FITZGERALD RALLY ATTRACTED LARGE NUMBERS IN THUMB

Speaker Asks for Lessening of Expenditures of Taxpayers' Money.

ADVOCATED REPEAL OF
HEAD TAX IN ADDRESS

A political rally that measures up with the greatest of many years in Tuscola county in the way of enthusiasm and attendance was held at the high school auditorium at Cass City Friday evening when delegations from the counties of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac came to hear the address of Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald, candidate for the nomination of governor at the Republican primary.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in his address, said that more attention should be paid to state expenditures and less to seeking more avenues of revenue, advocated the repeal of the head tax and the elimination of the sales tax on the necessities of life, and asked for a drastic change in the granting of pardons and paroles.

Preceding the gathering at the school auditorium, bands, playing on Cass City's streets, lent a gala air to the occasion and entertained large numbers of people.

Eight o'clock, the hour set for the program at the school, found the auditorium well filled. It is estimated that 1,100 people were seated in the auditorium while several hundreds in automobiles outside were reached by a loud speaker.

Audley Rawson, chairman of the Tuscola county Fitzgerald-for-Governor club, presided. Seated with him on the platform were prominent Fitzgerald workers of the three counties of Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron.

F. A. Bigelow served as song leader when the audience opened the program with the singing of "America." The accompaniment was played by the Cass City Ladies' Band, who were seated on the stage. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Uring, pastor of the United Brethren church at Gilford.

Following a selection by the Pigeon Band, M. B. Auten extended greetings and words of welcome. The Vassar-Richville Band favored the audience with a selection after which Mrs. Margaret Smith, vice president of the Tuscola county Fitzgerald club, announced a meeting of Republican women at Caro on August 23. Dr. I. D. McCoy presented Mr. Fitzgerald to the audience.

"Attendance at rallies this year show an interest in good government and indicate that more care is being taken in the selection of candidates," said Mr. Fitzgerald, who complimented women on their interest in political affairs. "Success was formerly measured by the yardstick of wealth, but the definition of success is now contained in happiness, contentment and friends. Today we take time to appreciate our friends. Back of the success of every man is a good woman."

"My situation as a state officer is peculiar," said the secretary of state, "in that I am one Republican in a Democratic administration. I have not been taken into the confidence of the administration board, but I have tried to assist the president."

High Scholastic Record Combined with Punctuality

Out of the 46 rural school pupils who earned high marks in the eighth grade examinations this spring in Tuscola county and were guests of the Tuscola County Fair on Wednesday, 36 of them have a record of not being tardy during the past year. Fifteen were neither absent nor tardy. One of these was "Bill" Heckroth of Akron township who lost both feet in an accident a few years ago.

Wilma Sheardy, an eighth grade graduate of the North Grove school in Fremont township, has never been absent nor tardy during her school life.

USE OF FERTILIZER HELPS WHEAT CROP

Extra Bushels and Benefits to Legume Seedings Obtained from Added Plant Food.

The use of fertilizer for wheat has proved to be a profitable investment in tests conducted by the soils department at Michigan State College over a period of years on many different soils types.

In addition to the increase in wheat yields, there is a marked benefit to seedings which may be sown with the grain as a nurse crop. Applications of the right analysis of wheat fertilizers have paid in the college tests even with the extremely low prices that have prevailed for wheat in the past few seasons.

In tests made on the John Reagh farm, near Cass City, yields were improved 20 bushels per acre when 250 pounds of superphosphate were applied per acre. The use of 250 pounds of 4-16-4 also gave a 20 bushel increase, and the same amount of 2-12-6 added 21 bushels per acre to the harvest.

With wheat at 86 cents a bushel, the returns for each dollar spent for fertilizer would be $6.93 for superphosphate, $3.74 for 4-16-4, and $5.47 for 2-12-6. The increase in yields would have paid for the fertilizer if wheat had been worth only 13 cents a bushel when the phosphate was used. Eighteen cent wheat would have paid for the 2-12-6, and 23 cent wheat would have returned the money spent 4-16-4.

Bean Dealers Hear Fitzgerald

Honoring Frank D. Fitzgerald, candidate for the nomination of governor on the Republican ticket, members of the Thumb Bean Association and the Eastern Michigan Bean Association gave a banquet at the Hotel Gordon at Cass City early Friday evening.

Audley Rawson, chairman of the Fitzgerald-for-governor club of Tuscola county, introduced the toastmaster, George McIntyre, of DeFord, who, he said, was bean man, banker and politician.

State Representative D. Knox Hanna presented Mr. Fitzgerald as Michigan's next governor.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in a few remarks, stated that he was a natural dirt farmer and knew the troubles of the agriculturalist. He said he was growing 37 acres of beans on his Grand Ledge farm.

Local Contractors Awarded Two Jobs

E. L. and E. B. Schwaderer were the successful bidders on two jobs of 20 ft. pavement which will be built by the Tuscola County Road Commission. One-half mile will be constructed in the village of Vassar and ¼ mile in the village of Richville. Both were let for $4,300. Vassar will furnish 2,800 hours of hand labor and Richville 2,280 hours.

The Richville pavement will be started Saturday, and weather permitting, the contractors expect to complete both pavements by the end of next week.

Eber Gale, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. Harry Young, for several weeks, spent Saturday until Tuesday in Flint.

CHECKS ARE COMING ON HOG CONTRACTS

Final Work Done in Six Michigan Counties, Others Near End of Big Task.

The corn-hog reduction program has made rapid progress toward completion in Michigan during the last three weeks, according to Verne H. Church, chairman, State Corn-Hog Board of Review. County allotment committees in forty counties have completed the necessary adjustments and have received approval from the State Board of Review to type the final contracts and have them signed. Six counties have completed this final step and have been authorized to ship their contracts to Washington. These counties are Schoolcraft, Washtenaw, Macomb, Newaygo, Osceola and Calhoun.

The total gross benefits available to Washtenaw county, the first major county to complete its program, amount to $116,066. Even after local administrative expenses are deducted there will probably be in excess of $112,000, as net benefit payments, to be distributed to the 635 contract signers in this county.

Schoolcraft county with 24 contracts will receive gross benefits of $2,075; Macomb county, 126 contracts and benefits of $19,848; Newaygo county, 124 contracts and benefits of $12,210; Osceola county, 171 contracts and benefits of $11,587. Calhoun county has a total of 880 contracts and the gross benefits total $149,598.

Approximately 25,000 contracts have been signed in the state, and Mr. Church estimates that these Michigan farmers will receive gross total benefits in excess of $3,000,000. The total benefits for hog reduction are computed at approximately $2,500,000 and for corn, around $600,000. The State Board of Review has received assurance from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington that checks will be mailed to signers within 10 days from the receipts of contracts found to be in correct form.

Aside from the 40 counties given approval by the State Board of Review, there are about 30 others which have contracts and whose allotment committees are now busily engaged in making the necessary final adjustments. These will be completed as rapidly as possible and it now appears that the corn-hog program will be completed in Michigan as early as in most of the other corn belt states notwithstanding the fact that many of these had the program under way several weeks before the organization was effected.

Turkey Field Day at Caro, Aug. 30

The third annual turkey field day will be held at the fair grounds at Caro on Thursday, August 30. The officers of the Michigan Turkey Growers' Association and the officials of Michigan State College join in inviting all persons interested in turkeys to be present. This will be an all-day meeting with a basket dinner at noon.

Mrs. Thomas Musson, president of the Michigan Turkey Growers' Association, will be chairman of the program, which will be given in the afternoon. The speakers will be Professor C. G. Card, head of the Poultry Department, and Professor J. M. Moore, in charge of Poultry Research, both of Michigan State College, and Ashley Berridge, superintendent of the Lake City Experiment Station. In addition to the above speakers, several of the Michigan successful turkey growers will discuss briefly some phase of their system of management.

Many at Home- Coming at Shabbona

An excellent example of cooperation in community affairs was the home-coming celebration at Shabbona on Saturday. Workers in a small community are naturally few, but when they function as diligently as they did for this event, they were bound to make a success of the venture. It is estimated that 2,000 attended the celebration and they were much pleased with the fine program of entertainment provided.

There were races and other contests. Paul Auslander's team won the hauling contest. The Buick Colored baseball team of Flint lost to Elkhon to a 7-10 score. Music was furnished by the Snover band. Dancing was the feature of the evening program.

The main speaker of the afternoon was former Probate Judge

Carl H. Smith of Bay City. He spoke in the interest of Frank D. Fitzgerald, candidate for the nomination for governor. Congressman Jesse P. Wolcott discussed legislation in Washington.

There was a midway with many amusements on the village streets.

SHABBONA WON FROM CASS CITY TUESDAY, 6-5

Cass City All Stars were defeated by Shabbona, 6 to 5, in a game of softball Tuesday night. Shabbona had two home runs to Cass City's one which was their margin of victory. The game went only five innings, the fault of a late start.

The play-off date between Parsch and Gowen, winners of the two series completed a week ago, has been set for Sunday, Sept. 2. A three-game series will be played on this date. This is a tentative date and may be changed if not satisfactory.

YOUTH CONSPICUOUS IN CRIME OF TODAY

First Step in War Against Crime Is Right at Home, Says Cramton.

"The most startling thing about crime today is that youth is so conspicuous in it," declared Louis C. Cramton, former congressman, in his talk to the Cass City Rotary Club Tuesday noon. "Federal statistics show more crimes committed at the age of nineteen than any other, but eighteen is a close second. Over 12,000 at each of those ages were arrested in nine months. That is not an indictment of the youth of today but it is an indictment of the condition under which many of them live. The responsibility is on the family, but it is also on the community."

"The most appalling phase of the present liquor sale situation is the very common sale of beer to boys and girls in the allegedly innocuous beer parlors. There is plainly a first step in the war against crime right at home. Leniency ought not to be shown any one convicted of selling to minors."

The gangsters, with their escapes and their acquittals, the thousands of unsolved, unpunished

FOOTBALL PRACTICE OPENS SEPTEMBER 4

A Squad of About 65 Boys
Preparing to Defend Title
Over Hard Schedule.

Football practice for all who can get in will start September 4 for the Maroon and Gray squad. Much work lies ahead for the defending champions of the Thumb before the opening whistle blows on September 21, when the strong Harbor Beach team will furnish plenty of opposition. Harbor Beach was defeated only by Cass City last year in football and victory by only a six point margin.

Cass City lost five regulars and three very good first string reserve men from last year's squad. The call is out for three or four good all-state half backs to replace Quick, Knight and Severance from last year's star backfield, while a whole new left side of the line is needed to replace Kosanke (end), Bill McCallum and Eli Martin (tackles), John Kelley (guard) and Nile Stafford (center).

This year's team will be built around Ballagh, the hardest hitting fullback in the Thumb, and Graham at quarter, in the backfield, and the line will be headed by Ward, who probably will see service in the backfield on offense as well as defense this year as he plays any position equally well, and teamed with Ballagh in backing up a line, will have no equal. Along side of Ward will be one of the best tackles seen in years around the Thumb, none other than the famous brother, Basil, of the famous Russell Quick, all-state halfback who thrilled the fans last year with his long runs for touchdowns. Next to him will be Carl Stafford whose good blocking and defensive work will go far to help him make this year's team a success. The center position is causing a little worry right at the present. Donnelly, if he comes back to school, will probably get the call over little Fred Withey, who will be tried at a guard position as he is one of the scrappiest little men ever to wear a Cass City uniform. Junior Boulton will also be a likely candidate for center position as he displayed great fighting ability there last year. Other likely candidates for positions on the line include McAlpin, big freshman tackle last year; two seasons and should develop into a star this year; A. D. McLellan, Turn to page 2, please.

DROUGHT REVEALS EASTERN MICHIGAN AS GARDEN SPOT

Averages of Crops for United States Are Exceeded
Here.

TOURISTS FIND HERE
GARDEN OF MIDDLE WEST

Tourists are coming and going from Eastern Michigan this year with the conviction that here lies the garden spot of the Middle West, writes Edgar M. Woods in the Bay City Sunday Times. But the unique fertility of Eastern Michigan soil assumes even greater importance in comparison to the beautiful yield here in relation to the barren top soils of the world's best farm lands.

While harvests in this area, in many instances, are above or at normal, thus easily surpassing the production level of the rest of the Great Middle West, the roll of sections that answer "Trouble!" in the universal drought plague reads almost like a roster of this planet's most fruitful lands. United States: No wheat to export with the food production at a 30-year low. According to Service Science Survey, "The corn outlook is seriously pessimistic. There is practically a total failure of the crop in an area including Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, and parts of Iowa and Illinois." Russia: Practically no wheat for export. Germany: Insufficient feed for cattle or man. Livestock must be slaughtered. Poland and other of the Danube valley countries: Grain crops critically short. China: Rice crop extremely low. Canada: Grain production far below normal. Mexico: Shortage feared. Australia: Wheat production "way below" normal. Argentina: Severe grain reductions.

While such a disaster has visited the far-flung farm lands of the planet, Mother Nature has dealt kindly with Eastern Michigan. From Sanilac to Ogemaw counties, stretched along the Lake Huron shore area, harvests and harvest prospects are an optimistic story of bountiful yields.

Among the foremost of the cheering reports from Eastern Michigan is the bean crop condition in Huron county, bean producing center of the entire world. With a national crop outlook of only 62 per cent normal, Huron county has prospects today of recording a yield for 1934 in excess of 1933 and above the normal crop. Such a hopeful condition is adequate.

"Fly Free" Dates in Sanilac County

The Hessian fly in the past has been one of the important wheat pests. The grub works in the straw and eventually the head topples over with no grain being produced in that stalk. During the past few years there has been a much smaller percentage infected with this pest due to the control measures which have been followed.

"There comes a time each year, usually in September after which no eggs are laid," say Russell S. Wait, Sanilac county agricultural agent. "If we can so time our seeding that the plants will not be in a suitable condition for receiving the eggs till after the flies are through we escape the fly altogether. This critical time is called the 'fly free date,' and varies with each season. The average time for Sanilac county is as follows: Higher ground, September 15th to 21st, lower ground September 15th to 25th. Therefore, if one wishes to escape the Hessian fly, no wheat should be sown before these dates."

SENATOR ORR RE-APPOINTED ON CRIME COMMISSION

State Senator H. P. Orr of Caro has been notified of his re-appointment to the State Crime Commission for a three-year term to expire August 2, 1937. The appointment was made by Lieut. Leavin' the Old and Greetin' the New
by Lawrence Hawthorne

It's kind o' tough t' have t' leave
So many folks you've learned t' know,
An' have 'em grip yer hand an' tell
How much they hate t' see you go!
It's kind o' tough t' say goodbye
To friends you've seen day after day—
It's hard t' break the happy bonds
O' comradeship an' move away.

It's hard t' pack up all yer things
An' leave a cozy home behind—
The place where joys have come t' you,
Where neighbors all have been so kind,
An' when, at last, yer dearest pal
Is tryin' hard t' make a bluff
At bein' brave, an' breaks right down—
It's a kind o' tough, it's kind o' tough!

But say! It's great t' find new friends,
Jus' waitin' fer a chance t' show
How glad they are t' have you come
An' live with 'em! It's great t' know
That folks 're just about the same
No matter where you chance t' roam,
An' if you let 'em have their way
You'll soon be feelin' right at home.

So, it's a long farewell, old friends;
May God be mighty good t' you!
Across the miles an' down the years
You'll find my friendship always true.
And now I turn with eager heart
T' meet whatever life extends—
T' greet the folks that welcome me,
An' try t' make them all my friends.

ON SELECTING SHERIFFS.

As we look over the counties of Michigan and see the thousands of good men and true who aspire to the office of sheriff, we are gratified to note how the romantic urge to fill that historically great office wells up in the breasts of so many citizens. Perhaps it is caused by the thrilling and entirely laudatory roles that sheriffs play in so many movies.

But regardless of the basic reason, it seems that there are numerous candidates—so many in fact that the average citizen has no real way of knowing who he is to vote for.

To inform the electorate and promote the idea of good government, we would suggest a Sheriffs' Field Day at which the various candidates could show John Smith and Mary Jones just how good they are. Instead of buying cigars, kissing babies, and setting up beers, we'd have each candidate deposit $500 or more with the treasurer and then go into training—at home.

On the appointed day, all the candidates would sally forth in a convenient field attired in shorts and side arms. The assembled multitude could eat free ice cream, hot dogs, sandwiches, and perhaps drink beer bought with the entrance fees.

Then the show would start. Each candidate would have a chance at such appropriate sporting events as reading warrants, locking jail doors, dragging bodies out of wrecked automobiles, spotting slot machines at 100 yards, wearing stars, reading license numbers, shooting tires off speeding cars, and such other diversions as the local electors might desire.

At the end of the affair—or when the ice cream and sandwiches were gone—the two or three best performers might be chosen to have their names on the ballot. That would comply with the election laws and also give the absent voters a chance to cast ballots.

In case you feel that this plan would be too much trouble, the next best system would be to raffle off the job. A good man could sell enough tickets to pay the sheriff's salary.—Ogemaw County Herald.

Wasps' Nests

The deserted home of the paper making wasp is a common sight throughout Michigan woodlands, says the Detroit News. In the old days when the pioneers suffered from hay fever or asthma they found relief by smoking particles of this dried nest. In building it the wasps gather small chips of wood, masticate them and shape their nest much as an artisan would handling plaster or cement. The entrance hole at the bottom goes upward in order to keep out beating rains and the entire structure is highly waterproof.

The exceptional popularity which Chevrolet has enjoyed for many years has naturally had its effect on Chevrolet prices. Large sales have enabled Chevrolet to maintain consistently low purchase prices, which were recently lowered even further. As a result Chevrolet now offers you the lowest priced six-cylinder automobile obtainable—a big, comfortable car with Fisher Body styling and refinement—safe, weatherproof, cable-controlled brakes—the smoothness and economy of a valve-in-head, six-cylinder engine—and typical Chevrolet dependability. In offering this car, and the Master models, at substantially lower prices, Chevrolet hopes to repay the motoring public in some measure, for consistently placing Chevrolet so high in public favor.

A DOLLAR?

Dave Harum said, "When you get hold of ten dollars get it into you or onto you as soon as you can, for there ain't no pocket in a shroud and you're a long time dead."

If you had nothing but money you would be poor indeed. It is the things for which you can exchange the money you earn that set the standards of your living comforts and conveniences.

You know this. But do you know that it is you who largely determines the value of your dollars.

Many things contribute to the distance a dollar will go, but the greatest agent in "value received" is Advertising.

The advertisements in this paper tell you about the best grades of merchandise. They tell you where they can be had and for how much.

They tell you of the new things that manufacturers are producing to make your dollars of real worth to you in greater comforts, better living, more enjoyment.

Read the advertisements. Take time to save time. Take trouble to save trouble. Read to save walking. Search the ads to save searching the stores. And to make the dollar go farther!

ent administration in all matters that I deemed right and have tried to represent the people honestly.

"In the next two years there will be the most difficult problems to solve that Michigan has had in the last fifty years. I am not a miracle man, have no trick cure for ills, and am not the only man equipped or qualified to serve as governor, but base my candidacy on present and past service as a public official. The governor must deal with a firm hand yet lend a sympathetic ear to the average every-day citizen."

Mr. Fitzgerald here made a comparison of the days preceding 1929 when money was plentiful and every man had a job, and the present time when there is every reason for curtailing expenditures in governmental affairs.

"We need to pay more attention to expenditures," he said, "rather than seek new avenues of revenue. We must get on a pay-as-you-go basis. The government is no different in that respect than an individual. The way government is administered effects every business and every individual. Michigan is paying every day $10,827.00 interest on her indebtedness. This is a time for actual as well as oral economy. It is the time to get back to simple government. It is the time for officials to forget the selfishness of the few and do something for all the people of the state."

Mr. Fitzgerald expressed himself as favoring a reduction of the auto weight tax and the auto license fee. He preached these reductions for the past three years. Through these reductions and the two-payment license plan, he said 105,000 more cars are operating this year than the previous one, thereby increasing the state's revenue from the gas tax. He advocated a reduction of the weight tax on autos, but the retention of the gas tax. The gas tax, in his opinion, is a most equitable tax.

"The people, in adopting the 15 mill limitation by an amendment to the state constitution, reduced the real estate tax, and not the present administration," said the speaker. "In place of the $20,000,000 real estate tax of former years, the sales tax is bringing in $44,000,000, making a two dollar revenue where there was one before. The sales tax must be amended and modified. Manufacturers and farmers are penalized under the present provisions. This tax should be eliminated from the necessities of life.

"While all favor an old age pension act, I advocate the repeal of the head tax. Up to July 1, $232,000 were paid in by the head tax and the collection cost was $208,000. The amount actually paid to the aged was $1,256.

"The state's obligation to the public schools is to see that they are operated the full school year and that its teachers are paid adequate salaries. The cost of government can be reduced without hurting anyone. There is no mystery about government. It is just a big business proposition and needs the application of business principles."

Mr. Fitzgerald advocated keeping the conservation department out of politics as it is at the present time, and expressed himself as favoring drastic changes in the policy of pardons and paroles. In closing his address, he said he had but one campaign promise and that was that if elevated to the position of governor, he would take the job seriously and devote every ounce of energy to give the people of Michigan an honest, efficient government.

Rally Notes.

Willis Campbell was responsible for the fine stage setting. Baskets of beautiful gladioli were there in great numbers and an attractive Fitzgerald-for-Governor banner hung at the top of the platform. Few commencement occasions had as attractive a display of flowers. The gladioli came from gardens in Cass City and Kingston. Young men, attired in white, assisted Mr. Campbell in seating the large audience.

C. U. Brown, J. D. Tuckey, Erwin Wanner and Ray Fleenor had charge of parking of the automobiles. The large number of cars on the school grounds were placed in an orderly fashion on the east side of the building and the driveways were kept clear. Nice work, boys! The Caro Drum and Bugle Corps added plenty of life and snap to the occasion with their drills on Main street early in the evening. The Pigeon, Richville-Vassar and Cass City bands were equally appreciated for their musical contributions.

Audley Rawson, head of the Tuscola Fitzgerald forces, expressed his appreciation for the hearty cooperation he received in making the rally a success. Mr. Rawson is an enthusiastic worker, but realized the efficient aid contributed by others was responsible to a large degree for the success of the occasion. John Marshall is the Elkland township chairman, and like Mr. Rawson, worked hard and was pleased with the enthusiasm with which the large audience greeted Mr. Fitzgerald.

Use for Cellulose

The first chemical uses for cellulose were those where it was combined with nitrogen to form cellulose nitrate. By varying the amount of nitrogen, chemists obtained a wide variety of products. If a large proportion of nitrogen was used they obtained smokeless powder. With a medium proportion the quick-drying lacquers for automobiles and similar products were developed. Using only a small amount of nitrogen to large amounts of cellulose, the chemists produced celluloid for motion picture film, toilet articles and a multitude of molded toys.

For the first time Michigan will have "rest days" during the water fowl season, the shooting to be on a five-day-a-week basis this year, according to word received from federal authorities at Washington by the State Conservation Commission in Lansing. The season will be from Oct. 3 to Nov. 11, inclusive.

Monday and Tuesday of each week were designated as "rest days," upon which no hunting will be allowed. The open season will be the same in the Upper and Lower Peninsulas.

Recently the State Conservation Commission recommended a continuous 30-day season, from Oct. 1 to Oct. 30, inclusive, in the Upper Peninsula, and from Oct. 15 to Nov. 14, inclusive, in the Lower Peninsula. The continuous seasons were recommended because of the difficulty of enforcing rest days. These recommendations were rejected by the United States Biological Survey.

Rev. Jacob Hommel, 82, retired Evangelical pastor and a resident of this section of the state nearly half a century, died Saturday at his home, 2511 South Niagara street. He was born Oct. 30, 1851, at Wuerttemberg, Germany, and was educated and ordained in the Evangelical church in Germany and preached there and in Switzerland several years.

When he was 26 years of age, Rev. Mr. Hommel came to Philadelphia, where he served a pastorate and in 1884 came to Detroit, where he was married to Miss Kunigunda Beyerlein. He preached at Detroit two years and in 1896 became regularly associated with the Michigan Conference of Evangelical churches. He then served several of the conference churches, including Zion Evangelical church here, which was then situated at Fayette and Hancock streets. He served Zion church four years, the limit that an Evangelical minister then was allowed to remain with one congregation.

In 1916, Rev. Mr. Hommel retired from the ministry to make his home in Saginaw and since retiring has preached in various churches for brief periods. He was one of the pioneers of the Michigan conference and remained active in religious circles until two weeks ago, when he delivered a sermon at Hersey, Mich. He had planned to preach today at Bay Shore Park, Sebewaing.

Rev. Mr. Hommel is survived by a daughter, Miss Johanna Hommel, at home; a sister, Miss Angeli-ka Hommel, of Germany, and two nephews, Richard and Albert Froe-80 per cent of normal in comparison to a national average of but 25 per cent. Tuscola farmers have also harvested an 85 per cent normal oat and barley crop in comparison to a national average of practically 40 per cent, the lowest percentage in half a century. And not alone Tuscola, but Arenac, and Bay counties, as well, bear impressive grain records: Arenac with a 110 per cent oat crop and an 80 per cent barley yield, and Bay with a 70 per cent oat crop and a 60 per cent wheat yield.

Arenac county also boasts an above-normal average in corn, sugar beets, potatoes and pickles. The corn production is on a basis favorable with that of the other eastern Michigan farming counties, far in excess of the national yield.

With the national forecast for corn only 1,607,608,000 bushels in comparison to a 1933 yield of 2,343,883,000, six counties located in this twentieth century "Garden of Eden" boasts a production not only above the 1933 mark, but "one of the best in years." The counties and their respective yields, in percentage comparison to the normal production, are: Sanilac, 110 per cent; Huron, 100 per cent; Tuscola, 100 per cent; Bay 80 per cent; Arenac, 110 per cent, and Midland, 90 per cent. This production report alone would seem justification for the designation of Eastern Michigan as a "garden spot" when the corn figures are compared with statistics, for instance, of Kansas, where the corn crop is but 10 per cent of normal and the lowest in more than half a century.

Potatoes are another Eastern Michigan crop that is above the state and national average. Arenac county leads the potato growing sections of the "garden" with a 100 per cent normal yield, while Midland, with 85 per cent, Ogemaw, with 83 per cent and Bay, with 75 per cent, are significant in view of the estimate of state production at 58 per cent of normal by the State Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. With such a high spud yield, Eastern Michigan will have cause a-plenty for strutting its produce at the Thumb Potato Show at Mayville and placing its graded tubers on display at the Detroit market this fall.

And Bay county farmers step forward with a beet production mark that will equal or surpass 8.2 to the acre, with several fields estimated to average 10 tons per acre.

In one instance alone, Eastern Michigan, mirrors the drought plague of the West and that is in the matter of pasture lands and forage crops. But even here, the yield of the section is far above the average of both state and nation and successful steps have been taken in various sectors to allay any threat of serious shortage of forage crops through cultivation of fast-growing animal food yields such as soy beans.

In hay and alfalfa production, Sanilac county leads the list with production of 90 per cent, closely followed by Huron and Tuscola with 65 per cent, Midland 60 per cent, and Bay county with 60 per cent. In some areas in the section the hay crop has fallen to as low as 25 per cent normal, but there is no immediate threat of forage shortage because of the late planting of soy beans or an emergency crop. Late rains and fine growing weather have promised an unusually successful harvest. Although Eastern Michigan will have no overabundance of hay or alfalfa to ship elsewhere it is believed that the home animal food supply is now adequate to take care of the carefully culled herds of cattle.

Despite the fact that the crop was short, and pastures fairly well burned over, livestock herds of the state have not suffered.

With the entire food production of the United States at a 30-year low, Eastern Michigan boasts a near-normal yield.

Here is an Eastern Michigan picture of luxuriant farm growth, fat cattle, and full harvests that few growing areas in the United States are able to duplicate. At the left, top row, is one of the corn fields that is giving this section one of the finest corn harvests it has had in years while the rest of the nation is reaping but a 49 per cent normal harvest of the crop. In the oval below, two Huron county farmers are standing knee-deep in thriving vines of the above-normal bean crop. The cleanly cultivated rows of beets, beside the oval, are a silent testimonial as to one reason why crops in this area are above the average—careful, scientific farming. Below the oval is a view of a Bay county sugar field. At the right in the same row is another view of a bean field, this one in Midland county. A Tuscola county wheat field, in the processes of harvesting, is shown in the bottom row, left. Center is a view of a soy bean field in Arenac county, planted as an emergency forage crop. At the right is a thoroughbred Tuscola county herd of Hereford cattle. The glutted avenue of traffic to the Standish market, in the center oval of the third row, is silent proof that farmers this year have crops to sell.—Halftone picture by courtesy of Bay City Sunday Times.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Ruined, financially, by the stock market crash, James Nelson, Boston merchant, breaks the news to his household. Nance is on the verge of her introduction to society, the date of her debut having been set. A short time before an elderly cousin of Nelson's, Columbine, had written suggesting that Nance come to her at Pine Ridge, Colo., as a paid companion. The offer had been regarded by the family as a joke.

CHAPTER II.—Jack urges Nancy to accept Cousin Columbine's proposition, thus relieving their father of a certain financial burden, and offering to go with her so that she will not feel lonely. The girl is at first appalled by the idea, but agrees that Jack write to Cousin Columbine, and they will await her answer. Columbine wires welcome to both of them, and despite their parents' apprehension of Nance's reaction to the situation they know she must face it, it is arranged that the two shall go.

CHAPTER III.—At the railroad station the youngsters are welcomed by Cousin Columbine. They are somewhat dismayed by her unconventional attire and mannerisms, but realize she has character and a certain charm. The driver of their car is a young man, Mark Adam, son of a close friend of the old lady. The desolation (to Nance's city ideas) of Pine Ridge appalls the girl.

CHAPTER IV.—The newcomers meet Aurora Tubbs, Cousin Columbine's cook and housekeeper, and Matthew Adam, Mark's older brother. The old-fashioned furnishings of her bedroom, furnished by Aurora, Nance, Cousin Columbine explains her reasons for desiring Nance to come to her at Pine Ridge, her experiences of her 72 years of life on the plains.

CHAPTER V.—Nance gets better acquainted with Matthew Adam, and is impressed, despite the handicap of his bashfulness, by his evident good sense and his good looks. Jack finds a temporary job.

CHAPTER VI.—The fascination of a new country wears off, and time begins to hang heavily on Nance's hands. An absorbing and interesting reading, both in the house and in the community, gives her an inspiration.

CHAPTER VII.—Writing home to Massachusetts, Nance outlines an idea for a book, "The Girl from Pine Ridge" (on a small scale, of course), with a foundation of contributed books. The family greets the idea with enthusiasm and makes plans to comply with her wishes. After an afternoon of Christmas shopping with Matthew Adam, Nance arrives home to find the house brilliantly illuminated. Evidently something out of the ordinary is at hand.

CHAPTER VIII

NANCE was never to forget the moments that followed. As Matthew drew up before the house he blew three sharp blasts on the automobile horn, and said: "Don't bother with all those bundles, Nance. I'll lug 'em in in just a minute." Indeed, Nance was so puzzled by the amazing illumination that she failed to see that they were stopping at the seldom-used front door; and, still dazed, but with Matt's hand on her elbow, she was firmly propelled into what Jack called "the sacred parlor."

For a moment she just stood still, thinking the room was full of people until she realized that it wasn't a crowd at all, only the parlor beautifully garlanded with Christmas greens, looked different. A second glance disclosed the company: Cousin Columbine in her scarlet middie and laced boots; a little woman with soft brown hair, and eyes shining with merriment, who must be "Eve Adam." By her side stood the tall, lean, sunburned man who was her husband, looking, it seemed to Nance, very little older than his sons. Then came Juanita Tubbs—Juanita in a sleeveless gown of such dazzling, variegated colors that Nance almost blinked when she looked straight at it and was thankful that Mary Taylor was wearing white. Mark ("all dressed up in his Sunday best," thought Nance), towered between Mary and a slender girl in blue ("The cousin from Denver"); while Jack, spic and span in his blue serge suit, and another boy ("The last of the Apostles, of course!") stood just behind them; and as a climax came Aurora attired in a gown of emerald taffeta with six founces on the skirt and the inevitable apron tied snugly around her ample waistline.

No wonder Nance stared! She stared so long that everybody shouted with laughter; and it was Cousin Columbine who explained: "It's only your debut, child. Don't look so dazed!"

"Your debut, stared in a different setting," smiled Eve Adam, and coming forward kissed Nance on the cheek. "Welcome to Pine Ridge society, my dear! I really think we gave you a surprise."

"And if she don't run straight up stairs and put on that pretty dress I took out of her closet," spoke up Aurora. "my company dinner'll be in ruins. Matthew Adam, you'll find your good clothes in Miss Columbine's bedroom, and don't be slow as cold molasses, either."

"Sun Heats Water for Laundries" Soviet scientists set up a boiler at Tashkent which is heated by the sun's rays. The apparatus serves the prosaic purpose of heating water for laundries and for outdoor bathtubs.

"Did—did you know this all the time?" cried Nancy, wheeling on Matthew.

"I-I sort of suspected it," he confessed. "I mean—"

"Oh, come on, Matt," broke in his brother Mark impatiently. "Time flies; and you've got to beautify yourself in honor of our debutante!"

"... And will you believe it," Nance wrote home next day, "when I came down, there stood Matthew Adam looking absolutely stunning in a well-cut tux! I almost passed out at sight of him."

Probably Matthew felt somewhat the same at the same moment, for Nance herself, in orchid chiffon, and silver-shod, was (according to Mark Adam) "too easy to look at for any feller's peace of mind."

"You'll have to seat her next to Matthew, Miss Columbine," he said ruefully. "She makes the rest of us look like hick cowboys. I'd have swiped that tux myself, Matt, if it had been two sizes bigger. It's only tuxedo in Pine Ridge, Nance—a relic of campus days which transforms my coward brother into a 'glorious Apollo,' as you can see for yourself. And—"

"Shut up!" commanded Matthew, blushing, while his mother slipped a protecting arm through his, and Aurora announced shrilly:

"Come on! Get seated while I dish up the potatoes. Sakes alive, Nance, you look like those pictures in the love magazines. And you, too, Matthew Adam. That white shirt's awful becoming. Everything's ready and all those pesky candles lighted. Come on in!"

"I never saw a prettier table," wrote Nance to her mother. "Even that awful green-brown china was inconspicuous, because it blended with the green-bronze leaves of the kinnikinnick with which Mrs. Adam had decorated everything. There was a big brass bowl of it in the center of the table, and long sprays laid at intervals on the white cloth—a cloth bought in Denver in 1901, please understand, and used only on state occasions!"

"The terrible lamp was banished, and four tall brass candlesticks held red candles, while a big red candle stood at every place. Even Cousin Columbine's scarlet middie seemed made for the occasion. She looked very distinguished at the head of the table; and they put me at the foot with 'Father Adam' on one side, and Mark (despite protests regarding his apparel) on the other."

"And did we eat? As Jack remarked, Aurora had 'done her darndest,' and the old-fashioned Christmas dinner was superb. Mr. Adam made place cards; and the minute I saw his beautiful lettering I knew who was going to paint the sign for my Aladdin library! But to get back to my debut."

The account of this party grew into the longest letter that Nance Nelson had ever written, which ended with a request to forward it to Aunt Judy. "... for I can never write all this again. I wonder what those wild Spear girls will think of my debut. Mother? Not much like what we planned. Was it? But believe me, it was a grand party! Just the same."

It is probable that all those present agreed with the girl. When at last they arose from the table and sought the gaily festooned parlor, each one added his bit to the entertainment. There were charades; old-time songs with melodeon accompaniment (a melodeon brought from Chicago in 1881, Miss Columbine assured them proudly); as well as strictly modern "croonings" rendered by Mark; while Matthew left Nance breathless for the second time that evening when, with the simple aid of Juanita's tam o' shanter and a plaid scarf, he was transformed into a very creditable Harry Lauder, and forgetting his shyness, sang "I Love a Lassie" in a delightful baritone.

Not until then did Aurora remove her apron.

"I'm going to recite 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight,'" she told the company. "I said that piece at a church social when Tubbs was courting me, and there wasn't a dry eye in the place when I got through."

This number brought such a deafening round of applause that the good woman beamed with pleasure.

"It's your turn now, Miss Columbine," she said. "You tell us a story about old times, to calm us down."

Cousin Columbine smiled as Matt drew her chair into the center of the group.

"I'm going to tell you about my first Christmas tree," she began. "I couldn't have been more than three or four years old, and Mother and I were alone as we so often were in those days when Father was off adventuring. We were expecting him home, of course; but on Christmas eve when he did not come, Mother went out and cut a tiny Christmas tree herself, and set it up in the corner of our one room."

"I realize now that for months, possibly longer, she had been saving every bright scrap of ribbon or calico, or paper that came her way—saving them to make a merry Christmas for her baby; and after I was sound asleep she must have spent those lonely hours trying to make the little fir tree gay and pretty, while she listened tensely for Father's returning step and the longed-for whistle (it was, she told me, like the song of the hermit thrushes in New Hampshire), with which he always heralded his arrival."

"Well, no whistle came that night, and at last, bitterly disappointed, fearful for his safety as she always was at any untoward delay, my mother crept into the big bed and dropped asleep. No doubt her pillow was wet with tears; but things looked brighter in the morning. It was a beautiful day, and I, of course, was twittering with excitement. She could scarcely persuade me to eat breakfast I was so eager to examine every ornament and open the two parcels tied to the topmost branch of my small tree."

"At last she pushed aside our soiled dishes. This morning they could wait, for after all, Christmas comes but once a year. She drew a chair close to the little tree; took me on her lap and put into my hands one of the gifts she had prepared so lovingly. You see, she had contrived two dolls out of homemade clothespins—painted their faces very cleverly, and dressed them in scarlet flannel from an old petticoat, wrapping them separately so that I would have more to open."

For a moment Miss Columbine sat silent, as if thinking; then she went on: "I do not, of course, remember every detail of this story; but it was told so often that the scene rises before me very clearly. I was so enthralled with my doll that I forgot to be curious about the other package; and as I sat there on my mother's knee, caressing this new baby, something, possibly the sense of being watched, drew her eyes away from me for a moment, and at what she saw her poor heart almost stopped beating. For there was a face at the window, peering in at us—the face of an Indian!"

"My soul!" breathed Aurora in an awed whisper; and as if not hearing her, Miss Columbine continued: "Perhaps you young folks can't realize what that meant to a pioneer woman alone in her cabin save for a little child. Instinctively her glance rose to the rifle lying ready for use on a shelf behind the stove; then fell to the fire tree; that emblem of 'Peace on earth, goodwill to men'; and just as the door latch rattled ominously, she came to a decision."

"She was a courageous woman, my mother, but I have sometimes wondered what was in her heart as she set me on my feet and moved toward that door, unarmed. Did she expect to confront a band of roving savages? What met her eyes was a single brave, and a boy of, possibly, seven years old. No doubt the Indian looked sinister enough. Only the week before a woman not many miles away had been scalped and mutilated. The horror of that story was still upon her; yet she did what may have been the only thing that protected herself and me. My mother smiled. It was, I imagine, a smile born out of terror; but to that grim-visaged Indian it was a gesture of friendliness. Who knows but had there been more such gestures, one page of our history would have been less tragic. And then, although her hands were so tightly clenched that (she found later) the nails had pierced her flesh, she looked straight up at him and said two words—words which sounded strange to her own ears in such a moment. Perhaps you have guessed them, for what my wonderful little mother said was: 'Merry Christmas!'"

Miss Columbine paused, and there was silence until Aurora Tubbs exclaimed: "But you ain't tellin' us that that wild Indian knew what she said, Miss Columbine! It's not believable."

The old lady seemed to be looking at something far away.

"Not the words," she answered, "but perhaps he understood the smile; and she spoke gently. He came into the room, followed by his boy, and stood, arms folded, looking down at that small gay tree and that happy little girl who knew no fear. For a moment; then, glancing up suddenly, I laughed with pleasure. Here was another child! I held my doll aloft so that the Indian boy could see it. 'Look!' I cried joyously. 'My new baby! See!'"

"The boy reached out and took it from me, his white teeth gleaming in a quick smile. The man grunted something unintelligible and moved nearer the tree. He seemed, my mother told me, both puzzled and admiring, like a big child wondering what it was all about. He touched a yellow butterfly made from a scrap of paper; said something more, letting his gaze rove slowly about the room. Her heart quickened as his eyes rested on the rifle; then subsided when he made no move to touch it. The boy, still admiring my homemade doll, said something rapidly and took from his neck a string of beads, holding them out to me. It was, my mother understood, meant as an exchange for my clothespin baby, and fearing trouble should I rebel, she said: 'See, darling, he has brought you a Christmas gift! Let him keep your dolly. I have another exactly like it for you; and this poor boy has no lovely tree, perhaps no mother. Tell him to keep it.'

"My New Baby! See!"

"My lips trembled; but she took the beads and put them about my neck, and suddenly I was enraptured with this new treasure. Apparently I was desirous of doing something for the other Indian, for I lifted the paper butterfly from its branch and held it out to him, saying: 'It's your Kismus gif, man! Merry Kismus!'"

A breath of pleasure swept through her audience as Cousin Columbine ceased speaking; then she continued: "I seem to remember the Indian stooping to take my offering. I know he smiled, though that is something my mother never corroborated. He grunted a word or two, intended, she was sure, as thanks; gave one more curious look at the small tree; and then they left us, those strange, strange Christmas guests, mounting their ponies and riding into the forest, disarmed, my father used to say, by a smile of welcome."

"And did you ever see them again?" questioned Eve Adam; her low voice was very gentle.

"Never again. What they came for—where they were going, we never knew. And only a half hour later there sounded close to the well-barred door, the clear, sweet note of a hermit thrush! Not until then did my valiant mother give way to tears."

"Said Matthew Adam, gravely: 'That is the nicest Christmas story I ever heard, Miss Columbine.'

"And now," suggested his mother, going to the melodeon, "let's end our evening by singing some of the good old carols."

Later that night when the guests had departed and the Nelson mansion stood quiet in the moonlight, Nance went to her tower and gazed for a moment at the snowy Peak. It had been a long exciting day, and suddenly conscious of being tired, the girl opened the window and slipped gratefully into her big black walnut bed.

"Good-night, General Grant," she said politely. "I was pretty insulting to you at first, but I believe I'm getting to rather like you. Perhaps it's the uniform. They say that sooner or later a woman always falls for a uniform. I'm sorry you weren't downstairs this evening. General. It—it was a wonderful debut!"

Lesson for August 23

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9, 14:4-9.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Hosea Preaches God's Unfailing Love.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Shows His Love.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—All for Christ.

Hosea's message was primarily to Israel. The nation was outwardly prosperous, for its height of temporal glory was reached in the time of Jeroboam II (II Kings 14:18). With this prosperity came luxury, immorality, and apostasy. Calf worship and Baal worship were substituted for worship of the true God. With the increase of wealth in our age has come luxury, corruption, and gross wickedness. Hosea's message is therefore a vital one for us now.

I. Israel's Apostasy (Hosea 1-3).

Her covenant relationship with Jehovah was presented under the figure of a marriage. Their spiritual whoredom is symbolized by the example of an unfaithful wife.

1. The marriage (1:1-2). Hosea was commanded by God to take an unchaste woman to be his wife. It was designed to show God's wonderful condescension and love in entering into covenant relationship with a nation of such immorality. The nation had no more to commend it at the time of God's choice than this unchaste woman when Hosea contracted marriage with her.

2. The unfaithful wife (ch. 2). Notwithstanding the wonderful condescension on the part of the prophet in contracting marriage with this woman, Gomer departs from him to consort with her former base lovers. This shows Israel's base ingratitude in her departure from God and going after idols. Sore chastisement fell upon her for her unfaithfulness. So has chastisement fallen upon Israel.

3. The command to love Gomer, the unfaithful wife (ch. 9). This illustrates God's love for Israel. The motive governing the prophet's act was love. God's love for Israel is most real.

II. God's Love for Israel (11:1-4, 8, 9).

1. Its beginning (v. 1). It began when Israel as a nation was in its childhood. God loved that nation even while it was in Egypt.

2. How it expressed itself (vv. 1-9). a. In calling it out of Egypt (v. 1). God called Israel out of the bondage of Egypt and brought them into Canaan, the land of freedom, flowing with milk and honey. Such love and favor placed Israel under peculiar obligation to God.

b. He taught Ephraim to walk (v. 3). In spite of Israel's backsliding (v. 2), God is represented as teaching Israel how to walk, even as a father takes his child by the arms to sustain it while endeavoring to walk. God even watched over Israel as parents watch over their children by night, giving medicine and keeping them warm.

c. "I drew them with cords of a man" (v. 4). Observe that his drawing was not with a stout rope as used with an unruly heifer (10:11), but a cord such as a man could bear.

d. He took off the yoke from the jaws and placed food before them (v. 4). The figure is of a husbandman lifting the yoke from the oxen so that they could eat.

e. His unwillingness to give them up (v. 8, 9). In spite of all Israel's sins God was unwilling to destroy them.

III. God's Urgent Call for Repentance (ch. 14).

Notwithstanding their awful sins, God urged Israel to turn unto him.

1. Appropriate words of confession were put into their mouths (vv. 1-3).

a. "Take away all iniquity" (v. 2). This is the nation's request to God.

b. "Receive us graciously" (v. 2). This request is accompanied by the promise to worship God on their return.

c. "Asshur shall not save us" (v. 3). They were made conscious that even the strong nation of Assyria could not save them.

d. They will not say any more that their idols can save them (v. 3).

2. Gracious promises given in response to their confession.

a. "I will heal their backsliding" (v. 4). This healing was on the condition of frank and full confession.

b. "I will love them freely" (v. 4).

c. "I will be as the dew unto Israel" (v. 5). This means that God would refresh the nation.

d. Growth promised (v. 5).

e. Beauty assured (v. 6).

f. A pleasant fragrance (v. 7). This is a picture of the restored nation.

INVITATIONS

DEAR Mrs. Post: The other day we received this invitation:

"Dear Mrs. Jones—Will you and Marie come in for tea on Monday, October 2, at 4:30? Mrs. Blank is staying with me and I have asked a few friends in to meet her." I know that ordinarily an invitation to tea written on a visiting card, or an engraved invitation, need not be answered. But what about this one?

Answer: This one is an especially polite invitation to tea in the form of a personal note. It should be answered with a note saying, "Marie and I will be delighted to take tea with you on Monday, and to meet Mrs. Blank."

My dear Mrs. Post: I am moving very soon, and a few days after I'm settled in my new apartment I would like to have a cocktail party. Could I tell my friends that I have moved to a new address and also invite them in the same invitation?

Answer: Of course!

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister received a wedding invitation for the ceremony and reception of a very dear friend of hers who lives out of town and whom sister has not seen for several years. She cannot go and instead of the usual third person acknowledgment to her friend's parents, would it not be better for her to write a personal note and explain why she cannot be at the wedding?

Answer: Of course to this, too.

My dear Mrs. Post: We have invited out of town friends to come stay with us for a week. I feel that they will drive in their car, which means that they will have their chauffeur in town, too. Are we supposed to pay for garage rent and also to find a place for their man to stay, because we have no additional sleeping rooms where we could accommodate him?

Answer: No. Their car and their chauffeur are their responsibilities. If you have several servants and it is convenient to you to invite him to take his meals in your kitchen, he may perhaps accept this invitation. Or he may even then prefer to eat at a restaurant of his own choosing. At all events, the responsibility to lodge and board him would be yours only if you lived in a big house far out in the country.

Concluded from first page.

Crimes of major character, are a mounting challenge to American citizenship," said Mr. Cramton. "The gangster is not a new figure in American crime. He was powerful in the great cities twenty years ago. To eliminate him a more vigorous citizenship is necessary and enlightened methods and effective agencies are imperative. Increased facilities for travel through autos and pavements aid the criminal. To meet this we must not only have honest and courageous police, prosecutors, jurors and judges, but enforcement methods must be up-to-date. Crime must be regarded as crime and not as an act of heroism.

"Crime is no longer localized and the sheriff can no longer be the supreme command in pursuit and detection. The state constabulary must constantly play a larger part and federal cooperation must increase. The Bureau of Investigation at Washington is becoming the arch-foe of national gangs of racketeers and murderers. The outstanding federal function now is identification, either to identify the criminal to be sought or the suspect who has been arrested."

Mr. Cramton outlined the progress of the Bureau as a clearing house for finger prints and crime statistics and studies and as a crime laboratory.

"The war against crime is a war for the protection of all we cherish most," said Mr. Cramton in closing.
