Everyone who observed the progress of the old age pension bill It takes a lot of different of a bill, but did not desire to make and were very much afraid to propose any honest source of taxation for its operation. There can be very little doubt but that the head tax was incorporated in the bill for the express purpose There has been an emergency and of making the measure so obnoxit was imperative that relief be lous that the Governor would be given millions of people. In this compelled to veto it. This he did not do, but it was a very unfortunate thing for him that he did not, for in signing the head tax, Governor Comstock committed himself to almost any other single act of his

No Snow Houses for Eskimos The only snow houses, or igloos, viewed by the majority of Eskimos have been those portrayed by motion pictures, says G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. In North America and Greenland there are approximately 30,000 Espimos, three-fourths of whom have never seen a snow house, and of these only a fractional number have ever spent a winter in one. In summer most Eskimos live in tents made by stretching skins over poles, and in winter they usually dwell in houses made of turf or earth laid on a framework of driftwood or whale constructed chiefly by hunters.

George W. Des Jardins

For Circuit Judge

My Friends:

In announcing my candidacy for the office of Judge of the Fortieth Judicial Circuit, it was stated that a personal canvass of the voters was impossible, and an investigation by you of my qualifications was urged. As opportunity presented itself, I have appeared before and in your group meetings, but it has been impossible to contact the bulk of the individual voters. It is to be hoped that your interest has prompted inquiry of me and my professional career.

Your choice of a Circuit Judge should be based on merit alone. Integrity, Experience and Independence are the important qualifications. That Integrity is important needs no discussion. Without it no candidate should be considered.

Experience should be in the Circuit Court and with the problems that Court deals with. A lawyer's experience can be determined by his reputation among the people he has served, and the greater his practice, the greater his experience.

My experience in the practice of law and the practice of my profession has been longer, larger and more active than that of any candidate in the field with the exception of Mr. H. W. Smith of Lapeer and he is 65 years of age and practiced 43 years.

Independence and mental courage is an important factor. A man influenced or controlled by any clique, faction, organization, ring, or individual can never make a satisfactory judicial officer.

No man can honestly challenge my integrity or ethical conduct, and to the best of my knowledge

No organization, ring, clique, faction, or individual can or will dominate me. In this campaign I have carefully avoided making any pledge, indulging in any personalities, or taking part in any local quarrels, desiring to avoid any handicap in the event of my selection as your Judge.

If nominated and elected I pledge to you:

A devotion of time to the duties of the office.

An independence of judgment and action.

A fair and impartial performance of my duties. The exercise of such talents as I possess in faithfully serving you.

Respectfully,

Geo. W. DesJardins

Secretary Morgenthau on Costs of New Deal-Realignment of NRA Codes—Interesting Results of Recent Primaries.

Mr. Morgen-

SECRETARY OF THE TREAS-URY MORGENTHAU, in his first speech since taking office, forecast an eventual inflation of $2,800,000,-000 by announcing thau said. "Most of it, by authority of Secretary congress, is segre-Morgenthau gated in the socalled stabilization fund, and for the present we propose to keep it there. But I call your attention to the fact that ultimately we expect this 'profit' to flow back into the stream of our other revenues and thereby reduce the national debt." The "profit" in question accrued through a bookkeeping operation when the amount of gold fixed by law as the equivalent of $1 was reduced from 23.22 grains to 13.71 grains. This meant that an ounce of gold was worth $20.67 one day and the next it had a value of $35.

Just previously the treasury had taken title to all the monetary gold in the country, paying for it at the $20.67 rate. On every ounce it made a "profit" of $14.33, the difference between the purchase figures and

The secretary gave in figures his estimate of the cost of the New

Against an increase of $6,000,-000,000 in the national debt, he asserted, various assets should be deducted. He listed them as follows: An increase of $1,600,000,000 in the treasury's cash balance since March 4, 1933. The gold "profit" amounting to $2,800,000,000.

An increase in the net assets of agencies wholly owned or financed by the government, amounting to $1,095.000.000.

Morgenthau did not carry the proposition through to its arithmetical conclusion, but the cost of the New Deal under his theory would amount to $505,000,000.

Merriam, the Republican acting NRA, but well-informed persons in governor. Senator Hiram W. John-Washington believe it is true. The President calmed the storm, but put is on the Republican, Democratic. off the decision. The NRA is being | Progressive and Commonwealth reorganized temporarily to serve tickets; his only opponent is George until the next congress gives it permanent form, and for the present Johnson retains his supremacy.

To bring about greater efficiency and economy the codes of the NRA are being realigned. Industry is divided into 22 classes, the initial move toward cutting down the number of codes from 682 to about 250 and grouping them in ten grand divisions. Mergers are relied on to make the drastic reduction in the number of codes.

Codes with similiar or related interests are grouped together. Allied businesses will thus receive identical treatment on common problems, officials said. The codes also are expected to be easier and cheaper to administer.

The 22 classifications in turn are based on four fundamental groups as follows:

Producing industries-Food, textiles, leather and fur, ferrous metals, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic products, fuel; lumber and timber, chemicals and paints and drugs, paper, rubber.

Fabricating industries - Equipment, manufacturing, graphic arts, construction.

Service industries-Public utilities, transportation, communications, finance, amusements.

Distributing trades—Professions and services, wholesale and retail codes.

M UCH political benefit to the administration in the congressional campaign is expected to accrue from the reciprocal trade treaty with Cuba which has just been announced. It is the first of the projected trade agreements and little criticism of it is likely to be heard. The domestic sugar producers, who of course do not like the reduction in the duty on Cuban sugar, were prepared for the action by discussions of past months and accordingly had adjusted themselves to the situation. Furthermore, they are given a measure of protection by the quota of 1,902,000 short tons allotted to Cuba under the provisions of the Costigan-Jones

The domestic tobacco interests are consoled for reductions in duties by the limitation of imports of Cuban cigar leaf tobacco, cigars and cheroots of all kinds to 18 per cent of the total quantity of tobacsugar law.

co used in the United States during the previous year for the manufacture of cigars. The reductions in duties on fruits and vegetables imported from Cuba apply only to certain seasons and thus are not as objectionable to domestic producers as they might otherwise be. As against the concessions made to Cuba, which are regarded as so important from the standpoint of that country as to offer great promise of economic recovery, there should be rather widespread benefits to agricultural and industrial producers of the United States. The most valuable concession is a great reduction in the Cuban duty on hog lard. FERGUSONISM" in Texas was struck a probably fatal blow

torney general of the state, won the Democratic nomination for governor in the Democratic run-off primary. By a majority of about 45,000 votes he defeated Tom F. Hunter, who was backed for the nomination by "Ma" Ferguson, the present governor, and her husband, James

E. Ferguson, who formerly occupied the office until ousted by the legislature. The Fergusons have controlled Democratic politics in Texas for some twenty years, but their sway probably is now coming to an end. Mr. Allred is only thirty-five years old, but has come to the top swiftly. His nomination is equivalent to election.

UPTON SINCLAIR, the Socialist author who turned Democrat in order to run for the Democratic nomination for governor of California, succeeded in his purpose. In the primaries he ran far ahead of George Creel, who was director of propaganda during the World war: Justus S. Wardell, conservative, and Milton K. Young, the Democratic candidate in 1930. Sinclair campaigned on a plan "to end poverty in California" which was set forth in a book he published. It calls for the state to take over and operate defunct factories and businesses and farms acquired because of tax ing the unemployed. Sinclair's opson easily won renomination and R. Kirkpatrick, Socialist.

South Carolina Democrats will have to hold a runoff primary to decide between Cole L. Blease, former governor and senator, and Olin D. Johnston, young attorney of Spartansburg, for the gubernatorial nomination. In a referendum held as a guide for the legislature the drvs were defeated.

Democrats of Mississippi also will hold a runoff primary to determine whether Former Governor Theodore G. Bilbo or Senator Hubert D. Stephens shall represent the state in the senate.

MORE electricity for more people at lower rates is the aim of the federal power commission in a national survey which has just been started. According to Basil Manley, vice chairman of the commission, the survey will enable that body to compile and submit to the next congress the "most comprehensive and authentic exhibition of our power resources and possibilities ever made in this or any other country." To obtain the data required the commission has sent a questionnaire to every private and municipally owned power plant in "Determining the nation's power requirements and how they can be most economically and advantageously supplied is the primary purpose," Mr. Manley explained. "Markets must be considered, as well as power sites that can be developed at reasonable cost, either by governmental enterprises or private

"One purpose is to establish and maintain that balance between steam and hydro-electric power which will give America the most dependable source of energy at the lowest possible rates."

The survey will include individual reports on all existing generating plants; maps showing location of plants, reservoirs, transmission lines, and substations; locations of proposed hydro-electric plants, operating expenses, and the like.

B. degree and a broad experience in teaching of elementary grades in Detroit schools. Miss Leypoldt is also an accomplished musician, especially as a pipe organist. Mr. Youngs comes to Cass City as a graduate of Michigan State Teachers' College at Ypsilanti and for the past two weeks has been occupied at the school house erecting cabinets and installing tools for the new Manual Arts courses. Mr. and Mrs. Youngs and little son, Maynard, are occupying the John Doerr house on North Seeger street and have already become a part of our community.

School will begin as usual at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. Notice will be given within a few days concerning an afternoon program best suited for our school and which meets the conveniences of most people.

Cass City residents and taxpayers should be very proud of their school and should not miss the opportunity of observing the various gave a mighty interesting account activities of the school during the next few weeks when it can be observed very conveniently. The new shop is proving to be of unusual interest to many in Cass City and undoubtedly a large number of home shops will be established within a few months.

School Reunion-

The Crawford school reunion, held on Sept. 1, went over in fine style, despite threatening weather. There were about 220 people in attendance. A fine potluck dinner was enjoyed under a tent loaned by Earl Douglas. There was also an abundance of ice cream and lemonade. A very much appreciated program was given in the schoolhouse and a ball game was played on the lawn by the married and single men. Strange as it may seem, it was won by the single men. Score? Oh, never mind that. There were foot races with cash prizes, and ball throwing contests etc. Visitors came from Detroit. Jackson, Ypsilanti, Flushing, Caro, Bay City, Cass City, and Deford.

During the business meeting, the following present officers were reelected: President, Wm. B. Hicks; vice president, C. J. Crawford; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Robert Horner. The 1935 meeting will be held on the Saturday preceding Labor Day as usual.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CHANGES

DEAR Mrs. Post: Please go into visits that I am not sure how much of their old meaning may still exist without "dating" us.

Answer: Going out in the afternoon, as we used to do, and leaving cards at two or three dozen front doors without even asking whether any of those on whom we were leaving them were at home, is at present totally unknown to everyone on the hither side of fifty. Few people even pay party calls except after a first invitation from strangers-and only the rather precisely brought up pay these. There are many occasions, however, when cards must still be left. First of all, a card of sympathy is left at a house of mourning; a card of inquiry at a house where there is serious illness. And of course, people go to see neighbors and friends, and if they find them out, they necessarily leave their cards. Formally, and on strangers, a lady leaves one card of her own and one of her husband's on each gentleman—just as we used to do. But going to see friends, one usually leaves just one card of one's own-and only when Louks Family.

Forty-eight members of the Louks family met Sunday, Sept. 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. I. Moore on South Seeger street for their annual markers of the But all cards that have real their annual markers. ple. But all cards that have real intention of friendship, or kindliways have been.

Mr. and Mrs. Voter:

Next Tuesday, September 11th, you will go to the polls and cast your ballot for your chosen candidates.

As the period of campaigning nears the end, I wish to thank the citizens of Tuscola County for their many courtesies and kind considerations during these weeks while

I also extend to the other contestants for this office my sincere appreciation for the manner in which they have conducted their campaigns. It has been a fair—clean—and gentlemanly contest—may your vote select the best man.

Should the Republican voters of Tuscola County select me to be their choice in the election of November 6th, I publicly state that at all times, before and during my term of office, I shall be pleased to co-operate in the wishes of the voters to the end that the best interests of the entire county shall be served.

Thus it was settled, though on the ride home that night Cousin Columbine predicted a change of weather. Despite this prophecy the sun was shining when Nance awoke, dressed rapidly, and slipped downstairs on tiptoe; but as she passed the lower bedroom a call arrested her.

"That you, Nancy?" "Did I wake you up? You were wrong about the weather, Cousin Columbine. It's a lovely morning." "What are you wearing?"

"My knitted sport suit. I dare say I'll roast, but I won't take any wrap except my hiking sweater." "Indeed you will!" Cousin Columbine sat up in bed, stretching a hand toward the window as if to feel the atmosphere. "There's a chill to the air, different from anything we've had this long time. Take your fur coat, Nancy, or I sha'n't have an easy moment all day long." "My fur coat! Why-

"Don't argue," snapped the old lady. "I know this country better than you do. I've seen days start out like summer this time of year, and end with a snow storm. I'm responsible to your parents for your safety, child; and I-I command you to take that coat."

Nancy laughed, realizing that there was no use in combating an old lady over seventy.

"All right," she said good-naturedly, "the coat goes along as an extra passenger, I'll run up for 💸

"What sort of stockings have you got on?"

The question caught her at the door, and the girl turned, a bit exasperated

"Don't let that worry you! I'm wearing sport shoes and woolen hose. I sha'n't freeze to death, Cousin Columbine, even if we get one of your spring blizzards." She was surprised to note that this absurd remark was taken seri-

"Look here, child, don't you start home in any sort of storm. Remember that. You think me foolish, no doubt, but I've seen a good two feet of snow later than this, and herds of cattle frozen in the drifts out on the prairie. Close my window, Nancy. I may as well get up and see what's happening."

She was on the porch when they rode away, a troubled look in her usually placid eyes that Nance remembered afterward. She made sure that Jack had taken his sheeplined coat-looked up at the sky, and said at the last moment: "I sort of wish you wouldn't go. Nan-There's something in the air this morning that I don't like." "Now don't you worry, Miss Columbine." soothed Matthew. "If there's the least suspicion of bad weather, we'll keep her safe at Uncle Tom's until it's over." This seemed reasonable: and as they waved good-by a robin hopped down from a spruce tree and began his breakfast at Miss Columbine's bird board. But even this emblem of the springtime failed to cheer her.

"I ought to have set my foot down," she said soberly when Aurora Tubbs arrived an hour later. "I don't like this air."

At noon a wind sprang out of the north, rattling the shutters of the Nelson mansion with sudden fury; and ten minutes later a flurry of blinding snow had shut them in. Columbine Nelson kept going to a window and staring out. Twice she sat down at the telephone and then turned away, knowing that if there were anything to say Eve Adam would have called her.

The storm increased; and at half past four, after moving restlessly about the house, Miss Columbine stood so long at a front window that Aurora, who had been curiously silent during those dragging hours, burst out: "Don't you keep frettin' so, Miss Columbine. It makes me nervous. Didn't Matt Adam promise they wouldn't start if it was stormin'? And besides, Mark'll be with 'em on the way back, and he's real level-headed come an emergency."

"That's what I've been telling myself all day," replied Miss Columbine. "Even if they started before the storm began, Aurora, Mark would have sense enough to-There's the telephone!"

Her hand trembled as she lifted the receiver; and Aurora stood close by, head bent in an effort to catch the distant voice.

"That you, Miss Columbine? I've tried to get you all the afternoon, but our line was in trouble. Jack hasn't left, I hope. Tell him not to try to get out here tonight. Luke and his father can-

"Jack! He's not here, Eve," broke in the old lady, her voice shaking. "Surely they didn't leave your brother's in such a storm!" "Not there?" A pause, and then Eve said, trying to speak calmly: "Listen Miss Columbine. Can you  hear clearly? ... Tom telephoned at seven this morning for them not to come-that Mark was flat in bed with a bad throat. It was too late to stop the children, anyway. so I didn't call you; and later my brother phoned again, He-he said that Jack and Nancy started back immediately after an early lunch. I told him it looked as if a storm were coming, but he said the sun was glorious out there and that-' "Then-then Mark's not with them?" almost wailed Miss Colum-"No, but- Oh, don't worry yourself sick, dear Miss Columbine!

There a e ranches not so terribly far apart, you know; and there's a schoolhouse. Surely they would have reached the schoolhouse and waited there! But I'll try and get the ranch again by telephone . . . It was then that the storm did something to the wires, and Columbine Nelson heard no more. But three hours later, just as the dreaded night was shutting down, the Adam truck with John at the wheel, and Eve, covered with snow from head to foot beside him, fought its way into the yard and stopped before the door.

CHAPTER X

THE ride to Prairie ranch had been a jolly one, and a new experience to the young Nelsons. "Uncle Tom and Aunt Emily" welcomed them warmly, and even suggested that they stay a day or two, so Mark would be able to accompany them home; but Jack demurred.

"With both Matt and Mark away, Mr. Adam needs me," he explained, "and what's more, I think we'd better start right back if we're to go alone. Soon as Mark's better we'll be glad of the chance to come and get him; but really, I'd feel easier to go back today."

"He's right, Matthew," commended Uncle Tom. "It's not quite fair for me to steal two of your father's sons and his 'hired man' as well! And as Jack says, it's better for them to start soon and take their time. Run up and say a word to Mark, you two, while Aunt Em gets you a good lunch. You won't mind eating early after the long ride."

"I never saw my sister refuse food, early or late, ride or no ride," grinned Jack as they went upstairs. They were away by noon, regretful not to stay longer with this hospitable family, but glad to think they would return so soon.

"These plains are such surprising things," said Nancy, when Prairie ranch and its big cottonwoods were miles behind them. "From a distance they look flat as a huge billiard table. Who would believe that there are mesas and hills out here?" "I like the prairies better from a distance," confessed her brother. "They're so desolate and lonely when you're on 'em, Sis. I-" The boy paused, brushing one hand against his cheek. "Queer, but I'd swear a snowflake hit me! Why, there's another! Strange to see snow drift down this way while the sun's shining. Maybe Cousin Columbine was right, and we're in for a storm." Nancy laughed.

"Lost on the prairie in a blizzard on the twenty-sixth of March! It would be some story to tell the folks back home!"

Jack said, his eyes following the cloud: "Don't tempt Providence, Sis. That cloud is turning inky; and blizzards on these plains are something awful, they come so suddenly. Mr. Adam told me about a balls of tumbleweed scurried across the prairie; and clouds of dust obliterated the road.

"Perhaps we'd better turn and go back," suggested Nance, ducking her head against the particles of dust. "Cousin Columbine insisted we mustn't start in any sort of storm, you know, and-" (her voice rose in alarm) "and it's really snowing. It's beginning to snow hard!" The boy leaned forward, scanning a sky that grew darker with incredible rapidity.

"How far back did we pass that schoolhouse?" His voice, Nance noticed, was tense, unnatural. "I don't want to scare you, Sis, but this looks bad to me. If we could reach the school I'd take a chance at wait | Stop Rodents Eating ing there until the worst is over What do you say?"

"I say we keep right on to the first ranch. That school was six or eight miles back; and when we passed I noticed particularly that the bus had left. Perhaps they closed at noon today." A stinging flurry of snow was on like a whip. For a moment it took Jack's breath away; then he re plied: "I guess you're right. There was a ranch somewhere along here. remember seeing the gate and mail box. Help me into this jacket, will you? I don't want to stop the straight into this storm. That's it" (as she struggled to get his arm into a sleeve), "don't bother about the other. Get into your own coat quick-or wrap it round you. Look at this snow! The windshield's covered already. I'll have to get out and wipe it off."

"Are there any side curtains in this old car?" cried Nancy as they started on after a short delay.

Jack shook his head as he bent tensely above the wheel. "Darned if I know; and you couldn't put 'em on in this wind anyway. Keep your eyes peeled for that mail box, Nance. We mustn't miss it. We-we can't miss it. Do you understand?"

Nance understood only too well. There followed a mile or so when neither spoke. Twice Jack got out to wipe the glass, while his sister, staring into the wind-swept space, fought terror. Snow was descending fast and furiously now. Indeed, as they kept on doggedly it seemed incredible that this was the same bare road they had traversed so short a time before with friendly sunlight dappling the plains on every side. It might, thought Nancy, have been snowing here for hours and hours. Could it be possible that they were off the road? Straining her eyes into the drifting white, watching in desperation for the wayside mail box, visions of frozen cattle rose up before her, and the girl's heart thudded.

sister: "We've missed that ranch, Nancy. It can't have been as far as this. What say we turn back now and try to reach the schoolhouse? The wind would be behind us anyway; and as it is I can't see four feet ahead. It looks to me as if our best chance was to-"

The words were silenced by a cry from Nancy, a cry of warning that came too late. Jack jammed on the brakes so suddenly that his sister was thrown forward against the windshield just as the car collided with the engine of a big school bus, which stood, its back wheels resting in a snow-filled gully as it extended crazily across the road. As Nancy righted herself again, her eyes met Jack's, a glance of stark despair passing between them. "I'm afraid that crash has finished this old car," he told her; then added: "Why, Nance, I think that bus is full of children!" "Hi, there!" came a voice almost at his elbow. "Had a smash up, didn't you? Did you meet Clem?" Jack turned to see a boy of perhaps eleven standing amid the swirling snow. "Skip back into that bus, kid," he shouted, "we're coming, too."

He was already out, stretching a helping hand to Nancy, and together they fought their way to the door of the stalled bus. As the door flew open to admit them and Nancy, exhausted, sank into the nearest seat, he continued with a captivating grin: "We got com pany, kids. These folks is changing cars at this station. Say (turning to Jack), "did Clem Johnson send you after us?" Jack shook his head, and glancing about the bus, inquired: "Is he your driver?"

"Just for today. Our regular driver's sick," explained the boy "Came down with an awful pain when he was sweepin' out the bus this morning, and his wife got Clem to drive us. Teacher closed school early because there's some sort of convention in Denver tomorrow, and she wanted to take a train this afternoon. The storm came awful sudden, after we left and when we got this far Clem said we'd better get back to Bartlett's ranch as fast as we could. 'Tisn't more'n a few miles east of us; but when he tried to turn, the wheels went into that gully and somethin' broke. Clem worked for a long time and couldn't fix it." "So he went for help?"

"That's it. He thought he'd get there easy; but the wind got somethin' fierce after he left. We told him not to go, but he said we'd freeze to death out here and 'twas up to him to get us somewhere safe. He's been gone a terrible long time though. Say, what's your name?"

"Jack Nelson; and this is my sister, Nancy. What's yours?"

"Tom Osgood. I'm the oldest feller here; but two of the girls are older'n me. What do you s'pose became of Clem? He ought to be here."

At the front of the bus two chil dren began to cry; and looking about at all those helpless youngsters, Nancy forgot herself. There must be fifteen of them; and two lovely little girls, obviously twins of seven or eight, wore only sweat ers over summer dresses. How cold they must be!

Poison and traps are valuable aids in control campaigns. Both can be successfully used if proper care is exercised. The best poison to use for rats is not poisonous to animals so no danger occurs from placing it about buildings. This poison is red squill, a preparation made from the root of a plant. County agricultural agents can arrange with the Biological Survey to make a campaign to kill the rodents in a community if the residents want it done and will cooperate in the work. These campaigns should be made before cold weather begins. This work will be done either in towns or in the country.

It is an opportunity given the voters to select the one that, in their judgment, can best serve them in that important post. His integrity, his fairness, will be the great safeguard of the rights of person and property for every citizen. His courage, his public spirit, his devotion to public duty, will mean much to the public welfare. His experience with men and affairs should be broad. He should stand for observance and enforcement of law. His public record and his private life should be a guarantee of these things. He should be old enough to have matured judgment and young enough to work and to bear heavy responsibilities.

Lou Cramton measures up to these requirements in a high degree. He has made good in important public service so notably as to attract national attention. He stood by his convictions even when that must mean defeat. Neither influence nor position were ever needed to stir him to action when he could render service. His public record has been a credit to his home town and his district. In a field of five well trained men, Lou Cramton is a safe choice.

VOTE FOR

"Bud" Milliken

Republican Nominee at the Primaries

Tuesday, September 11th

"Bud" has had 6 years actual deputy-sheriff experience in Tuscola County, has always lived in this County. If elected will devote his entire time to the office, and will guarantee economy and efficiency.

work he has made himself capable of being self-supporting—if given a chance. If honored by the voters of the county, we are certain that Mr. Bush will ask for the office only a reasonable length of time.

Mr. Bush has been a life-long resident of this county. We endorse this candidate and ask that you think this over and vote for our candidate for Register of Deeds.
