

NIERGARTH PROMOTED TO SUPT. OF SCHOOLS

Has Been Principal Here 7 Years; Willis Campbell New Principal.

The board of education at its meeting Monday night elected J. Ivan Niergarth as superintendent of schools at Cass City for the coming year. Mr. Niergarth, who has served as principal here for the past seven years, is well versed in the school's program and has acted as head of the schools since the death of Supt. C. W. Price on May 11 last.

Mr. Niergarth earned his B. A. degree at the Central State Teachers' College at Mt. Pleasant and previous to coming to Cass City served as principal for one year at Carsonville and two years in the Bear Lake rural agricultural school. In recent vacations, he has attended summer school at the University of Michigan where he will receive his Master's degree in August.

Willis Campbell has been promoted to the position of principal in the school and will continue to teach agricultural subjects. Mr. Campbell came to the Cass City school following his graduation from Michigan State College in 1921 and has built up a strong agricultural course here.

Other teachers were offered contracts to return to their positions and have accepted. They are: Kenneth Kelly, coach; Robert L. Kepner.

Two Players Injured in Game Here May 30

Cass City defeated Caro in a 7-4 score at the game here on Decoration Day, and while it was an interesting contest, it was a sorry one as far as two players were concerned, both teams sharing in the injuries.

Manley Asher, second baseman for the Cass City nine, had two bones of his right ankle broken in a slide to third base, when spikes in his shoe caught and turned over the ankle in the sixth inning of the game.

"Mickie" Warren, Caro catcher, in the fourth frame of the contest, reached out with his bare hand to catch a wide pitch and had a bone broken in his right thumb.

LEGION CONVENTION AT SEBEWAING JUNE 13

Several hundred Thumb Legionnaires and Auxiliary ladies are expected to visit Sebewaing next Thursday, June 13, when Stantitz-Lindeman Post No. 293 and its Ladies' Auxiliary will entertain on the occasion of the seventh district American Legion convention.

Miss Chaffee and E. Wightman Marry

Miss Edith Chaffee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Chaffee of Cass City, and Mr. Edward Wightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Wightman, of Caseville, were united in marriage on Thursday, May 30, at 7:00 a. m., at the M. E. parsonage at Caseville, by Rev. D. E. Tinglan. The couple were attended by Miss Marguerite Carpenter of Caro and Mr. Leslie Bradley of Caseville.

The bride wore a pink crepe afternoon gown with white accessories.

"Paris in Spring" Is Theme Carried Out in Decorations, Menu, Program at J-S Banquet

The Junior-Senior banquet, the first of the commencement activities, was held in the high school auditorium Friday evening, May 31, and was a very enjoyable and delightful event.

"Paris in Spring" was the theme carried out in decorations, menu and program. The banquet room was beautiful with umbrellas of pastel shades, each with a hidden light, hung from the ceiling and rain drops (suspended pieces of cellophane) filled the air. The room showed cafes of Paris on all sides, streamers of green and yellow forming the awnings, while bushes with many blossoms in soft-tinted shades were everywhere with butterflies resting among the flowers.

Over each cafe was a pretty French sign, designed by Miss Patricia Pinney and painted by Rev. P. J. Allured.

At the north of the room, sparkling amid the glare of the lights, were the words, "Juniors-Seniors," painted with flitters. The Dillman eight-piece orchestra on the platform was separated from the banquet hall by a white fence over

DIPLomas PRESENTED TO 50 GRADUATES

World Culture Is Being Formed Said Commencement Speaker.

"Today, old culture, old civilizations and old religions are being lifted from their foundations and a world culture is being formed," declared Dr. Frederick B. Fisher, pastor of the Central M. E. church of Detroit, in the commencement address to the class of 1935 of the Cass City high school on Tuesday evening. "You are going to benefit from the culture of India, China, Africa and Japan for all cultures are going to be merged. The radiation of new life comes from the decay of the old."

Mr. Fisher said the ethical standards of youth are higher than that of their parents, that conventions and customs are changing, and that our civilization is being Europeanized. For many years a missionary in India, he believes that that country is capable of self-government in that there are 52 millions of literate people in India compared with 42 millions of literate and illiterate people in Great Britain. India has more students in colleges and universities of the Oxford and Cambridge standard than has England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

Tuesday evening's program opened with a march played by Mrs. J. I. Niergarth at the piano when the 50 members of the senior class were ushered to seats at the front of the high school auditorium by Norris Stafford, president of the junior class. The invocation was given by Rev. Paul J. Allured after which Superintendent Niergarth

LOCALS MEET MAYVILLE FOR COUNTY TITLE

Diamond Squad Drops Games to Mayville and Harbor Beach.

By winning four games in the county race while losing but one, the Cass City high school baseball team has earned the right to meet Mayville today (Friday) for the county championship. The Maroon team defeated Akron, Fairgrove, Vassar and Caro while losing to Mayville 5-4 in ten innings on Monday. Mayville lost to Akron early in the season, but earned their chance for the cup by their win Monday.

Failure to produce in the pinches, both on the field and at bat, proved serious for the Hilltoppers Monday. Five errors combined with Mayville's 10 hits to give them their victory. But Mayville really won the game when they threw Cass City runners out at the plate three different times. Had any

Prominent Breeders View Local Herds

The fine herds of two local Hereford breeders, S. F. Bigelow and Robert Spencer, were viewed Friday by men high in the Hereford ranks. In the party which was making a two-day tour in Michigan were R. J. Kinzser, secretary of the American Hereford Breeders' association, and F. W. Farley of the American Hereford Journal, both of Kansas City; Paul Thompson, Hereford breeder of Clinton, Indiana; W. D. White, manager of a large farm at Hartland, Mich.; J. Harwood of Ionia; and William Crapo, Jr., of the Crapo Farm at Swartz Creek.

The tour started at Ionia, through St. Johns, Rosebush, Bay City, Cass City, Bad Axe, along the lake shore to Port Sanilac, then to Sandusky, Burnside and Swartz Creek, ending at Hartland on Saturday afternoon.

INSTALL NEW MACHINE.

The Ford Garage has installed a laboratory test stand which determines to a nicety a number of troubles which may develop in any make of car. It tells the mechanic how the fuel pump is working, whether the distributor is behaving, and tests carburetors, spark plugs, oil pressure and battery connections.

June 12 Is Sheep Dipping Date Here

E. L. Benton, county agricultural agent, has arranged for sheep dipping and drenching at the Milton Hoffman farm, 1/2 mile north of Cass City, on Wednesday, June 12, when the county portable tank will be brought here for that purpose.

Farmers who desire to take advantage of this opportunity to treat their sheep are requested to get in communication with Willis Campbell or Milton Hoffman. This opportunity is not confined to residents of Tuscola county and all farmers in this community may take advantage of this occasion. The approximate cost will be two cents a head, and if the number of animals treated is around 500, the cost may be lowered to 1 1/2 cents.

County Field Day at Caro Friday

Results of the Upper Thumb Meet.

Millington	42 1/2
Bad Axe	36 1/2
Caro	33 1/2
Cass City	33
Vassar	13 1/2
Marlette	12 1/2
Mayville	7 1/2

With Millington annexing the Upper Thumb track crown and the Hilltoppers missing third place by 1/2 point, the various teams await today's county meet with intense anticipation. The twenty-ninth annual field day promises to be an exciting one as there are at least four teams given a chance to beat the speedy Millington aggregation in the race. Cass City and Mayville are the only schools with the possibility of registering a grand slam for the day for these teams

Every 7th Person in Tuscola Co. Owns a Dog

One dog is owned by every seventh person in Tuscola county if one may judge by the 4,225 dog licenses which have been paid by dog owners to township and county treasurers this year and in addition estimate the number yet unpaid and awaiting the visits of the dog catchers. One thousand two hundred twenty-three dog licenses have been paid to County Treasurer Arthur Whittenburg since May 25.

While the great majority of the dogs in the county are harmless, there is a small percentage that work havoc in the sheep flocks of Tuscola. Since June 1, eight farmers have filed claims aggregating $362 for sheep killed and wounded. Steve Korteck of Wells has filed a claim with County Clerk S. W. Morrison for $40 for a cow killed by dogs. One farmer's claim for 21 sheep killed and seven wounded totals $178.

FARM HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY

Fire destroyed the farm home of Joshua Fisher in Evergreen township late Saturday afternoon. A small portion of the household goods were saved.

Miss Dora Krapp, niece of Mr. Fisher, was preparing supper when the fire was discovered. It had progressed so far, however, at that time that there was no hope of saving the house and clothing and furniture were removed with difficulty. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

TODAY'S YOUTH AND TOMORROW'S WORLD

Rev. Allured Advised Graduates to Maintain Always a Youthful Outlook.

The high school auditorium was well filled in spite of a rain storm, and excellent music and a forceful sermon dealing with "Today's Youth and Tomorrow's World" were features of the baccalaureate service held for the Class of 1935 Sunday evening.

As Mrs. J. Ivan Niergarth played a march the 50 members of the class were ushered to seats at the front of the auditorium. The invocation was given by Rev. Charles Bayless. Scripture was read by Rev. G. A. Spitzer and prayer was offered by Rev. W. R. Curtis. The baccalaureate address was given by Rev. Paul J. Allured. This union church service was closed in a benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Bayless.

Music during the evening were selections exceptionally well rendered by the Treble Clef club. The numbers included, "The Green Cathedral" by Hahn, "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan, and the hymn, "Day Is Dying in the West."

The following is a resume of Mr. Allured's address to the graduates: Today's youth are not just those in their teens, nor are all teen-age youth youthful in spirit. There are some folks over eighty years young whose souls will not only never die—they will never grow old, because they have been young too long to get the old age habit. There are others who are very old creatures though under twenty years of age; old because they have seemingly used up their God-given vitality and resources and must beg, borrow, or steal the knowledge or property of others, and must resort to alcoholic or narcotic stimulants—which may make them feel younger for the moment but only hastens the aging process.

Spiritual youthfulness has no relationship with years. It is chiefly characterized by idealism and action. If you have lost your idealism and have no constructive program of action for the betterment of your own soul and humanity, you are old unto death. Thank God, there is a fountain of perpetual youth—Jesus Christ—available to every soul afflicted with spiritual senility. Jesus was the world's one perfect youth! He is the Creator of the Spirit of Youth, that which not only visions a perfect world but which possesses the faith, the hope, and the love

HAPPY REUNION OF OLD FRIENDS AT BETHEL

Fiftieth Anniversary Home Coming Celebrated on May 31.

A happy reunion of old friends marked the home coming at the Bethel church, four miles north of Cass City, Friday. The day's festivities were opened with a basket picnic dinner at noon under two large tents on the church grounds.

Around the two tables, extending the whole length of the tents, an informal program was enjoyed with Rev. C. P. Bayless as chairman. Letters and greetings were read from the following former pastors and friends by William Profit and Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall: Mrs. Neil McLaren of California; Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Cargo of Fenton, Rev. George Hill of North Branch, Rev. and Mrs. William Bottrell of Davison, and Rev. Mr. Yoeman.

Impromptu remarks were made

Decker Mail Carrier Surprised on His Birthday

About 200 patrons and their families gathered at the Masonic Hall in Decker Tuesday evening, May 28, to honor their mail carrier, Harry Collier, on his birthday. It was also a farewell party to Mr. Collier as he has been transferred from the Decker post office to carry mail on Route No. 3 out of Lapeer, starting June 1.

A program of music and short talks was given. Several of the patrons spoke about the many kind acts and thoughtful deeds Mr. Collier had shown them in his years of service as their mail carrier. A beautiful white gold watch was given to him by the patrons as a token of their esteem and appreciation and the best wishes of all go with him to his new work in Lapeer. Ice cream and cake were served.

Miss Slack Is Bride of E. H. VanNorwick

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Slack at Bad Axe, when their daughter, Florence M., was united in marriage to Mr. E. Howard VanNorwick, son of Mrs. Iva VanNorwick of Flint. Rev. H. E. Leininger, pastor of the Free Methodist church, officiated.

To the strains of Carrie Jacobs Bond's arrangement of "I Love You Truly," played by Miss Nora Maharg of Cass City, the bridal party assembled beneath an arch of honeysuckle and crapple blossoms. Baskets of spring flowers made the lower back grounds.

The bride wore a fitted ensemble of white crepe and carried a bouquet of rosebuds and snapdragons. Miss Marion Tower attended the bride in a lovely dress of tan crepe and carried a colorful bouquet of carnations and snapdragons. Mr. Lowell Reed of Carsonville attended the groom.

A three-course dinner was served by the bride's mother immediately after the ceremony. Guests were: Mrs. Iva VanNorwick, Miss Mildred VanNorwick, Mr. and Mrs. Austin VanNorwick of Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold McCallum of

COMMUNITY HONORS THE SOLDIER DEAD

Decoration Day Celebrated in a Fitting Manner on Thursday.

Tribute to departed heroes who made the supreme sacrifice for our country's cause was paid by a large concourse of citizens of this community at Elkland cemetery, May 30. The day was an ideal one in every respect.

The program opened with a half hour concert by the Cass City Ladies' Band which was followed by an invocation by Rev. G. A. Spitzer. Dr. Leslie J. French of Caro delivered the address, Rev. Charles Bayless gave the benediction and the sounding of taps closed the impressive memorial ceremonies.

In his address, Dr. French said in part: "Someone has said that Decoration Day might really be called a National Humiliation Day. A day when we should not only decorate graves with flowers but also ourselves with sack-cloth and ashes. For we encouraged our youth to enter the last war, to fight a war to end war and to make democracy safe in the world. And now the ghosts of twenty million men, women and children rise up to mock us, dictatorships are the fashion in Europe and the fighting instincts of the cave man are rampant in our belated nationalisms. And we still live. If we have been permitted to live while others died, then we are hostages to sacrificial service on their behalf. Today we honor them for what they believed they were dying for. Their faith was pure."

"It would not be fair to them to take advantage of this day to make propaganda for peace, although we might thus serve them the better. Decoration Day has a deeper meaning to you who have been bereaved. As soon as I could learn anything I learned about Decoration Day from my father and mother. I like to think of what my father would say today. He as a youth, listening to the tales of the war of 1812, grievously wounded in the Civil War, with a son crippled in the Spanish American war, followed in an agony the course of the World War. His thought would be to grieve over and to honor the brave boys who gave all they had in all wars. Decoration Day was a real day to him and not the occasion of a family reunion or picnic. Today, two urns and two flags decorate our family lot in Grand Rapids."

"Some of you are Sons of Veterans."

Crippled Children's Clinic for 5 Counties Will Be Held at Wahjamega on June 12

Secretary Percy Angove of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, with executive offices in the Buhl Building, Detroit, has announced through Miss Pumphrey, Commission Nurse, that on June 12th they will hold a clinic at the Michigan State Farm Colony at Wahjamega. It is reported to the Tuscola County Crippled Children Committee that there will be approximately 80 children from Tuscola, Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac, Saginaw and Bay counties to be examined.

The seal sale which the local chapter conducted throughout Tuscola county during the month of April this year was responded to in a very spirited way. The village of Unionville where Mrs. Schmidt acted as sub-chairman oversold its quota. Kingston, headed by Superintendent of Schools Whittemore, sold 98% of its quota. Gageton also contributed. Caro, Cass City and Vassar Rotary clubs, taking the fore in the sale, did a very outstanding job. The rural schools of Tuscola county are to be congratulated on their contribution.

The local chapter is made up of C. L. Bougher, chairman; Philip Koopman, secretary; Judge H. Walter Cooper, treasurer. Members of the board are E. H. McCormick, H. P. Orr, Harry Owen, Meredith Auten, S. R. Park and Dr. J. Leslie French.

Rev. George B. Crawford, stated clerk of Flint Presbytery, passed away Sunday night at Flint after an illness with pneumonia. Rev. P. J. Allured and J. L. Cathcart went from Cass City to attend the funeral which was held in the First Presbyterian church in Flint on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Crawford was known to members of the local Presbyterian church, having attended meetings of the Presbytery several times.

GAGETOWN

McCallum-McKellar—
Miss Mary McCallum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil McCallum, and Mr. Fred McKellar of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McKellar, of Sandusky were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, June 1, at the Owendale Evangelical church. Rev. O. N. Braun was the officiating clergyman, Miss Alma McCallum of Detroit was maid of honor, Mrs. Earl Penrod of Detroit was bridesmaid and Earl Penrod was groomsmen.

The bride was gowned in white crepe with white accessories and the bridesmaid's dress was of blue crepe with white accessories, while that of the maid of honor was burnt orange with brown accessories. The bride's corsage consisted of pink roses and white snapdragons; the maid of honor, yellow and pink snapdragons; the bridesmaid, pink carnations and white snapdragons; the bride's mother, pink snapdragons; and the groom's mother, yellow and white corsage. The two flower girls, Joyce McKellar of Sandusky and Betty Hines of St. Clair, were dressed in peach crepe with sweet peas and snapdragons. House decorations were pink and white tulips and lilies.

The wedding dinner was served at six o'clock and a reception was held at 8:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. McKellar will spend a few months in southern states accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clinton George of Pontiac. They will make their home with the bride's parents for a time after their wedding trip.

Those from a distance who were guests at the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Penrod, Miss Alma McCallum and Miss Ruth Delienne, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. James Hines of St. Clair; Mr. and Mrs. Clinton George of Royal Oak; Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McKellar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kenny, Mr. and Mrs. Lee McKellar, Miss Lavern McCallum and Clark Taylor, all of Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dino of Elkton.

Dropped Dead—

Mrs. Lyle Weir, whose father was a cousin of President Calvin Coolidge, passed away very suddenly and unexpectedly with heart trouble on Tuesday, May 28. Mrs. Weir had gone to the home of her neighbor, Mrs. James L. Purdy, who was ill. Mrs. Weir had a heart attack, dropping on the porch of the Purdy residence. Her death came within a few minutes.

Funeral services were held at St. Agatha's church, where she was a member, on Friday morning and were conducted by Rev. Fr. McCullough. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Born Feb. 7, 1869, in Ohio, Ida Coolidge came to Michigan in childhood with her parents, settling in Gladwin county. Later she moved to Huron county.

She was united in marriage with Edward Deneen in 1891, who passed away in 1923. On April 6, 1929, she married Lyle Weir, who survives. She also leaves two sons, Elmer Deneen of Pontiac and Glenn Deneen of Cass City; two daughters, Mrs. Fred Dorsch of Owendale and Mrs. Leslie McHarry of Pontiac; nine stepchildren, Carlton Weir of Detroit, Mrs. Geo. Thompson, Mrs. Rolla Wicker, Mrs. A. Brown, Mrs. Oliver Britter, Mrs. Ollie Arnold, Miss Helen Weir and Ralph Weir, all of Pontiac, and Harold Weir of Gagetown; one sister, Mrs. John Flock, and one brother, Elmer Coolidge, of Beaverton.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary—

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Laurie

were surprised last week-end when a group of one hundred friends and relatives gathered at their home, south of Gagetown, to help them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. A mock wedding took place and Mr. and Mrs. Laurie were remarried for another twenty-five years by preachers pro tem, George Wallace and James Milligan. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Laurie of Royal Oak. The former was the best man 25 years ago. The ring bearers were Fern Karr and Arthur Fischer. The flower girls were Mrs. Grace Clara and Mrs. Eliza Thompson. The anniversary cake was made by Mrs. Thomas Smith of Colwood.

Outside friends and relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Laurie of Royal Oak, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sharrock of Ferndale, Mr. and Mrs. Melick of Bad Axe, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith and Miss Alice and Alvin Guild of Colwood. Many lovely pieces of silver and other beautiful gifts were received.

Necessary to lift tomorrow's world nearer to the ideal than the world of today.

If there was ever a time when youth should be doing some clear thinking about the part they must play in tomorrow's world, it is now. The evil which began with Adam has been getting worse and worse while the good which began with Jesus Christ has been getting better and better. Such a condition cannot continue forever. It is making the world a mass of hypocrites—both as individuals and as nations. "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

But there is hope on the horizon! There have arisen some great living leaders of the Kingdom today, endowed with such youthful vigor, courage, optimism and faith, that they can see all the evils of the world which have discouraged the faint-hearted, and many more have they discovered which the faint-hearted never dreamed of, yet they proclaim, "With God's help, we can and must put them all down!"

Mentioning a few of these leaders, Kagawa of Japan is probably the greatest of them all because of the perfect balance between his expression of love to God and his love for his fellowmen.

Kirby Page has a philosophy of life like unto Kagawa's—his recent book, "Living Creatively," heads the list of 436 books which college students testified as being most helpful to them.

Sherwood Eddy has been doing an invaluable service to the cause through the yearly pilgrimages of American youth leaders which he has been conducting among European countries in the interest of better international understandings.

Harry Emerson Fosdick has proven himself a great leader of today's youth by his courageous declaration never to support another war and the challenge of his whole ministry unto the Jesus Way of Life.

Such men are attracting the Christian youth of the nation and preparing them to make tomorrow's world one of greater opportunity, brotherhood, justice and peace. Under such leadership you shall be able to do the most for your God and yourself and the human race.

ans and members of the Woman's Relief Corps. I like to remember the old camp-fires, tin cups and plates, hard-tack, beans and coffee, the boys, as they called themselves, still wearing their old uniforms, and the old songs. We all love to march to music. But some folks never hear the band and never keep step. They would pass right by a glorious lilac bush on a day like this and never see it. Sons and Daughters, Lincoln was the commander-in-chief of your fathers. How we prize his words in his second inaugural! "To bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widows and orphans." "To achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

"Our national constitution was a paper, a compromise. It was the men of '61 who made the paper constitution a reality. It is for us to determine whether their sacrifices were in vain. Some of us this week, thanked God for the Supreme Court and the Constitution. All honor to the Boys in Blue. And in honoring them we do not glorify war. The north and the south were brought together by the shedding of blood. What would have happened in World War if separated the north had gone and the south remained.

"We pray over the graves and honor the veterans of the Spanish American War and the World War. I am thinking of the mothers of some of these boys. I pinned war-medals on them. Has there been remission of our national sins by the shedding of the blood of these men we sent out? Theirs not the reason why; theirs but to do and die. We honor them for what they did and we believed they died for.

"These men have not died altogether in vain. Out of the Spanish-American war came the conquest of yellow fever and disease. Despite today's alarms, the World Court's decisions have not been flouted in a single case by any nation. The League, fathered by America and dumped on the doorstep of Europe as a founding, has composed many difficulties. Last week, through England's Anthony Eden, the Council of the League won a grudging assent from Mussolini to the arbitration of his difficulties with Abyssinia. Our grief is lessened when we think that their going has not been altogether futile. You say these things would not have been but for the World War. I am not so sure. Often as a student in Germany before the war have I watched the plumed crest of the Kaiser parade down Unter der Linden and daily listened through university windows to the massed cadence of the goose-step. Their arrogance was obvious. A week later I have heard the shrilling of the fifes and staccato commands of the French soldiers on the old parade grounds of Versailles. Something had to happen.

"I said from the pulpit in 1918 that a taint would stick to large fortunes accumulated out of the war necessities of the nation. Can we honestly say that today that prophecy has come true? Our patriot societies say that we must be patriotic and ready to die for our country. True enough. But we must be free to see that the patriotism does not mean, dying for the armament maker's profit.

"As long as competition for wealth is the pattern in the nation it will be the pattern among the nations. Our technique must begin at home. Men or nations filled with passion, avarice and greed will not keep the peace among themselves or among the nations. In honoring our dead, again, we do not glorify war.

"Our hope is the release of good-will among ourselves and the nations. Business cannot do that. Science cannot do that. Religion alone can do it for good-will is the business and the science of religion. The world has had three scourges, famine, pestilence and war. Commerce and communications have killed famine. Science is well on the way towards killing pestilence and the black death. But religion alone can kill war, for religion alone creates a new heart.

"Preparedness does not prevent war. We need the heart of good-will.

"Our great public grief and sorrow on Decoration Day is a solemn, silent testimony that should turn us from even the appearance of war. So we care for, respect and honor these graves. Peace in our own hearts before peace in the world's hearts. Let us keep our eye on this. And not be like the old fashioned doctor who used to give you another pain so that you could not concentrate on the present one."

WHEN LIVES ARE AT STAKE

You need the same protection that race drivers demand

KELLY PETILLO ON MAY 30, WON THE 500-Mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Tires, breaking the track record and driving the entire distance at a rate of 106.24 miles per hour.

This record is an outstanding demonstration of tire efficiency. To go 500 miles in less than five hours on this rough and bumpy 26-year-old brick track, without tire trouble of any kind, demonstrates the strength and blowout protection that Firestone builds into their Gum-Dipped Tires.

AB JENKINS ALSO RECENTLY demonstrated the stamina, efficiency, and blowout protection built into Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. He drove his 5000 pound car over the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, 3000 miles in 23½ hours. This was an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, and although temperatures were as high as 120°, he had no blowouts or tire trouble of any kind.

These records are made possible by special construction features built into Firestone Tires.

Take no chances—protect your life and the lives of others by letting us equip your car with Firestone Tires and give you the Safety and Blowout Protection that race drivers demand.

Before you buy new tires ask yourself these three questions

- 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
- 2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"
- 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER No. 1—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.

ANSWER No. 2—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.

ANSWER No. 3—Thousands of car owners report unequalled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Volume—Direct Purchasing—Straight Line Manufacturing and Efficient and Economical System of Distributing to our 500 Stores and to 30,000 Dealers, enables Firestone to give you greater values at lowest prices

HIGH SPEED TYPE

We select from our enormous stocks of raw materials the best and highest grade rubber and cotton for the High Speed Tire. In our factory we select the most experienced and skilled tire makers to build this tire. It is accurately balanced and rigidly inspected and we know it is as perfect as human ingenuity can make it.

Lights of New York

The loan sharks of New York lie in wait for their victims on street corners, in mid-town, in the financial district, indeed all over the city.

Profits of the business are enormous. The usual rate is "six for five." That is, the victim who borrows $5 pays $6 at the end of the week.

Victims are loath to make complaints. Recently down in the financial district a twenty-year-old clerk was beaten up.

Arrests of unlicensed loan sharks are few as a result of the fear of their victims. Occasionally, however, something else happens.

She is a young matron just a bit given to affectation. Her three-year-old is a bright child and she insists that he understands and speaks French more readily than he does English.

The metropolis has a considerable Indian population, there being about 400 full blood members of various American tribes who make their homes here.

Wonder if I've told Maj. Chester B. McCormick's Indian story before? It was in the old days in Oklahoma when prices were high.

Advocates Hobbies. Raleigh, N. C.—The happiest people in the world are those with hobbies, Dr. Ed Hegepeth, of the University of North Carolina insists.

Proper Breathing Makes Nordic Hero. Berlin.—Proper breathing is the best way to acquire the "heroic national mentality" worthy of Germans, the weekly periodical Weltpolitisch Rundschau suggested.

The art of proper breathing, the periodical said, has been a characteristic of true Aryanism and it was urged that people again practice this old Aryan custom.

SEBEWAING BILL GOES TO THE PRESIDENT. A preliminary examination of the Sebewaing river with a view to controlling floods, is the request contained in a bill passed by the house of representatives at Washington, when it resumed activity early in the week. The bill, introduced by Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott had already passed the senate.

After signature of the bill by the president, the army engineers will make a survey and report back to congress the advisability of dredging the river where it passes the town of Sebewaing. If the engineers' report is favorable, a PWA grant will be requested, Wolcott said.

noon's ball game for the county title in that field of sport. The Maroon and Grey will make their bid for the track meet by resorting to their usual stratagem of carrying off more places than the other fellow. In the meet last week, the Hilltoppers took only two first places—Donnelly in the high jump and Moore in the shot put—but they filled in with enough points to rank among the top contenders. The meet throughout was close and it took a record breaking mile-relay to put Millington the victors. However, Cass City hopes to make some of her seconds into firsts and annex enough third and fourth place points to carry her through.

There are two ways to milk a cow.... MR. MERCHANT: If your advertisement were in this space as many people would read it as are reading this. But your advertisement isn't here and people don't care a rap whether you are selling real estate, gasoline or peanuts.

Did you ever sit down in the pasture with a pail between your knees and wait for a cow to back up and be milked? Of course not! You have better sense.

Well, business is a lot like a cow. You've got to go out and round it up. The fellow with the milk pail betwix his knees MAY get some milk, but the odds are all in favor of the fellow who drives up the cow and feeds her.

A merchant may make a living by "cussing" the government and waiting for something to happen, but the merchant who makes the MONEY is the fellow who goes after the business through the columns of his local newspaper.

INDIANS OF MEXICO

Modern Plowing in a Mexican Wilderness.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

There are in Mexico nearly 500 tribes and more than 200 languages, some differing from others as much as French from Chinese. Not until one has wandered about Mexico can one appreciate how incomplete was the Spanish conquest. Only isolated Spaniards and occasional marauding expeditions ever penetrated to southern Oaxaca and Guerrero. No wealthy monasteries, sure sign of Spanish infiltration, were ever founded there, and the grandiose churches, so striking elsewhere in the republic, are conspicuously absent.

Since the coming of the Spaniards this region has remained commercially, culturally and artistically a backwater.

Traveling from the town of Oaxaca toward Acapulco on the Pacific coast, three men recently put afoot when their bus "decomposed" at Mitla, walked across four racial and linguistic frontiers—the Zapotec, Chatino, Mixtec, and Negro. At Tlacolula they were close to yet another tribe, the Mixe, distantly related to the Mayas of Yucatan. Even so, they omitted the Amusgos (Amishigos), Tlapanecos, and isolated colonies of Aztecs, all of whom retain "islands" in Mixtec territory.

Variety in Everything.

The physical characteristics of Mexico are as varied as the civilizations. Vegetation and scenery change with almost every league, the enormous variations in altitude enabling one to pass from sub-arctic to tropical climate in a single day. Sometimes within a few hours are seen eagles from the high mountains and parrots from the tropical jungle.

The route of the travelers is unlikely to attract tourists. There is no railway, no road, no hotel, no bed, no butter or fresh vegetables, and the discomfort has recently increased since the virtual destruction by earthquake of nearly half the towns in the region traversed.

The white man seldom travels in this region. He is not only excellent bait for the numerous bandits on wilder stretches of the road, but an object of suspicion among quite well-intentioned Indians, who imagine he is searching for gold.

For many reasons members of the party deemed it advisable to disguise themselves and to travel as the poorest peons. They emerged from the market at Oaxaca in white and purple trousers, heavy leather sandals, and broad-brimmed hats. Over their shoulders and chiefly for use at night, they carried large woolen Oaxaca blankets, or serapes—blue, white and black. Their money was carried in stout leather belts, all of it in silver and copper coins, for bills are not accepted in villages where men cannot read their value.

Finally, they gathered machetes, a dagger, old flour sacks to contain food, and for water a glass garrafon neatly dressed in a straw jacket like a bottle of Chianti. All these "personal effects" were fitted into brilliantly colored string bags.

"Pegasus" and "Pullman." The party set out for Tlacolula, the railroad near Mitla, and there invested in two donkeys. Unfortunately, these proved too decrepit to carry both passengers and baggage—a fact not discovered until the hill had been footed and the pathetic animals had been hopefully baptized "Pegasus" and "Pullman."

Chiefly for the donkeys' benefit, a donkey-driver, guide, or "porter" was engaged. It is doubtful whether he had ever driven, directed, or counseled donkeys before, since by trade he was a sandal-maker; but he spoke Zapotec and rejoiced in a grandiloquent name, perhaps his chief claim to immortality. Under his auspices the donkeys were loaded with four tall cylindrical baskets for the luggage.

As the party dawdled out of the sleepy little town of Tlacolula, it was four o'clock in the afternoon, and afternoon was in the atmosphere. The market was deserted. Pigs and scraggy dogs of uncertain race and temper sprawled in the dust heaps. Only the grunting donkeys broke the stillness of sleettime.

Soon men and animals were out in the plowed fields with the village behind them, a blue-green gem on the sunburnt plain. All around, the horizon was bounded by lofty turquoise mountains. Here and there on the lower slopes stood big white churches with red domes like toy rubber balls sliced in half. In the foreground were vast fields of magney, in regular lines—an army on parade.

By 10 p. m. distant barking was heard, the canine concert which invariably preludes a Zapotec village, and that night the travelers slept on the earthen floor of a windowless adobe house, with a cat and three turkeys as companions. At 4 a. m. they rose and set forth again into the dark. Sunrise found them at the top of a low mountain pass. Before them stretched a wide valley still deep in purple shadow, and in the distance blue mountains with serrated crests bathed in pale golden light. This was the Valley of Ocotlan, a branch of the great Valley of Oaxaca, center of Zapotec civilization.

Produce Spread Out.

By 8:30 they reached the town, dominated by a domed church, salmon pink and pale jade green. In the market place, beneath striped awnings—some white, some terra cotta, like the sails of Venetian barges—all local produce is spread out. There is milk in plenty, coffee, chocolate, several kinds of bread, and dried fish brought up from the coast by mule and donkey. Oranges, bananas, and pineapples are piled in decorative heaps.

Even peanuts and beans, including special white beans, to be eaten on Fridays, are laid out in geometrical patterns, for the Mexican has an inborn sense of design, and nothing is too humble to be arranged with care and displayed as a work of art.

One of the party, suffering from headache, approached an herb stall. In a prominent position lay a red-capped woodpecker, which, as the chief cure for heart disease, is as obvious a professional sign to Indians as the barber's pole to us. Laid out on straw mats were starfish, seashells, rattles from rattlesnakes, birds of brilliant plumage, and herbs to cure diseases both human and animal; but, curiously enough, for headache and heartache the cure was identical—two little patches of banana leaf affixed to the temples.

In the blazing noonday sun they set forth again across the treeless plain, its monotony relieved by giant candelabra cactus and many small artificial mounds, on one of which a man was actually sowing corn. Although this valley is still thickly populated, it is no center of civilization, as in the days when Mitla was built and pyramids or temples rose on nearly every hill. Though the party trudged on all day and well into the night, it passed only one hamlet, San Pedro Apostol.

Walls of Organ Cactus.

Typical of Zapotec villages were defiant walls of organ cactus lining the roadway and barricading every house—impenetrable barriers to all save the lean dogs who squeezed through to get a bark at the approaching cavalcade. Characteristic, too, were the numerous pigs and turkeys, the former "dressed" in wooden triangles to prevent their prying into other people's business, and the latter resplendent with gorgeous blue throats and heads and dazzling white plumage.

The second night was passed at Ayoquezco, "The Place of Still Tortoises." Here the men slept on the stone floor of a large earthquake-ravaged hacienda along with 15 peons of both sexes, who, swathed in serapes and laid out in regular lines resembled recumbent effigies of knights in an ancient church.

The following day they left the great Valley of Oaxaca, their trail keeping for a time to the Rio Atoyac; but where this river bends round a mighty limestone bluff the path scales a mountain, then descends abruptly to Sola de Vega. In four hours they climbed this pass, famed for rattlesnakes and tarantula spiders.

Beyond Sola neither an automobile nor even an oxcart can pass. The precipitous trail to Juquila ascends 2,800 feet, then drops nearly 7,700 feet, only to rise immediately another 8,000. These tremendous variations in altitude form a commercial, racial, and linguistic barrier, beyond which the level of civilization falls considerably. Sola is nominally Zapotec. The next town is Chiatino.

This high "frontier" pass has typical changes of vegetation. First the travelers climbed through shaded banana groves and fields of sugar cane; then to a zone of cultivated magney; then, at 6,000 feet, to a more temperate zone with oaks and other trees. Finally, they entered a cool forest of long-leaf pine, the trees resplendent with white orchids, like candles on a Christmas tree, and gorgeous crimson flowers perched high in the upper branches.

Lesson for June 9

THE HOLY SPIRIT (Pentecost Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—John 16:7-11; Romans 8:10-17, 26, 27. GOLDEN TEXT—For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Romans 8:14. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Keeps His Promise.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Coming of the Holy Spirit. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Holy Spirit Helps Us. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Work of the Holy Spirit.

I. The Holy Spirit Promised (Joel 2:28, 29).

The prophet foretold that in messianic times there would be a mighty effusion of the Holy Spirit.

1. He was to be poured out. 2. He was to be bestowed upon all flesh, irrespective of age, sex, or class.

3. This out-pouring was to issue in extraordinary activity and service.

4. This activity was to be accompanied by marvelous signs.

II. This Prophetic Promise Was Partially Fulfilled at Pentecost (Acts 2:1-21, 32, 33).

The unusual behavior of the disciples at Pentecost, with Peter's preaching which resulted in the conversion of thousands, evidenced the supernatural, but the cosmic signs which the prophet predicted to take place in heaven and earth were not in evidence. The real fulfillment of the prophet's prediction is in the future and will find fulfillment in connection with the regathering of Israel and the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom.

III. Some Names of the Holy Spirit.

1. Comforter (John 14:16, 17). "Comforter" means literally "one called to one's side as a part taker, an advocate, a helper and defender." He is called "another Comforter" as he was to take the place of Jesus, who was soon going away.

2. The Witness (John 15:26). The Holy Spirit peculiarly witnesses of Christ. He does not speak of himself, but takes the things of Christ and shows them unto us (John 16:13).

3. The Spirit of Truth (John 16:13). The Holy Spirit guides into all truth. Those who are taught by him know the truth.

IV. Some Works of the Spirit.

1. He regenerates (John 3:3-8). The new birth is peculiarly the Spirit's work.

2. He teaches (John 14:26). The Holy Spirit was to take up the work of teaching the disciples where Christ left off.

3. Convicts the world of sin (John 16:8, 9). The Holy Spirit alone can show men the demerit of their lives and their shortcomings before God.

4. Convicts the world of righteousness (John 16:10). The resurrection and ascension of Christ prove that he is the Righteous One and that righteousness is only possible as he is accepted as Savior.

5. Convicts the world of judgment (John 16:11). Sin unatoned for shall be punished. The sinner who refuses the righteousness which God provided in Jesus Christ shall be judged.

6. Gives victory over the flesh (Rom. 8:2, 12, 13). By the energy of the Holy Spirit the carnal nature can be kept in subjection.

7. He leads the believer (Rom. 8:14). The Spirit-filled believer lives the life of the Son of God.

8. He gives assurance to the believer (Rom. 8:15-17). The Holy Spirit witnesses together with the human spirit to the reality of the new birth.

9. Enables the believer to pray according to the will of God (Rom. 8:26, 27). The Holy Spirit helps the believer's infirmities in prayer.

V. The Diversity of the Gifts of the Spirit (1 Cor. 12:4-11).

In the Church there are to be found those possessing the gifts of wisdom, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment of spirits, divers kinds of tongues and the interpretation of tongues.

VI. The Sealing of the Spirit (Eph. 1:13, 14).

Into the regenerated life comes the Holy Spirit at once. The indwelling of the Divine Spirit is God's seal of ownership. It is not only a seal of ownership, but of security. It is also the guarantee of the completion of the work of redemption.

VII. The Unity of the Spirit (Eph. 4:1-6).

Christian unity is only possible when effected by the one Holy Spirit.

VIII. The Sin of Grieving the Spirit (Eph. 4:30).

The Spirit may be grieved by failure to respond to his initiative, by yielding to the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the vainglory of life, by failure to render full and free obedience, as well as failure to surrender every faculty of the being to the control and direction of the Spirit.

Thursday, June 13, midweek Bible study beginning the book of James.

Children's Day service next Sunday, June 16.

Town Hall Services—Rev. H. H. Savage, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pontiac, will provide a group of evangelistic workers from his church for the evening service this Sunday at 7:45. Rev. Mr. Savage, whose radio ministry is best to so many thousands, has through the years of his fruitful ministry in Pontiac, gathered about him a large group of consecrated workers who gladly go great distances to spread the Gospel message.

They, like their pastor, have a clear vision of the great commission of Jesus Christ to "go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Trained under his wholehearted ministry, these workers are on fire for God and those who attend the Sunday night service will be best beyond expectation. Rev. Mr. Savage, in conversation with Mr. Devine, said he hoped to send a converted policeman, member of the Pontiac police force, as the leader of the group that will have charge of the service. It is hoped that arrangements will be made in the near future which will give the Bible lovers of Cass City and vicinity opportunity to hear Mr. Savage himself. In the meantime groups from that famous church will visit us from time to time, bringing their own ministry in sermon and song.

There will be only one week-night service next week. Friday night has been chosen for that service, and Rev. George Crook, evangelist and Bible teacher, will bring the message. His subject will be: "Watchman, What of the Night?"

Erskine Rev. George Crook will preach at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. After a long illness, he is returning slowly to the work of the Lord and will bring his first message for many months to the friends at Erskine. His subject will be: "The Holy Spirit, His Person, His Work, His Abode."

Lions Hear You Lions are believed to depend more on hearing than on scent in hunting their prey.

Bathing takes on new importance. The daily bath is not only health insurance, but a very definite aid to comfort. Sunbathing is no longer a fad. But insist that the first tan be acquired gradually. Severe sunburn can be serious and long periods of exposure may lead to sunstroke.

Talk quietly to the child about these dangers with a view to winning his cooperation. Insistence and punishment often lead to rebellion. Remember that the food requirements are not changed. Instead, if there is increased activity, larger amounts may be needed. Give the child all you can of the new green vegetables; keep up the full supply of milk; and don't forget the fruits. Though you may lose your appetite in hot weather, the child is usually active. He needs his regular balanced diet.

Bathing takes on new importance. The daily bath is not only health insurance, but a very definite aid to comfort. Sunbathing is no longer a fad. But insist that the first tan be acquired gradually. Severe sunburn can be serious and long periods of exposure may lead to sunstroke.

Talk quietly to the child about these dangers with a view to winning his cooperation. Insistence and punishment often lead to rebellion. Remember that the food requirements are not changed. Instead, if there is increased activity, larger amounts may be needed. Give the child all you can of the new green vegetables; keep up the full supply of milk; and don't forget the fruits. Though you may lose your appetite in hot weather, the child is usually active. He needs his regular balanced diet.

Frequent rest periods are essential for the young child. Indeed, rest during the day may counteract the restlessness of hot nights.

"You're the miracle!" he said.

The phrase was destined to become a household word. For it was but a few days later that Dick came to the Lawrence house to dinner, late, and handed a telegram to Gail across the rice muffins and the old blue milk pitcher and the glass bowl of pink October roses.

"Read it aloud."

Dazedly, she obeyed. It was signed "George G. Leavitt."

"We would be glad if you could arrange to take Paul Willoughby's place, assuming full responsibility for London office. Can offer you assistant if desired."

"Dick!" She swallowed hard.

"What does it mean?"

"It means being picked out of the ranks, and handed a field marshal's commission!" Dick said in a voice that shook.

"Congratulations!" Phil said, his handsome Lawrence face one glow of pride and satisfaction.

"But Dick—Dick—can you," Gail stammered. "I mean—are you sure? Without—without—"

"There's one thing I can't do it without!" Dick admitted, folding the telegram to put it back into his breast pocket.

"Money?" Sam asked.

"Nope," Dick looked at Gail, and all the others laughed. "I won't do it without my wife," he said simply.

"But gosh!" This was Sam again. "You'd have to be married right off!"

Dick said nothing. He looked at Gail.

"Gail could be married tomorrow, and get out like a fire horse!" Lily said, and they all laughed.

It was exciting. Things were happening fast and furiously to the Lucky Lawrences at last. Miss Ariel's secret wedding had had all the town buzzing. Now Miss Abigail's plans had the right of way, and the little town was stirred with a deeper emotion!

They were all so kind. Old associates in tears, old friends carrying armfuls of brightly polished huckleberry and pungent chrysanthemums to the Lawrence house. Presents, presents, presents—every one in town had to have a finger in Gail's new equipment.

In Muller's she looked at the incredibly smart ensemble: the tan silk blouse, the tobacco-brown coat with a great white fur collar.

"The tag seems to be gone, Mr. Muller. Not that I think it's—just my price."

"It is thirty dollars," said old Muller steadfastly. The saleswoman almost cried out. Even unsophisticated Gail looked bewildered. "Thirty dollars!"

"Thirty!" She tried it on that night for the family, pulling down the rich little tobacco-brown hat over her eyes.

"You're stunning!" said Lily and Ariel.

"Gee, you're cute!" Sam and Phil said.

Dick said nothing.

The days were full of delights; in the long evenings she and Dick sat by the fire and planned.

"Imagine our paying for things in shillings and pence, Dick!"

It was an inexhaustibly diverting thought. Once she said wistfully, "Would any of Dickens' London be left, Dick, do you suppose?"

I mean all around Lincoln's Inn, where Traddles had all the girls, and down 'round the docks and bridges where Lizzie Hexam and her father rowed, and in the law courts where Snagsby bolted his bread and butter?"

He laughed at her tenderly.

"My darling, I don't know Dickens as you do!"

"I should love to see the old Marshalsea," she mused, "and Arthur Clenham's house, and the gate where they found Lady Dedlock!"

"Do you know whom I'm going to miss like everything, Lily?" Gail asked in an undertone, after awhile.

"Phil?" suggested Phil's wife.

"Phil, too, and of course the baby. But I meant Wiff-waff," said Gail.

"He and I understand each other; I never dreamed that I could love a little boy as much as that!"

"He'll miss you, too," Lily said, tears in her bright sharp eyes. "But won't we all?" she added simply.

It was only Ariel, of them all, of all Clipperville, who could not share the excitement and pleasure of Gail Lawrence's marriage. Ariel had somehow lost her birthright of little sister-ship; there had been no happy flurry of flowers, gifts, wedding frocks, and wedding plans for her; and she looked on at Gail's excitement and emotion with disillusioned, hard young eyes and a faint curl of the lip.

Sometimes Gail dragged herself from her own rosette absorption to try—as all her world had always tried—to cheer Ariel.

"Do you know anything about Manchester?"

"Manchester?"

"The New Jersey town where Van is, where you'll live?"

"Not much." Ariel's tone would be utterly dreary. "Van says there's a country club."

"That might be fun!"

"I don't imagine anything in New Jersey is fun. It sounds to me like a horribly gay place!"

"Maybe you'll have a baby, Ariel. That will keep you busy!"

"Maybe I won't," Ariel answered, setting her jaw firmly.

"Oh, darling—you love children."

"I know," Ariel conceded grudgingly, and was silent. "Men always get the best of everything!" she added resentfully.

"Well, as far as I can see," Gail said healthily, "Van is working hard on a rather dull job, and seems to be an immensely improved—" she altered the word—"developed young man!" she finished.

"Why should what a girl does be so much worse than what a man does?" Ariel said darkly, out of thought.

"Oh, darling, we can't go back to that!"

"I mean, why should a man be able to throw anything up to his wife, when he himself was in it—talked her into doing it?" Ariel demanded.

Gail flushed with distaste.

"I don't think a decent man would do that, Ariel!" she said warmly.

But words were no use. Twenty-one, beautiful, married to the man she had chosen, yet the secret of content was denied Ariel, and she could only look forward with apprehension, and backward with regret. The look in Dick's eyes when he came to steal a few words with his promised wife was a sealed book to Ariel, as was the light that shone on Gail's face as she went to meet him. There had been no mystery, no waiting, no fragrance and glory to Ariel's surrender—excited, reckless, their sudden desire knowing no law, their breath stained with food and drink and cigarettes, she and Van had possessed each other casually, without premeditation, unashamed and unfeared before the hour that found them in each other's arms; ashamed and fearful forever afterward.

Ariel tried to feel contempt for Gail, so innocent, so awed, so trembling with love and faith at the door of the temple. Ariel was but twenty-one, but life had hardened her; she had aged ten years in the last three. Nothing thrilled Ariel now, no promises rang true in her ears, no prospect allured her. And Gail at twenty-seven, Gail who wrote stories and handled unmanageable little boys and novel-loving old ladies so expertly—Gail was only a child, going in utter unknowingness to her bridal night. To Gail men could still be fine, good, worthy of trust and love; to Gail marriage and motherhood would be the very crown of life.

When Gail and Dick sat before the fire in the late evenings, and when Ariel, reading in the next room or loitering discontentedly up to bed, heard their low voices, their low laughter, she tried to despise them.

But after all it was hard to despise beauty and strength and hope; it was hard to despise the prospect that embraced travel and new cities, and the crossing of the great ocean. Above all, it was hard to despise love, and how these two loved each other!

On a quiet, late October afternoon they were walking about the old place that was presently to be Sam's home. Sam not only had theories about farming, but he had an eye on pretty Beth Tait who taught the kindergarten grades.

Sam had left them alone for a minute in the kitchen. It held the homely air of a place in which hard living—loving, eating, grieving, and rejoicing—had had their way for generations. The old stove had been polished thin; lamps still stood crookedly on the old brass brackets. Two empty flower pots careened on the window sill.

They stepped into the dooryard, and looked up at the trees from which the leaves were drifting, and Dick showed her his initials cut clumsily into the great vealed bole of a pepper tree. The girl stooped and touched her lips to them.

"Do you know what that is, Dick?" she asked, straightening up with eyes full of love and laughter. "That's love, dear. The love of a woman for a man!"

On the way home they stopped at the graveyard, and Gail knelt, dry-eyed and thoughtful, at Edith's little stone, and touched its carved inscription with her finger tips.

"Blessed are the pure in spirit, for they shall see God," she read. And all that evening, the last of her girlhood, she thought of Edith.

"My darling, if you could share this! You'd love it so! Packing the trunk—you'd have so many little tricks, out of the backs of magazines! You'd come to visit us, maybe, in London, and we'd prowl around together—in the Strand and in Charing-Cross road. . . . You'd be the first to touch my baby—when he comes."

The evening was one long dream, a dream that blended into the dreams of the short night, when she slept lightly, but sweetly, mingling waking thoughts with happy, confused journeys into the unreal.

She thought of the old house whose winter shadows rose about her and below her and above her; the stately old ugly rooms, the books and books and books, on the shelves and lying face downward on the chairs and stuck between the railings of the winding stairway. She thought of her poetic mother, dying, with innocent little golden-haired Ariel on her arm and of motherless childhood days when she and Edith had whispered of school affairs, going off to sleep, and had played mud pies and flower ladies out in the old garden during the long vacations.

Then Papa off to the war, as became a Lawrence and a patriot, and then the strange sense of suddenly growing up, of responsibility, that had come with the news of Papa's death, and her first job.

Poverty, hard work, discouragement, ignorance—how these shadows had darkened about the Lawrence children! The old house shabbier and poorer, Ariel unmanageable, Sam playing hooky, Phil beginning to run with the Wisber girl, and never any money, any beauty, any leisure, any young pleasure for any of them!

She remembered the day when Van Murchison came suddenly back into her life, and when fun, excitement, visits, and frocks had seemed within reach. Unsatisfactory, flip-pant, giddy as he had been, she had accepted him, she had determined indeed to marry him should the chance be offered her—marry him to escape.

Gail, dreaming of all this on her wedding eve, trembled with a sudden chill in the darkness and solitude of her own big chamber. She would have taken Van to escape—what?

Well, this. This that she had to-night. Her friends, her background, her family, Phil and Lily and the children, all the beauty and dignity of home. To escape from her work, her beloved sheets of yellow paper, her green fountain pen. To escape from Dick, and London, and all the glowing future!

Poor little Ariel had escaped—escaped from life. She had shut herself into the jail of her own dissatisfied heart and there she would be for a long time to come, perhaps forever.

Then it was morning and there was no more time for dreams. The house was astrir in the foggy dawn. The bedroom was a scene of mad confusion; Mary Keats was on her knees, finishing the packing, and holding everything up for Gail's approval before she laid it away.

The white silk gown slipped over her head; she was all white. They who loved her thought they had never seen Gail look so lovely as she did now. Square-shouldered, straight, steady-eyed, she looked at herself in the old dim mirror that had reflected all the moods of her girlhood, and laughed contentedly.

"Somehow I can't feel that I'm getting married!"

The others straggled away, Lily taking her baby. Ariel was alone with her sister. Suddenly she came close, and encircling the sweetness and whiteness and glory that were Gail with her slender arms.

"Just one thing, Gail. I'm going on to Chicago tomorrow to meet Van, and I'm going—I'm going to be different, Gail. I'm going to make a go of it, do you understand? I'll be the nicest woman in the country club, I'll have a little girl baby that Van will adore, I'll study French and keep house—honest I will, Gail!"

It was complete surrender. Gail caught her little sister to her in the first real embrace they had known since Ariel had come back. Both their faces were wet.

Then Gail had to wipe her cheeks carefully and powder them again, and go downstairs to join the others, and to walk around the corner and across the tree-shaded street to Saint Mark's.

The boys had been shepherded into a pew, and Lily, flushed and weary, was sitting there with little Gail restless and hot in her arms; Sam looked oddly grown-up in his new suit, standing beside Dick. And Dick looked—just Dick, big and lean and homely and kind, stooping Sam, watching Gail, catching her eye as she looked at him. And at the sight of him Gail forgot everything else except that after this packed and hurried and extraordinary emotional morning she was really getting married.

Afterward, when they were home again and the congratulatory crowds were surging about them, Dick went to the foot of the stairs to meet her as she came down hatted and coated for the trip. Tears and laughter had been so mingled on her wedding day that he thought she looked more like a blue-eyed child than ever; bewildered, grateful, touched, happy.

"When we used to play 'round the old rack together, twenty years ago, we didn't see this coming at the end, did we, Gail?" Dick said, as he caught her hand for the run to the waiting motor car.

"At the end!" she echoed, with a swift, shocked, laughing glance. "Dick, Dick, this is only the beginning! Don't forget that I'm one of the Lucky Lawrences!"

THE COURTS

Sheriff Jeffrey's department is endeavoring to reduce drunk driving in Tuscola county, making automobile traffic more safe. Justices are revoking the driver's license of each offender for one year, and assessing fines or imposing jail sentences.

Charles Allard of Caro was arrested on a driving drunk charge Friday by Sheriff Geo. Jeffrey when Allard driving on the Caro pavement hit the car of Fred Ball of Deford at 4:30 a. m. Justice Atwood assessed a fine of $50 and costs of $7.50.

Fred Rieger of Warren was arrested by Deputy Erb on M-16, north of Millington, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was given his choice of paying a $50 fine and $12.50 costs, or 90 days in the county jail. Frank Muckenthaler of Warren, his companion, was fined $12.50 on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Russell Timlick, 54, of Akron received a $50 fine and $9.50 costs on a charge of driving drunk in Fairgrove on Saturday night. Justice Frank St. Mary heard the case.

Deputy William Brady arrested Del Vermesh of Unionville on a drunk and disorderly charge on the night of May 30. It was his second offense and Justice Atwood said $35 and $11 cost.

Clayton Ryan and Leo Ashcroft of Sanilac county were in Justice Atwood's court Monday on drunk and disorderly charges, having been arrested in Caro Saturday night. Ryan paid $10 fine and $6.22 costs, and Ashcroft paid a $5 fine and $6.22 costs.

Charles Daniels, 30; Richard Daniels, 19; and Milton Griffin, 19, all of Wahjamega; and Miss Doris Chapman, 34, of Detroit were arrested on charges of larceny of chickens. Charles Daniels paid a $20 fine and $12.50 costs, and Miss Chapman a $10 fine and $7.50 costs in Justice St. Mary's court. Milton Griffin paid $9.20 costs and Richard Daniels paid a $20 fine and $9.00 costs in the court of Justice Atwood.

Pete Trea, 17, and Glen Martin, 18, of Vassar, charged with theft of gasoline at the Vassar high school, appeared in Justice Child's court where each young man paid a $10 fine and $10.65 costs. A 16-year-old companion of the two will appear in juvenile court.

Joe Frost of Vassar has started a 90-day term in the county jail in preference to paying a $35 fine and $11.90 costs on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Sheriff George Jeffrey arrested Earl Whittaker of Pontiac Tuesday night on a charge of stealing a Chevrolet roadster from the yard of Earl Beltz of Koylton township. The car was wrecked as Whittaker and a 14-year-old companion of Pontiac were driving through Auburn Heights, officers say. Whittaker formerly resided in Koylton with his parents.

Fine Talent in Grade Operetta

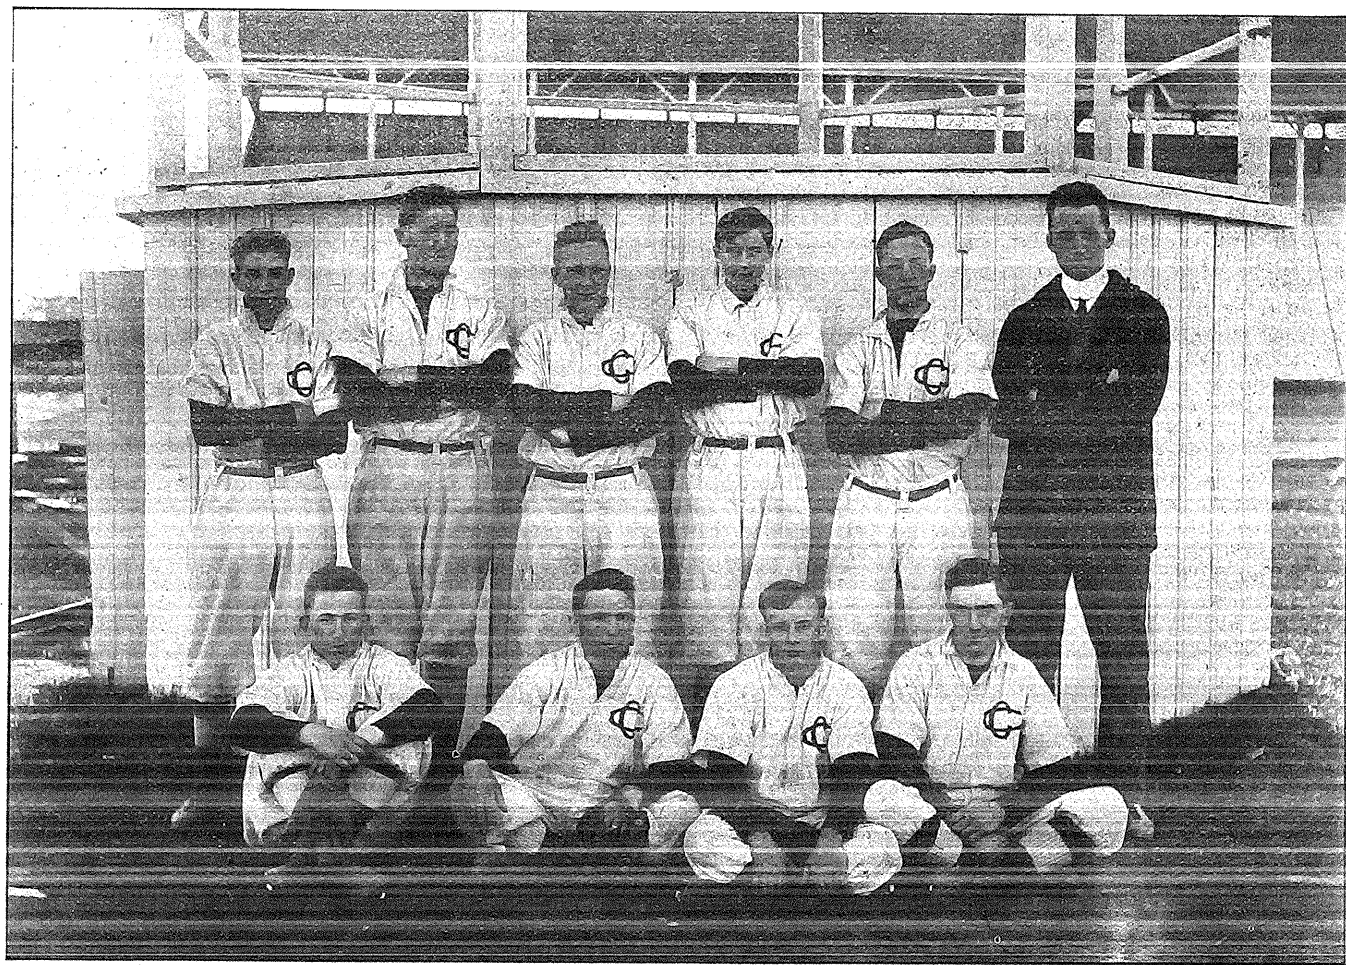

Another pleasing musical event was presented in Cass City on Wednesday evening, May 29, when the children of the kindergarten and the first six grades appeared in their second annual operetta. "The Land of Dreams Come True" was the playlet chosen for this year and about 250 children participated in its production. The program was given on the west lawn of the school grounds which had been beautifully decorated and arranged for the occasion and was attended by a large group of parents and friends. Unusual ability and talent was displayed on the part of the children and the teachers deserve much credit for their clever ideas and ability in training their pupils. The following teachers were in charge: Mrs. J. I. Niergarth, Mrs. Zora Day, Mrs. Mary Holcomb, and the Misses Esther Leybold, Margaret Muntz, Marguerite Countryman and Goldie Wilson. In connection with the operetta, an exhibition of work done in the various departments of the school was on display in the high school gymnasium. It consisted of samples of work accomplished in art, home economics, manual training shop, kindergarten and grades. It was a most interesting exhibit and reflected much credit on teachers and pupils. Cass City may well be proud of its excellent school system.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

The Cass City Chronicle has through the years stored away pictures of local people and buildings, some of which date back many years. The Chronicle will reprint some of these from time to time. No names or stories will appear under any picture and it will be left for the readers to think back through the years and search their memories for identification.

group had been taken, the company gathered in the church auditorium where the principal speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. W. C. S. Pellowe of the Jefferson Avenue Methodist church of Saginaw. Mr. Pellowe started in the ministry in Peck, Sanilac county, about twenty years ago and chose for his subject Friday afternoon, "The Old Mill Stream." He has a peculiar interest in old water mills and makes a hobby of collecting pictures of this old type of machinery. As an introduction to his address, the speaker quoted the first verse of the song, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

Among the many interesting thoughts expressed were the following: There is many a sermon in mill streams and it is good for our souls to go to the old mill and listen to the voices of the past. All good things were not made in the last 20 years and folks are beginning to show a reverence for old architecture, books, arts, etc. Old mills were abandoned because they could not feed the expanding population of the world. Expanding needs call for new things; new occasions call for new solutions. The problem of today is to reverence the past and meet the demands of today. Some people think all glory is in the past. People make one invention who say all progress is over. Sentences have just touched beginnings. Most of the inventions exhibited at the Century of Progress exposition were made within the last 40 years. America's greatest days are yet to come in the field of science, religion and government. We're going to build a new America. People in the past spent years in building tombs such as the pyramids of Egypt but people of today construct useful things, the Boulder dam in Colorado being an example. This achievement alone will benefit thousands. It is nice to think, to have poems, and to sing about the old mill streams but they're a thing of the past. We have better and more efficient things today. Greater days are ahead, greater things are to come and clouds of war shall cease.

Another pleasing feature of the afternoon's program was the reading by Mrs. Joseph Crawford of two poems, composed by John Profit, son of James Profit, and a student at Michigan State College at Lansing. John recalled experiences of his boyhood in the Bethel church in his writings and the community is justly proud of its youthful poet.

OWENDALE BOVINE DISPLAYS UNUSUAL TASTE

Paul Valak, Owendale farmer, had his pickle contract taken from him under unusual circumstances this spring. Mr. Valak had contracted to grow two acres of these vegetables on his farm, a mile east and two miles south of Owendale, and placed his contract between two stones in his barnyard with the intention of doing a little work before taking the agreement to the house. One of his cows which has an inclination for legal terms ate up the contract before his very eyes. Neighbors are advising Valak to keep his sugar beet contract in his strong box.

HOSPITAL NOTES.

Mrs. Wrayburn Krohn and baby of Bad Axe, Miss Hazel Wheeler of Snover, Adolph Reher of Bach, Miss Julia Bolla and Lyle Spencer are still patients here. Margaret Marble is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Lawrence Blackmer and daughter returned to their home on Monday.

Mrs. John Zinnecker of Kingston was admitted May 28, operated the following day, and is getting along fine.

Mrs. Cornell of Kinde underwent a major operation Friday morning and was also given a blood transfusion. Miss S. Ceglarek, R. N., of Bay City was her special nurse until Monday.

Mrs. Harvey O'Dell was admitted May 20, operated the same evening and was discharged May 21.

"PARIS IN SPRING" IS THEME OF J-S BANQUET

Concluded from first page. Monsieur Howard Taylor, president of the senior class, "Paris au Printemps," "Pluie" was sung by Mademoiselle Eva May Sovey with Mademoiselle Jane Whitfield as accompanist. Mademoiselle Cressey Steele, Mademoiselle Esther Turner and Monsieur Frank Morris, with Mademoiselle Niergarth as accompanist, played "L'Amour Toujours L'Amour."

Guests numbered 152 and included seniors, juniors, members of the board of education and their wives, teachers and janitor of the Cass City school.

Dancing was enjoyed after the program when music was furnished by the Dillman orchestra. The banquet was given in honor of the seniors by the members of the junior class and their sponsor, Miss Ruth Ann Erskine. They were assisted in the clever and unique plans and decorations by Miss Marguerite Countryman and Delmar Youngs.

Obituary

Mr. and Mrs. John Caldwell of this place and their daughter, Mrs. William Wetters, of Detroit spent from Wednesday until Saturday at St. Williams, Ontario, where they were called because of the death of Mr. Caldwell's mother, Mrs. Margaret Caldwell, 99. Norfolk county lost its oldest citizen when Mrs. Caldwell passed away Tuesday, May 28. She had been ill only a few days with pneumonia and her death was very unexpected. Born at Forestville, she spent all of her life there, and for the last 75 years had lived in the house where she passed away.

Margaret Karns was married on June 16, 1860. Mr. Caldwell died in 1900.

She was always a staunch member of the Baptist church and took an active interest in all church work.

She is survived by six sons and two daughters, John, of Cass City, Mich.; William, of Forestville; George, of Walsh; Coville, of Chicago; Judson, of St. Thomas; Oswald, of St. Williams; Mrs. Clarence McCall, of Victoria; Mrs. Mary Winchester, of St. Williams.

Funeral services were held at the home Friday and burial was in the Forestville Baptist cemetery.

A very unusual coincidence occurred on Tuesday when Mrs. Caldwell passed away. On the same day her sister-in-law, the widow of the late Richard Johnson, died at St. Williams, a few miles away.

ALL CATTLE OVER SIX MONTHS SUBJECT TO TEST TO EXHIBIT AT CO. FAIR

At a meeting of the County Fair Board Monday evening at Hotel Montague in Caro, it was voted that all cattle over six months of age which will be shown at the Tuscola County Fair must have been within sixty days tested and found to be free of Bang's disease. Also that such animals must be accompanied by a certificate from proper authorities showing them to have had the test and free of the disease.

This action has become necessary due to the fact that 118 herds in this county have now applied for this test since January 1, 1935, all such herds to be tested under Federal supervision and to accept the Federal indemnity for reactors. Owners of clean animals can not therefore exhibit among untested animals. Therefore the ruling. This will necessitate in many cases that local veterinarians draw the blood samples of animals to be exhibited that the blood samples be sent to the State Office for the completion of the test.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO 50 GRADUATES

Concluded from first page. garth introduced Dr. Fisher as the speaker, his subject being "Living in a Modern World." Following the address, Mrs. Raymond McCullough, violinist, Miss Lucy Wadsworth, cellist, and Mrs. Ethel McCoy, pianist, gave "Selections from Robin Hood" by DeKoven as a trio number. Mr. Niergarth presented members of the senior class with their diplomas as they marched across the stage. As the class left the rostrum, each member was presented with a rose by Kathryn and Kenneth Price in commemoration of the association of their father, the late C. W. Price, as superintendent of schools, with the graduates. The pronouncement of the benediction by Rev. W. R. Curtis completed the evening's program.

Seats were at a premium and many had to stand during the Class Day exercises held at the high school auditorium Monday evening. The stage presented an impressive and beautiful scene with the 50 members of the class seated on the platform at the front of which stood many baskets of cut flowers.

Miss Marion Milligan, awarded the honor of salutatorian, welcomed parents and patrons of the school, and Elmore Caister presented as a memorial to the late C. W. Price, superintendent of schools, two electric clocks for the main hall of the school building, as a gift from members of the Class of 1935. Howard Taylor, who tied with Miss Lucile Stirton for highest honors in the class, gave the president's address and Miss Pauline Dodge played "C-Sharp Minor Prelude" by Rachmaninoff as a piano solo. Miss Eunice Schell predicted the future activities of class members in a prophecy, Miss Mary Mark presented to them gifts with appropriate remarks, and "Varsity" was played by the senior class orchestra. Miss Lucile Stirton, as valedictorian, gave the farewell address and the class will be read by Carlos Vader. The high school song played by the senior orchestra closed the delightful program.

Another instructor in the junior high school, a science and mathematics teacher, and an instructor in music and art are yet to be engaged.

Mr. Niergarth anticipates a large enrollment in the high school next fall which may exceed the 300-mark.

Four Injured When Car Turns Over

Four persons were injured in an accident late Saturday night when the automobile, owned by John Birch of Flint and driven by Don Hunter, Jr., of Cass City, turned over in the ditch nine miles north of town, as it swerved off the road to avoid hitting a parked car without lights. Mr. Hunter suffered head and arm injuries and his sisters, Miss Nellie of Cass City, Mrs. Lewis Hunter and Miss Maxine Hunter of Flint received severe bruises and minor injuries. All were brought to Pleasant Home hospital and were able to go to the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hunter on South Seeger street later. Lewis Hunter and John Birch, also in the car, were not hurt.

LOCALS MEET MAYVILLE FOR COUNTY TITLE

Concluded from first page. one of these men scored, the locals would have won without playing extra innings. Graham for the Maroons and Moss for Mayville both pitched good ball for their school.

However, it was not until Tuesday when the Hilltoppers really became wild and made nine errors behind four pitchers to give Harbor Beach a 12-2 victory. It's true that the Lake City boys hit hard, but local misplays gave them an early lead that Cass City could not match. Coach Kelly exercised his squad, using 17 men in this game. Donnelly, McNaughton, Martin and G. Reagh, all had turns on the mound for Cass City, while Both pitched his team to victory.
