MAROON AND GREY TO ENTER REGIONAL

Cass City Squad Will Play Big Rapids Thursday Night at Mt. Pleasant.

Cass City will play at Mt. Pleasant in the Class B Regional tournament this week-end.

The Maroon and Grey was defeated in the finals of the district tournament at Lapeer last week by Caro, 23-31. Both teams are allowed to enter the Regional at Mt. Pleasant as the state provides for both winner and runner-up to go from this larger district.

Cass City defeated the strong Mt. Morris team in a well-played game in the second round by a 29-26 score. Caro won their second round from Midland by a very close margin, and defeated Cass City in the finals to gain a district championship.

The pairings at Mt. Pleasant will put Alma against Caro, and Big Rapids against Cass City Thursday night. The Cass City game is scheduled to start at 8:30. These two Thumb teams can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves against teams from other parts of the state.

Cass City has fought its way through to its fifth consecutive regional tournament.

Lady of Eighty-three Is Source of Information

Mrs. Alice Allured, 83, of Ewart, mother of Rev. Paul J. Allured, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, was recently honored by the Woman's club of that village by being made a life member and will be retained on the active list. Mrs. Allured has visited in Cass City several times.

In the Grand Rapids Press a few weeks ago, appeared the following sketch of Mrs. Allured's life:

"She is a whimsical little white-haired woman who will be 84 next May. Quietly unassuming, mentally keen and alert to all local and world issues, the last six months she has been recovering from a broken shoulder, a fracture that could not be set. Last August, while riding with her son, Rev. Paul Allured of Cass City, she fell from the car when the door flew open.

"Severe shock and the fracture kept her in bed a very few days and callers were surprised to find her up, but with little inclination to discuss the accident. She was much more interested in arranging for the compiling of a local history for the school library.

"The family came to Ewart in 1874 and her father, Oscar Brownson, established the Ewart Hardware Co. She was married in 1876 to Robert A. Allured, associated with her father in business. From that time on her life has been actively associated with all community interests and many state activities.

"In 1877 she organized the local W. C. T. U. and was president of that union for 20 years, and for 10 years was director of the department of social purity in the state organization. A charter member of the Ewart Woman's club, she handled all club publicity for several years. She is a poet of no small ability, and many of her poems have been published.

"Since the death of Mr. Allured in 1925 she has lived alone in the huge house built in 1883. There are two sons, the second being Karl of Northampton, Mass.

"Her attic is a treasure house of old periodicals and newspapers and information on any number of subjects has been carefully tabulated and kept throughout the years. School children and adults go to her for information, and the smallest child is received graciously as he takes his problems, to her, sure that she will have a solution and an answer—and she always does."

County C. E. Union Next Monday

The Tuscola County Christian Endeavor Union will meet at the Caro Evangelical church Monday, March 16, at 7:30 p. m. Rev. E. R. Norfence, president of the M. P. conference, will bring the message of the evening entitled "Opportunities."

Two panel discussions will be held after Mr. Wilson's talk. One, on devotions and recreation, is to be led by Lucile Anthes of Cass City, Pauline Monte and Maxine Humm of Fairgrove, with Rev. M. R. Davis of Gilford acting as chairman. The other, which is on membership and missions, will be led by Norma

Evergreen Twp. Couple Surprised on 60th Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. JULIUS WENTWORTH

Sunday, March 8, marked the 60th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wentworth, and in honor of the event 38 relatives and friends of the couple gave them a genuine surprise at their home in Evergreen township. They came from Rochester, Detroit, Dryden, North Branch and Cass City.

A bountiful potluck dinner was served at 2:30 p. m., after which Mrs. Hazel Harbor of Dryden read an original poem composed in honor of the occasion and presented Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth with gifts from the group of celebrators. Among the remembrances was a lovely bouquet of roses from the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth, all of whom were present Sunday except two. House decorations were in pink and white.

Julius Wentworth, born in Shelby township, Macomb county, on Sept. 6, 1852, and Miss Estella Eoff, who first saw the light of day in Dryden township, Lapeer county, on Nov. 24, 1857, were united in marriage at Dryden on March 8, 1876. They have resided on their farm in Evergreen township, Sanilac county, for the last 42 years.

Dr. F. L. Morris of Cass City

was among the guests at the wedding anniversary and the occasion marked his 50th birth anniversary. The doctor has been remembered by the well wishes of 150 friends who sent cards of congratulations.

At the 60th wedding anniversary Sunday, there were present the following: Mrs. Fred Palmateer and family of Rochester; Dorothy, Harry, Mack and Norma Wentworth of Detroit; C. E. Wentworth and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. Harbor, Gail Wentworth and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eoff and Mrs. Jennie Drenling of Dryden; John Wentworth and family and Elmer Beals of North Branch; Wilma Wentworth of Saginaw; Ben Wentworth and family of Novesta; and Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Morris of Cass City. The celebration took place at the Julius Wentworth farm now occupied by William Patch and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wentworth are the parents of five children, and have 18 grandchildren and one great granddaughter. Their children are: Ben Wentworth of Deckerville, Clayton Wentworth of Dryden, John Wentworth of North Branch, Mrs. Lena Patch of Deckerville, and Mrs. Amy Palmateer of Rochester.

Luder, Caro; Theron Bush, Unionville; and Marie Metiva, Akron; with Alvin Schultz, Caro, as chairman.

The meeting will close with a short song service followed by refreshments served by the host Endeavorers.

STEADY ADVERTISERS.

A recent issue of H. F. Walker's Unionville Crescent stated that two business houses in that community had been continuous advertisers in the Crescent for 44 years; in fact, beginning with the first issue of the paper. George H. Shaw adds that his Pigeon Progress can boast of one old and continuous advertiser, Louis Staubus, his shoeman, has had an ad in every issue of the Progress for 36 years.

Former Novesta Resident Died in Pontiac Friday

Edward Beebehyser, a former resident of Novesta township, passed away on Friday evening in the Pontiac General Hospital at the age of 83 years.

Mr. Beebehyser was born in Dornstodt, Germany, Dec. 1, 1852, and came to the United States with his parents and two brothers and two sisters at the age of 4. They settled in New Jersey and later moved to Commerce, where Mr. Beebehyser grew to manhood. He was married in 1885 to Catherine M. Dickson, who survives him, and they made their home on a farm three miles south of Cass City for 35 years. Their golden wedding was July 4, 1935. Mr. Beebehyser retired from farming in 1918 and moved to Pontiac where he has since made his home.

Five children survive. They are Mrs. Elizabeth Lintz of Farmington, Mrs. Mae Hamlett and Mrs. Morea Tinney of Pontiac, Edward M. Beebehyser of Shawnee, Okla., and John Beebehyser of Flint. There are also six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mr. Beebehyser joined the Odd Fellows when they first organized in Oakland county and later transferred his membership to the Cass City lodge, where he was an active member until a few years ago.

The funeral service was held on Monday afternoon at the Hunton Funeral Home in Pontiac. Rev. Andrew S. Creswell of the Community United Presbyterian church officiated. The burial service was conducted by the I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 3 of Pontiac, the lodge he joined as a charter member. Burial was in the Commerce cemetery.

NEWS OF THE NEARBY SECTIONS

Happenings Here and There Garnered from the Chronicle's Exchanges.

North Branch—Three valuable cows belonging to William Utley were electrocuted when the water system in his barn, where the cows were drinking, received the full voltage from the main light wire, which broke and hit the transformer. The cows which were not drinking were uninjured. The voltage caused a discharge of sparks in the Utley house and disabled the electric range and radio.

Marlette—At a meeting held on March 2, the board of education of the Marlette unit school voted to take the necessary steps to bring the school under the provisions of the Agricultural School Act. The district will be eligible to receive an additional $2,600 in state aid under the terms of the act. No changes in the school program will be necessary since the school is already meeting the requirements.

Vassar—Jas. F. Thomson, state agricultural commissioner, will be the speaker at the "Farmers' Night" of the Vassar Board of Commerce here March 30. Elmer Haines, state fair executive and local farmer, secured the services of Mr. Thomson as the speaker for the evening.

Harbor Beach—Saturday was the final day for paying taxes in Harbor Beach and on Wednesday Deputy Clerk Bunting made the annual settlement with County Treasurer Richardson in the county seat. It is thought that Harbor Beach established a record for these modern times among the political subdivisions of the county, if not the Thumb district. The total assessment in the city for both city and school district purposes was $50,886.48. Of this sum $6,460.92 goes to the county and $15,502.47 is school money. This leaves a balance of $28,923.09 for city purposes. Here is where the above stated record comes in. The property owners of the city paid 95 per cent of their taxes on time.—Times.

Marlette—Ward Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Atkins of Marlette, has opened an office for the practice of law in Flint. He graduated from Marlette high school in 1928, and attended Albion college two years. After leaving Albion

WOMEN LEARN TO WEAVE CHAIR SEATS

Members of the Cass City Home Extension Group were instructed in cane seat and rush seat weaving at their meeting in the high school building Tuesday. Mrs. J. I. Niergarth assisted the leaders, Miss Lura DeWitt and Mrs. A. N. Bigelow.

Luncheon at noon was served at the home of Mrs. Willis Campbell, chairman of the refreshment committee. Mrs. E. A. Corpron, Mrs. E. W. Keating, Mrs. Mason Wilson and Mrs. Ben Kirtson were her co-workers.

A special meeting will be held Monday afternoon to aid those who wish to finish their samples.

Village Ticket Nominees Elected

The village ticket, as nominated at the caucus in Cass City, was elected Monday. All were chosen by votes of 44 or 45 except two trustees who had opposition by the slip method. The vote stood as follows:

President, George W. West, 45.
Clerk, C. M. Wallace, 45.
Treasurer, A. N. Bigelow, 45.
Assessor, H. L. Hunt, 44.
Trustee, J. A. Sandham, 44.
Trustee, Frederick H. Pinney, 28;
W. L. Mann, 16.
Trustee, Audley H. Kinnaird, 27;
Arthur C. Atwell, 18.

The Disgruntled Five Vindicated

This is the story of the vindication of a neglected group of young Cass City men whose names are signed below. It seems that late last fall, a group of the so-called "star bowlers" of our fair village organized two teams of five men each for the purpose of competitive bowling. The self-termed "best bowlers" of the city were Guy Landon, Cameron Wallace, Frank Reid, Walter Mann, Frederick Pinney, Earl Douglas, Dougald Krug, Philip Retherford, Clark Knapp, and Mr. Luther. According to their own admission they were "the bowlers" of the village, and no one else was worthy to offer competition to them.

Early this spring the members signed below, took upon themselves to become very provoked at such tactics, and banded together under the banner of the "Disgruntled Five." After forming our organization of so-called "incapable bowlers," we issued a challenge to either of the two "master teams." The team captained by Guy Landon, after several weeks of deep thought accepted in a joking mood, considering of course, the challenge to be more or less of a joke. The result was a complete victory for the "Disgruntled Five" by something more than a hundred pins.

This, of course, was considered by Mr. Landon and his "master bowlers" to be purely an accident, and they immediately demanded a return match. The "Disgruntled Five" consented and even agreed at Mr. Landon's insistence that the losing team should stand all the expense. But to Mr. Landon's chagrin, the result was the same, namely another victory for the "Disgruntled Five." Namely those five who were far too inferior as bowlers go, to be members of Mr. Landon's team.

8 Twp. Treasurers Return 20% Unpaid

Eight township treasurers of the 23 in Tuscola county have reported tax collections to County Treasurer Arthur Whittenburg. Out of a total tax of $109,462.86 assessed in the eight townships, $21,649.68 was returned unpaid, showing an average collection of slightly better than 80%.

The following are the figures:

Township	Unpaid	Total Tax
Tuscola	$1173.89	$13162.31
Elmwood	7143.91	27044.85
Wells	1414.46	4180.07
Millington	2208.20	14744.41
Juniata	2544.32	11208.25
Vassar	2039.17	16183.58
Kingston	1661.69	9428.49
Fremont	3464.04	13510.90

COMING AUCTIONS.

O. E. Reid, having decided to quit farming, will sell horses, cattle, machinery, etc., at auction, 1 mile north and 2½ miles west of Cass City, on Friday, March 20. Worthy Tait will cry the sale and the Cass City State Bank is clerk. Full particulars are printed on page 6.

In The Chronicle next week, Herbert Maharg, administrator of the Lewis Maharg Estate, will advertise a farm sale for Thursday, March 26, 6¼ miles north of Cass City.

CAMPBELL, NEW PRES. OF ROTARY

Co. Clerk Morrison Explained Naturalization Steps to Club Tuesday.

Willis Campbell was elected president of the Cass City Rotary club at a meeting of that society Tuesday. Dr. H. T. Donahue was chosen vice president; Stanley A. Striffler, secretary; Arthur C. Atwell, treasurer; and M. B. Auten and Dr. P. A. Schenck, directors. The newly elected officers take their positions July 1.

These officers were nominated by a committee of which W. L. Mann was chairman and the report of the nominating committee was accepted and the selection made the choice of the club.

County Clerk S. W. Morrison spoke on the subject of "Citizenship and Naturalization," giving the Rotarians interesting information regarding the steps which are necessary for an alien to take to acquire citizenship in this country. The old age assistance law has made it necessary for county clerks to devote much more time to the subject of naturalization than ever before. Quite frequently persons who have lived here and voted many years are surprised to learn that they are not really citizens and must take steps for naturalization through the county clerk's office.

The naturalization laws keep changing and many more requirements are necessary to comply with the law than in earlier years. Mr. Morrison explained in detail the several steps necessary for an alien to become a United States citizen and spoke of the benefits of citizenship, which included among others, protection by the government and the benefits secured by the right of franchise.

Any person who exercised the right to vote under false information prior to July 1, 1920, may file an affidavit setting forth the nature of the misinformation and when and where he exercised the right of citizenship, and if the government accepts the affidavit, then the applicant will be granted the right to petition at once for citizenship. He will thus avoid the filing of a declaration and the two-year wait which accompanies it.

"We as citizens should think of the service we can render to the government," said Mr. Morrison in concluding his address, "and not take the stand that the government owes everything to us."

Schuckert Spears "Biggest Fish"

Harold Schuckert speared a 36½ pound lake trout on the Caseville side of Sand Point Sunday morning. The fish measured 42 inches in length and is believed by local fishermen to be the biggest fish of this variety to be taken from Saginaw Bay in many years.

The fish was taken where the water was 18 feet deep. Schuckert used a spear nine feet in length. Kilburn Parsons assisted him in landing the trophy and both men received a big thrill in the encounter.

Slip Candidate Wins at Gagetown

Alphonso Rochlean, a slip candidate, was elected village trustee over Joe McDermid, the caucus nominee, in Gagetown Monday by a vote of 48 to 40.

Other candidates on the village ticket were elected without opposition. They are: President, George Munro. Clerk, M. P. Freeman. Treasurer, Edith E. Miller. Assessor, Arthur Rochlean. Trustees, Wesley C. Downing and Julius Goslin.

Tuscola Is Leader in B. F. Production

A continued high rate of culling and a further improvement in numbers of cows yielding 50 pounds of butterfat in a month are reported by cow testers operating in the Thumb section of Michigan. Reports for this district were received from the following associations:

Macomb, Ivan Wood, tester; St. Clair, Jamison Pulver, tester; Tuscola, Lee Rowe, tester.

The Tuscola county organization was the leader in butterfat production while the herd of Donald Gohs of this county was the leading herd in butterfat yield.

The high producing mature cow was owned by C. J. Hobart of Tuscola county.

SCHOOL PROGRAM.

The singing school which has been in progress at the Mizpah M. B. C. church for the past three months will close with a program of vocal music on Monday evening, March 16, commencing promptly at 8:00. Everyone is cordially invited.

BIBLE CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD HERE

Representatives of Eight Baptist Churches in Thumb Convene March 20.

The first in a series of monthly Bible conferences that are to be held in the Baptist churches of the Thumb of Michigan will be held in the First Baptist church at Cass City with morning, afternoon and evening sessions, on Friday, March 20. The churches that are planning to be represented in this conference include the Baptist congregations at Deckerville, Melvin, Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Brown City, North Branch, Caro and Cass City.

The conferences have been arranged for the deepening of the spiritual life of the churches. A splendid program has been planned for this first conference which has as its general theme, "Ruin by the Fall, Redemption by the Blood." The following is the program:

Morning.
10:00 a. m.—Address of welcome by the local pastor. Song and prayer service led by Rev. Charles W. Harvey of North Branch.
11:00 a. m.—Rev. Forrest W. Deane of Brown City will speak on the subject, "The Garden of Eden."
12:00 Noon.—Potluck dinner.

Afternoon.
1:30 p. m.—Ministers' conference led by Rev. Richard Nyburg of Deckerville.

2:00 p. m.—Song and devotional service, Rev. W. H. Bailey of Melvin.

2:30 p. m.—"Man Created in the Likeness and Image of God," Rev. R. L. Morton of Bad Axe.
3:30 p. m.—"The Creation of Woman and the Church," Rev. W. H. Ambrose of Caro.
5:30 p. m.—Potluck supper.

Evening.
7:30 p. m.—Song service led by R. L. Morton.
8:00 p. m.—"God's Perfect Plan for Man's Complete Redemption," Rev. R. Nyburg of Deckerville.

30 CASS CITY CLUB WOMEN ENTERTAINED BY KINGSTON CLUB TUESDAY

About thirty members of the Cass City Woman's Study Club were pleasantly entertained Tuesday evening at the Alex Marshall home in Kingston by the Woman's club of that city.

A study of Mark Twain formed the basis of the program which was presented after a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Amber Jones. A biography of the famous author was read, another paper contained anecdotes and a radio skit was cleverly portrayed by teachers of the Kingston school. The music of the evening consisted of two clarinet duets by two high school girls.

During the social hour which followed, dainty refreshments, typical in color of St. Patrick's day, were enjoyed.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John Allen Aikin, 20, Cass City; Dorothy M. Hill, 16, Cass City; Justus J. Austin, 24, Fairgrove; Maxine L. Gardner, 20, Fairgrove.

THIS AND THAT

WE'RE GLAD to have you notice the mistakes in the paper. It shows us you are reading it.

EVER NOTICE how much Senator Vandenberg resembles Earl Douglas. Both good looking fellows!

IN SAGINAW they slapped on a 15-mill tax limit and the city had to cut the police force in two. What if we had to do that to Nightwatchman Tom Keeney?

PERCY G. READ had lived on his farm in Novesta township for 35 years, the 11th of March, 1936. His wife says it is just too long to live in one place.

WE HAVE carefully looked over the pictures of the five women in all of Europe who rate as being eligible to marry the young king. Our conclusion is that without half trying we could find five better looking girls right here in the home town.

H. PEARL LEE is one of the earliest risers in town. Getting up at 4:30 is no hardship in the good old summer time, but not so pleasant during the cold spell in February, he avers. Pearl is the chef in a down-town restaurant.

IT WAS NEVER clear to us where the owl was entitled to a reputation for being wise. The only accomplishments we have ever heard of that were attributed to the owl were the fact that he stays out all night and sleeps all day. We know of two or three local young men addicted to the same practice but no one would think of calling them wise.

THE APPROACH of spring suggests gardens and home and lawn beautification. Few things add more to a home than a neat well kept lawn with judicious plantings of shrubbery. In one middle west town each year the clubs of the community back a city beautification program of some kind. This serves to center attention on the idea and results in a more general cooperation among the citizens of the community. Towns putting on such a program year after year develop a sense of civic pride that grows as time goes on.

Many Entertainers to Compete for Amateur Night Prizes

The Major Bowes program at the Cass City Community Club's meeting for March is creating much interest in the field of amateur entertainers in this community and already about 15 different numbers have been signed up. Dr. H. T. Donahue expects that the number will be increased to 20 by March 14 when all entries must be in.

Dr. Donahue, chairman of the doctor-dentist group in charge of the program, says that there promises to be a great variety of entertainment presented next Tuesday night and many surprises.

Prizes are offered to winners as follows: First, $10.00; second, $5.00; third, $3.00.

After the banquet has been served to the Community Club members, the doors of the high school auditorium will be opened to the public at 8:30 p. m., so that all may have an opportunity to witness the entertainment. An admission charge of ten cents will be taken, the proceeds to go towards paying for a bass horn for the high school band.

Lenten Services at Evangelical Church

The first in a series of special Lenten services will be held in the Evangelical church Sunday evening, March 15, with Rev. C. A. Wilkie of Bay City as guest speaker. This will be a union service.

During the first week, Rev. W. T. Bandeen of Bay City will be the speaker at the evening meetings beginning next Monday. The following week, Rev. H. Stressman of Elkton will be the speaker.

JUNIOR PLAY WILL BE GIVEN THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 26

The date for the presentation of the play, "The Queen's Husband," by members of the junior class of the Cass City high school has been set for Thursday evening, March 26. Parts have been assigned, committees chosen and rehearsals have been in progress for several weeks. All indications point to a successful and pleasing entertainment. Daniel Kroll of the English department is the efficient director of the production.

NEW INDUSTRIES—HOW TO GET THEM.

Every Chamber of Commerce at one time or another during the year meets to discuss what can be done to secure more industries for the town and make available to the business of the town the advantages of the added pay roll that industries bring. In most instances these organizations and their members are overlooking the real problem of the community and either blindly or deliberately failing to do the duty nearest at hand which is the support of industries the community already has. Why try to get other industries to come to a town that only partially supports those it already has? Why try to get an auto parts factory to come to a town when only half of the people of the community support the home baker or the local photographer? A motto that every industrial committee of every Chamber of Commerce in this country can well afford to have hanging in its office is, "Communities that support the industries they now have will have no difficulty getting new industries."

INVISIBLE TAXATION.

Little does the average citizen realize the extent to which he is forced to contribute to the cost of government through invisible taxation. In late years there has been a growing trend toward indirect or invisible taxes, and away from direct taxation. In 1936 figures show that only 38 per cent of federal income came from direct taxation, while 62 per cent came from taxes hidden in the sale price of gasoline, amusement tickets, cigars, telephone and telegraph tolls, food, clothing, and the hundreds and one other little ways that taxes are collected without the people being aware of it. Indirect taxes work a hardship on a large class of citizens because they are levied and collected without any regard for ability to pay, thus weighing unfairly on the low-income groups. Danger lurks in such a system. It is a bid for still greater extravagance in government spending. Because these taxes cannot be specifically pointed out it is difficult to arouse sufficient sentiment against them to act as a protection to the public purse.

Everyone talks lower taxes but year after year, even in normal times, taxes increase. The reason is that as soon as a state gets to a point where it shows a little balance in its bank account some misguided legislature creates a new bureau to give jobs to the faithful, and the state finances are in the red again. It is then up to the legislature to levy more taxes, and the same vicious circle starts again. Some day, when the tax burden reaches a point where it stifles industry and enterprise, some one is going to wake up to the fact that the tax burden is not just an accident—that somebody is responsible for it. The half mill here and the half mill there required by this and that scheme, like the grains of sand in the wagon, eventually make up a load that breaks down the whole structure. Doing nothing about it is not going to help it. The iniquitous practice grows like a cancer in the body.

VALUE OF KINDNESS.

I think life would be easier if more of us liked people. All kinds of people, under all kinds of conditions and handicaps. I think our heaviest burdens would be lighter, and our important problems less worrisome, if we didn't have to carry so many little loads of thoughtlessness, and have our minds and hearts troubled by so many trifling rubs. It's really quite easy to write a kind letter. It's easier still to say a kind word. Few of the things we have the opportunity of doing for other people really involve any very painful self-sacrifice. And the things of this sort we don't do sterilize our own souls, and harden our own paths. More than anything else in our journey through life, they rate us as first class, second class, or steerage.—Channing Pollock.

It is recommended that car drivers when they approach a railroad crossing remember that while last year 1240 cars were wrecked on railroad crossings but one locomotive is reported as having gotten the worst of it.

Two Minute Sermon

I Hate a Malicious Gossip.

By Thomas Hastwell.

A number of years ago I saw a picture. It so impressed me that I have never forgotten it. It still lingers in my memory with startling vividness. It was the picture of a horse galloping across the prairie. He was a magnificent animal. His hair shown with the reflected brilliancy of the sun, his flying hoofs spurred the sod beneath his feet and sent him far ahead of the herd. His beautiful mane was tossed tumultuously by the wind, the crimson blood of vibrant life shown in his distended nostrils and the triumphant light of the superb master of his kind gleamed in his eye. But fastened in the hair of his magnificent tail was a tiny viper with its fangs sunk deep into the quivering flesh. It was obvious as one looked at the picture that the poison of the viper would soon bring down the great stallion. It would creep subtly through his veins and take from him all his power and pride and vibrant life. Gossip is like that. Gossip is a viper that attacks a noble character and robs it in the eyes of its fellows of everything that makes it fine, and strong, and wholesome, and beautiful and lovely. I hated, when I saw the picture, the deadly viper, and I hate no less the vicious, malicious, venomous gossip that strikes down a noble character in the dark.

What We Think

By Frank Dixon.

The hardest part of any political campaign to me is not the long winded speeches. It is the campaign songs.

As a rule the songs are sung badly enough but this isn't the worst of it. The worst of it is the composition of the songs.

I have never seen a campaign song with the author's name signed to it. Of all those I have seen this would either take a lot of courage or a complete and total disregard of consequences.

A lot of schemes to clean up politics have been suggested. The best plan under our form of government is by the ballot. Any undesirable candidate can be stopped at the ballot box.

The responsibility of those interested in good government consists in informing the voters of the issues and the candidates, and in creating an attitude of mind among the voters that demands the right kind of men in office.

The peril of a democratic form of government such as ours lies in the inability of the average voter to discern between a qualified high type of man and the blatant demagogue.

To my way of thinking the best method of crop control will come through the government owning the surplus land and leasing it when extra production is needed. One of the causes of the condition in which the farm industry finds itself today is due to the fact that too much land was broken out. Before a staple price is assured production will have to be limited to consumption.

It isn't limited in this way it will be limited by the force of economic pressure: that is, when more wheat or other foodstuff is raised than there is a market for, and a surplus above demands is created, the price will go down. When prices get too low a certain number of the farmers will be starved out and production lessened in this way.

This plan is not desirable but if man fails to apply crop limitation this is the agency which will limit production and restore a balance.

I have said it before but I want to repeat it: No form of a farm relief that permits unlimited production is sound because under this plan a profitable price cannot be maintained, and unless a profitable price is maintained disaster is inevitable eventually.

We note by our daily that Italy's Ethiopia campaign has cost to date $442,000,000. This, by the way, is one thing concerning which the cost does not worry us. We don't like spaghetti and no matter how high the Italians tax it we are secure in the confidence that we won't have to pay any of the tax.

The Pallbearer.

A pallbearer is so called from the fact that originally he was required to hold up the corners and edges of the pall covering the coffin. The word "pall" is derived from the Latin "pallium," meaning a coverlet. It occurs in the English language as early as about 1440.

"Wm. Heller of Cass City," says the North Branch Gazette, "was here Wednesday and held a conference with several members of the council and a few of our business people in reference to street and private lighting. Mr. Heller would like to put in an electric lighting plant providing sufficient patronage is guaranteed him for a number of years."

Patrick Landrigan passed away on March 7 at the age of 50 years. Luke Wright and John Wooley have made it very interesting for the foxes this winter, having thus far bagged four of them.

Kate Miller, who has been teaching school at Matchwood, returned home Thursday.

W. D. Schooley has sold his store building on Main St., to E. H. Pinney and expects to move his family to Saginaw soon.

An oratorical contest is to be given Friday night at Caro by members of the different schools in Tuscola county. Stanley Schenck will represent Cass City.

Yakes & Co. have purchased the livery outfit of Jack McLellan, and until a permanent place can be secured, they will use the Baptist parsonage barn for livery purposes.

On the proposition to remove the power plant to a site near the railroad track, 67 cast ballots favoring the change and 37 voted against it on Monday. The following village officers were elected: President, J. C. Corkins; clerk, G. A. Tindale; treasurer, H. L. Hunt; trustees, Joseph Frutchey, I. B. Auten and Edward Pinney; assessor, G. E. Perkins.

Wm. H. Ruhl left Tuesday for Limon, Colo., where he expects to remain a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Topping and family left Thursday for Carlstadt, Alta., where they expect to make their future home, having home-steaded a piece of property in that section of the country.

W. R. Kaiser has bought the street sprinkling outfit of S. Y. Kenyon and the financial remuneration promised by citizens for this work makes the proposition look like a good thing for the new owner.

I. K. Reid won $8.00 as a first prize on butter exhibited at the State Dairymen's Association convention at Bay City.

A. A. Jones, who has been in Wisconsin the past few months in the interests of the Security Gate Co., returned home Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Frutchey are now located at Hot Springs, Ark.

Deaths of the week—John S. Campbell, George Houghton, Eli Hunt and Maynard Greer.

RURAL SCHOOLS

Winton School.

Reporter, Wanda Karr.

Teacher, Miss Beatrice Martin.

We were very sorry that J. C. Vyse had the misfortune to be kicked in the face by a horse. He was unable to attend school for a few days, but is able to be back again. While he was out of school pupils wrote letters to try to cheer him up a bit.

The first graders have finished writing business letters for language. Now we are reviewing nouns, pronouns, and verbs.

Lavina Evens and Wanda Karr were the only two pupils who were neither tardy nor absent during the cold month of February.

Our second graders are learning to tell time.

Elizabeth Butler has started a new reading book.

Our fourth grader has learned "The Village Blacksmith" for reading.

Two of our beginners have started a new book in reading. They are Edith Butler and Robert McDonald.

Over half of the school pupils have colds. Robert McDonald has been absent all week on account of a bad cold.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hively have a new daughter. She was born last Wednesday, weighing 9½ pounds.

Miss Martin visited the Clara home over night one night last week.

We had an arithmetic baseball match on Thursday with Lorine and Joan Muntz as captains. Joan's side won. Score 29 to 39.

Our per cent of attendance last month was much lower on account of the severe cold weather.

The seventh and eighth grade have interesting news reports every Friday.

Sand Valley School.

Lucile Anthes, teacher.

Reporters, Agnes Windy and Evelyn Nowland.

The little folks are learning the poem of, "Which Loved Best" written by Joy Allison.

The first, second and third graders have finished their Eskimo booklets.

The fourth graders have finished their geography books. They also made Hawaiian booklets.

The sixth graders are finding all the material possible about coffee, rubber and other products of South America. They also made a map of South America.

The seventh graders have finished their geography work books.

The eighth graders have finished their civics books and spelling books.

Dorothy Klinkman colored our March calendar.

For Thursday, Miss Anthes surprised us with cake and pudding. We are going to end our hot lunches Friday, March 6. We are going to have ice cream for Friday.

We had an arithmetic match. Lila Nowland and Kenneth Robinson were captains, Kenneth Robinson's side won.

We enjoyed sliding on the ice in Windy's field at noon and recesses.

Miss Anthes took our pictures on Friday morning.

Paul School.

Eva Marble, Teacher.

We enjoyed ourselves playing on the ice.

We have pictures of spring and "A" papers on our bulletin board. They look very nice.

The primer grade has finished their primer reader.

The third and fourth grades are having language out of a new book which Mr. Dalton gave to them.

The fourth grade had a test over the New England states. They are doing nicely in their long division.

The sixth grade had a test over the North Central states Friday. The seventh graders are on Africa in their geography work books.

The eighth grade finished their civics books last week and had tests over the national government.

We had a potluck Friday to finish our hot lunches. We had kidney beans, escalloped potatoes, cake, cocoa and pickles. Mrs. Marble treated us with fig bars.

Virginia Koch colored our poster for the month of March.

There will be no school Friday because of teachers' institute at Caro.

Joseph Grachocki brought in a report of the first robin, Mar. 4. Poor robin, he's had cold toes since then!

Our loss of Barbara as one of our number was not for long as she returned on Tuesday promising to remain a little longer before moving.

The boys' club held a business meeting one day last week. In these business meetings, they learn something about parliamentary practice.

The boys have been finishing their articles, using stain and wax or varnish or else paint if that is more suitable. These give things a finished appearance.

The girls are progressing nicely with their dresses. We expect to have 100 per cent of both clubs in the class of "finishers."

Six and one-half months of school gone and only two and one-half to go. How quickly the time flies by!

The sixth grade history class have completed their text book having covered it twice this year.

We finished reading the "Isle of the Lake" this week and are ready for another book now.

What! A Coal Bill?

Said Bill.

Bill and Sue were going over the family budget. They were anxious to live within their means, as all families should do. Bill became impatient.

Sue needed only to remind Bill of a few facts and he calmed down.

SUE SAID—

"This house has been warm all over every day this month. No cold bedrooms.

"Baby has been kept warm and has not had the cold which is so prevalent.

"The coal has kept hot water in the tank all winter.

"The coal heated the water for the laundry each week.

"If you think our heat bill is high ask Jim and Ruth what theirs was for the same number of rooms. They use another kind of fuel."

Michigan Farmers Pay Installments to Land Bank

Michigan farmers are entering the year 1936 with a running start in the matter of meeting their federal land bank obligations, it is shown in a statement released this week from the bank.

The Federal Land Bank of St. Paul believes that improving conditions for farmers and greatly increased buying power are reflected in increased payments.

Payments during January were approximately $183,000, a substantial gain over January, 1935, and $82,000 more than the maturities for the month. This is in line with Michigan's record during the last three months of last year. Payments on installments, over and above maturities, totaled nearly $400,000 for October, November and December.

Pop Corn Cheese Easy to Prepare

Michigan State College extension workers in dairy and home economics are cooperating in a project to enlarge the variety of foods for farm families.

Jewell M. Jensen, extension dairyman, and Helen Strow, extension nutrition specialist, are hold-been scheduled in Emmet, Charlevoix, Muskegon, Ingham, Livingston, Saginaw, Washtenaw, and Lenawee counties.

Steps in the manufacture of the pop corn type of cottage cheese follow:

Step 1—For cottage cheese making, prepare a starter at least 24 hours before the skim milk is to be set. To make starter, set a mason jar full of sweet fresh milk, cooled to 72 degrees temperature, and hold at this temperature until sour. Skim off the cream. The remaining sour or curdled skim milk is starter.

Step 2—Temper skim milk in a double boiler to 72-74 degrees Fahrenheit. Stir in one pint of good clean starter for each 2 gallons of skim milk. As high as a quart for each two gallons may be used safely and will bring quick results.

Step 3—Cut the curd into one-half inch cubes, using the back side of a long heavy knife or the prongs of a heavy fork.

Step 4—Heat the water slowly in the pan. It should take about 25-30 minutes to raise temperature from 72 to 115-120 degrees.

Step 5—Stir curd carefully during the first part of cooking period. Do no more at this time than pull the curd away from the side of the pan so that all of it cooks evenly.

Step 6—As the curd firms, more rapid agitation can be used, although the curd should not be beaten into fine bits. The temperature of the whey in the making of this litters at weaning time, fewer runts, and a more profitable product, he points out.

"Roundworms are about the most common and troublesome parasite affecting pigs raised in Michigan," he says. "Pigs become infested by swallowing the eggs of the parasite picked up on infested ground. The eggs are dropped in the manure from infested pigs and develop in a few weeks. Now is the time to plan control to produce thrifty profitable pigs."

"The eggs of the parasite are microscopic in size and may live for years in the soil or in and about the hog houses. The young pigs need protection until they are three or four months old, after which time they become resistant and the worms do not cause them much trouble."

Dairy Farmers Find Profits in Swapping Bulls

Too many mature bulls in dairy herds in Michigan have been shipped to beef markets before their real value as sires has been known, says A. C. Balzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College. Swapping of bulls among farmers is increasing and is being recommended by the animal husbandry department at the college.

"Farmers who sell dairy bulls because of fear that the animals are dangerous as they become mature are correct in protecting lives, but fail to realize that as little as a $20 investment in a bull pen will pay for itself immediately," says Mr. Balzer.

He cites the prices prevailing in Michigan for the average young and mature bulls. Many dairymen are paying $125 to $150 for a young bull six months to a year of age. At three years many of these bulls are sold as beef and are priced at around $100, although as breeders they may be worth as much or more than the younger animals which have displaced them in herds.

Dairy herd improvement associations in the state now number 51, with 14,000 cows in 1008 herds under test. The cow testers report that 38 bulls were "swapped" or traded in January by farmers who are exchanging breeding lines in the belief that more bulls eventually will be proved according to their daughters' yields.

Dairy herds are being culled at a high rate, says Mr. Balzer, in commenting on the reports received from the 51 cow testers. Herds are gaining an increasing percentage of cows which are producing at least 50 pounds of butterfat in a month. In addition dairymen reduced their feed costs per hundredweight of milk in January, according to a comparison with December figures, and with those of a year ago.

Brave Man.

The woman lion tamer finished her act with the daring stunt of placing a cube of sugar between her teeth and then letting the most fierce lion in her menagerie take the cube. "I can do that trick," a farmer in the audience said. No one paid any attention to him. "I can do that trick," he said again in a loud voice, loud enough for the lion tamer to hear him. "All right," she said, "come on in the cage and do it." "Get that lion out of there," he said.

Tall Tales

As told to: ELMO FRANK E. and SCOTT HAGAN WATSON

Beating the Drouth

IT WAS the drouth year of 1934. Day after day the sun blazed down from a cloudless sky. Scorching winds blew across the western plains. Wells went dry and rivers became mere trickles.

Down in Oklahoma, Al Gotlieb, owner of the J-R ranch, looked at his herd of 499 prime steers. They were growing thinner every day because they would not eat the brown, dry grass. Unless he could fatten them he was ruined.

One day a peddler stopped at the ranch house. "Better buy a pair of these green goggles to protect your eyes from the glare of the sun," he said. The ranchman took one look through them, then exclaimed, "How soon can you get me 498 more pairs?"

A week later the 498 pairs arrived. The ranchman fitted them on his steers. They saw broad fields of rich, green grass and began to graze eagerly. But when it came time to drink from the river they refused. Animal instinct told them that green water is often poisonous. There was only one thing to do and the ranchman did it.

A telegram brought 499 more pairs of goggles—only this time the lenses in them were blue. Of course, it was a lot of trouble to change the goggles—first green, then blue, then green, then blue, etc.—on 499 steers every day. But that fall the J-R steers topped the Kansas City market because they were in such prime condition.

NEW HAT FASHION

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

To say that the new "Rose of the Rancho" hat is making an instantaneous hit is but expressing it mildly. See in the illustration here-with Gladys Swarthout, lovely singer and one of filmland's bright and shining stars, wearing this hat just as she wears it in her picture, and now many stores and shops are showing it in their advance millinery displays. It is the type young girls will delight in wearing with their sports outfits. The chin-strap detail of cord cleverly drawn through a big button is irresistible. Of course to complete the ensemble one must have a high-color dude-ranch handkerchief-square scarf knotted nonchalantly about the throat.

Printed Scarfs

Gay printed scarfs in bright colors have a bib front and long ends that encircle the neck to tie again at the front.

Known in Egypt

The electric catfish was well-known to the ancient Egyptians, who depicted it on their mural paintings.

We have finished reading "Treasure Island" for morning exercises. Seventh grade gave reports on Africa Monday.

Eighth grade grammar class wrote charter sketches of famous characters in fiction.

We have no school March 13 on account of teachers' institute at Caro.

Last week, we started having court. For different misdemeanors and so-called crimes such as fights, swearing, tripping, writing notes, or pestering the person or persons accused are tried by a jury consisting of six persons drawn by lot. They may have a lawyer to plead their case or witnesses to prove guilt or innocence. It was very interesting. One case in which the jury could not reach a verdict had to be re-tried. This Thursday is court day again. Judges have been Phyllis Hendrick, Clayton Turner, Pete Alliksink and Mac O'Dell. Punishments for different crimes were decided before trials were held.

THE DISGRUNTLED

FIVE VINDICATED

Concluded from first page. don's esteemed team. So much for Mr. Landon's team. Having decisively defeated them twice in succession, the "Disgruntled Five" wishes it to be known that they no longer consider them as worthy competition.

Now we proceed to the other "master team" captained by the esteemed "Walter Mann." This team we wish to state is considered by the "Disgruntled Five" as much more worthy competition than Mr. Landon's team. They accepted our challenge and in the first match successfully defended their vaulted position by defeating us by a meager sum of thirty-two pins.

The "Disgruntled Five" exercising the same prerogative as that taken by Mr. Landon demanded a return match. Again in a joking mood Mr. Mann and his cohorts accepted. The result? An overwhelming victory of the "inferiors," so termed by the "masters." This time the margin was ninety-two pins.

Now, let us make ourselves clear. We do not consider Mr. Mann's team in the low, degraded esteem we hold Mr. Landon and his teammates. Mr. Landon, as stated before, we do not consider as competition any longer. But we still think there might be slight cause for doubt in the case of Mr. Mann's master minds.

Therefore be it resolved, that the Disgruntled Five, do hereby publicly challenge, the Messrs. Mann, Reid, Wallace, Douglas, and Pinney to a bowling match at their convenience. The winner shall be known as the Bowling Champions of Cass City, and the loser as the Runner-up. Mr. Landon's team, let it be repeated, is not even considered in the sight of past performances as even worthy of consideration.

Signed,

"THE DISGRUNTLED FIVE"

Dr. Starmann,
Mr. Kelly,
Mr. Kilbourne,
Mr. Parsch,
Mr. Croft.

TIRED-OUT, WEAK?

MRS. John Gwost of 288 Lafayette Ave., Battle Creek, Mich., said: "I was so sick and weak that I couldn't do my housework. For months I didn't know what a good night's rest was. Headaches just about drove me mad and my stomach was upset. A Discovery gave me relief from the headaches and I gained in strength; also I rested better at night." Tabs. 50c. Liquid $1.00 & $1.35.

Lesson for March 15

JESUS TEACHES HIS DISCIPLES TO PRAY.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—If we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us.—I John 5:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When We Pray. JUNIOR TOPIC—Teach Us to Pray. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Jesus Says About Prayer.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Why Should We Pray?

Prayer is a matter which ought to be of great concern to every believer, for, "The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth. He will fulfill the desire of them that fear him; he also will hear their cry, and will save them" (Ps. 145: 18, 19). There was something about the praying of Jesus that so impressed the disciples that they requested him to teach them to pray (Luke 11:1). May everyone of us enroll at once in the school of prayer with Christ as our Teacher. In response to the disciples' request, Jesus set forth the following principles of prayer.

I. The Right Relationship of the One Praying (v. 2).

1. Filial—"Father." The suppliant in prayer must be a child of God. God's gifts and blessings are for his children. This relationship can only be entered into through regeneration. Not all men have a right to say, "Our Father," when addressing God. Only those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can so address him.

2. Fraternal—"Our Father." God has many children. His children are bound up together in nature and interests. Even in our secret prayer we should address him as "Our Father," which is a recognition of the interest of others alongside of ours.

II. The Right Attitude in Prayer (v. 2).

1. Reverent adoration—"Hallowed be thy name." As children we have certain rights and privileges, yet holy reverence becomes us.

2. Loyalty—"Thy kingdom come." When praying to God we should come with a spirit of loyalty which cries out, "Thy kingdom come." We should not only receive him as the Lord of our lives, but should loyally labor with him in inducing others to submit to his rule.

3. Submission—"Thy will be done." We should have no will of our own regarding the rule of God. We should let him direct us in all things.

III. The Right Spirit in Prayer (vv. 3-8).

1. Dependent faith—"Give us this day our daily bread" (v. 8). We should realize that not only bread, but life itself is ours to enjoy because of him and he is able to do for us "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

2. Penitence and love—"Forgive us our debts" (v. 4). We should come to him realizing that we have sinned, and cry out to him for forgiveness. Our heart should be so filled with love for others that we will forgive those who sin against us, as God has so willingly forgiven us.

3. Holiness and caution—"Lead us not into temptation" (v. 4). Because we are God's children, and realizing the depravity of our natures and the consequent tendency to practice that which displeases him, we should shrink from that which, if indulged in, would dishonor him, and earnestly cry unto him to lead us not into the place where we would likely fall.

4. Intercessory (vv. 5, 6). The man who asked for bread did not ask for himself, but for a friend. Prayer which pleases God is unselfish in its requests.

5. Perseverance (vv. 7, 8). Though the friend refused at first and offered excuses, because of the one making the request would not take "No" for an answer, he arose from his bed and gave him as many as he needed. Prayer pleases God and gets results.

IV. Encouragement to Pray (vv. 9-12).

1. God's promise (vv. 9, 10). True prayer cannot fail of answer, because God definitely promises that, "Everyone that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened."

2. Example of an earthly father (vv. 11-13). No father will give a stone to his son who asked for bread, nor a serpent instead of a fish, nor a scorpion instead of an egg. God is infinitely more willing to answer the prayers of his children than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children.

V. The True Goal of All Prayer (v. 13).

God's best gift is himself in the person of his Holy Spirit. All those who practice the principles which Jesus taught in this model prayer shall experience the blessing of the Holy Spirit.

Synthetic Gentleman

By
Channing Pollock

Copyright, Channing Pollock
WNU Service.

The slim young man arrived in due time, and duly presented his charge at the homicide bureau. First, there was Tim Laugherty, as Irish as Barry, and with almost as ready a grin. They took to each other immediately. "Barry Gilbert," Tim repeated. "Well, the name's all right, anyway."

Tim regarded the Kelly murder as a closed case. So did MacDevitt, and every one else Barry met at headquarters. "The Rogers kid done it, that's sure," Tim declared. "This Filipino says he didn't let nobody else in that night."

"Maybe somebody else let himself in," Tim smiled scornfully. "How? There was a new lock on that door. Show him the keys, Mac."

Mac obliged. "Here you are," he said. "It was chained to Kelly's pants button."

"Show him the decanter. Maybe he can get something out of that," Tim said. "Why not?" Mac laughed. "There's about half a pint in it."

It was a gruesome exhibit—that bottle which had killed a man. Real cut glass, and nearly a quarter full of reddish liquor. "Wonder why that didn't spill out," Barry ventured.

"Maybe the cork stopped it," Tom replied. "They didn't find any finger prints?"

"No. The guy must have worn gloves." "Listen," Barry ventured again. "Why weren't the Filipino's finger prints on the bottle—if he served it?"

"Guess he wore gloves, too. My butler always does!" "Well, if he wore 'em—"

"I get you," Tim interrupted. "If the guy that done this wore gloves,"

It Was a Gruesome Exhibit—That Bottle Which Had Killed a Man.

and the Filipino wore gloves, why then maybe the Filipino's the guy that done this."

"Exactly." "Say, you got a bean on you," the detective conceded, almost admiringly. "Of course, I still think we got the right party, but he's a cagey guy, that Oriental, and he didn't say nothing about gloves to me. Why don't we go round and see if he wears 'em?"

He didn't. At least, not when he opened the front door.

"Say, Charlie," Tim began; "let us in. We want to ask you sumpin'. Do you wear gloves when you're serving stuff?"

"Sometimes." "Did you wear 'em that night?" "Maybe. I don't remember."

He was a thin, sallow youth, with the usual glossy black hair brushed back from his forehead. Nothing remarkable about him—not even his shiftness. The three men stood in the broad hall of the Kelly house, and Charlie repeated the tale of admitting Rogers, and hearing a quarrel, and returning to his room until the visitor left.

"You were in your room when the row started, then?" Barry asked. "Yes, sir."

"And you could hear the voices pretty plainly?" "Yes, sir."

"You came upstairs, and then went back to your room, and stayed there until just as Rogers was leaving?"

"Yes, sir." "Kelly must have been dead then, if Rogers killed him?" "Yes, sir."

"But you didn't hear the sound of a blow in your room, nor the thud of a body falling?"

No answer.

"If you could hear voices downstairs, don't you think you'd've heard that, if it had happened?" The Filipino looked down from one inquisitor to the other.

"Maybe I didn't stay in my room," he said at last, very slowly. "I don't remember."

Tim was about to press the point when there was the rasp of a latch-key being thrust into the lock of the front door.

Then the knob turned, and Mrs. Kelly entered. She stopped short at sight of the intruders.

The door remained opened. "Well, Mr. Laugherty!" she exclaimed. "So you've come back again? With a friend, too! Why don't you step in the parlor?"

Tim thanked her, and presented Barry. "Glad to meet you," Mrs. Kelly declared. "Run along, you"—to the Filipino. "Come on in, boys!"

"You're forgetting your key," Barry said. He took it out of the lock. "It's a brand new key, isn't it?" he asked, casually.

"Sure," Mrs. Kelly answered. "It's a new lock. Mike had it put on only a few days ago."

"How many keys were there?" "Two. That one, and Mike's."

Barry was scribbling on the back of an envelope. Mrs. Kelly was a large woman, in her fifties. Her hair was dyed red—a brilliant, aggressive red unknown to Nature. But she was affable, and extremely good-humored. Evidently, not grieving herself to death about Mike.

"Just dropped around to see Charlie," Tim said. "Anything you want to know, Mr. Gilbert?"

"Just one thing. Where were you the night of the murder?" Mrs. Kelly laughed. "You don't read the papers much, do you?"

"Why?" "Because all about that was in The Herald Tribune the morning after the body was found."

"All about what?" "All about my being up in Harlem at a dance."

"And what time did you get home?" "Around daylight."

"Did you let yourself in?" "Sure."

"And you didn't wonder where Mike was?" "I thought he was asleep. We didn't room together. The lights were all out."

"No light in the front room?" "No."

"Sure?" "Dead sure. Anything else?" "No, thanks. I didn't mean to keep you so long. But one thing led to another."

"That's all right," Mrs. Kelly assured him. "I got nothing to hide. Drop around any time you feel like it."

"No holes in that alibi," Tim said as they reached the sidewalk. "Straight shooter, she is. Ran a saloon when Mike married her. You certainly got wound up. What was all that about the latch key?"

"Bright and shiny, wasn't it?" "Brand new. She told you that. So did I, when we were looking at Kelly's key-wallet."

"Yes," Barry admitted. "But there wasn't any new key in that wallet."

Tim Laugherty stopped short in Fifth avenue. "You're right," he said. "I've got the number," Barry went on, producing his envelope. "A 66152. Write that down. A plain, round head. Two of 'em. Where's the other? It never was in that wallet, because every hook's filled."

"Maybe he carried it loose in his pocket." "Wherever he carried the key, where is it?"

"I don't know," Tim answered. "It wasn't on the body—that's sure."

By now, it was time for his dinner appointment with Peggy. Still in high spirits, he walked around to her boarding house. Barry remembered Southampton with shame when he saw the Ridders' two shabby rooms. The boy lay in one of them; a bright youngster, five years old. "The doctor doesn't seem to know what the matter is," Peggy declared.

"I know," Barry said. "I'd be sick in this dump. Why don't you bring him out to the country?" Peggy shook her head.

"I want to be near Jack," she repeated. "Winslow says he's likely to be free in a week."

Dining comfortably in a nearby cafe, he told her everything that had happened since their parting; all the astonishing events of that day. And, with the recital, Peggy's spirits rose, too. When Barry mentioned his new job, she actually laughed.

"That's funny," she said. "You're doing what the old man's real son wouldn't do."

"I've two reasons," Barry explained. "In the first place it puts me in a splendid position to help Jack. In the second—well, the fact is that I'm nuts about a girl, and I want to make good on her account."

"What's her name?" Patricia Hambridge. She lives at Southampton, and she and her father both knew the Ridders. They think I'm young Ridder, of course."

The next morning, Barry dropped in again on Pete Winslow. The lawyer had talked with Peggy's husband, and was persuaded of his innocence. They've got a prima facie case, though," he admitted. "The grand jury'll indict the boy, I'm afraid. We'll get him tried as quickly as possible, and there isn't the slightest chance of his conviction."

Peter leaned forward, his fingers intertwined between his knees. "That was a shrewd question you asked that Filipino. Only I wish you'd asked it of me. He's prepared now. Never mind. When it comes to cross-examination—"

He rose, with the joy of battle in his eyes. "But be careful about tipping our hand," he said. "Bring in Mrs. Rogers. I'd like to check up on her statement."

"Tomorrow?" "Make it next week."

"He's a great lawyer," Ernie Harwood said, when Barry repeated as much of this conversation as it seemed wise to repeat. "And a wizard at cross-examination. I've seen him discredit one witness after another with mere monosyllables. Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day. It's nothing now. Just a phone call. But, if I ever find who it was—"

Barry devoted that evening to drafting a letter for the real Jack Ridder to copy and send to his mother. Something told him that whatever the boy wrote himself would be cold and resentful. That would make the old lady unhappy, and Barry didn't want her to be.

"I've got a job on father's paper," he wrote, with genuine pride. "I've respected father's wish as to using his name—except at Southampton, of course. They had to know there. At The Globe, I'm on my own, and getting ahead. I'll be a credit to you yet, darling."

From that, he went into some detail as to his interest in the friend "locked up for murder he didn't commit," and the need of funds for his defense. Even to Jack Ridder, it was obvious that the letter had to be sent, so sent it was—in Jack Ridder's hand-writing—from the railway station post box at Southampton the following Friday. Barry arrived on an early afternoon train.

He had wired Evans to meet him, and found Willets waiting in the front hall. There was no doubt now that the butler suspected something, and Barry, sure of what he suspected, faced him with a broad grin. "What's the matter with you, Willets?"

"Matter, sir?" "You've been acting queer ever since the night Mrs. Rogers spent here. I don't know what you heard that night?"

"Do you mean eavesdropping, sir?" There was a pained surprise in the man's voice.

"Not me, sir. I've got my position to remember. I've been a butler with some of the best families."

"All right," Barry soothed him. "You think I'm back at the kind of behavior that alienated me from my father. Well, I'm not. That 'glittery lady' is the wife of a man I met in Florida."

And, for the third time that week, Barry related his story. "She's a brave little kid," he concluded, "and she's in trouble up to her neck. I'm going to stand by her. I've got a job on my father's newspaper—under an assumed name, because I want to win out on my own. I've cabled my mother for money, and everything I can get goes to that lady until her husband can win on his own. I'm going to be in town most of the time now, working my head off."

"Yes, sir." "I've been a loafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."

"Thank you, sir," Willets said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."

There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat. Looking at them, on the library table, Barry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted me for a chorus girl," she said.

Could Pat be jealous? "How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and dinner'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in sleuthing."

As he dressed, Barry kept thinking of this conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambridge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittery lady." Willets and Pat both oozing disapproval. Or do I merely imagine it?

But Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.

She met him at the door, looking lovelier than ever. "The one girl in the world for me," Barry thought.

"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Father'll be down in a minute. Marian came over by ferry from New London. She's dressing. Fancy your being concerned with this Kelly murder. A true motion-picture hero. Go on; I want all the details."

And, as Barry related them, the girl's irritation began to show in her face. It wasn't fair, she said, to "drag poor old Peter into it." Just because they'd met in this house at dinner. Nor could she see why he wanted to go into his father's office under the name of Barry Gilbert. "Frankly, I'm disappointed in you," she concluded, and obviously meant it.

Before Barry could reply, the Judge appeared, looking tired and haggard. That changed the subject, and Patricia's voice, which had been a little strident, softened again. She was plainly disturbed about the old gentleman, and kept glancing at him anxiously. "Father's been ill all week," she said.

"You ought've called off this dinner."

"I wanted you to meet Marian. But I do hope she comes down soon. Father's got to get to bed early."

The Judge patted her hand. "Nonsense!" "The doctor warned you against late hours," Pat reminded him. "But you would go to that banquet last Friday."

"That wasn't late hours," the Judge argued. "We were all through before midnight."

"But then you went for a walk," Barry said. He said it quite innocently, but he was startled at seeing Hambridge's hand close spasmodically over Patricia's.

"Who told you that?" the Judge asked. "Mr. Winslow." Hambridge relaxed again. "So I did," he recollected. "But only a couple of blocks."

"Near a couple of miles, wasn't it?" Barry was still making conversation, but there was nothing casual in the Judge's "Why do you say that?"

"Mr. Winslow says you saw that taxi accident at Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue."

The Judge raised his eyes to Barry's, almost defiantly. "The taxi accident I saw was in Times square," he declared. "I don't know where you got the idea that it was at Sixteenth street. I certainly didn't say that to Peter."

"What does it matter?" Pat asked. "Here we are, gossiping, when I'm supposed to be preparing you for a reunion."

"A reunion. With an old friend. That's the reason Marion was so anxious that I should have you here. I didn't know myself until half an hour ago. Marian Lorn. Do you remember? She knew you at Harvard."

Well, it was bound to come, Barry thought. "Are you surprised? Marian wanted you to be—terribly."

"I am—terribly." This was the pay-off. What would Patricia say?

Patricia was saying, "Well, you must be delighted, too. Marian was going to surprise all of us, and

"Well, It Was Bound to Come," Barry Thought.

then she lost her nerve. "Wouldn't it be too catastrophic," she said, "if he didn't remember me?"

Miss Lorn was on her way down the stairs. Barry braced himself. "Come on, you!" Pat called. "Dinner's waiting, and so's Mr. Ridder."

Marian raced down the steps, and halted, looking at him across the balustrade. "Mr. Ridder?"

Now for it! "Well," she continued, "the joke's on me. I should never have known you."

"I've known you anywhere." "Of course, you had to say that. But didn't your hair used to be dark?"

"Sure; I hennaed it." "No foolin'! I thought you were slighter, too. But, of course, there was only that one evening."

Thank God for that! "Don't tell me we met only once?" "Don't you remember?"

"It doesn't seem possible that I let you slip through my fingers." "Come on," Patricia urged. "Everything's getting cold."

Not Barry. He was warming up, and actually enjoying himself. It was amazing how his luck held!

A pretty girl, Marian; all fluff and gurgles. She and Barry had the table conversation pretty much to themselves. Patricia put in a word occasionally, but she was distressed about her father, and with reason, for the Judge seemed suddenly worn out. Exhilarated by this newest escape, Barry was almost brilliant. They were finishing their coffee, when Marian said, "Do you still play?"

"Bridge or golf?" he asked. "Silly! The violin, of course! I hope you haven't been flattering yourself that it was you I remember. It wasn't. I didn't even know whether your hair was dark or fair, but I'll never forget the way you played the Liebestod."

"You never told me you played."

Pat said. "Oh, I don't any more. That was a youthful indiscretion."

"Youthful genius, I call it!" Marian persisted. "That night was full of music. Pat a party at Betty Fletcher's. I came late, as usual, and the lights were very low, and Mr. Ridder was just beginning the Liebestod. Little you knew what an admirer you left in that darkened room."

"Shame on you!" exclaimed Patricia. "You've got to play for me now."

Waterloo. "I haven't touched a violin since I left college," Barry protested. "I don't even know where the old fiddle is."

"Mine's upstairs," Marian interjected. "I'll bring it down."

And she bounded out of the room. "I can't play any more," Barry held out lamely, "and I flatly decline to destroy Miss Lorn's illusions, or yours."

"No excuses," Pat said, very definitely. "Come on; we'll go into the drawing room."

As they passed through the old fashioned sliding doors, Marian, instrument in hand, reappeared. "I'll accompany you," she insisted. "and I've brought the Liebestod."

"That's great," Barry said, "but I warn you—"

Patricia was opening the piano. "I warn you," Barry said, "I'm going to make the most awful sounds human ears ever heard."

And, with that, he pulled together the double doors. "Ouch!" he exclaimed. "Nothing serious," Barry replied, calmly. "I've slammed the doors on my fingers."

He held up his right hand. It was crushed badly. Everybody was extremely solicitous, and Pat wanted to send for the doctor.

"Certainly," Barry declared. "It's only broken the skin."

"I'll take care of it now," Patricia said, dispatching the butler for witch-hazel and bandages.

"Well, that's the end of the violin playing," Marian remarked. "I'm afraid so. Wasn't I stupid?"

"Not at all," Patricia answered, manipulating the gauze deftly. "The Judge wanted to go to bed early, anyway. I wonder whether you'd mind telephoning for Evans?"

"I'll run you home in the roadster," Pat volunteered, touching the bell again. "It's been a swell evening," Barry insisted, giving Marian his left hand. "Pleasant surprise, meeting you here. This isn't good-bye, is it?"

"That's up to you. I'll be around until Monday."

"Good night, Judge, and I hope you feel better tomorrow."

The roadster had been brought to the door, and Patricia climbed into it. "I'll be back soon," she promised.

Five minutes later, the car halted in front of the Ridder house. "Thanks awfully," Barry said. "Don't mention it."

There was something very like mockery in her voice. "And, Mr. Gilbert—"

For an instant, Barry wasn't certain he had heard aright. "You've got courage," Patricia went on. "I'll say that for you. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Barry floundered helplessly. "No? Well, maybe I'll tell you sometime."

She laughed. "Meanwhile"—as he alighted from the car—"I'd watch my step, if I were you."

"I'm all right," Barry rejoined. "That depends," Patricia said. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think."

She put her foot on the accelerator, and the car moved away. To be continued.

Bad Axe—Sentences in Jackson prison were meted out Tuesday to three confessed cattle thieves by Judge George B. Hartwick of Royal Oak, who was called here in the absence of Judge X. A. Boomhower.

Burr Vincent of Rose City, 25, formerly of this city, was sentenced to serve from one to five years. He had no criminal record. Harold Vincent, 30, of Holt, Mich., and Edward Watkins, 41, of Detroit, were sentenced to five years. Both had prison records. The men were arrested in Detroit for the theft of four head of cattle from the farm of Ernest Werschky, two miles south of Sebewaing, on Feb. 21. They admitted other cattle thefts throughout the state. All of the men are married and have families. In sentencing Burr Vincent, the judge recommended the minimum term.—Huron News.

Poetic Ability Discovered—

Annabelle Papp, tenth grade student, displayed poetic talent by writing this poem, "Expanding," which was entered this week in the literary division of the annual contest for high school students in the fields of writing and art by the Scholastic magazine. Her poem reads:

Expanding.

I am expanding!
My soul, a dark and bottomless pit,
Is struggling to break Fate's iron grip.
People laughed at what I had done;
And I was crushed, trampled upon.
Must I be treated thus?

I see a light, slowly ascending;
It flickers, fades - - -
My soul again has turned to night.
Oh, Liberator! let it not die.
Must it be crushed the same as I?
I see it; God, let not it fade.

It glows again;
It shines afar.
My soul, my crushed and lusterless soul,
'Tis like a morning star.
Is it liberty?
And am I free?
True! I breathe anew!
'Tis victory!
I have expanded.

Declamations Begin—

Gladys Chapman, Marjorie Croft, Gladys Davenport, Donald Allured, Edith Powell, Phyllis Kefgen, Alberta Geoit, and Christina Laurie are representing the freshmen and sophomore classes in learning declamations. They are being trained by Miss Hale. A preliminary contest was held Thursday afternoon to choose the winner who will represent Cass City at the sub-district contest at Sebewaing next month. Loyalty pins were presented to the two highest contestants.

Collycott Addresses Student Body—

Rev. William Collycott, guest speaker at the M. E. church last week, talked to the students in a general assembly last Thursday. Winning his audience by his pleasing Scotch accent and friendly countenance, Mr. Collycott told the Bible story of Joseph, the dreamer. He emphasized the following points in his speech: (1) Be dreamers, (2) dream of endeavor, and (3) dream of goodness.

English—

English 10 classes observed auditorium day by having their English classes in the gym. Special committees prepared programs in which various talents were unearthed. One section presented a play while the other section conducted a Major Bowes Amateur Hour. Similar programs will be given each month as a stimulus for creative work.

The ninth grade English classes are reading "Julius Caesar" by Shakespeare and sophomore classes are reading George Eliot's "Silas Marner." Junior classes have just finished the study of Wordsworth.

Girls' Glee Club

Secures New Selections—

Miss Steensma sent for two new 3-part pieces for the girls' glee club, "Giannina Mia" from "The Firefly," and "Bells," a selection arranged to the tune of Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C. Sharp Minor." The girls are also working on sacred numbers for baccalaureate in the spring.

Hawaiian Guitar Orchestra

Makes Radio Debut—

Anyone listening to the Lapeer station next Thursday between 12 and 12:30 will hear the Hawaiian orchestra organized in the Cass City high school play. A group of five girls will sing several numbers with the orchestra also.

Overflowing Mail Box—

Yes, Miss Ruth Erskine, former teacher here, should have an overflowing mail box on Monday when she receives approximately two hundred postcards from her former Cass City students. They are but a small effort to show Miss Erskine that we miss her.

If You See—

—Students excitedly looking at photographs, you may be sure they are selecting the best one of some senior for graduation.

—Mr. Holmberg energetically wiping the floor in the library down on his hands and knees, he is not trying to amuse the students, but is merely trying to remove ink stains from an overturned ink bottle.

—Students wearing maroon and grey CC pins you will know they are showing loyalty to their school by that act.

—Many colored designs on the bulletin boards in the math room, you are gazing upon work of the geometry class.

—A freshman looking joyful and carefree, he has for the minute forgotten that report cards will be distributed soon.

Junior Play Committees Chosen—

Committees for "The Queen's Husband" were chosen at a junior class meeting Monday. Clarence Phillips is chairman of the committee sponsoring the sale of tickets in the country. Leslie Profit, Jessie Lounsbury, and Mary Slimko are his co-workers. Jean Kerbyson, aided by Arnold Reagh, Willard Davison, and Pete Reyes, have charge of selling tickets in town. The chairman of the ushers is James Smith. Eugene Wilson, Vern Crane, Mary Slimko, Doris Pringle, and Julia Bolla will assist. The poster committee has not been chosen. The date for the junior play has been set for Thursday night, March 26.

Briefs—

Most of the students (and teachers too) have undoubtedly figured out on the calendar that there are eleven more weeks of advance work, one week of review, and one week of semester tests before the 1935-36 school year is completed.

Home economics II girls are busily preparing for the Woman's Study Club luncheon to be given next Tuesday. As the luncheon occurs on St. Patrick's day, the decorations will be typical of that holiday.

Teachers' Institute at Caro (today) created a one-day vacation for the students. This is the last day of vacation until Easter.

With the apparent arrival of less severe weather the serving of hot dishes at noon was terminated yesterday. However, if storms or cold weather should return, this practice will be temporarily resumed.

I WISH to take this opportunity to thank the many, many friends who surely did surprise me on my birthday, March the 8th. As one of my well wishers said, they were wrong who said life began at 40; it is 50.

We travel this road just once and no doubt we all would like to retrace or backtrack that thought or deed for one that would bring a smile or a thank you, and if when we had reached 50 years of age we could be sure the experiences we had gained had been worth while, life would be worth living.
