CRAMTON NOMINATED BY 1000 MAJORITY

Atwood Carried Tus.; Judge Received Larger Vote in Tuscola than Lapeer.

Judge Louis C. Cramton, elected last November to fill the vacancy in the Tuscola-Lapeer circuit, was nominated by the republican party to succeed himself in that position in the primary election Monday. He was opposed by Theron W. Atwood, Caro attorney, who was also a candidate in the September primary in 1934. Mr. Cramton's vote in two counties was 5065 and that of Mr. Atwood, 4031.

Atwood carried Tuscola, his home county, by a vote of 3094 to 2539. Cramton was the winner in Lapeer, his home county, by a majority of 1589, the vote standing: Cramton, CORN-HOG PROGRAM 9596. Atwood 927 2526; Atwood, 937.

Early returns indicate that Mr. Cramton received a larger number of votes in Tuscola than in his home county. This is explained by the fact that Tuscola has a larger population and is more "politically Five Meetings Will Be Held conscious" in that Tuscola takes its politics more seriously and casts a larger percentage of ballots in

SEBEWAING HARD HIT BY FLOOD AND FIRE

Flood damages estimated at $100,000 and a fire of the John C. Liken department store reaching $75,000 tells briefly the story of Sebewaing's greatest loss by water and flames.

A flood caused by melting snow in Huron and Tuscola counties swept down on Sebewaing village, causing the Sebewaing river to burst its banks and flood more than a third of that municipality, principally in the downtown section Sanilac county in the special election Monday. Decker ranged from a few inches to more than two feet in depth. Merchants were forced to remove their stocks from main floors. Rowboats made their way with difficulty through the streets, and provided the only means of transportation to those in the downtown area. Huge ice jams piled up at the Center St. bridge and at the P. M. R. R. bridge. The jam at the outlet of the river into Sagi-

Secret conferences at which slices of pork were reported to have been dangled before the avid eves of revolting senators were said to have been held. A few supporters of the McCarran prevailing wage amendment which wrecked the bill and forced its recommission to the appropriations committee were said to be wavering under the pressure. Senator Robert F. Wagner, who voted for the amendment, acted as peacemaker. He intimated the possibility of a compromise by paying more than the socalled security wage of $50 a month, but still lower than the prevailing rates. Secretary Ickes has been no help to the President in quelling the revolt. He upheld the right of employees to form company unions for collective claim of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, that the company intimidated employees and dominated the company union. The court held that the company is primarily engaged in state, not interstate commerce, which congress is not empowered to regulate. Judge Nields stated:

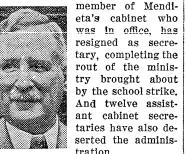

"Power to enact Section 7-A was not conferred upon congress by the 'general welfare' recital in the preamble of the Constitution, nor by the welfare clause, Article 1, Section 8, of the Constitution."

Unless the Supreme court reverses Judge Nields, the decision will prevent the New Deal from interfering with employee-employer relationships of a vast majority of American business.

New Deal policies received another jolt the same day when Judge Charles L. Dawson on application of 35 western Kentucky coal operators issued a writ enjoining the bituminous coal code, reaffirming an earlier decision that the national industrial recovery act was unconstitutional. Judge Dawson declared that the coal mining is an intrastate business, and beyond the power of congress to regulate.

He had previously issued a temporary writ on petition of the operators on the ground of invalidity of the code, but the court of appeal remanded the case for a finding of fact on the question of irreparable injury. "When the government unconstitutionally interferes with the right of a citizen to do business in his own way, then the interference constitutes an injury to the property rights of the citizen," said Judge Dawson, who labeled as fallacious the government lawyers' contention that gains resulting from the coal codes should offset losses.

He expressed the thought the committee would report out an appropriation of $880,000,000 or bargaining, thus upsetting the $1,880,000,000 to carry out the present relief program for six months or a year.

The general opinion in Washington seemed to be that the latter part of Byrnes' statement was correct, and that the committee would delay reporting the public works part of the bill until the states and municipalities which would largely benefit from it could bring pressure to bear on their senators.

Adoption of the McCarran amendment by the senate was brought about only after a hard fight and by means of a rather tricky shifting of pairs in which Huey Long took a leading part. It won by a margin of one vote, whereupon Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, moved that the bill be sent back to the committee. This was done, Senator Glass expressing the hope that the committee would report out a bill "that will not be quite so controversial."

Senator Long, who loses no opportunity to pester the administration and to display his political shrewdness, has started a movement for the specification of $2,500. 000.000 of the work relief measure's total for the purpose of highway construction. Highway commissions in every state were asked by him to indorse this plan. Long said he had discussed it with some other senators and that they liked it.

> THE irrepressible Huey Long announced in Baton Rouge that he will be a candidate for governor of Louisiana in 1936. That may be just more Kingfish conversation. However, it is known that Long has not preferred the office he now holds, and there is some possibility that he may seek the chief executive's chair of his state. When asked what would become of his candidacy for the Presidency, he said that being elected governor and being a candidate for President would not interfere with each other.

Ex-Service Man; Veteran

The terms ex-service man, veteran, are often loosely used interchangeably. An ex-service man is one who has formerly been a soldier or sailor; he may be young or old, and may have served a few months or have grown old in the service. Nothing in the term indicates age or length of service. Properly speaking, however, the term veteran, when applied to one who is or who was a soldier or sailor, denotes a man "long trained," or who "has grown old in service": hence, it does not properly apply to a young man or to a man with a short record of service. It is from the Latin veteranus, meaning "old." or, when used in a military sense. "an old tried soldier."-Literary Digest.

POULTRY LEUCOSIS "CURES" UNCERTAIN

Is Not Good Judgment.

By Dr. Frank Thorp, Jr., Associate in Animal Pathology, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Buying so-called remedies to rid their flocks of leucosis disease. which includes such ailments as range paralysis, big liver disease, white eye, neuritis and leucemia, is likely to prove a waste of money for poultrymen. As yet there is no known cure for the malady.

Although comparatively new in this state, leucosis is apparently and threatens to become a serious poultry problem. All breeds of chicken appear to be susceptible to the disease. It affects both sexes alike and usually assume freshyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. R. J. Devine officiating. Burial was in Elkland cemetery. Mr. McPhail spent many years sailing on the Great Lakes alike and usually occurs between the ages of three and twelve months.

In spite of the fact that birds contracting leucosis cannot be cured, research investigations indicate that the disease can be controlled if poultrymen will carry out ures, it is said. These include rigid culling to detect leucosis in Banquet Servedthe early stages of the disease, disposing of all diseased birds by killing and burning, buying hatching chicks only from disease-free flocks and by following strict hygiene and sanitary practices. Should a poultryman believe that his flock may be infected with leucosis, immediate diagnosis can be made by a local veterinarian.

Symptoms of the disease are variable and depend largely upon the tissues affected. When the bloodforming organs are involved, general weakness and varying degrees of anemia and diarrhea are common symptoms. The birds are likely to become poor in flesh.

Where the nerve type of disease is present, the chickens may become lame in one or both legs and the wings become droopy. These symptoms, too, will vary according to the location and degree of the tissue infection. When the brain is affected, odd head movements may be noted.

The eye type of infection is charthe iris, followed by a constriction Sadler. of the pupil, and eventually impaired vision and blindness. Both eyes are involved as a rule, or become so during the early stages of the disease. Leucosis, however, should not be confused with tuberculosis, fowl typhoid, parasitism or chemical or bacterial poisoning.

Breeder Toms Should Be Selected With Much Care Ella Gibbs and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Gibbs of Caro, it being Mr. Retherford's "happy birthday."

Breeders of turkeys should buy early; for by so doing one has the benefit of first choice. To wait until breeding time means that a less desirable male will be the father of next year's turkey flock with a consequent increase in No. 2 birds, lower prices, and less profit from next year's operations.

If there is a flaw in the turkey breeder's make-up, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer, it is his fancy to fine feathers-rainbow tails and spots are common words in his vocabulary. And while it is true one might as well feed beautiful plumage as well as gray and chocolate colored tails, good color is much less important in breeding stock than vigor; for without vigor in the breeding stock the breeder is headed for the "rocks." One thing to bear in mind, however, is the fact that good color in a turkey is evidence that her ancestors have had the attention of a good breeder and that vigor is more likely to be present than in a bird of poor coloring.

Sunflower Seed Value

Sunflower seed is supposed to be a good feed for producing feathers. It is doubtful if this point has ever been scientifically proved. The heads of sunflowers contain 12 per cent crude protein, 24 per cent fiber, and approximately 49 per cent carbohydrates and fat combined. Sunflower seeds with hulls contain approximately 16 per cent crude protein, 28 per cent fiber and 46 per cent carbohydrates and fats. Sunflower seeds without hulls contain 27 per cent crude protein, 6 per cent fiber and 51 per cent carbohydrates and fats. The chief objection to feeding sunflower heads or seeds with hulls is the high fiber content.-Idaho Farmer.

Feed for Hens

A lack of green feed can be remedied inexpensively in most cases. Leaves of alfalfa or other wellcured legumes can be fed to the hens or added to the mash. Carrots and cabbages, in addition to yellow corn, supply vitamin A. Milk takes the place of green feeds and adds valuable proteins to the ration. Cod liver oil can be mixed with feeds where no natural source of vitamin is available. Poultry flocks will obtain their own green feed from fall-sown winter grains.

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

T.ESSON TEXT-Acts 10:1-11:18. GOLDEN TEXT-Of a truth I perceive God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Acts 10:34b, 35.

PRIMARY TOPIC-Peter Learns That God Loves Everybody. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Learns Something New.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—The Gospel for All.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—Overcoming Racial and National Prejudices.

The missionary program of the church having broadened to include the Samaritans in Philip's preaching in Samaria, we see in this lesson the program still widening and embracing the gentiles. Through the conversion of Cornelius, the middle wall of partition was broken down (Eph. 2:14).

I. The Man Cornelius (10:1, 2). 1. His official position (v. 1). He was a centurian, a Roman officer over a company of one hundred sol-

2. His character (v. 2). a. "A devout man." b. A benevolent man. c. A praying man. d. Highly respected by his family.

The Lord chose Cornelius as the channel of the transition of the gospel to the Gentiles because of his character and position. II. Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-35). In order to bring this about, observe:

1. Two visions were given. a. The vision of Cornelius (vv.

3-8). While engaged in prayer, an angel of God instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter, who would tell him what to do. Cornelius sent at once for Peter. b. The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16).

While Peter was praying (v. 9) he saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise, Peter; kill, and eat." Peter protested that he had never eaten any unclean thing. God replied, "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common." This vessel, let down and taken back, indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high,

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22). Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for a messenger from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).

so great importance he must have information. witnesses

b. Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24) called together his kinsmen and near friends.

c. Cornelius, about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26), was told by Peter that he himself was but a man.

d. The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33). Peter explained how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudices. Cornelius explained how God had instructed him to send for Peter.

III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43). 1. The introduction (vv. 34, 35) showing that God is no respecter of persons (see Golden Text).

2. His discourse (vv. 36-43) touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that he was qualified for his work as a Mediator, He then exhibited the work of Christ.

a. In his life (vv. 36-39). He went about doing good, even casting out demons, as a proof of the fact that God was with him (v. 38).

b. In his death (v. 39). The just suffered for the unjust that he might bring us to God (I Pet. 3:18). c. In his resurrection (vv. 40, 41). God raised him up the third day, showing openly that Christ was his Son (Rom. 1:4) and that his sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25). In this discourse Peter sets

(1) The basis of salvation—the sacrificial death of Christ (vv. 39, 40) (2) The scope of salvation-"whosoever" (v. 43). (3) The method appropriating salvation-"believeth on him" (v. 43).

IV. The New Pentecost (vv. 44-

As the gospel was entering upon its widest embrace the Holy Spirit came in new power. V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18). Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles Peter's defense took the form of logical argument, showing how God had set his seal on the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

a smile and a nod, walking off with Van. Mrs. Chipp made no answer. Van led the way to one of the cabins, a brown, enchanting place with geraniums and lobelia in the window boxes, and a wide open door into a central sitting room.

"Take any of these rooms-gosh, they're all full of suitcases!" Van said, peering in at doorways. "Here -here's one-this must be you. Make yourself comfortable. Are you going to swim?"

"I think not. Not-well, maybe will!"

She decided against the swimming, and walked out to meet Van, ten minutes later, looking her prettiest in a white frock, white shoes. a white hat.

The boy lingering in the garden path, waiting for her, was trim in a black bathing suit, with a towe! across his shoulders.

Boys and girls wet and sleek as seals, were sprawled in the late sponded cheerfully, "will be, first, sunshine on the grassy ramp beside mine host and his buxom wife, the pool. They were drinking a Dame Martha. They will draw the pale yellow drink from tall ice-filled ale, heap oaken logs in the great glasses; a cocktail shaker stood on the grass.

> Gail found herself the only per son who was not drinking, in the group. The circumstances seemed to alienate her from them. She listened, smiled, made herself appear at ease as a low-toned conversation that had evidently been interrupted was begun again among the

> The men merely rolled in the sun, yawned and exchanged monosyllables.

> "You did not." "Quit that!" "Say, listen . . ." Gail heard, over and over again.

> The girls, Lucia, Mary, and Lenore, murmured interestedly. "Oh, come on," said the Duchess suddenly when there had been a good deal of this. "We'll never get Immediately they were all running down the path to the cabin, Gail with them. The only one who took any notice of her was the Boston girl, named Mary Spence. Mary spoke now and then kindly to Gail as they all began a flurry of dressing for dinner. They left their bedroom doors open and ran back and forth lightly clad or not clad at all. Gail, who was not going to change, sat on the upper porch step a few feet above the path and stared at the beauty and luxury of Far Niente as it lay on the slope below her, and pretended to be satisfied and absorbed in what she saw. She knew now that all the vague, shy fears she had felt in anticipating this visit were more than justified. She knew that Mrs. Chipp was not going to be nice to her, that the girls were entirely indifferent to her, and that she should not have come. Her clothes were not right, her training was not right, her background was not right. She simply did not belong here, and they were all more or less conscious of it. This nice Mary Spence, herself a stranger in the group, was being cordial merely on general principles. It was nothing to her that these Californians had social distinctions between themselves; they were all the same to Mary Spence. "I shall have to work!" Gail told herself grimly. She must work, talking, smiling, keeping herself occupied, for all this endless evening and all tomorrow and most of Sunday. It sounded like an eternity.

Suddenly she noted two of her companions in the cottage, Lucia and Lenore, walking with two boys named Bill and Jim, down the path to the house. They must have left the cottage by the back door, which faced toward the men's cabin. Perhaps the boys had called them. That left only Mary in the house. and if she also slipped away, Gail would have to go down to dinner, at some spot unknown, all alone. Her heart began to beat hard in nervous anticipation

Presently a middle-aged woman came up the path toward her, and with a not unamiable half smile for Gail stood still, a few feet away, calling "Mary!" Gail recognized her as one of the card players. "Yes, Mrs. Billings!" Mary called putting her head out of the porch

"Mary, you know what I aske you to do?" the woman said. "Oh, yes!" Mary answered.

"Will you do it now, dear?" "Oh, yes, instantly!" said Mary, running out of the cabin. She and Mrs. Billings, conferring, went rapidly down the path together. Gail swallowed once with a dry throat. Then she got up and began to saunter slowly after them.

She encountered the boy named Fred Hunter in the path, and fell upon him with all the boldness of desperation. She laughed with him, narrowed her blue eyes in their thick black lashes at him, and when he said somewhat nervously that he had been going up to the cabin to wake Van, whose aunt felt sure he had fallen asleep, Gail said gaily that she would go, too.

They awakened the drowsy, surprised Van and they all laughed together, and Gail, still holding firmly to the now manageable Fred, waited for Van on the porch of the men's cabin. She walked down to the house between the two of them, disposing of Van's good-natured attempts to shake young Mr. Hunter by a determined, if light, hold upon the latter's arm.

At dinner, which began immediately, she was between the two young men. So far so good.

But it was work. It was bitter, hard, endless work; all struggle, no relaxation anywhere. She was conscious of carrying a heavy handi-

The girls were all against her. They ignored her; they looked bored when she spoke; they deliberately carried the conversation into channels where she must be ill at ease and unfamiliar. Gail fought on. Her cheeks blazed, her blue eyes shone. She lost all consciousness of Van as the man for whom she was beginning to care, of the beauty of the place and the summer night, of the novelty of dining here with these fashionable folks. It was all a blur, through which she was determined to hold her own despite them

When Lenore, at the end of the long meal, during which they had all eaten, drunk, and smoked too much, said provocatively to Van something about needing him to conspire with her upon something that would surprise the others, Gail countered by saying that she and Mr. Hunter wanted to get up a

"That's what they call it now, is it?" one of the boys said, and Gail joined in the loud laughter. The infatuated Hunter was by this time incapable of any emotion, even surprise, and he and Gail went down to a marble bench on the lawn, where she held him as long as she could, listening to his fatuous vague words, and laughing and keeping him laughing as if it were the greatest fun in the world. Later she annexed Bill Billings, and fell into a deep-toned conversation with him about airmen and air records, pretending to be so absorbed in the conversation that when Van came to get her to dance she had to call a few last words over her shoulder to Bill.

They were dancing on a sort of platform, with vines trailed up over its latticed top. Gail danced well and loved dancing, and was happy for a few moments.

Suddenly they were all disputing as to whether they should play bridge or go down to Mockerson's. Mockerson's was a roadhouse over on the Halfmoon Bay road, sixty miles away.

"Come on, let's go dance at Mock- Tuesday. erson's! Maybe the place'll be raided."

He was hauled down. "Well, do we go to Mockerson's?" "Listen. Let's not, and say we

"Well, I'll tell you a story!" Jim Speedwell said unexpectedly. He told it.

For a moment Gail could not see the point. Then it came upon her with sickening force, and she felt choked and a little nauseated. The men roared; the girls laughed briefly, and Lenore said, "Jim, don't be so revolting!"

who was eighteen years old, added affectionately.

"Well, what can you do?" Gail asked herself fiercely. She couldn't shame Van by getting up and walking away from the group. Her face burned wretchedly for half an hour. She would not give in. Another bleak-looking table with a limp spotty cloth on it. They were all so tired they almost laid their heads on the cloth, and Gail was scared when she saw the hip flasks and the red wine again. Van had driven like a crazy man coming over; he certainly would not be in a condition to drive more carefully going back.

Funny to think of herself as home again tomorrow night, playing solitaire. Well, one thing was sure: if she ever married Van Murchison or anyone like him she would care him of this sort of craziness.

Mockerson's was as dull as ditch water tonight. There were parties in the curtained alcoves, shouting and singing, but the main room was empty.

"You're awful cute!" Van said affectionately, covering Gail's hand with his own.

A noisy party stumbled out of an alcove and scattered wearily toward dressing rooms for wraps. "We ought to be going, too!" Lenore decided. "This is too aw-

His Second Anniversary

The Week at Lansing

(By FRANK D. BROWN, Special Correspondent.)

Now that the state conventions of the two parties are things of the past and the special elections in the four legislative districts will be out of the way early next week, it is expected that the legislature will be able to settle down to serious business during the coming four weeks in an effort to meet the demand of the governor that the session be not prolonged beyond the 90 days he has set for it. It is believed the executive is even willing to sacrifice much of his program, if it has not been enacted into law by that time, to carry out his pledge to get the lawmakers out of Lansing by March 31.
