GAS DEALER FOR EACH 100 OF POPULATION

Fourteenth Gas Service Station to Be Built Here in March.

"Fill 'er up!" At just how many places can you go in Cass City and make this popular national demand? Would you say 8, or 10, or 13? The last named figure is correct and it will be 14 by next March according to late information.

Just now, there is a gas and oil station for every 100 of population in Cass City, whether an automobile or two, or none is in use by a family. Fortunately, the gasoline dealers have a large trading area to draw from and that is why so many of them are doing such a thriving business here.

The first gas and oil service station was established in Cass City by J. C. Farrell in 1921. Mr. Farrell was formerly a clothing merchant here and after conducting the station for a short period realized a nice profit by selling it to the Cass City Oil and Gas Co., a stock company of local investors. This company has enjoyed an excellent business and the original stockholders had their investments returned to them in annual dividends several years ago. Stanley Asher is the manager of the station and is assisted in its operation by John Goodall, Ernest Goodall and Ray Fleenor. The company, in addition to its retail business here, wholesales gas and oils to several sub stations at other towns and country points.

The Standard Oil Co. was the first oil and gas distributor in Cass City, establishing a bulk station back in 1900. E. W. Keating was their representative and recalls that delivering gasoline by wagon and team had its drawbacks in the spring and other seasons in those days when super highways were unknown. Frank Ward drove the team for several years. On one occasion, near Wickware, Mr. Ward had to secure help to extricate not only the gas wagon but also one of the horses out of the mud on the highway. For the last 18 years, Mr. Keating's son, R. D. Keating, has been in charge of the wholesale end of the Standard Oil Co. here. The service station of the company was erected in 1921 and is now under the management of Donald MacLachlan, with Jack Esau, his assistant.

One of the landmarks of Cass City, the J. C. Laing store of pioneer days, was torn down in 1928 to make room for a service station of the S. T. & H. Oil Co. and the gas station was erected in June of that year. A. H. Kinnaird was made manager of the new business and has retained that position during the seven years. Ed Golding and A. D. Leitch are the other employees. The station does a retail and wholesale business and is one of 16 service stations conducted by the S. T. & H. Oil Co. in Tuscola.

Mysterious Death of Former Cass City Resident

Saginaw police are investigating the death of Christopher C. Frey, who was found unconscious at his home at 322 North Seventh street, Saginaw, Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 19, and passed away early Wednesday morning. An autopsy Wednesday revealed indications of several blows on the head so scattered it would be impossible for them to be the result of a fall.

Police who searched the Frey home found evidence of assets exceeding $10,000, but uncovered only six cents in cash. In a small document case, they found certificates for 23 shares of Consumers Power Co. preferred stock, certificates for People's Building and Loan Association stock, a credit of several thousand dollars in a building and loan association passbook and two savings bank passbooks showing credits of more than $1,000 each.

Mr. Frey was born March 17, 1868, in Germany, came to America in 1890, locating first at Cass City. For a few years, he lived at the Fred Buerk farm home here, and then located in Saginaw where he has since resided. In 1895, he married Frederika Grunzer, who died about a year ago and since that time he has resided alone. His only living relative in America is a cousin, Mrs. Leonard Buehrly of Cass City. He has two brothers and a sister living in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Buehrly and daughter, Miss Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buehrly and daughter, Alice, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buehrly and Lawrence Buehrly attended the funeral of Mr. Frey in Saginaw on Nov. 20.

MARRIED 50 YEARS ON NOV. 26

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Little.

FARM INCOME GAINS IN MOST SECTIONS

Michigan Producers Share in Better Returns from Crops and Stock.

In the group of states in which Michigan is included, receipts were 23 per cent larger in the first nine months of this year than last, due chiefly to the higher level of income from livestock. Should farmers in this region maintain volume of marketings of meat animals at about the same level compared with last year for the remainder of 1935, and should there be no material decline in prices for cattle, calves and hogs, the cash receipts in the region should continue to improve over the corresponding months in 1934. The larger prospective corn output this year is another favorable factor, indicating higher income during October, November and December.

The larger crop production in the West North Central states in 1935 began to move to market in volume in September and was accompanied by a marked advance in income from farm marketings. Cash receipts in September 1935 were 16 per cent greater than in the same month last year and receipts from farm marketings are likely to continue larger than in the same months a year earlier during most of the crop marketing season, as the production in cash crops in this area has been greatly increased and larger supplies of feed will permit a more extensive feeding program during the 1935-36 feeding season.

In the South Atlantic states, receipts were six per cent less in the first nine months of this year than a year ago, the change ranging from a decrease of 27 per cent in North Carolina to an increase of 21 per cent in West Virginia. The lower price of cotton this year, says the bureau, will be largely offset by price adjustment payments, but these will not be made in volume until after the end of the year.

Rogers' Death Was Blow to Gaiety of Nations, Cadman Declares; Comedian's Memory Should Be Perpetuated, Comments Cardinal Hayes

When Will Rogers died, the gaiety of nations decreased.

This is the statement of Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, nationally prominent pastor of the Central Congregational church in Brooklyn, N. Y., whose voice is known to thousands of radio listeners.

"It was not his humor alone," says Dr. Cadman, "but the wisdom and timeliness of his outputs which commends him to our intellectual approval as well as to our affection and he is encompassed today by our love and followed by our prayers."

Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, said, "It is very proper that the memory of Will Rogers as an outstanding American should be commemorated."

Millions now have an opportunity to contribute to the memory of Will Rogers. Famous friends have organized The Will Rogers Memorial Commission. It is hoped everyone who smiled with Rogers will come forward with a subscription. Take it or send it to your bank—or any bank—or use the accompanying coupon to send your subscription to this office. Every cent subscribed will be used for memorials to be selected by Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover, Alfred E. Smith, Will H. Hayes, Jesse H. Jones, Owen D. Young, Vice President John N.

were held in Calvary Evangelical church in Detroit on Monday. The Rev. D. C. Ostroff officiated and burial was at Whitford Center, Mich.

Mr. Bittner died Friday in Highland Park General Hospital from injuries suffered Wednesday when he fell from a porch railing at his home, 5278 Linwood avenue. He was born in Adrian, March 16, 1856, and for 25 years was in the ministry. He had pastored at Sebawaing, Cass City, South Rockwood, Bay City and Flint before taking a charge at Columbiaville, from which he retired in 1913. For the past 17 years he had lived in Detroit.

Surviving are his wife, Elizabeth; two daughters, Mrs. Esther Lloyd and Mrs. Ruth Hayes; a brother, Mose Bittner, of Sylvania, O., and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Frye and Mrs. Lydia Billou, of Detroit.

Paul Meredith Head County C. E. Union

A large group of Christian Endeavor folk gathered at the Evangelical church at Cass City Friday evening for fun and fellowship. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Tuscola County Christian Endeavor Union and the banquet was prepared and served by the young people of the Evangelical church here. Howard Barcalow of Saginaw, county president, presided at the business session. Paul Meredith of Caro succeeds Mr. Barcalow as president of the county work.

The business meeting was followed by group conferences after which Dr. Blossom of Vassar addressed the meeting on the Christian Endeavor biennial slogan, "We Choose Christ." The vested choir of the Presbyterian church provided the special music, accompanied by Mrs. Ethel McCoy at the piano.

It was announced that the next county rally will be held the latter part of January at the Caro Presbyterian church.

Memorial Clock to Be Placed in School

An electric clock, a gift of the Class of 1935 in memory of Charles Wayne Price, superintendent of schools in Cass City from Sept., 1933, until his death on May 11, 1935, will be installed in the school building here this week. The clock will be placed in the lower corridor with a face in each direction.

MR. AND MRS. LITTLE MARRIED 50 YEARS

Friends Will Extend Congratulations at Open House Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Little, residents of Novesta township for 50 years, passed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday, Nov. 26. A family dinner in honor of the event has been planned at their home for Sunday, Dec. 1.

The marriage of William Little and Margaret McLarty occurred at Cass City. They were attended by Anna Little and Neil McLarty. They settled on the farm in Novesta township where they still live, being among the early pioneers of that vicinity.

Born in Canada, Mr. Little is 74 years of age. Mrs. Little was born in Canada Jan. 1, 1858.

Mr. and Mrs. Little are the parents of five children, Mrs. Mae Bergen and Mrs. Sarah Chaffee of Ferndale, Mrs. Jennie Jackson of Elmwood township, Arthur Little of Cass City and Mack Little of Novesta. They also have 13 grandchildren.

They are planning on having open house from 1:00 to 5:00 p. m. on Sunday and all neighbors and friends are welcome to call and extend congratulations.

Round Table Meets Here on Dec. 4

The Thumb Round Table will meet at the Cass City school auditorium on Wednesday evening, December 4, when 100 teachers of schools in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties are expected to attend. The banquet will be served by ladies of the Evangelical church.

Supt. C. H. Bush of Akron, president, and Supt. Ralph Brant of Vassar, secretary-treasurer of the society, are endeavoring to secure Dr. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, as guest speaker. A musical program will be a contribution of talent from the local school.

Cass City Home Extension Group Met in School Building

Much interest was manifested by the members of the Cass City Extension Group when the lesson on "Block Printing" was presented by Miss Lura DeWitt at their meeting in the high school building Tuesday. Friends of the group may anticipate receiving Christmas gifts done in this art.

During the morning session, Mrs. A. N. Bigelow reviewed the first lesson of the season on "Recognizing Suitable Furnishings." This was preceded by the business meeting conducted by the chairman, Mrs. Willis Campbell.

At noon a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Ivan Niergarth, Mrs. Guy Landon, Mrs. Lyle Bardwell and Mrs. Martin McKenzie in the home economics room.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 28 with Mrs. S. B. Young, hostess. She will be assisted by Mrs. A. A. Ricker, Mrs. George Dillman and Mrs. D. A. Krug.

Cass City Debaters Lose to Mt. Morris

The Cass City high school debating team lost to Mt. Morris on Friday evening in the first debate of the preliminary series of the Michigan High School Forensic association. The local team consists of Frank Morris, Patricia Pinney and Shirley Lenzner and they defended the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the Several Nations Should Make Government Monopolies of the Manufacture and Sale of All Combat Instruments of War."

The Mt. Morris debaters were Stanley Cosens, Orville Williams and John Strand and their superintendent, E. L. Clark, presided as chairman. Harold Hawley, coach of Flint Central; Eric Senn, coach of Saginaw Arthur Hill; and Mr. Tolliver, Saginaw Eastern, acted as judges.

The second debate of the series has been set for Friday, Dec. 13, by Dr. William E. Halstead, manager. At that time the visiting school will argue the affirmative and the negative side will be upheld by the home school.

The Thumb schedule follows:
Bad Axe at Cass City.
Crosswell at Deckerville.
Flint Hoover at Capac.
Kingston at Brown City.

Marine City at Lapeer.
Marlette at Millington.
Royal Oak St. Mary at New Baltimore.
Unionville at Flint St. Michael.
Vassar at Otisville.

52 WERE ENROLLED IN LEADERSHIP TRAINING IN CO.

The last session of the leadership training classes sponsored by the Tuscola County Council of Religious Education were held Tuesday evening in Cass City, Caro and Vassar. The enrollment in the county was 52—Cass City 12, Caro 28 and Vassar 12. While not as large an attendance as anticipated, leaders in the movement are hopeful that the beginning made this season will result in a much larger membership next year. Much interest was manifested by those taking the courses.

PIONEER RESIDENTS ANSWERED FINAL CALL

Death Summoned Four Residents of This Community in Past Week.

Mrs. George Predmore. Funeral services for Mrs. George Predmore, 84, a resident in this vicinity for the last sixty-three years, were held Wednesday morning at 10:30 in the Angus McPhail home. Rev. Charles Bayless, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated and burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Mrs. Predmore was born January 1, 1852, in New York state and came to Michigan when a child, making her home in Oakland county. Here she was united in marriage to George Predmore in 1869 and three years later came to a farm three miles west and one-half mile south of Cass City. Mr. Predmore passed away in December, 1913.

In June of this year, Mrs. Predmore and her son, William, moved from the farm and have since lived on South Ale street, where Mrs. Predmore died early Monday morning, November 25.

Fifty-two years ago she suffered a stroke which left her left side almost helpless, but until of late she helped about the house. She has been confined to her bed the last three weeks.

She is survived by three sons, William of Cass City, Archie A. of Ferndale, and H. W. Predmore of Pontiac and one daughter, Mrs. R. L. Griswold of Corvallis, Oregon. She also leaves eleven grandchildren and eleven great grandchildren.

Henry Otis Greenleaf. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 in the Evangelical church here for Henry Otis Greenleaf, who passed away suddenly Thursday, November 21, at his home. Rev. G. A. Spitzer, pastor, officiated and burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Henry Otis Greenleaf was born July 5, 1870, in Cass City and, except seventeen years spent with his family in Ohio, has lived in or near Cass City all of his life.

He was united in marriage with Miss Adeline Barnes in March, 1897, and he is survived by his widow, four sons and two daughters, James Greenleaf and Mrs. Roy Consla of Painsville, Ohio; Edward, Alex, Harold and Miss Myrtle of Cass City; his father, James A. Greenleaf of Cass City, who is 87 years of age; three brothers, Herbert Greenleaf of Cass City, Wallace of Muir, and Alex of Kingston and one sister, Mrs. Steven Andrews, of Almont. He also leaves four grandchildren.

Mr. Greenleaf was a member of the local Evangelical church and of the Ancient Order of Gleaners. He had been ill but a few days and seemed much better Thursday but unexpectedly passed away about six o'clock that evening.

SENIOR PROM AT CASS CITY COMES DEC. 20

The senior prom, the big party of the school year, will be held on Friday, Dec. 20, with Dillman's nine-piece orchestra furnishing the music for the event.

The party is open to students and graduates of Cass City high school and parents and guests of students.

Celebrated 30th Wedding Anniversary

Twenty-eight friends and relatives were entertained at dinner on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Randall in honor of their thirtieth wedding anniversary.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John C. Randall, Harry Koulter and Miss Lucile Smith of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Randall and Mr. and Mrs. J. Byron Judd of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. Muntz of Metamora, Miss Helen Muntz of Elkton, Mrs. John McGrath, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. John McGrath, Jr., and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spaven, Mrs. Clara Spaven, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Spaven and daughter, Geraldine, and Miss Doris Wilson.

The members of the Malfem club and a few friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Randall on Friday evening when cards were played and a luncheon served. Mr. and Mrs. Randall received many lovely gifts both Friday night and Sunday.

Timber Brings Cash to Michigan Owners

Michigan's timber resources still bring considerable money into the state each year. Last year's sales of forest products from Michigan totalled $2,370,000. The harvest from timber lots ranked ninth as a source of cash income to rural landowners. Michigan stood tenth in production of forest products in 1934.

Catholic Women of Three Counties to Meet in Reese

The first anniversary of the organization of the League of Catholic Women in Tuscola county was held Wednesday, Nov. 20, in Sacred Heart church and rectory at Caro. The league sent a message of congratulations to Most Rev. J. C. Plagens of Detroit on his appointment as bishop of Marquette. Rev. Fr. John B. Parker, spiritual director of the league, officiated at benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and recitation of the rosary which opened the meeting.

Mrs. William J. Martus of Cass City, secretary, gave a report of the year's work. "Need and Value of Christian Charity" was the subject of the address given by Rev. Fr. James Frawley of Reese. "The National Eucharistic Congress" was the subject of Rev. Fr. Parker. A travel talk on her trip through California was given by Miss Clara Sietland of Caro. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

The tri-county meeting will be held December 9 in Reese when members from Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola will attend. Mrs. Edward A. Skae, president of the Detroit Diocesan league, has been asked to speak at this meeting on the National Catholic Welfare Conference held in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Miss Mary Jayne Campbell spent Thursday and Friday with relatives in Alpena.

83 TAKE RED CROSS MEMBERSHIPS HERE

Chairman Expected Others Would Join Ranks This Week.

Mrs. S. B. Young, chairman of the Red Cross membership drive in this community, reported Monday that 83 had taken 1936 Red Cross memberships here and that she expected several more names would be added to the list. Instructors of the Cass City schools enrolled 100 per cent, Mrs. Young said, and she was much pleased over the response in the schools.

The list on Monday showed the following members here:

Mrs. S. B. Young, Mrs. Alfred J. Knapp, Wood's Drug Store, Mrs. Emma Day, S. T. & H. Oil Co., Ricker & Lrahling, S. A. Striffler, H. T. Donahue, G. H. Burke, P. A. Schenck, Mrs. C. McRae, Elizabeth E. Pinney, Alfred Fort, Mrs. Wil-

Committees Named for Recreation Center

The executive committee of the Christian Citizenship League met at the school building on Monday evening in the interest of the youth recreation center in Cass City which will be located in the second story of the village hall, the village council having voted last week to lease the floor for that purpose.

G. W. Landon, Rev. Charles Bayless and Mrs. Ella Price were appointed members of a board of directors to supervise the operation of the recreation center for one year.

J. Ivan Niergarth, Delmar Youngs and C. U. Brown were named as a committee to remodel the second floor into two rooms, one room to be equipped with books, magazines and table games and the other room with piano and chairs for active games, children's parties, meetings and conferences.

Rev. G. A. Spitzer, Mrs. A. J. Knapp, Mrs. Joseph Crawford, H. F. Lenzner and Mrs. J. A. Sandham were named as a committee to procure equipment.

Five Rotarians Entertain at a Birthday Party

Tuesday was the occasion of a birthday party for Rotary members when Dr. P. A. Schenck, L. I. Wood, John May, F. A. Bigelow and A. J. Knapp acknowledged they had passed another milestone in late months.

Following the noon luncheon at the Gordon Tavern, Dr. Schenck presided as chairman and introduced the program with a cleverly designed questionnaire in which members answered queries regarding traits of local Rotarians. Walter Mann was awarded first prize, a fountain pen desk set, and Frederick Pinney, second, a daily calendar.

John May read a humorous paper on the subject of "Golf" and L. I. Wood described what he considered the beauty spot of his southern trip last winter—the Bok singing tower and bird sanctuary on Iron Mountain.

F. A. Bigelow, in his remarks, told of the great value of music and drama in man's spiritual life and A. J. Knapp extolled the advantages of the great state of Michigan.

Allison Stone of the Caro Rotary, as county chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Fund campaign, explained the purpose of the memorial. F. A. Bigelow was appointed to take charge of the campaign in this community by Mr. Stone.

HOME EXTENSION GROUP MEETING

Elmwood Home Extension Group will meet Friday, Dec. 6, at the home of Mrs. Harold Evens. This will be an all-day meeting.

A potluck dinner will be served at noon. Mrs. Lloyd Reagh and Mrs. Fred Palmer will give the lesson on "Block Printing."

WE DRIVERS

A Series of Brief Discussions on Driving, Dedicated to the Safety, Comfort and Pleasure of the Motoring Public. Prepared by General Motors

No. 4—OUR BRAKES

We've all noticed that whenever a train makes a long enough stop in a station, there's somebody on the job, dodging in and out under the cars making sure that everything is in good shape for the train to continue its trip. One of the things checked at every inspection point is the brakes. For nobody knows better than railroads how important it is to be able to stop when you have to stop.

Now, if we think of it in a certain light, we people who own automobiles are all running little transportation systems of our own. Just like the railroads and airlines and bus companies. Home is the main terminal and there are lots of stops along the line. Flag stops, you might say, and regular scheduled stops—like the office, the grocery store, the school, the theatre, and our friends' houses.

Just like the railroads, one of the main things we need to look out for is our brakes. Of course, everybody knows this and yet somehow or other we're apt to be a little careless about it. Not that brakes don't give us plenty of notice when they're going to need adjustment. As time goes on we find that we can push the pedal lower and lower, till after a while we can shove it down almost to the floorboards before the brakes take hold. Even then we sometimes wait quite a while before we have them adjusted. It just seems to be human nature to put off things like that. They tell us the result is that one-third of all cars on streets and highways at any given time have something wrong with their brakes.

The trouble is that when we let our brakes go like that, all of a sudden we may have to make an emergency stop, and we may find it rather embarrassing.

Engineers say that if we realized what goes on in brakes we would see why we ought to keep them checked up. As they explain, it's a story of momentum and friction, the same old forces we've talked about before. They say that when we get going we build up a certain energy in the form of momentum. Now when we want to stop, we can't just destroy that energy, because, scientists tell us, Nature never lets any of its energy be destroyed. We can only convert it into some other form of energy. What brakes really do is to convert speed-energy into heat-energy. When we push down on the brake pedal we press the brake lining against the brake drums and this creates friction that changes the energy to heat. When we have changed all the speed energy to heat, then we come to a stop.

Now modern brakes are very powerful. In fact, a 100-horsepower car will have about 500-horsepower brakes. They can stop us pretty quickly even from high speeds. But when they do, they simply change those speeds into a great deal of heat, in a very short time. The fact is we sometimes build up temperatures in our brakes as high as 1400 degrees!

It's easy to see that heat like that can cause a lot of trouble. Some of us may think it's fun to rush up to sudden stops, but we might as well realize that we have to pay for that kind of fun in excessive brake wear. It simply doesn't pay to build up brake heat a lot faster than it can be thrown off. And we certainly get hardly anything back in time saved. For instance, if we're going 30 miles an hour, our brakes can stop us in 40 feet if they are all right; but it takes them less than two seconds longer to stop us in twice that distance. How much better it is, under any normal circumstances, to begin to apply the brakes a few seconds earlier and, with gradually increasing pressure, bring our car to an easy stop. As a matter of fact, smooth, gradual stopping wherever the circumstances permit, is generally taken as a sign of a good driver.

Now if we want to keep our brakes safe and sound, it's important to remember what these fast stops do to them. But it's just as important to remember that all stops generate some heat in our brakes. That's what gradually wears down the linings, and sooner or later makes a brake-adjustment necessary. And that's why we must watch them and see that adjustments are made when they are needed.

So maybe it would be a good idea to keep on thinking of our cars as private transportation systems. If we keep them in good running condition, they will serve us with safety and satisfaction.

Traffic Through Great Lakes

The distance from Duluth at the extreme west end of the Great Lakes system to Buffalo is nearly a thousand miles—988 miles, to be exact. From Mackinaw point to Gary in Lake Michigan will add another 334 miles. Together with the other shorter sailing distances, there is a total of nearly 2,000 miles of "main line and branches" over which the heaviest traffic density moves. The average number of ton miles of lake traffic carried by each mile of lake highway per annum is about 30,000,000.

We are pleased to announce that we have completed plans for an old fashioned singing school to be held in the Mizpah church with a competent instructor as leader. This school will commence Monday evening, Dec. 2, at eight o'clock. The first evening will be free to all. We look to enroll a good and strong class.

We will appreciate a good response to the above announcements. B. Douglass, Pastor.

Baptist Church—Sunday, Dec. 1: Rev. L. A. Kennedy of Hamilton, Ontario, will be the speaker at the morning service at 10:30 and at the evening service at 7:30. Sunday School at 11:45. A cordial invitation to all.

Red Cross Has Busy Year; Statistics Impressive; Services Varied

Figures gathered at random from the year's report of the American Red Cross reveal the magnitude of the work being carried on by that organization. Red Cross workers assisted 54,305 veterans; 587 Red Cross Public Health nurses paid 921,455 visits to 186,826 patients; 93,441 first aid certificates were issued while 46,693 persons were trained in life saving. Volunteer workers produced 3,102,843 surgical dressings, with 80,901 volunteers being on active duty throughout the year.

First Aid Treatment Taught Thousands By Red Cross

More than 187,000 certificates showing completion of first aid courses were issued last year by the Red Cross. This shows a gain of 56,000 certificates over the previous year. Approximately 64,200 boys in C.C.C. camps throughout the country passed first aid tests. Since the Red Cross first entered the field of first aid teaching, being one of the first organizations in the world to do so, almost one million persons have been trained in handling emergency treatment.

The annual report of the Red Cross further reveals that more than 327,000 copies of the Red Cross First Aid Handbook have been sold at home and abroad.

Junior Red Cross members increased by 402,000 enrollments during the year which has just passed. Junior members carried on an exchange of correspondence with junior members in 62 other countries having Red Cross Societies.

Intensity of Ultra-Violet Rays

The intensity of the ultra-violet rays is about eight times as great in August as in January. It increases rapidly from sunrise until noon, when it again decreases rapidly until sunset. The intensity is almost twice as great at noon as it is at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Lesson for December 1

EZRA'S MISSION TO JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 7:6-10; 8:21-23, 31, 32.

GOLDEN TEXT—The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him: Ezra 8:22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Bringing Gifts for God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezra's Long Journey.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Helps.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Purposeful Prayer and Courageous Action.

I. Who Ezra Was (7:1-10).

1. A priest (vv. 1-5). He was from the line which was to stand between God and the people. The leader of the first company was Zerubbabel, a sort of military governor. The great need now was for a religious leader, for the people had gone far from God, as we see from the noble reformation which Ezra effected.

2. A ready scribe (v. 6). He was a teacher of the law of God.

3. His high ambition (vv. 7-10). He set his heart to seek the law of the Lord (v. 10). He set out definitely with the purpose to know God's Word. No one who purposes in his heart to seek the law of the Lord can fail.

4. He set his heart to obey the Lord (v. 10). He was not only concerned with knowing God's Word but obeying it. God's Word cannot be known in its fullness by the intellect it must be experienced. An essential qualification for a teacher of the Bible, a preacher, or Sunday school worker, is obedience to God's Word.

5. He set his heart to teach in Israel God's statutes and judgments (v. 10). He not only had a love for God's Word but a desire to implant it in the hearts of others.

II. Ezra's Commission (7:11-20).

Ezra went forth backed by the decree from King Artaxerxes. The king gave him a copy of the decree which authorized him to lead a company back to Jerusalem. This decree empowered him to:

1. Collect funds (vv. 15, 16);

2. Levy tribute (vv. 21, 22);

3. Appoint magistrates and judges (v. 25);

4. Execute penalties (v. 26).

So great was the king's confidence in Ezra that he delegated all these powers to him. For this great favor Ezra lifted his heart to God in thanksgiving (vv. 27, 28). He was mainly concerned with the fact that he was to beautify the Lord's house and acknowledged that God had put his purpose into the king's heart.

III. The Company Which Returned With Ezra (Ezra 8:1-20).

This company was comparatively small, only 1,754 males, but including the women, children and servants there were perhaps 6,000 or 7,000 people. Before proceeding on the journey Ezra was careful to find out as to whether any of the Levites, the ministers of God, were with them (v. 15). He knew that the success of their enterprise depended upon the spiritual condition of the people. Temporal blessings and prosperity of the individual and the nation depend upon the people's attitude toward God.

IV. Ezra's Prayer and Fasting (8:21-23).

The first thing that he did was to seek God's guidance. The reason Ezra sought the Lord's help was that as far as possible he desired his mission to be free from human dependence. He did not minimize the dangers attending his journey, but since he had assured the king that the hand of the Lord would be upon all for good who sought him, he was ashamed to ask the king for a military escort to protect them from the marauding Arabs. His desire was to prove to the king the reality of God's help, as God's honor among the heathen was at stake.

V. The Successful Journey (8:24-32).

God heard their prayer. The treasure entrusted to them was great. Perhaps the entire value of money and sacred utensils was nearly five million dollars. For a small caravan to go through a country infested by these robber bands carrying such an amount of money was most perilous, but Ezra knew that God was able and would protect them. Observe:

1. The care and honesty (vv. 24-30). The money was weighed unto them at the start and was to be weighed when turned over to the authorities at Jerusalem. The incentive to honest and strict accounting of the trust was that they were holy men and were entrusted with that which belonged to God.

2. Their safe arrival (vv. 31, 32). Some four and one-half months were required to make the journey. God brought them safely to their destination, thus proving that he is faithful to those who put their trust in him.

Nature

Nothing is rich but the inexhaustible wealth of nature. She shows us only surfaces, but she is millions of fathoms deep.—Emerson.

BEAULEY.

Ross Thompson of Pontiac spent a few days last week at the E. O. Thompson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith of Cass City visited Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. H. Dulmage.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hartsell returned home Sunday from Bay City and Estey where they have been spending the last ten days.

Mrs. Alva MacAlpine spent the week-end with Miss Florence MacKenney of Decker.

A large crowd enjoyed the splendid chicken supper Thursday evening at the church here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Dulmage were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hill of Greenleaf.

The ladies of the W. H. M. S. held their thank offering service at the church Sunday evening. Rev. Geo. Nevin was the speaker, taking for his text, Matthew 25, starting at the 1st verse. There was special singing. All enjoyed it very much. A nice offering was received.

ELLINGTON AND NOVESTA.

Mrs. Israel Hall, Leo Hall and daughter, Mildred, and John Hall spent from Saturday until Tuesday at Jackson with the former's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rushell.

Kent Parrott of Crosswell visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parrott, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wanner were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Westphal of Deford on Sunday.

The Colonial Style

The Georgian style of Colonial dates from the period preceding the Revolution. It is described as a form of the Renaissance which makes great use of the orders and classic detail. Washington's home at Mount Vernon is given as a beautiful example of this style. One writer calls the Colonial style period a period of rich doorways, of Palladian windows, of tall pilasters, of porticoes rising one on another, of elaborate mantels and over-mantels, of carved staircases, or ornamental ceilings.

Early Printing

It is said that the art of printing took its origin from some rude impressions taken (for the amusement of children) from letters carved on the bark of a beech tree.

THANK YOU, AMERICA,

for more than a Million cars in 1935

Once more, at this Thanksgiving season, Chevrolet wishes to express its hearty appreciation of the friendship which America has given to this company and its products in 1935 and throughout the past quarter-century.

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America."

One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000.

And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new 1936 Chevrolets during the first few weeks these beautiful new cars have been on display.

This is a double gift of friendship, representing, as it does, one of the biggest years in all Chevrolet history, and one of the most enthusiastic welcomes that any new automobile has ever received.

Chevrolet is indeed happy to say, "Thank you, America," and to pledge continued adherence to the manufacturing and service policies which have won and held this friendship. CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Arthur Korteling, of Fairgrove Presbyterian church, will be guest speaker on that day.

Mrs. Arthur Fritz (Golda Hoagland), a former resident of Cass City, in a note to the Chronicle, writes of her hunting experience as follows: "Mr. Fritz and I just returned from a hunting trip from Drummond Island. I shot a fine four-point buck the first morning at nine o'clock. Although I had gone hunting five years, this was my first buck, and it was certainly the biggest thrill of my life. Mr. Fritz filled his license the same day with a six-point at five o'clock. There were four in our party and we all filled and were home here in Detroit the fifth day."

A regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Warner. Guest speaker was B. H. McComb of Caro, who gave an inspiring talk on the part of the school in juvenile delinquency. Mrs. George Martin gave a few remarks on the state's plan of work for each union. She will give a complete report of the state W. C. T. U. convention later. Several children from the fifth and sixth grades, under the direction of Miss Marguerite Steensma, gave three musical selections. Several guests were present at this meeting. The hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. Bessie Walker and son, Arthur, of Ypsilanti spent Sunday at their home in Cass City.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray O'Dell returned the first of the week from a visit with relatives in Detroit.

Milton Phillips of Toledo, Ohio, visited his sister, Mrs. Earl Deneen, from Saturday until Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kroll left Wednesday to spend the remainder of the week with relatives near Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilber and Miss Doris Livingston of Detroit spent the week-end at the E. A. Livingston home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clabuesch and son, Ward, and Mrs. Ezra Hess of Pigeon were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kercher.

PIONEER RESIDENTS ANSWER FINAL CALL. Concluded from first page.

Mr. Greenleaf will be greatly missed not only about the home but about the neighborhood where he was always ready with a word of cheer and a helping hand in time of need.

Mrs. Townsend Lounsbury. Mrs. T. Lounsbury passed away Sunday evening, Nov. 24, after an illness of several months.

Mary Dean was born in Bayham, Ontario, June 17, 1860. She was united in marriage to Townsend Lounsbury, Dec. 29, 1887, came to Michigan in 1890 and lived eight years at Wickware, moving to Elmwood township in 1898, where she was living at the time of her death.

Deceased was the mother of five daughters and two sons, three of whom preceded her in death. Surviving are her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Perry Livingston, Mrs. James Peddie, Mrs. Calvin Hiser and one son, Emory, all of this vicinity, 25 grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Franklin Earl Deneen. Franklin Earl Deneen, son of Mrs. Bert Strickland, passed away Saturday morning, November 23, at Pleasant Home hospital.

Mr. Deneen was born in Evergreen township Sept. 5, 1892. He was united in marriage with Miss Luella Holtz of Novesta, Nov. 16, 1927. The greater part of his life was spent in Evergreen and Novesta townships.

He leaves besides his widow one daughter, Amy, his mother, his grandfather, Albert E. Bartlett, four sisters, Mrs. William Hill of Crosswell, Mrs. James Mallory, Mrs. Stanley Sharrard, Mrs. Leo Kirkpatrick and one brother, Norman Deneen, all of Cass City.

During the World War, Mr. Deneen was at Camp McLellan, Georgia, and missed going to France with his company, being in the hospital with mumps.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the home of his sister, Mrs. Sharrard. Rev. Charles Bayless officiated and burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Good Record Made by Holstein Herd

The yearly herd improvement test conducted by the Holstein-Friesian Association on the Michigan State College herd of 16 pure-bred Holstein cows showed an average production for the cows of 463 pounds of butterfat. The high cow, Michigan Ormsby Queen Colantha, had a record of 710.9 pounds of fat and 20,926 pounds of milk. In this test, it is required that the owner determine the production of each cow in the herd, and it is possible then to work toward the improvement of the entire herd rather than to try to acquire a few cows which are exceptional producers. The Holstein-Friesian Association is running this test on 438 herds in the country this year.

Discovery of San Diego

San Diego was discovered in 1542 by a Portuguese navigator sailing under the flag of Spain, although it was not named until 60 years later. The city of San Diego was incorporated in 1850, but it did not really prosper until it was moved three miles to the present site in 1867. Since then its growth has been phenomenal. It is the fourth largest city in California, being exceeded only by Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland, but only since the World War has its business district expanded into a metropolitan center.

Location of "Ausable Chasm"

"Ausable Chasm" is a narrow gorge situated in northeastern New York, about midway between the Adirondacks and Lake Champlain. The rocks forming the walls are of hard Potsdam sandstone, traversed by numerous faults or displacements. Through these the Ausable river has worn a zigzag course about two miles long, and in places 175 feet wide. Its correct pronunciation is "Awe-sable" with the accent on the "sa" and "Kasm."

Command "Show a Leg!"

"Show a leg!" the command which is still given with revile on American battleships, originated during the days when—up to about 1800—women were carried on many British men of war. These ladies, writes D. J. Godsoe, U. S. S. Indianapolis, in Collier's Weekly, were allowed an extra hour of sleep and so they identified themselves each morning, at that command, by hanging a stocking-clad leg over the side of their hammock.

Oil Long Used in California

Californians have burned oil for heat and power since as far back as 1880. Originally it was used only in the galleys of ships, but because of its convenience, it grew rapidly in popularity and was going strong as an infant industry when the San Francisco earthquake and fire almost ruined it.

Picturesque Finland

Thousands of years ago ice and water from the Arctic ocean to the Baltic sea covered what is now Finland. Like the Hollander, the Finn has for generations been capturing his country from the flood and without wars or treaties of peace it is annexing every year vast territories of virgin soil, as virgin as Venus rising from the waves.

Wool for Harris Tweeds

Harris is the southern and smaller half of Lewis-and-Harris, the most northerly islands of the Outer Hebrides, a group lying off the northwest coast of Scotland. The crofters, or tenants, have made a great reputation for Harris on account of the tweed they manufacture.

First Rowing Races in U. S.

The first mention of rowing races in the United States was made in an advertisement that appeared in a New York newspaper in 1811, indicating that the sport had its origin many years earlier, but had achieved an importance in 1811 sufficient to warrant promoters to spend money to call attention to special contests.

Eisenach Is Historic

The tiny city of Eisenach, Germany, famed for historic Wartburg castle, is also the place where Martin Luther retired under the pseudonym of "Junker Georg" to translate the Bible into German.

Journey In Africa

An East African Landscape.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

CHICAGO is only a little more than 500 miles from Kansas City—a "good day's run" to many American motorists and offering little change in scenery or people all the way. But the same number of miles from Kano, British Nigeria, in north central Africa, to N'Guigmi, near Lake Chad, is a journey many days long and a constantly changing pageant of little known tribes and strange country.

There's a thin, white little road stretching 200 miles north from Kano across the hard sands to Zinder, first post in French territory. From Zinder caravan trails fan out into all parts of the Sudan, one leading straight east to N'Guigmi, at the northwest corner of Lake Chad, 22 days by camel from Zinder, and thence north and east of the lake to Mao, Abeche (Abechr), and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

The eastward trail leads into the country of the Tuareg, noted for the veils worn by the men over the lower parts of their faces. The Tuareg, reputedly one of the most warlike of African tribes, are thought to be descendants of Berbers who were driven southward into the desert when the Arabs swept across North Africa in the Eleventh century, though some authorities date their emergence as a distinct people a good deal farther back than that.

Among the Tuareg. After the French announced in 1890 that they owned that part of Africa, they sent expeditions galloping out from time to time to explain things to the Tuareg, and the Tuareg promptly sent them galloping back with a lance point at the seat of each man's breeches. In course of time the French tired of this form of playfulness and sent out big enough expeditions to put a stop to it.

There are five main tribes, or confederations, of the Tuareg, and they occupy in a sketchy manner, with their camps and flocks, about 3,500,000 square miles in the western Sahara, centering northeast of Timbuktu. But they are great nomads, and small bands sometimes wander as far to the east as the Wadal (French Ouadai) region of French Equatorial Africa.

In the Tuareg country stands Goure, typical of those French posts scattered across the southern fringe of the Sahara—a square-cut crown of grim clay battlements, often several acres in extent, rising out of a mountain of gray sand; always a native village at the bottom, and a big natural basin, with several wells, the village cotton and millet patches, spreading palms and papaw trees, and the fort garden.

The garden is always the showplace of the post—on the rare occasions when there is someone to show it to—and no wonder, in a land where the vegetation is limited almost exclusively to thorn trees except in the basins.

Here in these grim clay outposts of the white man's authority in the Sudan may be found one Frenchman or perhaps two or three, in command of a corps of native soldiers. The isolation is almost complete, except for the passing at rare intervals of other Frenchmen on their way to or from more distant forts. The term of service is three years; then a year to recover one's reason in France. But with antelope and guinea fowl dotting the hills, and a dozen native prisoners to tend and irrigate his garden, the French officer in the Sudan at least doesn't have to go hungry.

Cuvettes of Lake Chad Region. Goure is inhabited mostly by the Manga, who subsist largely on the red millet so characteristic of the Sudan, eating the grain in the form of couscous, or porridge, and building their circular huts of the stalks. The cuvette, in which are located the village and the fort garden, is otherwise occupied entirely by millet, tobacco, cotton, and vegetable plantations. In the cuvettes south of Goure are salt marshes and sodium carbonate or natron, deposits which the natives work by primitive methods, exporting the products to Kano.

These cuvettes are the most striking topographical features of the Lake Chad basin. They are deep depressions in the sand, ranging in length from a few hundred feet to three or four miles, and usually are oval or circular in shape. The floor, smooth and almost level, is frequently of that heavy, black soil peculiar to the Sudan and which

Humidity Makes Grain Moisture

Heat Not Alone Responsible for Content of Crops, Government Says.

Supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service. It's not so much the temperature of air as it is the humidity which governs the change in moisture content of grain in storage on farms and of grain on the standing stalk.

Under controlled air conditions in the Arlington (Va.) laboratory, engineers of the bureau made tests of samples, in bulk and in flat pans, of cereal grain, flax, soy beans and seed cotton. They also tested chopped hay.

They found that relative humidity of the atmosphere in which the moisture content of individual samples reached a point sufficiently low for safe storage varied somewhat with the different kinds of commodities but ranged from approximately 65 to 80 per cent. Cereal grain, when exposed to air at a relative humidity of 75 per cent, absorbed or gave off moisture until the final moisture content was approximately the maximum recommended for safe storage. At a relative humidity of 65 per cent the moisture content of the grain was lower and a relative humidity of 85 per cent higher than that recommended for safe storage.

A moisture content of 14 per cent for cereal grain, 16 per cent for soy beans, and 11 per cent for flax seed is usually low enough for safe storage under ordinary storage conditions.

The rate of change in moisture content of the samples at any given humidity and temperature depended largely upon the degree of exposure. When the commodities were exposed in such manner that each kernel or particle was in contact with moving air, the moisture content increased or decreased in some cases as much as 2 per cent in a few hours; when exposed in bulk, in layers only 4 inches thick, it took from five to seven days for a similar change to occur.

Variations in temperature from 60 to 75 degrees F. at a constant humidity had little effect on the moisture content of the commodities. Considerable variation in moisture content of individual commodities existed especially at 85 per cent relative humidity, ranging from slightly more than 13 per cent for flax to about 33 per cent for hay. As the relative humidities increased from 65 per cent on, many of the commodities showed practically the same change in moisture content. This condition was particularly true of wheat, corn, sorghum, rice, oats, and cotton.

In the case of soy beans, at relative humidity of 65 per cent the moisture content was lower than that of any of the other commodities, except flax seed. Stepping up relative humidity to 75 and to 85 per cent increased the moisture content of soy beans similar to that of hay. When the two oil-bearing seeds, soy beans and flax seed were exposed to high humidities, a much greater percentage of moisture was absorbed by the beans which contain a higher percentage of oil.

Summer Alfalfa Seeding Found to Be Successful

Alfalfa, most useful legume crop, can be seeded successfully in summer months if care is taken in preparing a seedbed and putting in the seed, says a writer in the Prairie Farmer. The ground should be plowed at least a month before seeding and should be disked several times to kill weeds. The soil should be firm under the seed, and the seed should be covered shallow and uniformly. Use about 10 to 12 pounds of good hardy seed per acre. Do not seed with a nurse crop. Fields to be seeded to alfalfa should be tested for soil acidity, and if needed, ground limestone should be applied well in advance of seeding. A good method of seeding is to cultivate the soil, sow the seed broadcast and cover with a weeder or light harrow. Even though the summer-seeded alfalfa makes a good growth in the fall, it is not advisable to cut or pasture the crop the first fall.

Cow Urine as Fertilizer

Cow urine varies greatly in composition. Urine from cows fed a heavy meal ration rich in proteins, as oil cake, cotton seed meal and even bran, is of much higher value as a fertilizer than urine from cows on grass or hay alone or where the meal ration is light. Averages would, no doubt, be more useful than specific cases so that a ton of cow urine is likely to contain about 12 pounds of nitrogen and 10 pounds of potash in readily available form in both cases.

Foulbrood, Worst Disease

Foulbrood is perhaps the worst disease that attacks bees and one of the hardest to get rid of unless the proper method, burning the hive, is resorted to. Fire is the best medium of destruction for the disease. The whole colony must be burned, also the frames, covers, plates, combs, layers and everything that is part of the hive. All tools also must be thoroughly disinfected or they will infect disease-free hives.

GAGETOWN

Howard Loomis spent the weekend in Lansing, visiting his parents. Mrs. Rebecca Hurd went to St. Johns Tuesday to attend the funeral of her sister.

Vincent Walsh of Detroit spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Walsh. The local Christian Endeavor Society entertained the Saginaw District Society at the M. P. church Saturday. Special music was given by the Stephens Street M. P. orchestra.

Arthur O. Wood and daughter, Lila, spent from Friday until Sunday in Gull Lake with Rev. and Mrs. William Coombs, who returned to Gull Lake on Friday. Mrs. R. Hurd went with them and spent the time with Rev. and Mrs. Leo Burch at Olivet.

Mr. and Mrs. George Munro entertained for Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Brauer and son, Donald, of Detroit, Miss Nina Munro of Owosso, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Munro and son, Jimmie, and Richard Burdon, Sr.

Dr. Frederick Hemerick returned home Friday from London, England, where he spent the past six weeks. Lieut. Alex Good, who has been in Wedford, Oregon, for the past several months, gave an interesting talk on the state of Oregon to the pupils of the high school Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston and son, Raymond, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oehring entertained for dinner Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bartels and daughter, Marilyn, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Blake and Mrs. Josephine McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mackay entertained for dinner Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mackay and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Szabo of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. James Garety and daughter, Carolyn, and Mr. and Mrs. John Garety of Cass City. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wooley and Dick McMann of Detroit were guests from Sunday until Tuesday.

DEFORD

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Martin were in Crosswell Thanksgiving day, the guests of Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. Mary Campfield. Mrs. Campfield, who is 89 years of age, was made happy on this holiday by the presence of her four children, Mrs. Martin, Fred Campfield of Shaunavon, Sask., Charles Campfield of Pontiac and Mrs. Mable Lovell of Crosswell. This is the first time in 18 years that Fred Campfield and Mrs. Martin have seen one another.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Thursday, Dec. 5, at 2:00 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Joe Vampell. Mrs. Genie Martin will, at that meeting, give a report of the state convention. The union sponsored a silver medal contest which was given on Friday evening at the Church of Christ. Six contestants were entered and received much commendation from those present. Mrs. Edna Malcolm made the presentation of the medal which was won by Miss Virginia Parks. Miss Helen Amberboy, winner in a former contest, also gave a reading. Miss Louella Sherwood gave two musical numbers on her accordion which were well received.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kilgore on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wolven of Freeland, Mrs. Melvin Smith and Bernice Stanley of Farwell, Mr. and Mrs. Max McFarland and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolton of Pontiac, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Russell of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bruce, on Friday, entertained at a chicken dinner, in honor of E. R. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bruce, John Moshier, Alvey Palmateer, William Sangster, Fred Ball, Simeon Pratt, Mrs. James Sangster and children, William and Norman Bentley, and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Malcolm were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Martin were in Marlette on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Martin gave a report of the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention held at Pontiac last month. The report was given at a meeting of the Marlette union.

Mrs. H. J. Cuer received word that her sister, Mrs. George Roberts, of Rockwood, is quite ill with heart trouble. Mrs. Roberts was for many years a resident of Deford.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Locke of Detroit were visitors at Deford on Sunday.

George McIntyre wears a smile, the result of being among the fortunate in securing a deer.

John Retherford of Oneonta, New York, is a visitor of relatives at Deford, coming on Tuesday.

Mrs. Harold McComb of Detroit visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Crawford.

Harry Wentworth of Detroit spent the week-end at the home of his father, Ben Wentworth.

Mrs. Archie Hicks went to Detroit on Monday for medical attention.

Julius Wentworth received word that his only sister of Rochester passed away Sunday. Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. in Rochester. Mr. and Mrs. William Patch attended the services.

Mrs. Erma Wells and daughters spent the week-end at the Donald Evo home at Wahjamega.

Miss Donaldine Clark of Pontiac is spending this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burian entertained for the week-end their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick, of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Collins and children spent Sunday at the home of their son, Clare Collins, near Greenleaf.

NOVESTA.

Ernest Ferguson and Kenneth Auten were callers in Pontiac on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stoner were business callers in Bay City on Thursday.

Johnnie Juharsz returned from his deer hunt on Sunday. Any deer, Johnnie? No, dear.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Bridges ate Sunday dinner at the home of Mrs. Phebe Ferguson. Lester Auten and Delbert Auten were in Pontiac Tuesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Henry of Cass City and Mr. and Mrs. George McArthur of Deford visited Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson.

Miss Mary Dulacki and friend of Detroit were Sunday visitors at the home of her mother, Mrs. Michael Dulacki.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Deneen were shocked and saddened on Saturday when it was made known that he had passed away at Pleasant Home hospital on that day. Earl had not been well for several months but few knew of his illness as he was, until the last few weeks, attending to the regular farm work. The writer is at present confined to the house by illness, and unable to get details for obituary, but is informed that a very large crowd attended the funeral, on Monday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Stanley Sharrard, in Cass City. The sympathy of a host of friends are with Mrs. Deneen and daughter, Amy.

Beautiful Island

Formosa, or Taiwan, as the Japanese call it, is an island nearly half the size of Ireland, situated where the Pacific ocean emerges into the China sea. It is one of the most attractive islands of the Far East, and was named Iha Formosa, or Beautiful Island, by early Portuguese explorers.

Seaport Built on Hillside

"Valparaiso" is Spanish for "Vale of Paradise." The city of this name is the chief seaport of Chile. Its origin dates back to 1535. Immediately behind the shore the hills begin to rise, reaching a height of 1,000 feet. The city, containing a quarter of a million people, is built on these hillside.

Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes

The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes is the name given to the region near Mt. Katmai on the southern shore of Alaska opposite Kodiak island. It is now a national monument. In June, 1912, one of the greatest explosive volcanic eruptions of recent times blew several cubic miles of material out of this volcano, leaving a great gulf where the summit had been and in the bottom a crater lake of great depth. A few miles away across the divide lies a group of valleys from which burst many thousands of vents of superheated vapors. The region is described as a land of wonders.

China's Age

Chinese traditions carry the story of civilization in eastern Asia back to about the year 2853 B. C. The story begins with a legendary ruler, Fuhsi, who is said to have been the organizer of society in the time when the people lived by hunting and fishing.

Canada "Young" Country

Canada has its share of national parks and primitive wilderness. A great portion of Canada is known, geologically as "young" country and abounds in mountains and turbulent streams and thousands of lakes all bearing descriptive French names.

The proper treatment for a bilious child

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage, Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use a liquid laxative. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Find Out
From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN in every buy.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS TAKE 15,200 LIVES

First Six Months Rolls Up an Alarming Total.

Hartford, Conn.—Approximately 15,200 persons were killed and more than 300,000 injured in street and highway accidents the first six months of this year, according to state reports analyzed by the Travelers' Insurance company.

Eight thousand of the total of 15,200 deaths have been pedestrians. Nearly 3,100 persons have been killed in collisions between cars. Almost 500 persons have been killed in the collisions of automobiles and trains. The percentage of deaths of pedestrians and persons involved in collisions between cars as well as in automobile-train collisions have been greater this year than for the corresponding part of last year.

Fatal Collisions.
More than 1,500 have been killed in the collision of automobiles with fixed objects and nearly 1,500 also have been killed in non-collision accidents, both of which are less in percentage than the first six months of last year.

Deaths from automobile accidents have been around 2 per cent less than the casualties for the corresponding period of last year, but it is possible that this decrease will be more than wiped out by complete and revised figures yet to be reported by all states.

During the last four years deaths from automobile accidents have been 34 per cent greater in the last half of the year than the first, and if this should hold true this year, the total number of casualties would approximate 35,000. With more cars being in use than last year, the number of persons who will be killed this year is likely to exceed the present estimate which will be subject to an increase because of upward revisions in state reports in keeping with the trend of fatalities.

Drunken Drivers.
Available records for the first half of the year show an increase of almost 13 per cent in the number of drivers under the influence of liquor who were involved in accidents, as well as an increase of 10 per cent in the number of pedestrians under the influence of liquor who were involved in automobile accidents.

Automobile-pedestrian accidents continue to be extremely serious, present figures show, as the records available for the first half of this year indicate that about 40 per cent of all personal injury automobile accidents involved pedestrians, but the deaths of pedestrians comprised more than 50 per cent of all automobile accident fatalities. Although automobile-train collisions the first six months of this year account for half of 1 per cent of all personal injury accidents, the deaths resulting from such mishaps were in excess of 3 per cent of the total of 15,200.

Non-collision accidents accounted for less than 50 per cent of the accidents, but the deaths from them totaled almost 10 per cent of all fatalities.

Boy Declared First to Discover Gold in West

Danville, Calif.—George Van Gordon, ninety-year-old rancher and horse breeder, arises to say John Marshall was not the first person to discover gold in California.

"It was a ten-year-old boy, John Wimmer," recalled Van Gordon. "His father worked for Gen. John A. Sutter at Coloma. John gave the nugget he found to his father, who gave it to John Marshall, who gave it to Mrs. Wimmer, and she boiled it in the soap kettle. I've heard the Wimmers tell the story many times."

Van Gordon perhaps knows. He came to California in 1846, remembers how everyone abandoned his work and rushed to the gold fields. He remembers Lola Montez, the dancer; Joaquin Murietta, most vengeful and dashing of American bandits, and the Vigilantes.

Complex Rules Govern Sale and Use of Oleo

Mobile, Ala.—If you have a boarding house, don't serve oleomargarin. But if you do, don't mix coloring into it yourself. To do so will subject you to a manufacturer's license—if Uncle Sam finds it out. And such a license costs $600.

These and other warnings have been issued by the internal revenue bureau.

A grocer who sells oleo may give the coloring for it, but if he shows the buyer how to mix it, he can be made to pay the manufacturer's license.

Iowa Pig Has Two Mouths and Eats Well With Both

Oelwein, Iowa.—C. A. Cummings, farmer living four miles northwest of here, has a pig he would like to sell to a museum. The freak porker has an oversized head, three eyes and two perfectly matched snouts and noses.

The pig can eat with either mouth, Cummings said. Physically, it is perfect, except for the superabundance of noses and snouts, according to its owner.

Soy Beans Make Marketable Hay

Early Cutting, Curing Well Important, According to a Specialist.

Supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture—WNU Service.

Cutting soy beans at any time from the forming of the seeds in the pods until they are about three-fourths developed, and proper curing, are essential in the production of a high quality, marketable hay crop, according to W. H. Hosterman, hay specialist in the department, who is in close touch with hay markets and producers in the Middle West.

In Ohio the experiment station recommends that soy bean hay should be cured by September 10, to avoid heavy dews and fall rains, as well as shorter curing days. Under normal seeding conditions soy bean hay is harvested not later than early September.

If a grain binder is used, a cleaner hay is assured, as less rubbish from the preceding crop is picked up and less soil accumulates on the hay. Farmers have found that hay tied loosely in small bundles and put into small shocks cures better and loses few or no leaves. Soy bean hay cut with a mower and cured in the swath and wind-row losses many leaves, collects dirt, and often contains trash from the preceding crop.

Seeding of soy beans for hay so they may be harvested with grain binders is becoming more popular in Iowa and Ohio. For best results with the binder the beans are seeded in lands not more than 4½ feet wide. These lands are usually about 1 foot apart, leaving enough room for the binder's divide board so a clean swath may be cut. If the beans have been sown at the end of the field, they are usually cut with a mower. Otherwise they are likely to clog the binder.

Because of the severe drouth which destroyed large acreages of timothy, clover, and other grass and legume crops in 1934, soy beans have gained popularity as an emergency hay crop, both for home use and on the market.

In Iowa, farmers have been using 60 to 70 per cent of the soy bean crop for hay. Of 1,200,000 acres planted in Illinois last year, 700,000 acres were harvested for hay.

Hay Contains Vitamin D; Sun Content Increases

One of the reasons why hay is a valuable feed for live stock is because it contains a goodly quantity of vitamin D—the antirachitic constituent. Vitamin D is produced in the hay by the ultra violet rays of sunlight. We all like to "make hay while the sun shines," and even if we have not always been able to appreciate all of the reasons for this conclusion, the bright sunlight, nevertheless, improves the quality of hay, in that it tends to increase its content of vitamin D.

This conclusion was brought out and demonstrated by the Michigan agricultural experiment station some years ago, when they were studying the nature and cause of rickets in calves—a disease of the bones. The experimenters fed four lots of calves a basal ration which contained practically no Vitamin D, and those whose ration was not supplemented with this vitamin developed rickets; that D, which makes it possible for the animal to assimilate the minerals it contains. Without vitamin D the assimilation of minerals cannot take place, no matter how much mineral matter may be present in the feed the animal receives.—Wallace Farmer.

Soil Particles

The size of the soil particles is a factor of great importance in determining for what crops soils are adapted. These particles, which determine the soil's texture, range from large size to those that can be seen only with the aid of a powerful microscope. As a matter of convenience these particles are divided into a few rather than many groups. For a long time soils have been referred to as sands, sandy loams; silts and silt loams; and clays and clay loams; but, with the inauguration of soil survey work by the United States Department of Agriculture, the grouping of soils was begun on the basis of the size of the particles, although this grouping differs somewhat from European groupings adopted at about the same time.

The Farm Potato Patch

Some folks think that farm potato patch philosophy is just sitting down and thinking things over, says a writer in the Indiana Farmers' Guide. It is not that alone but means doing things right and the thinking should be put into action. Philosophy means the causes or reasons or, in other words, failure or success. The natural causes for failure are few, such as heavy continued rains followed by a hot sun at planting time, drouth, hail or unwarranted freezing temperatures. Most of the other causes for failure are from neglect on the part of the grower. The reasons for success are also few, but if practiced they will bring excellent results.

RURAL SCHOOLS

Winton School.

Reporters, Lewis Profit and Francis Clara. Teacher, Miss Beatrice Martin.

Those who have not been tardy nor absent this month are: Alice Butler, Francis Butler, Lavina Evans, Velma Muntz, Lewis Profit, Joan Muntz, Ronald Vise, and Loraine Muntz.

Our third grader has learned to multiply any number by two and by three.

The second grade is learning the poem, "Thanksgiving Day."

We are very pleased to have our light window shades. They make our school room much more cheery. We think that we can see to study better now.

For reading the fourth grade are studying, "How America Was Discovered."

We have our bell in working order again. Thanks to Mr. Profit and Mr. Charter for fixing it.

The beginners and first grade are learning "The Man in the Moon." They are also learning the sounds of the different letters.

The first three grades had a spelling match on Friday afternoon with Lloyd Vyse and Elizabeth Butler as captains. Elizabeth's side won.

We have turkeys on our windows for Thanksgiving decorations. There will be no school Friday after Thanksgiving.

Several of the school children have slight colds.

Leo Russell and Francis Butler were captains for a spelling match between the higher grades on Friday afternoon. Francis' side won with Wanda Karr spelling down the other class mates.

The sixth and seventh grade are learning definitions in hygiene.

Our per cent of attendance for this month is 95.4.

Delores Souden won first place in the second grade reading contest, with Helen Hewitt making a close second.

The second and third graders are also making a booklet, using the story, "Jupiter Celebrates Thanksgiving."

Vera Motz is a new pupil in the fourth grade. Welcome, Vera.

The fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils had their tests last week and received their report cards Monday. We all hope to do better next month.

The seventh and eighth grade scholars are anxious to receive their new language and history workbooks which they sent for.

We had an arithmetic contest Friday. Lenora and Valdora Bissett were captains. After an exciting twenty minutes, Valdora's side won.

Richard Rolston has been neither absent nor tardy this year. Good going, Richard.

Our visitors so far were Miss Deahfaye Durand of Deckerville and Ralph Hastings and Walter Hyde of Sandusky.

Harry C. Smith visited us Thursday afternoon. We enjoyed his talk about the Huron Indians very much. Come again, Mr. Smith. Visitors are always welcome.

Peony in Legend

The peony is cited by Pliny as the earliest known of medicinal plants. The name itself perpetuates Apollo in his character of physician, for as Paeon he healed the wounds the gods received in the Trojan war.

There's Always Another Year

MARTHA OSTENSO

Copyright Martha Ostenso WNU Service.

For an instant, as Gerald climbed down from his car and stepped toward her, Silver contemplated flight. Instead, when the impulse had passed, she thrust her hands into her pockets and looked coolly up at him.

Gerald seized her hands. "Silver—what's the matter with you?" he demanded. "Get in and we'll take a drive and talk things over."

"No," Silver said firmly. "I don't want to go driving—and I have nothing to talk over, Gerald."

He put his hand lightly on her arm and drew her toward the car. "Listen to me, Silver," he urged. "What's got into you? I didn't come out here to kidnap you, though I'd like to. You've grown even more luscious—if that's possible. Sit in the car and let's talk."

For a moment she hesitated, then with a shrug she got into the car. She surveyed him with detachment, and wondered what had happened to her since she had last seen him. He was as rakishly good-looking as ever, his eyes as full of confidence and meaningful laughter as ever. But it was as though she looked at him now through an obscuring film.

Gerald looked critically down at her. "You should have known better than to try running away from me, sweetheart. You didn't even give me a chance to tell you how sorry I was—about your father."

"I'm trying to forget that," Silver said briefly. "How did you find out where I had gone?" He pinched her chin lightly and smiled. "Little Gerald finds out just about everything he wants to know. Old Ben Hubbard is a friend of mine. So I came out here and snooped before I looked you up. And lo and behold! I've got the very thing I've wanted for some time. A resort on Emerald bay, my love! You see, I had a few grand salted away—"

"You had to get out of Chicago, didn't you, Gerald?" Silver asked, and looked at him levelly.

"Well, now, my dear," he protested, "do we have to go into that? I'll admit—things were getting warmish. But this—or these—are the wide open spaces. And here I am with a peach of a lay-out up on that lake. It's right on the highway so I can keep it open for the winter trade. All I need now is a kiss from you, Silver."

"Gerald," Silver interrupted sharply. She thought quickly for a moment. "All right—drive me up."

Quite abruptly and mysteriously, her relationship with Gerald Lucas had changed—had changed so that it seemed it had never existed. Less than a month ago, his very presence would have thrown her into a panic of wild emotion. Was it her father's death that had made her a different person, or was it this uncompromising landscape, in which Gerald and his kind seemed a little absurd? Both, perhaps. But there was something else, too—something which she could not pull up to the light and analyze.

Gerald was turning the car in at the Willard gate. And there, between poplar trees that were defined vaguely against a moon that was like a rising red world, stood Corinne in her white dress.

Silver got out of the car. Gerald swung it about to leave immediately, but Corinne came toward it and stood for a moment in the glare of the lights. Silver looked at Corinne and then at Gerald. Suddenly, as she saw Gerald's eyes dwelling upon that white figure standing in the light, there came an instant's conviction, lucid and electrifying, that nothing would ever be the same again.

"This is Gerald Lucas," Silver said quickly, and hesitated. Gerald smiled and put forth a hand. "And what's the other half of it?" he asked.

"I'm Corinne Willard," Corinne replied as she took Gerald's hand. He gave her a little half-amused, searching look that Silver understood only too well.

"Corinne Willard?" Gerald repeated. "And where have you been all my life?"

"Where nice girls always are," Corinne replied archly. "Living at home with mother."

"Just a nice, old-fashioned girl," Gerald bantered amiably. "Well, come along out to Emerald bay some night when mother isn't around. Bring her out with you, Silver."

Silver stepped to the side of the car. "Gerald," she said, "you're going to be late for your appointment. And besides—"

"Right-o. Silver!" Gerald put in immediately. "I was forgetting. See you both later."

The car shot into the road and vanished beyond the thicket where the highway turned to the south.

She drew back deliberately. "No." He looked at her narrowly, then leaned toward her with a darkened face. "I don't quite follow you, Silver. I thought it was all fixed between us. I've been on the level with you, haven't I? We've been everything to each other, haven't we? Now, what's it all about? I thought you ran away because of your father's death. I couldn't believe it was because of me, Silver. Honestly, I thought you expected me to follow you. Well—I think you ought to do some of the talking."

She had been staring vacantly past him at the darkening west. Some of the old fire was stirring within her at the sound of his voice and the nearness of him. But it was, she told herself with the deeper part of her consciousness, only the quick and vanishing fire of a will-o-the-wisp. In some way she had changed. She was no longer swayed completely by Gerald Lucas.

"Yes, I ought to talk, Gerald. I know that," she said. "But I don't know how to tell you. She brought her eyes even with his own. 'It's just that I've got over all the—' She hesitated.

"Are you trying to tell me that you don't love me any more?" he prompted. "Oh, Gerald!" she cried in desperation. "Do you believe I ever loved you? Could you call that love—in that feverish atmosphere? You—you appealed to me in a certain way, that's all. I know that now, Gerald. And I don't want to go back to what I left behind me. I don't want that kind of life—yours and—Dad's."

He looked at her hard, and she saw an almost wistful disappointment enter his eyes. "Well—of course—that lets me out," he said slowly. "But you happen to be the only girl I've ever wanted to marry, Silver. And I'm thirty-two now." He was thoughtful for a moment. "Are you sure you won't want to go back after you have had a taste of this life? I can't see Silver Grenoble living in a place like this. It's all right for you to like it—but the place has to like you, remember, or it's going to raise hell with you. Did you ever see a prize pup trying to make up to a pack of mongrels? It's a lot of fun—if you don't happen to care for the prize pup."

"I'm taking that chance," she retorted. "Anyhow—I don't consider myself a prize pup. I have a good deal to live down, Gerald." He patted her interlocked fingers. "I'm sorry you feel that way about it, darling," he said softly. "Guess I'm to blame."

Silver's free laugh rang out. "I should say you were not! If I do anything, it's because I want to, whether it's right or wrong!" Gerald gave a low whistle. "There speaks Jim Grenoble!" he said soberly. "But I'll believe you, Silver. And I wish you luck. If it doesn't work out, I won't be far away. At least not for awhile. Do you want me to drive you up to the house? I'll promise not to set foot on one little bit of your sacred—"

"Gerald," Silver interrupted sharply. She thought quickly for a moment. "All right—drive me up."

Quite abruptly and mysteriously, her relationship with Gerald Lucas had changed—had changed so that it seemed it had never existed. Less than a month ago, his very presence would have thrown her into a panic of wild emotion. Was it her father's death that had made her a different person, or was it this uncompromising landscape, in which Gerald and his kind seemed a little absurd? Both, perhaps. But there was something else, too—something which she could not pull up to the light and analyze.

Gerald was turning the car in at the Willard gate. And there, between poplar trees that were defined vaguely against a moon that was like a rising red world, stood Corinne in her white dress.

Silver got out of the car. Gerald swung it about to leave immediately, but Corinne came toward it and stood for a moment in the glare of the lights. Silver looked at Corinne and then at Gerald. Suddenly, as she saw Gerald's eyes dwelling upon that white figure standing in the light, there came an instant's conviction, lucid and electrifying, that nothing would ever be the same again.

"This is Gerald Lucas," Silver said quickly, and hesitated. Gerald smiled and put forth a hand. "And what's the other half of it?" he asked.

"I'm Corinne Willard," Corinne replied as she took Gerald's hand. He gave her a little half-amused, searching look that Silver understood only too well.

"Corinne Willard?" Gerald repeated. "And where have you been all my life?"

"Where nice girls always are," Corinne replied archly. "Living at home with mother."

"Just a nice, old-fashioned girl," Gerald bantered amiably. "Well, come along out to Emerald bay some night when mother isn't around. Bring her out with you, Silver."

Silver stepped to the side of the car. "Gerald," she said, "you're going to be late for your appointment. And besides—"

"Right-o. Silver!" Gerald put in immediately. "I was forgetting. See you both later."

The car shot into the road and vanished beyond the thicket where the highway turned to the south.

"Well—I must say—you have a way of dismissing people—" Corinne observed.

"I just happen to know Gerald," Silver said quietly. "So I have heard," Corinne remarked. "He's not at all what I imagined him. And he is awfully good looking, isn't he?"

Silver was thoughtful for a moment. "Corinne," she said at last, "I don't want Gerald around here at all."

"Well, it's no affair of mine, my dear," Corinne said lazily, and began calling to her dog, who was exploring the underbrush on the hill.

Something deep within Silver trembled. She saw Corinne turn away and go toward the house. From among the shadows under the great oak came the sound of Jason playing a quaint old lullaby. The music, mingling with the unbroken churring of the frogs, seemed to come from far away, from a past of half-remembered, half-forgotten things.

CHAPTER VI

JUST before sundown, Silver rode out to bring the cattle in from the pasture. On the way home she paused beside a stripped field of barley where the men were at work. A couple of them waved to her. Roddy waved to her and Silver, waving back, remembered irrelevantly that Corinne had not been present at the midday meal. She had gone to luncheon at the Richters', in their cottage on Twin Deer lake.

Silver shook her bridle rein and was about to turn away when she heard a scream from the field. She swung around quickly and saw Roddy jump toward a tow-headed youth who was standing near him. The engine stopped instantly and the men hurried to where Roddy was leaning over the boy. Silver slipped down from her horse and in a moment had crept under the fence and was beside Roddy. The boy had stumbled and caught two fingers of one hand in a cog-wheel of the thrasher. The fingers were two bloody tatters hanging from the hand. The boy was lying on the ground now, his face a deathlike pallor under the sunburn, his lips white with back from his clenched teeth.

Roddy looked up. "Has anyone a clean handkerchief?" Nobody responded. Silver had knelt beside Roddy, who was keeping a vise-like grip on the bleeding hand.

"Use this, Roddy," she said quickly, and whipped off her clean white linen blouse. With her shoulders bared to the rosy light of the low sun, she tore the material into strips and gave them to Roddy while he made a bandage and a tourniquet for the boy's mangled hand.

"All right, Jimmie!" Roddy said at last, and lifted the boy gently to his feet. "Start the truck, Jason. You'd better go down to Maynard and let Doc Woodward attend to it."

In a minute the truck had rattled away. It had all happened so quickly, it seemed to Silver that she had scarcely drawn a breath. Roddy was coming back to her from the wagon that stood off a short distance. He was carrying his own grimy jacket. She permitted him to button it up to her breast, while she thrust her hands down into the pockets in an effort to control their trembling.

"That wasn't very pleasant, was it?" he said with a grim smile. "But those things happen now and then." When she did not reply, he laid his hand on her shoulder. "You were a brick, Silver—to do what you did. But you're pretty unstrung. Perhaps you'd better ride home in the wagon with me. Rusty will find his way back alone."

In another moment, she knew, she would burst into nervous tears. Without looking at him she said hurriedly, "No, thanks, Roddy. I'm—all right."

She turned away abruptly and rushed back to the fence, crawled under it and called to the horse, who had wandered off a short distance. All the way home, beneath Silver's shuddering memory of the ragged clots of the boy's fingers, dwelt the thought of Roddy's dark face and his kindling changed eyes.

While Roddy was washing in the tin basin on the bench outside the house—placed there for the use of the crew—Phronie came out of the kitchen.

"What's this I hear about the Healy boy?" she asked. "What happened?"

Roddy told her. "Well, I declare it just seems something has to happen every year," Phronie said. "And he's such a nice boy, too. Well, hurry up and get washed. Supper is ready."

"Is Corinne home yet?" Roddy asked. "She's upstairs changin' her clothes. Have you seen Silver anywhere? She went to fetch the cows, but I haven't seen her since."

Roddy told her then of the part Silver had played in getting the boy ready to go to Maynard with Jason. "Well—that girl beats me!" Phronie declared. "But then—she's just like her mother. I remember—"

"You'd better go in and look after things, ma," Roddy interrupted.

Roddy hastened upstairs to put on clean clothing before he sat down to supper. On the landing he met Corinne. She was dressed in a clinging green chiffon gown that came almost to her beautifully shod feet.

"Hello, lovely!" he greeted her in a low voice.

She laughed and ruffled his hair. "There's a corn roast and a dance over at the lake tonight, darling," she told him. "I thought I might as well dress now. Aren't you going to kiss me?"

Roddy grinned, then drew her to him and kissed her throat. "You've washed already?" she asked, surprised. "Don't tell me you washed in that tin basin outside."

"Certainly. Why not? I've done it for years."

"You have a bathroom upstairs, haven't you?"

"Listen, kid," he protested. "You don't know it, but the men are funny about such things. I don't want them to feel—well, you know what I mean."

"I don't know at all," she objected. "I should think—"

He swung her to him and held her close for a moment. "You're

Corinne frowned. "I didn't think you could be so stubborn."

Roddy got up and put his arm about her. "It isn't stubbornness, dear," he said, quietly. "Lord, can't you tell when a man is dog-tired?" "You're not too tired to go, if you really wanted to," she persisted. "It's just that you don't like the people who are going to be there."

"Well—they're not my idea of a steady diet, exactly," he admitted. She drew her lips tight as she returned his look. "You are very funny sometimes," she said coldly. "I simply can't understand you."

"Don't try, kid," he said, and patted her on the shoulder. "Go ahead and have a good time. I'll put in a couple of hours checking up on the new corn."

"You're not too tired for that," she retorted.

"But that has to be done," he told her. "There's Harry now."

There was the sound of a car coming to a stop before the door. Corinne turned away immediately and was gone. Roddy went to the window and watched until the car was out of sight.

much too pretty to talk to me in that tone," he remonstrated. "Go on down—I'll be with you in a jiffy."

But as soon as he had left her, his mood grew sober again. He could not forget young Jim Healy and his poor crushed hand. Then, curiously, with no obscure lightning of his spirit, there came to him the vision of Silver Grenoble, in her riding breeches, kneeling there on the field in the sunset, her shoulders bare above the plain silk bodice. Perhaps he had been all wrong about her. Perhaps she belonged here as essentially as he did himself.

Roddy entered the dining room. Before he took his place at the table, he glanced over at Corinne, faintly presiding at its head and smiling graciously upon her over-alled and plaid-shirted guests. Phronie and Paula stood, one on either side of the table, serving the men when necessary, or replenishing some dish or other from the kitchen. Silver had remained at the stone house, to make supper for old Roderick, who had not been feeling well for the past week.

It was Corinne's first appearance at table with the threshing crew. Roddy winced, in spite of himself, as he saw her draw back quickly when a brawny arm reached across her bosom in a lunge toward the butter dish. Finally someone made a too graphic comment on the day's accident, and Corinne covered her eyes. It was the last time she sat at the table with the men.

An evening or two later, Roddy returned from visiting the Healy boy to find Corinne impatiently awaiting him.

"What's wrong?" he asked. "The Richters called up this afternoon and I promised we'd be over tonight. It's their last party before they go back to town."

"Corrie," Roddy said in a voice that was slow with weariness, "I've been out to parties till I'm ready to drop. I'm fed up with it. How do you expect a man to do his work and go out to some d—n fool party four or five times a week?"

For a moment there was silence. Then Corinne said, "But I promised them we'd be there."

"I can't help it," Roddy protested. "If you want to go, take the car and run over for an hour or so. I'm so doggone tired I could—"

"Harry and his sister will come for me—if you won't take me," Corinne replied distantly. "Corrie!" Her name, as he uttered it, was a vehement plea. But she did not answer. She had already left the room and gone into the hall to telephone.

Roddy sat for a minute where he was and listened to Corinne's voice as she talked to Harry Richter and made her own elaborate excuses for her husband. Then he got up and went to the kitchen.

He was sitting there a half hour later when Corinne came and stood in the kitchen doorway. She was dressed for the party. Roddy looked up.

"Give my regards to Harry," he said, "and tell him to bring you home early."

UNUSUAL DISHES
WE ALL like to serve occasionally something a bit different and out of the ordinary, but for the daily diet the common foods simply served we enjoy the best.

Golden Coconut Shortcake.
Allow two slices of sponge cake for each serving. Prepare orange sauce by using one cup of orange juice thickened with corn starch, adding a bit of sugar and butter. Cover each slice of the cake with the sauce in sandwich fashion, cover with thinly sliced oranges and top with freshly grated and sweetened coconut.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.
Scoop out the centers of six ripe even sized tomatoes. Chop the centers and add one cup of cooked rice, four tablespoons of cheese grated, one hard cooked egg, two tablespoons of pimiento and one small onion, all minced; season with salt, a little lemon juice and any other desired seasoning. Fill the tomato cups and chill. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Pot of Gold Dessert.
Mix one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of cornstarch, add a bit of salt and a cupful of rich milk, one cup of orange juice and when cooked until smooth and thick in a double boiler add two tablespoons of butter and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Let cook until smooth. Serve molded in individual molds with whipped cream.

Maple Junket.
Dissolve one junket tablet in a tablespoon of cold water, add to a pint of lukewarm milk a little almond flavoring and a half cup of maple syrup. Serve with the top of the sherbet glasses sprinkled with grated maple sugar or sprinkle with finely shredded almonds.

Sea-Dwelling Mammals Keep Cool
Seals, walruses, porpoises, whales and other sea-dwelling mammals do not need to pour a film of water over their skins, to keep cool by its evaporation. The cooling job is taken care of by the water in which they are almost constantly immersed.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons
DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?
Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.
Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

NOT A TOUCH OF INDIGESTION IN WHOLE YEAR
Well-Known Indiana Lady Was a Long-Time Sufferer Before Indo-Vin Brought Her Complete Relief.
"Indigestion hasn't bothered me for over a year, since I took Indo-Vin that long ago," said Mrs. Ella Dunnington, of 1218 N. College Avenue, Bloomington, Ind. "My meals simply wouldn't digest at all," continued Mrs. Dunnington. "but would lay there in my stomach and sour and turn to gas and put me into an awful state of pain and misery. I tried everything under the sun, but nothing seemed to help me until I got Indo-Vin. This remarkable medicine has done me more good than everything else PUT TOGETHER. It went right to work on me and drove the awful gas and sourness out of my stomach, and now my meals are digesting perfectly and I have ten times the energy I had before. It certainly is a real medicine for anyone to take, and I can't help but praise it to ALL WHO SUFFER, for it has been a year since I took Indo-Vin and my trouble never returned." Indo-Vin is now being sold here in Cass City by Burke's drug store. Also being sold by every good druggist throughout this section.—Adv.

Little Stories for Bedtime by Thornton W. Burgess

LIGHTFOOT BECOMES UNCERTAIN

Lightfoot the Deer traveled on through the Green Forest straight ahead in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing. Every few steps he would raise his delicate nose and test all the scents that the Merry Little Breezes were bringing. As long as he kept the Merry Little Breezes blowing in his face he could be sure whether or not there was danger ahead of him. You see, the Merry Little Breezes delight in carrying all sorts of scents, and Lightfoot's nose is so wonderful that even though those scents be very, very faint he can catch them and tell just what they are.

Every Once in a While He Would Stop in a Thicket of Young Trees.

Lightfoot uses his nose very much as you and I use our eyes. It tells him the things he wants to know. He knew that Reddy Fox had been along ahead of him although he didn't get so much as a glimpse of Reddy's red coat. Once he caught just the faintest of scents which caused him to stop abruptly and test the air more carefully than ever. It was the scent of Buster Bear. It was so very faint that Lightfoot knew Buster was not near, so he went ahead again, but even more carefully than before. After a little he couldn't smell Buster at all so he knew then that Buster had simply passed that way going to some other part of the Green Forest.

So Lightfoot knew that he had nothing to fear in that direction so long as the Merry Little Breezes brought him none of the dreaded man-scent, and he knew that he could trust the Merry Little Breezes to bring him that scent if there should be a man anywhere in that direction. The Merry Little Breezes are Lightfoot's best friends. But Lightfoot didn't want to keep going in that direction all day. It would take him far away from that part of the Green Forest with which he was familiar and which he called home. It might in time take him out of the Green Forest, and that wouldn't do at all. So after a while Lightfoot became uncertain. He didn't know just what to do. You see, he couldn't tell whether or not that hunter with the terrible gun was still following him.

Every once in a while he would stop in a thicket of young trees or behind a tangle of fallen trees uprooted by the wind. There he would stand facing the direction from which he had come and watch and listen for some sign that the hunter was still following. But after a few minutes of this he would grow uneasy and then bound away in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing so as to be sure of not running into danger.

"If only I could know if that hunter is still following I would know better what to do," thought Lightfoot. "I've got to find out."

State Has Stake in Chicago Show

Michigan's stake in the International Hay and Grain Show at Chicago, Nov. 30 to Dec. 7 includes 400 head of livestock, hundreds of entries of grains and seeds, and, most important, a delegation of 46 4-H club members who will compete against teams and individuals from all parts of the nation.

Ninety Michigan exhibitors, including State College, are sending horses, beef cattle, sheep, or swine. Both Belgians and Percherons are on their way to the land of blue ribbons and Michigan has a reputation for cleaning up in the draft horse classes.

A carload of Shropshire lambs owned by members of the Shropshire breeders' association and fattened at the college will be one of the two carloads of lambs entered from Michigan. Wildwood Farms, Lake Orion, shows the other carload.

Aberdeen Angus, Herefords, Shorthorns, milking Shorthorns, Red Polled, and polled Shorthorns are all being consigned to the International from this state. Many of the breeders will be showing full herds.

The 4-H club members won their trips to Chicago in sectional and state contests. Marion McLaughlin, Trenary, and Merrill Howard, Lawrence, are Michigan's entries in the health contest. Mary Lucy Glarum, Elberta, will wear clothes which she made herself in the dress revue.

One girl, Katherine Butterfield, Olivet, is a member of the livestock demonstration team and her partner on the team is Charles Games, Olivet. The livestock judging team has as members Richard Schroeder, Charlotte, Howard Rice, Olivet, and Lawrence Woodworth, Pottsville.

County Meetings Are Scheduled

All counties in the so-called Detroit milk area will soon hold their county delegate meeting to elect sales committee members for the Michigan Milk Producers' Association for the coming year. The delegates representing all the locals in each county must do this each year before Dec. 15. The sales committee with the board of directors are the official representatives of the organization in the milk marketing program in the Detroit market. Last year the association marketed $11,843,000 worth of milk for approximately 12,000 shippers in the Detroit area.

C. L. Bolander, director of membership relations, of the association, will attend each of the meetings and discuss some plans of activities for the coming year.

The schedule for the county meetings in the Thumb will be as follows:
Sanilac county—Thursday, Dec. 5, at 2:00 p. m. George Jickling, Marlette, is the county chairman, and Daniel Jurn, Sandusky, is county secretary.

Tuscola county—Friday, Dec. 6, 1:30 p. m., Court House, Caro. Rex Gunnell, Vassar, is county chairman, and George Thurston, Vassar, is county secretary.

Plain Paper Makes Room More Pleasant

Wall paper, which is supposed to be a background, for the furnishings in a room, sometimes is so conspicuous that it is impossible to arrange furniture so that it shows to best advantage, according to home furnishing specialists at Michigan State College.

Wall paper with realistic patterns of flowers, knots of ribbons, or of vines should be avoided. The more natural the pattern, the more difficult to arrange the room so it will be a pleasant place to rest or work. Extremely dark colors make a room gloomy.

Paper with inconspicuous stripes can be used. Stripes which run vertically rather than across the room or diagonally will be more pleasing. The stripes make a low room appear to have higher walls. Plain or nearly plain paper with grayed colors are usually the most suitable. Such wall coverings make splendid backgrounds for the furnishings.

In hall or corridors, where there are few pieces of furniture, it is possible to use papers with gayer designs than in rooms where more furnishings are used. The colors of the paper should be duller than those of the furnishings, even in hallways.

Borders for the paper are not needed in most rooms. If the ceilings are high, the ceiling paper may be brought down on the side walls, and a picture molding placed where the papers meet. When borders are used, the design and colors should not attract attention from other things in the room.

BOT CONTROL WORK.

In anticipation of the horse bot control work for the coming season which again will be conducted in Tuscola county, it is desirable that a dip solution be applied to the bot eggs on the legs of the horse 30 days before the carbon disulphide treatment is administered in order to allow the bots which have hatched and entered the mouth to reach the stomach. A 3 per cent solution of a dip (Cresol, zenium, lysol, carbolic acid, etc.) is easier to prepare. This can be made by adding one ounce (2 tablespoons) of the dip to a quart of water. This material should be applied to the bot eggs by means of a sponge or rag.

Educational meetings will be held throughout the county, Dec. 19 and 20, by extension veterinarians from Michigan State College at which time the horse parasite and its control will be discussed.

Trench Silo Aid in Saving Corn

Farmers Urged to Prepare to Preserve Immature Soft Crop.

By E. H. Lehmann, Head Department Agricultural Engineering, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

With the condition of Illinois' 7,500,000 acres of corn, mostly late planted, continuing below average, trench silos bid fair to become an important factor in the preservation and use of soft corn which may be prevalent in many sections this fall.

Because of heavy spring rains and the delayed planting of corn in practically all parts of the state, there is danger that frost will catch much of the corn this fall before it is matured. Soft corn is difficult to store in cribs, bins or barns, but makes excellent silage.

Since it is cheap, simple to construct and costs less to fill, the trench silo appears to be one of the best means by which farmers can store this soft, immature corn. The only construction equipment needed is a plow, slip and tractor or team of horses. Two men with this equipment can construct a trench silo in from two to four days, depending upon the size.

The silo should be constructed with a slight slope in the sides and on high ground where there is less likelihood of standing water. If a bank or slope is available, the lower end of the "trench" may be left open as a natural drain.

Silage must be well packed and kept higher in the middle than on the sides during the filling process. This causes the silage to settle in a rounded manner after the fashion of a hay stack. Covering the silage with about a three or four inch layer of finely cut straw followed by a layer of dirt will help keep out air and prevent spoilage.

Easy Test Aids Breeder of Dry-Weather Wheats

One of the questions to be answered in developing new wheat varieties is: How will they stand dry weather? The question has been answered in the past by observing the new varieties in experimental plots during dry years. But in wet years no information was obtained on drought resistance. This made the breeding program more difficult and slowed it up materially.

Now plant breeders of the United States Department of Agriculture have found that the rate at which a wheat plant loses water through its leaves indicates its drought resistance.

Water loss, or transpiration, has been determined by cutting the plants at different stages of growth, sealing the cut ends at once, and weighing at intervals. The method has been developed and checked with varieties of known ability to stand drought. These were found to lose water least rapidly. For example, Hope wheat, susceptible to drought, loses moisture more rapidly than Baart and Kubanka, which are resistant to drought.

Interest in the drought resistance of wheat, developed during dry seasons, often has been lost in a series of wet years. The development of resistant varieties, nevertheless, is a problem of much importance to the wheat farmer. A simple method of determining drought resistance—no matter what the rainfall may be—such as this measuring rate of water loss, will aid the development of wheats more tolerant to dry weather.

Quality Cream Demanded

Butter manufacturers want quality cream, and many are paying a premium for it. In some states they refuse to buy poor cream. To insure efficient cooling of cream so that it will stay sweet until marketed, a cooling tank should be arranged so that cold water from the well is forced to the bottom of the tank and allowed to flow out at the top. This water can be carried into a live stock tank. Fresh cream should not be kept in a separate container and stirred constantly until it is thoroughly cooled. All utensils should be kept clean and sterilized. Cream should be marketed at least twice each week.

Agricultural Notes

The Department of Agriculture says the tent caterpillar rarely causes permanent injury to plants.

Each year more graded cannery tomatoes are sold with the United States standard grades as a basis.

Wild onions and garlic in pastures often give milk an objectionable odor and flavor.

New Zealand, Australia, Denmark, Netherlands, Canada, Italy, and Switzerland appear to be the world surplus dairy nations.

Reports from western Ontario indicate that occasional shipments of wool from that area to the United States have been resumed after a lapse of a year.

No farmer in France, according to French regulations, may sow the same field in wheat two years in succession.

Officers, chairmen and all who have helped on the roll call in Tuscola county this year will meet Thursday, Dec. 5, at 2:00 p. m., in the Red Cross rooms in the court house in Caro. Miss Youngberg, a national Red Cross representative, will give an address and the county unit will decide upon the year's activity. Mrs. F. H. Schuckert, county chairman, desires that all who have helped in the membership campaign just closing take advantage of this opportunity to express their wishes regarding the county unit's program. All interested members are welcome to attend.

GAS DEALER FOR EACH 100 OF POPULATION

Concluded from first page.

Huron and Sanilac counties. John Neeb of Bad Axe erected a service station on East Main street in the summer of 1931 which is one of 10 gas stations under his control in Huron and Tuscola counties. Besides the one in Cass City, he has stations located in Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Port Austin, Port Hope, Caro, Tuscola, Reese and two in Vassar. Roy Wright and Harold Murphy are managers of the local plant.

John McLellan, who conducted a hotel on North Seeger street many years, decided to retail gas and oil nine years ago and erected pumps in front of his hotel building. Four years later, he sold the gasoline business to Judson Bigelow, who continues to operate it at that point.

Frank Ward started a lubricating oil retail store on Main street several years ago which was later acquired by Mr. McLellan. Mr. McLellan resides in the same building, and when "night owls" out of gas, roused him out of bed in the wee early hours demanding a gallon or two to cover the bottom of a dry tank, he decided he might as well carry a gas line also, for there is no fun crawling out of bed to answer a call unless there's a bit of profit attached. Mr. McLellan operates no gas pumps but he has a few filled cans handy for the occasional gasoline patron.

At the west end of Main street is the Independent Farmers' Gas and Oil Co.'s depot with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burgess as owners. This station was erected within the last two years.

The Elkland Gas and Oil Co. was organized in 1926 with citizens of this community as stockholders. After several years of business, it was succeeded by the Star Oil Co.

of Port Huron. Joseph Knepper, until recently of Jeddo, is the manager of the service station, having come to Cass City last spring. His son is his assistant.

Robert Warner, with many years' experience as a gasoline sales manager, is in charge of the station of the Country Oil and Gas Corporation, which accepts patrons as members on a cooperative plan. The local headquarters are at their plant on the corner of Leach and Church streets.

Two dealers to enter the field recently are J. A. Cole and Martin McKenzie. Mr. Cole has placed two pumps at the curb in front of his garage building on East Main street. Mr. McKenzie erected a service station on North Seeger street just outside the village, but so close to the corporation limits that few people realize he's out of town.

Then there are the two G. A.'s. G. A. Tindale is on West Main street and G. A. Striffler on the east end. Both maintain gas pumps as side lines only, Mr. Striffler conducting an implement business and Mr. Tindale the Ford garage. Both have retailed gasoline for many years.

Medcalf & Schrader of Caro have recently purchased the Wm. Bentley blacksmith shop at the corner of Main and Grant streets and plan to tear down the building and erect a gas station on that site. They have not decided what type of service station will be built, but will have their plans completed in time to begin building operations about March 15. When this new building is completed, there will be four retail gas companies in one block on the north of Main street and another across the street.

Ward Woolsey underwent a tonsil operation Saturday. He was able to leave the hospital that same day.

Geraldine Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Underwent an appendicitis operation Sunday.

Mrs. Ted Bradberry of Flint was brought to the hospital Saturday with injuries received in an automobile accident. She was able to be taken to the home of her father in Harbor Beach Tuesday.

"Vodka"

"Vodka" is a distilled alcoholic drink, termed "a harsh, noxious, fiery spirit," containing about 40 per cent alcohol. It is prepared mainly from rye, but also from a mixture of barley, oats and rye, from potatoes and from maize. The term is also applied in Russia to whisky, brandy and other alcoholic drinks.

OIL DRILLING NEAR UNIONVILLE.

The above picture shows an oil derrick on the farm of Herman Kinder near Unionville where drilling has been in operation for several weeks. Approximately 100 feet are drilled daily, depending on the quality of rock formation through which the drill passes. Half-tone is printed by courtesy of the Bay City Times.
