

$57,190 TUITION FOR 13 TUSCOLA SCHOOLS

Cass City Receives $12,793, Highest Amount for Non-resident Pupils.

From Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, came a check this week for $57,190, in payment of tuition for non-resident pupils in 13 high schools in Tuscola county. To secure their portion of this money officers of each district will prepare a warrant and send same to County Clerk Morrison, who will send a check payable to the treasurer of the district. The 13 high schools will receive the following sums:

Akron	$2686.00
Unionville	3555.00
Silverwood	757.00
Richville	65.00
Reese	2340.00
Cass City	12793.00
Gagetown	2717.00
Fairgrove	4355.00
Mayville	6181.00
Caro	10650.00
Kingston	5141.00
Millington	3588.00
Fostoria	2362.00

$57,190.00

For some reason unknown to county officers, Vassar high school was omitted from this list sent by the department of public instruction.

The Hisers Hale and Hearty on 55th Wedding Day

Hale, hearty and with a cheerful outlook on life, Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. Hiser of Elmwood township passed their 55th wedding anniversary on Oct. 21 without an outstanding celebration, but with thankful hearts that they were healthy and happy.

Mr. Hiser, who is 75, cared for a fine garden this summer and Mrs. Hiser, a year older, was just as active. She canned over 200 quarts of fruit as one of her household tasks this summer and autumn.

Both were born in Ohio. Mrs. Hiser in Sandusky county and Mr. Hiser at Pemberville. They came to Vassar on March 10, 1880, Mr. Hiser as an employee of his prospective father-in-law, Henry Adams, and were married in Vassar on Oct. 21 of that year by Rev. E. P. Clark, now a resident of Detroit. Their attendants were George Hiser of Canton, Ohio, and Mrs. Lettie Elliott of Flint. Mrs. Elliott, now 87 years of age, has gone to Florida to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiser have resided all the 55 years of their married life in Tuscola county, first at Vassar, then Mayville and Kingston township, and for the last 33 years on their farm on M-81, in section 34, Elmwood township.

Mr. Hiser served as teamster for Sansford & Lyon, wholesale and retail hardware merchants of Vassar, in the "early eighties" and hauled many loads of lumbermen's supplies to the lumber camps of Tuscola county. He also worked for many years for M. D. Mills, pioneer merchant at Novesta Corners.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hiser are members of the Presbyterian church and Mr. Hiser has been affiliated with the Odd Fellow fraternity since 1886. They have five sons and two daughters, 29 grandchildren and one great grandchild. One brother of Mr. Hiser recently celebrated his 57th wedding anniversary and another brother his 54th.

45 Years of Wedded Life

By Ellington and Novesta Correspondent.

On October 22, 1890, Emorilla Medcalf and Dwight Turner, both of Ellington, were united in marriage. Honoring their 45th wedding anniversary, forty relatives gathered at the Aaron Turner home Sunday to surprise them when they arrived, expecting to be dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Turner. A bountiful potluck dinner was enjoyed at noon and the afternoon was spent in visiting. They were presented with a beautiful electric waffle iron.

Guests besides the Aaron Turner family were Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Medcalf of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Medcalf and family of Fairgrove, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Medcalf and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fields and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rondo of Caro, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Medcalf and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Turner of Ellington, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Turner and son of Elmwood, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Little and family of Novesta, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Turner and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. William Noble, and Miss Cressy Steele of Cass City.

COMING AUCTIONS.

Samuel Hamilton has decided to quit farming and will sell his livestock and farm machinery at auction, one mile west of Shabbona, on Tuesday, Nov. 5. T. B. Tyrell is the auctioneer, the Finney State Bank is clerk and full particulars are printed on page 6.

Joe Trudeau will rent his 80-acre farm 2½ miles west of Gagetown and in next week's Chronicle will advertise in detail an auction sale of his personal property for Thursday, Nov. 14.

COMMEND GOVERNOR ON LIQUOR STAND

Union Service Congregation Praise Fitzgerald's Courageous Attitude.

At the union service held at the Evangelical church Sunday evening in observance of World Temperance Sunday, the congregation voted unanimously to commend Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald on his stand for more strict liquor regulation and for his courageous attitude in endeavoring to secure the earlier closing hours for liquor dispensaries. Letters went forward to the state executive expressing this endorsement.

Rev. Paul J. Allured spoke on temperance education. He said that the 18th amendment was a law against the liquor traffic and not against drinking; a regulation enacted not to reform people, but to protect innocent ones and was a great protective measure for society.

"It is a fallacy to think we can drink ourselves back to prosperity," he said, "for our financial difficulties have not been alleviated by the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor. For every dollar the government received as a tax on beer last year, the consumer paid six. For hard liquor, the drinker paid $8 so the government could get $1 back."

Alcohol slows up the drinker and is responsible for many accidents, the speaker said. Governor Fitzgerald was quoted as saying that one of every 12 automobile fatalities was due to drink.

Rev. Charles Bayless, the second speaker, said that youth should be impressed with the fact that the

Nov. 2 Is Wheat Sign-up Day

Applications for the new wheat adjustment program are now in the Tuscola county agricultural agent's office and are available with various committees around the county for completion with wheat growers who wish to enter in the production adjustment program for 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939.

To the old signer who wishes to continue there will be slight change concerning necessary information over that already on the old contract. The period of the contract is for 4 years, however, a signer may withdraw at the end of the two-year period if he so desires. The benefit payment plan will remain the same except that it guarantees parity rather than approach to parity. "If for any reason wheat was not sown this fall but you are in the habit of sowing wheat I would advise that such a man sign in order to be qualified for the 1937 crop and draw his payments accordingly," says E. L. Benton, county agricultural agent.

Saturday, Nov. 2, is scheduled as county sign-up day at which time farmers may go to one of the following places to file applications: Squires' Oil Station, Millington, Warren McGinnis.

The Ben B. Reavey Farm, 7 miles south of Unionville, Ben Reavey.

Council Rooms, Cass City, Audley Rawson.

The Alex Hunter Farm, 2 miles south of East Dayton, Alex Hunter. Fairgrove Town Hall, Fairgrove, Robt. Davis and Steve Noble. Richville, Carl Keinath.

If for any reason, a farmer is not able to complete his application on that date, he may do so by appointment with one of these men. It is necessary that all be completed previous to Nov. 15. Wheat growers who have not had wheat adjustment contracts and are desirous of operating under the program may do so by determining their acreage and production in 1932 only, or in 1932, 1931 only, or in 1932, 1931 and 1930.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT HOLBROOK SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Trathen Surprised by Fifty Relatives and Friends.

About 50 relatives and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Trathen of Huron county at the home of their son, Loren Trathen, at Holbrook, on Sunday, Oct. 27, the occasion being their golden wedding day.

Mr. and Mrs. Trathen repeated their vows to the Rev. Bruce Davis of Argyle. Mrs. Hiram Johnson of Bay City, who attended the bride at the original ceremony 50 years ago, acted as bridesmaid again on Sunday. Mr. Johnson was best man. "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was played by Miss Lorene Barnes, the great granddaughter of the late Rev. T. Dwight Barnes, Baptist minister, who officiated at the wedding a half century ago.

After the ceremony Sunday, a chicken dinner was served to the company. Table decorations were gold and white and the centerpiece was a three-story wedding cake. Open house was held in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Trathen received many fine gifts, among them a purse of money.

Among the relatives present at the anniversary celebration Sunday were the two sons of the honored guests, Loren Trathen of Holbrook and Arthur Trathen of Bad Axe, three granddaughters, Mrs. Irene Hayes, Mrs. Mable Freeman and Miss Labila Trathen, and five great grandchildren, all of Flint.

Experiment Here With a Stabilized Gravel Highway

An experiment in road building is being made on South Seeger street from the southern corporation line of Cass City to the D. & H. railroad crossing. Gravel for the project was furnished by the Cass City Sand and Gravel Co. and was spread 18 feet wide for 1,000 feet by workmen of the Tuscola County Road Commission and mixed with calcium chloride furnished by the Dow Chemical Co. of Midland.

The mixture of road gravel, clay and calcium chloride, it is expected, will result in a very hard gravel surface, decrease maintenance cost and provide a dustless roadway. Road builders are watching with interest this experiment in a stabilized gravel highway.

Two Cars Crash, Three Lads Bruised

Two cars, a Chevrolet sedan and a Model T Ford roadster, were badly damaged and three young men were bruised and shaken up Sunday evening about 8:45 o'clock in an automobile collision one and one-half miles east of Cass City.

Both cars, the Chevrolet driven by Donald Seeger and the Ford driven by Casimer Zmieski, were traveling west and the collision occurred when Seeger attempted to pass the Ford as a third car came from the west. Riding with Zmieski was his brother, Joe. Donald Seeger was alone. The young men were taken to Pleasant Home hospital. Donald Seeger and Joe Zmieski left that same night and Casimer Zmieski remained until Monday morning.

Detroit Club in Masonic Work Here

Twenty-five members of the Metropolitan Square and Compass club of Detroit, an organization of Detroit policemen, visited Tyler Lodge, F. & A. M., at Cass City Wednesday evening and exemplified the third Masonic degree with a dignity and impressiveness that was most unusual. Commendations were freely expressed by local and visiting Masons. Many lodges of the Thumb district were represented.

Preceding the degree work, an excellent dinner was served to 125 of the Masonic fraternity by Echo Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Probably no one who witnessed the degree work here Wednesday was more interested than Orville Wilson of Deford, who with Ira Klebba, organized the Metropolitan club at Detroit in 1921. The club now has 367 members representing 69 Masonic lodges.

Mrs. Geo. McIntyre and daughter, Miss Mary McIntyre, of Columbiaville are spending a few days with relatives here.

CONGRESSMAN TO SPEAK IN CASS CITY NOV 12

Hon. Jesse P. Wolcott.

Mr. Wolcott, congressman of the seventh district, will be the guest speaker at the Cass City Community Club dinner on Tuesday evening, Nov. 12. Other program features are in charge of the oil and garage men's group of which R. D. Keating is chairman.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY SECTIONS

Happenings Here and There Garnered from the Chronicle's Exchanges.

Brown City—The Rev. Henry Hill, who as reported last week, was robbed by gypsies, is smiling once more. Justice Noel Babcock forced the thieves to return the $15 loot to our fellow citizen, who promptly set out to return the fund collected for him by William Wilkie. Justice Babcock released the gypsies after they had made this restitution and paid $28.50 court costs. However, officers from other counties were on the spot to arrest them on similar charges. So they were just out of the frying pan into the fire—Banner.

Unionville—Back in 1926 leases were taken on property in this vicinity by the Kessling Drilling Co. of Junction City, Ohio, for the privilege of drilling for oil. In recent months the oil leasing business has taken on new activity and leases have been put on more farms in this locality. Not much conversational attention has been given to the subject by the property owners around Unionville until this week when it became known that six loads of machinery and material for oil drilling had arrived at the Herman Kinder farm, northwest of town, in Akron township. The trucks appeared last Saturday and other indications of real drilling are taking place this week.

Bad Axe—The board of supervisors dusted off a state law passed in 1867, under which owners permitting livestock to run at large on highways in Huron county may be prosecuted. The old law contained

Teacher Training Courses in Cass City, Caro, Vassar

Arrangements have been made for holding six meetings of a teachers' training course simultaneously in three villages in the county by the Tuscola County Council of Religious Education. The first groups will meet Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, at three o'clock in the Evangelical church at Cass City, the M. E. church at Caro, and the Presbyterian church at Vassar. Other group meetings will be held in the three villages on the evenings of Nov. 12, 15, 19, 22 and 26, commencing at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. G. A. Spittler of Cass City is the dean of schools and will be assisted by Rev. W. N. Wood of Vassar and Rev. Arnold Runkel of Caro as registrars. Instructors include Rev. Paul J. Allured and Rev. Charles Bayless, both of Cass City, Dr. J. Leslie French of Caro, Rev. and Mrs. Winston Thomas of Munger, and Mrs. Walter Mallan.

The following standard courses are offered, leading toward an International Standard Diploma:

At Caro, Story Telling in Religious Education; The Old Testament; Youth Materials and Methods.

At Cass City, Message and Program of the Christian Religion; Primary Department Administration.

At Vassar, Principles of Teaching; Training in Worship and the Devotional Life; How to Improve our Sunday School.

The registration fee will be 50 cents.

BOARDS WANT BETTER LIQUOR CONTROL

Tuscola, Huron Supervisors Pass Resolutions at the October Sessions.

Tuscola county supervisors expressed their dissatisfaction with the present liquor situation when they adopted the following resolution presented by the resolutions committee, Supervisors Wm. B. Barriger, Neil H. Burns and W. H. Gussell, on Friday:

"Be it resolved that this board of supervisors go on record as being in favor of the Governor's order for the closing hour of establishments selling intoxicating liquors.

"And be it further resolved that Governor Fitzgerald be informed that this board of supervisors endorse his plan and hope that he will continue to help clean up the evils of the present system."

County Clerk S. W. Morrison was requested to send a copy of the resolution to the governor.

In their October session recently closed, the Huron county board of supervisors went on record, through adoption of a resolution signed by 10 board members, as bitterly denouncing the present system of liquor control and enforcement in Michigan. The resolution as adopted stated "the present system is too lax and is breeding more drunkenness than ever known in the history of the state." "Demoralization of people of both sexes," was a further charge embodied in the resolution, copies of which were forwarded to Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald and the chairman of the state liquor control commission.

The Tuscola county board of supervisors authorized the poor commission to contract with indigents and their relatives for repayment of costs incurred in the way of care and hospitalization furnished by superintendents of the poor.

The question of a full time agent for home demonstration work in Tuscola county was discussed but no action taken.

The recommendation of the finance committee authorized at the June session of the board that the county clerk and county treasurer be empowered to borrow up to $50,000 for county purposes was again considered and the expiration date adopted in June as Oct. 15, 1935, was extended to Mar. 1, 1936.

The building committee's recommendation on three subjects were adopted. They are: That the Red Cross be given the use of a large room in the basement of the court house for their meetings and that they be allowed to use the vault for the storage of their materials. That a typewriter be purchased for the school commissioner's office, and a table for the county treasurer's office.

The sheriff was authorized the following purchases for the county jail: 12 tin plates, 6 mattresses for cells, 12 blankets, a barrel of soap, 6 brooms and mops, 3 cell window padlocks, and 2 tear gas bombs.

The board of supervisors adjourned on Oct. 25 until Friday, Nov. 1.

MOORE-SHERK.

From Kingston Correspondent.

Herbert C. Sherk of Detroit and Miss Alice Moore of New York were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage at Kingston, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 24. Rev. B. A. Sherk, the groom's father, was the officiating clergyman, Miss Ruth Sherk of Kingston was bridesmaid, and Lawrence Sherk of Detroit, the groomsmen.

Herbert C. Sherk is assistant treasurer of the Maxon Advertising Co. of Detroit and the newlyweds will reside in the Whittier Apartments, Detroit. Their wedding trip includes Montreal, Quebec and other Canadian cities.

Harvest Festival at Methodist Church

At the Methodist church, next Sunday morning, Nov. 3, the fifth annual harvest festival service will be held at 10:30, the regular worship hour. Autumn decorations on the pulpit platform, special music by the vested choir, and the sermon, "Our Bountiful Father," are features planned for this observance.

The Building Repair fund is to be swelled by the final returns from the Penny-a-Meal boxes which are all to be returned at this service. This will conclude a plan of systematic giving which has been in operation since July 1st, and which has produced highly satisfactory results. The proceeds of the annual harvest supper are to be devoted to the repair fund also this year. The supper, served by the men of the church, is an event which has increased in popularity each year. It is to be given next Monday evening, Nov. 4, from 6:00 until all are served. Fresh-caught boneless herring are to be deep-fat fried as the popular chef, "Ab Higgins" knows how to prepare them, and patrons are promised "all they can eat" of the good things that are on the menu. All arrangements are in charge of a large and capable committee of men, and as one of them said, "All we need now is a crowd of hungry customers to make the event the best ever."

TUSCOLA FARMERS OPPOSE THE CORN-HOG PROGRAM

Tuscola county farmers are opposed to the corn-hog program of the AAA, a vote of 86 to 57 on the plan on Oct. 26 indicated.

Votes at seven polling places were:

SEBEWAING WINS FRIDAY'S GAME, 13-7

Second Team Defeats Arthur Hill Second Team of Saginaw 6-2.

Cass City is defeated by a Class C team for the first time in nearly three complete seasons of play. A resume of their record for the past six years, in Thumb competition, is as follows:

	Won	Tied	Lost
1930	4	2	2
1931	7	0	1
1932	4	0	4
1933	8	0	0
1934	8	0	0
1935	4	1	1
Totals	35	3	8

Total points for the last three years are: Opponents 80; Cass City 571. The best record was made in 1933, when Cass City scored 226 to opponents' 12.

The Maroon and Gray added one more regular to its growing list of casualties when Hunter had to be helped from the field with a sprained ankle.

The showing of Grant Reagh and "Pete" Reyes in the second team victory over Saginaw, Arthur Hill's second team on Monday, will make them the most logical choices to replace Hunter in the backfield. Kloc, the spark plug of the squad, will be used at fullback, although he weighs only 150 pounds.

Saginaw Eastern will furnish plenty of opposition here tomorrow, Saturday, and the locals will have to click again, if they are to get back into the win column. Practice, this past week, has been centered on fundamentals again, as the blocking and tackling in last Friday's game left much to be desired.

Farm Barn Burned Near Uby Saturday

A large basement barn filled to the peak with hay and 400 bushels of oats in the bins were burned in a fire on the James Walker farm four miles west and ½ mile south of Uby, Saturday afternoon. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Men threshing at a farm a half mile away were the first to notice the flames. The threshing crew worked valiantly to save other farm buildings from destruction.

RECEPTION FOR REV. AND MRS. W. R. CURTIS TUESDAY

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Landon Tuesday when ministers and their wives of Cass City were invited to the Landon home for a chicken dinner and social evening in a reception for Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Curtis.

After the dinner hour, the evening was spent in travelogues and visiting and a number of special selections of music were well received.

The fellowship among the ministers in Cass City is very pronounced and the chicken dinner was most tempting to the profession.

Mrs. Margaret Houghton will spend the winter months in Lansing. Her daughter and granddaughter are residents of that city.

PLEADED GUILTY TO DEFORD BANK HOLDUP

Verne Lawe and Mart Weise Will Receive Their Sentences on Monday.

Verne Lawe, 23, of Sebewaing, pleaded guilty to robbery armed in the Tuscola county circuit court Thursday morning. Early in the afternoon, Mart Weise, of Sebewaing, pleaded guilty to the same charge. They were remanded to the custody of Sheriff Jeffrey until Monday when Judge Cramton will pronounce their sentences.

Mart Weise, 23, Sebewaing, was arrested in that village by Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Erb and State Police Officers Andrew Boschum and Harry Biggs on Tuesday night charged with robbing the Deford bank on Sept. 9.

In custody along with Weise, officers took to the county jail, Mrs. Margaret Lawe, 23, wife of Verne Lawe, and Robert Nugent, 35, of Saginaw, who were held for investigation.

Verne Lawe, charged with being Weise's partner in the crime, eluded officers at Sebewaing Tuesday night. The next night he came to the Barney Perry farm northeast of Caro, where he was formerly employed, and he was brought to the county jail at Caro by Mr. Perry.

Mart Weise confessed at 7:00 p. m. Wednesday that he had taken part in the Deford bank robbery and 15 minutes later he waived examination before Justice Frank St. Mary and was bound over to the circuit court.

Mr. and Mrs. George McIntyre, cashier and assistant cashier of the Deford bank of A. Frutchey & Sons, identified Weise on Tuesday morning as the man who covered them with a pistol during the robbery, while the second robber scooped $637.50 from the cash drawer.

The sheriff said that Mrs. Lawe told the officers that her husband and Weise were the robbers. The woman issued an appeal to her husband to surrender and clear her of any complicity in the robbery. She said her husband told her of the robbery only after it had occurred.

Sheriff Jeffrey said he had learned that Lawe, Weise and Nugent had planned to rob a bank at Reese last Saturday. He said Nugent was to have stolen an automobile in Saginaw for the flight, but for some undisclosed reason the plan was abandoned.

In his confession Weise said that the robbers had fled north to Pigeon after their robbery, then doubled back to Sebewaing, using back roads to elude pursuers.

Jury Allows $650 Damages in the Keilitz-Elly Case

In the case of Lou Keilitz, administrator of the Estate of Austin Keilitz, deceased, vs. Everett Elly, in which damages were sought to the amount of $10,000, the jury awarded damages of $650 to the plaintiff, in the Tuscola circuit court on Tuesday. The defense asked a 20 days' stay on execution which was granted by the court. This suit came as the result of an automobile accident early on the morning of April 14, 1935, in which Austin Keilitz of Ellington township was fatally injured while riding in a car with two companions and which Everett Elly was driving. Judge Cramton informed the jury before they retired that they

Edison Takes Over Mich. Electric Today

The Detroit Edison Company will take over the complete control of the Michigan Electric Power Co.'s properties, including service in 92 communities, chiefly in Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola and Lapeer counties, today.

E. L. Edwards, president of the Michigan Electric, on Monday announced the retirement of outstanding preferred stock of his company by the Detroit Edison Co. at an expenditure of approximately $2,500,000. Most of this stock is held by residents of the Thumb of Michigan.

Stock payments will be made on the basis of $5 premium over the $100 par value, plus accrued dividends of $14.87 on the seven per cent preferred stock, and $12.75 on the six per cent preferred.

The Detroit Edison Co. recently purchased the common stock of the company.

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness ex-alteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Black Man
God Cared for.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In Time of Danger.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—Results of Doing Wrong.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—Nations Accountable to God.

I. The Siege of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. The time (vv. 1, 2). It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, lasting about eighteen months. The tenth month, according to the Jew's calendar, corresponds to our December-January, as their calendar began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile. In their gloomy exile God directed Ezekiel to utter a parable unto the captives of that day (Ezek. 24).

2. The method (v. 11). Nebuchadnezzar came in person with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem, building forts against it round about. It is thought that several walls were built around the city, shutting it in. On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city. With the city thus shut in, its fall was only a question of time.

3. The famine (v. 3). Geikie says, "It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mothers were at last driven to murder and eat their children.
The richest citizens wandered about searching for scraps in the dung hills." Even outside the city the people were starving. "There was no bread for the people of the land." It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem died of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate
(vv. 4-7).

1. "The city was broken up" (v.
4). The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do. Resistance was carried on to the bitter end.

2. Zedekiah's flight (v. 4). The king with his men of war fled by night toward the plain. His object no doubt was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of the Jordan.

3. Zedekiah's fate (v. 5-7).

a. He was overtaken in the plains of Jericho (v. 5). As soon as the Chaldean army discovered the flight they pursued and captured him.
b. He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6). Riblah was a town north of Damascus. It was the king's headquarters from which he directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Before Nebuchadnezzar Zedekiah was tried as a criminal.

c. His fate. His sons were slain in his sight. His own eyes were put out. He was bound with fetters of brass and they carried him to Babylon where he remained a prisoner to the day of his death (Jer. 52:11).

III. Jerusalem Destroyed (vv.
8-10).

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar who was at Riblah. The work of destruction was executed by the officer next in rank to the king.

1. They burnt the house of the Lord (v. 9). This was the sacred temple built by Solomon, with additions and alterations. Before burning it, they plundered it of all its sacred contents.

2. Burnt the king's house (v. 9).
This was doubtless the palace built by Solomon.

3. Burnt all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9). The implication is that the common houses were left for the people (v. 12).

4. They broke down the walls of Jerusalem. The aim in this was to render the walls useless as a means of defense.

IV. The Disposition of the Temple Furniture and Priests (vv 13-21).

1. The temple furniture carried to Babylon (vv. 13-17). The pillars of brass and the brazen seat were broken into pieces by the Babylonians and together with the utensils were carried to Babylon.

2. Certain officers and priests taken to Riblah (vv. 18-21). These officers and priests and three score men of the land were taken to Rib-lah, where they were slain by the king of Babylon.

The events recorded in Second Kings cover a period of 308 years.
God had said, "If thou wilt, then I will"; they had invited disaster by disobedience.

THE V-8 ENGINE IS ALWAYS IN

Style

THE V-type engine is the kind you find in the cars of people to whom cost means little and style means much.
When the Ford Motor Company introduced this engine to the low-price field, it made one of its greatest contributions to modern, luxurious motoring with economy. But progress did not stop there. Styling, appointments and every other feature of the new Ford were made to match the quality of the V-8 engine.
Without Ford resources and experience this would not have been possible in a car at so low a price. But you can easily convince yourself that it has been done. You are urged to accept the cordial invitation of your nearest Ford dealer to see and drive the new Ford V-8 for 1936. Your acceptance implies no obligation.

CASS CITY

But What a Difference in Quality

There's a difference between "fine wool" and "medium wool," just as there's a difference between Cavalier Coal and ordinary coal.

Cavalier Coal might look like other coal—but just burn it. Then you'll find out how much better this coal is—that comes from the famous Elkhorn District of Eastern Kentucky. You'll find out, too, that there's only 3% ash . . . but 95% pure, flaming heat.

Easy to damper, quick to flame up, Cavalier is today's buy. Order now, and you'll spend a warm, trouble-free winter.

Our congratulations go to Kenneth Kelly, athletic coach at the Cass City high school. Not until Friday were his proteges defeated in a long series of football games with Upper Thumb teams. A record of 22 encounters without a defeat is a mark that many a high school athletic director would like to have chalked opposite his name. Good work, "Bill!"

The best lesson against careless driving is the opportunity of being a witness to an accident in which one or more persons are battered to pieces. It is more effective than all the cautions and all the safety advice that can be given.

It's a pretty good little town that doesn't generate some jealousy for one of its townsmen who succeeds above his neighbors.

The one irrefutable evidence that a man is getting old comes to him when he gets out into the cemetery and finds more people there that he used to know than he meets upon the street.

A kindly providence rather than any particular care or thought on the part of some automobile drivers has prevented fatalities in automobile accidents on Cass City streets in late months. Reckless driving, particularly by young folks, is entirely too prevalent and steps should be taken by authorities to curb dare-devilry in the manipulation of motor cars.

As we get it the capture of Adua by the Italians was a feat on par with that of wrestling of the championship belt from Baer by Louis.

A British expert on orientals says that the way to make a rug look like an antique is to immerse it in mud. It might be added that in those families in which there are five or six boys the mud immersion is not necessary.

A prominent business man opines that the boy with an air rifle or other weapon should be discouraged in taking a shot at the fox squirrels that have become quite numerous in Cass City the past year. These beautiful little animals are an ornament to any village and should be protected. Why not have members of some of the clubs in town take it upon themselves to campaign actively in preventing the ruthless destruction of the pretty animals with the long bushy tails.

Charles G. Dawes is the last of a long line of prophets who assayed to tell when prosperity would return. Dawes set July 1 as the date when business would take a definite turn for the better. The unique feature of Mr. Dawes' prophecy is that he held off in making it until all others who cared to place in jeopardy their reputation for economic seers had tried and failed. All of which goes to prove that the time of the return of prosperity is not yet known and anybody's guess is as good as the experts'. Prosperity, like the end of the world, will come when things get just right for it and not before.

Every man has his mind firmly made up as to what he will do when prosperity finally returns. He is quite sure he will not make the mistake that he did the last time prosperous times were here.

A million dollar prize fight and a record attendance at the World's Series are additional evidence that the depression isn't as deep as some believe.

Government in business has this advantage, it can always shift its losses to the tax payers.

Some public speakers we have heard, who opened their remarks with the expression, "I will try to be brief," demonstrated a long time before they got through, that there was one effort at which they were complete failures.

The announcement has been made that London Transport will equip all of its 6,000 buses and coaches with oil-burning Diesel engines as fast as replacement became necessary. Caterpillar tractors are now on the market equipped with full Diesel engines and the time is not far distant when most buses and trucks in this country will be Diesel engine driven.

CENSUS PLANS WILL GIVE 150,000 JOBS

Commerce Department Asks Statistical Surveys.

Washington. — Three important statistical projects, endorsed by the census bureau, will provide, if finally approved as part of the national reemployment drive, jobs for more than 150,000 persons for varying periods. The projects are, first, a census of population and unemployment, with an estimated cost of $16,000,000; second, a census of business activities, with an estimated cost of about $8,000,000 or $9,000,000, and third, an alphabetical index by geographic units and by families, of all individuals in the United States returned in the census of 1900, to cost about $2,000,000.

The total estimated cost would thus be $26,000,000 or $27,000,000. Estimated employment for these three projects is 125,000, 25,000 and 2,000, respectively. The Department of Commerce in behalf of the census bureau, has submitted requests to the division of applications and information of the Works Program administration for grants to cover the second and third projects.

Check on Unemployment.
The first project, a census of population, employment and unemployment, has received a favorable recommendation from a cabinet committee appointed to consider the matter, made up of Secretaries Roper and Perkins and Administrator Harry Hopkins.

Five different bills for an unemployment census are now pending before congressional committees. None has received the approval of the budget bureau. The proposed census of population and employment depends, therefore, on a grant from the $4,000,000 works relief appropriation. The final decision now rests with President Roosevelt.

The second project, that for a census of all business activities, except agriculture and manufacturing, will be started, if funds are granted, on January 1, 1936, to cover the calendar year 1935. Under the plans prepared by the Department of Commerce administrative headquarters will be located at Baltimore. The census will assemble basic information on the number of operating units, employment, pay rolls, receipts and other data for all business enterprises.

Census of the Aged.
The third project, that for an alphabetical index, is to assemble information concerning the ages of individuals covered by recent state and federal old-age pension legislation. Under the economic security law alone it is estimated that the census bureau will be asked to furnish evidence of age for at least 350,000 and perhaps as many as 500,000 applicants for old-age pensions during the first years of the operation of the law.

For five or ten years thereafter the applications will probably run about 100,000 annually. To conduct hundreds of thousands of searches in the original census schedules would quickly destroy them.

The census bureau plans to locate this indexing job at Philadelphia.

Girl Sketches Surgery Work to Help Cincinnati.

Cincinnati.—A girl who decided early in life she did not want to be an artist has grown up to be one and a very unusual one at that. She is Mary Maciel, medical artist for the department of surgery at the Cincinnati General hospital and the college of medicine of the University of Cincinnati. She is the only person in her particular field in Cincinnati and one of 100 in the United States.

Her task is to watch operations, make sketches in the operating room and then transform them into delicate detailed drawings or paintings. The drawings are published in medical magazines and text books or made into lantern slides for lectures.

Drawings rather than photographs are used in this work because, Miss Maciel said, if an operation was photographed, hands, scissors, forceps, etc., would be in the way and make it practically impossible to see the procedure.

This "New Deal" Rates Place in Postal Guides

New Deal, Mont.—This date line designates a town that soon will appear on all Montana maps in the United States postal guide.

First of 18 mushroom towns that have appeared with startling rapidity as work on Fort Peck dam has progressed, it occupies a spot that little more than a year ago was nothing more than another bit of Montana landscape.

A recent survey reveals that about 1,600 men, most of them heads of families owning their own homes, compose the population of the 18 mushroom towns.

Rheumatic Pain All Left Her Months Ago

Providing the Lasting Relief
That Indo-Vin Brings; Her Trouble Never Returned.

MRS. LOU CUNNINGHAM, of 1420 S. Liberty St., Muncie, says:

"It is the lasting relief that Indo-Vin gives that makes it seem so wonderful to me. It has been nine months since I took it and my rheumatism has never returned. For years I had almost suffered with rheumatism. I had this rheumatism all over me, in my hips and legs and even in the back of my neck, and it just seemed like my WHOLE SYSTEM was poisoned and full of this rheumatic affliction. I tried everything under the sun but nothing helped me until I got Indo-Vin, and it has done me more good than everything else PUT TOGETHER. It simply worked the rheumatic trouble from my system and it has all subsided now and I haven't got any pains at all, for they have entirely DISAPPEARED. This is the greatest thing of the kind that EVER CAME HERE and I am proud to publicly endorse it."

Indo-Vin is now being sold here in Cass City, at Burke's Drug Store. Also being sold by every good druggist throughout this section.—Advertisement.

MORE TESTING DONE BY STATE DAIRYMEN

Better prices for dairy products have encouraged more Michigan farmers to invest money in finding out just how much milk and butterfat each cow in their herds is producing, according to the dairy husbandry department at Michigan State College.

The number of herds being tested has increased in this state from 605 December 1, 1934, to 921 on October 1, 1935. The gain in numbers of tested cows has been 4,347 in the same period. This is the first significant increase in testing that has occurred in several years and indicates that dairymen are much more optimistic.

The men who make the tests for milk and butterfat production for members of herd improvement associations also have other duties. They often are able to show dairymen how to change dairy rations so that important savings of money can be made without reducing the production of the cows. The testers' reports show that such changes in rations have helped Michigan herd owners to save $1,029 since December 1, 1934.

Another service which the tester performs often enables a farmer to avoid waste of butterfat through improper adjustment of cream separators. Testers made adjustments on 1,511 separators in the period reported. Another source of waste in the dairy is furnishing feed to cows which will not pay for it. Tests showed 2,080 star boarders in the herds and these were sold for beef by their owners.

In some instances, the testers act as lifesavers in persuading dairymen to build safety pens for the confinement of herd sires. Bulls can be confined in these enclosures and given proper care without the need for any person to enter the enclosure. Several Michigan farmers who fail to use this precaution are killed or injured each year.

FIND FARM BUSINESS IS GROWING BETTER

Several indications point toward a real improvement in the economic conditions of farmers, according to the economic department at Michigan State College.

Federal land banks find that they have fewer requests for mortgage loans, more prompt payment on outstanding loans, and a decrease in the number of loan applications which fall in the emergency classification. Albert S. Goss, land bank commissioner, reports that in six of the land bank districts 90 per cent of all due installments had been paid by Sept. 1 and that the average for all 12 districts was 82 per cent of the installments paid on the due dates.

Mr. Goss says that most of the applications now coming in for loans are made by farmers who wish to refinance their indebtedness and take advantage of the lower interest rates. Emergency requests to the farm credit administration for loans made by farmers facing foreclosure dropped below 100 per week for the first time since the fall of 1933.

The reentrance of insurance companies and banks into the mortgage loan field is additional evidence of a belief in better times. Private credit agencies made loans of $306,000,000 on farm mortgages during the first six months of 1935 as compared with loans of $241,000,000 in the same period in 1934. This was a greater volume of loans than was handled by the federal farm mortgage agencies.

The total amount of farm mortgages in the first half of 1935 in the United States was $401,000,000 less than the amount written the first six months of 1934. Life insurance companies showed a larger increase in farm mortgages than any other loaning company.

liquor dealers see in them subjects for gain and they should be told that the liquor dispensers have no interest in young folks except for their shekels. Automobile hazards to both auto travelers and pedestrians are increasing at an alarming rate. The American Automobile Association recently stated that if the present rate continues one out of every three children born in America is destined to be killed or seriously injured in a traffic accident.

In Mr. Bayless' opinion, parents owe it to young people to develop a resentment toward a situation which carries with it so much of insidious undermining. Laughter is a great weapon and children should be taught in hearing and reading liquor advertisements to see the humor in them; to take with amusement the misleading statements that the manufacturer claims for his product.

Not a single promise made by the liquor interests in the campaign preceding repeal have been fulfilled, said the speaker. Temperance can only be promoted by a diminishing amount of liquor consumed.

Mrs. A. J. Knapp, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance

Union, urged the audience to accept a personal challenge to promote the betterment of conditions in the community. The W. C. T. U. stands today as firmly for right as it ever has and the society will carry on its work as long as there is a foe to fight.

She pointed out the responsibilities of parents to see the evils of places of vice prevalent in communities today and to resolve to eliminate them for the good of humanity. Mrs. Knapp urged that more would join the W. C. T. U. ranks and assist in the great work of improving living conditions which that organization is sponsoring.

Elizabeth J. Allen and D. O. Kingsford Exchange Vows

Beautifully simple and charming marriage rites were solemnized Saturday afternoon, October twenty-sixth, which united Miss Elizabeth J. Allen and Mr. Donovan Odell Kingsford, son of Mrs. Hugh Kingsford of Freemont, Michigan. The service was read at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Allen of Stockbridge, Mich., the Rev. L. S. Slaybaugh of Gregory officiating.

At two o'clock, to strains of the violin played by Miss Florice Seger of Jackson, the bride on her father's arm, between lanes of white ribbons, took her place in a wide doorway, white with ribbon streamers, where the groom stood waiting. The bride was beautiful in pastel pink taffeta with a moire jacket of deeper pink, the high cowl neck frill lending dignity and beauty. A white shoulder veil held by roses and white baby mums completed the outfit. The bride carried a huge bouquet of Talisman roses and white baby mums, tied in white.

The ushers, Donald and Douglas Aldrich, twin cousins of the bride, wore dark grey with white boutonnieres. The bride's mother chose a smart gown of black velvet and wore an arrangement of red roses and white mums, while the mother of the bridegroom in a burgundy crepe outfit, wore bronze roses.

Following the ceremony a delicious lunch was served. The bride's table was laid in white, the cover being her mother's wedding cloth. White lilies and tapers adorned the table, which stood beneath a huge white bell. The guests were seated at small tables covered with white and lovely in rose glassware, pink rosebuds centering each table.

The couple departed immediately afterward on a motor trip to Chicago and Milwaukee, the bride wearing for travel dark brown with gold accessories.

Included among the guests were the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Emily McKim of Ann Arbor and the grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Emma Odell of Tucson, Arizona, and a great aunt of the bride, Mrs. Hannah McKim, of Cass City. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Allen of Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kingsford and daughters, Nancy Mae and Donna Jean, of Freemont, Mrs. Maude Brower of Grand Rapids, Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Aldrich of Flint, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hurley and two sons, Lloyd Andrew and Robert, of Alamosa, Colorado, Miss Dorothy McKim of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Jeffs of Lake City, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ramsbottom of Plainwell, Mich., Mrs. Gladys Detwyler of Jackson, Mrs. L. S. Slaybaugh of Gregory, Miss Pauline Stevens of East Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Rae Satterlee and Miss Dorothy Brogan of Stockbridge.

could not find for the plaintiff unless they deemed the defendant was wilfully negligent or there was wilful or wanton misconduct. The accident occurred a short distance east of Caro. Everett Elly was seriously hurt in the accident when the car crashed through a guard rail and ran into a tree after a 16-foot drop down a road embankment.

John Timko, who pleaded guilty several weeks ago to the charge of breaking and entering a farm building in the theft of beans, was sentenced Monday to 3 to 15 years at the state reformatory at Ionia with the recommendation of the minimum period.

In the case of Peter Mantel of Fairgrove vs. the Tuscola County Road Commission, the parties decided to agree upon a settlement by compromise after testimony had been introduced into court. The case was dismissed without cost to either party. Mantel claimed damages for horses struck by a road commission truck. One horse had to be killed because of injury and another was laid up for some time.

The case of Melvin F. Culbert vs. Frank St. Mary was settled out of court.

A Faucault Pendulum
The ball suspended from the roof of the National Academy of Sciences is a Faucault pendulum. The action of this pendulum depends upon the fact that according to the laws of motion a freely swinging pendulum tends constantly to move in the same plane. The experiment proves that the earth rotates eastward and the rate of deviation of the pendulum proves that the relative motion of the earth, with respect to the stars, is due entirely to its rotation and not to the motion of the stars around it.

PREPARE FOR WINTER

Now that winter is just "around the corner," it's time to change oils. Drain your automobile of its stiff oils adapted for summer uses and refill with which assures you fast, smooth starts in cold weather, complete circulation and lubrication.

Gulf Winter Oil

Anti-Freeze Preparation

Some night soon, the cold winter winds from the north will be just too bad for the car radiator whose owner delayed having it filled with an anti-freeze solution. Better drive to our service station and have us fix up your radiator with

Eveready Prestone

The cost of anti-freeze protection cannot be measured by the price per gallon or the cost of the initial filling. The number of gallons required for complete protection as well as the lasting qualities of the protection must be considered.

The only correct basis of comparison is the TOTAL COST OF PROTECTION PER CAR for a whole anti-freeze season. The first expenditure for protection that must be renewed is, of course, only a part of the winter's anti-freeze cost. It is the total money expended by the car owner for an entire winter's protection that really determines the economical merits of an anti-freeze.

YES, WE CARRY A FINE GRADE OF ALCOHOL IF YOU PREFER THAT FOR YOUR ANTI-FREEZE PROTECTION.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The little town of Heron River is eagerly awaiting the arrival of Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Gentleman Jim," formerly of the community, but known as a gambler, news of whose recent murder in Chicago has reached the town. Sophronia Willard, Jim Grenoble's sister, with whom the girl is to live, is at the railroad depot to meet her. Sophronia's household consists of her husband, and stepsons, Roderick and Jason. On Silver's arrival Duke Melbank, a shiftless youth, makes himself obnoxious. Sophronia slaps him.

CHAPTER II.—Roderick is on the eve of marriage to Corinne Meader, daughter of a failed banker. The Willards own only half of the farm on which they live, the other half being Anna Grenoble's.

CHAPTER III

SOPHRONIA WILLARD had driven a half mile from the limits of Heron River before she spoke to the girl, who sat beside her straight and white as an icicle.

Then Phonie said, between her long white teeth, "D—n them! The ignoramuses. Don't you mind 'em, child! You've done nothin' wrong. Don't you let 'em scare you!"

The girl laughed softly. Sophronia glanced at her in surprise, and thought suddenly that she looked in some way much more than nineteen.

"I'm not a child, Aunt Sophronia," she said. Her voice was low and oddly measured, as though she herself were listening to it. "They didn't frighten me. I am only sorry they upset you on my account."

Phonie was discomfited and a bit irritated. "They get away with too much, those galoots!" she said loudly. "A stranger can't come here that don't act up like a pack o' hoodlums!"

Silver did not reply. Her aunt ventured a glance at her as she jerked the old car around a corner. The girl's face, with its rather small features, was like marble, no life in anything but her eyes, and they stared straight ahead of her as though she saw something nameless beyond the dark of the windshield. Qualms were unusual with Phonie, but she experienced them now.

"We've got to buck up, Silver," Sophronia said violently. "I know how you feel. Jim was my only brother. If he'd been my father I couldn't of felt worse. We've got to keep a stiff upper lip, my dear."

"I know," the girl said in that same level voice. "It must have been a great shock to you, Aunt Sophronia."

"It was."

For a little time there was no conversation between them. Sophronia almost wished that the girl had thrown a fit of hysterics—anything, rather than this frozen silence. It was unnatural in such a young thing.

"But we won't do any talking tonight, Silver," she said presently. "You must get a good rest. I am sorry Roddy—he's my oldest stepson—I'm sorry he's away in the good car. This is an awful rattle-trap for you to be comin' home in."

Silver seemed to have been thinking her own thoughts. "Your stepson—Roddy," she ventured, "will he mind very much—my coming?"

"He won't mind anything, unless you sell your land to a cash buyer," Sophronia said grimly, and then could have bitten her tongue out. She had just said that tonight they wouldn't do any talking!

"Oh!"

"I didn't exactly mean that," Sophronia shouted. "It's just that he's filled your section with his dad's dirt. He feels that it's his own. Don't pay attention to me tonight. I'm a little scattered, I guess."

"I don't think I shall want to sell the land, Aunt Sophronia," Silver said monotonously. "If you will just let me stay with you, I'll be ever so grateful."

Sophronia's heart leaped. Well, if it was going to be as simple as that!

"Stay!" she exclaimed. "Isn't this your rightful home? And ain't I your closest kin? I'd be a fine one, I would, if I didn't insist on your living with me!"

"Thank you, Aunt Sophronia," Silver said. "I can't say any more."

"You don't need to," Sophronia remarked tersely. "And don't call me 'Sophronia!' It's too much like me. I get 'Phonie' from them that likes me. You can cut out the 'aunt' too. It makes me feel old."

rise there. The old house—your great-grandfather's homestead—sits back a ways. It's part furnished still, just like it was when he built it, seventy-five years ago. We use the place for the crew now during thrashin'. Well, we're gettin' home."

The girl stirred slightly and glanced back down the slope. "I remember this hill," she said. "Yes, you was born in that old house," Sophronia declared promptly. "And your mother died in it."

Out of the sultry darkness, old Roderick came toward them from the big house, where one light was burning in the living room. Sophronia saw his arms outstretched toward Jim's daughter, and heard the booming greeting of his voice, and was suddenly afraid. But Jim's daughter did not break down. There was something uncanny about the girl, Sophronia thought in confusion.

In the house, Phonie relieved Silver Grenoble of her wraps and the men took her luggage upstairs. With the firm belief in the efficacy of food to dull the sharp edge of grief, Phonie then busied herself preparing a plate of sandwiches. Jason went to the cooler in the vegetable cellar outside, and brought in a stone jug of ginger beer, while old Roderick kept Silver company in the living room.

When Sophronia returned with the sandwiches, she saw a bit of color on Silver's cheeks, and although her eyes were darting about the room like dark flames, they were no longer the eyes of some stricken animal.

Sophronia placed the sandwiches and glasses on the table with its crocheted dolly, and Jason poured ginger beer into the glasses.

"Now, Silver," she said stoutly, "you must have a bite. That darned old car must have played you out—it sure did me!"

The men helped themselves, reaching out to the decked table in painful fastidiousness with their large brown hands.

Sophronia took in Silver's appearance in detail. The girl was slender, but not as frail as Phonie had at first supposed. Her eyes were dark blue, although by the light of the acetylene lamp they seemed almost black. Her hair was what would be called ash-blond, she decided, and it waved slightly and was dressed in a plain fashion low upon her neck.

Then Sophronia looked about the room and saw it, in a twinkling, as she had not seen it in years. She saw it now because she was wondering what Jim's daughter was thinking about it.

She saw the unobtrusive, faded tan of the wall paper, with the silver stripe in it. That was not in bad taste, she thought stoutly. The curtains were of ecru net, with side strips and valance of plain blue rep; that had been Roddy's idea. She saw the upright piano of black walnut, the keys yellowing, and recalled that until Roddy had removed it there had been a handsome green velvet scarf on its top, hand-painted in pink roses. Sophronia looked at the walls and thought how much cozier they had been with the pictures and mottoes on them, and the burnt leather panel with the head of Pocahontas and the little calendar below. Now, on the wall opposite her, were three smallish etchings, placed step-ladder fashion. Black and white—no color or life to them! One was only land and sky, the second the same with a windmill stuck in it, and the third was an old horse plodding across a frozen pond dragging a two-wheeled cart.

"And is this lawyer—this Benjamin Hubbard you speak of—" old Roderick was saying—"is he looking after all the arrangements?"

"Yes," Silver replied softly but very clearly. "Ben is looking after everything. It was Dad's wish that he should be looked after by a lawyer."

"Yes," Silver replied softly but very clearly. "Ben is looking after everything. It was Dad's wish that he should be looked after by a lawyer."

er he had his first heart attack. But he mentioned it again—before he died."

"I see," Phonie winked rapidly several times.

The men shifted their feet in awkward silence.

Sophronia kept her eyes on Silver as the girl continued speaking in the same subdued tone. Almost as though she had been there, Sophronia experienced in Silver's telling, the events of the summer.

She saw the scorching day in June when Jim Grenoble had crumpled forward on the street and the doctor had warned him. She saw Jim's eyes as he had looked then—levelly into the face of doom. She heard the doctor's voice telling Jim that one of these days his heart would snap like a rubber band that had been stretched too far. She heard Jim asking his daughter Silver to see to it—if anything happened—that his ashes should rest in the country cemetery at Heron River.

Sophronia could hear Silver promising—and pleading desperately with him then to go away with her to some quiet place, away from her tension and fever of the life they were living. And she could see him patting his daughter's hand gently and telling her that they would go soon—just as soon as they had enough money put by.

Phonie said, "Did Jim never mention wantin' to come back—I mean—before he knew he was dyin'?"

Silver raised her eyes, and for a moment Sophronia thought she saw in them something secret and fearful in their expression, something startling. The girl parted her lips and then looked fixedly at the wall opposite her. Phonie had the feeling that Silver had been about to impart some difficult information, and then had changed her mind.

"Yes—he was coming back," she said slowly. "He and I were all ready to come. We had planned to take this morning's train—the one I took alone."

Sophronia started. Her handkerchief dropped limply into her lap. Then, without warning, two large tears rolled from her lids and down her long brown cheeks.

"Please don't," Silver breathed. "I'm sorry—I shouldn't have—"

"Never mind me!" Sophronia exclaimed in a tremendous voice. "I'm an old fool. I thought we wouldn't talk about it tonight. But—well, it's time we were all turnin' in." She got to her feet. "Looks as if Roddy won't be comin' home tonight. Jase, light the upstairs lamps!"

More than darkness, more than starlight and an indolent wind flowed into Silver's room through the dormer windows. Silver had been gazing at them for over an hour, and the company that entered there was palpable as her heart-beat, undeniable as a truth individualized in loneliness. The company was composed of Jim Grenoble's love for her mother, Anna; of his tragic loss; his subsequent folly. But it had other members as well; the murmur of trees Jim had planted in his boyhood, the ripe fragrance of fields he had tilled, the faint, gliding chuckle of the creek under the willows, in the ravine below.

She reached for the flashlight she had left on the small table beside the bed. She sat for a moment holding it and listening to the dense silence of the house, separating that silence from the winged presences of her own room.

The others would be asleep now. Barefooted, her high-heeled mules in her hand, and a quilted robe about her, Silver stole downstairs, using the flashlight to guide her through the dark. Once outside the house, it was a simple matter to follow the gentle slope down to the old stone building. Presently she knew she had come to the doorway of the old house, for the air about her had subtly changed, as though time itself had gathered there. Ygrasli—her father had not permitted her memory of it to die. Anna Grenoble had named it so. Silver had told Sister Anastasia, in one of the numerous convents of her girlhood, about Ygrasli, and the nun had said, "Your mother must have been a poet, Silver."

Silver felt her way in her insect slippers across the ground to the left, the direction from which came the sound of the creek. She seated herself and presently, overcome with weariness, sank down with her head on her arms. It was only twenty-four hours now since Jim Grenoble had died. Just twenty-four hours since this spell of unreality had come upon her. She had not been able to cry, because crying was something real.

It was inevitable that he should die as he had died. There was a relentless rightness in his going the way he had gone. At a hacienda near Mexico City, a peon in the employ of Carlos Salamanca had darted out from behind a pomegranate tree one moonlight night after Jim had taken four thousand dollars from his master, but Jim had broken the wrist of the hand that held the knife and had kept the knife as a souvenir of a close call.

She sat up and clasped her arms about her knees and gazed with burning, dry eyes down at the dark flow of the creek. What would that strange aunt of hers, Dad Jim's sister, have thought if she had told her that there had been another reason, besides his failing heart, for Jim Grenoble's sudden decision to return? Perhaps some day she would tell Sophronia about Gerald Lucas. Some day, when his cool power over her and her capitulation to him was only an evil dream, she might tell Sophronia that it was really from Gerald Lucas that she had fled; that Jim, knowing Gerald for what he was, had been overcome by the knowledge that Silver was in love with him, and had blamed himself for exposing her to the corruption of his own life.

Silver Grenoble, as she lay under the willow tree, was conscious of a great weariness, she knew deeply that a change was coming, pervasive and calm, into her being.

Roddy Willard brought his car to the curb in front of Torson's place, turned off the lights and stepped down.

At the end of the lunch counter, Duke Melbank lounged, rolling a cigarette in his pale, freckled hands. His red hair flamed.

"A cup of coffee, Lena," Roddy said to the elder Torson girl as she greeted him with a smile.

Then he turned to speak to Duke. "Time you were in bed, Duke," he remarked pleasantly. This tall, soft hulk of a fellow was beneath contempt, beneath anger, even for Sophronia's sake, although he had been spreading gossip about Phonie's niece ever since his famous visit to Chicago earlier in the summer.

"You been away," Duke said as he slumped down upon a stool. "Duke checks up on us, Lena," Roddy smiled. "We've got to watch our step."

"No," Duke objected. "I was just thinkin' you ain't heard, maybe, about old Jim Grenoble."

"Sure. Him I seen when I was to Chi last month. I could 'a' told them he wouldn't come to no good end."

"Anything happened?" Roddy asked. There was a certain leering knowledge about Duke that filled him, as always, with distaste. "Plenty! He got himself shot last night."

"My G—d!" Roddy exclaimed. "Who shot him?"

"Fella named Rawson, it was. The police got him. Killed him when he was tryin' to make his getaway. Some o' them guys can shoot, no foolin'!"

"Poor old Jim!" Roddy said to himself. "Sophronia will take that pretty hard, I'm afraid."

Duke laughed mirthlessly. "Not so's you'd notice it."

"You've seen her?"

"I seen her, all right, all right. And how! She was down to meet the train tonight."

"You mean—they sent the body—?"

Duke's hands played together. "Not exactly. The one that came in tonight wasn't what you'd call a dead one, eh, Lena? I'll tell the world! It was Jim's daughter. Her I seen that night in Chi with a big shot by the name o' Lucas."

"Is she here?"

"She's out to the farm, if that's what you mean. But that oughtn't to worry you none. She won't be stayin' long in these parts, if I know anything. Her kind don't belong round here." He chuckled. "I've got her number, all right, all right!"

But Roddy did not hear the innuendo. Duke's disclosure had flashed like lightning across his mind. He tossed a coin on the counter, seized his hat and made for the door.

Driving home, he realized that he was as near to panic as he had ever been in his life. What would this girl's coming mean? She would undoubtedly sell her land for cash. It was not likely that a couple of hundred a year rental would interest her. Five years ago the land might have come into the possession of the Willards, had it not been for Jim Grenoble's obstinacy. Instead, the money that might have bought it had gone into bad investments. How, if they lost the Grenoble section, were all the Willards going to live on the meager income from their own land, which was, by some trick of nature, not half so rich? And in a week he, Roddy, would have a wife to support as well.

Rapidly he took stock of himself. It was three years now since he had been graduated from college, and although he still clung jealously to what he had learned there, the soil had taken him back to itself again. He had worked the Grenoble land since he was fifteen, and had vowed that some day it would be his own in fact. And now—

Roddy brought his car to a stop in the little garage beside the barn, and climbed out of it. He walked slowly through the starlit darkness up the path to the house.

He let himself in through the back door and struck a match, found the lamp and lit it. Odd, he thought, but he could have sworn he had heard a footstep in the front hall. He moved through the house and saw a white-faced girl standing in the hall with one foot on the first step of the stairway. She had a flowered, thick robe wrapped tightly about her, and she carried a flashlight and a pair of slippers. Her hair hung to her shoulders, and her eyes were, in that startling moment, enormous.

Silver was the first to speak. "I suppose you are Roddy Willard," she said almost breathlessly.

"Yes," he said, and came forward with his hand outstretched. "And you are Anna Grenoble, of course."

He tried to relax his mouth into a smile, to check his agitation. "Yes," she said, smiling faintly.

"I only just heard—in Heron River—about what happened to your father," he said haltingly. "I'm terribly sorry."

Silver stood with one hand on the balustrade and gave him a shadowy look. "Thank you. I—". Her voice trailed away. "I couldn't sleep—I went for a walk—down to the old house. I—I didn't expect to be caught prowling. She gave him an odd look, half apology, half defiance. "Good night," she said.

"Good night."

Sleep was out of the question. Roddy went back to the kitchen, turned the lamp low and stepped out the back door. The delicate bitterness of coming harvest filled his nostrils when he drew a deep breath. In a few days he would be a married man—and Corinne Meader established in the house of a farmer who looked into the future with blind eyes.

He found it difficult to believe that Jim Grenoble's death had coincided so nearly with his asking Corinne to marry him. It was almost like rust coming on the eve of reaping.

My Neighbor Says:—

When boiling vegetables add a level teaspoonful of salt to every pint of water.

A teaspoonful of household ammonia added to a quart of water and poured over house ferns once or twice a month will give them a rich green color.

To remove obstinate stoppers from glass bottles, dip a piece of woolen cloth into boiling water and wrap tightly about the neck of the bottle. Stopper will become loosened in a few minutes.

A strawberry huller or sharp pointed knife will remove pin feathers from a chicken. Singe off long hairlike feathers by holding chicken over flame, turning constantly so that it will not burn.

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use a liquid laxative.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularly.

Largest of American Grouse

The sage chicken is the largest of American grouse. It differs in many ways from the prairie chicken and ranges farther westward, making its home wherever the sagebrush grows in sufficient density to afford it food and shelter. Mottled in combinations of blue-gray, black, browns, and white, this species may hide safely under any sage bush and so blend into the background that neither hawk nor hunter can discern its presence until within a few feet, and then only with a sharp and well-trained eye.

WE DRIVERS

A Series of Brief Discussions on Driving, Dedicated to the Safety, Comfort and Pleasure of the Motoring Public. Prepared by General Motors

No. 1—CURVES AND TURNS

NO MATTER how expert we may be as drivers, we are all apt to fall into habits of driving that don't quite measure up to what we really know is right.

For instance, we all know that we ought to be careful about passing cars, especially when another car is approaching from the opposite direction.

And yet there possibly isn't one of us who hasn't, at one time or another, moved over in the road to pass a car, and then wondered if we would get around in time.

Now here's an interesting thing about that. When we try to pass a car that's going forty miles an hour, it's just the same as if we tried to pass a standing string of cars 128 feet long. In other words, it's like passing eight cars parked bumper-to-bumper in the road. If we try to pass one going sixty, it's like trying to pass a line of more than sixteen cars standing in the road, and sixteen cars in a row will reach half a block. This is probably a new idea to most of us. If we kept it in mind, we would never pass a car unless we were sure that there were no oncoming cars for a good long distance ahead.

But turning aside to pass is not the particular kind of turning that we are interested in discussing here. What we are now concerned with is taking curves and corners. From time to time in these discussions we will find that the same old laws of Nature will be involved. Foremost among them will be the laws of momentum, and momentum plays the major part in going around curves. Because momentum not only wants to keep us going, but going in the same direction. When it is trying to make us go straight instead of curving our course, it operates under an assumed name, if you please. For then we call it "centrifugal force."

Now of course we all know what centrifugal force is. We feel it when we go around curves. Highways and railroads are banked at curves to offset centrifugal force. Aviators bank their planes at turns by tipping them with the controls. But even though we all know about centrifugal force, few of us realize how powerful it is, and how much greater it gets the faster we go.

A 3000-pound car making a turn of 500-foot radius, has to overcome a centrifugal force of only about 156 pounds at 20 miles an hour. But at 30 miles an hour, that force has grown to 360 pounds, and at 60 it is nine times as great as at 20... over fourteen hundred pounds trying its best to push us off the road! The only thing that keeps us on the road in the first place is the friction between our tires and the road. The minute the centrifugal force gets stronger than the force of that friction, off the road we go.

The trouble is that we often don't realize how fast we're going. On road trips, for instance, after we have driven at a certain speed for a long time, it seems a small matter to increase our speed a few miles an hour. Then after a while we may do the same thing again. In other words, we keep putting forward our basis of comparison till by-and-by we have lost our usual sense of how fast we are going.

Then, the first thing we know, we are face-to-face with a turn or even half way around it and we feel Old Man Centrifugal Force trying to push us off the road.

So what do we do? We clamp down the brakes. It's the only thing we can do when we find we're going too fast. But just the same, approaching that corner too fast has kept us from taking it as we should have liked to. For if conditions permit, it is often desirable to increase speed as we go around a curve. As long as our rear wheels are not being retarded, but are actually pushing us around the curve, our steering is effective and our car is under control.

The long and short of it is that we can't take liberties with the laws of momentum and centrifugal force. Man's speed laws may not always be observed, but Nature's speed laws always are!

DEFORD

80th Birthday—

Mrs. Phebe Daugherty was pleasantly surprised on the occasion of her 80th birthday Sunday, Oct. 27. In her honor, relatives and former friends made the day one to be remembered, taking of pictures, recollection of olden times, and pleasant dinner. The tables were laden with all the good things for which one could wish. A huge, beautifully decorated cake, a gift of Kenneth Benedict, a grandson, graced the center of the table. Mrs. Daugherty was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Those attending were, Mrs. Eva Graham and son, Harvey, of Allenton, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Graham and family and Herb Howell of Capac, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Roehl and son of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howell and family of Merrill, John McCaughna, Margaret McCaughna, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCaughna and son, Harold Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Benedict and two sons of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. George Titus, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Titus and daughter of Oxford. All departed in the early evening wishing Mrs. Daugherty many more happy birthdays.

Obituary

Mrs. Hugh Gerstenberger.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in the Lamotte Mennonite Brethren in Christ church for Mrs. Hugh Gerstenberger, who passed away Saturday afternoon, October 26, at her home, four miles east and five miles north of Marlette. Rev. G. D. Clink assisted by Rev. H. C. Eagle and Rev. Mrs. Supernois officiated. Burial was in Novesta cemetery.

Annie Bomberg was born May 17, 1865, on a farm three miles north of Uby and always lived in the Thumb district.

On July 8, 1889, she was married to Edward Knoblet and they moved to the farm, 2½ miles south and 2½ miles west of Cass City, where they lived, except a few years in Cass City and a short time on the farm north of Uby, until Mr. Knoblet passed away in February, 1932.

Two years ago she was united in marriage with Hugh Gerstenberger and they went to make their home at Marlette where she died Saturday. She has been poorly for some time but was confined to her bed only two weeks.

She was affiliated with the Mennonite Brethren in Christ church where she was a faithful and active member.

She leaves besides her husband, one son, Rinerd Knoblet, and one daughter, Mrs. Herbert Layman, both of Cass City; seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren; five sisters, Mrs. Lydia Frank of Uby, Mrs. Fred Nagel and Mrs. Lena Ouse of Idaho, Miss Thessa Bomberg of California and Mrs. Emma Frasee of Seattle, Washington.

Mrs. Alex Hamilton.

The funeral of Mrs. Alex Hamilton, who passed away in a hospital in Pontiac on Oct. 24, was held from the Andrew Hamilton home at Shabbona on Saturday afternoon, Rev. Paul J. Allured officiating. Interment was made in the Novesta cemetery.

Mary J. Sangster was born in Tillsburg, Ontario, in 1876 and was united in marriage with Alexander Hamilton on May 22, 1895. She has resided in Pontiac during the past five years.

She leaves three children, James A. Hamilton of Pontiac, Mrs. Howard Hoadley of Detroit, and Gordon Hamilton of Auburn Heights; four brothers, Wm. Sangster of Evergreen, James Sangster of Bear Lake, Gordon Sangster of Duluth, Minn., and Alex Sangster of Ypsilanti; and two sisters, Mrs. R. Painter of Hillman and Mrs. A. Hamilton of Shabbona.

Alexander Hamilton, husband of Mrs. Hamilton, it will be remembered by Chronicle readers, disappeared mysteriously several years ago when he left his home in Pontiac for his farm in Evergreen township. Officers made a prolonged search for him, fearing that he was the victim of foul play, but no trace was found of the missing man.

Helen Primer.

Helen, seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Primer of Akron, passed away Saturday at Morris hospital. Helen was accidentally shot Thursday by her brother.

Mrs. William Foe.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Friday) for Mrs. William Foe, who passed away in the Marlette hospital Tuesday evening, October 29.

Katie J. Smith was born in Oakland county, Feb. 19, 1866, and was united in marriage with William Foe, Feb. 21, 1881. They came to make their home on a farm about five miles east of town where they lived until coming to Cass City.

Mrs. Foe has been poorly for several months but was confined to her bed only five days. She was taken to the Marlette hospital Friday.

Funeral services will be held in the home on East Main street. James Patrick of Detroit will officiate, and burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

She leaves besides her husband, one son, George Foe, of Cass City; two grandchildren, Harry and John Allis, of Flint; a brother, Chan Smith of Flint and a sister, Mrs. Arthur McDavis of Oxford.

Mrs. Nancy Hack Hoffman.

Mrs. Nancy Hack Hoffman, 79, passed away at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Jack Little, near Deford, on Wednesday, October 23, after a week's illness. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. F. L. Crandall at the Wilmot Free Methodist church Friday afternoon and burial was made in the Kingston cemetery.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. Hammond of Lake Orion and Mrs. Charles Ferguson at Wilmot, and one brother, Charles Hack, of Caro.

Dugald K. Manigold.

Private funeral services were held Thursday afternoon for Dugald Keith Manigold, 19, from the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Knap, his cousins. He passed away Tuesday morning, October 29. Burial was in Elkland cemetery. Dugald has been an invalid all his life. He made his home with his aunt, Miss Jennie McIntyre, at Argyle for the past ten years. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mina Manigold;
