SCHOOL WILL OPEN HERE ON SEPT. 9

Five New Teachers Will Be Included on Staff of 19 Instructors.

FOURTEEN SIGN CONTRACTS TO RETURN

School will start on Monday, Sept. 9, in Cass City. Five new teachers will be included on the staff of 19 instructors for the coming year.

Arthur Holmberg, with a B. S. degree from Wayne University, will be the science teacher. He has taught in late years in schools in the Upper Peninsula.

Miss Marguerite Steensma, who graduated from Michigan State College with an A. B. degree, will teach music and art.

Miss Janet Davidson, who has a life certificate from the Michigan State Teachers' College, will fill the vacancy in the sixth grade position, caused by the recent resignation of Miss Marguerite Countryman.

Mrs. Ella Price, who graduated from the Western State Teachers' College with a life certificate, will be the instructor in the fourth grade, and Mrs. Mary Holcomb, who taught that grade for several years, has been transferred to the Junior high school.

But one position remains to be filled, that of English instructor. Miss Vernita Knight, who held this position last year and who signed a contract to return, has since been released by the board at her request.

Teachers, who served here last year and who signed contracts to return, include the following:

J. Ivan Niergarth, superintendent.

Willis Campbell, principal and agriculture.

R. L. Keppen, commercial.

Gertrude Hale, social science.

Alice Lammers, junior high and French.

Ruth Ann Erskine, Latin and mathematics.

Delmar C. Young, junior high and manual art.

Kenneth Kelly, social science and coach.

Goldie Wilson, fifth grade.

Mrs. Zora Day, kindergarten and first grade.

help the sale and distribution of Michigan grown products. Packers and shippers who use the labels are bonded and will be required to live up to all rules and regulations regarding grading of products.

Labels are now available in the Department of Agriculture. The products must be labeled as follows: Highest grade; Second highest grade; and Michigan U. S. No. 1 grade. Hundreds of applications have already been received, and within a short time labels will be mailed to all sections of the state. It is the plan of the department to extend the use of the label to practically every type of Michigan farm produce.

Extend Time to Train Dogs on Game

Michigan sportsmen with hunting dogs were given a "break" in the game bill passed by the 1935 legislature and now in effect.

The law was amended so as to allow hunters to train their dogs on game for 60 days previous to the opening of the respective hunting seasons on game. It also permits them to train their dogs throughout the winter and up to and including the 15th of March of the following year.

This means that sportsmen in the upper peninsula of Michigan can begin to train their dogs on rabbits, squirrels, ruffed grouse, prairie chicken and sharp-tailed grouse Aug. 2, while sportsmen in the lower peninsula must wait until Aug. 16 to train their dogs on the respective species of game mentioned.

Dogs may be trained only between the hours of sunrise and sunset, and the law forbids any hunter to possess firearms while training a dog.

Field dog trials may be held between the hours of sunrise and sunset at any time and under such rules and regulations as the director of the Department of Conservation may prescribe.

The amendments to the hunting laws give the sportsman a longer period in which to train his dog.

Under the old law the hunter could not begin until 30 days previous to the open hunting season on the respective species of game and field dog trials could not be held except for a 15-day period set by the director of conservation previous to the 15th day of March of each year.

Bad Axe Fair on August 13-16

Dates for the Bad Axe Fair and Night Carnival have been set this year for Aug. 13-16.

In the past few years, the Henry Leuder's musical revues have been popular features of the entertainment program and the free vaudeville acts accompanying them have been conceded as comparing with the best seen on any vaudeville stage. All are costly, and rightly so, because, as Mr. Buckley, the fair manager, says: "People today are not interested in ordinary variety acts. We get the best that money can buy and this year we have gone a step farther in this line."

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 13 and 14, "Oriental Fantasies," a 50-people revue of speed and class will be presented. On Thursday and Friday a complete change of program will be presented in "Fads and Follies of 1935," with an entirely new cast of 50 people and different free acts. There are 12 vaudeville acts accompanying each revue. Another improvement is the steel top covering the stage; a stage on a stage, which allows the show to go on in case of rain.

Tuesday is children's day, with free gate admission for the kiddies and tickets for all rides limited to 5 cents each. In addition there will be a real automobile given away, powered with a gasoline motor, equipped with balloon rubber tires and other equipment of a standard, full size car. The machine climbs hills and has a road speed of 20 miles an hour. Good brakes make it safe for any boy to drive.

Agricultural, livestock and poultry exhibits will be greater in number this year, according to the increased number of entries already registered.

A good race program has been arranged and a series of baseball games each day will please followers of this sport. As in past years, three new automobiles will be given to fair patrons, one on each of the last three days.

One of the greatest features of interest to both men and women is the crowning of the Bean Queen. This event drew more than capacity crowds last year. Up to July 22, there were more than 400 girls entered in the contest from Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola. The queen will be chosen Wednesday night and will be crowned Friday night. She will be accompanied by her court of honor.

THOUSANDS ENJOYED PROGRAM AT COLLEGE

Inspection of Experiments, Contests, and Talks for Rural Folks.

FARMS TO GROW RAW MATERIALS FOR FACTORIES

Five thousand farm folks gathered at Michigan State College for their annual inspection of the institution on Farmers Day, to see the contest between tractors built by farmers, and to hear Wheeler McMillen, editor of Country Home.

Fine weather prevented many farmers from bringing equipment in for the contests, as the day furnished too good an opportunity to work in the harvest fields. The winners for building rubber-tired farm wagons were Clarence Huhn, East Lansing, first; and Alfred Huhn, Eagle, second. The men are brothers.

The homemade tractors drew a great deal of attention and were a remarkable exhibition of the ingenuity of farmers in overcoming difficulties. Tractor, truck, and auto parts were assembled into workable units. The winners were G. D. Bothwell, Eaton Rapids, first; W. R. Quantrell, Charlotte, second; James W. Rowley, Comstock Park, third; Charles A. Bury, Flint, fourth; and Edward T. Miller, Lansing, fifth.

A bronze plaque commemorating the pioneer work of Prof. L. R. Taft on the control of insects and of plant diseases with fungicides was unveiled. Prof. Taft, still actively engaged in the management of his orchards, spoke briefly of this work done nearly 50 years ago.

Wheeler McMillen gave a hopeful view of the possibility of a future alliance of industry and agriculture in which crops raised by farmers would be used much more extensively than now in manufactured articles. Mr. McMillen stated that this use of farm goods is not new but such uses can be expanded tremendously through research work.

He said, "Let's grow on the farms of the United States every raw material we can that our factories require. Let's grow on these farms every single product needed by American people that our soils will produce."

"The dollars we send abroad are helpful to foreign countries. The dollars we keep at home will circulate many times, creating purchasing power on the farms, employment for labor, and business for everybody. Let's insist that science be permitted to exert her extraordinary powers to release agriculture for the full employment of all energies, human and natural, that are latent upon the land."

"We then shall have prosperity for agriculture; give us prosperity for the millions who live on the soil, and no one needs to worry about prosperity for all the people of our country."

Golden Pickle Co. Opens Station Here

The Golden Pickle Company has opened a receiving station in the garage building at the rear of the Bentley blacksmith shop in Cass City, under the management of Leonard Striffler. Pickles will be weighed in here and trucked to the company's plant at Bay City.

This company has 50 acres under contract in the Cass City community and hopes to increase the acreage next year.

Muck Plots Contain Answers to Puzzles

Sulphur, salt, and manganese are not usually considered to be needed to grow farm crops but owners of Michigan muck soils are invited to inspect the College muck plots either Tuesday, Aug. 6, or Wednesday, Aug. 7, to see the effect of these and other chemicals upon onions, mint, and general crops.

The program, of interest to muck farmers, will be almost identical each day and is repeated to avoid having so large a crowd one day that it is difficult to closely inspect the plots. The college has 14 acres of muck which varies in reaction from slightly acid to alkaline. This variation makes it possible to do experimental work of value to owners of all types of muck.

The first group of visitors will be taken through the College plots at 9:00 a. m. each day. The tours will be repeated at 10:30 and at 1:30. Dr. P. M. Harmer, in charge of the muck soils work, will talk to the assembled groups each day following the tours. Other members of the College staff will also speak.

Several county agricultural agents are planning tours for farmers in their counties to attend these meetings. Farmers who plan to attend should find if their agent is going to conduct one of these tours.

The College muck plots are said to contain the most complete line of experimental work in the United States. They are located on Mt. Hope Avenue one mile south of the college buildings.

Plan Unifying R. R. Facilities

The Detroit & Huron branch of the Grand Trunk R. R., from Cass City to Bad Axe, is one of the railroad units being studied by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation in regard to the advantages of unifying railroad facilities in six cities of Michigan. This branch runs six freight trains a week.

The surveys, part of 5,019 similar studies throughout the country are designed to show how savings may be made by reducing operating costs of the railroads and by increasing efficiency.

The other routes studied in Michigan include: Car ferries on Lake Michigan, Detroit, Lansing, Toledo, Detroit, and Pittsburgh-Erie, Buffalo-Pittsburgh-Cleveland-Detroit.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Cass City is fairly well taken care of by railroad freight service with 13 trains each week in these days of infrequent trains in the Thumb district.

Train No. 49, passenger, freight and express, arrives here from Pontiac at noon each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, on its way to Caseville, the northern terminus of the P. O. & N. R. R. Train No. 52, passenger, freight and express, is scheduled to arrive at Cass City at 8:30 a. m., from Caseville on its run to Pontiac, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

On the Detroit & Huron branch, freight trains run as follows: Pontiac to Bad Axe, through Cass City, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and from Bad Axe to Pontiac on Wednesday and Friday. Saturday afternoon this train leaves Bad Axe for Caseville by way of Cass City. Monday morning it leaves Caseville on a run to Pontiac, going to Bad Axe on the return trip Tuesday.

90 Days for Hit and Run Driver

When Albert Czup, 19, of Akron township failed to stop and ascertain whether damages or injuries had been inflicted when his automobile collided with that of Peter David, on the highway 1/2 mile west and 2 1/2 miles north of Akron, he was placed under arrest by Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Erb on Monday, charged with being a hit and run driver. When he was arraigned before Justice St. Mary Tuesday, it was learned that Czup was without a driver's license. Czup pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident without investigation and Justice St. Mary sentenced him to a 90-day jail term and to pay costs of $37.50.

Peter David was driving south and Czup was going north when the accident occurred. The steering mechanism was so damaged on the David car that it fortunately sped the automobile away from a dredge cut to a shallow ditch on the opposite side of the highway. With Mr. David were his wife and four other passengers. None were injured.

Tuscola county officers are endeavoring to discourage hit and run driving which accounts for both the jail sentence and the order for the $37.50 cash payment in the Czup case.

GAGETOWN-UNIONVILLE ROAD TO BE IMPROVED

$100,000 to Be Expended to Better 11-Mile Stretch in Tuscola Co.

PART OF WORK RELIEF PROGRAM IN TEN COUNTIES

The improvement of the county road from Unionville to Gageton, a stretch of 11 miles, is included in the work relief program in 10 Lower Peninsula counties in which the state highway department has announced an expenditure of $1,589,200. The road will have an oil aggregate surfacing. This surfacing will probably be similar to that of the highway running north of Vassar to M-81, road men say, which is of tar construction sealed with asphalt. The road from Gageton to Unionville which is quite narrow in places will be widened to 20 feet. The project cost is estimated at $100,000.

The projects in the 10 counties will be financed from the highway work relief money granted Michigan from the federal government, embraced in what is known as the second and third work progress divisions of the state. The counties effected are: Bay, Genesee, Huron, Sanilac, St. Clair, Tuscola, Saginaw, Clare, Isabella and Gratiot. The projects are designed to furnish employment to a total of 1,621 men for 16 months. Among the projects are:

Bay—M-25, in Bay City, North Henry street, south from US-23, asphalt on concrete, 1.2 miles, $50,000.

Huron—US-25, Harbor Beach south, grading five miles, $100,000. Saginaw—M-46, grade separation at Pere Marquette railroad, $181,000.

Clare—M-115, Farwell northwest, grading seven miles, $150,000; US-10, grading and draining three miles to eliminate two railroad crossings, $45,000.

Isabella—M-20, Mt. Pleasant west, grading six miles, $100,000; US-27, grade separation at Ann Arbor railroad south of Mt. Pleasant, $125,000.

Sewage Collection and Treatment

A letter addressed to the president and board of trustees of Cass City under date of July 22, 1935, on the subject of sewage collection and treatment, has been received from Milton P. Adams, executive secretary and engineer of the Michigan Stream Control Commission, and reads as follows:

"This commission, having today again considered the injury to public and private rights caused by sewage pollution from your municipality, as well as present opportunities for correction, directs your attention to the need of the sewage disposal improvement indicated above.

"Notice is further given, that had it not been for the depression and its effects, satisfactory sewage treatment should have been in effect prior to this date. As conditions improve, the above project will continue to advance to a stage of first importance.

"Your active cooperation in working either with or independently of PWA or state work program authorities is expected in terminating any further unwarranted delay in meeting the obligation created by your wastes in the water resources of this state.

"By direction of The Michigan Stream Control Commission, Milton P. Adams, executive secretary and engineer."

CENTENNIAL PAGEANT AT TUSCOLA CO. FAIR

Farmers' Organizations and Young People Will Participate.

COUNTY-WIDE ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY FOR OCCASION

"If the fairs of this country are to continue and become one of the permanent institutions of country life, they must render a worthwhile service to the people of the community in which they are located," reads a message from Governor Fitzgerald to Secretary C. F. Montey of the Tuscola County Fair. A fair, according to the governor's idea, "must portray all that is good and progressive in our social and economic life, and at the same time maintain a balanced proportion of recreational and educational exhibits, and major in promoting that activity which is most important to the community it serves."

The governor's statement is exactly the aim of the officials of the Tuscola County Fair, which will be the attraction August 19 to 23. Close attention to details has been given so that the fair at Caro will "portray all that is good and progressive," and major in promoting that activity which is most important in Tuscola county. The central theme for the 54th annual fair will be as in the past, the exhibits of this great agricultural community.

Every one of the 1,000 printed booklets containing the list of premiums to be paid has been distributed, and each book had an entry blank. In addition, separate entry blanks were printed and there has been a great demand for them. Inquiries to fair officials and E. L. Benton, county fair agent, who is general superintendent of all agricultural exhibits, indicate a greater interest on the part of exhibitors than for many years in the past. Thousands of dollars have been hung up for prizes in the various departments, and the liberal allowance made by the state for these premiums is bound to add an inducement to those who have exceptionally fine live stock and grains, to show their products at the Tuscola County Fair.

Indication that more attention is to be given the best "product" of Tuscola county, is shown with the announcement that not only will the big Centennial pageant for Friday evening be portrayed by young people of the county, but a new department for "better babies" has been created. This department is listed as "department G" in the premium book, and is in charge of Mrs. Lillian S. Ricker of Cass City. A total of $70 in prize money has been offered by the fair manager.

All entries must be made by Monday, August 12, and any baby in the county may be entered without an entry fee, the only requirement being that the parents must buy a family, or membership ticket. First, second and third prizes of $6, $4.50 and $2.00 respectively, are offered in classes as follows: Boys six months and under 12 months, boys 12 months and under 18 months, girls six months and under 12 months, and girls 12 months and under 18 months. CASS CITY CHRONICLE. Published Weekly.

The Tri-County Chronicle and Cass City Enterprise consolidated April 20, 1906.

Subscription Price in Advance. In Tuscola, Huron or Sanilac counties, $1.00 a year in advance. In other parts of Michigan, $1.50 a year. In United States (outside of Michigan), $2.00 a year.

Entered as second class matter April 27, 1906, at the post office at Cass City, Michigan, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879. H. F. Lenzner, Publisher.

INTERESTING TRIAL.

Those interested in the relationship that exists between lawyer and client will take deeper interest in the trial of two lawyers at Oklahoma City. They are charged with accepting and even directing the disposal of the Urschel kidnaping ransom.

The lawyer at the bar is a part of our system. When he manufactures evidence, misstates his case or directs his client to violation of law or to further violation of law, he has gone further than the ethics of his profession or our own laws will permit.

At times one feels that there should be some way to brush aside court procedure as we have it, to cut short delays granted astute criminal lawyers, to reduce concessions, and thereby go by a more direct route to a determination of guilt.

THE WORLD'S HONORS.

The world has always honored highly the people who do things the world values. To carry out this thought, the schools publish lists of honor students. Such recognition is useful, since these students are frequently retiring young folks, who are scarcely appreciated outside their own neighborhoods.

The colleges distribute honors in the form of learned degrees. The statesman who has solved national problems, is made a Doctor of Laws. The master of social science is made a Doctor of Philosophy.

Meanwhile the pitcher who can twist a baseball so the baffled batter can't locate it with his swishing stick, may be better known in his home city than the constructive statesman or the patient man of research.

The laborious scholar sits alone in his silent study, and communes with his books. But the football player who can worm his way amid the tackling opponents is carried off the field on the shoulders of his comrades, while the stadiums echo with the thunder of the rooters.

The highest honors ought to go to the people who teach us to think, because it is through thought that the world escapes its troubles.

Responsibility is put on the shoulders of those who can bear it.

What an adventure life is, if you keep yourself alert and alive. Many a man feels like kicking himself who wouldn't let anyone else do it.

INVESTIGATING OLD AGE PENSION REQUESTS

Concluded from first page. welfare agent; H. Walter Cooper, judge of probate; and W. J. Kirk, chairman of the superintendents of the poor of Tuscola county.

The law recently passed by the legislature and signed by Governor Fitzgerald to give relief to the aged residents of Michigan who are in need, is somewhat different from the Old Age Pension law passed two years ago.

This act did not become effective until July 1, 1935, after which date, new assistance certificates will be issued as promptly as possible to those who qualify. Many persons, misunderstanding the intention of the previous Old Age Pension Law, have filed applications although they are not entitled to relief. All applications must be investigated, which of course, takes time, and therefore, all who are eligible cannot expect to receive aid immediately. Those who have filed applications under the previous law need not re-apply unless requested to do so by the Old Age Assistance Bureau. Applicants are requested not to write regarding their applications, as the handling of this additional correspondence merely slows up the process of issuing any assistance grants.

Those eligible for assistance under the act must meet with the following requirements:

1. Must have attained the age of seventy years or upward; (after January first, 1940, this age limit will be reduced to sixty-five years).
2. Must be a citizen of the United States.
3. Must be a resident of the State of Michigan for ten years immediately preceding date of application.

In addition to these qualifications, the applicant must, above all, be in need and have no child, or other person responsible under the laws of the state who is able to support him.

Any person having an income of $30 per month, or real estate, which together with that of husband or wife is valued at $3,500, or whose personal property is valued at $1,000 or more, is ineligible for assistance under this act.

The maximum amount which can be allowed is $30 per month. This does not mean that a person who is eligible is entitled to, or will, receive $30 per month, as the amount of relief which is given will depend upon the individual and the conditions found in each case.

Arrangements will be made to assist applicants in making out the necessary application blank, and it is not necessary that they employ an attorney or any other person to assist them in receiving this aid.

The director of the State Welfare Department is in charge of the administration of this law; applications for assistance should be filed with the County Welfare Agent of the county in which the applicant lives. At the present time approximately 5,000 people are receiving assistance under the pension law in the state. It is estimated that 20,000 are eligible to receive aid under the new Old Age Assistance Law.

Women's Voices Annoying

Women's voices, not because of their loudness but because of their high pitch, are much more annoying than the baritone and bass voices heard at men's colleges. Yet women complain more about noises than men. This is due to the fact that women's senses are slightly keener than men's. This greater acuity of women's senses is a problem for the merchant and manufacturer. The smooth feel of a piece of dress goods, the machine which is quieter, the paint which smells better and the sales person with the pleasant voice, get the most sales from women.—New York Herald Tribune.

TREES TELL STORY OF PUEBLO CULTURE

Developed in 150 Years, According to Scientists.

Washington.—The great Pueblo culture of the Southwest—the highest development of aboriginal civilization north of Mexico at the time of the discovery of the New World—rose to the apex of its greatness in not more than 150 years.

Such is the story told by tree-ring chronology, according to Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr., of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution. In a report on the present status of southwestern archeology prepared for the American Anthropological association.

In the past it has generally been supposed that this remarkable and highly characteristic Indian culture was the product of a slow growth which must have extended over many centuries. The positive dating made possible by the tree rings of timbers used in the construction of the pueblos shows, quite to the contrary, that the Pueblo I period, during which this civilization attained its characteristic form, extended only from about 800 to 900 A. D. The Pueblo II period, when the progress continued at a somewhat accelerated rate, lasted only from about 875 to 950 A. D., allowing 25 years for overlapping.

Third Period Long. Then came the Pueblo III period when, apparently, the people settled down to enjoy what they had achieved and this lasted, with various periods of depression and prosperity, almost up to the time of the arrival of the Spanish explorers. During the long Pueblo III era there was considerable refinement in the patterns painted on pottery, and other artifacts were perfected, but there was not much original development. Although larger structures were erected, the basic house type did not change.

In a sense, Doctor Roberts points out, this culture, whose growth was so rapid, was as remarkable as that of the Aztecs in Mexico or that of the Mayas in Yucatan, although it left no such architectural monuments to arouse the wonder of the future. Both of the southern civilizations were religious aristocracies. The great buildings were temples or religious monuments in Yucatan. In Mexico there were elaborate dwellings for the nobility. But in both cases the common man lived in a thatched hut, and probably lived miserably.

For "Common Man." But the Pueblo culture developed for the benefit of the "common man." The great aboriginal apartment houses were erected as homes, not palaces or temples. Each included places of worship, but they were secondary to the main object of the structure. Even compared with the European peasant of his day, the Pueblo Indian had a comfortable dwelling place. The whole trend of this culture was apparently to better the lot of the ordinary family. Consequently, its rapid rise, Doctor Roberts points out, is the more remarkable since it was not the result of some great emotional wave.

Refuse From Sugar Cane to Produce Cellulose

Washington.—Cellulose wrappers now can be made from bagasse, refuse from sugar cane mills, according to D. F. J. Lynch, chemist in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Lynch has gone to Hawaii where he will supervise the manufacture of alpha cellulose by a process which he perfected on a laboratory scale there last summer.

"Alpha cellulose," Lynch said, "is the principal ingredient in rayon and transparent cellulose sheeting now used for wrappers." "Bagasse offers interesting possibilities for the production of alpha cellulose," he added, "because there is no problem of collecting this raw material at the factory. It comes from the mill as a by-product which in the past has been used mainly as fuel."

11-Year-Old Boy Learns to Talk All Over Again

Port Clinton, Ohio.—Jack Fleckner, eleven-year-old youth of Oak Harbor, near here, has been obliged to learn to talk all over again.

The boy carried six pieces of a bullet in the left lobe of his brain as the result of an accidental shooting by his brother Howard, thirteen, while at play with what they believed was an unloaded gun.

The doctors who are aiding him in his fight to regain his powers of thought and reason are of the opinion that with special tutoring he will be able to resume his school work in the sixth grade within another year's time. A special tutor has been employed.

Ask Potato Growers To Visit Lake City

Michigan potato growers who are debating the comparative merits of Petoskeys, Katahdins, Chipewas, and Goldens should plan to attend the potato field day at Lake City, Thursday, Sept. 12, where fields of all varieties are being grown by the crops department of Michigan State College.

In addition to testing the varieties named and others which are not mentioned, there is a plot on the farm where thousands of potato seedlings are being tested in an attempt to find better potato varieties than those grown now. Some of the seedling varieties are very promising.

Fertilizer tests are also laid out in the potato fields to find what rates of application and what methods of applying are the best for potatoes. Many growers place fertilizers so close to the seed pieces that they get a poor stand of potatoes. The trials at the College Lake City farm show where the fertilizer should be placed.

The time of planting, depth of planting, and rate of planting are other experiments which will be ready for inspection on Sept. 12. Time of planting is especially important in Michigan where the marketing of unripe stock has led to dissatisfaction on some markets. Bushel samples of all lots of seed entered for certification are planted at Lake City.

A machinery exhibit and a demonstration of the work done by part of the equipment will be part of the day's program. Farmers who are handy with a hand planter or with a hoe or fork are asked to enter a planting and digging contest during the day. Contestants should bring their own tools.

"Well, it seems to be slipping back to a man's world," says Ironic Irene, "the date that used to ring the doorbell with candy and flowers now sits out in a filver at the curb and toots the horn."

Vitamin E

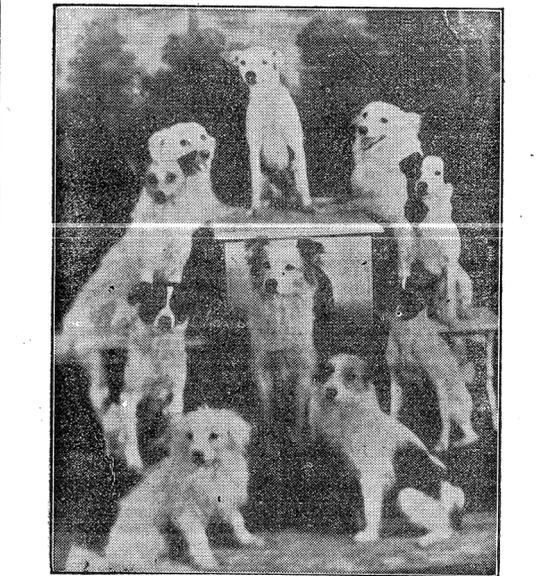

This fat-soluble anti-sterility vitamin is said to exist, though never in high concentration, in a great variety of animal tissues. It is highly concentrated in the organs of certain plants, especially in green leaves and seeds. The richest known sources are lettuce leaves and wheat embryo. Egg yolk and milk contain it, as also do most vegetable and seed oils, though not highly concentrated.—Detroit News.

SPRING LAMB IS REAL DELICACY

Various Ways of Cooking, Suggested by Expert.

By EDITH M. BARBER

SPRING lamb has long been considered a delicacy. Our first written records mention the roasting of young lambs for the feasts mentioned in the Bible and the Homeric tales. The word "spring," however, has become an adjective which denotes tender, rather than seasonable, meat and sometimes is applied when lambs are approaching the mutton stage.

You may distinguish lamb from mutton by the pinkish tinge and creamy fat. Mutton has a darker color and the outer skin is slightly yellow and has a dry appearance. Some one asked me the other day why we could not get mutton in this country as good a quality as in England. The reason is that in this country most of the mutton comes from old sheep. In England and Australia mutton really comes from a fat, young animal. In the winter time you sometimes see on a restaurant menu or in the butcher shop the sign "hot house lamb." This comes from young lambs which are especially fed during the winter time.

While many housewives feel that small legs are better than the large legs, there really is no difference in the quality of the small or large legs of lamb if it is young.

The leg and the ribs are used for roasting, as is also the shoulder, which, although less expensive, has a very fine flavor. The loin, the ribs and the shoulder are used for chops. Of these the loin is particularly tender, but many of us prefer the rib chops with their long bones. For special occasions they are sometimes "Frenched," that is, trimmed to improve their appearance at the expense of that crisp, brown meat, which I think has the best flavor. Sometimes double chops are cut for hearty meals.

Lamb, like beef, needs a hot fire as a start for its cooking. After the meat is well browned the temperature may be lowered. Personally I like lamb well cooked throughout.

One of the most expensive roasts and one of the most attractive for a company dinner is a crown roast of lamb. One of the least expensive is a stuffed shoulder. Another attractive lamb dish is a stew with vegetables and dumplings. Left-over lamb is delicious sliced and served with chili sauce.

Lamb Chops With Mushrooms. Broil "Frenched" lamb chops. In the meantime chop one can of mushrooms, drained; mix to a paste with a very little thick cream sauce. Spread the chops with this mixture, dip in beaten egg, then crumbs and fry in deep fat 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until golden brown.

Curried Lamb. 3 tablespoons butter 4 tablespoons flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 2 cups meat stock or 2 bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups boiling water 1 teaspoon curry powder Pepper 2 cups diced cooked lamb Melt the butter, add the flour and salt and brown. Add the meat stock slowly and stir until thickened. Cook one minute. Add curry powder and pepper and more salt if necessary. Add the meat, reheat and serve in the center of a ring of boiled rice.

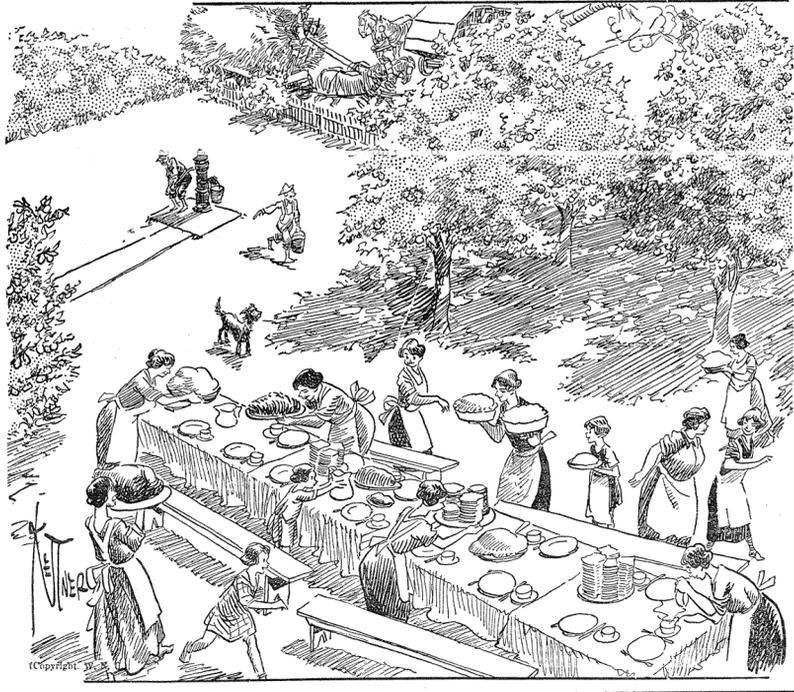

Mint Sauce. 2 tablespoons sugar 1/2 cup vinegar 1/4 cup finely chopped mint leaves Dissolve sugar in vinegar. Pour over mint and let stand half an hour in warm place. If vinegar is very strong, dilute with water.

Mutton Stew With Dumplings. 1 1/2 pounds neck or breast of mutton 1 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper 2 tablespoons flour 3 tablespoons bacon drippings 2 onions Meat stock or water 1 turnip 2 carrots 1 stalk celery Sprig of parsley 2 or 3 medium-sized potatoes Cut the meat into half-inch cubes. Salt and pepper them, and dredge with flour. Melt the bacon drippings in a heavy frying pan and brown the meat, add the sliced onions and let them brown slightly. Add enough stock to cover the meat. Add the turnip and carrots which have been cubed, the celery cut in small pieces and a sprig of parsley. Cover and let simmer for two hours. Add the cubed potatoes and cook more rapidly until the potatoes are done. Thicken the liquid with flour stirred to a paste with water and serve with dumplings.

Dumplings. 1 cup flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 2 teaspoons baking powder 3/4 to 1/2 cup milk 1 teaspoon fat drippings Sift the dry ingredients, cut in fat, and add enough milk to give a smooth dough. Drop by spoonfuls over the top of the stew. Cover the dish and allow the dumplings to steam about 12 to 15 minutes.

The Thresher's Harvest

donkey can get, and the efforts of the players to get the animals to go where the players want them to go, and do all the things necessary in a baseball game, furnish thrills and laughter. This feature, fair officials believe, is bound to add a great deal of fun for the thousands of patrons who will take in the Tuscola County Fair.

In keeping with the general observation of 100 years of progress in Michigan in this, the "centennial year," plans are near completion for a pageant and plays as outstanding entertainment features at the Tuscola County Fair August 19 to 23. They will be enacted by people of Tuscola county. Members of farmers' organizations of the county are assuming the responsibility for four of the five floats which will depict the early and modern history of county. Young people from all parts of the county will appear in dances of the various periods on a stage and in the plays, while others are members of a 50-piece orchestra of the best players in Tuscola county. M. D. Orr, Caro, is the leader of the orchestra, and Miss Leone Lee of Cass City is the director of all the dances.

On Friday evening of the fair, the pageant portraying the history of Tuscola county will be presented. The first float will depict the era just preceding the first settlement in the county, at Tuscola village, in the years from 1819 to 1835. The scene will show General Lewis Cass signing the Treaty of Saginaw with the Indians, by which the lands of Tuscola county were opened to settlers. This will be a reproduction of the scene portrayed in the large window in the Tuscola county court house and members of the Ellington-Almer Farmers' club will represent General Cass, his aides and the Indian chiefs. On the stage, an orchestra will provide music and young people will present dances of that period.

The second float will show the period of 1835 to 1860, having the first settler building his log cabin with his wife planting seed for the first crop between the stumps in the clearing. The Pomona Grange is arranging to produce this scene of early history. On the stage, dances of the period, including the "heel and toe" polka and schottish will be presented.

Officials of the Tuscola County Fair want it understood that purchasers of single admission tickets will be privileged to pass the gate at will on the day that the ticket is issued. The purchaser of the single admission ticket will retain his ticket, as he must show the ticket, as well as the pass out check on his return to the gate.

All surviving veterans of the Civil War, who are able to do so, will ride on the third float to represent the period from 1860 to 1870, with a war camp scene. Members of the Novesta Farmers' club are in charge of this float. On the stage, a chorus will sing the old war songs and present the Virginia reel as a dance number.

The Hickory Farmers' club will prepare a float representing the lumbering days from 1870 to 1890. Lumberjacks will ride on the float and human figures will take the parts of the sawyer, cruiser and chopper. The dances of the period, the quadrille, "Sally Waters," and ripple will be presented on the stage.

The American Legion is responsible for the next float for the World War period and it will carry soldiers, sailors, marines and Red Cross nurses. On the stage, modern dances will be shown.

A Spanish fiesta will be the program which the young people will present Wednesday evening of the fair. Spanish dances will be presented and the music will be played by the Tuscola County orchestra. The dances will be given in costume on the big performing platform before the grandstand. Thursday evening, the young people will present a New York roof garden, with modern dances, including the popular old waltz, "Stewalks of New York."

Mr. Orr announces the personnel of the county-wide orchestra to include the following members: Piano, Geo. Dillman, Cass City; violins, Wm. Presser, Jas. Rawlings, Milton Satchey, Saginaw; T. H. YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND

School Promotions It is becoming increasingly more difficult to justify the annual promotion scheme used by most school systems. Educators recognize the faults and they're looking around for a substitute.

Parents can help at home by not placing so much emphasis upon the importance of promotion. Making it appear to be a "life and death" matter is dangerous. It becomes the horrible monster of the nightmare. Something terrible to be feared. No child can be happy or do good work with such a mental hazard. He comes to think of promotion as a means of escaping a parent's wrath or some dreadful mark of inferiority for life.

After all, the annual promotion is just another tradition, merely a custom inherited from the past. We shouldn't let it mean so much if we would be fair to the child. June may close the school year, but let it go at that. It's the beginning of the summer vacation. In September go on as though there had been no break. Education never stops, whether school is open or closed. Let each child go as fast as he can. Help him to do his best. But let's stop making him feel that promotion is the ONE great objective of education and life.

Opera Under the Stars at Navin Field in Detroit

Detroit—"The Vagabond King," most stirring of operettas, will come to life in a blaze of glory and splendor on the mammoth stage at Navin Field. Opera Under the Stars has selected this ever popular musical success as its next week attraction to open on Monday, Aug. 5. The current production of "The Countess Maritza" will have its last performance on this coming Sunday evening.

The leading role in "The Vagabond King," that of Francois Villon, will be played by one of the country's outstanding tenors, Paul Keast. Mr. Keast took Dennis King's place in the original company and has played this famous role over one thousand times. In fact the opening performance will be the 1006th time he sung the famous Friml songs from behind the footlights.

"The Vagabond King" as most know, is based on the story "If I Were King" by Justin McCarthy. Rudolph Friml, composer of "Rose Marie" and many other successes, wrote some of his greatest melodies for this production. Among the favorite songs are "Song of the Vagabonds," "Only a Rose," "Some Day," "Love for Sale" and "Tomorrow."

This show will be staged on a more elaborate scale than it has ever been presented before. The large outdoor stage will give ample opportunity to create beautiful settings of spectacular proportions. There will be a greatly augmented chorus singing the stirring songs, and a large and brilliant cast will all combine to make this production of the "Vagabond King" the greatest in its years of popularity.

The story is of Villon who is an educated and gay devil-may-care leader of a band of thieves in the days of Louis IV. He falls in love with Lady Katherine, a beautiful attendant at the King's court. As a result, he finds himself in a rather embarrassing position. Circumstances evolve and he finally finds himself rewarded with the kingship for a day, so much for the story which is in itself a most intriguing and thrilling romance.

Paul Keast will be supported by such favorite stars as Gladys Baxter, Leonard Ceeley, Hope Emerson, Bartlett Simmons and Barnett Parker.

The Opera Under the Stars performances are given nightly, rain or shine, at 8:30 at Navin Field, all of the seats are reserved. The extremely low admission prices enable all to have an opportunity to see the great musical productions which are being presented this summer. There are over fifteen hundred seats as low as twenty-five cents.—Adv.

CHAPTER VI

THE new piston head for the locomotive arrived and Elliott was at the station when the train bearing it pulled in. More, he was close beside the express car when it halted and carried the part himself into his waiting sleigh.

The veneer logs were ready to come out to the siding. Standard cars had been set off at Hoot Owl that day. Tomorrow, bright and early, they would start loading and by night his contract with Blackmore would be filled. He would receive a large check, a substantial part of it clear profit, in return.

His men were growing restless under the driving; whispers in camp had it that the job was broke beyond repair and he knew that to pass a pay day would send his crew scattering, a handicap which he could never overcome in time. But with the men held on the job and the mill ready to saw in another week he would be ready to give the Hoot Owl a fresh start, a new hold on hope.

After reaching camp he plunged into his blankets for a night's rest. And about the time he burrowed into the pillow Nicholas Brandon sat in his office talking to a pale, slender young man whose blue eyes smiled genially. Genially, yes, but in that quality was a flaw, one might have observed on close scrutiny. Familiarity with Limpy Holbrook might not breed contempt, but surely, in an alert man, it would stir an awareness for the need of caution soon or later.

"All right. Don't start until dark. And do just as I've told you; don't forget to give yourself plenty of time. You can't travel fast."

"I get you, Mr. Brandon."

"Have you . . . That is, has he ever seen you?"

"He came into the pool room and I sold him tobacco the other day. We visited a minute."

"Friendly?"

"Nothing but! The open smile had the cast of a leer as Holbrook made reply.

"The pool room's a good place for you to be, Limpy. Great center for news. Well . . . You keep on reporting everything that's said there. . . . Good night."

Holbrook limped out and Brandon, alone, puffed for a time on his cigar. Next, he opened a lower drawer and drew out a bottle of whisky. Only one drink remained in it. He frowned. A year ago he had procured that liquor; for nearly twelve months it had been scarcely touched. But since the night that old Don Stuart died its contents had been drawn upon frequently. His hands shook a bit as he lifted the bottle to his lips, now, but after drinking new strength began to surge through his body and he smiled. He looked at his watch after a time and then out into the street. After a time he rose and walked to the wall telephone.

"Give me Miss Coburn's house, will you?" he asked the operator. "Hello! Miss Co— Ah, Dawn! It's Uncle Nick talking. Want to go to the movie tonight?"

She seemed to hesitate and he tilted his head sharply, lips parted. Then her voice came.

"It's nice of you to think of me, Mr. Brandon. But I don't think I care to go with you tonight."

"Oh; sorry," he said genially enough but his brows gathered. "Another time, then."

"Perhaps."

Her receiver clicked up and he turned away from the instrument scowling thoughtfully.

"Mister Brandon, eh?" he said softly. "And . . . No excuse. . . . Well!"

The last word was spoken with a snap, as though a chapter was closed.

He paced the floor slowly. He was brooding, planning, and by the look on his face it was evident that he planned good for no man . . . except, possibly Nicholas Brandon.

Perhaps he was thinking of the matter that was to confront Ben Elliott within twenty-four hours.

That young man was in high feather as the crew came in to supper. His locomotive had shunted the standard cars up from Hoot Owl before daylight and the veneer logs scattered along the steel had commenced going up at once.

Able had come driving out from town in mid-afternoon, Dawn beside him, and with an added thrill because of her presence Ben directed the loading of the last car, conscious that the girl's eyes were often on him with an expression which belied her apparent indifference when he tried to engage her in conversation.

It was dark when the jammer man swung the last log into place and toggles were made fast. Able and Dawn rode with Ben in the locomotive as they trundled down the track to camp.

"You boys have had a long day," Ben said to the engineer and fireman. "It won't get any darker. You eat your suppers here and we'll run 'em in this evening."

He turned to Able.

"Our contract calls for delivery in time to meet the local. She's been coming through a little before eight in the morning. Want to take no chance of having this stuff held up now. That would be a tough break!"

The engine crew had been fussing with a suspected draw bar and did not enter the cook shanty until most of the others had left. Soon afterward the door opened again and Blackmore came in.

"How near are you ready to deliver?" he asked Elliott with a worried frown.

"As soon as the boys, there, stoke their own boilers!" Ben replied lightly.

"Sure you can make it?"

"As sure as a man can be."

"I sure hope so, Ben. Guess you know by now that I'm pulling for you in this scrap. But I've got to hold you to your contract. To the hour and letter of it. Your friend Brandon has wired into the house, it seems, offering any quantity of veneer stuff up to seventy thousand at ten dollars less than your contract calls for. Here's a wire"—shaking a telegram—"ordering me to hold you to your agreement and if you're late or short on scale to have Brandon load tomorrow. It's out of my hands, you see."

Ben's mouth tightened.

"Well, it happens, we've ducked from under our genial friend Brandon again. Yeah, We'll whip-saw Mr. Nick Brandon!"

Blackmore grinned and unbuttoned his coat. He chuckled. He was glad. He was on Ben's side for certain, and as he lit his pipe and commenced to talk, with an easing in his manner, a triumphant sort of peace descended on the shanty.

But even as they visited, a slender figure, moving through the darkness with a slight limp, followed the Hoot Owl steel up the long grade that climbed from the siding.

On the trestle this figure stood still in the cold quiet. Then he dropped down the bank of the stream to where the crib work of the trestle stood, stoutly footed beneath the muck and water. For many minutes he was there, grunting occasionally, and when he climbed the bank again he trailed something carefully behind. . . . across the bridge, now, he went, after more listening, and down again beneath the north end of the trestle. More grunting; pawings in the snow, hard prodding with a short steel bar. . . . And up again, trailing something carefully once more.

Next, the man lighted a cigarette, shielded the flame of the match in cupped hands and after the tobacco was burning applied the fire to a pair of other objects held tightly between thumb and forefinger. . . . He let them go and a pair of greenish sputters began crawling across the trestle . . . and the man was limping swiftly up the hill, over the crest, while the green sputters drew apart, one crossing the trestle toward its northerly end, the other moving in the opposite direction.

It was twenty minutes later, Ben Elliott was pulling on his mackinaw, preparatory to going out with the first three cars of logs, when he stopped suddenly, one arm in its sleeve, as a jolt shook the building, rattling dishes and causing the door of the range oven to drop open with a bang. None in the place spoke; they looked at each other, faces set in puzzlement. Again came a heavy jolt; a loud detonation, and a pan fell from its shelf with a crazy clatter. No word, still. Without speaking they leaped for the doorway and emerged to see the crew spilling from the men's shanty to look and listen.

"It's dinnymite! Bird-Eye Blaine croaked hoarsely as he ran out. "Dinnymite fer sure! Where, Benother b'y?"—looking earnestly into Elliott's face.

"That's for us to find out," Ben answered grimly and they followed him as he ran with long strides toward the direction from which the sound had come.

Minutes later they came up to him, the fastest of them, as he stood motionless on the bank of the Hoot Owl, looking at the mass of twisted railroad steel and of ties that dangled from the swinging rails in ragged fringe; at the scattered remnants of crib work, at the piling standing splintered and awry and useless in the stream bed.

Ben Elliott's bridge was gone. His way to the siding with his veneer logs, on the delivery of which hung the fate of the operation, was blocked. No time remained to team them out, there was no other way to get them out except by steel. And his steel was broken, twisted, useless.

He turned to face them as they crowded up, swearing and exclaiming in excited voices.

"You, Houston!" he snapped to the camp's boss. "Get those standards off the main line. Bird-Eye, start a fire here. You men—you three there—get a fire going on the other bank. You teamsters, back to camp and dress your donkeys. Bring axes, peaveys, skidding equipment. Lively, now, everybody! A job of work coming up!"

Blackmore, whose wind was short, elbowed through the crowd, panting heavily.

"Good G—d, Elliott; They've scotched you!"

Ben gave him a fleeting, scorching glance.

"Scotched, h—! They've only got me good and mad!"

And now began a scene the like of which had never been recorded in the Tincup country.

Men were there in numbers where huge bonfires, constantly tended that the light should be steady, flared on the banks of the Hoot Owl. Sawyers, cant-hook men, teamsters, toiled to reduce the wreckage of the trestle, snaking it out of the way working hastily, noisily, excitement evident in their movements and shouts. Others cut brush until the sloping river banks showed bare and dark.

Back in the woods oil flares burned as the steam loader puffed and snorted and rattled, swung its boom, lifted logs from their banks, tossed them through the air and dropped them into place on a flat car. Once loaded, the car of logs and the jammer were trundled down the mile of track to the stream. Slow and slower the car moved until the boom of the loader overhung the gap where a trestle had been. Then blocks went into place to secure the wheels, Elliott gave the signal, the boom swung a half circle, hook men adjusted their tackle to a log on the single car; up it went, around and out over the river bank and then down.

Elliott was below there with his cant-hook men. They grabbed the first stick, wrestled it into place parallel with the current and others, with mauls and stakes, gave it a firm resting place on the bank. . . . Another log . . . another and still more, until a crude foundation for trestle abutment had been made.

Ben encouraged, he flattered, he cajoled and he drove those men as they never had been driven before. They moved on a run when going from place to place; they seemed to try to outdo one another when strength became essential. They were infected with Elliott's fire.

Standing on the bank within the circle of freight Dawn McMannus seemed to snuggle close to Able Armitage, face pallid even under the ruddy glow of flames. Her eyes followed just one figure; that of Ben Elliott. Commanding, resourceful, a human dynamo, he was.

Shortly after midnight the supply team drove up from camp, the cook drew back blankets which had covered its burden, commenced putting generous pieces of steaming steak between slices of bread and the cook poured coffee from huge pots for the men who swarmed around the sleigh.

Back to the decks in the woods went the locomotive; down it came again, bearing more logs. These were let down to a pile which rose almost to the track level. When it was three feet higher nearly half the work would be finished.

Workers staggered through the snow bearing a steel rail. It went into place; fish plates clattered; wrenches set nuts and spikes put the rail secure on ties.

So when the locomotive, leaking steam from its old joints, lumbered down with its next burden, the loader was set out on this length of new track and began the task of filling in the far side of the ravine, leaving a sluiceway through which the waters of the stream gurgled and surged.

Blackmore joined Able and Dawn on the bank where the freight struck topaz lights from the snow. The old justice turned an inquiring gaze on him and the buyer shrugged.

"Two o'clock," he muttered. "He's got less than six hours left to turn the trick."

"It doesn't seem humanly possible," Able said slowly.

"I'm beginning to think," Blackmore replied, "that the man isn't human. This thing would've stopped most men I know without a try. But not Elliott!"

Daybreak found them throwing the last load of logs into place and the pallid light of the early day revealed Elliott's face, drawn and gaunt and colorless; his eyes burned brightly, strangely dark.

"His only chance is that the local'll be late," Blackmore moaned to Able.

Six o'clock, and broad axes shaped the logs on which the ties would rest, and up from the siding came a team at a trot, and behind it another. These were men from Tincup who had heard of the work going on. They left their sleighs and looked at the emergency trestle and then stared at one another and shook their heads in amazement. Things like that just didn't happen, they seemed to be thinking.

Then came a battered cutter, with old Tim Jeffers driving alone, to see what was to be seen.

"Heard the shots in town last night," he told Able. "Come mornin' I drove this way."

The old justice nodded grimly.

"You guessed, then."

Tim spit angrily. "The lad was gettin' too close to his mark to suit some folks. It seems."

Seven o'clock, and men staggered up the embankment bearing a rail. Five minutes later it rang and sang as the spike went home, and another, the last, was brought up.

The gap was bridged, the last spikes were going in; the particular job was done, but tension screwed up and up, as a fiddle string is tightened. . . .

It was seven-thirty, and far off a locomotive screamed.

"The local!" Blackmore gasped. "She's at Dixon. . . . in a half hour, now. H—! the boy's licked!"

A half hour! A half hour in which to move six standard cars laden with a heavy scale of saw logs over that grade! Two trips, Ben Elliott had estimated it would take. Two trips for the leaking old locomotive to drag them the three miles to the siding and puff its way back and trundle the other three over the hill and down the slope. It was a half mile climb from river to summit with a better than four per cent grade. A good locomotive of even small tonnage might take them over at once; but not the old ruin that stood sending its plume of smoke into the morning air up the track yard. And if those logs were not put down by the train even now screaming its way toward the siding, Ben Elliott was beaten.

He straightened, flinging away his maul, saw the last nut tightened on the final fish plate and then, holding up both hands, face fixed toward the locomotive with its string of cars waiting around the bend and up the hill to the northward, he began to run.

Holding them there? When the trestle was ready? Men wondered why, audibly, excitedly, stirred from their weariness by this strange move. Instead of high-balling them on, Elliott was holding them back!

65 Per Cent Body Heat Is Radiated Human bodies are like stoves—65 per cent of the heat generated is radiated.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

EVERY possession a person has means care and work, unless the thing is utterly ignored and neglected. When this is the case, nature has a way of reducing the value, or seeing to it that it becomes a total loss to the owner. Even land which is imperishable goes out of the owner's hands unless care is taken to pay the taxes.

Residences go to rack and ruin without the work of occasional repairs. After continual neglect by the owner, and the appearance of the property belonging to no special person, it is not an unknown occurrence for one with no title to the property to use it, and even put up some sort of a dwelling. The old saw that possession is nine points of the law may render it difficult to oust the occupant and resume complete ownership. At least lawsuits pend, and these mean extra work, cost, and careful attention. So in order to get the benefit from ownership of anything, work and care are essential.

Equipment Requires Care. There are certain articles and devices which come under the head of labor-saving equipments. While they reduce work, they do not eliminate it entirely. Fortunately some of these devices minimize tasks so decidedly that extra man or maid service may not be needed, the possessor being able to perform the tasks himself or herself. However, the care of the equipment itself means that work on it cannot be neglected, and have it function properly.

A vacuum cleaner is a good example of a customary labor-saving equipment which reduces cleaning house decidedly. But the brush, if there is one, will not pick up threads, etc., unless it is free to work. The bag must be emptied often or the suction feature is reduced decidedly. The cord must be unbroken and correctly attached or the power is gone. While these are trifling tasks to attend to, compared with the strenuous labor of sweeping, yet it is easy to see that work and care cannot be done away with entirely.

Persons who crave possessions, who wish they had this thing or that, whatever the articles or things desired may be, little or large, costly or cheap, and who have not the ways and means of getting them, may have one consolation. That is, they are relieved of the work of caring for them. Rich people sometimes crave the freedom from the cares of possessions. Occasionally a family moves into smaller quarters rather than have the care of a large estate, even though the manual labor of doing the work does not fall on them, but on a retinue of servants.

In these times of financial stress, it is well to consider the work and care of possessions, and gain a measure of contentment in the freedom from these features, when possession is not feasible or possible. In other words be contented with what you have and make the best of it.

Wall Paper Is Help Wall paper is a great aid for barnlike rooms with high ceilings. Here's one recipe for "bringing the ceiling down" and making the total area of the room seem less. Choose a paper having a design in which horizontal lines or patterns predominate and do not cover the walls from the baseboard to the ceiling, but to a point about two feet below the ceiling. Use your molding here, or a wall paper border.

Then extend the ceiling paper down to meet the side walls. Thus, you will appear to lower the ceiling. Also, your eyes will follow the horizontal lines in the paper and the room will seem less "tall" to you.

On the other hand, if you are papering a small room with a low ceiling, choose a wall paper having vertical stripes or patterns to carry the eye up and to add to the apparent height of the walls. And do not "drop" the ceiling, of course.

The best papers for small rooms are those having tiny patterns in light colors. Also, a scenic design will do a lot for the room, lending depth because of its perspective.

When you feel inclined to be a bit hopeless about the architectural drawbacks of your home—don't! Wall paper can correct myriads of faults if you will give it a chance.

Missouri Woman Wins Prize As Best U. S. Rural Correspondent

Who is the best country newspaper correspondent in the United States? The award, announced recently, goes to Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Mahnkey of Oasis, Missouri. Mrs. Mahnkey was selected out of 1581 rural correspondents nominated for a prize given by Wheeler McMillen, editor of The Country Home, a national farm magazine published in New York. As winner she receives a silver trophy, $50 in cash, and a trip to New York City.

Other prizes go to Mrs. Stella Westfall, Toonerville, Colo.; Mrs. J. W. Peiterson of the El Cajon Valley News, Calif.; William Purnhage of Troy City, Indiana; Davis Tuttle, Lenoir, North Carolina; Deborah Whitaker, of Mason, New Hampshire; Sara Crouch, Glenn, Georgia; Mamie Brook, Roanoke, Alabama; Mrs. Eva Henning, Clermont, Ohio; Ada May and Frank Pattee, Butler, Missouri; Paul Overstreet, Springdale, Arkansas; Mrs. Merle Scott, Seymour, Iowa; Mrs. John Turnbull, Maple Hill, Kansas; Mrs. Edward F. Stegeman, Hope, Kansas; Mrs. O. Feigum, Sweet Home, Oregon. Out of 15 prize winners, 11 are women.

"The quality of the 1581 clippings submitted was so high," says Mr. McMillen, "that at first reading we retained more than a third for further reading and judgment. In scope as well as interest the submitted material far exceeded expectations, particularly as the announcement of the proposed contest was made very modestly in our columns. Next year, and for many years to come, we hope, the country correspondents award will be continued, enlarged and expanded. The prize offers will be multiplied several times. Special emphasis will be placed on farm news reporting."

"The faithful work done by the so-called cross-roads correspondents has been a most important phase of American journalism. Regarding the news clippings which won the prize for Mrs. Mahnkey, we count it the best of all submitted because it is simply and beautifully written, without straining for effect; it is friendly and objective, it doesn't slobber over as do so many reporters who attempt interpretative reporting. Mrs. Mahnkey introduces her own comments here and there, but always sparingly and with balance.

"What we called for in the terms of the contest was: The work of born writers and understanding reporters who know news without having to be told from a desk, and who are possessed of a great sense of values which detects the great in the small.

"Country correspondents are a grand people, by and large. They have something to tell this frantic, hastening day and age.

"The country correspondent is the forgotten man of American letters. Novelists, poets, playwrights, historians, reporters for metropolitan newspapers—all these have prizes to which they may aspire. But the country correspondent has heretofore had no such opportunity for recognition.

"These prizes were offered in the belief that such recognition is more than merited. We do not expect to unearth any great author, although many great authors have come from the ranks of the country correspondents. But we do expect to call greater attention than ever before to the excellent writing that comes from the farms and small towns, and is published in the local columns of the country newspaper.

"It is a simple, honest sort of writing, reflecting the wholesome flavor of life in the country."

The news letter for which Mrs.

Mahnkey received first prize follows: "The late rains that have advanced everything so wonderfully have not exactly pleased the tobacco growers, as tobacco should be preparing itself for the knife, instead of trying to reach the sky.

"Frank Snowden will have around 3,000 pounds of White Burley for the Kentucky markets. We hope he receives a good price, as he has worked hard. Not a day too hot or an evening too late for Frank and his children in the crop time.

"Mrs. Alice Box, so many years a resident, but sad and desolate since the loss of her husband, John Box, last winter, has moved to Crickett, Arkansas, to stay with her son, Ran, for a time. The rest of the family have moved to the Cumma Pruitt place near Cedar Valley. Chauncey Cline and his wife and boy, Jimmy, now occupy the nice home on the Pauley place where this family lived for so long.

"Willie Snowden, a brother of Frank and Joe, came as an unexpected visitor from California last week. He has been absent 28 years. He said he could not resist the longing to see his mother once more, and the old home place. But the old house was gone, burned in a grass fire some years ago."

"Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kenner were here last week for apples and tomatoes from their farm on 65. Mrs. Kenner tells of canning peaches from the orchard they put out themselves when they bought the place. Their daughter, Neva, is teaching again this year. John is at work. The other children are all in school.

"Steve Cline, who lived at Ridge-dale, died Friday and was buried Saturday at Omaha, Arkansas. He was very old and in poor health, and had been a blind pensioner for some time. He had made his home with his son, Jesse, for the past few years. Another son, Chauncey, lives near here. Other relatives from Oklahoma arrived Sunday, too late for the burial."
