Mrs. Nettie Schall of Caro was elected school examiner for a two year term and W. J. Kirk of Fairgrove superintendent of the poor for three years. Both were the unanimous choice of the board of supervisors.

Owing to seats in the court room of the court house having been defaced, presumably by persons attending public meetings in that room, the supervisors have ruled that the court room be used for court purposes only. An unoccupied room in the basement of the court house can be fitted, at little expense, for the holding of public meetings and the building committee was directed to make the necessary alterations to prepare the room for that purpose.

Delegations from Home Management clubs of Tuscola county came before the board Wednesday and asked for a full time demonstration agent in the county, the supervisors to appropriate approximately $600 annually toward the expense. Mrs. A. N. Bigelow of Cass City, Mrs. Lester of Mayville, Mrs. Foster of Fostoria and Mrs. Kirk of Fairgrove presented the project to the board for their consideration. The supervisors voted to consider the matter at a later date in the October session.

The report of E. L. Benton, county agricultural agent, showed expenses of $1,253.32 from Jan. 1, 1935, to Sept. 30, 1935, divided as follows: Stenographer, $453.09; agricultural committee, $28.52; office expense, $251.00; mileage, $500.00; Turn to page 4, please.

Ladies' Band Clears $83.40 on Drama

The colorful Biblical drama and pageant, "The First Commandment," was most successfully presented by local talent here with a cast of 80 characters on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, under the direction of Miss Mary Pugh, representative of the American Educational Co.

It is some task to get up a cast of such proportions and train for such a difficult production in less than two weeks' time. Substitutions had to be made and others drilled at the last minute, but when the curtain rose Tuesday night the drama was excellently presented by the cast. The same was true on Wednesday night. Lighting effects added to the charm of the drama. The cast, with few exceptions, appeared on the stage, as printed in the Chronicle last week.

The stirring dramatic scenes were interspersed with music by a mixed chorus stationed in the balcony of the high school auditorium, who sang "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Glory to Isis" from the opera Aida and other numbers, climaxing with the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah.

According to the director, Miss Pugh, the cast did exceptionally fine work. "It is one of the finest casts it has been my privilege to work with," she said. "The full cast grasped the dramatic significance of each scene which is unusual when one is working with such a large number. Cass City should be proud of its splendid local talent."

The drama was sponsored by the Cass City Ladies' Band and they realized $83.40 as their share of the proceeds.

FIND GREAT NUMBER OF BORERS IN CORN

Severe Losses Expected Next Year Unless Control Measures Are Used.

Favorable weather conditions this year have permitted a great increase in the number of European corn borers in Michigan corn and there is apt to be considerable damage done next year by this insect unless control measures are used, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

Heavy infestations of the borer are reported from Huron, Tuscola, Saginaw, Monroe, and other counties. Reports have also been made of the presence of this pest in the more northern corn growing counties. Eighty per cent of the stalks in some fields have been damaged by the tunneling of borers, and 75 per cent of the stalks in some fields were weakened enough so they were broken down by the wind.

A strain of borer resistant corn has been developed at the college but there is not enough seed available so any can be distributed. This resistant corn is being increased as rapidly as possible so seed will be available in a few years.

Control measures to reduce the numbers of borers next spring should include placing in the silo or shredding stalks, clean fall or early spring plowing, and the collection and burning of all remnants of corn stalks or stubble left in the fields. If any unshredded corn stalks are fed, the portion left uneaten by livestock should be raked up and burned before May 30.

Avis Sangster and Ralph Youngs Marry

At the Michigan Avenue Baptist church in Saginaw on Saturday, October 19, at 2:00 p. m., occurred the marriage of Miss Avis Sangster, daughter of William G. Sangster, of Decker and Mr. Ralph A. Youngs, son of Mrs. Carrie Youngs, of Cass City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Donald T. Grey and the couple was attended by Miss Agnes E. Reid of Saginaw and Joseph E. Quinn of Mt. Morris. The bride was attired in royal blue chiffon velvet and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and white bebe chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid wore wine chiffon velvet and her flowers were tea roses and yellow bebe chrysanthemums.

Following the marriage rite, a wedding dinner was served at Gratia Inn.

Mrs. Youngs was formerly a teacher in the Saginaw public schools. Mr. Youngs is employed by the Chevrolet Motor company in Flint and the couple will make their home in the latter city.

After a short wedding trip through Canada, visiting Niagara Falls, Buffalo, N. Y., and other cities, they will make their home in Saginaw, where the groom has a position.

trucks. He commenced his work there Saturday morning and is being assisted by his brother, Leo Asher.

Manley Asher had his right ankle broken in a baseball game on Decoration day, playing with the Cass City team. After being "laid up" for many weeks with the injury, the ankle bones finally knit. For some time, he has been "fit as a fiddle" to do a day's work in his chosen occupation.

Rotarians Get Started on 1936 Minstrel Show

At a recent meeting of the Rotary club at the Gordon Tavern, Frederick Pinney announced the appointment of the following committees for the promotion of "The Minstrels of 1936," a 100% home talent production, which will be presented on Wednesday evening, Feb. 12. The minstrels will be sponsored by the Rotary club and the proceeds will be devoted to the crippled children's fund of that organization. The committees:

Advertising—S. Champion, Kenneth Kelly. Tickets—L. I. Wood, M. B. Auten, E. B. Schwaderer.

Stage properties—J. I. Niergarth, D. A. Krug. Production—G. W. Landon, W. L. Mann, I. D. McCoy, Willis Campbell. Mr. Pinney will devote considerable of his time in assisting this committee.

Pinch-hitting for talent which failed to appear for the Rotary club program Tuesday, G. W. Landon told members of the society of his recent trip to Boston and other points in the east and in Canada. The tale was related in typical Landon style to the enjoyment and amusement of the group.

In Six Months, Township Road System Will Be Relic of Bygone Era in Michigan

Six more months and the township road system will be a relic of a bygone era in Michigan.

Funeral services for the township road, one of the oldest of Michigan institutions, will take place April 1, 1936. At that time county road commissions throughout the state will take over the last parcel of township road mileage remaining in the respective counties.

To accomplish the transition counties have been receiving an increased allocation from state highway revenues yearly. This year the amount is $3,500,000 and next year and annually thereafter it will be increased to $4,000,000.

The allocation which started in 1932 and has increased $500,000 every year was allocated by the legislature on the basis of township road mileage in 1931. Most of the counties say that their allocation is sufficient to take care of the

HENDRICK FARM BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Threshing Crew Worked Hard to Save Granary from Flames.

While hauling a threshing separator with a tractor between a straw stack and the basement barn on the farm of Orson and Theodore Hendrick, 4 miles west and 1 1/2 miles south of Cass City, a spark from the tractor set fire to the straw stack Saturday afternoon. Within a few minutes, the straw was a mass of flames and the fire was quickly communicated to the barn. The threshing crew, fighting valiantly, had a hard time saving the near-by granary.

With the barn, 36x40 feet in size, there were destroyed 25 to 30 tons of hay and five loads of unthreshed beans. The beans had been unloaded on the barn floor. The silo, a cement structure was unharmed and practically all the silage will be available for feed. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Cass City Plays at Sebewaing Today

Cass City will travel to Sebewaing this Friday and try to extend her string of victories to 21.

Sebewaing is still undefeated this season and will offer plenty of stiff opposition. As usual, the Maroon and Grey will be outwitted, but their speed and fight are being relied upon to carry them through.

The loss of Junior Boulton, who injured his hand in the battle against Caro, will be keenly felt. However, Bob Gallagher or Frank Fort, whichever one is used, can be depended upon to give a good account of himself. Quick may also be lost to the squad because of infection from boils.

The fact that Cass City has scored 108 points, against 14, in Thumb competition, and 7 of those by Vassar against a second team, would tend to make them favorite in this game today. Sebewaing's record is nearly as impressive, however, and they have been consistently the toughest opposition for a long time for a Cass City team.

The local's next home game will bring a flashy team from Saginaw Eastern to the home gridiron. This contest will take place on Saturday, Nov. 2, at 3:30. This will make the second Class A school to be played by the Maroon and Grey this year.

Mrs. C. L. Graham Elected President of County Federation

Mrs. Chester L. Graham of Cass City was elected president of the Tuscola County Federation of Women's Clubs at the annual meeting in the Presbyterian church in Caro on Wednesday. Mrs. Graham has served the county organization as vice president for the past two years and has also been president of the local Woman's Study Club for two years. Other newly elected county officers are: Vice president, Mrs. Charles N. Race, Caro; recording secretary, Mrs. Fritz, Akron; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Hitchcock, Kingston; treasurer, Mrs. Halstead, Vassar.

Mrs. Arlie Hopkins, recording secretary of the state federation, was the principal speaker of the morning session of the convention and Dr. J. Leslie French, pastor of the Caro Presbyterian church, gave an address on "Revision of the Bible" as the main feature in the afternoon.

Luncheon was served at noon in the Baptist church and tea was enjoyed at the close of the day's sessions.

Next year's meeting will be held in Vassar, the junior and senior clubs of that city acting as joint hostesses.

Mrs. C. L. Graham, Mrs. Donahue, Mrs. R. M. Taylor, Mrs. Raymond McCullough, Mrs. G. A. Tindale and Mrs. M. D. Hart of Cass City attended Wednesday's convention.

SURVEYORS START ON CARO-CASS CITY ROAD

Tests Taken Every 1/4 Mile to Determine the Gravel Depth.

Surveyors from the State Highway Department started this week in testing the gravel depth on M-81 between Caro and Cass City to determine what additional gravel, if any, must be added to the road bed base to prepare the road for an oil aggregate top. These tests are being made every quarter mile. The oil aggregate top, it is said, will be from 20 to 21 feet in width. The grade will be widened where necessary.

Early in October it was announced that Tuscola county had been allotted $216,511 in PWA funds for road improvement on M-81 between Cass City and Caro as a part of a federal appropriation for Michigan projects.

Harry L. Pierson, Michigan PWA administrator, on Wednesday announced at Detroit that Michigan was allocated $9,822,352 for 63 counties. Sums set aside for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties and the amounts to be furnished by local communities are:

Tuscola County. Caro, improve 15 miles of county road M-81. Federal $216,511; sponsor, $5,622.

MARVIN MOORE DIED IN HIS 95TH YEAR

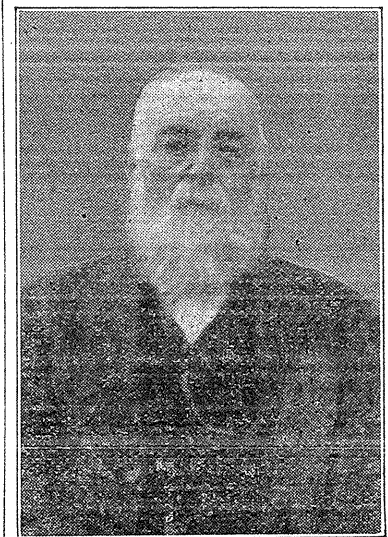

Early Resident of Grant Twp. Laid to Rest on Monday.

Marvin W. Moore, a pioneer resident of Grant township, passed away on Saturday morning, Oct. 19, at the age of 94 years, at the home of his grandson, Arthur Moore.

Funeral services were conducted at the Grant M. E. church on Monday afternoon by Rev. George T. Nevin. Interment was in Elkland cemetery.

Marvin W. Moore was born in Beverly township, Ontario, on December 3, 1840. On Sept. 30, 1861, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Jennings. This union continued for over 60 years, when on March 14, 1922, the wife and mother passed away.

Mr. Moore first came to Michigan in 1879. Leaving a boat at Port Sanilac, he walked by way of Cass City and Gagetown to the home of a cousin about three miles southeast of Unionville. In 1881, he moved his family to land he had bought in Section 26, Grant. He often spoke of the Columbia swamp, which at the time of his walk through it, had a corduroy road for several miles which were uninhabited.

In early life, he served several years as justice of the peace, and for many years as school director, Sunday School superintendent and trustee of Grant M. E. church. His name has stood in late years at the head of the list as honorary chairman of the church board. Mr. Moore delighted in his advanced

Crandell Makes First Michigan Entry at Chicago

Distinction for having made Michigan's first live stock entry for the 1935 International Live Stock Exposition to be held at Chicago, Nov. 30 to Dec. 7, goes to a Tuscola county farm boy, Harry Crandell, Jr.

Crandell has sent word that he is fitting a pen of Southdown wether lambs for the contests of the Exposition's Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest, an event which is limited to the participation of exhibitors between the ages of ten and twenty. According to officials of the show, his entry is also the first to be received for the junior contest.

Although the closing date for making entries in the classes for individual animals does not close until November 1, the management feels confident that when all nominations are in, the number will be well over the 12,000 mark. Additional facilities over last year's are being constructed with this in view, says Secretary-manager B. H. Heide. Held in connection with the live stock exposition is the International Grain and Hay Show. Growers of nearly every state in the Union and province of Canada will be represented in this competition by samples of the past season's harvests.

CORRECTION.

In the account of the accident at the Elkland cemetery corner, a mile east of Cass City, on Oct. 15, the Chronicle last week stated that the car driven by Leslie Doerr had faulty brakes and for that reason the driver was unable to make the turn and continued south for a short distance. Mrs. John Doerr, mother of the young man, says that the statement is incorrect and that the brakes on the car were in good condition. The high school students in the car, she says, went on the road east of the cemetery and south of M-81 for a distance of about a half mile as a part of their trip.

The British battleship the "Hood" cost thirty-two million dollars to build. In ten years it will be obsolete, and will be junk. Here is a splendid example of the waste of money necessary because nations have not yet learned to live together in peace. If all the money for war and the things that go with it could have been put in useful and cultural things and things that add to the comfort and enjoyment of living, the world by this time would have been completely transformed.

The depression will have served some little useful purpose, if it has taught even a few spendthrifts that in spite of seemingly popular opinion to the contrary there is some virtue in thrift.

Very often the Jones' would not be so disturbed over the showing the Smiths are making if they could see into the village banker's note case and know how the Smiths are doing it.

The best argument we have seen in favor of an inheritance tax is Barbara Hutton, the heiress of the Woolworth ten cent store millions. With a fortune of $40,000,000, this heiress leaves this country and marries into the foreign nobility, taking her fortune with her. Why not keep a portion of it in this country instead of allowing it all to get away to bolster up the shaky fortunes of a foreign royalty.

Some one has said: "It is just three generations from overalls to overalls" meaning that the children and grandchildren were seldom able to hold together the riches their fathers and grandfathers acquired. Perhaps this is the Lord's plan for "sharing the wealth."

This nation could have a larger outlet of its agricultural products in the markets of other nations if it would permit these other nations to market their manufactured products in the United States, and thereby exchange one service for another. The manufacturers, however, are opposed to other nations marketing foreign made goods here because it will reduce the output of the local manufacturer a corresponding amount. Getting the two balanced so that each will share alike and neither one profit at the expense of the other is one of the nice problems in economics that leaders of the day have to solve.

It seems that the poorer a man is as a speaker the easier it is to get him to talk.

We note that the treasuries of the national committees of both major parties are empty, in fact that of the Democratic committee is something like $400,000 overdrawn. We can understand how the treasury of the Republican national committee might be empty but if the Democrats can't collect enough from the multitude of office holders now on the pay roll they have less ability as financiers that we have been led to believe they possess.

After gathering the more or less fullsome details offered by our daily regarding the futile attempt of John Barrymore to escape from a fair maiden in a race across the continent, our conclusion is that the big boys who have the streamline trains and the airplanes at their command don't use any better brand of common sense about some things than the less well advertised portion of the population.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-siphon action is assisted by two cen-trifugal water pumps. New style hood louvres permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electri-cally welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hun-dreds have written grateful letters be-cause this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

White Snakeroot Poisons Animals

Dairy Products or Meat of Stock Affected Causes Serious Illness.

Supplied by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois—WNU Service.

Heavy rains which have made Illinois pastures luxuriant this year have not ended the danger of white snakeroot poisoning to man and to live stock during the coming few months.

Even though pasture grass is abundant, animals may eat the leaves of the poisonous white snakeroot weed from time to time. Overstocked pastures, even if they are good ones, increase the risks from the poisoning, which occurs every year.

Persons using dairy products or meat of animals affected by "trembles," as white snakeroot poisoning is known, may contract milk sickness, an ailment which runs a rapid course and has a high mortality rate.

Keeping live stock away from white snakeroot and eradicating the weed from pastures and wood lots are the only sure ways of preventing the poisoning. Treatments thus far developed are far from satisfactory. Tremetol is the toxic agent in the plant and is absorbed into the animal's system when the plant is eaten, according to Dr. Robert Graham, chief in animal pathology and hygiene at the college.

The plant is a tall, slender perennial herb which usually grows in partially cleared woodlots, swampy areas, shady ravines and in groves along streams. The greatest danger is through summer, until late in the fall. This is especially true during dry years when pastures are short and dry. White snakeroot can generally be recognized by its broadly oval leaves, set opposite each other and having sharply toothed, or serrated, edges. The non-poisonous varieties usually have narrower leaves.

In small patches the weed is best eradicated by pulling each plant by the roots. In large patches, proper cropping is the most satisfactory means of eradication. Live stock should be kept out of pastures containing any of the weed.

Weakness, loss of appetite, constipation and a trembling of the voluntary muscles when the animal is forced to move are among the early symptoms of poisoning. When these symptoms are observed the stock should be taken from pasture and a reliable veterinarian called. The immediate attention of a physician should be given to cases of milk sickness among humans.

Spring Tooth Implement Kills Out Quack Grass

A new way to rout that old pest quack grass is by the use of the field tiller, an implement equipped with spring teeth. The method is 99 per cent effective. With this implement, tillage is started in mid-summer, just as soon as quack grass hay or small grain is removed from the field. The quack roots are none too vigorous then.

Without previous cultivation, the tiller is taken over the field, teeth set to dig about an inch or two deep. In a few days, when the field starts to get green, the tiller goes over it again, this time crosswise and with teeth set an inch or so deeper. This procedure is continued until freezing weather arrives, by which time the ground will have been stirred six inches deep or more. Freezing will destroy most of the roots that haven't been killed by that time.

Then in spring go over the ground once or twice more and it is ready for planting. Remember, though: Each time over, go a different direction, and go a little deeper.—Farm Journal.

Breeding Dairy Heifers

No arbitrary age can be set for breeding dairy heifers, according to an authority, as this is determined by the maturity of the individual animal. The feeding schedule also enters into this question as those animals that are fed a liberal grain ration will mature more rapidly than those receiving a limited ration of grain. As a general rule, however, Jersey and Guernsey heifers should be bred to freshen at from twenty-four to thirty months of age. Ayrshire and Holstein animals should be bred to freshen from twenty-seven to thirty-two months of age.

Around the Farm

Farmers of Palestine are enjoying prosperity this year.

Growing corn in hills is a practice taught to early settlers by Indians.

A fairly common practice in Great Britain is that of selling fields of potatoes and orchards of fruit in bulk.

The Bee Culture laboratory says that there are about 5,000 bees in a pound and that a hive of 20,000 would therefore weigh four pounds.

About 30,000 acres of peat land in New York state have been drained and cleared for crop production.

National Dairy Products Situation

During the past year and sometime previous to that, all milk produced by farmers for the fluid milk market not needed in daily sales, was paid for according to the Chicago butter market. Up to the present time, 42% of the milk shipped by the nearly 14,000 producers of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, in the Detroit market, is in Class II and III. The price for this milk is determined by the Chicago butter market plus certain percentages. Chicago 92-score butter last month averaged 25.4c per pound, which is a half cent per pound higher than a year ago.

Up to October 1 butter production decreased 24,879,000 pounds compared with that same period a year ago. This is no doubt due to there being less dairy cows on farms this year, compared with a year ago, even though pasture conditions have been considerably improved this year.

The cold storage holdings this year are 23,619,000 pounds larger than a year ago. During this same period 21,826,263 pounds of butter have been imported into this country, while only 500,881 pounds were exported.

If butter had no substitute there would be no extra butter at the present time. Since January 1st, 248,046,577 pounds of oleo were manufactured. This shows an increase of 97,157,311 pounds of oleo manufactured compared with the same period of a year ago.

Brazil's Venice

Pernambuco is called the Brazilian Venice because of its canals, deepened to obtain filler for lowlands. The city is the easternmost in South America and the white-crested surf of the clear Atlantic never ceases beating upon its shores. In the old part of the city the streets are narrow and the houses tall, the idea being to obtain the maximum of shade.

Scene on the Severn River.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

TOWN after town, each with an interesting "history," is threaded along the Severn river, which disputes with the Thames the title of England's longest stream.

The first town on the infant river is Llanidloes, and here one sees the first and one of the quaintest of the old market halls which will be encountered in a pilgrimage along the Severn, and one, moreover, which still treasures its curfew bell.

Although the market hall is sadly in the way of modern traffic, making the approach from the upper Severn bridge to the main street narrow and dangerous, the adjacent streets are of ample width and pleasant avenues of trees. On market days, no doubt, the traffic is congested enough, for Llanidloes cattle and sheep markets are still important local events.

Farther down the valley, on the outskirts of Newtown, a large wooden hall by the roadside attracts attention. It is too large for the needs of a town of some 5,000 inhabitants and too far from the center of the town for everyday use. There is only one notice board to be seen, and that says, "Choirs only this way." Obviously, for choral festivals.

Even a small town like this can hope for the honor of staging the national festival, the Eisteddfod. Sometimes, as in this instance, it means providing a hall capable of accommodating an audience larger than the entire population of the town which built it; but it is done. The ceremony of the crowning of the bard takes place on an open hillside, for no building could accommodate the immense concourse of patriots who gather for that event.

Robert Owen Was Born in Newtown. The most famous son of Newtown was Robert Owen, pioneer of co-operative stores. Born in 1771, he was also a pioneer, from the masters' side, of more humane factory legislation, at a time when the industrial revolution was at its most ruthless stage. He spent some time in the United States and worked to promote Anglo-American friendship. His birthplace has been pulled down, but the bank which now occupies the site, provided compensation by forming a memorial museum and library, including a reproduction of the room in which Owen was born.

Montgomery, the capital of the county of the same name, through which the Severn flows in Wales, lies a short distance away from the river, almost forgotten by the rush of modern life, dreaming peacefully of its troubled history. Its neighbor, Welshpool, takes the busy current of the present-day traffic.

Where Old Parr Lived. On the hillside near Middletown is Old Parr's cottage, where Thomas Parr lived in the reign of ten kings and queens of England. At the age of 152 he was taken to London to be exhibited to the king, Charles I, but died a few months later. The doctors, after a post-mortem examination, attributed his untimely death to this removal, for they reported: "In short, his inward parts appeared so healthy that if he had not changed his diet and air, he might perhaps have lived a good while longer." He continued his work as a farmer till he was 130 years old.

A few coracles, of a type familiar since the days of the ancient Britons, are still used by local fishermen. These oval boats are very light to carry, but clumsy to handle in the water. They are composed of a frame of wickerwork covered with skins or, nowadays, with oil-cloth.

The Severn still yields salmon to its fishermen, but not in such abundance as in days gone by, when an apprentice's indentures often contained a clause to prevent his master economizing by feeding him on fresh salmon more often than twice a week!

From Welshpool to Shrewsbury the country is very flat, so the Severn is here remarkable for nothing except its windings. Its first important tributary, the Vyrnwy, joins it as it enters England, in Shropshire. Near the Junction is a village so subject to floods that it was called locally "Wolverly. God help 'em."

Since the Liverpool corporation turned Lake Vyrnwy into a reservoir for part of their water supply, the floods have been to some slight extent under control.

Shrewsbury Is Very Ancient. In one of the loops made by the Severn several miles farther down stands Shrewsbury, a town full of varied interest. There has been a settlement here at least since the sacking of the Roman city of Uriconium, six miles to the southeast in 584. Pengwern, as it was called, was for some time the capital of the kings of Powis, before the castle at Welshpool was built. The Saxons called the town Scrobbesbyrig, which time has mellowed into the present Shrewsbury.

When the Normans came they recognized what an ideal spot it was for defense, surrounded on all sides by the river except where a steep rock closed the gap. The Conqueror entrusted the building of the castle to his kinsman, Roger de Montgomery, and this building has been restored recently and presented to the town out of the profits made by Shrewsbury's famous flower show—the arts of peace thus rescuing a relic of war.

Shrewsbury, like Banbury, is also noted for its cakes, and one shop owes its fame to the mention of its name by a minor poet. In "The Ingoldsby Legends" the story is told of a local bluebeard. The heroine gets past the ferocious dog who guards the chamber of horrors by feeding him on the contents of her basket. "She has given him a Shrewsbury cake of Palin's own make," and the successor of that worthy confectioner still finds that line his own best advertisement.

In the stirring days of border warfare, Shrewsbury held the responsible office of the northern warden of the marches, with Ludlow, on the tributary Teme, taking equal responsibility at the southern end.

Besides its border warfare, Shrewsbury witnessed one critical fight in English history, the battle which is familiar to all lovers from Shakespeare's description of it in "Henry IV." The turning point in this conflict was the death of Hotspur, which Falstaff himself claimed to have encompassed after a duel lasting "a long hour by Shrewsbury clock."

Shakespeare permits himself almost as much poetical license as he allows his mock-valiant knight in giving the glory to Prince Hal. The prince was but fifteen at the time, and although he came fresh from helping to defend his title of Prince of Wales, and not from tavern revelry, and although he fought bravely in this, his first pitched battle, he would have been no match for his doughty opponent, a tough veteran of thirty-nine. Sober history records that Percy Hotspur was not slain until he was completely surrounded by his foes.

As the rebels proposed to divide the kingdom into three parts, their victory would probably have put back the clock of English history for at least a century.

Home of Two Famous Men. Shrewsbury's most famous son, Darwin, began another kind of battle—a battle of ideas—with his theory of evolution; and, although the battle ground is changing, the fight he commenced still goes on. A statue to his memory stands in front of the old grammar school, now the public library.

Near the Old Market hall stands a statue to another famous son of Shropshire, Lord Clive, who helped to lay the foundations of British rule over India.

The old Roman road, Watling street, crossed the Severn a few miles lower down, near Wroxeter, and turned southward, toward South Wales, another branch running northward toward Chester. Just behind Wroxeter are the ruins of the important Roman city, Uriconum, or Viroconium. The excavations prove it to have been of considerable size, larger than Pompeii, though not as rich in treasures.

South and west of Wroxeter rises the long slope of Wenlock Edge, celebrated in song, with the delightful ruins of Wenlock Abbey nestling beneath it. To the east of Wroxeter, the Wrekin, 1,335 feet high, gains by its solitude a dignity to which its height alone would not entitle it. Remains of a British camp can be clearly traced on its summit, and the panorama it commands is a fine one.

INDIANA PEOPLE SAY THEIR HEALTH TROUBLES VANISHED MONTHS AGO

Prominent Residents Tell of Long-Time Afflictions That Disappeared So Completely They Don't Need Medicine Now.

Many Say the New Mixture of Extracts From Nature's Plants, Called Indo-Vin, Was a "Blessing" to Their Health.

The suffering public has long needed a medicine that will bring more than just temporary relief. Many people in this immediate vicinity who took a short course of Indo-Vin as long as a YEAR AGO say they got such lasting benefits that they have NEVER needed medicine since. Report after report is being received from former sufferers and a few of their actual statements appear in this announcement.

Local druggists and the general public have been astounded at the work of Indo-Vin, which is a new, scientific compound of medicinal plants and is being introduced here in Cass City at Burke's Drug Store. Prominent people say that nothing like it has ever been seen here before.

Why It Works So Completely!

Indo-Vin is not a "patent" medicine but a new, improved system-cleanser containing a combination of Natural plant extracts found in no other known formula. It is taken after meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, helping Nature throw off poisons that foster stomach troubles and permitting the kidneys and liver to do their work.

It acts within 10 minutes to stop acid risings, bloat and belching; it will work on those gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside you for a long time. Thus Indo-Vin gives actual relief from headaches, dizzy spells, bladder irritations and weakness, spots before the eyes, swelling of ankles and rheumatic pain. It will help remove the poisons that have caused you many days of misery and benefit the system in general.

Following are JUST TWO testimonials, selected from among the HUNDREDS that are being received from this vicinity, praising the Indo-Vin, describing its action and urging ALL WHO SUFFER to get it and take it. Read these statements:

Misery In Kidneys Gone 9 Months!

MR. GLENN SMITH, of 3102 Winch Street, Fort Wayne, says: (photo appears above) "It has been NINE MONTHS since I took Indo-Vin and that awful misery in my back has never returned. Before that time my kidneys kept me in CONSTANT misery. In fact, I had to keep rising with my kidneys all night long, which broke up my sleep and rest, and when I got up in the mornings I was so stiff and sore in my back that I could hardly WALK. Indo-Vin worked the misery out of my whole body. I can go to bed and sleep, without having to get up and down all night, and I have no kidney misery in my back. And now I have been FREE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE for more than nine months."

Freed of Stomach Agony Ten Months!

MRS. ANNA PIERCE, of 907 E. Monroe St., Kokomo, Ind., says: "I have been free of stomach trouble nearly a YEAR, and I don't need medicine anymore, since I took Indo-Vin ten months ago. I tried everything under the sun but nothing helped me until I got Indo-Vin, and now the awful gas misery is gone and the dizzy spells and sick headaches don't come over me. And just think, I have enjoyed this good health almost a year since Indo-Vin brought me relief."

Indo-Vin is NOW BEING introduced to the public daily here in Cass City at Burke's Drug Store, and sold by all leading druggists in every town throughout this whole section.—Advertisement.

dicare a smaller crop than last year, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

Short crops mean that the forehanded Michigan farmer will assure himself of a supply of adapted seed well ahead of seeding time. Short crops also mean that extra efforts are made by some persons to sell seed which is not suitable for planting in this state.

Hardy, northern grown alfalfa seed should be purchased from reliable dealers, preferably those near home who can be reached easily to make adjustments on any purchases that do not meet the buyer's approval.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The little town of Heron River is eagerly awaiting the arrival of Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community, but known as a gambler, news of whose recent murder in Chicago has reached the town. Sophronia Willard, Jim Grenoble's sister, with whom the girl is to live, is at the railroad depot to meet her. Sophronia's household consists of her husband, and stepsons, Roderick and Jason. On Silver's arrival Duke Melbank, a shiftless youth, makes himself obnoxious. Sophronia slaps him.

CHAPTER II

ON THAT night in July, a night that was moonless but whitely lambent with stars, a southwest wind moved in sultry indolence up across the stupendous void of Dakota, and thence across the state line and over farm lands suddenly lush with yield. It lightly touched Roddy Willard's cheek and stirred his dark, uncovered hair as he drove his car toward Heron River. His thoughts were so intense that every now and then the motor came almost to a halt on the narrow, winding road. At such times he would impatiently apply his foot to the accelerator and continue for a while at a reckless speed.

He did not see the road before him. He saw rather the monotonous panorama of his own life, unrolling backward to the years of his adolescence, when his father had sold the farm in the adjoining county, married Sophronia Grenoble, and moved to the Grenoble place, half of which had become his property. "Gentleman Jim" Grenoble, when he had begun his life of vagabondage, had refused to relinquish his section. But now in the foreground of that panorama, bright and excitingly strange, was the face of Corinne Meader.

In one week Corinne would be his wife. He saw her face as he had seen it that first day, in an ice cream parlor, an hour after he had registered at the State Agricultural college, seven years ago. He had been twenty, older than most of the entrants, and Corinne was seventeen, a freshman in arts at the university. Harry Richter had introduced them, and even now, after everything that had happened, Roddy's heart beat oppressively again as he recalled the widening of Corinne's brown eyes and her slow, thorough survey of him. She had hesitated for a moment and then, glancing with a curious smile at his hand, she had extended her own and in his huge, hard grasp it had been swallowed completely. He had kept his eyes fastened dumbly upon her face and had seen her lids droop in a way that could have been nothing but deliberate coquetry. Roddy had blushed furiously as he heard Harry Richter's amused laugh.

She was the daughter of the banker in Ballantyne. It was something of a wonder that he, Roddy Willard, should have taken her to the movies and to dances a number of times during their college career, a little bewildered, a little uncertain, and very much flattered by the occasional, capricious preference she showed him over all the other admirers who flocked about her. One summer vacation she had driven over from a house party on Twin Deer lake and had to noddy on the Willard farm, anxiously ministering to a sick horse in the pasture. Later, Corinne had sat in Sophronia's parlor and had glanced about at the walls. A few days later he had substituted some etchings and water-colors for his stepmother's horrible objets d'art. But Corinne had never come again, and afterwards Roddy had been a little ashamed of his snobbery in removing Phronie's treasures, even though, truth to tell, the walls were more pleasing without the burnt leather image of Pocahontas with the calendar beneath.

Roddy wondered now why it was that he had never kissed Corinne during those years while he was seeing her frequently. Perhaps it was his own humility. Perhaps it was because he suspected that it was his physical self alone that appealed to her, and that beyond the satisfaction of an established conquest she would have no use for him. He was in earnest when Corinne was concerned, and he had been afraid of discovering that she was not in earnest about him.

But he knew now that she had been in earnest. A month ago, the local papers had made much of the failure of the bank in Ballantyne, though all had absolved from blame old Edwin Meader, Corinne's father. Roddy had had a number of letters from Corinne after that, and their tone had become increasingly despondent. What was she to do? Her father was completely broken. Her mother had fifty dollars a month of her own to live on. Corinne, who had been one of the Ballantyne smart set, had made efforts to get a position at teaching, even in a country school, but the school boards were flooded with applications. Her last letter had been one of complete despair.

When, early this morning, Roddy had set out for Ballantyne in his car, he had had the curious feeling that the sun was a little too bright, that he could not see as clearly as he had been used to do, over undulating prairies that he knew as well as he knew his own face. But there had been a tense excitement about that journey, and when he had come to its end he had seen Corinne, small and beautifully made, and Corinne's brown eyes with their look of helpless appeal—and within an hour, beneath the grape arbor of the Meader place, he had asked her to marry him.

Corinne had seemed frightened and abashed and timid and thrilled. Then she had thrown her arms about his neck and sobbed that she had always loved him and that she would marry him as soon as he wished.

Her mother, a plump, pink little woman, with soft hands and a disposition to ignore the catastrophe that had befallen the Meaders, gave them her blessing with a bright gaiety that admitted not the least suspicion of any incongruity in the match. Corinne, of course, must have a proper wedding, even if things were bad. "A quiet little wedding here at home," Mrs. Meader said briskly. "The Congregational church is too big and cold."

Roddy had seen through Mrs. Meader's little pretext. But Corinne had looked across at him with widening amusement in her eyes, and he had gravely suppressed a grin.

Thus it had happened. Roddy pulled himself erect in his car as he came to the turn in the road that led westward past Twin Deer lake. Over there, a mile or so across brush and prairie, blinked the dozen street lights of Heron River. By this time, he reflected, the usual crowd would have left the village and gone their ways. He turned his car away from the highway and headed for the village.

People seated on their screened verandas in the town of Ballantyne observed that a faint breeze had sprung up from the southwest, and although it was pleasant after the heat of the day, it might mean rain for the morrow. With harvest so near at hand.

But Corinne Meader, undressing in her mauve and white bedroom, was grateful for the breeze that caressed her hot throat and temples from the open window. She brushed her hair with hurried strokes. But her own beauty—which had availed her nothing—stared back at her from her mirror, and presently she leaned forward on her palms and gazed long and intently at her own image.

"And so—you are going to marry a farmer, my dear!" her lips said softly.

Mrs. Meader opened the door, closed it behind her, and stole into a chair beside Corinne's dressing table as though some conspiracy were afoot.

"Darling," the mother breathed, "you won't mind my sitting for a minute while you get ready for bed? I'm—I'm just as excited as though it were I who was getting married! It's all so unexpected—I had no idea! But Roddy is a dear, Corinne—a perfect dear!"

"He's awfully good-looking," Corinne said with forbearance, and continued to wing out her hair with her brush.

"And he has quite a large farm, too, hasn't he?" Mrs. Meader was saying. "And quite near Maynard. It isn't as though you were going to be marooned on some backwoods homestead for the rest of your days. You can drive over to see us often, too, after you're married."

"I suppose so, Corinne conceded. "Oh, dear—it's going to be terrible giving up this house, darling—if it comes to that. After all these years! But I mustn't talk about such things now—and you so happy."

"You won't have to give up the house, now that I'm provided for," Corinne reminded her cynically.

Mrs. Meader chose to let that pass. "Of course," she observed, "if you had married Sylvester Edgett when he asked you—"

"Mother!" Corinne squealed. "His pimples!"

Mrs. Meader gave a deprecating little laugh. "I didn't mean that seriously, darling, you know that. And anyhow, he's only a bookkeeper."

Corinne, although she was still addressing herself, spoke aloud. "Yes, I could have married Sylvester. Or I could go now and clerk at eleven dollars a week in Ellingboe's dry goods store. And all the girls in town could come in and ask for samples of white satin, and giggle, and tell me it's for their wedding dresses! No, thanks, I'd rather die than do that!"

Mrs. Meader put a plump arm about Corinne's shoulders, and a round, bright tear trembled on her pink cheek.

"My baby!" she quavered. "To think I am going to lose you—and so soon! And to think that the bank had to—to fall before you got settled in your own home. It's just too—cruel!"

"Now, mother," Corinne said with supreme patience, "don't do that!"

"All right, I'm sorry, darling," her mother whimpered, and dabbed her nose with a bit of lace and chiffon. "But I can't help thinking of all the chances you've had to marry well—of course they weren't good enough! But if Harry Richter's father hadn't been so against Harry's marrying just now—"

Corinne stood up, sighed. "Please, mother! You're talking as though I were being sold in a slave market. Harry knows what he wants. It's his father's business he wants—and his father's money—not me. Anyhow, I'm not in love with Harry. It's just that you've been expecting great things of me—and the miracle didn't come off! Now, be a good girl and go to bed. I'm tired."

She kissed her mother, and with her arms about her propelled her gently toward the door. Mrs. Meader murmured a reluctant and tender good night and Corinne was alone.

She went back to the oval glass of her ivory dressing-table. When she glanced at her reflection, it was with a small, curled smile of satisfaction, in contemplating the fine tapering of her eyebrows, the back-sweep of glossy waves, patrician-wise, from her forehead, and the natural, provocative pout of her red lips.

Finally, she lit a cigarette, got into bed, and switched off the light. She stretched out sinuously, enjoying the smoke and the smooth coolness of the fine linen sheets, and thinking luxuriously, with frank, rather delicious excitement, of Roddy Willard.

September Milk Sales Are Higher than Year Ago

The month of September, when youth returns to school, and folks finish their vacations, always pleases the "bossy cow" as this is the month when milk sales in the city begin to increase. Thanks to the children, especially, for it indicates they have learned the value of this most valuable human food.

The farmers in the Detroit area for September produced 55,530,638 pounds of milk. This is 6% less than August but 12% higher than September a year ago.

The September milk, so far as the farmers' pay is concerned, consisted of 48,396,921 pounds of base milk @ $2.09 and 6,993,717 pounds of surplus milk @ 89¢ F. O. B. country receiving station. The sale of this milk to distributors, or processors, was as follows: Class I, 33,303,524 pounds @ $2.48; Class II, 1,460,614 pounds @ $1.38; Class III, 20,766,500 pounds @ $1.05 at country receiving station; or a total of 55,530,638 pounds of milk.

Farm production this month decreased 82,450 pounds per day while sales in Class I increased 36,268 pounds per day. Although this is a small amount compared to the total production, when sales of the $2.48 milk increase, it does help on base milk price. Class II and III milk, which price is based on the butter market, has also improved. When butter averages over 25¢ per pound for the month, such as it did for September, butterfat differential is figured at four cents per point of butterfat. Last month the butter averaged less than 25¢ per pound for the month, therefore, the three cents per point test was used.

Lesson for October 27

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 5:1-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. Proverbs 20:1. PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Solves a Riddle. JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Feast of Belshazzar. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Drink Leads To. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Facts About Alcohol.

I. Belshazzar's Impious Feast (vv. 1-4).

1. Those in attendance (vv. 1, 2). Those present were Belshazzar, his wife and concubines, and one thousand of his lords.

2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4).

a. They drank wine and engaged in drunken revelry.

b. They committed sacrilege. In their drunken revelry they drank wine from the sacred vessels which had been taken out of the temple at Jerusalem.

c. They worshiped idols.

II. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-16).

1. The time of (v. 5). It occurred "in the same hour" in which they were engaged in their drunken debauchery.

2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). "The joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another."

3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-16).

a. He called for the astrologers and soothsayers, offering them rewards of gold and of position (vv. 7-9). Their inability to interpret the writing left the king even worse perplexed.

b. Daniel brought in at the suggestion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen was perhaps the wife of Nebuchadnezzar who remembered Daniel's service in interpreting the dream of her husband.

III. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28).

1. Daniel's address to the king (vv. 17-24).

a. He brushes aside his promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gift. It required great strength of character and courage to speak thus in the presence of a great king. He knew that this was no time for bribery. He knew that those would be the last words ever to fall on the poor sinner's ears.

b. He reviewed before Belshazzar the history of Nebuchadnezzar (vv. 18-24). He showed clearly that Belshazzar should have profited by the experiences of his father.

2. The interpretation of the writing (vv. 25-28).

a. "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 26). "God hath numbered the kingdom and finished it."

b. "Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting."

c. "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28). "The kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

IV. The Judgment Executed (vv. 29-31).

So rapidly did the divine judgment fall that Belshazzar was slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom that same night. The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. We may, therefore, interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the time of the Gentiles, and as adumbrating their prevailing conditions. Let us note:

1. The stupidity of men. Belshazzar, like people today, did not learn by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar from such folly. The driftwood of wrecked humanity cast upon the shores of time seem to do little good to posterity.

2. The magnificent splendor. This great feast was characterized by pomp, display and parade.

3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury abound today on every hand.

4. The licentiousness of the king with his many wives and concubines. Licentiousness is likewise notoriously prevalent today.

5. Blasphemous sacrilege. The sacrilege of this day may be in excess of that of Belshazzar's day and expresses itself in a. A profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political preferment.

b. The use of the pulpit of the Christian ministry for notoriety and even for the propagation of false doctrine.

c. Uniting with the church and attendance at the Lord's table so as to cover up secret sins.

d. The use of the Word of God to give point to a joke.

e. Denying that the Bible is God's Word, making it a book of errors, myths and legends.

f. Sneering at the virgin birth, repudiating Christ's deity and setting aside his vicarious atonement.

6. Drunken carousals. The handwriting on the wall. His judgments shall eventually fall. Conditions in the world indicate that the time is drawing near. Are you ready?

Famous "Rainbow Hill"

"Rainbow Hill," Ladysmith, is called because its soil is composed of six bright colors. Farmers who want to paint their homes collect some of the clay, which is dried, powdered, and later mixed with water or oil. They can choose from red, pink, cream, green, brown and yellow.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Element "93"

Element "93" has not been isolated, although claims have been made that it exists. Judging from its position among the elements it would seem quite safe to assume that it will be found to be a metal, if it ever is isolated.

Sugar Beets Hurt By Lack of Boron

Michigan sugar beet growers will receive great benefits from the discovery made by Dr. G. H. Coons and Dr. J. E. Kotila, U. S. Department of Agriculture, that lack of boron in the soil is the reason why Michigan beet yields have been reduced by the dying of the center leaves of young plants and by abnormal conditions of the beet roots.

The abnormal beets were first noticed in Michigan in 1932 when the crop in some areas was reduced 15 per cent by this condition. The trouble was believed to be a disease caused by bacteria or by fungi but the tests made by the Washington plant pathologists prove that this belief was wrong. Additions of small amounts of borax to the soil in test plots prevented the appearance of this trouble.

Dr. J. E. Kotila was born in Hancock, Michigan, and graduated from Michigan State College. He received advanced degrees from Michigan State and the University of Michigan and was a member of the State College staff from 1920 to 1930. Dr. G. H. Coons was born in Bloomington, Ill., received his

New Chevrolets Enroute to Cass City

A shipment of new 1936 Chevrolet Standard and Master Deluxe cars is enroute to Barkley Motor Sales, here, according to notification received today by K. C. Barkley from the Chevrolet Motor company. Mr. Barkley was informed that his full quota of cars for the local announcement would be in his hands before Nov 2nd, the introduction date.

"Production has been under way for many weeks, according to word from the factory," said Mr. Barkley. "This means that we shall not only have a full line to show you on Nov. 2nd, but that we will be able to make immediate deliveries."

"Our service personnel has been undergoing factory-directed training in the servicing of the new product, as part of a country-wide program instituted by Chevrolet. When the new cars come out, the service organization throughout the United States, including our own personnel, will be more thoroughly schooled in every detail of maintenance work on our new cars than ever before in Chevrolet history."

Production Control Plan Continues

Seventeen men, one from each county producing milk for the Detroit market, have met for two days now and studied changes that might be made in the present base and surplus milk control program, which has been in use for the past six years.

These men, all members of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association Sales Committee, figured changes from many different angles this year. Some unusual changes were suggested by some members, hoping a better plan might be the result. After every conceivable plan of change was presented and each suggestion discussed in detail, the committee finally voted to leave the plan as it is for another year.

The committee realized that any plan used would work a hardship on some producers and no doubt, in some instances, on some members of the committee themselves. These men recognized, however, that they must use a plan that works the best for a large majority of the 14,000 shippers. They agreed that the plan worked out by a similar committee a few years ago was the most equitable.

The committee members were as follows: Frank Stauder, Calhoun Co.; L. R. Lang, Genesee Co.; John Southworth, Hillsdale Co.; Charles Brannan, Ingham Co.; W. H. Warner, Jackson Co.; John Schram, LaPeer Co.; Irving Mann, Lenawee Co.; Ed Hyne, Livingston Co.; H. I. Tinknell, Macomb Co.; Henry Lohr, Monroe Co.; Robert Hunt, Oakland Co.; Wm. Hunter, Sanilac Co.; Carl Eisen, St. Clair Co.; W. H. Lovejoy, Shiawassee Co.; M. D. Lynch, Tuscola Co.; C. W. Karr, Washtenaw Co.; George Bordine, Wayne County.

Longer Lines in the Ford V-8

The longer and more graceful lines of the Ford V-8 for 1936 are shown in the new car on display at the G. A. Tindale show room since Saturday. The new longer hood extends gracefully over the attractive new radiator grille. Fenders are streamlined, a wide inward flare giving them an imposing appearance.

Of the three principal chassis improvements, one—improved steering—is aimed at greater ease and safety of operation. Two others tend to greater comfort. One is the new steel wheels which lessen the unsprung weight and thus provide greater riding comfort. The other is an improved transmission using helical gears—formerly used only in second and high speeds—in all forward speeds and reverse.

KAVEN WILL CASE IS APPEALED TO SUPREME COURT

Attorneys for Dr. J. H. Kaven of Unionville, on Wednesday, filed petitions for an appeal from circuit to supreme court in the Carrie Wright Kaven will case.

Circuit Judge Cramton, early this month, announced his decision that the most of the property of the late Mrs. Kaven would be transferred to a sister of the deceased as provided in the will, sustaining the decision of Probate Judge H. Walter Cooper. Dr. Kaven had appealed the case from the probate to the circuit court.

Executed but Not Dead

In Abyssinia a man who has been duly executed is not always dead and possibly not even injured. The "execution" consists of the firing of one bullet from a stationary rifle—projecting through the wall of a large room—after which the man is either buried or set free. Often tall or short men are not hit in a vital spot. Sometimes those clever enough to move slightly are missed entirely. In any case the state is satisfied.—Collier's Weekly
