Miss McComb, Bride of Bay City Man

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McComb, on South Seeger street, Sunday morning, August 25, when their daughter, Aletha Irene, became the bride of Mr. Audley M. Walstead of Bay City.

Promptly at nine o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," played by Miss Harriet McComb, youngest sister of the bride, the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and led by her sister, Miss Helene McComb, as maid of honor, walked slowly down the stairway to pause before an improvised altar where waited the groom and his brother, Robert Walstead, who was his attendant. Rev. G. A. Spittler, pastor of the Evangelical church, officiated, the ring service being used.

The bride wore a gown of white net over white satin, princess style, with long veil of net and point lace trimmed with pearl beads. She carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers tied with blue ribbon. The bridesmaid was gowned in baby blue net over blue satin and carried lavender asters tied with white ribbon.

Mrs. Walstead graduated from the Cass City high school with the class of '32, being salutatorian of her class. She also graduated with honors from the Bay City Business College and has since been employed in Bay City, the last fifteen months with the Weber Construction Company.

The groom is a graduate of the Bay City Central high school and is employed by the Chevrolet Motor Company in Bay City. They will make their home in Bay City.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McComb and family, those who attended the wedding were Mrs. Louise McComb of Cass City and Mrs. Harriet A. Fay of Grant, both grandmothers of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walstead and daughter, Marion, of Bay City, Miss Arwilda Parlo of Akron, Ervin Graham of Bay City and Stacy Vatters of Snover.

EXPECT SLIGHT RISE IN PRICE OF BUTTER

Increase in Demand Anticipated as Public Purchasing Power Improves.

An improvement in the demand for butter is expected to prevent further decline in prices and may result in more than the usual seasonal rise, according to the economics department at Michigan State College.

Narrowing of the margin between butter prices in New York and London has discouraged the shipment of foreign butter into the United States. The New York price was only 4½ cents more than the London price for 92 score butter in early July.

Prices for whole milk decreased in Michigan from $1.65 in May to $1.45 in June but the price paid by distributors for Class 1 milk was maintained in most markets. The decline in price on whole milk was for surplus which could not be sold as fluid milk.

The federal farm prices report, issued July 15, predicts that even if butter production continues larger than one year ago there will be enough improvement in purchasing power of the public to maintain or improve prices during the remainder of the butter storage season.

Exceptionally good pasture conditions have permitted herd owners to obtain high milk production from herds this year, while last season's drought was cutting down the milk supply. Feed grain prices have declined so it is now possible to supplement the pasture with grain.

Elkton Couple Married at Shepherd

From Elkton Advance.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Thompson, daughter of Frank Thompson, of Elkton, and Leo A. Hutchinson, of Cass City, was solemnized Tuesday noon in the Presbyterian church at Shepherd.

The bride wore a maroon velvet gown with gold accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Adams of Shepherd, friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson left on a motor trip through Northern Michigan and after August 26th they will be at home to their many friends at Elkton.

The newly married couple are both well known in this vicinity, the bride having taught near Elkton for the past seven years and has a host of friends and acquaintances in and near Elkton.

The groom is a graduate of Central State Teachers' College and a past player on the St. Louis Cardinal baseball team. He also has played professional ball in Detroit and Grand Rapids. For the past two years Larry has been a teacher in the Elkton high school and captain of two Thumb championship teams while at Elkton. He also has his contract for the school term of 1935-36. In high school basketball, Larry has had two winning Thumb Tip championship teams in the past two years and is very popular among the Thumb coaches and has a great many baseball followers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson have not located a place of residence in Elkton as yet.

Pauline Sandham to Marry This Fall

A pleasant evening was spent around the Sandham fireplace on Saturday, August 24, when Miss Virginia Day and Miss Pauline Sandham entertained in honor of Mrs. Wm. Jackson, of Detroit, a bride of early summer.

As the luncheon was being served, Albert MacPhail, dressed as a bell-boy, entered with a traveling case filled with gifts for Mrs. Jackson. Accompanying each gift was someone's favorite recipe.

Later in the evening the efficient, yet shy, bell-boy appeared again with a special telegram addressed to Mrs. Jackson, which announced the engagement of Miss Pauline Sandham to Mr. Roy Briggs, of Bad Axe, son of Mrs. Mary Jane Briggs, of Akron. They are to be married in the early fall.

Mrs. Urquhart has spent the past two years in Cass City and vicinity with her sister, Mrs. Bertha Brown, and other relatives and friends. Mr. Urquhart has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Emigh, at Hay Creek for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Urquhart are spending the week with relatives in Port Huron and expect to make their home in Cass City.

Farmers Affected By International Milk Production

Farmers producing milk for fluid milk markets, or for what is commonly known as "city consumption," generally are not affected by weekly changes in the national butter markets, which are always influenced by supply and demand. However, there always comes a time when even fluid milk markets are affected by price changes in butterfat, which basically determines prices for most dairy products. This is especially true when markets become overloaded with milk, which happened this summer because of good pastures.

Farmers shipping to Detroit and some of the other larger cities of Michigan, where the Michigan Milk Producers' Association markets most of the milk for its 17,000 producers, have been fortunate in not being affected so much by butter price changes on their fluid sales because of the more or less complete control of the extra milk, commonly known as surplus milk, in these markets. Detroit, especially, all milk that was not needed for city consumption was held at country points and manufactured, thereby keeping it from getting into the market and breaking the regular price. By controlling milk shipments, Class I sales in this market remained at the price established in February, 1935, $2.48 per hundredweight f. o. b. city, for milk testing 3.5%.

The price for Class II and III milk, as marketed for the larger cities, as established by a Federal Marketing License, is based upon butter markets. Butter prices having increased in the past six months over that of a year ago, butter in storage likewise has increased largely because of the increased use of butter substitutes. There has also been some importation of butter, which always occurs when butter prices go sufficiently high so that the import tariff wall can be scaled and still leave a small margin for the producer in foreign countries. The butter importations this year occurred largely the first part of the year when butter prices exceeded 35c per pound.

Three T. B. Clinics in Tuscola County

Three T. B. clinics, it has been announced, will be held in three Tuscola county high schools—at Vassar on Sept. 18; Caro, Sept. 19, and Cass City, Sept. 20.

The clinics, at which X-Ray examinations will be given all those desiring them, is sponsored by the Tuscola County Medical association and the Michigan T. B. association. Miss G. Packwood, a state nurse, will be in charge of the work.

Request is made by the local medical association that those desiring examination put in reservations.

MEMBER IN CHARGE OF THREE DEPTS.

Mrs. Ricker Only Woman on State Fair Board of Managers.

Mrs. A. A. Ricker left Cass City Tuesday morning for Detroit where she will assist in the management of the Michigan State Fair as a member of the board of managers. She is the only woman on the board and is the member in charge of three departments, having more divisions under her supervision than any other department director.

Mrs. Ricker will supervise the fine arts, domestic economics and better babies' departments. In fine arts, $426.00 are offered to professionals, amateurs and juveniles for paintings, drawings and etchings. In the domestic economics department, prizes total $412.25 for baked goods and canned fruits, meats and vegetables. In the better babies' division the prizes amount to $782.00. Sections are devoted to babies from rural communities, small towns, and medium size and large cities of the state as well as for twins and triplets.

Three other ladies from Cass City will be employed at the state fair which opens today. Mrs. S. B. Young will assist in the applied arts department and Mrs. Willis Campbell and Mrs. Audley Rawson in the nursery department.

Pastime Theatre to Be Enlarged

C. H. Schuckert, proprietor of the Pastime Theatre here, announces that early in September he will enlarge the capacity of the theatre in order to accommodate the audiences at this playhouse. Frequently the building is too small to hold all who wish to see the movie pictures.

The building, Mr. Schuckert says, will be made three feet wider, using the brick wall of the Fritz Block, occupied by the A. & P. Tea Co., for the western side of the theatre, and an addition of 40 feet built in the rear. This will nearly double the capacity of the theatre.

Upholstered seats will replace those now in use and modern heating and ventilating systems will be installed. The theatre will be air-cooled and washed.

Sanilac Youths to CCC Camp

A quota of 14 Sanilac county young men were accepted for CCC camps Friday and started on their journey to Pine River camp at Trout Lake. There was only one rejection among the applicants, blindness in one eye being the cause.

Members of the contingent included Carl Belger, Palms; Gerald Desjardine, Frank R. Hale, Park Odum, Nelson C. Lenaway and George W. McConnell, Crosswell; Robert Davis, Jr., and Rodney S. McGregor, Decker; Clarence E. Ford and Morley C. Stone, Sandusky; Henry J. Felk, Carsonville; Walter J. Kroetsch and Leo Szymanski, Jr., Snover; Stuart E. Lienhardt, Marlette.

Transient Roadside Stands Must Go

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. VanWagoner has launched a campaign to remove transient roadside stands from along Michigan's trunkline highways.

Cooperation of the Michigan state police and local police authorities will be asked in the campaign. The law confers authority upon the state to proceed against such stands in a summary manner.

Roadside stands operated by farmers on their own farms or permanent business establishments will not be disturbed. The transient is a target of the crusade.

The commissioner is chiefly concerned with the menace of the transient stand to public safety. Such stands also mar the beauty of the roadside, he pointed out.

"Our chief concern," the commissioner said, "is the matter of public safety. The state highway department in its modern construction program is building roads that will give more visibility and longer sight distances.

"This type of road is a distinct advance in public safety. Our efforts in this direction, however, may be largely defeated if the nuisance of the transient roadside stand is not abated. The stands themselves and signs used by their owners to attract the motorists' attention are a serious menace to safety.

"Michigan, which is spending $100,000 a year to advertise its resort opportunities, cannot tolerate these eye sores on its public highways. There is no one thing that comes to my mind to dampen the enthusiasm of a tourist for our state more than ugly signs and stands along the highways.

"Although I realize that it is not my particular function as state highway commissioner to take punitive steps to protect legitimate business, I cannot help but express my opinion as to the unfairness of these stands and yet we permit them to operate in direct competition to legitimate business men who are taxpayers."

MOTORING TO CALIFORNIA.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Vyse, son, Elton, and daughter, Shirley, left Saturday for San Jose, California, where they will visit Mr. Vyse's brother. They expect to make a leisurely trip, stopping in Iowa and at Yellowstone National Park, and arriving in California about the middle of October. Glenn Vyse and family have moved to the Alex Vyse farm in Novesta township.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY SECTIONS

Happenings Here and There
Garnered from the Chronicle's Exchanges.

Residents of North Branch were genuinely surprised Sunday morning when it was learned that the North Branch Bakery was closed and abandoned and that the operators had disappeared to parts unknown. The equipment, with a few exceptions, remained in the building.

Mrs. Anna Wanamaker, one of Crosswell's oldest residents, observed her 94th birth anniversary at her home in that city on Saturday.

Only 14 students had signified their intention of entering the freshman college at Brown City up to last week. With 30 the minimum for opening, it is plain to see the prospects of having this advanced course are small.

Mung! La Choy! The very words have a strange oriental sound. One thinks of the clay plains and mud walled villages of far off Manchuria. Yet just 7½ miles from Brown City are 450 acres of Mung beans which are to be used in the production of bean sprouts. A visit to the farms is of special interest since these are the only acres in America devoted to beans grown for the purpose of bean sprout production. The beans are threshed with the usual machine with smaller mesh screens. After the dry beans are harvested they are sent to the La Choy plant in Detroit, where in due time the sprouting process is carried on, the sprouts removed and put up for chop suey, chow mein or sukiaki.

Burnell Ballard, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ballard of Sebawaing, died Saturday of injuries received Aug. 19 when he was struck by the automobile of Mrs. Norman Zimmer, of Detroit. The boy was following a threshing machine and stepped into the path of the automobile. Mrs. Zimmer was exonerated.

Daniel Kroll, New English Teacher

Daniel Kroll, a student at Wayne University previous to his graduation from the State Normal College at Ypsilanti, was engaged by the board of education Tuesday evening as instructor of English and public speaking to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Vernita Knight from that position. All positions on the teaching staff are now filled. School opens here Monday, Sept. 9.

The board of education voted Tuesday night to install a coal stoker for the heating system. It is the underfeed type and automatic in control. The cost will be $1,292. Three new typewriters were also purchased. It was decided to add another janitor for the coming year, engaging two caretakers in the building instead of one. James McMahon will continue in that position and the place of second janitor has been offered to another but his acceptance has not yet been received.

School opens at 8:30 in the morning. The luncheon period at noon for the upper grades will be 10 minutes less than last year. This year it will be from 12:00 m. until 1:05 p. m.

SEE GOOD PROSPECTS FOR STATE POULTRY

Fewest Hens on Farms in Years and Supply of Storage Eggs Is Reduced.

Poultry owners in Michigan face an unusually favorable prospect for better returns for eggs and meat, according to the economics department at Michigan State College.

Prices showed a seasonal decline in the early summer months but are higher than one year ago. The number of hens on farms is the smallest since 1925 and the supply of eggs in storage is much smaller than one year ago.

Feed prices have been reduced and the supply is ample enough to keep feed price levels from advancing as they did last year. The combination of reduced numbers of hens, smaller storage stocks of eggs, and more reasonable prices for poultry feed will all work to the advantage of the poultryman.

Fluctuations in the numbers of poultry on farms occur in four-year cycles, with the number gradually increasing from the low point, as now, to a high point, which is due to occur in 1937 or 1938. Commercial hatcheries produced a great number of chicks in 1934, but feed shortages caused the marketing of unusually large numbers of mature birds so the poultry population declined.

Good flock management practices will pay extra profits as egg and meat prices improve. Culling the laying flock to retain only the best producers from the old flock and to remove nonproducing pullets will be important. With fair prices for live poultry, culled birds will sell well because birds which are not laying are usually in first class condition.

Union Service Brings Labor Message

The Labor Sunday message for 1935, prepared by the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, will be distributed in the congregation at the union service in the Presbyterian church here next Sunday evening, Sept. 1, at 8:00 o'clock. A Litany for Labor Sunday will also be used during the worship period. This special program, which opens the 1935-36 season in the churches, is under the auspices of the adult education department of the Christian Citizenship League. Other projects of this department are promised at intervals during the year.

Rev. George Spittler, of the Evangelical church, has been selected as the preacher for next Sunday evening's service. Rev. Paul Alured, president of the league, will conduct the worship program. A brief organ prelude will begin at 7:45. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of the Christian churches of both town and country in the Cass City community.

Infantile Paralysis Halts Opening of School at Vassar

State papers carried the story Wednesday that with the 12 reported cases of infantile paralysis in Vassar, the board of education Monday night took steps to prevent a possible spread of the epidemic by ordering postponement of the opening of the public schools for two weeks.

The opening date had been set for Sept. 3 and postponement was made at the suggestion of Vassar doctors and state health authorities.

All cases of the disease are said by local physicians to be of a mild nature.

"TOLEDO PLAN" WORKS.

The much talked of "Toledo plan" for averting industrial strife seems to have met and passed its first test with flying colors. The industrial peace board set up under the suggestion of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, has settled a pastry-shop strike and brought 100 strikers back to work.

Under this plan, a board is set up composed of equal members of representatives of employers and unions. It is designed to provide ways and means of continuing negotiations, mediation or arbitration after conferences in any given shop have reached a deadlock.

"Strikes and lockouts, bombs and bullets, are not the way to settle disputes in civilized communities," says Mr. Grady. "If men and management are fair, there should be no trouble which cannot be settled across the conference table."

The way in which this new experiment in labor relations works out in daily practice will be very much worth watching.—Republican, Rensselaer, Ind.

In spite of wars and rumors of wars some folks keep on playing golf, and that's a happy fact. If it were not for folks who keep on playing while other folks fight, this would be a hard world.

UNDERCONSUMPTION.

Since the war every business lull, every increase in unemployment, has been attributed to overproduction. It has become popular to diagnose every economic maladjustment as overproduction. Manufacturers, farmers, and workers are being told that they are producing too much. In recent years world production of raw materials and foodstuffs has increased more than twice as fast as the population.

There seems to be a surplus of most worldly goods, but in the final analysis it is an inaccuracy to say that the world is producing more than it needs. The fact is that it isn't consuming as much as it should. Consumption should be increased, rather than production diminished.

Today the real economic problem of the United States is to increase the purchasing power of the consumer. Factories and farms are producing more than the people can buy, not more than they can consume. The most common phrase is, "I would buy if I had the money." — Star-Republican, Blanchester, Ohio.

A fish never gets caught by keeping his mouth shut.

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT.

There is, we take it, no doubt but that the American people admire what has generally been termed individual liberty or that they desire little governmental interference with them and their affairs.

Upon that statement there should be agreement. However, when overenthusiastic advocates of big business use this sentiment to bolster their argument that government should leave business alone they miss the essential lesson that has been taught by the depression.

While constitutionally against governmental domination of people or activity the citizens of the United States were compelled to choose between the unchecked rapacity of greedy capitalists or stringent government regulation. There was no other choice. The evils of finance, business and industry had reduced a nation to want in the midst of plenty, and something had to happen.

Few sane people would today wish to see the same forces allowed to work unrestricted because they believe that the result will be another disaster after a period of false prosperity. Hence, if necessary to curb greedy profiteers and business racketeers they will continue to favor stringent regulation and effective policing of selfish interests.—Cecil County Star, Elkton, Md.

WOMEN DRIVERS.

For years women have been subjected to gibes because of their supposed inferiority as automobile drivers. But a recent survey by a national board of casualty underwriters reveals that women drivers figure in far less accidents than men, numbers considered.

Estimates from various sources, including government statistics, indicate that women constitute approximately one-fourth of the total number of drivers in the country. Yet, while women represent 25 per cent of the number of drivers, last year they were involved in only 7.63 per cent of the accidents recorded.

In the observance of traffic regulation, women made an even more impressive record. While full statistics are not available, in a dozen large cities only 2.53 per cent of those charged with violations of traffic rules were women. While it may be argued that traffic officers are more lenient toward women violators, an inquiry addressed to a large number of these officers brought responses decidedly favorable to the ladies.

Of the replies received, 78 per cent of the officers considered women are more careful drivers than men; 11 per cent thought women equally careful, and only 11 per cent believed women less careful.

So, in the face of the record, it appears that women are much safer drivers than men, after all, when they are actually at the wheel. How safe they may be as back seat drivers is an entirely different matter. — Citizen, Key West, Fla.

According to the Journal of the American Medical Association a normal man should live to be 105 years old. This is based on the fact that all other animals live five times as long as the time required for them to reach maturity. Since it requires 21 years for a man to reach maturity this authority figures it out that with proper mental attitude toward life a man should live to be five times twenty-one years or 105 years. The proposition doesn't especially appeal to most men. Long before the average man reaches the honorable age of 105 years he figures he has seen about everything there is to see and is broke. With no money and nothing left to see what inducement is there for one to live on borrowed time.

By Frank Nixon.

I desire to enter a protest against the long standing custom of printing menus in language that cannot be understood.

What is the use of calling fried potatoes something they are not? Why not call them fried potatoes? They would taste just as good and the diner would know what he was going to get. As it is the average diner disliking to show his ignorance glibly orders a half dozen items from the menu hoping that there will be at least one or two among them on which he can make a meal.

I've noticed that the wrong door is always a staunch supporter of the contention that convention is foolish.

Most gossip is resented but I've noticed that it is resented more when it is true.

I've heard folks talk about how many children they have raised only to see the same children impudent and disobedient to their parents and a general nuisance to everyone else. I don't believe that the parent of a family like that has any right to say he raised them. They have merely grown up.

I think the cigarette advertisement writers are missing a bet. All of their advertisements show young women disporting themselves with playboys. Nothing to do but look nice and get tired in order to be pepped up with a cigarette.

Why not show the play girls some years later in the midst of the family wash, surrounded by heaps of soiled clothes, overalls and jumpers, pausing between machines to get a lift with their favorite cigarette.

I am sixty-eight years old and have not yet found a salad that measures up to my idea of something to eat.

I have employed a good many young women stenographers and typists on my fruit farm in the past fifty years but one thing I have never been able to find out is why a girl will apply for a job of this kind when she can't spell or punctuate and has little knowledge of the proper division of words.

I think a good share of the gray that adorns my classic pate was produced because of the failings of my stenographers in these simple fundamentals.

If I were running a school for typists I wouldn't graduate one until she knew how to spell and punctuate and if I were a young woman seeking this sort of career I wouldn't begin to look for a job until I could write a simple letter free from errors of spelling and punctuation.

I've had a few good stenographers in my time but they didn't stay long. They quit to get married.

Another conclusion that I have reached is that there is no substitute for intelligence. A loose tongue can do a lot of talking but it takes brains to accomplish anything worth while.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Preparing for School—III.

The third step I advise you to take in preparing your child for school is to consult your family physician or local health department regarding the "tuberculin test." Perhaps you know it as the "Mantoux Test."

It would be surprising if you are not already familiar with this test and its values. The story has been told repeatedly in all the parents' and household magazines, in newspapers, and over the radio. Many school districts have introduced it as a routine measure. And, unquestionably, many more will do so this year.

Remember what I said last week about overconfidence? Most parents are too sure when they think, "My child can't have tuberculosis." I say, "too sure" because seldom do you really know. You are merely guessing. The physician would say you are hiding a fear. Think that over, and see if it applies to you.

Now, being afraid and doing nothing about it is ridiculous. More than that, it's the worst kind of neglect and inexcusable. If you fear tuberculosis, isn't it more sensible to meet it with every defense at your disposal? Bring it out in the open. Don't let it work in the dark. In short, be prepared. And in the case of children, the "Tuberculin Test," is right at hand. It is simple, harmless, and very accurate.

Afterward you will be able to sigh with relief and say, "Ah, that's better. Now I know where I stand."

SHOW STATE'S OIL INDUSTRY IN EXPOSITION

Riding on the crest of Michigan's great new oil and gas industry, drillers, producers, refiners, geologists and the oil fraternity, generally, will combine to present the state's first annual Oil and Gas Exposition, in Mt. Pleasant, from September 23 to 28.

Covering forty acres on Island Park, four blocks from downtown Mt. Pleasant, permanent buildings and a tented city will house exhibits of oil, gas and equipment companies. Graphic media, in the form of displays, relief maps, motion pictures and many other features, will form a complete picture of this business which has so rapidly won itself a position among Michigan's major industries.

A grateful public is paying its taxes and saving its homes

FROM all parts of the state come gratifying reports of the way the Michigan public is responding to the current tax-collection drive. Men and women everywhere are determined to save their homes, and benefit by the savings that a thoughtful legislature has provided.

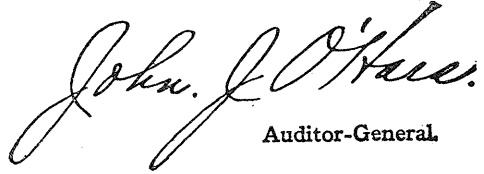

Few indeed are the property-owners who cannot now pay their back taxes, either in full or on the ten-year plan.

If you have not yet made arrangements to take care of your back taxes SEE YOUR COUNTY TREASURER AT ONCE. Bring him your old tax-bills, or at any rate, the legal description of your property. He will tell you quickly the amount that you owe and advise you as to how you may meet this important obligation. Upon request he will give you a descriptive folder that tells in simple terms just what you must do to save your home.

REMEMBER! September first is the last day on which you can pay your back taxes for 1932 and prior years without interest or penalties. It is also the last day on which you can put these taxes on the "TEN-YEAR PLAN" without incurring additional interest. ACT NOW. Delay is dangerous.

By co-operating with your state in this far-flung tax-collection drive you SAVE YOUR HOME, SAVE 27% TO 45% AND EVEN MORE in interest and penalties, and save yourself from worry over the possibility of losing your home. ACT NOW. Help yourself while helping your State, County, City, Village, Township and Schools.

A Dinner Menu with an Early Autumn Flavor

Now that summer's heat is on the wane and nights grow crisp it's safe to serve a dinner that's a bit more substantial and "hearty" than has been suitable in the immediate past. Such a dinner is suggested below—introduced with a piquant soup and finished with a satisfying dessert.

Cream of Green Pea Soup
Roast Duck Orange Sauce
Boiled Wild Rice
Pumpkin Souffle
Stuffed Prune Salad
Gems and Currant Jelly
Amber Pie
Coffee

CREAM OF GREEN PEA SOUP

Boil fresh green peas in salted water and pass through a fine sieve. Put this puree in a saucepan with the water in which the peas were boiled, and at the moment before serving add to it the yellow of eggs, fresh cream and fresh butter. Serve with croutons.

ROAST DUCK, ORANGE SAUCE

1 apple cut in quarters
1 medium size duck
1 onion, sliced
½ cup celery, chopped
1 carrot sliced
2 cups stock or bouillon
½ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. flour
Juice 1 orange
1 orange, sliced
Rind of three oranges
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 tbsp. currant jelly

Place the carrot, onion and celery in the bottom of the roaster. On the top of these vegetables place the duck, stuffed with the apple and sprinkled with salt and pepper. Add the stock or bouillon. Cover and cook for about 20 minutes to the point of duck. For the first 20 minutes have the temperature of the oven high, reduce the heat to moderate until the duck is tender.

Remove the duck from the roaster and strain the gravy into a saucepan. Skim off the fat and add the orange and lemon juices and the currant jelly. Bring to a boil and thicken with the flour moistened with cold water. Cut the rind of the orange and lemon into small pieces. Cover with water, about 1 cup, and cook 5 minutes. Strain and add this liquid to the sauce. Cook the sauce for a few minutes longer. Place the duck on a platter and garnish with orange slices.

PUMPKIN SOUFFLE

2 tbsp. fat
1½ tbsp. flour
½ cup milk
½ cup pumpkin
3 egg yolks
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. sugar
3 egg whites

Heat fat, add flour and mix to a smooth paste. Add milk and cook in a double boiler, stirring con-

TAPIOCA ICE CREAM

NOW that the mechanical refrigerator has become such an every-day affair, we are learning new ways of economy in foods as well as energy. The use of quick-cooking tapioca has become common in the preparation of soups, omelets, berry pies and meat loaves, but now comes the thrilling discovery of what this versatile ingredient can do for ice cream. With the use of tapioca, a velvety smooth cream can be made without the bother of cranking the freezer. Yet no more cream is required than for the mixture which must be stirred.

Simply prepare the mixture, set the control for freezing desserts and forget all about it until the freezing is complete. For those who have no mechanical refrigerator, turn the mixture into a mold, pack in ice and salt and let stand for four or five hours.

Formerly recipes of the mousse type, with a large proportion of cream have to be used in order to get satisfactory results in the texture without stirring. All cream desserts are too rich as well as costly to serve for the average housewife, also are too rich for the children and adults after a heavy dinner.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

Take two squares of unsweetened chocolate cut into pieces, add to two cupsful of milk in a double boiler and heat. When the chocolate is melted beat with a rotary beater until well blended, add three tablespoonfuls of quick-cooling tapioca, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and cook until clear and thickened, stirring frequently. Add one-half cupful of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of light corn sirup; cook until all are well blended, then cool. Strain the mixture by stirring, not rubbing through a fine sieve. Chill. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar to two beaten egg whites and fold into the mixture. Add one cupful of cream whipped and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Turn into the freezing tray and freeze as rapidly as possible. Three to four hours are required. Lacking the refrigerator, pack in ice and salt for several hours.

Lesson for September 1

PAUL THE APOSTLE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:33-35; Philippians 4:4-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—In all things I gave you an example, that so laboring ye ought to help the weak. Acts 20:35.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Happy Worker for Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul a Good Soldier for Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Find Happiness in Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church and the Toiler.

The explanatory title given by the lesson committee, "Paul (A Worker With Hand and Brain)," is unsatisfactory. His pursuit of a trade was incidental, as well as working with his brain. He was in deed and in truth the apostle of Jesus Christ and his entire person was dominated by his passion to serve his Lord.

I. His Birth (Acts 22:3; cf. Phil. 3:17).

He was born in Tarsus of pure Hebrew stock. He could with lawful pride boast of a godly ancestry.

II. His Home Training (Phil. 3:5).

His parents were pious people and carefully reared him according to Jewish standards. Most religious leaders spring out of such homes, as for example, Moses, Samuel, and Timothy. Stern principles of integrity were inculcated in him, thus giving him strength of character to impress the world.

III. His Education (Acts 22:3).

1. His patriotism. He was brought up to love his nation. He proudly affirmed, "I am a Jew." Paul was a nationalist of the true type.

2. A love for the Bible. The Scriptures were to him the very Word of God. What was found written therein was the final word for him. Loss of love for the Bible and implicit faith therein is a tragedy.

3. Zealous for God. He says, "I was zealous toward God." The word "zealous" literally means "to boil." It means that his life was inflamed with passion for God.

4. He was conscientious. His supreme aim was to have a conscience void of offense. Conformity to the dictates of conscience is demanded. It is the law of life for every man, but because of the blight of sin the conscience needs to be taught by the Word of God.

5. He had a trade. Every Jewish boy, regardless of his father's wealth, was taught a trade. It was a saying among them that he who failed to teach his son a trade taught him to steal.

1. His Conversion (Acts 22:3-10).

1. On the way to Damascus (v. 6). He was filled with a hatred of Christ and was on his way to Damascus with authority to bring to Jerusalem to be punished such Christians, men and women, as might be found.

2. A light from heaven (vv. 6-9). As this light burned through the sky he fell to the ground. Accompanying the light was a voice saying, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" In response to his inquiry as to who was speaking, the Lord declared that it was Jesus of Nazareth whom he was persecuting.

3. An honest inquiry (v. 10). This is shown by his declaration of his willingness to do what the Lord willed. The Lord, therefore, instructed him to go to Damascus where fuller light would be given him.

V. Paul's Philosophy of Life (Phil. 4:4-13).

What men do and say expresses their philosophy of life. In order to induce right living, there must be created right thinking, for truly, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

1. Unceasing joy in the Lord (v. 4). The one who knows the Lord Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour, and who knows that in the providence of God all things work together for good to them who love God, cannot help but persistently rejoice in spite of personal circumstances.

2. Be careful for nothing (v. 6). The word "careful" means "concern which leads to distraction." This does not mean that such a one will be hazardous in his living or fail in the exercise of common sense. He will not be disposed to depend upon himself, but cast himself upon his Lord for everything.

6. Think of right things (v. 8). The one who thinks on truth will be true; the one who thinks on honesty will be honest; the one who thinks on love will have love flowing from his person. Things honorable and of good reputation among the people will not be neglected.

4. All sufficient is in Christ (vv. 10-13). The one who is thus in harmony with his Lord will be content in whatever circumstances he may be placed.

Friendship

It was a great Roman who said two thousand years ago, and it is still true, that those who take friendship from life blot out the sun from the world.

Do You Know—

That Easter probably derives its name from Easte, a Saxon goddess? In the ancient church, the celebration of Easter lasted an octave (8 days). During that time alms were dispensed to the poor—slaves received their freedom and the people gave themselves up to enjoyment.

What Are These Taxes?

Property owners throughout the state are being urged to pay their delinquent taxes. They are being advised that they can save considerable money in accumulated interest and savings by taking advantage of the benefits offered in the Moore-Holbeck Tax Act. These plans have been explained in these columns. For those who want more detailed information, the county treasurer has descriptive folders which explain the plans in full.

In view of the renewed emphasis placed on taxes by this drive, it might be well to consider just what taxes are. Taxes are not so cold blooded and abstract as they seem. In fact, they are quite alive. The Battle Creek News hit the nail on the head when it stated:

"Taxes are health, convenience, protection, safety, education; smoothness of travel; security of property. Taxes are schoolhouses, teachers, class graduations; disease prevention, title to property, the day in court. Taxes are the police department and the fire department. Taxes are the parks and the roads which lead to pleasure land or to the bedside of a stricken relative."

We might add here that back taxes are the overdue and unpaid bills for these services and conveniences. It is these bills which force substantial items for debt service and debt retirement into governmental budgets. It is these items that eat up millions of dollars in interest that goes to the lenders of money and not to the people in the way of continued services and conveniences.

In the final analysis, urging payment of taxes is simply reminding the people to do something for themselves. By paying now, they not only save their homes, free themselves from worry and fear over debt and insecurity—they reduce the cost of government. It is they who pay that cost.

Light Thrown on Phenomenon of Ambidexterity.

London.—A former deputy commissioner of London's metropolitan police once half seriously suggested that a police car should be perpetually parked before 45 Hans place—so often did Scotland Yard require the services of the man who lives there. This man, also known as the "unofficial counsel to the C. I. D.," is Sir James Crichton-Browne, author of some novels based on paradoxes of legal medicine and serious works on nervous diseases, and vice president of the Royal Institution.

Just 27 years ago he concluded a lecture on "Dexterity and the Bond Sinister," at the institution with the words:

"We cannot get rid of right-or-left-handedness try how we may. To raze out the written troubles of the brain is no easy matter; to delete its deeply engrained records is a task impossible."

Expert Elucidates.

A representative of the Daily Mail having recently read a report of the lecture through and failing to grasp it entirely called at 45 Hans place, thinking to catch Sir James napping. In one way he did, for Sir James had just been celebrating his ninety-fourth birthday. In another way, he didn't, for when he left he took with him an elucidation of the lecture of 1908 which, in the Daily Mail, reads in part as follows—an epic of its sort:

"Ambidextral culture, useful enough in some specially employed persons, must on the large scale tend to confusion.

"Right-handedness is woven in the brain and so is left-handedness, and to change the pattern you must unravel the tissues. My conviction is that as regards left-handedness it is well to leave well alone.

"I am interested to note, therefore, that our London school doctors who have been investigating the teaching of left-handed children have come to the same conclusion as that at which I arrived so long ago. Their memorandum just presented lays stress on the serious danger that may result from pressure in correcting left-handedness in children when it is either natural or well established.

"There are cases of genuine and permanent ambidexterity, notably that of Lord Baden-Powell, that benefactor of his country, who is accustomed to use both hands interchangeably.

"It has never been suggested that left-handedness or ambidexterity is indicative of any mental defect or incompatible with the highest intellectual power or with genius. Leonardo da Vinci was left-handed.

"Natural left-handedness is merely a transference of power from one side to the other, and acquired ambidexterity means the special training of certain groups of muscles and their springs in the brain for certain movements. It is all a matter of cerebral organization.

Mysteries of the Brain.

"The two hemispheres of the brain are not functionally symmetrical. In a vast majority of persons the left hemisphere is the more voluntary, the right the more automatic, but there is an occasional reversal of this arrangement.

"Now the hand and arm centers are adjacent to each other and closely linked with the speech centers in the brain, and it is a significant fact observed by the London school doctors that stammering is among the nervous systems induced by ill-judged efforts to correct left-handedness in young children in whom the evolutions of the brain centers are still going on.

We have right and left-handedness everywhere. In the human subject it is well to accept it as it is, and make the best of it without attempting any futile, perhaps hazardous, transformation."

Dog Loses His Position as Cattle Driver to Doe

Riley Brook, N. B.—On a farm near here a doe has taken over the job of driving cattle to water from a farm dog. A farmer found the doe abandoned near a roadside when it still was a fawn. He raised it in his kitchen. It is now two years old.

The doe took on the job of driving the cattle herself and whenever the farm dog tries to dispute her place she charges him.

Detective, Then Cop; Now He Is a Hobo

Sandusky, Ohio.—A man who gave his name as James Murphy and who said he was a former member of the Cincinnati police force was among a number of wanderers rounded up by police in the "jungles," hobo hangout in a Sandusky suburb.

"Quite a flop, from policeman to tramp, wasn't it?" Inspector Schibley, chief of the department detective bureau, asked Murphy.

"Oh, no," Murphy replied coolly. "You see, I was a detective before I went on the police force."

White Pine Much in Use

White pine, a light wood, is used for window sashes, frames and doors, or in other places where it is exposed to the weather, because it shrinks or swells very little. Other woods in the same class are cedar, redwood, yellow poplar and fir. A few of the desirable heavier woods are black locust and mahogany. Most heavy woods such as ash, hickory, birch and oak will shrink or swell more than the lighter woods.

Survey shows 42% more of them use Standard gasoline than any other brand

BOX SCORE

In a recent survey by a nationally-known research organization, automobile salesmen in 126 middle west towns and cities were asked this question by impartial investigators:

What gasoline do you usually use when you demonstrate your cars?

"On the basis of this survey, the ratio of gasoline preference per 1000 Plymouth salesmen is as follows:

STANDARD'S LIVE POWER GASOLINE . . .	167
Second Brand . . . . .	117
Third Brand . . . . .	108
Fourth Brand . . . . .	87
Fifth Brand . . . . .	67
Sixth Brand . . . . .	54

• The men who make their living selling automobiles know what it takes to put a car on its best behavior. So the fact that a big majority of them go for Standard's Live Power gasoline should be a good tip for you. After all, it stands to reason that a motor fuel which delivers more live, fast-working-power to an engine is the gasoline that will get out of a car the maximum performance that the car makers built into it. You'll find that's true no matter what make or age of car you drive—when you take on a tankful of real Live Power—

His head should be strikingly massive, his face extremely short, his muzzle very broad, blunt and inclined upward. The chest should be broad, sloping and deep, very powerful and muscular. The fore legs are straight and set wide apart. The ears are set high on the head and are known as "rose-shaped;" the tail should be set on rather low, but not straight and then turn upward. The bull weighs around 50 pounds.

CHAPTER XI

BEN began unblinking his team with the haste of high temper but before he had finished Able Armitage hailed him from across the street and came hurrying through the rutted snow.

The old justice's face was marked by an expression of concern and he came close before he spoke.

"I hear Red Bart Delaney's in town."

Ben nodded grimly.

"Come to see me yesterday."

"No!"

"Yeah. Took a long look at me . . . over the sights of a rifle."

"Ben! Why, son!"

Elliott laughed mirthlessly and told what had happened in the Foot Owl chopping the day before.

"So he's gotten down to the hiring of a killer!" Able looked anxiously into Ben's face. "Son . . . It can't go on. Timber or no timber; success or failure for the Foot Owl, you've got to think of yourself!"

"Benny, your way of doing things scares me! Why, this can't go on. It mustn't! It's your own affair, for sure, when he tried to shoot you down, but maybe, perhaps, possibly, I'm going to beg you to be careful. So long as Delaney's in the country you've got to keep low. Get back to camp; stay there; let us pick some man I can trust to follow Bart and Brandon night and day so you'll not be caught!"

"No," Ben shook his head resolutely. "I'll go on about my business as I should. I've never run yet and don't like to start any first footwork now."

"But it's your life that's at stake, Ben! Don't be silly. That's what recklessness is: downright silly! That's not like you. Why, not taking precautions in this thing is like monkeying with a high tension wire."

"No good, Able. I couldn't hold up my head if I hid out after the play I've made."

So Able was forced to give up after a time and shuffled up the street, drawing off his mitten again and rubbing his face briskly with his palm.

He had only reached his office and was unlocking the door when Aunt Em, walking grimly as if with a definite purpose, approached.

"Good morning—" he began.

"Forget the palaver, Able Armitage!" the woman said sharply. "You're in trouble. So are we all, maybe. That's why I came to see you. Is it true what they say that this Red Bart Delaney has showed up here in Tincup?"

"As true as disease or death or anything else unpleasant."

"That's what I'd heard! Do I have to guess why he's come?"

Able untied his scarf and shook his head sadly.

"No, Em. Your first guess will be right. And he took a shot at Benny yesterday!"

"And missed, I'd judge from the look of him just now. But if he's still here there'll be a next time; and he won't miss then. Did you do your duty and send the boy to some safe place?"

Able sighed and told her of his talk with Ben.

"So you couldn't make him listen to reason?" she muttered. "Well, if you can't, I can't. And, us failing, there's only one other who would have a ghost of a show."

"Dawn?"

She nodded. "Dawn could. But she won't . . . She won't go to him no. She wouldn't even listen to me talk about him, she's in such a state. She's up to her ears in love with Ben Elliott or I've got three legs! And then to have that scandalous woman do what she did and upset it all!"

She sat down heavily in a chair and drew a great breath.

"I don't have to ask you or any other man about Ben Elliott, Able! I know the clean and decent folks when I see 'em. I'd bet my reputation as a Christian woman on that boy! That piece of play acting at the dance was some of Nick Brandon's work, you can bet your last red cent! Why, Able, that man's worse than ever I thought; My, oh my!"

"Well, what I'm gettin' at is this: The boy's in danger of bein' murdered every minute of day and night unless he takes your advice. There's no one left to try to talk him into being careful but Dawn. And how am I going to get her to see her duty when she goes into a cryin' fit every time his name's mentioned? Yes, sir. Every time she hears his name."

"She doesn't yet see that the affair was a put-up job, then?"

"See? She can't see anything. Able Armitage! Put yourself in her place. Suppose you were a young girl who's had the things to bear that she has all her life; and suppose you fell in love for the first time; and suppose that young man was accused of such nastiness right in public with everybody listening and gawping? Would you stop to figure that the reason he seemed guilty was natural? That the thing was so far fetched from the truth and such a shock that he was all kerfummoxed? I should say you wouldn't! You'd do just what she's doin'; make yourself all sick with chills and fever by cryin'."

She twitched at the skirts of her cloak irritably and glared at the old justice as though he were a sworn enemy instead of a friend.

"What ails her is shock. She ain't got over the shock yet and every time his name or anything else about him is mentioned it sets her off again. She'll get over it, give her time. But then she'll be so humiliated to think she didn't use her reason that she won't be herself for another spell. And she should be herself now! There ain't any time to lose. She should patch up her misunderstanding with him right today—right this hour—and use her influence to persuade him to keep low. But how it's to be done I'd like to know. For Lord's sake, Able, ain't you got a single suggestion?"

The justice had been stuffing light wood into his stove during this. Now he touched a match to the tinder, opened the drafts and stood with his hands behind him, rusty overcoat unbuttoned and drooping, deep in thought.

"It's difficult to get anyone in her state to use reason. Maybe the shock of knowing that Ben's life is in danger would be a counter irritant to this other shock. Maybe not. If the affair of last week could be cleared up, if Dawn could be shown that this Lydia woman was only carrying out a plan . . . But I wonder . . ."

Aunt Em stiffened in her chair. She looked hard at Able and her eyes narrowed a trifle.

"You see," he resumed, "if the girl—"

"Hold on, Able Armitage!" she cut in, holding up a hand in warning. "Hold on, now! I've got to think. . . . Got to think, I tell you! And I can't think while you carry on your gabble! You leave me alone, now. . . . Keep your tongue still. . . . They say a woman's tongue is hung in the middle and loose at both ends. . . . But . . . Yum . . ."

As she pressed one hand over her eyes her words dwindled to unintelligible mumbblings.

"I've got it!" she cried excitedly after a moment. "I've got it, now! You stay right here, Able! You stay until I come back. If it works, it works. . . . If it don't, it'll be time to talk some more!"

She moved resolutely to the door, left the office and strode down the street. On past the bank, the post office, the pool room. . . . On beyond all the stores, on down to the depot.

There, on the platform she stood a long interval staring across the tracks to that short row of houses on Section Thirty-Seven. The station agent came out of the office and looked at Em in surprise.

"Hello!" he cried. "What brings you down here before—"

"Homer," she cut in grimly, "in which one of them nasty places does this Lydia woman live?"

"Why-why . . . Why, how should I know?" he evaded as a red flush crept up from his collar. "In the one at this end, I think. I'm not sure, of course. . . . I think she does, though. . . . She . . ."

But he no longer had a listener. Resolutely, slowly with something like defiant majesty, the woman crossed the tracks, with never another word to her informant, and never a look to right or left. Her head was up, her mouth set, and her long nose wrinkled as if at a disgusting odor. A woman up by the stores shaded her eyes and peered at the moving figure and stared and stopped. Aunt Em Coburn, headed for Thirty-Seven! Why, it couldn't be!

But Aunt Em mounted the steps. She rapped at length and vigorously on the scarred panel of the door. She went within, leaving a dozen long-distance watchers to wonder.

It was long before she emerged and then . . . Ah, then Tincup had a sight to see, a subject for speculation! For by Aunt Em's side moved the woman Lydia, collar of her fur coat high about her face as if to hide the traces of tears which hastily applied powder could not eradicate.

Tears from those hard eyes? Nothing less! For women know women and before Aunt Em had talked to this outcast five minutes she had discovered the weakness in her shame, the clean spot left in her heart. And how Emma Coburn could talk! She talked that clean spot to a growing, glowing glory. She talked Lydia out of her house, across the tracks; talked her into that slow, unashamed, almost flagrant march up the main street; talked her out of all but one look of misgiving at the windows of Nicholas Brandon's offices. . . . And around the corner and in beneath the hemlocks which whispered above the snug white house. They entered, where Dawn McManus had hidden since the woman's words sent her flying from the dance hall to the sanctuary of Aunt Em's understanding arms.

All the way out to camp Dawn snuggled close again Able in his worn old buffalo coat. Now and again she trembled a bit; once she cried softly a few minutes. But much of the time she talked.

"To think it was the man I used to call Uncle who did that thing!" she cried. "Why haven't you told me, Able? Why haven't you warned me?"

"What he's done, what he's been, what he is, were no things for you, Dawn, girl. I've just tried . . . to stand between you and many unpleasant things. You've had your share as it was."

"I could have stood this one more," she replied, stoutly enough. "It hasn't been so bad these last few years, knowing that everybody thinks my father a murderer. I'd just gotten myself above that and now . . . and now . . ."

"What now?" Able asked gently. She looked at him through tears.

"When a man loves a girl, that girl can't let herself love him, can she, when she's under a cloud herself? She can't bring a man's children into the world and have them whispered about as the grandchildren of a murderer?"

"Dawn! Dawn, girl, don't think that! Why, it's—"

"But it's so, Able! I don't want to talk about it. All I can do for Ben now is to let him know how weak I was to doubt him and to use any influence I may have to protect him from this terrible danger. I will do that; I must do that because it is duty. But it must stop there. It can't go on, you see. Not while I have nothing more than just my faith in my father's good name."

Able, the wise man that he was, did not force the argument. He brought his team to a halt before the Foot Owl office, gave the reins to Dawn and stepped out.

Martin, the bookkeeper, was the only occupant of the place.

"Where's Ben?" he asked.

The bearded man looked over his shoulder, recognized Able and then his gaze went past the man to the waiting cutter where Dawn sat.

"He's . . ."

It seemed as though Martin's voice failed after that word. He half started from his chair and the pen, dropped from flexed fingers, rolled across the ledger sheet. He made a faint sound and in his eyes appeared an expression that startled Able.

"What's wrong, Martin?" he asked in alarm, stepping quickly into the room. "Sick?"

"No . . . all right now," the other said, as if with great effort. "Ben? In the mill, I think."

He picked up his pen, then, and bent over his work.

Able crossed the mill-yard looking for Ben and as he went Martin rose cautiously from his chair, moved quietly to be in line with the window and stared for a long interval at the girl huddled in the robes. His hands worked and his breath was uneven.

"Dawn is here to see you," Able said simply as he encountered Ben. "She had me bring her out so she could talk to you. She's waiting over by the office."

Elliott stood hesitant for an instant; then turned and walked swiftly along the pond. He gave no sign of recognition as he approached the cutter; made no salutation as he came near the girl who sat watching him so steadily. He only spoke her name, when he was at her side. She gave him a small, gloved hand and smiled wanly.

"I have come to say many things, Ben," she began in a strange, strained voice. "To beg forgiveness, to beg other things . . . perhaps, to explain a little."

"A week ago tonight,"—struggling, now, to hold her voice steady—"I ran out of the dance hall and on home, thinking that that woman was honest. The time since then, until noon today, has been a nightmare."

"Lydia came to my house at noon. She explained everything. Aunt Em brought her. Lydia told me everything. . . . It was Mr. Brandon who thought out the plan and forced her to do it under threats of some sort. She didn't tell us what the threats were but left our house for the train and is gone from Tincup forever. . . . And I've come to tell you how miserable I feel to think that I was weak enough to act as Mr. Brandon seemed to be sure I would act. . . ."

Relief was singing through Elliott's relief and a great joy, lifting him above rage for Brandon.

"Oh, I'm glad!" he said earnestly. "I've . . . Why, it completely knocked me off my pins! Dawn, it's been terrible for you but . . . but this makes me so happy!"

"I'm happy because you are happy," she said, but something in her tone and expression dampened his enthusiasm, checked his soaring spirits. She was so calm, so steady, so restrained; her mood was not at all that of one who was coming joyously to wipe out heart-breaking misunderstanding. "And I'll never forgive myself for . . ."

for falling into the trap that was set for me, Ben!"

"Why shouldn't you? Any girl would have felt as you did. . . . But it's explained, now. Let's forget it and begin where we left off and find peace and—"

The sharp shake of her head and the quick withdrawal of her hand cut him off.

"There are sterner things to think of, first; quite different things, Ben. That is why I came out here, to talk to you about Bart Delaney. Able has told me what happened yesterday. You don't take it seriously enough. Keep safe until you're certain that the danger is past."

"Hide and skulk while other men protect me? A man can't do that, Dawn! I'll be on my guard, of course. But I can't run away from anybody who is trying to strike from behind. What would these boys here on the job think of me if I did? If I do the safe thing and think of my own skin, some of our workers will tumble to the fact that I've no more courage than most of them, less than plenty. I can't let them down, you see, and still keep my standing in their eyes."

"It isn't worth it, Ben! It's my job, my property you're taking these risks for. It isn't fair to me!"

"I can argue that. I'm not anxious to be put out of the picture, yet a while. I'll keep my eyes open. I've already made the move that should stop Delaney from trying me again. Able and the others have gotten you all in a flutter, Dawn. Don't worry. I'm coming to Tincup tonight and I'm going to appear to be thinking about nothing but the errands I have to do. Every second, I'll be on the watch for a crooked move from anybody. I promise you that. And when I've shown myself to people I'll come to see you and talk you into the same way of looking at this situation."

She shook her head.

"I'm asking two things of you. The first is to stay here; the other is not to come to see me. . . . Please!"

She put a hand on his with that plea, and he frowned.

"I can understand your being a little timid about having me around town but I can convince you that I'm right. It's Brandon or me, now, you see. If I run, he wins. . . . But this other: Dawn, don't you want me to see you?"

The girl's lips worked.

"No," she said, ever so faintly. "No. . . . Oh, please don't argue with me, Ben! Please don't come to see me. You don't understand. You may never understand. . . . But I'm begging you from the bottom of my heart not to come and see me again!"

"No, I don't understand. It's . . . why, it's . . ."

He laughed aloud at his own bewilderment and Able, in the near distance, mistook that laugh born of distress for one of relief and came toward them.

"Well, have you two got matters cleared up?" he asked.

Dawn nodded silently.

"Some things are cleared up," Elliott said. "But there are others. . . . Dawn, won't you explain?"

The girl turned her face to Able.

"I'm ready to go home now," she said weakly.

Up to Rural Spinners

The interdependence of all groups in a nation is illustrated by the amusing claim that the strength and prowess of England is indirectly in the hands of its rural spinners. They keep the cats that kill the field mice that eat the bumblebees that fertilize the red clover that is needed by the cattle that produce the good beef that builds the brawn of the country.—Collier's Weekly.

BELGIAN CONGO IS RICH IN RESOURCES

Tremendous Strides Made in March of Progress.

Washington.—News dispatches, reporting the tragic death of six men and a woman in an airplane crash in the Congo jungles, recently drew attention to this huge colonial outpost of Belgium in the heart of Africa. Although the plane was reported "lost" in a vast wilderness, only a short time elapsed before it was found, indicating that even the once primitive western borderland near the Congo river is not as far removed from the influences of civilization as it was only a few years ago.

"Many places in the Congo where the bellow of the elephant, the thrashing of the hippopotamus and crocodile, and the shriek of the chimpanzee alone disturbed aborigines, now echo to the blasts of steamboat and locomotive whistles, the drone of automobile and airplane motors, and the buzz of machinery in palm oil factories," says the National Geographic society. "The half century since the inspiring explorations of Livingstone and Stanley has witnessed tremendous strides in the march of Congo progress."

"The new king of Belgium, Leopold III, rules the colony, annexed by his granduncle in 1908. Having visited there twice as a prince, he is familiar with, and vitally interested in, its economic and commercial problems. Nearly 90 times as large as the mother country, and a third as large as the United States, Belgian Congo is populated by approximately 18,000 white men and more than 9,000,000 natives."

Climate Hinderers.

"Perhaps the greatest stumbling block to progress has been the climate. The temperature, remaining always close to 80 degrees, is accompanied by extreme humidity. In the spring, Belgian Congo prepares for one of its two seasons of heaviest rainfall. The other is in October, when the sun again moves across the Equator. But in spite of climatic hazards, the tramp-tramp of western progress has surged forward."

"The dark cloud of depression that has hung over the world showed at least one silver lining as it passed over the Congo. During prosperous days, the development of agriculture was side-tracked in favor of mining. With the advent of economic distress, the government has been encouraged by a 'return to the soil' movement that has seen cotton, coffee, and rice pass from experimental to staple production."

"Palm growing is an important industry. Its nut-oil and kernel products are a dependable source of income—the United States being the best customer."

"Two-thirds of the colony's wealth is in minerals, copper being the most important. More than 3,900,000 carats of diamonds were mined in 1932. Gold, radium, and tin also rank high as revenue sources, but Congo coal is inferior, being almost worthless for industrial uses."

"Despite the recent unstable condition of world markets, it is an interesting fact that dealers in American-made automobiles found business quite good in the Belgian Congo. Belgium has continued a policy of building good roads into remote districts of its African colony. Some 24,000 miles of highway have been laid, supplementing 2,780 miles of railroad."

Great Trade Artery.

"The great trade artery of the colony, however, is the Congo river. Ninety-five miles above its mouth, at Matadi, several rapids halt steamers. A railroad line links Matadi with Leopoldville, the capital, busy doorway to the interior. Here again the Congo becomes navigable for 1,068 miles to Coquilhatville, Stanleyville, and Stanley Falls."

"Above Stanley falls the Congo becomes the Luabala river, navigable for 585 miles, bending toward the southeastern town of Katanga via Ponthierville, Kindu, Kongolo, and Kabalo. Many of these important villages, as well as Bandundu, Port Franciquil, Luebo, Boma (at the mouth of the Congo), Inongo, Basankusu, Lisala, and Basoko are served by air routes. The southern part of Belgian Congo is linked by railway with the Union of South Africa and the Portuguese colony of Angola."

"The present colonial government encourages all efforts to educate its native subjects. The burden of instruction is carried mainly by missionary workers, both Catholic and Protestant."

"Government subsidies have been granted in some instances, in order that their work might proceed. French is taught as soon as native pupils are able to learn the language. Instruction in agriculture, carpentry, and metal working is offered in several schools."

South Africa Booms Wheat

Montreal.—Canada's trade with South Africa has increased so greatly that one steamship company here has been forced to press five extra ships into service. The ships are "added starts." The company's regular four freighters on the route will run on their usual schedules.

COAST GUARD'S JOB IN ALASKA VARIED

Service Lives Up to Motto "Always Ready."

Juneau, Alaska.—"Semper Paratus—Always Ready" motto of the United States coast guard, is most effectively carried out in the Alaska division of the service.

Guardsmen are prepared, day and night, to rush food to starving villages, administer justice in remote communities, rescue crews of ice-bound whalers or tend sick and injured at remote Eskimo outposts.

Each of the five coast guard boats cruising in and out of rocky fjords or through ice floes is a store, post office, police court, battleship and hospital, all in one.

The story of Alaska is associated closely with the coast guard, for in 1867, when Secretary of State William H. Seward bought the vast territory, it was the old cutter Lincoln that was sent to survey the new possession.

Many thrilling rescues in the far north are part of coast guard history. In 1884 the old cutter Bear saved the lives of General Greeley and his men—the same general, now ninety-one, who was rewarded this spring by congress for his Arctic explorations.

Another dramatic rescue by the Bear was that of the crew of the foundered whaling ship Napoleon, in 1890. Information of the Napoleon's plight, scribbled in Eskimo on a piece of board, was passed from village to village, until it finally reached the Bear.

The coast guard brought the first reindeer to Alaska from Siberia in the '90s and under its watchful eye the Pribilof island seal herd has increased by more than ten times in the last 25 years.

One cutter will make two hasty trips to Point Barrow this summer, carrying supplies to government employees at that remote station. Two will follow the Bering sea seal herds to protect them from poachers. The others will patrol villages and aid fishermen and shipping, if needed.

Romanoff Has Modest Home Near Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh. — Gregory Romanoff cherishes no delusions of the grandeur he and his wife once knew.

The son of an officer in the czar's imperial army, reconciled to the loss of his ancestral estate in Russia, he has received his first naturalization papers.

With his wife and four daughters, Romanoff lives in a modest four-room dwelling in the nearby borough of Homestead, and ekes out an even more modest living by teaching Russian at church schools and directing choral groups.

Of necessity, the daughters will be denied the advantages of luxury and of education in exclusive seminaries such as their parents knew in an Ukrainian province years ago.

Romanoff makes no pretense of royal lineage, although he traces the family name to Alexander the Third. His father once was asked by the czar to change his name in order that "Romanoff" might be reserved for the royal family. But his father declined, even though a handsome cash settlement was offered.

When rumblings of the revolution broke upon the Russian scene, Romanoff and his bride fled by different routes to Canada. They were wistful hope some day to reclaim their home vanished with the Soviet rise to power, and they settled here.

Grass Seed Harvest Is Ample This Year

Supplies of grass seeds commonly used by Michigan farmers will be much more ample this year than in 1934 when unfavorable weather conditions caused a very short crop, according to reports from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The timothy seed crop is expected to be seven or eight times as large as the record small crop of last year, ranging from twice to more than 50 times as great in portions of important producing districts. It may even exceed the 1931 crop and be the largest since 1927. The increase probably is greatest in Iowa, northern Missouri, central Illinois and southern Minnesota. The timothy seed acreage is much larger this year than last.

Growers indicate quality of the 1935 timothy crop will be good. That of the 1934 crop was fair to poor. Conditions for harvesting were excellent in most sections. Prices to growers averaged $3.35 per hundred pounds the latter part of July as compared with $9.05 last year and a 5-year (1928-1932) average of $3.25.

The Kentucky bluegrass seed crop is estimated by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its late June report to be over five times as great as the small 1934 crop, or about 2,000,000 bushels of rough, cured seed, as compared with 375,000 bushels last year, 1,300,000 bushels in 1933 and 1,400,000 in 1932. In both Kentucky and the western district, much of the seed was discolored because of frequent rains and lack of sunshine. The carryover, estimated at about 2,500,000 pounds of clean seed, is the smallest since 1931.

The production of redtop seed is expected to exceed that of last year by at least 50 percent. The average yield per acre reported by growers is about 50 pounds of fan-cy seed, compared with 38 pounds last year. Quality is expected to be fair to good and better than last year. The meadow fescue seed crop is expected to be nearly twice as large as last year. The production of orchard grass seed is expected to be one-fourth to one-half larger than the small 1934 crop of 175,000 bushels.

Greeks Considered the Feet

The ancient Greek ideal of the foot was that of an undeveloped hand and they endeavored in their sculpture to impart that hand-like character to their feet.
