NEW STATION OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

S., T. & H. Fine New Building Gets Finishing Touches Today.

Carpenters finished their work Wednesday and the painters will finish the interior decorating today on the new service station of the S., T. & H. Oil Company on the corner of Main and Seeger streets in Cass City. The official opening of the station will be held on Saturday evening, July 13.

The building supplants the station building of the company erected several years ago. A small portion of the old building was incorporated in the new structure which has a frontage of 38 feet and is 50 feet long at its extreme length.

The walls of the building facing the two streets are built of semi-glazed brick, while the other two are constructed of sand lime blocks. The canopy of the station is made of glassiron shingles of blue and white.

Ample office room is situated in the front of the building and a large window space 5 by 15 feet gives the station operators a view into the workroom. The combined grease, oil changing and wash room is 29 by 36 feet in size and is reached from Seeger street through three overhead doors. Back of this large room is a store room 7 by 36 feet. Two rest rooms are located on the east side of the station.

The company will install two gasoline pumps of the new type which not only shows to the customer the amount of gallonage, but also computes the amount purchased on the pump indicator.

The new building and equipment spells modernity.

Bronze Tablet Honors Former Cass City Pastor

A bronze tablet in the Memorial Arch at Simpson Park Holliness Camp Meeting grounds near Romeo will be unveiled on Saturday afternoon, August 3, in honor of the late Rev. W. B. Weaver, who for more than 30 years had been a regular attendant at the camp, during most of this time being an officer.

Half Year Plates Go On Sale Soon

On Thursday, July 25, automobile license plates for 1935 will go on sale at half price, Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, has announced. The plates will be available from that date on, at the Department of State, and all branch offices throughout Michigan.

Cars that have been on the highways without 1935 plates have been equipped with 1935 half-year permits or "stickers." Cars placed in operation on the highways prior to July 25 must be equipped either with half-year permits or with 1935 plates purchased at full price, it is pointed out.

Owners of cars which have been equipped with half-price "stickers" have at all times had available the privilege of purchasing 1935 plates upon the payment of the balance of the 1935 license plate tax. But in any event, "stickers" must be replaced with 1935 plates by midnight, July 31, Atwood warns. No extension of time can be granted without express authorization of the legislature. Motorists are asked to bring their "sticker" registration certificates with them when they apply for their 1935 license plates.

Spies Report Vicious Enemies

Like Moses of old, who sent men out to spy the land, the officers of the Striffler clan sent investigators to the grove where it was planned to hold their annual family reunion on July 4. Moses' men kept themselves concealed from the enemy, but the Striffler committee were not so successful and the enemy found them before they discovered their oppressors. Moses' men reported men of great stature in the land toward which they were journeying. The modern day committee reported the enemy not as large as giants, but exceedingly more active and vicious—mosquitoes who had no respect for the investigating group and in numbers that would inflict serious slaughter on the entire clan should they follow the usual plan to meet in "Uncle John's Woods" northeast of Cass City. On the advice of the grounds committee, the place of meeting was changed to the Evangelical church.

In the church dining room, 94 enjoyed the noon-day feast, after which the following program, as prepared by the program committee, was given: Song, "America"; reading, Miss Geraldine Striffler; talks on "My First Fourth of July" by Mrs. S. G. Benkelman, Miss Martha Striffler, and W. D. Striffler; dialogue, Doris and Dorothy Southworth; remarks by Rev. G. A. Spitzer. G. A. Striffler presided as chairman.

W. D. Striffler was elected president; Mrs. S. G. Benkelman, vice president; and Joseph A. Benkelman, secretary-treasurer. The Benkelman family, quite closely related to the Striffler clan in this community, has been invited to join in the next reunion, the choosing of a place and time having been left to Joseph A. Benkelman, Frank Striffler and C. J. Striffler.

Will Tour Several Farms Next Tuesday

On Tuesday, July 16, members of the Crop Improvement Association in the Thumb area will report at Bay Port for a fish supper after a tour of several farms that afternoon. The first stop is scheduled for Ellis Aldrich, north and west of Fairgrove, at 8:00 p. m., the second for the farm of Jesse Triber, west and south of Unionville, at 4:00 p. m., the balance of the time to be spent in Huron county previous to the arrival at Bay Port for supper and program. Roy Decker of the Crop Improvement Association at Lansing will be present. Arrangements are being made by county agents of the Thumb area and local officers of the State Crop Improvement Association. Farmers interested in the growing of better seed and crops are invited to attend.

Dairymen Will Picnic July 18

On Thursday, July 18, the dairymen of Tuscola county are invited by Wahjamega Farm Colony and Caro Board of Commerce to attend a basket picnic to be held in the Wahjamega picnic grove on the south side of M-81. The afternoon program will be of interest to the general dairymen in the county at which time Mr. E. M. Clark of the National Holstein Friesian Association will talk on general dairy conditions throughout the county and J. G. Hays, extension dairy specialist from Michigan State College, who has recently attended the National Dairy Science Convention at Minneapolis, will talk on "What's New in the Dairy Industry." Musical numbers will be a feature also. A six weeks old registered Holstein bull calf will be given away. This calf has been donated through the courtesy of the Wahjamega institution. Entertainment for all will be provided at the close of the program.

Holstein breeders will enjoy a tour in the morning in charge of E. L. Benton, county agricultural agent, at which time Mr. Clark and Mr. Hays will also assist. The time of the tour is arranged as follows: Leave the court house at Caro at 8:45, arrive at the Bert Perry farm at 9:00 a. m. for herd inspection and a judging contest. Ben Reavey farm at 10:45, Myron Hall farm, 11:15; Wahjamega farm, 11:45. Basket dinner in the grove at 12:30. Program called for 1:30 p. m.

In case of rain the meeting will be held at Murray Hall, Wahjamega. Further information can be obtained from George Bieth, president of Board of Commerce, and County Agent E. L. Benton.

DOESN'T PAY TO BLUFF.

Joe Lehoton of Vassar township refused to display a dog tax receipt or tag to the dog warden when he called at Lehoton's farm and Lehoton told the officer to get off the place.

Brought into justice court, Lehoton was convinced that it doesn't pay to bluff, when he was ordered to pay $9.30 costs and to buy a $4 dog license.

VALUES AND SALES OF LAND INCREASE

First Upturn in Farm Prices in 10 Years Started Last Year Rises Higher.

Better sales and better prices for farms are indications of the upturn in agriculture, according to Governor W. I. Myers, farm credit administrator. Sales of farms by the 12 federal land banks were twice as numerous in the first four months of this year as in the same period in 1934. The actual sales were 2,398 farms this year in four months and 1,196 in 1934. Increase in sales were greatest in the South and Pacific Coast states.

The upturn in prices for farms, beginning last year, is the first gain in farm values in 10 years. Even during the increase in values of farms in 30 states, prices declined in five states where drought damage last year was greatest.

Increased interest in the purchase of land is accredited to better prices for farm products, reduced taxes in some sections, and ability to obtain credit for financing the purchase of farms.

First mortgage loans and land bank commissioner loans by the federal land banks have enabled many farmers to refinance their debts and have permitted others to buy farms. Private corporations are becoming interested in loans on farms for the first time a period of several years.

Distress sales of farms have decreased, due to ability of farmers to obtain credit for refinancing and Turn to page 5, please.

94 Cases Prosecuted in Huron County

A summary of the report of Thomas R. McAllister, prosecuting attorney of Huron county, for the first six months of 1935 shows total cases prosecuted were 94. Of this number 78 were convicted, 16 were dismissed on payment of costs incurred, one was acquitted, and five were dismissed on order of the prosecutor.

The above cases consisted of nine cases of assault and battery; one case involving assault with deadly weapons without intent to do great bodily harm; 23 cases of drunkenness; one case of desertion; 16 fish law violations; 19 cases of larceny; one case of using indecent language in the presence of women; two liquor law violations; two cases of malicious destruction of property; five cases of drunken driving; 13 motor vehicle law violations; one case for resisting an officer; and one case of malicious slander. Fines imposed totaled $756.26 and sentences imposed totaled six years and eight months. There were arrests for felonies or major crimes in 13 cases.

Drinks from Andersonville Spring in '35 as Father, a Prisoner, Did Often in '63

One of the most interesting places which L. I. Wood visited when he and Mrs. Wood spent several months in the South this winter was Andersonville, Ga., the site of a famous Confederate state military prison, in which nearly 50,000 Federal prisoners were confined during the course of the War of Secession.

Mr. Wood's father, O. C. Wood, a member of Company A, 5th Michigan Cavalry, was among these prisoners for a nine-month period. During his confinement there, prisoners were digging inside the enclosure for water and one day ran into a spring which thereafter slaked their thirst and proved a boon to the incarcerated men, over one-fourth of whom succumbed to the terrible conditions of insanitation and insufficient food and shelter. The spring named Providence Spring at its discovery, still functions as a natural fountain and L. I. Wood drank from this in 1935 as did his father

Methodists Use New Plan for Repair Fund

A unique plan for raising the nucleus of a fund for a new roof and other necessary repairs to property has been launched by the Cass City Methodist Episcopal church, as of July 1st. Over one hundred "Penny-a-Meal" boxes have been distributed to families in the constituency. These are to be placed on the dining table each mealtime and coins will be placed in the boxes by one or more members of the family circle. The boxes are to be replaced with fresh ones every thirty days during the summer and early fall. This plan makes it possible for people in all circumstances to share in the business of maintaining the church building in which all have equal privileges whenever it is used. The "penny-a-meal" system is in use at present over a wide range of denominations in nearly every state in the union.

The committee in charge of the details of this plan is headed by Dr. I. A. Fritz, with Robert McConkey as secretary.

Stop Death Losses of Farm Livestock

Now that livestock prices are high enough so that the prevention of losses materially affects profits, extra precautions should be taken to avoid deaths of stock in shipment according to husbandry department at Michigan State College.

Shipping losses are the most common, and hogs are the class of livestock usually lost in rail or truck shipments. Animals are injured in shipment by trampling or by being crowded against nails in the vehicle in which they are shipped as well as by excessive heat.

Thorough inspection of the car or truck for projecting nails, rough bolts, or sharp splinters will remove chances of injuries. Avoid overcrowding and build pens so that different classes of stock will not be mixed to prevent trampling.

Hogs should be taken to the shipping point in the morning, or the truck or wagon should be covered to give them protection from the sun. Bedding which can be soaked with water will help stop losses while hogs are being transported to the shipping point or to market.

Plenty of water is also the best way of avoiding losses of work horses from overheating. Barrels of water hauled to the field will make it possible to permit the horses to drink several times each half day without great loss of time from their work.

Horses and cattle should be furnished salt in the stables or pastures so that they can reach it at any time. The salt and plenty of water will permit the animals to withstand temperatures which otherwise would be dangerous.

Milk Tests Change for Many Reasons

Variations in the test of milk from the one cow or the entire herd, which often causes disputes between dairymen and buyers of milk may be due to a number of causes other than a desire to buy milk cheaply, according to the dairy department at Michigan State College.

The milk's hurry to get through with his work may be the reason for a low milk test. The last strippings of milk from the cow's udder contain a higher percentage of fat than the first milk drawn. If the cow is not milked clean, the milk will test lower than it will if the cow is milked completely dry.

Excitement, such as chasing by dogs, decreases both the amount of milk produced and the amount of fat in the milk. Shouts or any other cause which excites the cow at milking time will reduce the amount of milk and fat.

Milk tests from the same cow may vary as much as one percent from the beginning of the lactation period to its close. The test decreases as the lactation period proceeds if the cow was in good condition at calving time. If several cows freshen at the same time, the test for the entire herd may increase for a short time and then fall considerably.

Tests of the milk drawn at night are higher than that obtained in the morning even when the length of time between milkings is the same. Fat tests increase as the number of milkings per day is increased. This may be because the milking is more complete when it is done often.

Tests for different breeds of cows show considerable variation and the addition to or the sale of one or more cows from the herd may change the test for the whole herd. The effect of changing one individual in the herd, of course, is slight if the herd is large.

The age of cows appear to have little effect upon the fat test as long as the animal is vigorous and in good condition. Conditions of health have a material effect upon both the amount of milk and its test. Gargetty milk tests low in fat.

It is sometimes impossible to secure a correct fat test from milk. Milk which is slightly sour or which has been partially churned in hauling to the station will not furnish a good sample for testing and the test made may not report correctly the amount of fat actually in the milk.

Farmers' Day Brings Editor as Speaker

New uses for farm products is to be the base upon which the Farmers' Day program at Michigan State College, Friday, July 26, will be built and the principal speaker that day, Wheeler McMillen, editor, Country Home, has been investigating that subject for several years.

In an interview with Dr. William J. Hale, Midland, Mich., Mr. McMillen last year found out how one of the leading scientists in the industrial field believes farm products can be turned to other uses than food or clothing. Conversion of the products of farms into manufactured goods is not wholly new but the interest in increasing this use is at a high point now, and scientists are working overtime to develop new uses.

Mr. McMillen was chairman of part of the sessions at the agricultural-industrial conference called at Dearborn, Mich., by Mr. Henry Ford, and did much of the preliminary work which made that meeting possible.

He said at that meeting, "We are today utilizing but a small portion of the productive power of our cultivated soil, and an even lesser proportion of the productive power of our agricultural energies. We who are food producers have felt ourselves limited by the inelasticity of human stomachs. Few of our customers, however rich, seem to want more than three meals a day."

"In contrast, the American people have an apparently infinite capacity, given adequate purchasing power, to consume the products of industry and agriculture other than food. Therein lies an opportunity of greater magnitude than we may comprehend without careful examination."

Michigan farmers will want to hear the message that Mr. McMillen will bring from the scientists who are working to develop processes which will turn farm products into manufactured articles. The practicability of the plan is attested by the use of such products now in the production of starch, alcohol, cellulose, and oils which have a ready sale.

The speaking program Farmers' Day will follow the basket luncheon at noon. Plans are being made to have some high school musicians of the state furnish a band concert after lunch. Inspection of the experimental work at the college, a tractor plowing contest, and other features will occupy the morning hours.

LAYMEN COMING AS GUEST-PREACHERS SUNDAY

Two laymen from the Decker-ville Methodist parish are expected to conduct the morning worship at the Methodist church in town, next Sunday at 10:30, in the absence of Rev. Charles Bayless, who left on vacation Thursday. These men, James Powley and William Turnbull, are local preachers on the Decker-ville charge, and conducted services there several times last year during the absence of the minister on a trip to England. It is not known which of the two will conduct the service and which will deliver the sermon, but good reports of their work have been received here.

Union Service Presents Drama Group

The Sunday evening union church services began their midsummer schedule Sunday, July 7, with the well-known Toomey Singers of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church of Saginaw furnishing a program of spirituals and sacred numbers by both the children's vested chorus and the Silvertone Male Quartet, a group of Christian young men. The program was conducted by Rev. Mr. Toomey with Mrs. Toomey at the piano, and the selections were well received by an audience of over two hundred in the Methodist church.

Rev. Charles Bayless announced that the next time the union service was due to be held in the Methodist building on August 18 that a religious drama would be presented by a group from one of the churches of Flint, known as The Lakeview Players. A drama of the early Christian church, by Dorothy Clarke Wilson, entitled "Pilgrims of the Way," has been promised, according to word received here. The group comes well recommended from several guest-performances in southeastern Michigan during the last two years.

Next Sunday, the union service will be held in the Evangelical church at 8:00 p. m. with Rev. W. R. Curtis as preacher.

"OPERA UNDER THE STARS."

Detroit—The current Opera Under the Stars production at Navin Field of Noel Coward's musical success "Bitter Sweet" will be followed by that immortal operetta, "Blossom Time."

Following "Blossom Time" which opens Saturday, there will be presented "Cyrano de Bergerac," "The Last Waltz" and "Nina Rosa." The succeeding musical shows on the adjusted summer program will be announced shortly.

The coming production of Romberg's "Blossom Time," on the mammoth outdoor stage will see a number of new faces in leading roles. Roy Cropper, of "Student Prince" and "Vagabond King" fame will be seen for the first time with the "Opera" in the role of Baron Schober. Franz Schubert will be played by Paul Keist, who has appeared with Grand Opera in both New York and Chicago, and played the leads in "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat" taking Dennis King's place in these productions. The role of Mitzi Kranz will be played by another well-known newcomer, Diana Galen.

Leonard Ceely will be seen in this show in the role of Count Scharntoff. Robert Betts, Desiree Tabor, Robert Long, Barnett Parker, Nancy Welford, Elizabeth Crandall, Sandra Ward, Truman Gaige, Bette Davis and many others will be seen in the prominent roles.

"Blossom Time" is the one musical show that almost everybody knows and loves and is the greatest operetta success in the history of the stage. The romantic story is based on the character of the great composer Franz Schubert, who was for the most part unable to express himself except in music, and who left behind him one of the richest treasures of music the world has known. Although Dorothy Donnelly's story of Schubert's life is purely fictitious, it is none the less charming. Romberg, in writing the melodies, owes much to the real Franz Schubert for the themes.

Schubert is presented as the adorer of Mitzi, one of the three charming daughters of Kranz, the court jeweler in Vienna. While he is seeking courage to tell of his love, he discovers that Mitzi is being wooed by Baron von Schober, his best friend. In the end Schubert stands silent while the other wins the lovely lady, and then in music of rare eloquence tells the story of his love.

The Schubert "Serenade" peeps into the first act and in the last act the immortal "Ave Maria" is the setting for the song "Lonely Heart." "The Song of Love," most popular of all "Blossom Time" melodies, has as its basis the principal theme of Schubert's unfinished symphony. There are haunting suggestions of one of the "March Militaire," and of other familiar melodies in the operetta score. Watson Barrett, scenic designer, in making the settings for this lovely operetta is doing his utmost to make them even more beautiful and spectacular than any production up to this time. The same is true of Ernest Schrapps who is the costume designer. Efforts are being made on the part of everyone to make "Blossom Time" a living picture of beauty and melody on the mammoth outdoor stage, a picture that will never be forgotten.—Adv.

The MAN from YONDER by HAROLD TITUS

It was a week later. Old Don Stuart, propped on pillows in the narrow, cell-like room of Joe Plette's hotel, listened to the colorful account that Bird-Eye Blaine, with many gestures and considerable profanity, rendered for him of what had transpired at Hoot Owl since Ben Elliott had taken charge of the operation.

"... 'nd so he's got th' mill crew a-wurkin' their blessid heads off for him 'nd 's got th' ragged-pants gang av beet-weeders 'nd hay pitchers that passes fer a loggin' crew doin' more'n they've evir done in their lazy lives before!"

"Good," gasped Stuart feebly and tried to smile. "Good boy. But ... he's young and ... alone against Brandon. It'll be ... that hard nut he ... was lookin' for."

"Harrrd? Bird-Eye glared at him. "Harrrd! Th' harrrd they come, th' better pleased he is! Sure 'nd he's a glutton fer work, Donny! 'Nd th' saints, they have a finger into ut, too, him a-comin' just whin they'd got pore owdl Able licked. It'll be a tough fight 'r I'm a bad guesser, but d—n me eyes, what a folgher th' lad is!"

A restless light appeared in Don's eyes and his thin old hands fidgeted nervously with the blankets.

"A tough fight. ... Oh, he don't know ... Bird-Eye, what he's up against." He struggled to sit erect and his eyes shone brightly with an odd sort of desperation. "If Brandon can't ... drive him out ... one way or another ... he'll kill him." He gasped and swallowed, evidently making a great effort to talk rapidly. "I'm a coward, Bird-Eye. ... Been a d—n coward ... for years. I've been ... afraid to tell ... while I lived. Now ... I'm afraid to die with it ... on my soul!"

He panted and Blaine looked in alarm at his friend as these last words took on significance for him. "Lay back, Donny. Dawn't git yerself excited, b'y. ... Coward?"

Early Institute of Technology The plan of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was formed in 1859, it was incorporated in 1861, and the first meeting for organization was held April 8, 1862. The Civil war led to a postponement of the opening of the School of Industrial Science until 1865.

Naw, ye're no coward!" He grasped the sick man by the shoulders and tried gently to force him back on the pillows but the old fellow resisted.

"Can't die ... Can't ... with it on ... my soul!" he gasped and lifted a face stamped with strange appeal to the little man.

Bird-Eye stood back, solemn and worried, scratching his head. The other made a feeble gesture with one hand.

"A man's got ... to fight fire with ... fire. Brandon'll get him ... unless he ... unless ... He put a hand to his throat and moved his uplifted chin from side to side as though strangling. "Want to write ... a letter, Bird-Eye. Get ... paper. Fight ... fire with fire!"

This was obviously no whim of a sick man. His necessity was not clear to Blaine but the other knew old Don was gripped by a burning conviction.

He hurried down the stairs, secured writing materials and, from the table in the little office picked up a mail-order-house catalogue. With these he ascended to the sick room again, taking the steps two at a time.

"Here ye are! Book to write on, paper, envelope, pencil. ... I'll sit by ye, Donny."

Stuart did not start to write at once. He sat staring straight before him in quinary, and then lifted his gaze to the little man who stood at his bedside.

"I'd like to be ... alone, Bird-Eye," he said in a faint whisper. "I've been alone ... with it so long ... I think better alone."

The other shrugged. "Ave course, Donny," he acquiesced. "Ave course. O'll come back when ye're finished."

He went downstairs, rubbers thumping on the treads, but he stood at the bottom a long interval, shaking his head in misgiving and muttering to himself. Then he turned about and crept back as softly as a cat. On the upper landing he seated himself leaning against the thin partition of matched boards which separated him from the sick man.

A half hour, perhaps, Bird-Eye sat there growing cramped and chilly in the draughty hallway. Then he leaped to his feet with a little cry. From within had come a long, retching gasp, a sharp creak of bed springs, a thud on the floor. Blaine burst into the room. The catalogue was beside the bed. Old Don lay half doubled forward, face in the blankets, one limp hand swaying slightly as it dangled over the edge.

"Donny! Donny, b'y, what's up?" He raised the limp figure, laid it back, stared hard at the face which now seemed so peaceful and then ran excitedly down the stairway in frenzied search of Joe Plette.

In the room was confusion after Doctor Sweet answered the hasty summons. The doctor felt vainly for a pulse, touched the shrunken breast of the old cruiser and then turned away with a significant shake of his head.

The usual things were said and then Bird-Eye and the physician were alone in the room. The little Irishman's eyes brimmed with tears but behind these was an intent look as of one who impatiently awaits opportunity to pursue a specific purpose, and when the others trooped down the stairway he closed the door and returned hastily to the bedside.

"Sure 'nd where is ut?" he asked beneath his breath, riffling the leaves of the bulky catalogue, shaking folds out of the rumpled blankets.

"What are you after, Bird-Eye?" the doctor asked. "Ah! Here ut be!"

On his hands and knees, peering beneath the bed, he uttered that ejaculation and, reaching far under, rose to his knees with a sealed envelope in his hands.

Across the face was a scrawl, written with an indelible pencil. Blaine scowled as he tried to make out the words, got to his feet, and moved across the room to hold the envelope closer to the light. Doctor Sweet bent over it beside him.

"Ben Elliott," the latter read aloud. "Open this when the nut gets too hard to crack."

The doctor scratched his mustache. He turned his face to meet Bird-Eye's startled gaze.

"It's somethin', Doctor, that he didn't dare die with on his soul! Somethin' he was fearful to tell if he lived, as well ... Somethin' ... His hand holding the letter trembled sharply.

"Brandon for sure!" Bird-Eye whispered hoarsely. "T'was Brandon kept Donny out av Tincup fer years, wa'n't it? 'Twas Brandon tuk him when he was hittin' th' booze years back 'nd made a slave av him, he did! It's Brandon who's be'n comin' here lvery night, not loike you or I'd come, but loike a masher 'd come to watch a slave ... a slave he was a-scare'd to have around. ...

"Why was a rich man loike Nick Brandon afraid av 'n owdl bum like Donny?" he demanded, shaking the letter almost accusingly close in the other's face. "Who was 't with Faxon when he died? Who was 't put Faxon's murder on McManus?" He gesticulated gravely toward the bed. "Him. ... Him, Nick Brandon's slave, who wance was a man, who went to hell with booze, who's truckled to Brandon evir since untl his pore owdl heart broke!"

"By George, Bird-Eye, it does look as though it might—" The doctor did not finish what he had started to say. Instead he remarked intently: "I'd give a good deal to know just what's in that letter!"

"O'll be takin' it myself to Ben Elliott this night. Aw, 'nd won't Misher Brandon squirm whin th' b'y starts in crackin' th' tough nut! 'Nd it's th' justice av the saints, no less, that Brandon brings Elliott to Abble's attention in a fight over owdl Donny."

They went down the stairway together after closing the door softly behind them, Bird-Eye muttering imprecations on the head of Nicholas Brandon.

And even as Doctor Sweet emerged from the dark mouth of the narrow stairway, the front door opened and Brandon himself entered the hotel, stamping new snow from his feet. Others were there, Plette, the drummer, the mill hands; two or three more. But Brandon's attention centered only on the physician.

"Well, Doctor?" he began, and it seemed as though his lungs were too filled with air to speak comfortably. "How's our patient this evening?"

Emory Sweet looked grimly into the other's face. "Old Don has taken the long trail," he said.

"Dead? ... Dead!" Brandon's voice on the query pinched up a bit. And on the repetition of the word it fell hollowly, with a finality which might have indicated sorrow, dismay or amazement.

But none of these three were reflected in his face. In his dark eyes was just one expression: Relief. Relief! Relief from suspense, from worry; relief from dark and haunting fear!

"You don't say! So the old fellow's gone!" His voice was even now, colorless, assured, as was normal. "Well, it was to be expected, I suppose. Were you with him, Doctor?"

"No; he died alone." Brandon drew in a breath as one will who has asked an important question and received a pleasing or reassuring answer.

"Talking couldn't have helped a man in his condition. He ... He didn't visit with anyone did he?"

A queer hesitancy crept into his manner on this as though he shrank from knowing the reply and Doctor Sweet turned to Bird-Eye Blaine inquiringly. But Bird-Eye did not look at the doctor. He was staring at Brandon and as that individual's gaze, following the doctor's, encountered his, the Irishman's lips twitched into a bitter smile.

"So you're after wonderin' whut pore owdl Donny said on his death-bed, are ye?" he demanded, and with that challenge stepped down from the stairway and crossed the floor slowly toward Brandon. "So ye're worryin', now, over whut he might 've said, eh?"

"Worryin'?" Brandon countered steadily. "You're either drunk or crazy, Blaine!"

"Mebbe both. But old Donny wa'n't ... He didn't do talkin'. Misher Brandon. Rid yer mind av that worry. Sure, 'nd he didn't talk to a soul av what was on his mind whin he knowed he lay dyin'. ... No talk! No talk fer somebody to repeat 'nd git twisted up 'nd lave out things that shuld 've be'n told. ... He wrote ut! That's whut he done, Brandon!"—voice mounting.

"He wrote ut! 'Nd he wrote ut fer one who'll make ut so hot that ye'll wish ye was sizzlin' in hell!"

With a sweeping gesture he thrust the envelope close to Brandon's face, so close that the man jerked his head backward sharply.

"He wrote ut!" Bird-Eye cried triumphantly. "'Nd may th' saints speed th' day whin Misher Elliott puts to use th' thing owdl Donny had to tell!"

Grimly he poised an instant before the larger man. Then he thrust the letter into his shirt pocket, buttoned his jacket tightly across it, slapped his chest decisively, almost boastfully, and without another word strode to the door and let himself out into the street.

It was late when Bird-Eye stepped into the darkness of the tiny office where Ben Elliott slept at Hoot Owl, struck a match, lifted it high above his head and spoke:

"Hi! Misher Elliott!" Ben roused himself and squinted at the flickering match. "Get up! Rouse up! I got big news for ye!"

They lighted a lantern, and by its glow Ben read the inscription on the letter which Don Stuart had left him as Bird-Eye hastily and excitedly explained.

"There's somethin' in ut Donny'd carried secret fer long!" he whispered hoarsely. "Ut's to do with Brandon, with fightin' fire with fire, or I'm th' worst guesser in th' woods!"

"Poor old beggar" Ben said gently. "Tough to die that way. And I never got in to see him again!"

Bird-Eye nodded. "Yes. Bwt mebbe he's done ye as great a favor as anny man evir done! The's somethin' in ut about Sam Faxon 'nd McManus. I'd bet me last shirt!"

Ben shrugged and turned the envelope over. Then he rose, yawned and slipped it into the drawer of the plain table that did service for an office desk.

"Ain't ye goin' to read ut, even?" Bird-Eye demanded in extreme amazement.

Elliott smiled. "Maybe it's only a sick man's dream, Bird-Eye. And again maybe it's an ... an ace in the hole. I've never yet looked at my hole card untl I'm beaten on the board. I'm not beaten yet, by a long walk."

Bird-Eye scratched his head. "No, not yet. 'Xd may th' saints kape ye evir as far from a lickin' as ye are now, Ben Elliott! But ... I'd loike to bet my noble tourin' car that owdl Donny wrote somethin' to do with th' killin' av Sam Faxon, I would!"

"Well, you can't get any takers here, Bird-Eye. Not tonight. Into the hay, now, and let me sleep."

And about the time Ben Elliott burrowed into his pillow and shed responsibility and perplexing problems, Nicholas Brandon turned in the pacing of his cold and otherwise deserted office and cocked his head alertly. It was not unusual for him to be late in his office. But those drawn shades and this quick, restless, hurried march to and fro, around and about, and that perspiration which beaded his forehead, and the sudden stoppings and listenings at the slightest sound ... Those were not usual for a man so thoroughly established in his community that he dictated every phase of its life and activity.

He stopped after a time and opening a drawer of his big desk took from it a bottle of whisky, shook himself and muttered softly. For a time he held it in his hands, debating. Then, with finality, muttered: "No ... A clear head now!" He shut the liquor in its place and resumed his pacing.

Nicholas Brandon may have ruled Tincup and the surrounding country with an iron absolutism. But tonight, alone in his office, remembering the words and looks and gestures of Bird-Eye Blaine, a lowly employee of an insolvent venture, seeing again the flash of that letter waved before his eyes, he was no commanding figure. He was a frightened man, a hunted man, battling to retain a hold on himself.

House Democrats Defy President—Lobbying for and Against Utilities Bill to Be Investigated— Senator Glass Bests Eccles.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

REVOLT in congress against alleged dictatorial attempts of the administration reached a climax when the house, by the decisive vote of 258 to 148, rejected the "death sentence" in the utility holding companies bill as passed by the senate and demanded by the President. The record vote came on a motion to substitute the house bill placing utility holding companies under regulation of the securities and exchange commission for the senate bill which prescribed the dissolution of the holding companies of more than first degree beginning in 1940.

The adoption of this motion killed the "death sentence." After substituting the house bill for the senate bill, the perfected measure was passed by a vote of 322 to 81.

Immediately after this action, the house voted unanimously for an investigation of alleged lobbying by both supporters and the foes of the utility measure. During the debate on the bill it was frequently charged that the capitol was swarming with utility company lobbyists, and then came two serious accusations against the other side. Representative John H. Hoeppel of California, Democrat, asserted an unnamed administration lobbyist had offered to get California's relief allotment increased if Hoeppel would vote for the bill as the President wanted it. This didn't greatly impress the house, but later Representative Ralph O. Brewster, Maine, Republican, charged that Thomas G. Corcoran, a young brain trustster who is co-author of the administration bill, had threatened cessation of construction of the $37,000,000 Passamaquoddy dam project in the congressman's district if Brewster should vote against the "death sentence."

Mr. Brewster said he did not believe the President was aware that such tactics were being used by his aids or would countenance them, and Rankin of Mississippi and Moran of Maine defended Mr. Roosevelt. But the President's contact man, Charles West, and Postmaster Farley's lobbyist, Emil Hurja, had been so active among the house members that the resentment of the lawmakers was aroused and they gladly directed that the lobbying charges be investigated.

WHAT would be the final fate of the utility measure was doubtful. Senator Wheeler of Montana, after a call at the White House, said he was confident a satisfactory bill would come out of the conference, and if one did not, the measure would be allowed to die. In either case the war on the holding companies is likely to be made a major issue of the next Presidential campaign, and administration leaders are predicting that the Democratic congressmen who dared to vote against the "death sentence" will be defeated at the polls. These "doomed" men number 169, as against 151 Democrats who stood by the President.

Republican leaders were jubilant, professing to see in the episode the beginning of a real uprising against the President and his New Dealers; many neutral observers looked upon it as only a battle between the two lobbies in which the victory went to the utilities lobby.

IN THE battle between Senator Carter Glass and Marriner S. Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board, the former has, at this writing, scored the most points. The astute Virginian extracted from the Eccles-Currie banking bill most of the radical provisions that would have led to government or public ownership of the federal reserve system, and, indeed, practically rewrote the measure. Then his subcommittee handed it on to the senate banking and currency committee, which promptly gave the bill its approval, without a record vote, and after making only two minor changes.

Governor Eccles and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau expected to be called before the committee and were prepared to tell why the bill would not suit the administration, but the committee didn't give them a chance.

As passed by the house, the banking bill would give autocratic powers over the banking system to a politically dominated federal reserve board; and the party in power would have the authority to force the twelve reserve banks to lend unlimited amounts to the national treasury. Under the bill as rewritten by Glass, reserve board members are to be appointed for 14-year terms and are to be discharged only for cause; chief officers of the reserve banks are to be chosen by their directors, subject to reserve board approval, for five-year periods, and the reserve banks need not buy additional government bonds unless they choose to do so.

INVESTIGATION of the administration of the Virgin Islands by a senate committee was certain to be lively. The very first witness heard, Charles H. Gibson, was threatened with jail by Secretary of the Interior Ickes for removing official documents from the files. Mr. Gibson, who was government attorney for the islands until Ickes ousted him, had testified rather vaguely against the regime of Gov. Paul M. Pearson.

Gibson testified that Governor Pearson had exceeded his authority under the law, was unpopular with a large section of the population of the islands, and was not frank in his administration. To support his testimony Gibson introduced several letters which were the documents to which Ickes alluded.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS announced that on July 29 a school would be opened by his department in Washington for the purpose of training state, county and city police in law enforcement theory and practice. A twelve weeks' course will be given to selected officers, the instruction being free and the equipment of the bureau of investigation being utilized.

REPUBLICAN senators were advised that former President Herbert Hoover will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Presidential race of 1936.

They were advised that Mr. Hoover would make the formal announcement some time this summer. He is staying out, it was said, because he intends to remain in private life and has planned his future career along that line. For his active criticisms of administration policies the reason was given that, although he does not "choose to run," he thought the party needed some sort of direction; now that his candidacy is shelved, it is expected that his political utterances will be clothed with considerably less authority.

The informers, however, assured the senators that Mr. Hoover would get behind the party's candidate and enter the campaign for him, and that he thinks, with unification growing, the Republican prospects are looking brighter day by day.

WORLD war veterans from both the Allied and the Central powers met officially in Paris and debated ways in which future wars may be averted. They denounced as enemies of their own countries those who would seek to foment a new war, and passed a resolution declaring: "The respect for treaties being the basis of international relations, this confidence can be durable only when international accords and the resulting obligations are mutually and sincerely respected."

The meeting was held under the auspices of Fida. The American delegates included S. P. Bailey, Winona, Minn.; Julian W. Thomas, Salt Lake City; Bernhard Ragner, McKeesport, Pa., and Harold L. Smith, Coatsville, Pa.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, whose New Deal program was not well received by the British government, has resumed active participation in politics, "reluctantly," but with expressed determination to "go on with it." The little Welsh veteran statesman addressed the national convention of the peace and reconstruction movement, and asserted the menace to peace and the economic confusion throughout the world are growing worse.

ANDRE CITROEN, famous for years as "the Henry Ford of France" because he built most of that country's low cost motor cars, is dead. And probably he was happy to pass on, for his vast enterprises had collapsed and his once huge fortune was gone.

BURR T. ANSELL, a young attorney whose father, Gen. S. T. Ansell, is suing Senator Huey Long for libel, was enraged when Long intruded on his party at a Washington hotel and took a swing at the Kingfish. One of the senator's companions seized Ansell's arm and the young man says Long then ran away.

CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, England's journeyman trouble shooter, electrified the British Isles by announcing that Great Britain had offered to give Haile Selassie, emperor of Abyssinia, a generous strip of British Somaliland to replace territory acquired by Italy, if the Italian government would promise not to wage war against the domain of Africa's "Conquering Lion of Judah."

Nothing doing said Premier Mussolini, who has turned a deaf ear to Britain's proposals of an Italo-Ethiopian compromise. He was reported as intending to go right ahead with his plan for a four-years' war to effect the complete pacification of the African empire. He insists that there must be more room in Africa for over-populated Italy to expand.

Mussolini has threatened to "re-member" the nations which have offered to furnish Abyssinia with arms, and they have withdrawn or modified their offers. The African emperor pleaded:

"If we are in the right and if civilized nations are unable to prevent this war, at least do not deny us the means of defending ourselves."

The British parliament was no better pleased with Eden's "offer" of land than was Italy, and the colonial secretary, son of former Prime Minister MacDonald, had a hard time explaining it.

Then Italy heard that the British government was considering a proposal to invite other nations to join in an economic blockade of Italy to check her aggression on Ethiopia. Rome was astonished by this report, but didn't seem in the least alarmed. Neither were the Italians frightened when they learned officially that Ethiopia had asked the United States to study means of persuading Italy to respect the Kellogg pact outlawing war. The emperor himself made the appeal to W. Perry George, charge d'affaires at Addis Ababa.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON assumed his new office of federal works relief administrator for New York city, "Robbie," his ever present secretary, fended off the reporters for a day, but let them in then, and to them the general wailed:

"I hate this thing! It isn't helping anybody, anywhere. When the source of money is cut off we'll be right back where we started. It's disheartening to sit here, knowing that when the funds are gone, the jobs will be gone."

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE proclaimed the establishment of an AAA adjustment program for the 1935 rye crop which will include benefit payments of amounts not yet disclosed. Representatives from 16 rye growing states met in Washington to discuss the program and outline plans for its operation.

Farmers from the principal wheat producing states met with AAA officials and gave their approval to a tentative flexible plan for the payment of benefits to wheat growers.

JAPAN'S beautiful inland sea was the scene of a terrible disaster that cost 104 lives. The steamer Midori Maru, crowded with holiday passengers, collided with a freighter in the foggy night and sank almost immediately. Rescue boats picked up 91 of the 166 passengers and 56 of the crew. All the victims were Japanese.

LOWEST DIRECT SCHOOL TAX HERE SINCE 1920

Concluded from first page.

The peak of $32,249.00 was reached in 1929. No decided change was made until 1933 when the amount was $20,000. Last year the amount was $16,491.32. In that year, the first Thatcher-Sias money was apportioned to school districts having a heavy cost per pupil share and brought $2,858.00 to the Cass City school. The coming year, the Thatcher-Saur money in prospect will be considerably more, the amount being $9,707.00 which will meet one-fifth of the estimated school expenditures. The Smith-Hughes appropriation to the local schools is not as heavy as several years ago.
