

Pole dams, which are more efficient in catching silt than brush dams, decay fairly rapidly but will last about a year longer than brush dams. After standing up for three or more years, pole dams will sometimes give way during a series of heavy rains.

Time seems to solidify rock dam construction by adding a heavy blanket of silt and grass and similar debris. Rock dams last longer than any other type of temporary check dam.

Guard Against Insects

With the likelihood that market values of many commodities, particularly food crops produced on farms, will rise as a result of the NRA, AAA and other governmental activities, it is more important than ever that such stored products be protected against destructive insects, says M. D. Farrar, research entomologist of the Illinois state natural history survey. In a statement to the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, Farrar points out that it is a quite common experience for insects to be found feeding on stored food products after they have been held in storage a few weeks to several months. Dried beans, peas, apples or fruits of all kinds are particularly susceptible, if stored in a warm place.

Keep Ditches Clean

No tile drain is better than its outlet. During the winter months obstructions have accumulated along most ditches. A stump, log, or stick may have lodged across the channel. Grass, weeds and smaller sticks become lodged against such obstructions, forming a dam across the stream. Sediment carried by water will be deposited above such natural dams, submerging any drains that enter the stream near by. Frequent inspection of a ditch will reveal such troubles.

Agricultural Briefs

South Africa expects its 1934 wheat crop to total 3,001,000 bags.

More than 650,000 tons of butter was consumed in Germany last year.

This country produces nearly 90 per cent of the lard that enters world commerce.

Because of the danger of choking it is usually advised to slice or pulp roots before they are fed to cattle.

The simplest way to feed salt to cows is to place a block of rock salt in the manger where they can lick it as they choose.

Grasshopper egg pods contain from 20 to 120 eggs and a single female will deposit about 20 pods. One egg pod per square foot over a field means at least 25 young grasshoppers per square foot.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

When the Fusion administration came into power and Gen. John F. O'Ryan was appointed police commissioner, there was a big upheaval in the department. Of all the high ranking officers, but one was retained in his old capacity. That one was John Sullivan, assistant chief inspector in charge of detectives. His record was gone over with a fine tooth comb. It was found that through a dozen administrations he had fought for honesty in the department. It was found also that his service from the very beginning had been a combination of courage and intelligence. Back in 1903, he stopped a runaway horse before it dashed into a group of school children. He was in a hospital for weeks with a broken kneecap. He solved a puzzling series of robberies by working on his own time and capturing three holdup men single-handed. That brought him his first promotion. He trapped a petty politician who was swindling housewives and was promoted again. As a result of high honors in an examination, he became captain of detectives. Since then he has solved crimes with no other evidence than a knot or a broken key. His name seldom appeared in the newspapers. He was never that kind of a detective.

There are many Sullivan anecdotes, even if he won't talk about himself. He is given credit for knowing every gangster in New York. Some time ago, government agents spent six months and a lot of money looking for a member of the late Frank Yale's gang. The police department wasn't asked for help but finally in desperation, one of the government men appealed to Sullivan. He walked over to a boarding house across the street and brought back the fugitive. His memory for places and localities is as good as it is for faces. He conducts the line-up and has obtained many a confession because a suspect has slipped in giving his address, it being highly disconcerting to have a six-foot inspector with a piercing gray eye fling back, "You're lying, that place is a vacant lot."

Inspector Sullivan's opinion of criminals is not high. In his opinion, the old saying that there is honor among thieves is all wrong. Once an interviewer asked him about the code of the underworld. "Code of the underworld?" snapped the inspector. "That's the bunk. Criminals are dirty rats with no courage and no honor!"

A story now going the rounds gives me a chuckle because it might be called "New York Courtesy": A man got up and gave a woman a seat in the subway. The woman thanked. When she was revived she fainted the man—and he fainted!

On one of the coldest days of the year, I saw Joseph P. Day, who has sold so much New York real estate he doesn't know the total value, walking along the street with no overcoat, and duly mentioned the fact. Now I learn that Mr. Day, who was sixty years old last September, hasn't worn an overcoat in the last 25 years. He carries $3,000,000 life insurance and is a director in the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Brass rails are rather scarce now. For a while, they were plentiful. Not only were they available for customers of hold-over speakies but a number of proprietors of legal places, despite the rules against vertical drinking, put in bars. The alcoholic beverages control board took no action until recently. Then word went around that if the bars didn't come down, the licenses would. So there were many alterations and sitting and drinking now is the order of the day and night. Even in most of the clubs, bars are only for service and not for leaning and elbow-resting purposes.

Subway eavesdropping: "She's so stuck on herself that when she didn't win that beauty contest, she went around saying the judges were crooked."

BRIDES ASK—

DEAR Mrs. Post: I want to send a mother and father and their two unmarried daughters living with them. Since "and family" is not allowed by best form, please tell me just how their names are written on one envelope?

Answer: Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and on the line below, the Misses Jones.

My dear Mrs. Post: The soloist and organist who are to sing and play at my wedding are friends of my young uncle. They are not asking a fee but are doing it for me because he asked them to. I am going to invite them both to my reception, which is to be a large one. Outside of this, must I buy them each a gift?

Answer: I don't think I would say "must," but to give each a remembrance would be an appreciative thing to do, and to give them nothing would miss you too much in their debt.

Dear Mrs. Post: My nephew was married several months ago, and since his return from his wedding trip has received a bill for the hire of five cars used to take the bridal party and others to the church and then to the hotel for dinner and the reception. He ignored the bill because we were all under the impression that this item was part of the bride's family's expenses. Now we learn that her family are making a lot of disagreeable comment because of his neglect in paying the bill. You, as arbiter, can help us.

Answer: There are as many local customs as there are localities, but this is one I have never heard of. The only car that he should be expected to pay for is the one that took the best man and himself to the church, and possibly the one in which he and his wife drove to the station after the wedding.

My dear Mrs. Post: Please list all the expenses of my wedding that should be taken care of by my parents. I am having a simple church wedding, with a reception at my parents' club afterwards.

Answer: All cost of invitations and announcements, your trousseau, wedding dress, decoration of church and house, all music, wedding breakfast and collation, bridesmaids' bouquets, and all transportation of immediate family and bridal party. In many communities the bridegroom gives the bride her bouquet. Therefore, follow local custom.

Cooking Economy

A noted cooking authority states: "More food is spoiled by the use of too much heat than too little, therefore, reduce heat, and keep contents of your pots simmering or boiling gently — not furiously — for that means waste of both fuel and food."

When you cook electrically this economy is possible — electric ranges are equipped with three heat switches, these heats are designated HIGH — MEDIUM — LOW. Start all boiling operations on HIGH; immediately the contents of your pot show that boiling temperature has been reached, turn the switch to either MEDIUM or LOW position. Low position will keep foods boiling gently.

True economy is possible when you cook electrically.

PETER RABBIT CALLS ON MELODY

YOU know what a great hand Peter Rabbit is to stay out all night. He did just that thing that night after listening to the twilight song of Melody the Wood Thrush. Just before it was time for jolly, round, red Mr. Sun to kick off his rosy blankets and begin his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, Peter started for home in the dark.

"I Just Love to Hear You Sing, Melody," cried Peter rather breathlessly.

Old Brier Patch. Everywhere, in the Old Orchard, the Green Forest, on the Green Meadows, his feathered friends were awakening. As he hopped along, lipperty-lip, he heard those beautiful flute-like notes of Melody the Wood Thrush. Turning, he scampered over to where he had spent such a peaceful hour the evening before. Melody saw him at once, and hopped down on the ground for a little gossip while he scratched among the leaves in search of his breakfast.

"I just love to hear you sing, Melody," cried Peter, rather breathlessly. "I don't know of any other song that makes me feel quite as yours does, so sort of perfectly contented and free of care and worry."

"Thank you," cried Melody. "I'm glad you like to hear me sing, for there is nothing I like to do better. It is the one way in which I can express my feelings. I love all the great world, and I just have to tell it so. I do not mean to boast when I say that all the Thrush family have good voices."

"But you have the best of all," cried Peter. Melody shook his brown head. "I wouldn't say that," said he modestly. "I think the song of my cousin Hermit is even more beautiful than mine. Then there is my cousin Veery. His song is wonderful, I think."

But just then Peter's curiosity was greater than his interest in songs. "Have you built your nest yet?" he asked.

Melody nodded. "It is in a little tree not far from here," said he, "and Mrs. Wood Thrush is sitting on five eggs this blessed minute. Isn't that perfectly lovely?"

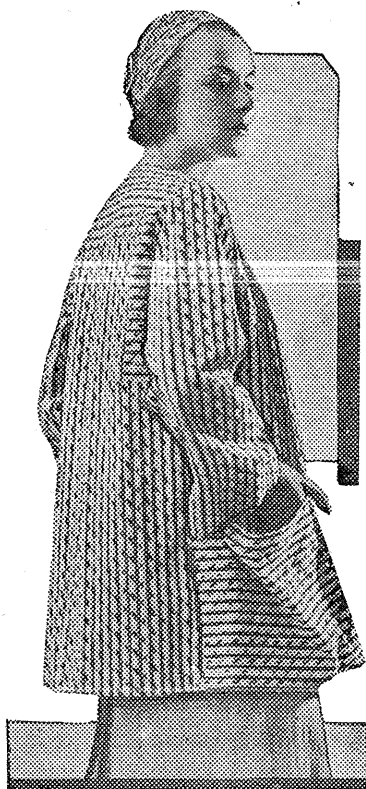

It was Peter's turn to nod. "What is your nest built of?" he inquired. "Rootlets and tiny twigs and weed stalks and leaves and mud," replied Melody.

"Mud!" exclaimed Peter. "Why, that's what Welcome Robin uses in his nest."

"Well, Welcome Robin is my own cousin, so I don't know as there's anything so surprising in that," retorted Melody. "Now, if you'll excuse me, Peter, I'll get my breakfast and give Mrs. Wood Thrush a chance to get hers."

Question Box By ED WYNN The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: Why is it that "tramps" are so popular?

Sincerely, R. R. TIES.

Answer—Because they never start any labor disputes.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Can you tell me the origin of the old adage about "Father Makes Hay," etc., etc.?

Yours truly, A. CORNFIELD.

Answer: It originated in the year 1893. A very wealthy farmer, who raised hay and wheat on a farm in Minnesota, had a son about eighteen years of age who was tired of working for his father, raising hay and wheat, and decided to go to New York city. His father gave him some money, and on the son's arrival in New York he had about $24 left. Realizing he could only live for a day on that in New York, the boy invested his money immediately.

He bought a bootblack stand and started to shine shoes for a living. There's the whole story. The son stayed in New York city, shining shoes for his living, and the father continued to earn his living, out in Minnesota, raising hay and wheat, so you see, "The Father Made Hay While the 'Son' Shined."

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have a golf game on for next Tuesday afternoon. I play a round in about 135 strokes and my opponent plays the 18 holes in 153 strokes. How should we arrange a match?

Very truly, IKE ANTEPLAY.

Answer: Judging from your scores I should say the best way for you two fellows to play is to play the same as Pinochle, 25 cents a hundred.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I borrowed three hundred dollars from a friend of mine last July and I am unable to pay him back. He doesn't know it yet. I would like to return it but it doesn't look as if I will ever give him his three hundred dollars. What shall I do? I haven't been able to sleep on account of this.

Sincerely, A. PAUPER.

Answer: The first thing you should do is to go to your friend and tell him you will not be able to return his three hundred dollars. Then he won't be able to sleep, either.

Greatness

"For greatness," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "two things are necessary: to be wise enough to discern truth clearly and powerful enough to speak it fearlessly."

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

WHAT ABOUT THE FUN OF IT?

A WELL known minister the other day called the growing number of childless homes a menace to the nation. Childlessness, he said, is at odds with human nature. And it is a short cut to the divorce court, for "sooner or later the marriage ties are severely tested, and because there are no children to bind the husband and wife together, they do not hesitate to dissolve the sacred partnership."

It may or may not be true that childlessness does all that. But we have an even better argument against men and women deliberately remaining without children. And that is all the fun they miss.

The longer we live, the more things we find in life that soon begin to pall. Happiness begins to look like the ratio between what we want and what we have. It exists only while we do not have it. The moment our desires are fulfilled their glamour fades, their value dies. Nothing stays as it seemed—except a very few of the fundamentals. And chief among these is parenthood.

As one woman expressed it, "Time passes the same for everybody. The only ones who are really getting somewhere with it are those who have children."

And the interest in children, the thrill in children is something that never palls or fades. And the fun of it! From those first lisping sounds of infancy, through all the delightful, delicious charms of babyhood, the thrilling heartwarming developments of childhood struggling with its growth problems, through the prides and joys and fears and victories all the way on—there's no fun in the world like it. There is no parent who has not at some time felt himself nature's nobleman. There may be no suffering as keen as the pangs suffered by parents. But there is no joy, no inspiration, no exaltation as great as that which at some time swells the heart of every person who has a child.

Bronze Age Relics

That the urn and human bones found near Jedburgh, Scotland, belong to the late Bronze age, or about 1000 B. C., is the opinion of officials of the Scottish National museum of Antiquities. The blackened condition of the bones indicates that the body had been cremated, cremation or incineration being common at that time.
