CROP PROSPECTS IN THUMB ARE BETTER

Saginaw Valley and Thumb Counties Are Above State Average.

Continued drought and high temperatures during July caused a sharp decline in the condition of corn, field beans, and potatoes in this state, according to the August 1 crop report released Saturday by the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. The damage to these crops was most severe in Lower Peninsula, and in most counties of the Saginaw Valley and Thumb area, prospects are considersince that date have been more favorable for late crops, but more precipitation is needed, especially in the southern part of the state.

The condition of the Michigan field bean crop was reported at 52 percent of normal for August 1, a decline of 19 points since July 1 and the lowest figure for that date in 21 years of records. Excessive temperatures blasted much of the bloom on early fields, particularly in central and south-central counties where much of the August 1 prospects were reported at only about 45 per cent of normal. The Michigan production, based on the August 1 condition of 52 per cent, amounts to 2,412,000 bags as against 3,519,000 bags harvested in 1933 and a 5-year average crop on August 1 was 62.7 per cent George W. Michigan fruit crops have in most cases withstood the drought exceptionally well. The mystery of Blasius' disappearance remains unsolved although several attempts have been made to locate Blasius or his remains. Nearly all of the close relatives of the man attended a probate court hearing before Judge H. Walter Cooper and decided that it would be best to appoint Mr. Wills as administrator of the estate rather than one of the heirs. The estate at the time of his disappearance was estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000. However, the estate is now valued at about $14,000.

Arizona Indians Place

Traps to Catch Eagles Fort Apache, Ariz.—Eagle feathers, at one time the most sacred possessions of the Apache Indians, no longer are sought by tribesmen in this section.

Bill Maupin, chief of the Indian police on the reservation, recently revealed that the Redmen have turned to trapping the eagles to protect their turkey flocks. The eagles have been killing turkeys in gråat numbers.

Reverting to tribal customs, the Indians tie a lamb in plain view about. As the birds alight to make a kill they often are given something more serious to think about. Chief Maupin told of recently seeing a flock of nearly 500 eagles soaring over a lamb bait. This is almost unbelievable, but neverthelesa true.

Differ in as Many Ways A dozen different breeds of sheep are common, says the New York State College of Agriculture. These breeds differ in body form, weight, age at which they mature, type of fleeces, hardiness, and in other ways. A breed that is best suited to individual fancy, to the land, and to market demand can be easily selected.

After a suitable breed has been chosen, it is better to use this breed than to change from one to another every year or two. Also important in the breeding program are simple vet adequate records that aid farmers to cull their flocks intelligently and to select replacements of their own breeding.

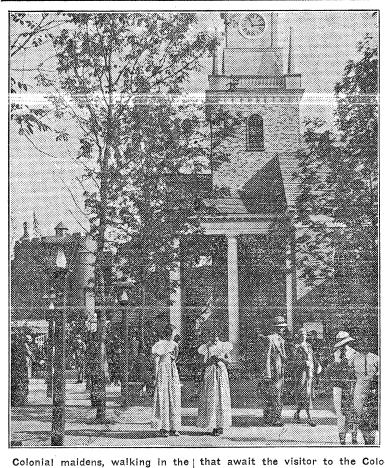

Soil Erosion

The bureau of chemistry and soils says that nothing can be done immediately to bring back the top soil that has been lost. The process of formation of top soil is a long and complicated one of bringing up from the subsoil proper plant food, and a good fertile top soil requires as long as 400 years to be formed. For this reason and since the use of fertilizer on soil is not sufficient to create a good top soil immediately, soil erosion is very serious.

Concrete silos are most numerous in the southeastern and central parts where gravel is generally available. Wood silos are most numerous in the northern and western parts of the state.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lame Bode

WEIGHT OF EGGS ECONOMIC FACTOR

Reliable Estimate May Be Easily Obtained.

The average weight of the eggs laid by a hen during the year is now considered an important economic factor in egg production, says Wallaces' Farmer, not only from the standpoint of the higher market price for large over small eggs, but also from the standpoint of egg weight inheritance. Manifestly, weighing each egg of a hen throughout the year is a laborious task and one that is wholly out of the question for the practical poultry breeder.

According to the poultry division of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, there are certain short cuts that can safely be taken in estimating the average weight of the eggs laid by a given hen in a year. Thus, Albert B. Godfrey, of government poultry investigations, says:

"An approximation of the mean annual egg weight can be determined at the beginning of the pullet laying year from a knowledge of the average weight of the first ten eggs, the body weight at first egg, and the age at first egg.

A reliable estimate of the mean annual egg weight of all eggs laid by each bird can be ascertained by the first four days of each month.

"A more reliable and more read-L. Steele were business callers in annual egg weight of all eggs laid by each bird can be ascertained by Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Hill and computing the mean weight of the Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. first laying year."

Chick Brooding in Tents

Costs Less Than Houses Chicks can be brooded successfully in tents instead of brooder houses in regions where the rainfall is light and early spring temperatures are above freezing, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. In experiments conducted at the department's poultry experiment station, Glendale, Ariz., there was somewhat less mortality in the chicks that were brooded in tents than in similar groups in regular brooder houses. In most cases the tents required less heat for brooding, being warmer during the day though colder at night. The tests were of 56 days' duration and the brooders were heated by electricity. The estimated annual cost of the tents and equipment, including depreciation and interest on investment, was less than half that for the brooder

Separate Backward Chicks

Separating the robust or sturdy birds from the backward chickens cannot fail to benefit the poultryman. Backward birds will not make growth when running in flocks where they are continually harassed by older or better developed chicks. A good plan is to make a feeding crate in which larger chicks or adult fowls cannot enter and which gives protection to young chicks while feeding. To give extra putriment to assist growth of quill and feather, mix well a tablespoonful of linseed jelly (made by stewing ordinary linseed) in the wet mash for a week or so. This will promote growth and quality as well as luster on the new plumage.

Mineral Feeds for Poultry

The usual mineral feeds for poultry are bone meal, oyster shell or ground limestone, salt, and grit. The bone meal supplies calcium and phosphorus and builds bone and tissue. The oyster shell or ground limestone is fed for its high calcium content and should be kept before the laying birds at all times. Salt is an appetizer and renders the mash more palatable while the grit is an aid in grinding the feed. These minerals build up the body and keep it in repair. POULTRY GLEANINGS

WORK ON AQUEDUCT NOW AHEAD OF PLAN

Great Project in California to Serve 13 Cities.

Los Angeles.-The greatest aqueduct built in the history of man is entering the second year of construction in southern California. If the builders of the days of the Caesars could return to earth, they would see 4,000 men working along a 250-mile desert front, bringing water from the Colorado river to the metropolitan water district of southern California.

They would learn that 5,670,000 barrels of cement will go into the completed project—sufficient to build a 14-foot highway from Los-Angeles to New York.

They would be told that 3,600,000 gallons of gasoline will be burned before the job is finished—sufficient to drive 2,200 automobiles once around the earth at the equator.

They would see 90,000,000 board feet of lumber, 41,000,000 pounds of explosives, 2,500 miles of copper ca-

This second year of activity finds 13 miles of the project's 91 miles of tunnel already driven through hard rock desert mountains.

Ten words make up 25 per cent of our ordinary speech, say the lexicographers. They are: "The, of, and, to, a, in, that, it, is, I." Further, they estimate that the average person's active vocabulary, exclusive of proper names, does not exceed 3,000 words! The unabridged dictionary contains 400,000 words.

ARABIAN PENINSULA Miss Margaret Markle of St ENTICES EXPLORERS

Fruitful Field for Archeological Research.

Washington,-"Whether or not French flyers have discovered the Mrs. Alex Miller and daughter legendary capital of the Queen of Sheba, they have again called attention to the vast, forbidding Arabian peninsula, one of the richest areas for geographic and archeologbaseball team here on Sunday in ical exploration now left in the world," says a bulletin from the Miss Mabel Brian left Wednesday National Geographic society.

"Arabia has been a lodestone for ment in the office of the Michigan western exploration recently because back on its burning plateaus, Miss Martha Strifler returned in the scorching heat of hidden home Saturday from Detroit where wadies (dry river beds) have been she spent about three weeks visitfound strange tribesmen in cities of 'set-back skyscrapers,' eight to ten stories high. Traces of Old Caravan Trails. "Farther inland lie great areas of desolate desert, with 'singing sands' such as Marco Polo heard in the Gobi, and traces of ancient caravan trails that predate the era when Solomon derived gold and frankincense from Biblical Ophir. Two notable crossings of the huge colored team from Flint. Judge Rub al Khali desert were made recently by Englishmen - one by Bertram Thomas and the other by H. St. John B. Philby.

"While the Americas were being discovered and explored, while the Poles were being attained and the Polar regions visited again and again, the Arabian peninsula, lying in the heart of the oldest known civilization, has remained almost unseen by white men. About 300, 000 square miles of territory, equal to the combined areas of Germany and Italy, is blank or but vaguely sketched on modern maps. Yet some of the border lands and surrounding seas of this huge ellipse hum with activity.

"That Arabia has been able guard its mysteries so long against the inquisitive westerner is due. partly to the physical features of the country and partly to the religious fanaticism of its sparse population. Southern Arabia, now a desert, was probably fertile and well watered when Europe and large parts of Asia were still in the Ice age, and it may well have been one of the earliest homes of civil ized man. Climatic changes at a later date brought extreme dryness and a drift of sands from the north.

Dotted With Unstudied Ruins. "The Arabian peninsula is dotted with ancient ruins, some of which have been seen only in passing. Only a few of these have been studied by scientists. Undoubtedly there are other ruins yet unfound, some of them buried in the sand. One of the highroads of the Old world, the overland trade-route from India and Persia to Egypt and Syria, and to other countries around the Mediterranean, began in ting several of the diffident ones to | Hadhramaut, in southeastern Arabia and wound through the plateau, emerging at various points in the Near East. Hadhramaut made its own contributions of frankingense. myrrh and aloe to this ancient world commerce.

"Some writers hold that in the southern quarter of Arabia was that Ophir rich in gold whose name, like that of Hadhramaut itself, is known to us from the Old Testament. 'Hazarmaveth,' the tenth chapter of Genesis calls the latter. The Old Testament also mentions another Arabian land of mystery, Saba (Sheba), whose 'Queen of the South' traveled to Jerusalem on hearing of the wisdom and wealth of King Solomon. The land of Sheba is generally placed by modern authorities in the vague border land between the present day states of Hadhramaut and Yemen.

"The Romans knew all of these prosperous provinces, naming them Arabia Felix, Happy Arabia, in contrast to the rest of the peninsula, which they called Arabia Deserta and Arabia Petrea, the Desert and Realm of Stone."

Strange Store "Birds" Fascinated Bird Dog

Velvet Beans Are Good for Forage

Dairy Farmer Finds They Produce Well Planted With Corn Crop.

By Enos C. Blair, Agronomist North Carolina State College of Agriculture .- WNII Service

Velvet beans planted with corn is an excellent winter dairy forage. This is the experience of a North Carolina farmer who operates a small dairy. Last year he planted 25 acres of rather light, sandy land to corn and velvet beans. The dry weather of the summer damaged the corn but the beans made rank growth. In August, the tropical storms blew the corn down so that by fall the bean growth had covered the corn entirely. Little grain was harvested.

But the farmer turned this apparent misfortune into good account. About November 1 he turned his 22 cows into the field and the beans with what was left of the corn provided sufficient feed to keep the cows in heavy milk flow throughout the winter. No other feed was given the animals except during a few cold days when they could not be turned into an open field. The cows were kept on the beans until about March 15, without other feed except that mentioned. On March 15 he began feeding hay.

With the extra hay the cows were kept on the bean field until time for spring plowing.

At that time there was still a large quantity of bean vines to be turned

As a result of this experience he says that velvet beans furnish a cheap and satisfactory forage. He expects to have about 25 acres available for his cows every winter now.

Urges Liberal Feeding for the Sows With Pigs

Producing milk for hungry pigs is the hardest work the brood sow does, as shown by her loss in weight of from 25 to 40 pounds, says E. F. Ferrin, swine husbandman, University of Minnesota farm. Feeds for milk production need to be high in protein and minerals because of the large amount of these nutrients in milk, but corn also is important for its high energy value. Corn is usually the cheapest grain and should be fed liberally, if care is used to supply other feeds furnishing protein and minerals.

Pasture is one of the best stimulants for milk production. Before the grazing season begins, green leafy alfalfa hay is a good substitute. Skimmilk has always been a favorite for the sow and growing pigs, especially when combined with shorts or middlings as slop. Buttermilk has the same feeding value as skimmilk, but day to day changes in the acidity of the buttermilk will scour the pigs, especially in damp, rainy weather. Tankage and oilmeal are needed unless considerable milk is fed. Self-feeding the sow and pigs is both logical and economical. Selffeeding can be begun when the pigs are about three weeks old, if they are in lots or on pasture where they get exercise. Shelled corn and wheat middlings are the common feeds, plus tankage or a protein mixture.

Experiments carried on last year have proven the feasibility of sterilizing seed by a hot-water treatment which kills many of the disease germs of the plant yet leaves the seed unaffected so far as germination is concerned. The tests were carried on with cabbage seed mon ills of the cabbage.

Legume Seed Shortage

With over 30,000,000 acres of cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco land either taken out or to be taken out of production this year, it is evident that a tremendous demand for legume seed will develop next spring. As a matter of fact, it will be impossible for all this idle land to be seeded to legumes and hay crops, since our estimated available seed supply is not large enough. This will undoubtedly mean a material rise in seed prices. - Wallaces'

AN ALL-DAY SONGSTER

O VER in a maple tree on the edge of Farmer Brown's dooryard lived Redeye the Vireo and his little mate. Peter Rabbit knew that they had a nest there, because Jenny Wren had told him so. He would have guessed it anyway, because Redeye spent so much time in that tree. No matter what hour of the day Peter visited the Old Orchard, he heard Redeye singing over in the maple tree. He thought sion of happiness, Redeye must be the happiest of all birds. Redeve was a little fellow of about the size of one of the Warblers and quite as modestly dressed as any of Peter's acquaintances. The crown of his head was gray with a little blackish border. Underneath he was white. For the rest, he was dressed in light olive green. The first time he came down near enough for Peter to see him well. Peter understood why he is called Redeve. His eyes were red. Yes, sir, his eyes were red. and this fact alone was enough to distinguish him from any other members of his family.

But it wasn't often that Redeye came down so near the ground that Peter could see his eyes. He preferred to spend most of his time in the tree tops, and Peter only got glimpses of him now and then. But if he didn't see him often, it was less often that he failed to hear him. "I don't see when Redeye finds time to eat," declared Peter as he listened to the seemingly unending song in the maple

"Redeye believes in singing while he works," said Jenny Wren. "For my part, I should think he'd wear his throat out. Just listening to him makes my own throat sore. When other birds sing they don't do anything else, but Redeye sings all the time he is hunting his meals, and only stops long enough to swallow a worm or a bug when he finds it. Just as soon as it is down he begins to sing again while he hunts for another. I must say for the Redeyes that they are mighty good nest builders. Have you seen their nest over in that maple tree, Peter?" Peter shook his head. "You probably couldn't see it anyway," declared Jenny Wren. "It is high up, and those leaves are so thick that they hide it. It's a regular little basket fastened in a fork near the end of a branch, and it is woven almost as nicely as is the nest of Goldy the Oriole."

"What's it made of?" asked Peter.

"Strips of bark, plant down, spider's web, grass, and pieces of paper," replied Jenny. "That's a funny thing about Redeye—he dearly loves a piece of paper in his nest. He's as fussy about having a scrap of paper as Cresty the Flycatcher is about having a piece of snakeskin. I had just a peep into the nest a few days ago, and unless I am greatly mistaken, Sally Sly the Cowbird has greatly imposed on the Redeyes. I am certain I saw one of her eggs in their

Tarantulas Kill Birds

Large tarantulas are said to have the ability to catch and kill birds, but most scientists decry their power to kill a human being, although a bite from one is very painful. Smaller tarantulas, native to the southwestern United States, are declared not only to be entirely harmless to man but beneficial, because they feed on insects that are destructive to crops.

On his way from the west coast the President not only saw some of the great public works projects of the Northwest, but also passed is backing up the government agencies in their work of hurrying vast sums of government money to the arid regions to ease the human suffering and also to lessen the chances of another such catastrophe. The Public Works administration, which had an original appropriation of $3,300,000,000, revealed it had spent about $400,000,000 on projects to aid impoverished western families.

Emergency Relief administration officials announced they had allotted huge sums to feed men and women. They also have spent thousands to care for starving cattle.

Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, who was on an inspection tour in the drouth area, ordered his forces to expedite all construction projects affecting the dry regions.

The President's order directs the surrender to the government of all silver bullion and bars within 90 days, the price to be paid being 50.01 cents an ounce. Silver coins and silverware are not included. Under the silver purchase act the treasury is authorized to value the silver it obtains at $1.29 an ounce and to issue silver certificates on that basis. The government proposes to hold enough silver to make up 25 per cent of the metal backing of the national currency. No one knows how much silver bullion there is in the United States, and it may be necessary to make considerable purchases in China and

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace joined in a statement concerning their efforts to revive America's world trade, explaining that the reciprocal trade agreements to be negotiated with foreign countries will be beneficial and not harmful to American agriculture and manufacturing.

The statement pointed out, in anawer to criticism from farm organizations, that farm interests would not be sacrificed to aid other groups.

It also said no sacrifice of any major or basic agricultural or manufacturing industry was planned, although Secretary Wallace told reporters that some harm might be done to a tiny fraction of the producers for the greater good of all.

AMOS DENOUNCES SELF-INDUL. GENCE

(Temperance Lesson).

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-14. GOLDEN TEXT—Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.

PRIMARY TOPIC-When People Are Selfish. JUNIOR TOPIC—Amos' Famous

Sermon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Dangers of Self-Indulgence.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—Destruction Through In-

Our lesson is a temperance lesson and applies to other things than indulgence in intoxicating liquors. Our age is intoxicated with the love of pleasure, pursuit of gain, and various kinds of self-ambition.

I. Israel's Reckless Security (vv. 1-3).

They were blind to the perils that surrounded them. They trusted in the mountains of Samaria for their protection. They regarded their city as impregnable. They seemed to have regarded the utterances of Amos as the dreams of a fanatic. The same blunders are being made in America by those who are depending upon money and armaments instead of righteousness as the national defense.

II. Israel's Extreme Luxury (vv. 4-6).

Periods of prosperity are always characterized by luxury. The luxury of Israel expressed itself in: 1. Extravagant furniture (v. 4). They had beds of ivory-perhaps wood inlaid with ivory. 2. Indolence (v. 4). Many lazily stretched themselves on their couches-lived lives of indolence. Such is the way of many in America today.

3. Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). The implication here is that they had their dainties out of season. They bought what they desired, regardless of what it cost.

4. Adorned their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs -even invented musical instruments for this purpose. How like the time in which we live! By means of the radio, vulgar and even licentious sentiments are carried to our ears through the noble art of music.

5. They drank wine (v. 6). They were not satisfied with ordinary drinking vessels—they drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking. They were so mastered by the intoxicating cup that their feasts which were adorned with the refinement of music ended in drunken debauchery.

III. Israel's Failure to Grieve for Joseph (v. 6).

Joseph here stands for Ephraim and Manasseh, his two sons. Ephraim became the principal tribe of the northern kingdom, so Joseph is used as a synonym for the nation. There is need of a modern Amos to thunder God's judgment upon those who are living in luxury, indifferent to the demands of the law of God.

IV. The Inevitable Consequence (vv. 7-11).

1. They shall go into captivity (v. 7). The northern kingdom was the first in sin, and therefore the first to go into captivity.

2. The calamitous circumstances of the siege of Samaria (vv. 8-11). The city with all its inhabitants was to be delivered up to its enemies. a. Israel, the first in rank as well as first in numbers and power, went first into captivity. b. Their revelry to cease (v. 7).

There was to be a rude awakening from their drunken carousals. c. God's judgment upon the city in strange contrast to his love for Jacob (v. 8). Men, women and children went into captivity at the hands of the Assyrians.

d. The surety of God's commandment (v. 11). The destruction was to be universal. The rich and the poor, the large and the small were included. God had sworn that his judgment shall fall. He is a God hosts, the controller of the whole universe, therefore none can escape. Though God sometimes waits long, he does not forget.

V. Israel's Ridiculous Conduct Exposed (vv. 12-14).

1. It was as absurd as plowing upon a rock with oxen. Their hard hearts were as unresponsive to the call of God as rocks are to the plow of the farmer (v. 12).

2. Their boasted power as a nation (v. 13). Outwardly the nation was characterized by great wealth and splendor. This all was to pass away with the stroke of divine judgment.

3. A nation raised up against them (v. 14). God raised up the Assyrian nation to punish Israel. The very fortified cities which they boasted of, Amos tells, would be taken away and used against them.

Answer: Although, according to the present point of view, there is not the slightest impropriety in going off now and then with three boys to play tennis, I agree that it no wonder! He's dug out every would be a serious mistake should she make going about alone with boys a habit. This is because a girl, who is always with boys, and never goes about with other girls. puts herself in a very insecure position. Perhaps you might explain to her that after all the word declassee means a woman whom the wives, mothers and sisters of her men friends refuse to know.

Dear Mrs. Post: What should I teach my son, who is nine years old, to reply to an introduction? I want him to say "ma'am" but I am told this is incorrect.

Answer: To a man, "How do you do, sir"; to a woman "How do you do, Mrs. Jones." "Ma'am" has always been a colloquialism-except when replying to royalty. But why "sir" is used when speaking to a gentleman and why "ma'am" is said to ladies in only a few localities is just one of those things that seem of justice. He is also the God of to have little reason further than that usage has made it so.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Ruined, financially, by the stock market crash, James Nelson, Boston merchant, breaks the news to his household. Nance is on the verge of her introduction to society, the date of her debut having been set. A short time before, an elderly cousin of Nelson's, Columbine, had written suggesting that Nance come to her at Pine Ridge, Colo., as a paid companion. The offer had been regarded by the family as a joke.

CHAPTER II.—Jack urges Nancy to accept Cousin Columbine's proposition, thus relieving their father of a certain financial burden, and offering to go with her so that she will not feel too lonely. The girl is at first appalled by the idea, but agrees that Jack write to Cousin Columbine, and they will await her answer. Columbine wires welcome to both of them, and despite their parents' apprehension of Nance's reaction to the situation they know she must face, it is arranged that the two shall go.

CHAPTER III.—At the railroad station the youngsters are welcomed by Cousin Columbine. They are somewhat dismayed by her unconventional attire and mannerisms, but realize she has character and a certain charm. The driver of their car is a young man, Mark Adam, son of a close friend of the old lady. The desolation (to Nance's city ideas) of Pine Ridge appalls the girl.

CHAPTER IV.—The newcomers meet Aurora Tubbs, Cousin Calumbine's cook and housekeeper, and Matthew Adam, Mark's older brother. The old-fashioned furnishings of her bedroom further depress Nance. Cousin Columbine explains her reasons for desiring Nance to come to her, and tells some experiences of her 73 years of life on the plains.

CHAPTER V .-- Nance gets better acquainted with Matthew Adam, and is impressed, despite the handicap of his bashfulness, by his evident good sense—and his good looks. Jack finds a temporary job.

CHAPTER VI.—The fascination of a new country wears off, and time begins to hang heavily on Nance's hands. An absence of interesting reading, both in the house and in the community, gives her an in-spiration.

CHAPTER VII

NANCY'S letter to her Aunt Louise arrived on a Saturday, and she carried it out to Edgemere to read aloud. The young people had been gone more than a month, and as the strangeness of their abyear-old daughter is very fond sence wore away, life was settling of tennis and cannot understand down into its new routine. Despite financial worry, Margaret Nelson to ride off with three boys to play was conscious of a sense of restfulness which had been lost to her gest asking another girl to go with during the last few years. rather surprising on the whole. Shall I read it now?"

"Let's wait till I get supper on the table," suggested Margaret, with a glance at her husband's tired face. "Phil says he's famished, and path since four o'clock. I don't know what I'd do without that boy, here in the country. He's a real worker."

"And in town there were no chores to occupy him," observed his aunt. "This move has been a splendid thing for Phil, Margaret. He looks and acts like a different boy. And I'm not sure but that the visit to Colorado has done something for Nancy, even if I did oppose it. Just wait till I drop my things and I'll help with supper I'll be down in a moment."

Watching his sister run lightly up the stairs, John Nelson wondered if the change in environment hadn't benefited her as well as Phil. Possibly Louise appreciated this taste of family life the better, because of her absence during the week. As she disappeared, he bent to kiss his wife for the second time since his arrival. It was, Margaret comprehended, an effort on his part to make up for the lack of cheering news, and tactfully refrained from asking how the day had gone.

"This is wonderful brown bread," declared Louise when they assembled at supper. "In our days of affluence, Margaret, I'd completely forgotten that you could cook! I'll take two bites and then read the letter. Have you heard from Colorado yourself today?" "A note from Jack. He says-"

"It was addressed to me," broke in Phil impatiently. "He's learned to milk; and is riding horseback every day. He says those Adam people are awf'ly nice, and that Mr. Adam does a lot of cooking because his wife doesn't like to and he does. He hadn't seen Nancy for more'n a week, but one of the Adam boys was there to dinner-at Cousin Columbine's, I mean; and there's been a blizzard; and Cousin Columbine and Nancy are going to eat Christmas dinner at the ranch 'cause they can't spare Jack; and Mr. Adam's going to cook the turkey all himself. I wish I could go to Colorado and get a job. Just feel my mus

ger, opened the letter from Pine Ridge.

"Your sister does not share your admiration of the classics," observed his aunt. "She says: '. and they look so dull (especially Scott), and the volumes are so heavy that I gave it up. I asked Aurora if there was a library here, and she said nobody in Pine Ridge has time to read, though the drug store does a thriving business in the sort of magazines that make you shudder and look schoolma'amy. Aunt Louise! Anyway, that gave me the idea. When I talked with Cousin Columbine she said that there was no Aladdin in Pine Ridge to rub his wonderful lamp, you know, and wish for a library; and while I was thinking what I'd do to this awful little place if I were Aladdin, I got an inspiration.

"'It's this; and I'm rushing my letter so you'll have it before Christmas vacation. I want to start a library here, Aunt Lou. If I got the books, I'm sure I'd find a place to keep them. There's a schoolhouse here that isn't used now the children are carried to a county school in busses, which would be wonderful. I'd open the place two or three afternoons a week, and no matter what Aurora says, I'm sure the young people and old ones, too, would be glad to take out books if they had the chance.

"'And here's where you come in: Wouldn't each girl at school donate a volume or two if you told them about the scheme? And haven't you and Mother got a lot you'd like to get rid of! No matter if they're shabby. Juanita Tubbs will help me cover them with paper. I'm sure the Adams will give some, too; and if you have any friends with books to part with, just grab them for my Aladdin library. That's what I'll call it if I can get somebody to paint a sign without being paid for the work. The Aladdin library! Won't that look swell over the door? until I hear from you, but do write soon or I'm likely to explode. With the exception of the Adam boys and Mary Taylor, the postmaster's daughter, this population looks as if it needed to be shaken up, and I'm sure a library will be a step in the right direction."

most interesting. "There's no time for more. The fire is almost out and the wind is howling, and snow is sifting through the cracks in my tower windows. Cousin Columbine says it'll be dry as dust in a week, but I wonder. Love to every one at home, and do, do help."

Louise laid down the letter, and looked up.

"What are you grinning for, Phil Nelson?"

"I was thinking that Nancy'd make a real swell missionary," said the little boy. "I've got a lot of old books that she can have, just as well as not; and maybe some of the kids at school have got some, too. Do you s'pose if I got a lot of books for the Pine Ridge library, that Cousin Columbine would pay row going over them."

"And I'll pay the expressage," promised his sister. "It won't be necessary to go hungry Christmas

Phil drew a deep sigh of relief. "That's the stuff! It'll be a funny enough Christmas anyway, with Jack and Nancy gone. What are you thinking about, Mother? You look awful solemn and far-away." His mother started, pulling her-

"Read it all," said Dad, "We haven't heard for several days." "No doubt Nancy counted on my bringing this out tonight. It should have reached me sooner. Those storms in the Middle West delayed it, and she's in a hurry for an answer, too. She says:

"'Dear useful Aunt Louise: A blizzard is raging and I can't see Pike's Peak from my tower, and have to hop up every five minutes to drop a log into the stove. I could write in the warm kitchen, but Aurora Tubbs would insist on talking, and I've simply got to get this down on paper. It came of my trying to find something to read this stormy morning. All Cousin Columbine has is Scott and Dick-

"I love Dickens, and Scott, too," Phil interrupted. "I can read those when I visit Cousin Columbine. Go on, Aunt Lou."

"'I shan't say a word to anyone

Louise paused a m then went on, with a smile of amusement lighting her eyes: "'Do not misunderstand, however. I have not become a missionary, or anything like that; but when you see people who have so little, it makes you think. Besides, I haven't enough to do. And Jack said Cousin Columbine wanted a slave! All the poor dear did want was to see some one belonging to her, before she died. And she's a long way from dying, if you ask me-the briskest (if there's no such word it doesn't matter) old lady I ever saw, and the

my fare to Colorado?"

Dad smiled, and said: "Some one will have to pay expressage on those books! But we'll manage that if we go without our Christmas dinner. I'm proud of our girl, thinking this up all by herself; and we've got to help her put it through. It's fortunate we stored the books out here, Margaret. We'll spend tomorself together and smiling a bit wistfully. 'Do you know," she told her family in surprise, "I've been so busy I only just remembered that-that Nancy was to have made her debut

Two thousand miles away in Pine Ridge, Colo., there had been no such forgetfulness. Nancy's first thought on waking was that this was to have been the day of her debut. This was the day she had looked forward to so long! Nancy snuggled down under the patchwork quilt and gave herself to the luxury of introspection. What thrills she and Mother had had over their plans! How exciting to indulge in all those evening gowns! And what would be happening to her now if that miserable stock market hadn't crashed,

Nance glanced at her watch. It was seven o'clock-nine in Boston; and before long the flowers would have come pouring in: flowers from family friends, boy friends, girl friends, too. She could almost see Aunt Judy's eyes shining with delight and pride as each fragrant tribute was brought in-dear Aunt Judy, who'd never done anything but look after other people! Mother would be a whirl of efficient excitement, enjoying every thrilling moment, and-Oh, what was the use of these imaginings? Nance asked herself. Even if Dad accumulated another fortune there would be no debut for her: and the chances were against his doing that-at his age. Fiftysix! Nancy wondered how it would seem to be fifty-six-shudderedand then realized that Dad didn't seem old at all, and often acted younger than she did! This was a cheering thought, and the girl kicked off her quilt and ran to close the windows.

At any rate, it was a glorious day, and all that snow had vanished, sinking into the ground and leaving everything quite dry again. Nance opened her door, to be greeted by the aroma of frying bacon. After all, the day might not be so bad. She was going to the Springs with Mrs. Adam (whom she had not yet met), to purchase the sport hose as well as some ten cent "jokes" for Christmas; something to make laughter at the dinner table, though Cousin Columbine assured her that there would be laughter at the Adam dinner table, jokes or no jokes.

Nancy was late to breakfast. Cousin Columbine pretended to be provoked, but the girl grinned at

"I was too comfortable to move; and besides, I-well, I started daydreaming." "About what?" asked the old lady crisply. Nancy consumed two bites of muffin, and then said: "'Of all sad words of tongue or pen,' Cousin Columbine, 'the saddest are theseit might have been.' I'll admit I was pitying myself a little. This happens to be the day when Nancy Nelson expected to launch her bark on the-the social sea!" She laughed, but it wasn't a natural laugh, and Cousin Columbine observed her gravely.

"Was giving up all that fuss and feathers a disappointment?" "It was some jolt," said Nance. 'Could I have two eggs, please?

And what time did Mrs. Adam say she'd come?" "At nine o'clock. I wish you'd run down to the store before you leave, Nancy, and get some baking

Aurora's going to make a cake." "Do you want chocolate or coconut?" questioned Aurora, poking her head in at the door. "If it's to be coconut, you better get another box; but considerin'-" "Get the coconut anyway," broke in Miss Columbine, and motioned Aurora to go away. "I'm glad you're to have this trip today, child. You won't have time to be regretting what can't be helped. I want you to get a pretty scarf to give Eve Adam, something good, since we're going there for Christmas dinner. Eve never spends a penny on herself, and she likes nice things, and knows 'em, too. That's all, except a book for John." "You mean the old Adam?" asked Nancy, dimpling. Cousin Columbine nodded. "You bring a couple o' pounds of powdered sugar," called Aurora as Nancy started off. "And" (as she reached the gate) "a cake o' choco-

When Nance returned laden with paper bags of various sizes, the Adam car was standing before the door; and as she laid her burdens on the kitchen table, Aurora said: "Well, here you are! And Matthew Adam waiting six minutes. His mother couldn't go; and I hope to goodness that boy don't keep his mouth shut all the way. He's in the sittin' room with Miss Columbine right now; but if you was to have give you a more exciting time.'

Nance whirled about, laughing as she saw Matthew in the doorway. He said, apologetically: "I know, Aurora, but Mark couldn't be spared this morning. Don't kill yourself to hurry, Na-Nancy. I've got to put some water in the radiator. Just ta-take your time."

"Is Mrs. Adam sick?" questioned the girl as he went out.

"No, my dear," responded Cousin Columbine, "but Luke comes home tomorrow anyway, and Matthew had some errands he wished to do. Now run and get your things together, child; and don't hurry through your shopping for Matthew Adam or anybody else. If you're back by supper time it's soon enough."

The early winter darkness had fallen when they returned. Nance had had a wonderful day. She had lunched at a delightful tea room, done her own Christmas errands, Aurora's, Cousin Columbine's and even Matthew Adam's! For when she met her escort at the appointed time, the young man con fessed that he had delayed his own holiday shopping in order to profit by her advice. Would Dot Mere dith, the cousin who was in col lege at Denver and was to spend her vacation at the ranch, approve of silk stockings as a gift? And what size must be get? What color Darned if he knew! And would Nancy look at a luncheon set he wanted for his mother, and see if it were really any good?

So Nance stored her parcels in the old car, and fared forth again this time with Matthew. But it was all fun, and after weeks of comparative solitude in Pine Ridge, the Christmas crowds seemed thrilling. Their errands accomplished, Matt took her to a place where they had hot chocolate and delicious sandwiches; and on the way home he drove with exceeding slowness, even after the dangerous pass was left behind.

The stars were out when they bumped over the railroad track and started up the straggling, familiar street. Dusk hid its shabbiness. and Nance turned as she always did. for that matchless view of the white-crested Peak.

"Well, we're home," she said, and added, laughing: "That sounds exactly like Aurora, doesn't it? I've had a great time, Matt, and I do appreciate your letting me tag along. If your cousin's stockings don't turn out the right size, the saleswoman said they could be changed. I know your mother will love the linen-anyone would; and-Will you look at that!" They were approaching the Nelson "mansion" now. "There's a light in the parlor! Is the President, or governor or some one calling on Cousin Columbine? Why!" (as they turned in the gate), "there are lights everywhere! What can be happening?" She looked up, at Matthew this time. There was, Nance saw, an inscrutable smile curving his nice mouth, but all he said was: "Let's go in and see."
