CASS CITY CHRONICLE-FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1934.

Cass City, Michigan.

Fearing such a panic, the deputation of the Jews urged Rabshakeh not to speak in the Jews' language. He warned them against trusting Hezekiah, declaring that they would surely be made captives by the Assyrians, as Hezekiah was powerless to prevent it.

d. He promised them plenty in another land (vv. 16, 17). He urged them to make an agreement with him, and upon his return from Egypt he would take them to a land of plenty similar to their own land. 2. The deputation's report to Hezekiah (v. 22). They rent their garments in fear and dismay, for the crisis long before predicted by Isaiah had now come upon them. III. Hezekiah's Behavior (Isa. 37).

1. He resorted to the house of the Lord (v. 1). This action was prompted by faith, for God had worship at 11:00. Subject: "Buried promised that whoever in time of with Him." distress resorted to his house would be heard by him (2 Chron. 7: 15, 16). p. m.

2. He sent unto Isaiah (vv. 2-7). The nateral and logical thing for 8:00 p.m. the king to do under such circumstances was to send for God's prophet.

3. Hezekiah's prayer (vv. 14-20). He spread the letter of Sennacherib before the Lord and prayed. His prayer was direct and simple.

a. He recognized God's throne, making it the ground of his plea (v. 16). He reposed his faith in the Lordship of Jehovah, knowing that all power and authority resided in him.

b. He recognized the peril which threatened the people (vv. 17-19). 30. Sennacherib had indeed laid waste the surrounding nation, but the ruin resulted because the gods of the nations were not real.

4. Isaiah's message to Hezekiah (v. 21-35).

a. That Sennacherib's sin was blasphemy against the Holy One of Israel (vv. 21-23). b. That Sennacherib had forgotten that he was an instrument in God's hands (vv. 24-28).

IV. The Destruction of the Assyrian Army (vv. 36-38).

The days of the "3 R's" have returned for 1,382,630 of Michigan's school children . . .

Railroad taxes-$7,829,198 in 1933-34-go directly toward the education of those youngsters.

Railroad taxes are the bulwark of our primary school fund. But now those tax payments are in danger.

- Unfair, inequitable competition, particularly from unregulated trucks, has so cut into the railroads' income that their tax payments have become a problem. If this situation continues those tax payments inevitably must stop.
- To the extent that the railroads are destroyed as a source of tax revenue the payments they now make will have to fall upon the citizen.*
- Can he afford, then, to permit the job of transportation to be shifted largely from a tax-yielding agency-the railroadto a tax-consuming form of transport? Is he ready to take on this added tax burden?
- The railroad problem is deplorable, but not beyond remedy. It can be solved within our legislatures.
- Our next Michigan legislature should see that motor trucks and buses are taxed to meet fully the costs to the public which their operation entails; that they submit to regulations comparable with those governing the railroads, and, in addition, that they contribute equitably to the general expense of government.
- Michigan and the "3R's" need the railroads. And the railroads need constructive legislation. It is only fair that they be given at least an equal chance.

Fattening Lambs

Many feeders claim that lambs can be more economically finished for the market by self-feeding than by hand-feeding. This claim is based principally upon the fact that when large numbers of lambs are fed, selffeeding saves man labor, and that is no doubt true. However, when only one or two carloads of lambs are fed, the saving of labor is not quite so evident, if, indeed, there is any saving at all. There are also several other factors which must be taken into consideration in making a choice between the two methods of feeding, that sometimes have a greater effect upon the costs of production than the factor of labor.

Agricultural Notes

Farm wages have risen 20 per cent in the last 12 months, but are 12 per cent below the prewar average.

As a generality unduly warm years a dryness to temperate zones, while cool years produce abundant rainfall, Doctor Taylor said. There is no correlation so definite, however, which can result in an accurate prediction of the poultry, $355; sheep, $93; cattle, amount of rain that will fall in a given period.

Forecasts Still Puzzle.

"Meteorologists do not know themselves how to accurately make lang range forecasts on heat and rain spells," Doctor Taylor de-$152; fertilizer, $83; and all other clared, "and the best we can do is piece together various factors we Information gained from the farm have considered in the past and account records, according to the try to correlate them."

Doctor Taylor advanced a theory ways to groups of farmers, county as to one of the causes of the proagricultural agents, and groups of longed drouth which has held the vocational agricultural teachers. In American midcontinent in its grip this way the data are used in helpsince April 1. This theory is based ing hundreds of individual farmers on a high pressure area in the Atwho do not keep records of their lantic area.

This area is approximately 1,200 miles wide and 800 miles long and lies midway between the Azores and Bermuda. Its normal barometric pressure is high, about 30.8 inckes. The normal barometic pressure in Chicago and the Middle West is 29.13 inches.

"The high pressure area has become more vigorous recently," Doctor Taylor stated, "and this increase in barometic pressure tends to cause disturbances. These disturbances, apparently, have been to the southwest and southeast of the area while a period of stagnation has set in in most of the North American continent."

The stagnation has stopped the eddies, or cyclonic storms, which produce rainfall, Doctor Taylor said. The stagnation is best visualized by a study of barometic pressure throughout the country. When there are material differentials in barometic pressure rain results from the meeting of high and low pressure areas. During the period of the drouth, however, the differentials have been slight.

The possibility that the drouth may be reflected by unusual weather activity in other regions of the world was considered by Doctor Taylor. Just what this activity may be cannot be foretold, he said, but a relationship with the present condition in this country may be established in the future.

"It is curious the way changes in one part of the world may be repeated at a six-year interval in another part," Doctor Taylor said,

United States, contains rotenone, a valuable insecticide formerly found mended among the dust preparaonly in tropical plants, a United States Department of Agriculture chemist has found. The discovery is significant for farmers, both as potential growers of the plant and as users of the insecticide; to insecticide manufacturers; and to importers who carry on the international trade in rotenone and other insecticides.

Dr. W. W. Skinner, assistant chief of the chemical and technological research unit of the bureau of chemistry and soils, first called attention to the probable insecticidal value of devil's shoestring following his observation that bees and other insects fed on nearby plants but avoided the blooms of this toxic weed. Doctor Skinner later instigated the research which led to the recent discovery of this weed's ro tenone content by Dr. E. P. Clark of the bureau's insecticide division. Although the insecticidal value of devil's shoestring was demonstrated about two years ago by Prof. V. A. Little of the Texas Agricultural college, who found it effective against various species of insects, its value as a source of rotenone was not known until provel by the department's research.

you were going to see Glory the Cardinal, didn't you?'

Then without waiting for Peter to reply this sober-looking stranger gave a concert such as no one else could give. From that wonderful throat poured out song after song and note after note of Peter's familiar friends of the Old Orchard," and the performance wound up with a lovely song which was all the stranger's own. Peter didn't have to ask who the singer was; it was Mocker the Mocking-bird.

"Oh!" gasped Peter, "Oh, Mocker, how under the sun do you do it?

I was sure it was Glory whom heard whistling. Never again will I be able to believe my own ears." Mocker chuckled. "You're not the only one I've fooled, Peter," said he. "I flatter myself that I can fool almost anybody if I set out to. It's lots of fun. I may not be much to look at, but when it

"And now you've learned that you can't always recognize folks by their voices, haven't you?" said Mocker.

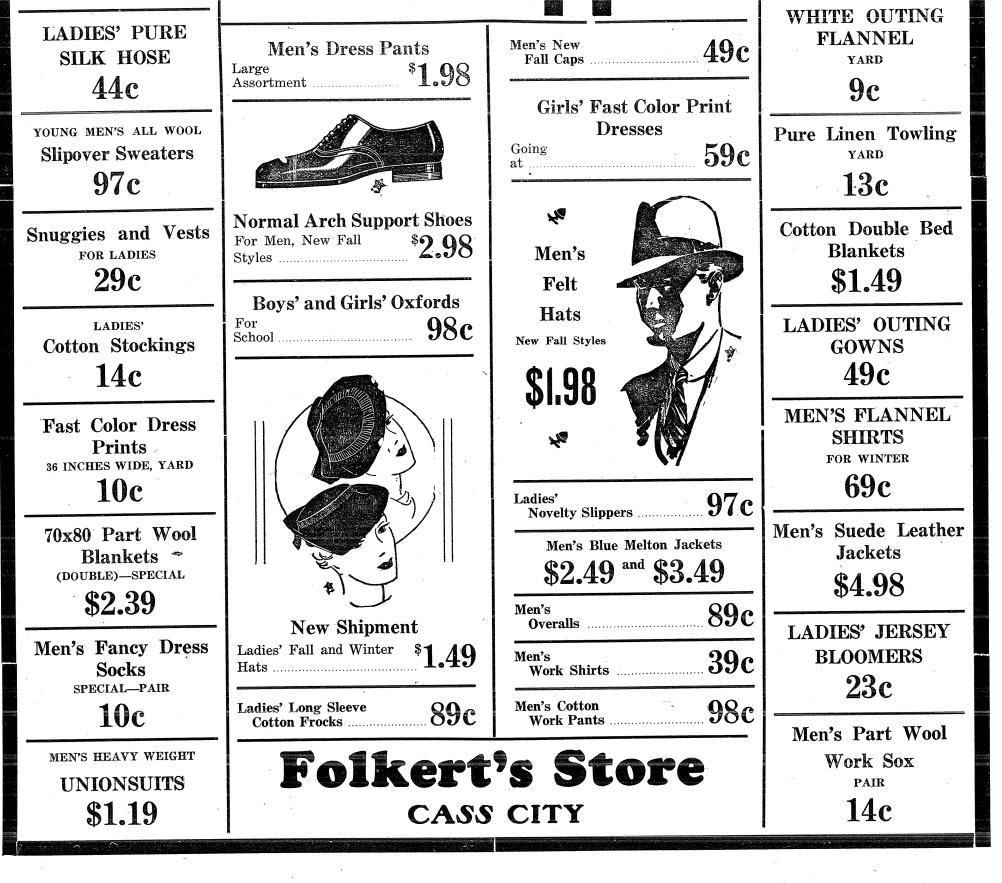

"Yes," replied Peter. "Hereaften I shall never be sure about feathered folks unless I can both see and hear them. Somebody told me once that down in the South you are the best loved of all the birds. Is that so?"

"That's not for me to say," replied Mocker modestly, "but I can tell you this, Peter. They do think a lot of me down there, and it is all on account of my voice. I would rather have a beautiful voice than a fine coat." Peter nodded as if he quite agreed, which, when you think of it, is rather funny, for Peter has neither a fine coat nor a fine voice. A glint of mischief sparkled in Mocker's eyes. "There's Mrs. Goldy the Oriole over there," said he. "Watch me fool her."

He began to call an exact imitation of Goldy's voice when he is anxious about something. At once Mrs. Goldy came hurrying over to find out what the trouble was. When she discovered Mocker she lost her temper and scolded him roundly. Mocker and Peter laughed, for they thought it a good joke.

emerged from the boy's room. "I should wait," he answered. "If Jack were my own son, Miss Nelson, and I so far away, I should say the same. You see, if the end beat that?" comes, it will be soon; and since his parents could not reach here in time to see him, isn't it kinder, and wiser too, not to harrow them with the knowledge of how dark the prospect looks just now? If he lives through the night the boy will probably recover. I don't say that his condition isn't desperate; but somehow I've the conviction that he'll make the grade."

Miss Columbine did not leave the hospital that night; nor did she close her eyes till early morning when a nurse appeared to say that Jack seemed to have turned the corner and his physician felt the worst was over. Not until then did the old lady cry a little, and the doctor ordered a powder that brought sleep. It was almost noon when she heard a rap upon her door, and Matthew Adam entered the room.

"Did I wake you, Miss Colum bine?"

"No; I was only snoozing. How's everything now, Matt?" The young man sat down on the bed and grinned at her. "Jack's sleeping-naturally. Nan cy isn't suffering this morning; and it looks as if the kids were coming through without a single amputation. That Osgood boy's been telling me what happened. I tell you, Miss Columbine, I take off my hat to Jack and Nancy-and to some of those brave youngsters, too."

"I guess the papers didn't exaggerate this time," she observed. "You're right. But just the same I miss my guess if it's not some shock to those young relatives of yours when they read the story How do you suppose it feels, Miss Columbine, to have the country regard you as heroic?"

"Well, it won't hurt either of 'em," responded the old lady. "They've got the Nelson common sense. It's I who's likely to be puffed up, Matthew. be left to the eye specialist, but anyone living and working with children should be familiar with the common signs and symptoms of trouble so as to prevent further damage before serious harm results. The most frequent warnings are headache and eyeache; itching, smarting, or watering of the eyes. Squinting and frowning are also common. The eyes and lids may be inflammed, and there may be puffiness beneath. The child may complain that the eyes feel tired. Sensitiveness to light is also noticed in many cases.

Teachers and observant parents will note that the child habitually holds a book nearer or farther from the face than is normal, and that words are miscalled or skipped. The child explains that "the letters run together." Not all of these signs appear in a single case, of course, but one or more of the above should be regarded as cause for an immediate investigation.

Fresh Water Important

Few people realize the importance of fresh water for the growing stock. Water helps the chick to control its body temperature. It is also necessary for the proper digestion and assimilation of food. In spite of the fact that it is the cheapest of feeds yet all too frequently it is neglected. That the water be fresh is also important. Clean water is less apt to be the carrier of disease germs and if supplied there is less danger of disease and digestive disorders.
