The decrease in valuation is due largely to the thousand dollar exemption on personal farm property.

Install Self-Computing Gas Pump Coroner—Lee Huston, Indianfields; C. N. Race, Indianfields.

A Wayne self-computing gasoline pump just installed by the Cass City Oil and Gas Co. makes it possible to buy gas by the gallon or dollar. In other words, right in plain sight of the customer and the station operator, the new pump shows with every turn of the machinery just the number of gallons SCHEDULE FOR 2ND and fraction thereof and the cost of the article being pumped. You may ask for one, five or ten gallons, or if your budget or pocketbook calls for a 63-cent, or a dollar seventy-five purchase, the pump Fifteen Games Arranged for will deliver just the gallonage or dollar and cent quantity you want. It operates electrically and records for the station's information the total gallons pumped and the amount of daily sales in dollars and cents.

Other new equipment installed recently is an automatic air oil changer and an Arrow grease gun. The oil changer, according to Stanley Asher, manager of the company, sucks the oil out of the crank case to the last drop and the grease gun makes short work in greasing an automobile.

This amount was paid out in a year when hay was comparatively cheap and when most sections had no forage shortage.

Michigan farmers who accept now the advice of men who can not possibly profit or lose from the sale or from the retaining of live stock by owners will have the best chance of avoiding heavy financial losses. Cattle which are in fair condition and which can be marketed anytime within a period of three months can be sold much more advantageously than thin stock which must be sold within a period of a few days.

County chairmen of relief commissions have been advised by Dr. Haber to make certain that all wild hay in their territories is cut and stored for use. Grass on roadsides is being cut in many places in the state. These measures will help locally, as will the planting of rye to furnish fall and early spring pasture.

However, such small additions to the forage supply can not solve the main problem which is the presence in the state of greater numbers of live stock than possibly can be carried through the win-

If the owners of these farms who were forced to deed them over in return for a loan can keep them going, well and good. But certainly out of the 22,076 there will be many forfeitures, many of the farms will revert to the government. Will it mean that Uncle Sam will be forced into the farming business in competition to those who own their farms outright and who have not been forced to seek loans upon them? It is a matter for serious thought. Why Not Bake Michigan Beans

In this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post is an advertisement of the "B. & M. Brick Oven Baked Beans." Now everybody in Michigan knows that Michigan beans are the best for baking purposes. Especially is this true of those beans which are baked and put into cans for the trade. The skin of a Michigan bean is thick and the bean holds its shape after baking. So it is natural to conclude that the B. & M. people, whoever they are, use Michigan or New York beansfor they feature quality beans. But where do you suppose the B. & M. cannery is located? Not in Michigan; oh, no! And not in New York state. It is located in Portland. Maine.

That set us to thinking. Why should the best beans for baking purposes be shipped from Michigan to Portland, Maine, and then back to Michigan and other western points after they have been baked and put into cans? We can think of no good reason. Can you? Why not a Michigan cannery for Michigan beans? Why cannot our Michigan beans be baked the 'real New England way" (quoting the advertisement) "with a spicy sauce, plenty of brown sugar and chunks of juicy pork"-why cannot, say we, this be done in Michigan as well as several hundred miles from here? But we are not finding fault with the B. &. M. They are trying to market people. beans. They are spending their good money advertising beans; endeavoring to make a market for the beans we raise in Michigan. Incidentally, that is what we need -a better market and a greater demand for beans—crispy, golden brown, tender, digestible Michigan baked beans with lots of brown sugar and chunks of juicy pork. -Clinton Co. THE immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the new Firestone Century Progress Tire started a tremendous wave of buying that is keeping the Firestone factories running twenty-four hours a day to meet this huge demand.

We knew that car owners would replace their thin-worn, dangerous tires if they could get what they wanted in a tire at the price they wanted to pay. We found the answer through ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year. We asked them-"What do you value most in a tire?"—and their answer was — "Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price."

Drive in to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store today! Equip your car with these new Firestone Century Progress Tires, with the massive flat tread, deep - cut, non - skid, broad husky shoulders, and Gum - Dipped cords. Tire prices probably never again will be as low as they are today. At these unusually low prices for first grade tires, we make it easy for you to buy not only one tire, but a complete set.

And Remember — with every tire you are protected by the new Firestone Triple Guarantee

Many Michigan farmers, themselves or in cooperation with neighbors, can realize more profit from butchering surplus stock and preserving the meat for home use than by selling the animals alive on the open market. The animal husbandry department at the college has tested many ways of curing meat and will furnish salting and pickling receipts to anyone who requests them.

The home economics division at the college now is showing at many and held through indefinite periods. Bulletins describing this method of canning will be sent to anyone who requests, "Successful Home Canning," Extension bulletin No. 132, from the bulletin clerk at Lansing.

Live stock owners, of course, will remember that no person now can foretell exactly what will happen in the future. Members of the college departments are performing their duty in pointing out present conditions. Favorable weather between now and winter can not change the situation of too little forage for the numbers of live stock now on farms in Michigan

AND THE SCHOOL

Vegetable Time

Summer time is fresh vegetable time. It seems hardly necessary to emphasize how important that fact is. Most parents today know that vegetables of all kinds are essential to growth and health. Vitamin has almost become a household word, especially to the mother who selects and prepares the meals. And in vegetables, we have one of the richest sources of vitamins, special vitamins and minerals which supply the body with protective materials. Use all the green vegetables that will be eaten. Give the tomato a prominent place for it deserves great credit. Have the green foods crispy and clean. Wash them well. Try many combinations that look attractive, which is one way to interest children. Chopped vegetables in gelatin, skaped by molds, makes an inviting dish. Many suggestions are usually given in the leading magazines for women. Try them, and it may be surprising to see how children will actually enjoy vegetables that were once in the "don't like" class.

ISO=VIS "D" STOPS COSTLY SLUDGE FORMATION

If you pay more than 26c a quart today for motor oil you are simply throwing good money away. For that's the price of Iso=Vis "D"-Standard's premium motor oil.

It is the most advanced development in motor lubrication . . . for the patented Propane Dewaxing and Chlorex Extraction Process have given it this unique quality: it will not sludge under the hardest, hottest driving. Sludge causes stuck rings, one of the great causes of high oil consumption.

In addition, Iso=Vis "D" does not thin out dangerously in contact with hot engine surfaces.

Take a look at Iso=Vis "D" next time you stop in a Standard Oil Station. It is dispensed in glass bottles so that you can see the full measure of clear, clean, fine oil you are getting. You'll like its looks. You'll like its performance and you'll like its economy!

"Was there any hotel for the men to stay at?" questioned Jack, for whom the details of United States history held a lure.

"Only a tavern made of logs, not nearly big enough to accommodate them. Some had to sleep on the floor of the assembly room; and one member brought his family and set up housekeeping in a tent." "How'd they get here if they came from a distance?" put in Jack. "On horseback?"

"Most of them; but they came in wagons, too, or in old-fashioned mules. One member tramped over a hundred miles through the mountains, and arrived here with a boot on one foot, a brogan on the other, and wearing an old slouch hat he'd slept in, with the brim half gone." "What was he supposed to represent?" Mark Adam asked over his shoulder. "A rummage sale?"

"It doesn't matter," replied Miss Columbine briskly, "because he was elected speaker of the house; and those who heard that speech never forgot it. A fine orator was George Crocker; and he came from Massachusetts, I believe. There was something thrilling about the struggle of those old days which you young folks'll never realize. See those tall red cliffs over to the right, Jack? That's the entrance to the Garden of the Gods."

"It is!" In his excitement the boy would have stood up for a better view. but Nancy's bag across his knees prevented him.

"I remember my father bringing me down on horseback when I was a tiny girl," said Cousin Columbine. "I sat astride in front of him, and we rode all through the Garden looking for cattle. It was vacant land then, and Father was so impressed with the rock formation that he considered preempting it, and then gave up the idea, thinking the land worthless."

"Imagine owning the Garden of the Gods!" gasped Jack. "Has it always gone by that name, I won-

Glimpses of rushing water far below-the rocky cliffs and hillsides far above—sharp curves appearing with alarming frequency; and over everything a sky of deep azure such as they had not imagined, was, as Nance wrote the family later, too wonderful for any words of hers.

"There!" exclaimed Cousin Columbine when those impressive cliffs were left behind, "that's over safely. Time was when that pass was really dangerous. It's a boulevard now compared with those days. Thanks for blowing the horn so often. Mark. I know you did it for my benefit, though my worst enemy never called me nervous. There's Matthew drawn up beside the road. Do you suppose he's had a breakdown? That truck of yours is getting pretty ancient."

"There's plenty o' life in that old truck yet," defended Mark. "All my bashful brother wants, most likely, is for us to get home first so he won't have to describe these-ernewcomers to Aurora Tubbs. Matt says Aurora takes away his power of speech when she slings questions at him. He says it's no wonder Victor Tubbs went into a decline. Hi, there. Matt! Want us to tow you home?"

They passed a filling station—a grocery—the post office and drug store—a ramshackle place marked "Restaurant" at which Nancy shuddered-a twostory hotel, its narrow porch hugging the dusty road as if land were too scarce in this vicinity to afford

"Ears popping? That's only altitude, my dear. We're nearly nine thousand feet above the sea, and on almost the very spot where I was born. Father built this house after he struck silver at Leadville in '78. As you see, it's in need of a coat of paint; but it needed something else a great deal more so the paint must wait a year or two. Stop at the side door, Mark, or Matthew's likely to bump into us. Aurora! Aurora Tubbs, where are you? Come out at once and meet my relatives. Well, Nancy" (she turned, her lined face beaming with happy pride), "what do you think of it? Does the Nelson mansion come up to your expectations?"

CHAPTER IV

And all that saved me," wrote Nancy in her first letter home, "was the arrival of Aurora Tubbs on the side porch."

This was quite true. As the girl cast wildly about in search of an answer that would conceal her state of mind, a woman, so short, and stout, and brightly attired that she made Nance think of the colored "cubes" she used to play with in kindergarten, fairly burst upon them through a doorway which looked too narrow to admit her. She wore a dress of brightest bluebird blue, and her squareness was accentuated by a starched white apron, tied snugly in the spot intended by nature for a waist-line. "So you're here?" she asked, as if her eyes deceived her. "The fact is evident, I believe," returned Miss Columbine. "These are my young cousins, Aurora, and I've no doubt they're glad to reach their destination. This is Aurora Tubbs, my dears, whom you've heard me méntion. Goodness knows what I'd have done without her all these long years."

"Pleased to meet you," said Aurora, and shook hands with Jack, first to alight from the automobile. "And you too," Nancy. Might as well call first names right off, it seems to me, and not be formal. I see you're wearin' a fur coat, but aren't your legs most frozen in silk stockings? I'll take that bag, Miss Columbine. Mark Adam, you set that box o' canned stuff on my kitchen table. Come right in, Jack and Nancy, and make yourselves at home. Here's Matthew now. I see you brought two trunks."

Nancy found herself a little breathless, not entirely the effect of altitude. She had expected Aurora Tubbs to be a sort of servant, and here she was acting the part of hostess! It was very confusing. Nance didn't know just what to do. Perhaps Mark Adam sensed her di lemma for as he shouldered his bur den the corners of his nice mouth twitched with amusement, and his blue eyes, meeting hers, were dis concerting.

"It's not the cutting I mind, Miss Columbine," Aurora corrected, appearing through one door as the boys came in another, "but seeing it disappear so-so rapidly. It's a handsome cake, I think you'il allagree. Shall I do the cutting, Miss Columbine? I declare, it seems al-

If Nancy eats that big wedge now. Miss Columbine she won't have any appetite for supper."

"Oh, leave us be!" returned the older woman with impatience. "Leave us be! Here's your piece, Matthew, and don't drop frosting on the carpet. Stand close to the stove, all of you, and let the crumbs fall into the coal hod. And be sure to tell Aurora Tubbs how good it is. That's why she's hanging 'round the door."

Nancy. The smile widened; while Mark Adam, an appreciative hand upon his stomach, murmured: "It's superb, Aurora. I warn you now. Miss Columbine, when I get married I sim to steal your cook.

"Wouldn't it be better to marry the cook herself and keep her in the family?" suggested Matthew sol emnly.

This suggestion, coming from a hitherto silent, and obviously bashful young man, was not short of amazing. Nance glanced at Matthew with new interest; but Aurora bristled.

"And me, married to Victor Tubbs for twenty years? You should be ashamed. Matthew Adam. I don't believe in divorce; and I wouldn't marry your brother if I was a widow woman and he the only male creature in Pine Ridge. He's got a fickle nature, Mark Adam has; and I've always said, give me a faithful man or none at all. Help yourself to another slice, Matthew, if you're so hungry you have to lick the frosting off your fingers. And then you'd better be starting along home. These young folks will want to begin unpacking; and if you've got some good, thick cotton stockings, Nancy, I advise you getting into them double quick. Did you travel all the way from Massachusetts in that dress? It looks real fresh. If you'll give me your trunk key I'd admire to unpack for you.'

"No doubt you would," spoke up-Cousin Columbine, "but it's high time you were thinking about our supper, Aurora. Better take more cake to munch on the way home. boys; and here's a couple of dollars that I owe you."

"What for?" asked Mark, puzzled eyes on the proffered money. "For carting those trunks and us, you donkey," she replied.

"Great thundering prairie dogs!" exploded Mark. "Do you take us for a pair of gyps, Miss Columbine? Come on, Matt, we better get going. The lady wants to pay us for a little matter of lifting trunks!"

"The cake was pay enough, Miss Columbine," Matthew assured her with a shy smile. "We wouldn't think of taking any money. Goodthe left, and go into my sitting night—er — good-night, everybody," room. I close the parlor during the he added, and hurrying to escape, ing chair upholstered in flowered

The old lady moved toward the door, then stopped to add: "If you need a lamp, the matches are in that tin box on the wall. Supper's at six sharp, so Aurora can get home to feed her precious Victor. There's water in the pitcher, but you may wash in the bathroom if you pre fer."

She was gone at last, leaving Nance rather breathless with instructions. Jack had departed to his own quarters, and the girl stood quite still, looking about curiously. She had told Cousin Columbine that she loved the room. Now, sitting down suddenly on a straight, uncomfortable "bedroom chair," she wondered how it was possible to get so many ugly things into one place.

The bed! Towering black walnut, ornately carved. It was cold comfort to remember that her grandfa ther had had one almost as hideous | ion, please. at Edgemere. A bureau to match: even a washstand, behind which hung a square of linen to protect the wallpaper. Hadn't she heard somewhere that they were called "splashers" in the dark ages when people used such things?

Nancy arose to regard this curious antique on which, embroidered in red cotton, was an infant splashing happily in a wash bowl, with the words, "Our Darling," below it. Horrors! Must she live with this monstrous baby for months and months? Must she wash in that bowl -even brush her teeth into it?

The girl could have wept for her own tiled dressing room; then remembered that it was hers no longer anyway. She turned slowly to observe a marble-topped table be-
