CASS CITY, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, 1936.

TRADE COMES HERE FROM LONG DISTANCES

Calendar Distribution Record
Is Eye Opener on Town's Big Trade Area.

If you were to estimate the number of customers coming to Cass City business places, would you say that more than half come from points outside of the area served by the Cass City post office?

A recent tabulation of persons with their addresses, who were given calendars at Burke's Drug Store during November and December, leads Mr. Burke to come to that conclusion and it emphasizes the big trade area which is served by Cass City business places.

Mr. Burke and his employees, the McCullough brothers, as they handed out calendars in the store, kept the names and addresses of the people so served. The record shows, of the number distributed, 48% were given to persons living in Cass City and on rural routes running from that post office. The other 52% went to people who resided at other points in the Thumb of Michigan.

While this experiment might not have proved exactly the same with other business places here, which might have a higher or lower out-of-Cass City-post office-area trade, it probably is an average picture of business conditions here and emphasizes the long distances which people travel to trade in Cass City. Not all of the people from other communities who were presented with these calendars came to Cass City for the sole purpose of buying drugs at this store. They probably had a diversity of wants. They may have desired to buy hardware, groceries or dry goods, to see professional men, to do banking, to sell grain or dairy products, to have their pictures taken, to have grists ground, to buy automobiles, tires, radios, farm tools, or from a dozen other lines, or came on some other mission. It does emphasize that people do come here from long distances to trade and that it is the combination of businesses represented here that attracts these buyers. It also stresses the fine results obtainable through the medium of cooperation of local business houses.

Of the people who came from other places to trade in Cass City as evidenced by the calendar experiment noted above, the Deford community furnished 19%, Gagetown 20%, Decker 22%, Tyre 10%, Owendale 7%, Snover, 8% and Colling 4%, while the remaining 10% were divided among the Argyle, Ruth, Sandusky, Uby, Caro, Elkton, Bad Axe, Kingston, Minden City, Bay Port, Mayville and Wajamega communities.

Millington Leads County in Rogers' Memorial Fund Drive

Allison R. Stone of Caro, chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial fund in Tuscola county, reports the amount subscribed in the county to be $61.84 which came from Millington, Reese, Caro, Cass City and Akron, named in the order of sums contributed.

Millington, organized by the local chairman, J. W. Castle, showed far the greatest interest in this memorial, contributing $37.25, the largest amount received from any town. Reese, with Harvey Manley in charge of the campaign, sent in $12.60 which was the next largest contribution.

"It is reported that some contributions were sent direct to the national committee and no record can be made locally of these amounts," says Mr. Stone. "Owing to the difficulty of getting in so many scattered lists, no report has been made as yet of the amount collected nationally for this memorial which is to be used in assisting underprivileged children."

Milk Production Shows an Increase

According to the records of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, their members in the Detroit market during the month of December, shipped 53,165,237 pounds of milk. Of this amount 91.19% was base milk and brought the producers $2.20 per cwt. for 3.5%, delivered in Detroit. The remainder, or 8.81%, was surplus milk and brought $1.16 per cwt. at local receiving stations. The organization disposed of milk as follows: Class I (amount used for fluid milk sales in the city) 62.55% @ $2.48 per cwt. delivered Detroit; Class II, 4.06% @ $1.74 delivered Detroit; Class III, 33.39% @ $1.37 at the local receiving station.

Production in December was 5.1 percent higher than in November and 1.9 percent higher than one year ago.

During the month 33,252,765 pounds of milk were sold as Class I. This, compared with a year ago when 32,686,697 pounds were sold as Class I, shows an increase in sales of 566,068 pounds. This increase is not as large as might be hoped for but is an improvement in the right direction.

Milk that has to be diverted into manufacturing channels is also bringing better prices than a year ago because of the strengthening of the butter market.

BREAK GROUND FOR TOWNSHIP UNIT SCHOOL

William McCrea, president of the township unit school board, turned the first shovelful of earth on Monday to break ground for the $76,000 school building at Marlette in the presence of PWA officials, contractors, school officials and the student body. Ground breaking ceremonies commenced that day at 1:30 p. m. The PWA funds provide $36,000 towards the cost of a $76,000 structure.

HURON CO. HAS MANY TRAFFIC LAW ARRESTS

Drive Is On to Curb Reckless Driving of Motor Vehicles.

During the last six months of 1935, the Huron county prosecuting attorney, Thomas R. McAllister, handled 152 cases, of which 142 resulted in conviction, 2 were acquitted, 1 dismissed on the payment of costs, 5 were dismissed on motion of the prosecuting attorney and 2 were settled out of court, both being cases involving illegitimate parentage.

There were 14 cases involving assault and battery, 1 case of felonious assault, 3 cases of battery, 2 sodomy cases, 11 game law violations, 1 case for carrying a concealed weapon, 1 case of defrauding by misrepresentation, 34 cases of drunkenness, 2 cases of entering without breaking to commit larceny, 1 case of defrauding by check, 8 cases where indecent language was either used in a public place or in the presence of women and children, 6 cases of petty larceny, 15 drunk driving cases, 20 cases of reckless driving, 5 cases where persons were driving without operator's license, 3 cases where truckers were operating without utility permits, 2 cases of speeding, 1 case where the defendant was operating his car without proper brakes, 1 arrest for failing to stop at a stop highway, 11 arrests for operating without license plates, 7 arrests for malicious destruction of property, 1 arrest for driving away a motor vehicle without authority, 1 arrest for statutory rape, and 1 arrest for criminal slander.

Total fines collected amounted to $1,885.89 and the total sentences imposed aggregated 12 years and 2 months.

Fifty-eight more cases were prosecuted during the last half of 1935, than during the first half and the increase was largely the result of an intense drive by law enforcement agencies to curb reckless driving and illegal use of motor vehicles, 59 of the arrests being for violation of motor vehicle laws. This policy will continue.

Bridal Showers in Honor of Mrs. Carl Johnson

Members of the League of Catholic Women and a number of guests met at the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly, Thursday evening where an enjoyable time was had by playing cards, prizes going to Mrs. Dan Hennessey and Mrs. L. McDonald of Gagetown. A delicious lunch was served. Miss Mary Kelly, sister, and Miss Margaret McCarron, cousin of Mrs. Johnson, arrived with a "lovely load of gravel" in the form of gifts for the bride to inspect.

About twenty-five friends surprised Mrs. Carl Johnson on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29, at the home of Mrs. Charles Johnson, at Powers. Bridge was played at five tables, prizes going to Mrs. Art Bushy and Mrs. Lionel Cory. After a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. W. F. Egan, Master Paddy Egan of Chicago announced that Santa Claus had left a sleigh load of gifts for someone. Each one proved to be the unlucky one until Mrs. Carl Johnson found a card bearing her name. She was the recipient again of many beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Johnson also received a lovely walnut occasional table from her present and former school pupils.

Powers-Spalding Tribune.

Members of the "500" club and eight guests tendered Mrs. Carl Johnson, the former Margaret Kelly, a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. Carl Behrend. Five hundred was the diversion and five tables were in play. High score was won by Elsie Corrivau; second, Mrs. H. R. Robichoud.

Mrs. Johnson received many beautiful and useful gifts.

ARGYLE ELEVATOR IS DESTROYED BY FIRE ON THURSDAY

Fire destroyed the elevator at Argyle on Thursday, Jan. 9, at midnight, at an estimated loss of $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The cause is not known.

William Rickman, manager, said the elevator contained $2,000 worth of fertilizer, 1,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000 bushels of corn.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY SECTIONS

Happenings Here and There
Garnered from the Chronicle's Exchanges.

There will be no freshman college in Sandusky this year because there is not enough interest in the project—in spite of an intensive campaign by Supt. A. J. Duncan to secure students. Only 21 students indicated that they wished to take work in a college in Sandusky. It is necessary to have at least 30 full time students to make the opening practicable.

Construction of an infirmary at a cost of $40,000 to be raised by direct taxes over a period of five years will be submitted to eligible voters of Huron county at the spring election April 6. The board of supervisors decided at its final session of the January meeting to place this question on the ballot at the April election.

Baked beans should be a popular dish on dinner and supper tables in the Unionville community judging from the large invoice of fine three quart bean crocks presented by the Unionville Milling company to its patrons as Christmas remembrances this year. Seven hundred fifty bean crocks were distributed.

Sanilac county supervisors have been called in special session for Monday, Jan. 20, to act on providing finances for county supervision of the $154,410 WPA drain program approved in Lansing, Tuesday. Under the WPA, Sanilac county is required to provide funds for supervision, which will probably include a supervisor of the project and a time-keeper. Improvement on about 26 drains is scheduled in the project, almost all of which will be hand labor. Drains will be generally cleaned out, widened and deepened.

It has been announced that the new school to be built at Uby as a PWA project will be of stone from the Bay Port quarries. Bids were asked on both brick and stone and the lowest bid was for stone construction. The completed building will cost about $85,000.

Mrs. Harriet S. Goodwine of Marlette, widow of the late Representative John W. Goodwine, who lost his life in the Hotel Kerns fire in Lansing, a year ago, charges carelessness on the part of the hotel management in permitting the fire to gain headway before turning in the fire alarm. She is suing for $75,000 damages.

Miss Erskine has taught in the high school here for the past 6½ years.

Miss Erskine's classes in the high school here will be taught during the remainder of the year by Mrs. George Dillman and Mrs. William Edwards, each teaching a half day. Mrs. Edwards, widow of a former Presbyterian minister here, will teach Latin, and Mrs. Dillman, who graduated from the high school at Cass City in 1925, will be instructor of the mathematics classes.

CASS CITY WHIPS SANDUSKY, 28-6

Locals Lose Thrilling Contest to Veteran Caro Squad.
Reserves Win Two.

Cass City battled Caro till the last gong before conceding them a close victory last Friday 21-18. This game was something of an upset as the Maroon and Gray were not expected to hold the veteran Caro team to such a small margin. Hopes are riding high for a victory over the Purple and Gold when they return here.

The work of Hulbert on defense was the outstanding feature of the Caro game. However, every man on the squad gave an excellent account of himself.

Sandusky proved too weak for the fast breaking Cass City boys, and were defeated 28-6. Willard Davidson had his eye glued on the basket, and, taking some perfect passes from his team mates, broke through to score 14 points, more than twice Sandusky's total. Vaden took over the center duties, and showed to good advantage. The foot shooting of the locals was the poorest shown this season, making only two out of 13 chances.

The second team won both their encounters by close margins. The Caro score was 17-16, and Sandusky's 20-18.

The Tigers won over the Cubs in the evening's novelty contest, 4-0. Next Friday will bring Bad Axe here. A girls' baseball team will be the special added attraction.

Following is the line-up for the Caro game:

Cass City.		P	FT	FG	TP
Davidson f	.....	3	0	1	2
G. Reagh, f	.....	1	0	0	0
Hulbert, c	.....	1	3	1	5

Huron Family of 21 Has a Perfect Bill of Health

What is undoubtedly the largest family in Huron county lives at Huron City, not far from Prof. William Lyon Phelps' famed country church, says the Bad Axe Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hellig, Huron township, are the proud parents of 19 children, all in perfect health and, with the exception of a married son, living at home.

Included in the family are twin girls. The oldest of the children will be 27 next month and the youngest is two years of age.

Mr. Hellig is 54 and his wife celebrated her 45th birthday anniversary Jan. 3. Both are of medium height and build, and are of German descent.

There has never been an occasion when it was necessary to call a physician to the Hellig home. A dentist has been visited only once, when one of the children had an ulcerated tooth extracted.

Mr. Hellig says the reason why his family is in good health is because "we have lots of work for the boys and girls to do on our farm, and we keep them busy."

Citizenship League Plan Round-Table

Sunday evening round-table programs are planned for January, February and March at intervals of two weeks, beginning January 26, under the auspices of the Christian Citizenship League. The league is an inter-church fellowship, with accredited representatives from five church congregations in the Cass City community, and this study project is undertaken at the request of several men and women who will share responsibility for presenting the various subjects. Themes will be selected from among the following current issues:

American Neutrality; International Sanctions; Unemployment, Relief, and Public Responsibility; Consumer Cooperatives; Crime; The Constitution and Social Issues; The Threat of Dictatorship; What Is Communist Philosophy?; and What Has Happened to the American Farm Market?

The Round Table will meet Sunday evening, January 26, at six o'clock at the Presbyterian church. It is open to all interested adults and older youth. Rev. Paul Alured is in general charge of arrangements as president of the Citizenship League.

WHICH ARE STRONGER ATHLETES OR HORSES?

Farmers' Week Visitors Will See Interesting Test at
M. S. C.

Which can pull more, weight for weight—horses or men?

One of the interesting features during Farmers' Week at Michigan State College February 3 to 7, will be a pulling contest between a champion draft team and Charley Bachman's near-champion football team. The contest will take place in the college demonstration hall, on Thursday night of Farmers' Week. This contest is only one of the many unusual features of the Farmers' Week program.

Several departments on the campus are cooperating to make the programs interesting as well as instructive by preparing unusual exhibitions of entertainment as well as educational character.

The engineering show is always popular, and the students this year have still something new to offer. The chemistry department is preparing to show some of the wonders of simple compounds and members of the history department will present today's world problems.

The rural drama contest, for which groups of actors have been rehearsing for weeks, will prove an attraction to many. The players have been providing entertainment for themselves and their home audiences, and the winner in sectional contests will compete for the state prize.

The completed program for the week is now being printed and will be mailed out within a few days. Those who do not receive a copy within a reasonable time may do so by writing to the college.

Bonus Payment Means $1,457,686 for Thumb Soldiers

Payment of the soldiers' bonus under the bill approved by the house of representatives in Washington, D. C., will mean a distribution of $1,457,686.71 in the three counties of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac. The total payment in Michigan would be $74,476,794.

The distribution to the three Thumb counties, compiled from information obtained from the Veterans' administration is: Huron, $494,251.64; Sanilac, $440,574.88; Tuscola, $522,860.19.

County Meet of Christian Endeavor

New insight on the world's most significant youth movement will be given by Russell J. Blair at a Christian Endeavor rally on Thursday, January 23, in the Caro Presbyterian church at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Blair is Field Secretary of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union and a member of the executive committee of the International Society of Christian Endeavor; and has been associated with the activities of this movement for the past fourteen years. He had close fellowship with Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Clark, and during this experience has secured unusual knowledge of the international and world-wide activity of Christian Endeavor.

Ernest S. Marks of Detroit, General Secretary of the Michigan Christian Endeavor Union, will share in the speaking program at this rally and will present motion pictures of the International Christian Endeavor Convention, held in Philadelphia last July.

All young people and pastors from Christian Endeavor churches in Tuscola county have been invited to hear these leaders. Paul Meredith will be in charge of the devotional program.

COMMUNITY CLUB BRINGS TALKIE-FILM

Four Groups Will Sponsor
Programs from February to May.

Talking motion picture films and silent films accompanied by a lecture, "The Next War," will be delivered here by Dr. Francis Onderdonk, of Ann Arbor, as guest of the Community Club at Cass City high school next Tuesday evening, Jan. 20. Supper will be served at 7:30 p. m. by the local Methodist Ladies' Aid Society, and the program will follow immediately. The scenario for the talkie-film was written by Burnet Hershey, war correspondent of the New York Times. The film is described as "not a horror picture but a history of warfare from the Stone Age to the seventy ton tanks, germs, and poison gas of today."

Dr. Onderdonk has appeared before scores of audiences in colleges, high schools, clubs, and national conferences in several states, besides speaking repeatedly for the Extension and Broadcasting Division of the University of Michigan. He has been to Europe several times for a total residence of 20 years. During the World War, as an American Quaker in Austria, he directed the distribution of 126,000 Bibles, and was employed as draughtsman in the rebuilding of a city on the Isonzo front. He witnessed the two most dramatic days in the last seven centuries of Austria's history, the collapse of the Hapsburgs and the rise of a republic, while on a Vienna-bound train jammed with revolutionary troops. During a second stay in Vienna (1922-25) he witnessed the evils of over-inflation.

To Give Three Talks.

Because of his ability to instruct various audiences and due to the general interest of his subject-matter, Dr. Onderdonk will appear before the high school assembly here Tuesday afternoon, and also will address the Woman's Study Club at its regular meeting, besides giving his more extended message to the Community Club in the evening.

New Grocery Opens Here on Saturday

This week carpenters are placing shelves and making alterations and painters are decorating the west side of the Ricker & Krahling business block on West Main street, getting that store building in readiness for the Economy Market which opens its doors to the public tomorrow (Saturday) morning.

The proprietor of this new store is Stanley A. Striffler, a native of Cass City, who graduated from the high school here in 1912. Mr. Striffler was for 13½ years manager of the A. & P. store at Cass City, and previous to that time had been a salesman in stores in Detroit, Sandusky and Cass City.

SOCIAL AND POLITICAL CHANGES OF 35 YEARS.

Just four years after Bryan made his free silver campaign in 1896, an American prospector went into the hills of Alaska. He stayed there 35 years, and came down the other day only because he was ill.

The hermit was bewildered at the changes he found in Fairbanks, Alaska. It occurs to Bruce Catton, NEA writer, that if the changes in Fairbanks would startle the bearded hermit, "a trip down into the states would absolutely paralyze him."

Disregarding the inventions he would see for the first time, he would find many political and social changes—and a few similarities.

When the prospector went north, the United States was busy conquering the Filipinos; today he would find us equally busy setting the Filipinos free. If he remembered the growing murmur against the trusts back in 1900, he would see today's government feeling very regretful because the supreme court wouldn't let it band the big combinations of industry together in a system designed to restrict output and maintain prices.

Remembering the anti-railroad agitation of the 1900's, he would see the government coming to the rescue of the railroads with millions upon millions of dollars. And then, of course, there would be the AAA for him to think about.

Looking abroad he would see: England, which he last saw descending on the South African Boers, preparing to wage war to protect the independence of an African nation.

Germany minus its kaiser, with a former painter ruling more automatically than the kaiser ever dreamed of ruling. . .

And when he got all through looking, we wouldn't blame the old prospector a bit if he went back to the Alaskan mountains to stay.—Star-Herald, Scottsbluff, Nebr.

The Townsend pension plan is gaining sufficient following that it will be a factor in the coming convention and subsequent elections. The Townsend supporters will try first to get their plan through one of the old parties. Failing in this they may come into the field as a third party. The Townsend leaders prefer not to do this for the reason that if they do and are defeated it would put an end to the movement. As long as they keep up their organization and dicker back and forth between the two old parties they will be in a position where they will hold the balance of power, and, because of this, give party leaders many wakeful nights.

FEAR AND INTELLIGENCE RETARD HUMAN RACE.

Everywhere, up and down Europe, the fighting men and the fighting machines are gathering. And for what—if not because every nation is deathly afraid of every other?

It is tragic commentary on this generation's inability to come to grips with its fundamental problems. In all these warlike countries this basic difficulty is the same—unemployment, stagnant business, the baffling complexities of a society which has learned how to multiply the production of goods, but has hardly begun to learn how to distribute them among its people.

As long as fear rules, the powers must pile up great armies, hold maneuvers on a scale only less expensive than war itself, fill the sky with grimly droning air squadrons, and get the costly gray warships afloat on the seas.

The money, the energy and the devotion that might go to make life easier for millions of people must instead be spent to prepare for death and destruction.

Here is man, arrived at last at the point where every human being in the world could be provided food and shelter and all the comforts and luxuries of modern civilization, with a minimum of properly apportioned labor. He possesses the machinery, every factor necessary to that long visioned goal—except the intelligence to properly use them.—Graphic, Lake Mills, Ia.

Is there anything more disgusting to hear than the fellow without any real complaint eternally howling? But how refreshing, when you hear the person you think has every reason to be downhearted always presenting the brightest side of life. Which do you think gets the most out of life?

Advice is cheap—experience costly. By the same token experience is a better teacher than advice. Yet advice, gained from practical experience, is worth considering. The only trouble is that the experience of one man might not be the experience of another under exactly similar circumstances. So much depends on the qualities of men. Don't laugh at advice—nor yet accept it unconditionally. It may be good or bad—and you alone are the one responsible for weighing its merits as it applies to your particular case.

Cars may come and cars may go, but the time payments seem to go on forever.

Man is the only animal that can be skinned more than once.

The most interesting person is the person who is always himself, who does not strive to conform to some convention, who is not forever circumscribed in his thoughts and actions by what some one might think or say—who is just himself. It is refreshing to meet such an individual.

If babies only came into the homes of people who felt they could afford them, the population of the earth would run out in a few generations.

A reader of this paper confesses to us that his wife is a nagger. The trouble with that woman, he said, is that she keeps on going over a thing and going over it. She went over one thing no less than six times during the space of three days. "What was that?" we asked, beginning to feel a real sympathy for the man. "Well," he said, "she said that the ash pan was full and would I dump it?"

An old fashioned person was in the office yesterday with a piece of copy which he offered with the remark: "I thought you would like to have something to fill up the paper." There was a time when editors sought for something to fill up the paper but nowadays it is a question with editors to find room for everything that should get into the paper. As press time approaches, the editor and the make up man usually begin to cut copy short. No editor likes to go to press and leave out two or three columns of good news that has been gathered and put into type with a great deal of labor, but the limitations of a column and a page are well defined and there is no such thing as squeezing in any more than will go. If you don't see something in the paper you expected to see it's quite likely it got crowded out.

You may not have noticed it but the days are getting longer. December 21st was the longest night of the year. From that date on, each day is a trifle longer than the preceding one.

Two Minute Sermon

Such Men Are Not Whipped.
By Thos. Hastwell.

I visited with a man the other day, who, like many another man the past three years has seen much of his plans go awry, as well as most of his savings. His misfortune is in no wise traceable to any carelessness or shortcomings on his part but has been due solely to conditions. The most wise and prudent management on his part could not have brought about any other outcome. He was a victim of circumstances. Everything he had done previous to the past three years had been done along the lines that wise and careful judgment would dictate. The thing that impressed me most was the spirit in which he accepted his misfortune. While there was no evidence of thoughtless indifference, there was a very pronounced evidence of that superior spirit that rises above misfortune and looks the world in the eye without a whimper. Here was a man every inch of him. He, as the boys say, "could take it." I got more of inspiration and more of calm assurance out of my brief visit with him than I thought could be possible. He seemed to fairly radiate faith in himself and the future to the degree that it was contagious. What a rich possession. No misfortune, no depression, can ever whip that man, because he has a spirit that can't be whipped.

What We Think

By Frank Dixon.

The trouble with the young people today is that their parents are afraid of them—afraid to correct them.

I was present in a home not long ago in which the daughter, a young girl in high school asked if she might do something. Her mother told her she could not do it.

I have heard a good many people get a good going over but I never heard one get the going over that that mother got.

She was told that she was narrow, old fashioned and behind the times, that she should have had a frump for a daughter instead of a girl who was trying to make something of herself and get some place.

I felt sorry for the mother but I guess some of it was her own fault since there was a starting point to all this. It didn't happen all at once. It didn't have its beginning the day I was there.

My guess is that that mother will go pretty easy before she calls her daughter down again. She is afraid of her daughter's ridicule.

From what I know this isn't an isolated case. There are thousands of such cases.

I believe that the depression was caused by economic ills and sins. I believe the crack up of 1929 was the inevitable result of the course this country was pursuing at that time. I believe that we will recover from this depression and have a period of the best times this country has ever seen and then if we continue with the same faults that produced this depression we will go into another tail spin worse than the present one.

Like produces like was never more true than it is in the case of those errors and faults that produce a depression.

The pathetic part of it is that we won't see it. We will be blinded by our prosperity and lapse again into the same faults that brought on the present disaster.

Like the ostrich, which is said to hide its head in the sand, at the approach of danger, we refuse to recognize the signs that should be clear as the sun to all.

A friend of mine gives as an explanation of the drouth the past two years the fact that people have not been doing as they should and that the drouth has come as a punishment for their sin.

I have no patience with a theory. The drouth is caused by the fact that we have cut down our forests and straightened our water courses and have failed to conserve our moisture. It is also a fact that drouths travel in cycles and the past two years we have been in that cycle.

CHAPTER XIII

DAY followed day, and the sky over the parched and livid land became like a dome of colorless metal, all the blue beaten out of it by the intense heat. Fears that had smoldered separately throughout the district, stole out, linked, and became flaming panic. But the drouth was only a fore-runner of a graver holocaust.

In Fielstad's feed and implement store, Roddy Willard talked with Sven Erickson and John Michener. He struggled to conceal the alarm he felt as he spoke.

"The county agent can't be expected to do it all by himself," he said sharply. "It takes just one day for a good army of grasshoppers to eat the chimney off your house!"

"I was talking with the agent yesterday," Roddy continued. "Poison bran has been distributed to all the farmers west of here, right to the state line. But some of them don't give a d—n, the shiftless b—nks! Their farms are going to be seized for taxes anyhow, so they can't be bothered about saving their crops."

"Joe Fisher came through from Brookings yesterday," Michener observed, "and he had to put chains on his tires. That sounds like a tall one, but Joe swears it's the God's truth! He stopped at a place where a fellow said the hoppers ate the harness off a horse's back—for the salt in the leather. You can take that or leave it."

Roddy thoughtfully rolled a cigarette. "Well, I wouldn't believe Joe even if I knew he was telling the truth. But it's bad enough, anyhow. I disked and harrowed last fall, and made a thorough inspection of my land this spring for locust eggs. My land is clean. But even poison bait won't keep them from doing a lot of damage before they die—if they begin coming in clouds."

John Michener and Roddy fell to talking then of the comparative danger of the differential and the lesser migratory grasshoppers, and Sven, to whom a locust was merely a locust and a pest, listened eagerly.

"Darn it, anyhow," Michener said at last, his expletive rather humorous in his deep voice, "if it would only rain! It gathered up fine yesterday, and then sailed off again to the north. A couple more days like this and there won't be enough left for a grasshopper's lunch."

"Well—I spose dey starve to death, den," Sven observed.

The searing heat continued and in a few days the earth, from the top of the Willard hill, looked like one great mottled leaf curled up at the edges, the dry atmosphere giving the horizon a scalloped effect. Silver, who had gone in the afternoon to the brushwood above the farmstead in quest of a breath of air, gazed down into the shallow valley below with a sinking heart.

The door of the stone house opened and Sophronia came out, walking slowly, unsteadily still, up the slope toward the barns. Yesterday she had ventured as far as the chicken-house for the first time. Silver had made an effort to tell her, only last night, that she had written to Benjamin Hubbard in Chicago and that he had secured a position for her. But just at the moment when she might have spoken, Sophronia's head had dropped forward over her crocheting and the gray exhaustion of her face had filled Silver with an alarm that prevented her uttering a word of her plans.

The leaves of the poplars above her rustled sharply, but the breeze that moved them was like a gust from an oven. Silver got to her feet and saw in the cornfield to the east the gray-white wave of air moving over the pale, brittle tassels. The heat licked over the field like horrid little tongues of dull fire.

Silver paused in the dry grass half way down to the yard. Suddenly every fiber of her being was alert to a sound in the air that was more than the burning flow of the wind. She knew at once that the sound had been present from the moment when she had gone up the hill, that her preoccupation with her own thoughts had shut it out. It was a brisk drone, muffled and yet somehow sharp, as a keen sound might strike on the ear of a person partly deaf. Silver glanced apprehensively about her, then upward at the sun. It seemed now that the hot chatter in the air was increasing in volume with every second.

She saw Roddy and Steve drive in from the highway in the truck and stop in the shadow of the barns. She hurried back down the hill and into the yard. On the hard, level ground in front of the barn, where a tarpaulin had been spread, Roddy and Steve had dumped a quantity of bran. In a large tin container, old Roderick was mixing the water, arsenic and molasses. Sophronia was standing to one side watching the men.

"Phronie!" Silver cried. "What are you doing out here?"

"Bein' out here won't do me as much harm as sittin' in the house and worryin'." Sophronia retorted. "Steve, you old galoot, you're lettin' that bran run off on the ground, there."

Silver stepped forward and lifted the edge of the tarpaulin and shook the bran back into place. Then old Roderick poured the arsenic mixture over the pile of bran while Roddy and Steve turned the mass over and over with scoop shovels.

Each then took a corner of the tarpaulin and lifted it into the truck. Roddy climbed up and seated himself at the wheel.

"You get into the house and lie down, Phronie," Silver commanded severely. "I'm going out and help spread it."

They bumped along for some distance in silence.

"Is there something I have to learn—about scattering the bran?" Silver ventured finally.

"There's a right way and a wrong way," Roddy told her. "Scatter it in flakes—not in lumps. We don't want the cattle to get a dose of it. They might uncover it in the fall and cattle don't thrive on poison, as a usual thing. Just watch the way Steve does it."

For more than three hours, Roddy drove slowly over the fallow fields and the wild-hay meadows, over sod land and weedy ground, and back and forth at regular spaced intervals across the great cornfield, crushing down stalks that must be sacrificed. Old Roderick, Steve and Silver standing up in the truck, cast the flakes of mash into the wind with a sharp snap of the wrist, as Roddy had cautioned them to do.

The air had become infested as though by a swift, green-brown hail which swept horizontally along the earth. The hysterical sound of the advancing hordes of insects individualized itself hideously on the senses, and in the scorching heat seemed, to Silver, to be burrowing into her brain. The grasshoppers, in their insane, head-long flight, battered themselves against the sides of the truck, dashed with the sting of pebbles into the very faces of the riders. And constantly, up and down the succulent stalks of corn, the appalling myriads moved with small, ferocious alacrity, incredible greed.

From time to time, Roddy swore softly under his breath or burst out anew in futile wrath at the lackadaisical farmers to the westward who had not done their share in helping to stop the advance of the plague.

"There's not much use in losing your temper, son," his father observed. "You can thank your stars that pet field of yours is far enough south of here to get the tail end of the business. They'll be half dead by the time they get over there."

"They'll do enough, anyhow, even there," Roddy replied dourly.

"Well this trile won't go far past our own land, that's a cinch," Steve put in. "Old man Flathe will thank us if nobody else does."

Roddy glanced up at Silver and saw that her face was white and drawn under the superficial flush caused by the heat.

"Here, kid! You look about ready to drop!" he cried with dismay. He turned the truck about and started more rapidly in the direction of the pasture below the hill. "You get out here, now," he said, "and run home. I don't know what I've been thinking about! Beat it!"

Silver got down unsteadily and started off.

"Look in on Corinne," Roddy called after her. "She wasn't feeling so well when I left the house."

Silver found Corinne in her room upstairs, in a pitiful huddle on her bed, the counterpane drawn over her head and shoulders.

"Corrie!" Silver said gently as she seated herself on the side of the bed. "You'll die here, in this heat."

There was no response save for the muffled sound of the girl's sobbing. Silver's patience suddenly left her. "Here—pull yourself together!" she said severely. "It's no worse for you than it is for the rest of us."

The counterpane was flung violently aside and Corinne sat up. Her tear-stained face worked spasmodically. She pointed to a ragged object on the floor.

"Look at that sweater!" she stormed. "I left it out on the lawn. Look at it! They've made a sieve out of it!"

Silver picked up the garment and began to laugh.

Corinne turned upon her. "Laugh! What's so funny about it?" she shrieked. "My G—d—I feel as though my very eyes have been eaten out! And you can laugh!"

"I can't help it, Corinne," Silver confessed. "I was just thinking of what they're doing to Roddy's corn-field."

She threw the tattered sweater into a chair.

Corinne clutched her cheeks. "Oh, my G—d, what a life! Listen to them—banging against the windows. I can't stand it—I can't—"

But Silver had seized her wrists and, with a choking gasp, Corinne's frenzied cries stopped.

"Listen to me, Corinne," Silver said firmly. "You get out of bed and take a cold shower and come down to the other house. You can't go on like this. Everybody feels crazy enough without your carrying on like a two-year-old."

But Corinne recoiled in sullen obstinacy. "I'll not stir out of this house today. Go away and leave me alone."

After a moment, Silver got up from the bed and started toward the door.

Corinne sprang suddenly to her feet. "What do you mean by going to Gerald Lucas and talking to him about me?" she demanded. "I know you did."

Silver paused and turned to look at her. "Did Gerald tell you that?" she asked.

"Why shouldn't he tell me?"

"I thought he'd have more sense, that's all," Silver replied.

Corinne laughed contemptuously. "I should think you'd have more sense than to interfere in my affairs. It's really funny—you and Roddy—the salt of the earth—trying to reform me."

Her mood changed abruptly. "I'll not have it. I'll live my own life—as I want to live it—and I don't want any missionary work on my behalf—by you or anyone else. From now on, please remember—"

"Corinne!" Silver interrupted agitatedly, and stepped toward her. "I'm not trying to reform you. I was simply trying to appeal to Gerald's decency."

"Decency! What does anyone in this place know about decency? Roddy had his chance to be decent. He could have taken me out of this hole last January—if he could have thought of anyone but himself."

Silver stared at her incredulously. "Corinne," she stammered, "does Roddy's love for this land mean nothing to you?"

Corinne, her eyes glinting, looked shrewdly at Silver. "How much does it mean to you?" she asked.

Silver's cheeks burned suddenly. "So much—that I have changed my mind about selling my land this summer," she said quietly. "Roddy can stay on as long as he likes, so far as I am concerned. I'm going back to Chicago as soon as Phronie is strong enough to let me go."

A lightning change came over Corinne's face. "Well!" she breathed. "So that's the next thing. That means—we'll be here next winter and—for the rest of our lives, then. What made you change your mind?"

In the parched air, Silver felt strangely cold. "Nothing made me change my mind, Corinne," she said haltingly. "I—I just couldn't go through with it."

Corinne sank down upon the bed. "Oh—what's the use!" she sobbed. "I've done my best—but you're all against me—because you all hate me!"

Silver looked at her half in sympathy and half in anger.

"Don't be such a fool," she said, then stepped to the edge of the bed and laid a hand gently on Corinne's shoulder. "Does Roddy's affection mean nothing to you?"

"Affection!" Corinne cried. "Don't talk to me about affection. What can you know about it? I'm losing my mind in this hell—and you talk to me about affection. Leave me alone! Go away!"

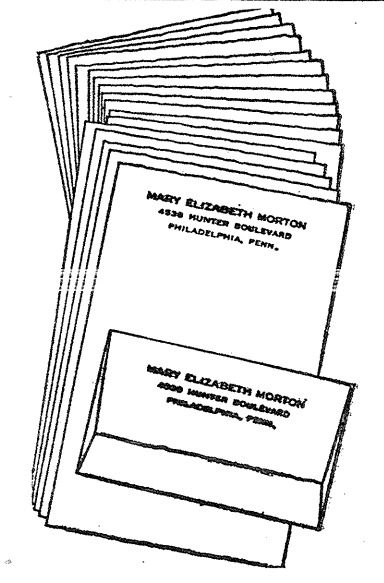

And Silver, thinking of Sophronia, went without a word out of the room.

But that evening, before the men had come in from the fields, Silver saw Corinne getting into Roddy's car in front of the big house. The details of her dress became instantly vivified against the soft glow of the descending sun. Corinne, in her drooping leghorn hat and her sheer patiste frock, was, to Silver, a design of beauty suddenly superimposed upon a wry background of disaster.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

SCHOOLS

CASS CITY SCHOOLS.

Miss Perrin, the home economics teacher, returned to school Monday after illness the past week.

Several new recruits have been added to the debate squad. The group now includes Marjorie Milligan, Glenna Asher, Margaret Shinko, Donald Allured, Carl Reagh, and Frank Morris. Members of the teams for the two final debates of the year will be chosen from that group. A practice debate with Bad Axe was held Saturday.

Semester tests will be given the last week in January. Advance work for the second semester starts on February third.

In order to make class more interesting in the study of parliamentary procedure the speech class has formed the Silver Tongue club in which all members of the class are enrolled. They formed the constitution and the by-laws and started their regular meetings on Monday. The terms of officers are so short that all the members may hold office in order that each one may have actual experience in being president and secretary.

Junior English classes have commenced the reading of "Great Expectations" by Charles Dickens as a unit in their course of English literature.

A pep meeting was held Monday afternoon in anticipation of the basketball game with Sandusky on Tuesday evening. Group singing, yells, announcements and comments from several members of the teams comprised the program.

Supreme Court Finds AAA Unconstitutional—Democrats Pick Philadelphia for Convention—Bonus Measure Is Pushed Through House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SIX justices of the United States Supreme court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjustment act. Three associate justices, Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo, dissented. The majority decision, read by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, held that the AAA was wholly unconstitutional because it invaded the rights of the states in seeking to control farm production.

The whole system of processing taxes imposed to finance the program was swept into disarray.

Not only are the processing taxes illegal but the court apparently declared the farm benefit contracts void and put up bars against any attempt of the federal government to regulate farm production by whatever means.

Senators and representatives who immediately began planning legislation to continue benefit payments to farmers and to balance agricultural output did not seem to grasp the full significance of this part of the decision. The court said flatly that regulation of farm production is not within the scope of the federal government and of its powers to accomplish this, nor can it purchase adherence to a control scheme by federal payments.

The decision destroyed not only the original AAA but also the amended act of the last session of congress.

The dissenting opinion held that the AAA was a legitimate employment of the power to tax for the general welfare. It attacked the theory that the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of the Supreme court and suggested that under the majority decision the unemployment work relief act is unconstitutional.

AAA Administrator Chester Davis stopped all payments to farmers "until further notice," and the Treasury department ordered all collectors of internal revenue to desist from further efforts to collect processing taxes.

In his budget message President Roosevelt included revenue from processing taxes, so the Supreme court decision had the effect of throwing the 1937 budget still further out of balance by something like a billion dollars.

IN HIS speech at the $50 a plate Jackson day dinner in Washington, President Roosevelt declined to comment on the Supreme court decision killing the AAA. "It is enough to say," he said, "that the attainment of justice and prosperity for American agriculture remains an immediate and constant objective of my administration."

Secretary Wallace called into consultation at Washington about 100 representatives of farm organizations to try to formulate some plan for speedy legislation to supplant the discredited law. Assurance that farmers who have fulfilled contract agreements would be paid was given by President Roosevelt when he advised administration leaders in congress to push through a $250,000,000 appropriation.

Clarification of the status of $1,200,000,000 paid in taxes by processors was expected when the court decides the eight rice processing tax cases argued recently. Legal experts in congress said an act of congress would be required if the $979,000,000 in processing taxes paid into the treasury are to be refunded. Disposition of the $200,000,000 processing taxes impounded in federal courts probably will hinge on decision in the rice cases.

AUCTIONED off to the highest bidder, the Democratic national convention of 1936 was sold to Philadelphia by the party's national committee. The price was $200,000, plus some prizes and concessions. Chicago and San Francisco also bid for the convention. The former offered a certified check for $150,000. The California city made the same bid and later raised it to $202,500.

During a brief recess Chairman Farley telephoned, presumably to the White House, and Vice President Garner moved among members of the committee urging the selection of Philadelphia. Therefore the City of Brotherly Love won the prize. The opening of the convention was set for June 23, two weeks after the Republican convention in Cleveland.

NO TIME was lost in putting through the house the bonus measure that had been agreed upon by veterans' organizations and approved by the ways and means committee. It carries the name of the Vinson-Patman-Cormack bill and is a compromise that authorizes immediate payment of the bonus but offers no definite plan for raising the money. It would provide 3 per cent interest until 1945 for veterans refraining from cashing their adjusted service certificates at once, and cancel all interest still due on loans on the certificates.

WITH the obvious intention of building up public sentiment in favor of the special brand of neutrality legislation he desires, Senator Nye had before his senate munitions committee for several days J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and other members of the great Morgan banking company.

Nye and Stephen Rauschenbusch, investigator for the committee, sought to prove that the United States was drawn into the World war by the loans made to the allies by Morgan & Co. and its associates. The testimony concerning these loans and their implications was long and complicated. The financiers were well prepared for the inquiry and were armed with a great quantity of documents, and though there was a good deal of acrimonious talk, Mr. Morgan appeared entirely unperturbed.

WHEN the delegates to the naval conference in London resumed their deliberations Admiral Osami Nagano, chief representative of Japan, firmly repeated his demand that Great Britain and the United States concede the parity claims of Japan as preliminary to any agreement. This attitude stopped all discussion of the British, French and Italian proposal for exchange of information about naval building plans and threatened the conference with early collapse. The crisis was so serious that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden himself took a part in the affair, calling the Japanese to his office in an attempt to induce them to adopt a more conciliatory attitude.

Japanese spokesmen declared they were interested first and last in the total tonnage question—under which they demand equality—and were not at all interested in other aspects of naval limitations to which the conference sought to turn.

SURROUNDED by klieg lights, microphones and movie cameras, President Roosevelt stood before the senate and house in night joint session and delivered what was nominally his annual message on the state of the nation. Actually it was not that at all, but a statement concerning the welfare and international disturbances on the other continents, followed by what the press generally considered an eloquent and militant political speech addressed to the people of the United States, who by the millions were listening in on their radios.

Democrats and Republicans alike commended the President's opening paragraph in which he boldly condemned the aggression of Italy and Japan, though without naming those nations; and there was little dissent from his assertion that the United States must maintain its neutrality while seeking to "discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

The remainder of the message, devoted to domestic affairs, was devoted chiefly to a belligerently worded defense of the New Deal measures of the administration, an attack on those who oppose them and a spirited passage in which Mr. Roosevelt defied and dared his critics to move for the repeal of those measures instead of "hiding their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality." In only two paragraphs did the President dwell on "the state of the nation." In these he said that after nearly three years of the New Deal national income is increasing, agriculture and industry are "returning to full activity," and "we approach a balance of the national budget." That last statement was greeted with mocking laughter from the Republican side of the chamber, and though the Democrats cheered loudly, Mr. Roosevelt himself smiled at his words.

DEFORD

Milk Association Meeting—

The local branch of the Milk Producers' Association held their annual meeting at the town hall on Tuesday. Mr. Bolander, a company official, was present and imparted some useful thoughts. The annual election resulted in the choice of Walter Kelley as president, and Frank Hegler as secretary-treasurer. Both were elected to succeed themselves. Roland Bruce will represent the local branch at the next meeting at Lansing. The usual banquet will, in the future, be held at the time of the annual meeting instead of in the fall.

Farmers' Club—The Farmers' Club will meet today—Friday—with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Warner at their home in Cass City.

Program Given—

The annual meeting of the Deford W. C. T. U. was held in the Deford church on Tuesday evening. The program was prepared by a committee of men who are honorary members. From the viewpoint of a back-seat observer, we pronounce the program given, as excellent. The program was lengthened considerably by encores responded to. From 7:30 to 8:30 was given to potluck and social hour, and the gathering nearly filled the seating capacity of the church. The address of Dr. Bates of Kingston was one he had given over the radio from the broadcasting station at Lapeer and was especially fine, as was also that which was given by the Rev. P. J. Allured. Space forbids comment on the thoughts presented by them.

Mrs. Blanche Kelley sang very beautifully, "I Dreamed I Searched Heaven for You." Other musical selections which were much appreciated included violin and piano duet, Glenn Tinsley and Mrs. Blanche Kelley; duet, Harley and Ruby Kelley; violin and piano duet, Hamilton McPhail and Mrs. Malcolm; duet, Rev. W. S. Hubbard and Edna Hubbard; male quartet, W. Kelley, A. Retherford, Warren Kelley and P. Retherford. Readings were given by Rosalind Sherwood, Edna Hubbard, Howard Retherford and Rev. Mr. Marsh.

C. L. Bolander of Imlay City was a Tuesday visitor at the Frank Hegler home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnson and daughter were week-end guests of friends at Detroit.

Improved SUNDAY Uniform SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for January 19 JESUS PREPARES FOR HIS WORK

LESSON TEXT—Luke 3:21, 22: 41-43. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.—Luke 4:8. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Grew Up. JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Was Tempted. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a Right Start for Life. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding God's Way for Life.

The statement of the subject of this lesson is not quite satisfactory. His baptism and temptation were not means of preparation, but were respectively his formal entrance upon his work and the first conflict with the devil, whose works he came to destroy.

I. Jesus Entering Upon His Mediatorial Work (Luke 3:21, 22).

1. His baptism (v. 21). In his baptism we see the symbolic act of Jesus dedicating himself to the work of redemption through the cross, or the act of consecration on his part to the work of saving the world through his death and resurrection. His baptism did not mean his obedience to the law of God, but his entrance upon the sacrificial work which on the cross of Calvary made a real foundation for full righteousness.

2. His anointing (v. 22). As he thus dedicated himself to the task of bringing in a righteousness, he was anointed with the Holy Spirit.

3. The heavenly recognition (v. 22). This act of devotion to the divine will was attended by the declaration of divine approval, "Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased."

II. Jesus' First Conflict With the Devil (Luke 4:1-13).

Jesus went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the arch enemy (Heb. 2:14). Instead of the temptation, therefore, being a preparation for his messianic work, it was a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation. It is to be noted that the Holy Spirit, not Satan, led Jesus into the wilderness to be tempted.

1. The place (v. 1). It was in the wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden, with the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13).

2. The method (vv. 2-12). Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold relationship: the Son of man, the Messiah, and the Son of God. Therefore, Satan made each one a ground of attack.

a. As Son of man (vv. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon Jesus as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged him to use his divine power to convert a stone into bread. Hunger is natural and sinless. Real human life experiences hunger. The appetite of hunger was normal and right. The temptation was to satisfy a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case, though his hunger was desperate, would have been to renounce the human limitations which he had taken for our sins. To use divine power to satisfy human needs would have been to fail as Savior and Mediator. To do right in a wrong way is to fail.

b. As Messiah (vv. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp his rightful dominion by false means. The devil offered to surrender unto him the world, if he would adopt his method—worship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with him. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was the sacrificial death on the cross. The temptation which Satan is placing upon the church today is to get possession of the world by other means than that of the cross. We fall into the hands of the tempter today when we resort to worldly means of doing the Lord's work. To bid for power by using worldly means is to follow after the example of Satan.

c. As Son of God (vv. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quotes a messianic psalm to induce him so to act. To do the spectacular thing in order to get publicity is to fall into Satan's temptation. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering him would have been to sin. To test God as to whether he will keep a promise is the greatest distrust; it is to sin and fall.

d. Christ's defense (vv. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God. He met every onslaught of the enemy with "It is written." Our defense is God's Word. May every Sunday school teacher and believer know how to use it.

e. The issue (v. 13). Satan was vanquished. If we but trust God and use his Word, we too can overcome the devil.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage, Constipation.
But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.
A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need.
Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.
Doctors use a liquid laxative.
Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup
Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Termites Once Useful

Originally the termites served a useful purpose in the economy of nature by destroying dead and dying timber in forests. As trees gave way to houses, however, the termite colony sent up its foraging crews from the ground nests into the wood of houses standing where trees once stood.

Oldest Chartered Business

The oldest chartered industrial concern in the world is the copper

Of the ten children born to them only two remain—Mrs. Henry Anker of Gagetown and Peter McDonald of Brookfield. Fifteen grandchildren and a sister, living in Canada, also survive.

Mrs. McDonald died on Jan. 11 in Pontiac from the infirmities of old age. She had been ill about three years.

She was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Besides her husband, the following are left to mourn her departure: Two daughters, Lucile, at home, and Mrs. Neil Campbell, of Detroit; three sons, Vincent of Saginaw and John and Louis, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Alphonso Rocheleau and Mrs. A. L. Secoir, both of Gagetown; five brothers, Joseph and Francis of Gagetown, John of Benzonia, Michigan, Clem of Saginaw, and George of Wahjamega. One daughter, Helen, died at the age of 18 on Dec. 2, 1918.

Besides her husband and five children to mourn her loss, she leaves a host of relatives and friends.

Relatives and friends from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Neil Campbell and Mrs. Elizabeth Bruder, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Weiler, New Baltimore; Joseph Weiler and two sons, East Jordan; Mr. and Mrs. John Lenhard, Doris and Gertrude, Benzonia; Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lenhard and Vincent Weiler, Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Campbell, Ray English and Edward Heaton, Elkton.

Joseph Weiler of East Jordan is spending the week with Anthony and John Weiler.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Loomis attended the mail carriers' meeting last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Phillips of Decker. The next meeting will be held on February 5 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Loomis in Gagetown.

various committees were all favorably received by the congregation, and caused much rejoicing on account of the evidence they bore to the progress of the work of the church. The church treasurer's report was especially encouraging and showed a surplus on hand after all obligations were met.

Correspondence Study Centers Are Now Being Opened

Correspondence study centers, supplementing the Community Colleges operated by the educational division of the Michigan Works Progress Administration, will be opened in various sections of the state before February 1, State WPA Administrator Harry L. Pierson has been advised by Henry J. Ponitz, director of educational projects.

These centers are designed to meet the needs of small communities where there are not enough potential students to justify the establishment of a college. A minimum enrollment of 12 qualified students is required as a basis for setting up a center. To date five applications have been received from school authorities in 10 isolated areas. Ponitz expects approximately 50 centers will be established.

Students who wish to obtain college credits must be unemployed and financially unable to attend existing institutions. Persons not working for credits may enroll regardless of their economic status.

Courses in English, history and mathematics will be offered immediately. Other courses will be available later. Students will devote two hours a day at the center for each subject studied.

Application for the establishment of correspondence study centers should be sent to Dr. Charles Fisher of the Extension Division of the University of Michigan.
